Old train tracks surface west of Wayne

By Lynn Slevers
Of the Herald

Reporter's note: excerpts from the following story have been taken from the books, "History of Wayne County-Nebraska-1938," by Dorothy Huse Nyberg; "Wheel of Progress-Carroll" by the Carroll Centennial Book Committee; "Railroad Stations in Nebraska-An Era of Use and Reuse" by Reisdorff and Bartels, and the "Carroll Index."

Protruding stubbornly through the dirt on a country road three miles west and a little north of Wayne are several wooden railroad ties serving as reminders of days gone by. Days in which the railroad determined the location of area towns and was a viable part of everyday existence for those living in and around those towns. In the past, government encouraged railroads to build by issuing grants to them. The government said the railroads could claim its share of any unclaimed part of the state. Before track was laid in the Wayne area, Wisner was the end of the railroad line. People had to travel to Wisner by horse and buggy to get provisions brought there by train. For those living near Carroll and Hoskins, the trip would take two days as there were no roads or bridges. Many times people had to ford streams at shallow spots going miles out of their way to cross. Often wagons had to be unloaded and merchandise carried across by hand. Also, mail had to be carried by hand. For example, mail for the Hoskins area had to be carried by hand from Stanton. Train tracks were a welcome sight to many people when they finally made their way across this area. The first railroad line out of Sioux City, after making connection with the Union Pacific Railroad, was along the Missouri River bottom to Yankton. Paths of least resistance were followed to lay the tracks. Railroad ties were laid from Emerson to Wayne in 1881. Wayne was first called Brookdale. The tracks missed LaPorte, which was located south-east of Brookdale; thus inhabitants of LaPorte abandoned the town and relocated to Brookdale. Trains traveled from Emerson to Wayne twice a week. A few claims were then filed in Wayne County; in Hunter and Strahan precincts with 800 acres being acquired through railroad grants.

The railroad line entered Wayne County at a point two miles north and three east of Wayne. From

Wayne the line branched to Carroll and Winside through Hunter See OLD, Page 3A

Architectural plans debated

by Aubrey Parson
for the Herald

The Wayne Board of Education discussed several issues in a regular meeting Monday night.

A representative from Bahr, Vermeer and Hacker (BVH) presented schematic design plans and a time schedule for remodeling in the high school and middle school.

The firm expects to have a contract signed and start construction on the high school around Oct. 1, 1999. The high school project is expected to be completed by mid-Aug. 2000.

Asbestos removal is currently underway in the middle school and is expected to be completed by the middle of July. BVH met with the middle school staff in regards to their thoughts and concerns over space and design. Construction is preliminarily scheduled to begin as soon as the ground thaws in Feb. or March of 2000 and be completed by August 2001.

The Board also approved their contract for BVH to be the architectural firm in charge of the renovation projects.

A meeting will be held on June 22 to discuss the high school design plans.

A group of middle school teachers presented their concerns over the renovation project to the Board. One concern that the teachers presented was the small size of the proposed classrooms. The teachers also were concerned about the media center being too small and the layout of the building being too fragmented for educational development.

Concern was also expressed over the size of the gym, which is proposed to be middle school size instead of full-size, and will not contain a stage. Numerous other concerns were also communicated.

*Paul Mattern, a representative from Alvine & Associates Engineering Firm, discussed electrical concerns in the high school. Mattern suggested replacing the old circuit panels with modern models.

"The older models currently in place are no longer manufactured and costs are high in regards to repairs," said Mattern. "The new service would be capable of serving the existing high school and the new addition."

Estimated cost for the electrical changes was around $70,000.

*Representatives from a community committee focusing on a new Recreation Center asked for the Board's support of the project. The committee also presented the results from a survey recently conducted.

The Board stated that they would support the project and would be willing to provide land for a new facility. The Board also agreed to participate in an inter-local agreement if necessary.

Meeting at Winside

Winside village residents are encouraged to attend a "Special Meeting" on Tuesday, June 22 to discuss Winside's water project. Presenting at the discussion will be Ron Benson, representing J.E.O. Engineers, Robert Prochaska of the USDA Rural Development; Angie McLean of Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District; and Winside Village Board Members.

Winside's current water tower is in need of major and costly repairs. Representatives will be prepared to discuss with residents this issue as well as the possibility of installing a complete water treatment plan and/or distribution system. The possible cost for the entire project could be $1 million.

Whatever decisions are made by the village board, will effect everyone's water rates; therefore, the board would really like to have the opinion of its residents regarding what they want done.

Once a decision is made, it will be too late for the public's input. The board members encourage everyone to attend and ask questions at the June 22 meeting in the village auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

WHY ASK FOR A MARKET ANALYSIS?

Who sets the asking price when a home is offered for sale? The property owner does, however to attract buyers the price should be based on a rock-solid C.M.A. (Comparative Market Analysis).

What does a CMA include? First, the seller's home is analyzed to determine its size, location, age, features and amenities, and condition. Next, the "market" is analyzed. The market includes homes recently sold, those currently for sale, and those which did not sell (the expired listings).

Homes recently sold carry the most weight, indicating the price buyers have already been willing to pay. Homes currently on the market are the competition, against which prospective buyers will be measuring value. Having not yet sold, they carry less weight in the final price determination. Homes with expired listings are a strong indicator of prices buyers are not willing to pay.

Price your home within the range established by an accurate Comparative Market Analysis to attract serious buyers and a quick sale.

For a professional Comparative Market Analysis please give me a call. With no cost or obligation, you can discover the value of your home in today's active market.

Precinct.
The C. St. P. M. & O. (Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha) Railroad Company extended its line through Wayne County in 1881.
From Carroll, the line continued on to Bloomfield. From Winside, the line continued to Norfolk. Nearly 125 men worked on the track that was laid west of Hoskins. Near Winside, the new line bypassed the site of Northside which was west of the present village of Winside. Winside was named so because backers of the Winside site had won out on moving the depot and a few other buildings to the present site.
Plans were to build towns about eight miles apart but often problems halted this from happening. Railroad ties were laid from Wayne to Randolph (21.68 miles) in 1886. The first train to run over that stretch of track was in late October or early November of 1886.
Bad weather forced the new railroad to close for a time. On Nov. 14, 1886, there was such a blizzard that the track was tied up for 10 days. There were also blizzards in '88 and in 1950 which closed the track for more than a week.
The original Wayne Depot was south of the replacement depot built in 1914 (now Godfather's Pizza restaurant). Carhart Lumber Company now uses the original depot for storage. Bob Carhart acquired the replacement depot in 1981. The C. St. P. M. & O. abandoned its line west of Dakota City in 1977.

Old railroad ties show through the dirt on a country road three miles west and a little north of Wayne. From the spot where they are found, one can see in the distance almost all the way to Carroll.

The depot in Carroll was built in 1886 and torn down in 1954. There were three elevators on the north side of the tracks. Stockyards owned by C. N. & St. P. Railroad and Farmer's Union Co-op Association were also on the north side; east of Main Street.
Carroll's depot was the first building built there. John Coyle of Wayne was the first station agent at Carroll. He rode the train to Carroll each evening to take care of business and then rode it back to Wayne again each morning.
Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Yaryan and family of Carroll, provided food and board for the train crew of 12 to 40 men as they extended the line in that area.
Gus Wendt from Emerson, railroad section foreman, moved his family from Emerson to Carroll in November, 1886. They were the first family to live in Carroll and his son was the first child born in Carroll.

This photo is of the old Carroll Depot taken around 1913 or 1914. TWJ Farms Feeds is now located where the depot and elevator used to be.

There were six trains which came through Carroll everyday. At one time, Carroll's population was around 525 people.
"The trains were steam locomotives back then and every eight miles or so they had to stop to take on water," said Edith Cook of Carroll.
According to her recollections, "In high school during the early 1930s, my girlfriends and I would take the train to Wayne late in the afternoon to see a movie at 7 p.m. After the movie we would take the train back to Carroll and be home around 11 p.m."
Another remembrance Cook has is that when an emergency arose such as roads being bad, caskets occasionally came in on trains into Carroll in the late '30s. Beckenhauer Funeral Parlors in Wayne was the only place providing funeral services in the area at that time so bodies had to be transported back and forth via railroad.
She noted that trains were used to bring much needed merchandise to towns. Merchandise ranged from lumber, coal, groceries, to nearly everything necessary for everyday life.
Cook said Dolph Hiller of Carroll, had a dray wagon which he loaded mostly with groceries coming in on the train and then he would unload them at area stores. Later, Hiller used an open truck instead of his dray wagon. He retired by the time trucks were used all of the time but he had provided a needed service for many years.

"Later, we lived one block from the railroad track in Carroll in the house where Gus Wendt had lived. Our children would run to the window every time the trains went by," Cook said.
Cook remembers during the early 1950s that mail was carried by train and the postmaster would get it in at the post office on Wednesday nights. The Wayne Herald would be delivered to the Carroll Post Office and those in town could stop down and pick it up early from him.
She noted that newspapers were welcome sources of information. "News was scarce and all of the ads were listed in the paper," Cook said.
Mary Davis of Carroll said that the last depot agent in Carroll was her father, William Stevens, from 1946-1953. She noted that after a flood in 1953, rail service was discontinued and business was taken care of by neighboring agents. The depot closed in 1953 and was torn down by Ron Kuhnenn and the lumber was used elsewhere.

According to past recollections of the late Otto Ulrich of Winside, two passenger trains and two freight trains covered the route from Sioux City to Norfolk. One train would come into Norfolk around noon and be back in Sioux City by around 2 p.m. and the other left Norfolk in the morning and returned around 7 p.m.
Heavy rains washed out the train track by Hoskins in 1969. The track was taken up in 1971 and the land around the track was re-sold in 1972-73.
Progress marches on and without visible reminders of our past, the hard work of those before us would be forgotten. We need to remember that without the sacrifices and ingenuity of our ancestors, the luxuries we enjoy today would never have come into existence.
Many changes have taken place in the century we are soon to exit. Some changes, such as in transportation and technology, have gone from trains to automobiles, from early airplanes to rockets, from manual typewriters to computers, and from simple cameras to digital video recorders. One wonders what other changes are in store for us as we go into the next century?

changes was around $70,000.
"Representatives from a community committee focusing on a new Recreation Center asked for the Board's support of the project. The committee also presented the results from a survey recently conducted.
The Board stated that they would support the project and would be willing to provide land for a new facility. The Board also agreed to participate in an inter-local agreement if necessary.
"Contracts for certified staff, non-certified staff and administrators were approved by the Board."
"Dr. Joseph Reinert, district superintendent, updated the Board on the recent award of the Goal 2000 Educate America grant. The grant, worth $50,000, will be applied towards the development of standards and assessments within the district.
Working in conjunction with Wayne State College, individuals will attend special training conferences preparing them with methods of development to be applied within the district. The project must be completed by the summer of 2000.
"The Board discussed the terms of Nursing Service Agreements for District 51 and District 57. The Educational Service Unit no longer provides nursing service for rural school districts. As a result, a registered nurse will divide her time between District 51, District 57, Carroll and the three Wayne schools.
"The nurse will visit District 51 and District 57 four days a year for a total cost of $400 a year for each school," said Reinert.
The arrangement will begin in the 1999-2000 school year.
"A contract with Malcolm, Harder & Associates was approved to work on the audit for one year.
"Dr. Reinert stated that attempts to find an Instrumental Music instructor to replace Bonita Day have been unsuccessful. Efforts to find an instructor will continue throughout the school year.
"The Board conducted the first reading of the Place of Attendance Policy 5100, which states that student have a choice to attend school at Wayne or Carroll, within certain stipulations.
"Members of the Board motioned to comply with regulations set by IDEA, a federal organization addressing special needs.

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER FORECAST

The Golden Years. For baseball fans, Babe Ruth still reigns as the all-time star of the game. This is evident at the cemetery where he is buried, in a suburb north of New York City. No matter that he died more than 50 years ago, or that his record 60 home runs in 1927 was topped by Roger Maris's 61 in 1961, and by Mark McGuire's 70 in 1998. Almost every day, cemetery workers say, fans ask directions to Ruth's grave site. There, many leave a variety of items in tribute to "the Babe" -- baseballs with their signatures, New York Yankees caps, photos, and even notes. One youngster, perhaps a little Leaguer, wrote, "I'll hit a home run for you." Wayne Care Centre. Herbs for Health. St. John's Wort for Depression. St. John's wort (Hypericum perforatum) has been used to treat depression and has been popularized by the media - including coverage in Newsweek and 20/20. This herb has three main actions - antidepressant, antiviral and antibacterial. Review of 23 trials on 1,757 patients diagnosed with mild to moderate depression demonstrated that hypericum extracts were significantly superior to a placebo and just as effective as standard antidepressants. Side effects were reported by only 20% of patients on hypericum versus 53% of patients on standard antidepressant medications. The recommended dose of St. John's wort for adults is 300 mg of the standardized extract (0.3% hypericin extract) three times daily. Side effects include mild stomach disturbances, fatigue, and itching. The herb should not be taken with prescribed antidepressants such as fluoxetine, Tyramine-containing foods, alcoholic beverages, narcotics and amphetamines should be avoided. Safety during pregnancy and breast feeding has not been established. Sav Mor Pharmacy 1022 N. Main St. • Wayne, NE 1-800-866-4283 375-1444.
