Mother, daughter follow grandmother's footsteps

Wayne State College graduates Audra and Lynne Sievers, of Wayne, carry on a tradition. They follow the example of their grandmother/mother, Darlene (Habrock) Dolph. She graduated from Wayne State College, then Wayne Normal School, in 1931 in elementary education, the same as her granddaughter Audra did on Dec. 18.

Both Sievers have more than graduating together in common. Both students attended Wayne State College after earning scholarships. Audra Sievers was awarded the Jeanne M. Gardner Scholarship and Lynn earned a transfer scholarship to come to Wayne State College.

Lynn Sievers is a journalism/graphic design major. She and her husband, Michael, have two daughters, Audra and Stacy. Stacy Sievers has attended Northeast Community College in Norfolk and plans to continue. Audra Sievers has graduated in elementary education with a coaching endorsement.

The experience of attending college together was something Lynn and Audra Sievers did as a mother and daughter duo, yet they said they weren't together all the time. Although they took some of the same classes, Lynn and Audra Sievers said they were never in class together.

"I know there are other things that we could have been doing to have a mother daughter experience together," Lynn Sievers said.

"Having Audra in college at the same time helped me because knowing my daughter was also taking classes inspired me to think, 'If she can do it, I can do it.' Audra has helped me to relax and enjoy college. I think that it was better I didn't start at Wayne State College because my daughter seemed more comfortable with it as she grew older. Parents are the last people their children want to see on campus," Lynn said.

Most students aren't mature enough as underclassmen to say, 'Hey, this is a cool thing,' Audra said about her early feelings toward her mother's presence on campus.

"As a freshman and sophomore, you're dealing with just growing up. You want to be yourself, but me! The older I got it was no big deal," Audra said.

Audra's mother agreed with her and said at first her feelings were hurt, but she was able to understand how she must have felt to have her mother on campus.

Audra said having her mother going through many of the same things she was experiencing made her feel as if her mother understood.

"It's hard to get adjusted and it can be intimidating at first. Non-traditional organizations are a good place to talk about these experiences," Lynn said.

Audra said she understands and admires her mother's choice to finish college. Her determination helped build and emphasize her daughter's view of the importance of college.

"I knew once she started she would be determined and she would be a nut about it and worry," Audra said.

She said her choice was a natural one without overcoming as much to make a choice to attend college as a non-traditional student has to do.

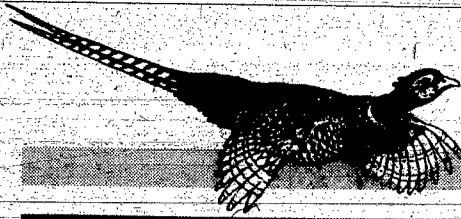

"I was expected to go to college. This made my choice easier. Everyone assumed I would go without a second thought. I had always known my whole life what I wanted to be. My grandmother always told me I would make a good teacher," Audra said.

Remembering her own college days, Darlene said she stayed in Terrace Hall which she said was not co-ed and girls had to be in by 9 p.m.

The training school was on the west side of the campus and that was where students did their practice teaching.

She said two of the teachers she recalls are Esther DeWitz who Agricultural marketing classes are being offered

Agricultural producers who wish to sharpen their marketing skills can enroll in 'Agricultural Marketing' taught by Dr. Jim Kendrick through the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Non-credit enrollees will receive lectures on VHS video tape each week along with the course textbook. Participants can also interact with Dr. Kendrick via the Internet each day that the class is in session and through computer discussion group, the Agricultural Marketing listserve.

Some of the topics covered in this class include how to reduce price risk through the use of agricultural futures and options; when and when not to use storage; how to use producer marketing contracts with agricultural firms to your advantage; concepts of using basis determination in pricing your crops and livestock.

Dr. Kendrick leads participants from the basics through the complex and uses real-world examples based on what's happening in the market now.

The video tapes provide a convenient format that can be kept for future reference.

The cost of the course is $349.95 for non-credit enrollees.

If several producers are interested in the course, they may share the cost of enrollment. College credit is also available for interested producers or for high school seniors. Family members of high school seniors enrolled for credit may participate for free.

The course begins Jan. 11, 1999 with the first video tape arriving Jan. 19 and will continue until May 1, 1999.

The trees will be shipped post-paid at the right time for planting between Feb. 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

Top contestants named for contest

Top contestants for the 1998 Meat Animal Evaluation Contest (MAEC) at the University of Nebraska have been recognized. Contest participants annually evaluate cattle, swine and sheep in both breeding and market divisions. Keith Gilster, contest coordinator and animal scientist, said the contest is an advanced educational activity that builds enthusiasm and teamwork. Similar livestock evaluation contests at NU date back to 1916, Gilster noted.

Top contestants for the Block and Bridle event were recognized Dec. 11 at a campus luncheon. There were 115 junior contestants and nine senior contestants.

Top junior contestants were Patrick Fischer of Pierce, overall and breeding division; Travis Chrisman of McCool Junction, market division and swine; Matt Rasmussen of Mead, cattle; and Kurt Virgil of Raymond, sheep.

Junior division team winners in the overall and market categories were Rise Kaylor of Malcom, Brent Luebbert of West Point, Marshall Poehler of Shelton and Chrisman. Breeding division winners were Megan Meyer of Wayne, Lori Watermeier of Burr, Dan Seagren of Wausa and Kristin Nollette of Nenzl.

Top senior division contestants were David Wilke of Columbus, overall and breeding division; Jeremy Martin of Lexington, market, swine, sheep and evaluation divisions; and Ben Siegfried of McCook, cattle.

The MAEC contest, held Dec.

5, was conducted by Block and Bridle Club students with help from animal science faculty in NU's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

S Bar Angus joins association

S Bar Angus of Hoskins is a new member of the American Angus Association, reports Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

The American Angus Association, with over 31,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on over 12 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.

Christmas less hectic this year

It's the day after Christmas, and all through the house... The Big Farmer is reading yesterday's newspaper and the farmer's wife is doing laundry.

This has to count as one of the most relaxing holidays I've ever spent; especially compared to last year's, when I was sanding and staining and messing.

I've always maintained that the stress of Christmas has to do with health-care professionals while vice-presidents get raises and benefits.

I'm also very concerned about the rising cost of health insurance and reports of poor care we are getting for it. That's my area, and what I hear makes me very uncomfortable.

For now, this little hiatus of a week before the new year, I'm not going to lose any sleep over it. I'm not even going to make any new year's resolutions rights now, I'm going to read a good book, take a walk, and write my thank yous.

I hope the Colorado-Oregon game is a foretelling of Big 12 bowl games, and that D'Angelo stays healthy. I'm rooting for Florida State. And I'm wishing Tyrone Lue had stayed in Nebraska for one more year.

Happy 1999!

Sue and Monte have always decorated, but now that they have a larger home with things like wood beams and lots of nooks and crannies, they pull out all the stops. If you aren't "in the mood" when you arrive there, you will be before you leave.

We've had no overnight guests since Thanksgiving weekend, so the cleaning, laundry and cooking have been less. However, we are full the next three nights, so there goes my slack time.

I have overdosed on seasonal music, with KGBI on in the car, and records and tapes in the house. On Wednesday eve, I did the ironing with the Robert Shaw Chorals and the Atlanta Symphony. In fact, I'm sending a check to PBS, saying that kind of continuous programming motivates me more than their interrupted fund-raisers.

On the 24th, I found a radio station with the same format. White Christmas, O Holy Night, and Hallelujah Chorus in an eclectic blend while I made oyster stew. Our church service featured carols, and a traditional candle lit Silent Night.

Weather cooperated in our area, at least, and grand kids didn't even have colds.

Even as I muse on our blessings, I also ponder the events of the past year. There is good news: violent crime, teen pregnancy, and infant mortality, all down. But automobile deaths, drug use, and murder by children all up.

People starving while hogs are being given away and record low prices for grain. A 77-year-old astronaut in space, and reading scores low.

All kinds of labor-saving devices, and no one seems to have more time. I'm especially concerned about poor nurse/patient ratios in hospitals, and cutting salaries for

RECEIVES BACHELOR DEGREE

Valorie Fischer was among the students of the University of Nebraska College of Nursing-Lincoln Division, to receive a degree during ceremonies on Dec. 19. Valorie earned a bachelor of science in nursing.

Lt. Gov. Kim Robak was the guest speaker at the commencement held in the Devaney Center.

Valorie is a Wakefield High School graduate and is the daughter of Rich and Leila Fischer of Wakefield.

RURAL SCHOOL GRADUATES

Jared Baker of Wakefield and Laura Rochlitz of Paxton, both first year students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, have conducted a study of how the graduates of rural high schools have done in college study.

They found that many students who attended college completed their degree in four years. The average completion rate for the schools was over 50 percent.

The students work was noted in the School at the Center December Newsletter.

The newsletter also noted students-as-entrepreneurs in Wakefield have started their own school-based retail enterprise called the "Bubble." The school store was created and opened last school term and is currently operating this school year.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

The Wakefield Board of Education met on Dec. 14. Visitors were Cathy Stading, Shannon and Jean Dorcey, John Torczon and Curt Madsen.

Deputy State Fire Marshall Curt Madsen gave an extensive report on the requirements needed for classrooms off campus.

Athletic Director John Torczon reported on officials' entry fees for 1999-2000. He also reviewed receipts and expenses for the months of September, October, and November, 1998.

Principal Widner reported that she, Mrs. Muller, and Mrs.

Samuelson went to Madison to observe the school's classrooms in action. The goal was to find some part of Madison's educational program that might be implemented in the Wakefield Community School.

Principal Widner also addressed a wide variety of questions from elementary staff regarding moving grades 3 and 4 off campus.

Mr. Moody stated that the January and February board meetings will be at 7 p.m. He then explained state aid for next year and said he will be attending the Legislative Relations Conference on Feb. 22 in Lincoln.

NASB is holding a Labor Relations Conference on Feb. 2 and 3 in Kearney. Mr. Moody urged the staff on the negotiations team to attend.

Mr. Moody is working in an advisory capacity with Wakefield Family Resource Center, the FRC is also experiencing space and building issues.

NASB conference reports were heard by Lueth concerning an area school's survey report card; Safe and Drug Free Schools by McAfee and ESU Finance. Enrollment Option Students and Notice of Drug and Alcohol Violations by Kratke.

The board denied the student's request for an appeal of the Attendance Committee.

A special board meeting will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 7 p.m. to consider action for the facility needs of the District. Building and Grounds Committee members Johnson, Lueth, and McAfee will meet prior to the special meeting.

The board approved a personal day request for Shannon Dunning on Jan. 4, 1999.

THANK YOU

THANK YOU to all who sent cards of sympathy at the time of the death of our loved one, Hannah Burns. Also, thank you for calls, visits, memorials & food brought to the house, and to Pastor Main for the lovely service. It was all deeply appreciated. Marvin & Elaine Draghu.

THANK YOU to our friends and relatives for taking time out of their busy schedules and sharing our graduation day with us. We appreciated the cards, and gifts but especially having so many come to our party and helping us celebrate. It will be a day we will always remember! Lynn and Audra Sievers.

THE FAMILY of Linnea Nygren wish to thank all who helped in any way at the time of our mother's death and funeral. Special thanks to the Hillcrest Care Center, Rev. Marburger and Concordia Lutheran Church Ladies. Your expressions of Love and letters of concern is deeply appreciated. Robert & Leora Hagemann & family, Martin Decker & family, Lowell & Pat Nygren & family.

THERE IS no way to express how thankful we are to everyone who came together and pitched in and put together the benefit for Austin Lyle Brader. There is no way we can express how deeply it has touched our hearts to see so many people come together and do so much for our family. There are so many people we owe thanks to, we don't even know where to begin. We owe a big thanks to Pamida, Jennifer Owens for coming up with the idea, and Mr. Carrol for helping her get the whole thing organized. Also a big thank you to all the Pamida Employees, without every one's team work this wouldn't have been possible. Big thank you's to everyone who donated their time to help, to all the local and surrounding businesses for the donations for the silent auction. To Shelly and Buck Owens for bringing in their horses, and donating their time to give the horse rides. Thanks to Matt Weidit and the Wayne Fire Department for bringing the fire trucks and donating your time to give the rides. Also a Big thank you to the AAL Branch #9609 for matching funds the benefit received. It is so "unbelievable" how everyone in this community has come together like they have to help our family out in our time of need. So many people have touched our hearts during this time and we would like to thank everyone who has been there, helped us, thought of us, and have kept us in their prayers. God Bless You All, The family of Austin Lyle Brader.

Thank you to everyone for the telephone calls, flowers, cards, memorials and food we received after the loss of our father, Clifford Johnson. Also thank you for the concerns while he was ill. It was all greatly appreciated.
