Crews have been making attempts to work on Highway 35 east of Main Street but last week's rain has caused delays.

The west half of the project was completed in 1998 and work was begun on the east half of the oject which begins near the airport and continues west to Main

Scott Brummond, with the Nebraska Department of Roads, has released a tentative time-line for the rest project to be com-pleted. He stressed that the work will be completed weather permitting and barring any breakdowns of equipment.

Approximately two working days will be needed to do subgrading preparation, two days to do trim work, two days to lay the base course and two days to trim.

After the preliminary, work is-done, crews will need four to five days to do the paving of the eastbound (south) lane.

When that project is com pleted, the crews will follow up with the pouring of intersections on the south side of Highway 35. It is estimated that this will take three weeks.

During that time, intersections at Centennial Road, Valley Dive, Dearborn, Windom and possibly an between Logan and Nebraska Streets

At the present time construc-tion crews are working on-lighting at the east end of the project. Light poles are being installed and pole at the corner of Seventh and Pearl Streets, on the west portion of the project, is also being put in place

Jensen said the goal of Inventive Communications is to-have 900,000 home users by Nov. 1, 1999. The company is planning ahead for global growth by making sure their infrastructure supports their growth. An office in Omaha and servers located on both coasts will be part of the insurance that computer speed is kept at peak performance while adding more users.

The inetlibrary™ network operating system is Linux, an open-systems architecture, desianed to meet the highest levels of performance, industry standards interoperability, ease-of-use, and system reliability.

Inventive Communications markets its product through a nationwide telemarketing effort. The inetlibrary™ costs $5 per month or less than a penny per book title for annual access. Schools have a tiered cost structure according to

Gosey wins The Wayne Herald, Thursday, April 22, 1999. scholarship

Wayne State College senior. Sara Gosey of Raymond won a scholarship to the Direct Scholarship to the Direct Marketing Collegiate Institute in Southfield, Mich., March 17-21. Gosey is the daughter of Jim and Linda Gosey. She plans to graduate with a degree in business management and business marketing. She has been involved with Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) while attending WSC.

"Gosey received an intensive experience in one of the fastest growing aspects of marketing through direct marketing and campaigns from some of the best experts in the country. Further she will have the apportunity to network with professionals and other motivated students such as herself in a different environment than the classroom. It should be a confidence builder for her and an excellent addition to her resume, Pat Lutt, WSC business instructor

Gosey has been awarded a scholarship to an institute which becomes more competitive each year, Student programs are promoted to professors, who are asked to nominate their top students. The Institute was a combination of expression of interest on the part of the student with an extensive application which included a nomination from Lutt, her marketing instructor.

"I am very pleased to have my students apply and be accepted for such opportunities. I am very proud of them and that their hard work is paying off for them," Lutt

"Sara has a quiet confidence about her. She sets a goal and then sets about to achieve it. She looks for what she can make happen," Lutt said.

As a WSC student, Gosey said small and personalized classes have helped her establish relationships with her teachers. She said she feels the experience of attending the Institute has ex-panded her thinking about mar-keting and provided her with different marketing alternatives.

Leading experts in the field of direct marketing taught sessions on direct marketing by mail, print and telephone; lists and database marketing; and direct marketing applications such as packaged goods and business-to-business; and a session on resumes and ca reer information.

Plan needs quick thinking

Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association Gov. Mike Johanns needs to do some quick thinking about the fu-ture of his proposed property tax

He needs to think about when and how he can come up with a program to get lots and lots more folks, within and without the Legislature, enthused about the idea. Real-ly enthused.

The freshman governor puts one in mind of a fellow, in comparable, circumstances, whose rable circumstances, whose dilemma was described by H.L. Mencken many years ago. The fellow was sincere about his idea, Mencken noted, "But for all his eloquence he could not make it thrilling."

And, there you have it.

The Johanns proposal would have the state provide fractional rebates for those who pay property taxes levied by local govern-ments. The plan would be dependent upon the availability of funds each year, something that critics see as a major weakness.

It would also move the state away from the idea that "property tax relief" is just another way of saying "more state aid to public schools" (who spend most of the local property tax dollars).

Johanns pushed the idea in a jonanns pushed the idea in a big way before and after he took office. The thing is, it apparently didn't cause a lot of excitement among the rank and file in Nebraska land.

It did not, and does not, have people rushing to write-letters and make telephone calls to their state senators, urging them to support Johanns' new program.

Add to that lack of vocal and visible public support the fact that Dierks replaces the late Sen. Stan Schellpeper of Stanton, who vehemently opposed the mea-issue, but I've got some real concerns, too, Dierks said in an interview. "There are parts of the governor's idea that I think a good many people might like, in terms of returning a percentage of the property taxes that someone pays. But the experienced people in this Legislature know you have to look at what happens down-stream, because there are shortcomings and pitfalls whenever you try to change a system as impor-tant and complicated as this one.

The question is, what would be Johanns' next move? He has said he is open to compromise, but that doesn't mean that lawmakers are necessarily willing to integrate the ideas most important to Johanns into existing law.

It would appear that Johanns needs to throw a party for his plan, and hope that lots of people

Council seeking input for issues

Periodically some issues come before the council that additional public input would be of benefit. One of the standard arguments I hear is "they (the voters) elected us to do the voting on city government issues and we can't ask them all the time how they would like us

Well, the fact is, as you are aware, the council does vote on city busi ness the vast majority of time without much or any voter input.

But sometimes issues have enough sentiment as to require a more studied approach.

At the council retreat in Omaha one of the established goals was to consider raising the salary of council members and mayor. No raises have occured since approximately 1973 No specific amounts were discussed but it was felt important enough to be included in this years list of goals.

If a raise were voted in, it would not take place until after the next election as I understand. Currently the council members are paid $1000.00 per year and the Mayor $1500.00 per year. I believe a raise is long overdue for council members and mayor who assume this responsibility and serve the public.

It was the consensus of the council to ask the public what their opinion was regarding a raise

The second item we wish more public input is the subject of mandated curbside garbage pickup for all versus being able to place garbage in the alleys for pickup.

One garbage hauler at the meeting expressed his concern for the wear and tear-on his trucks with alley pickup and he would favor entirely curbside pickup.. Vern Schulz, of public works, would pre-fer curbside pickup because of less

No one at the last council meeting was there to speak in favor of alley pickup (maybe in part because no one knew that it was going to be an agenda item; including the council members!). I suspect that not everybody or maybe not even the majority want exclusive curbside

And perhaps I'm wrong. On both of these issues we (the council) would really like your input.

The garbage issue is scheduled for discussion AND VOTE, quite likely on the council meeting of April 27th. No date is set on the issue of council member and mayor salary

Please, please, please come to the council meeting or call or write your council member or write letters to the editor of the Wayne Hearld or write KTCH with your comments. It will be your only chance to partici-

Descendant of WSC founder attends classes

Jodi Pile, daughter of James E. and Pam Pile of Norfolk, is the latest in a long line of family, mem-bers to attend the college founded by an earlier James M. Pile. Wayne State College was founded in 1891.

'My heritage is here," Pile said. She said she chose Wayne State College not only because her great, great grandfather founded the institution, but because of its location

"I wanted to go to college somewhere not far from home. My extended and immediate family and my close friends have always supported me. Most stu-dents don't notice or don't believe I'm a descendant of the founder at first," Pile said.

Pile said she was attracted to the College because of more than her heritage. The smaller size and personable atmosphere of the College were also attributes Pile said she feels have set Wayne State apart from other colleges.

"I don't feel like a small person n a big place here. I feel safe, Pile said.

Her security could be based on a family tree with strong roots at Wayne State College. Pile Hall is named for the college's founder, James M. Pile. He was Jodi Pile's great, great grandfather, His wife and son taught at Wayne State. Her great grandfather James H Pile also attended the college and later became sheriff of Wayne County. His son and her grandfather James M. Pile attended WSC for three years, however his edu-cation was cut short when he went to war. Two of his sons attended the College, her uncle Mike Pile and her father.

Jodi Pile's father, James E., went to WSC for a year. Although her parents have lived in Norfolk all their lives, they dated at Wayne State College one year.

As the latest Pile attending freshman Jodi Pile has designated counseling/psychology as her major with a minor in sociol-ogy. While attending college, Pile also works at Region IV in the children's home. Following her graduation, Pile said she would like to continue her education by obtaining a master's degree in coun-

"I chose this field because I like to help people in situations fike working at Region IV. I really like it and even in high school I knew what I wanted to do; she said.

Blood Bank question is answered

Dear Editor,

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank always welcomes concerns and questions about donating

One recent question that has been frequently asked is "I have a rare blood type. Should I give often?" The answer is a simple matter of need. Yes, even individuals with rare blood types are needed on a regular basis.

Since we can hold platelets for only five days and it takes 36-48 hours to turn the donated blood around for use, we need a continuous renewable supply. Accidents and trauma patients can't wait the 36-48 hours before receiving what could possibly be their only link to life. Many cancer patients who are receiving chemotherapy treatments may need several transfusions.

As you can see we need all types of blood everyday. Thanks to all our volunteers, like those in Wayne and the surrounding area, the blood bank is able to meet all the needs of all nations in our 13 area hospitals with life saving blood products.

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank is proud to be the supplier of Blood products to Providence Medical Center. We will be in Wayne at the hospital on Thursday, April 22 from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Hope to see all blood types there.

Coghlan had his perfect game in tact for 6 2/3 innings before giving up a full-count walk. He completed the no-hitter by making the next batter ground out

He struck out four and the rest of the 'Cats defense supplied solid support as WSC improved to 13-3 in the Northern Sun Conference and 22-13 overall

"Patrick had a good change-up working and his curve ball was on the money, and he located his fast ball," WSC coach John Manganaro said: "He competed very well and challenged every batter."

WSC finished with seven hits in the second game of that doubleheader, led by Brian Zimmerman as

Smelly plant

Students in Mrs. Pam Boehle's class at St. Mary's Elementary were able to see (and smell) first hand a plant very similar to one that was discussed in a Weekly Reader article. The plant, which has a number of names, including devil's fongue, voo-doo illy, snake palm and sacred illy of India, recently produced a purple bloom without soil or water. The bloom gives off an odor similar to rotten meat. Students in Mrs. Boehle's room include, left to right, Emilie Osten, Cory Harm, Luke Gentrup, Maria Trujillo, Tyler Murtaugh, Jenny Holm, Chris Sherry, Sheree Kathol and Ally Miller. STOLTENBERG PARTNERS

" WHAT IF?

OK-you've decided to buy a home. Now, beware of the "what if?" game. "What if . . . you can't find the right home? What if . . . you don't qualify for a mortgage? What if . . . you don't have enough down payment?" It's so easy to be drawn into the game . . . yet so much easier to avoid it.

Begin by choosing an informed real estate agent that can provide a reliable stream of answers to your questions. You'll quickly find that "what ifs" stop finding their way into your conversations and are replaced with clear, accurate information.

Cultivate a wholesome relationship with the agent by explaining your goals, your financial abilities, and your concerns. Then, and only then, will the agent be able to identify suitable homes for your inspection. Your new home will appear before you know it

Begin today. Ask the agent for the names of satisfied buyers already served. Expect to benefit from the agent's experience, sincerity, and commitment to helping you achieve your objectives.

Do you have questions about buying a home or qualifying for a mortgage? Let's visit about the possibilities.

Children need to know danger of sun cared for in day-care centers, child-care providers need to evalwate their sun-protection practices. In Nebraska, more than 90,000 children are enrolled in day-care centers — about 56 percent are under age 5.

Children need to learn about the danger of exposure to the sun. Since children learn through role modeling and example, child-care providers and parents need to examine their own attitudes and practices related to sun exposuré.

Sun Exposure

Excessive sun exposure is the main cause of skin cancer — about 90 percent of skin cancers occur on sun-exposed areas of the body About 80 percent of a person's total sun exposure occurs before the age of 18. Research shows that sun exposure in the first 15 years of life is a risk factor for melanoma, the most dangerous form of skin cancer. Blistering sun-burns prior to age 20 also have been associated with this risk factor. Skin remembers each sunburn and each suntan year after year. Therefore children need help to become sun-wise and to practice un safety behaviors

A Suntan

Contrary to belief, a suntan during childhood is not a sign of good health. Actually, tanning is the skin's way of protecting itself from the sun's harmful rays. Even though a suntan may look nice and make one feel good, no medical research suggests that a suntan improves health. Experts have determined that casual exposure to sunlight is adequate to satisfy vitamin D requirements. A normal diet and foods that are fortified with vitamin D provide the needed amount. The use of sunscreen does not affect the development of a deficiency of vitamin D. Staying out of the sun is a smart thing to do.

The children most at risk for sun damage. are fair-skinned Caucasians with blue, green or gray eyes and blonde, light-brown or red hair who suntan poorly, burn

Linda (

Remember, children are at a greater risk to sun exposure be-cause the outer layer of skin is thinner and they have more skin relative to their body mass. Therefore, a sunburn will cover more area and be more harmful. As a child-care provider or parent, established sun safety guidelines will help protect children against overexposure to the sun. Sun Safety Guidelines:

1. Avoid being in the sun be-tween 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. This doesn't mean you have to keep children indoors. Arrange the play area so children can play in the shade. Keep babies under 6 months out of direct sunlight. Put them in a covered stroller, under an umbrella or in the shade.

2. Apply sunscreen that has an SPF (sun protection factor) of at least 15 or higher. To be effective, sunscreen must be applied to the skin 20 to 30 minutes before no ing outdoors and reapplied every two hours or after swimming or sweating. Nebraska child-care providers need to monitor the children's sunscreen applications. The sunscreen may be provided by the parents or by the day-care centers. Children should learn to make applying sunscreen a habit, like brushing their teeth.

3. Wear safe sunglasses. Babies and young children are more sus-ceptible to irreversible solar eye damage. The eyes cap be pro-tected from ultraviolet rays by wearing lenses that absorb 100 percent of both UV-A and UV-B solar rays.

4. Wear protective clothing wide-brimmed hat, long-sleeved shirt and pants. A hat shields the face, ears and back of the neck. A baseball hat does not provide adequate protection but is probably better than no hat at all In most Australian schools, the no hat, no play rule is enforced at recess. A typical summer shirt has an SPF of about 6.5. Dense-weave fabrics block out the sun's rays.

Research at the University of Nebraska found that washing cot-ton fabrics repeatedly in a detergent with brightening agents actually enhanced the fabrics' sun protection levels. The sun-blocking abilities were assigned a UPF (ultraviolet" protection factor). A knit cotton T-shirt had a UPF rating that jumped from 6.5 to 38.4 af that jumped from 6.3 to 36.4 ar-ter 20 washings.

5. Beware of cloudy days. As-much as 80 percent of the sun's rays come through clouds so apply sunscreen on those days, too.

6. Sand, snow, concrete and water can reflect up to 85 percent of the sun's damaging rays. Take precautions near these surfaces.

7. Child-care providers and parents need to set a good example for children. A child's sun exposure is dependent on the attitudes and practices of the pri-mary caregiver. Parents and caregivers who frequently practice skin cancer prevention behaviors are more likely to practice prevention techniques with children. Children nodel what they see.

Summary

Day-care providers and parents need to understand the importance of sun safety practices in relation to the long-term inci-dence of skin cancer in the chil-dren they serve. Protection from the sun should be considered as necessary as providing a balanced

One study indicated that children who regularly use sunscreen with an SPF factor of 15 or more during the first 18 years of their lives can reduce the lifetime incidence of skin cancer by 78 per-

Sun safety can be taught to 4and 5-year-olds. It is important to increase their knowledge and comprehension, but they need

According to the Skin Cancer

Local returns from choir performances

Philip Morgan of Allen was among the University of Nebraska at Kearney Choraleers, who recently sang with some of the most accomplished choirs in the nation, at the Mormon Tabernacle Church in Salt Lake City, Utah

The choir was one of only two college choirs from throughout the country selected to take part in the Ninth Annual Intermountain Choral Festival. The Choraleers combined with University of Utah's concert choir and high school singers. They also performed with the Utah State University Chamber Singers.

Osgood Fowler's broken sump pump went on to star in "20,000 Leagues Beneath the Basement.

Our guests from Virginia were a bit shocked by what greeted them on Friday evening. On Saturday evening, they were marveling at the clear stars, and at least the sun was shining when they left on Sunday.

I had taken the Myers-Briggs personality test several years ago, at a conference for nurses in northeast Nebraska. It was designed to help us understand our peers as well as ourselves, thus helping us to work together. I have no recollection about the results; other, than, obviously, I'm an extrovert. Some good friends have been involved with the test in marriage counseling at their church. I can see the value in that.

Last week, I was given the opportunity to again take the test. I was an ESFP, whatever that means. I'm told that we are about 13 percent of the general population. I brought home the computerized explanation for the Big Farmer, and he thought, it pretty well had me pegged.

It says we are the most generous of all the types. I've often wished I had the money to be a philanthropist. Wouldn't that be fun?

It also says we make exciting, if unpredictable mates, which may give quieter type mates some anxiety and tension from living on the edge of adventure. Again, if only for the money.

It states that the home of an ESFP is likely to be filled with people all Phaving a good time. Sounds like good criteria for a B & B.

Our other guests this weekend were old friends from Wood Lake. At noon, the UNL buddy, his wife, and his son drove on the yard, followed by a cousin and his wife! I hastily added leaves to the table and began thawing left-over ham loaf in the microwave. When the minister arrived, I informed him that he needed to bless the food and make it into a miracle of loaves and fishes! He did. too.

Everyone was gone by 3. Sput the first load of dishes into the dish washer, a load of sheets into the clothes washer, and crashed! Naps do wonders, and I had all the dishes and the towels done when old Hoskins friends drove on the yard. They even brought an apple pie, so I made 'more coffee.

When they left, the Big Farmer and I had a late supper. We could probably have stretched the spaghetti and meat balls, but I did-'n't even try!

I visited friend Peg on Saturday: We've had a miracle there, too She's walking, talking, eating. But her memory is gone. Please continue to pray: At this point, I'm not sure she will ever work as a nurse again. And she is a good one!
