Group meets to plan for millennium celebration

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

Approximately 50 people, representing a number of Wayne organizations, were on hand Monday night to discuss past events of importance to the Wayne community and to plan for a millennium

Sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, Wayne Industries, Inc. and the Wayne Main Street Program, in conjunction with the city of Wayne, the meeting was divided into two parts, celebrating past accomplishments and preparing for future events.

Pamela Mulder, Coordinator of Nebraska Community Improvement Project and Connie Justis, Field Representative of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, were facilitators of the evening

The two asked those in atten dance to brainstorm recent achievements in the Wayne community.

Ms. Mulder then explained that the city may nominate achievements in three categories, Economic Development, Community Development and Economic Volunteer and Leadership Development. The events and activities will then compete against entries submitted by other Nebraska communities of similar

In the Economic Development category, those in attendance voted to submit the bringing of the Ameritas Dental Claims operation to Wayne as the top event of the last year In the C Community Development category, the organization of the Main Street Program was selected as the top event and will be submitted into

The Wayne Chicken Show was chosen as the top event in the Volunteer and Leadership Development category.

The group then discussed nominations for the Project of the

Among the items listed were the organization of Wayne State College, the development of Wayne Industries, the Wayne Chicken Show and preserving of Wayne County history

The final activity of the evening was listing a number of possible activities to be held in 2000 as part of a millennium celebration.

The top five vote-getters were the lighting of fireworks on Dec 31, 1999 and again on Dec. 31, 2000, a New Year's celebration with fireworks and a concert, expanding the Chicken Show, developing a time capsule and having a candle-lighting celebration.

Fireworks safety urged

Fireworks injuries rose 14.5 percent in 1997 and were up again in 1998. These statisites are obtained from incidents that are reported to Nebraska hospitals each year.

Eighty-eight percent of the injuries reported last year occurred because either the victim was in the vicinity of the device when it went off, or was holding the device.

The severity of injuries also increased. Two people lost part of their fingers and one person received an eye injury that would possibly cause the lose of sight. Smoke bombs were the number one device to cause the most impairment in 1998 and wounds from sparklers quadrupled.

The Nebraska State Fire Marshal's office has compiled the following list of safety tips from the Consumer Product

Safety Commission:

Never allow children to play with or ignite fireworks;

 Read and follow all warnings and instructions;
 Be sure other people are out of range before lighting fireworks:

 Only light fireworks on a smooth, flat surface, away from flammable materials;

. Never try to relight fireworks that have not fully functioned.

• Keep a bucket of water nearby in case of a malfunction or

• Be sure to purchase your fireworks in-state and check with your local jurisdiction as to the rules and regulations regarding types of fireworks that are allowed in your community. For more tips, contact your local fire department or the Nebraska State Fire Marshal's office.

presentation on joining a Well-Head Protection Program highlighted Tuesday's meeting of Wayne City Council.

Harold Reynolds, Water/Waste Water Superintendent, explained to the council the steps necessary to protect public drinking water provided from the city's six wells.

Reynolds showed maps of locations of the wells and explained that the only expense to the city would be the use of a city employee to show the water quality specialist where the wells

The goal of the project is to protect the area around the well and keep pollutants at a 20-year line to allow for time to deal with problems. Also involved public education and involvement.

Also on Tuesday's agenda were several items relating to the upcoming Henoween and Chicken Show activities.

The Wayne Kiwanis Club and the Wayne layrees requested the use of tables for activities they are sponsoring during the show.

The Chicken Show committee also requested the closing of Main Street from First to Third Streets on Friday, July 9 from 6 to 9 p.m. The committee requested the closing to allow safety reasons and to allow for more pedestrian traffic to the various activities in downtown Wayne.

The council voted to renew its membership in the National League of Cities following a three year separation from the national Sievers, all of Winside. There were more than 700 students at WSC who were named to the Honor Roll for exemplary academic achievement during the spring 1999 semester.

Bonnie Scranton, assistant vice president for enrollment manage ment at the College, praised the efforts of these students and other honor roll students. She said achieving status as an honor student requires hard work and dedication.

"Honor-roll students should be proud of their academic achievement," said Scranton. "In addition, the people who support these students such as parents, spouses, educators and community members should take pride in their achieve ment as well."

To be named to the honor roll, a students must maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and be enrolled as a full-time health providers about Kids Connection, the state's new children's insurance program.

New program to provide coverage

Goldenrod Hills Community Services (GHCS) is a guiding force in a statewide program in which more than 13,000 Nebraska Children will receive health coverage. Enrollment for Kids Connection, a new state children's insurance program for those who can't afford health insurance, is taking place throughout the Goldenrod Hill's 12-county region

The program, which began in September of 1998, has the goal of extending health coverage to 15,170 of Nebraska's uninsured children by July 1, 1999. By March, more than 13,000 children had been enrolled in the program.

At Goldenrod Hills, the new Kids Connection Project Coordinator is Amy Paschold. Her position has been funded by a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. in coordination with Voices for Children of Omaha. Paschold will be assisted by Kids Connection Public Health Nurse Rhonda Hood and GHCS Health Services Director Michelle Snyder

Their goal will be to get the word out about Kids Connection in the 12 GHCS counties: Antelope, Burt, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne.

Children may be enrolled by contacting the GHCS Corporate office at Wisner at (402) 529-3513. The enrollment process will also take place at Goldenrod Hills' monthly Women, Infants and Children (WIC) and Immunization clinics, and at Family Services satellite offices at Norfolk, South Sioux City, Walthill, Laurel and Creighton, Information about the program is available in both English and Spanish

Those who are eligible for the program are children age 18 and younger who are U.S. citizens. This citizenship requirement does not apply to parents of the child unless they themselves are applying for benefits. Children qualify if their family gross income (before deductions are taken out), less 20 percent for taxes and allowed expenses, and less child care costs, is at or below 185 percent of the federal poverty guidelines. This translates to $20,472 for a family of two, $25,680 for a family of three $30,900 for a family of four, or $36,120 for a family of five.

Medical services covered include doctor's visits, lab tests, and x-rays, counseling, medication, dental treatment, hospital care, eyeglasses, and specialty services for children with disabilities or chronic health conditions, Questions about Kids Connection may be answered by calling toll-free at 1-877-NEB-KIDS (1-877-632-5437)

Goldenrod Hills Community Services mobilizes resources which meet the needs of the income-eligi ble population in Northeast Nebraska. Programs include WIC. Commodity Supplemental Food Program; Weatherization, Head Start, Goldenrod Joint Housing Intervention Authority, Early Coordination, Services Immunization Clinics, and Family Services. Goldenrod Community Services also provides referrals to local and state agencies, working together to combat pover tv. promote confidence improve quality of life for residents in the Goldenrod Hills Community Services area.

In the 1930s, Sen. George Norris of McCook advocated the idea of public power. Public power lowered rates and allowed all Nebraskans access to electricity. Nebraska Public Power District, in partnership with rural power districts, cooperatives, and municipalities, continues that tradition by offering Nebraskans reliable service and low electric rates.

A Look at Social Security

A 1999 Perspective on Social Security (Part 1)

Social Security probably is the most popular program ever initiated by the federal government. It's sacrosanct to many. It's also a program in trouble unless changes are made.

This is the first in a series of columns on Social Security. The topics to be covered include: program history, current status, future projections and policy alternatives. Nebraskans are encouraged to share their views regarding Social Security's future with the state's congressional delegation.

Social Security had a modest beginning. Conceived in the heart of the Great Depression, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed it into law in 1935. In the early years, recipients — mostly retirees — received a lump sum settlement. These payments averaged less than $60.

On Jan. 31, 1940, Ida Mae Fuller, a Vermont school teacher and legal secretary, became the first person to receive a monthly Social Security check. It amounted to $22.45. To qualify for this payment, Fuller and her employer each had paid an employment tax equal to one percent of her salary for a little less than three years. Later calculations by the Social Security Administration showed that the woman known as Aunt Ida to friends and relatives had paid a total of $24.75 into the program. She lives to age 100, ultimately collecting nearly $22,889

In many ways, Social Security principles have not changed much since Aunt Ida's day. People deposit a percentage of their during working years into the Social Security Trust Fund and qualify for later benefits by reaching retirement age or being disabled. Participation is required except for those covered under other government-sponsored programs such as the federal Civil Service Retirement System.

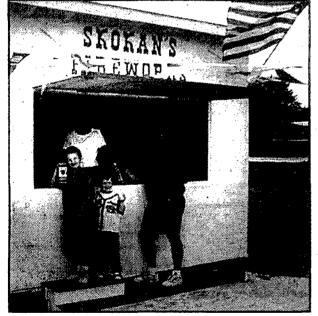

Mandatory participation keeps Social Security from being labeled welfare. At the same time, nothing is guaranteed. As Aunt Ida's case vividly demonstrates, employment taxes and benefits received often aren't a close match

Typically, beneficiaries receive more than they paid into the funds. That's not the case for someone who dies before or shortly after reaching retirement age

It's been possible for most beneficiaries to receive more than they paid for one reason: Social Security is funded by current workers' earnings. Since its establishment, there always have been many more workers than beneficiaries. In 1945, for example, 42 taxpaying workers could be counted for each beneficiary. By 1965, the ratio had dropped to 4 to-1. Now, it's a 3.3-to-1 ratio. By 2030, it will be 2-to-1

With so few workers relative to beneficiaries, the program can't operate in the future as it has been in the past. Something will have to give. Just what will give and by how much is a difficult and delicate policy question. We're going to hear much more about it in the future

Getting ready for 4th

Cost for copies of vital records will decrease

Getting a copy of a birth certificate will cost less beginning today (July 1).

The charge for certified copies of all vital records — birth, death, marriage and divorce certificates — will decrease by $2.

The fees for records was raised four years ago to pay for the au-tomation of Nebraska's vital records system. A new optical imaging system allowed the records of Nebraskans' vital events to be transferred from paper to computer discs holding images of 1.6 million certificates. The new system is speedier, less costly to maintain and takes up less space, according to Stan Cooper, administrator of the Vital Statistics Service.

The old system was outdated and presented storage problems, Cooper said. "The new optical imaging system will save money

d protect our records."

The new fees for certified copies of birth certificates will be $8. For copies of death, divorce and marriage certificates, the cost will be $7,

To get copies, send the correct fee with the name, date and place of birth, information about parents and a copy of your driver's license for identification to Vital Statistics. P.O. Box 95065, Lincoln, Neb. 68509-5065. For more information, call Vital Statistics at (402) 471-2871.

Good time for questions

By Ed Howard tatehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association

Still don't understand the latest property tax thingee that was passed by the Legislature? Are you wondering about whether budgets really get cut, or whether it's just the requested increase that gets cut?

Well, citizen, be of good cheer

Summer is the perfect time to get in touch with your state senator. He or she is probably trying to make a living at one thing or another these days. Still, constituent mail must always be attended in the summer and fall; rather like those usually boring interim hearings, and a few NU football games. (The former, at least, are often scheduled on Fridays preceding Husker home football games.)

Asking a lawmaker for help and advice while the Legislature is not in session can sometimes give you a head start on those who wait around until December or January to start pleading a case.

Besides, you would be doing the senator a favor in more ways than one.

Lawmakers can get the feeling that the state forgets about them when a legislative session ends and stories about their policymaking and unmaking stop appearing in the newspapers every day.

More important than a reminder sufficient to validate a lawmaker's existence, a request for this or that during the interim months is vital to any senator's or atorical repertoire

"It really has become a full time job," a senator might say. "Why, even when we're not in session there are still constituent requests that have to be addressed, and interim studies that require time

Both assertions are true. What might not be obvious is that get-ting your request in during the comparatively quiet time (that is when lobbyists, executive branch henchmen and would-be uplifters of all sorts are not stampeding the halls, seeking support for various causes which will save the economy, traditional Nebraska values and the sanctity of motherhood if they just get a sufficient appro-priation).

That's another thing. If you can avoid it, don't mention money PER SE in your correspondence with denizens of the Capitol. If whatever it is you're stumping for requires money, don't bring up the financing part of the deal until at least the second exchange of letters with the senator's office. This holds true even if you have been a regular contributor to the afore said's campaigns.

Any politician would prefer to address problems that don't involve money. They are simply volve money. easier to handle.

Example: If some state em ployee has been rude to you'in the course of business and you want to rat the guy out, now is the time to do it. A lawmaker (or staff member) has time these days to contact a department head, check it out, demand an apology in writing, and then recite the en-tire epoch of the triumph over tragedy for you in a nicely worded

There are exceptions. If you think you were rudely handled by a Game and Parks Conservation Officer who refused to return your shotgun after you took several pops at out-of-season birds (while drinking beer) the sympathy fac-

However, for those with legitimate inquiries, the point remains: this is a very good time of year to contact lawmakers about any is-sues that are on your mind.

If all that school aid stuff whizzed by you, if you would still like an English language explanation of the property tax system, if you didn't want to "bother" your representative with some problem when it seemed like pandemonium was already afoot in Lincoln, put your mind at ease.

This is a very good time to make your case, ask your question or seek your solution

Chamber Chat' to be hosted for members

What is stewardship? What is leadership? What differences or similarities exist between the two concepts?

Stewardship means that a choice to moderate or lead an orderly transfer of power has been made Stewardship as such goes past financial responsibility to being answerable for the proper use of our individual natural aptitudes.

Stewardship works though the framework of giving a fundamental structure and sustaining self-directed efforts. Author Peter Block says, The radical intent of stewardship is to be of service and to be accountable without having to be in charge.

Concepts of personal responsibility and empowerment are central to the definition of stewardship. Furthermore, stewardship eliminates the old, comfortable framework of patriarchy in the organization and does not expect someone else to take care of us. Patriarchy takes responsibility for the actions of others in the same way parents are responsible for the actions of their children

According to on-line author Copacino, «"A scolding or intimidating approach is a poor way to manage a parent-child relationship; it's worse when someone brings this style into the workplace

Stewardship is all about developing partnerships, personal owner-ship, and systems of governance. Partnerships must be reciprocal; that is, partners themselves determine values and vision. Partners must be absolutely candid with each other. Stewardship gives up control and consistency as the foundation for governance.

Leadership can be defined in a wide variety of ways with some definitions being very similar, but not identical, to the definition of stewardship. At his on-line site, Leadership Truths & Process, Mick Yates states, "Leadership is the ener getic process of getting other peoand willingly committed to a cours action, to meet com monly agreed objectives.

Leaders are not satisfied with the status quo; they are change-initiators. Still, leaders play a major role in the stewardship of their organizations. Leadership can allow individu als to take risk and responsibility for their own actions leaders can be considered facilitators, people who assist others as they identify what it s they want, one who helps create an atmosphere where they can accomplish what they want, and one who asks questions, listens, and engages in dialogue

Chamber members are now invited to attend Chamber Chat for the purpose of discussing whether or not the Chamber's mission and vision are what the Chamber is really about, and making suggestions. Members have become a critical part of the visioning and decision making process.

When you receive your invitation to Chamber Chat, please notify the office that you plan to attend. All members will be invited to attend a Chamber Chat between June and the end of the year. This is your chance to display stewardship and leadership capabilities. This is your chance to become a part of visioning and the decision making process

I would like to start this letter by thanking all of the fine people of Wayne for your kindness and hospitality shown towards me while working in your post office the last three and one-half years.

I felt like I never left my hometown working in Wayne and the friendships I made will stay with me The town of Wayne has a lot to be proud of (not only the thriving businesses and super college), but the great people that are the core to any community. I would like to take the time to thank each person individually, but that is not possible.

I leave the postal service after 26 ears, not on my own accord, but physically the demands were too much. I've worked in West Point, Lvons, Norfolk, Omaha, and Wayne and in all of those places I've never worked with a greater group of people than the postal employees in Wayne. They accepted me as one of their own shortly after arriving in August of 1995.

I guess in closing, the point would like to stress to the town of Wayne is to appreciate the dedicated postal employees you have. I guarantee you that you are very for tunate to have each and every one of the caring employees at the Wayne facility.

Once again, Thank-you and I know I'm a better person having worked in your community. Tom McMahon

Show flag respect

Dear Editor, June 14 — Flag Day — is gone. Three weeks have passed. I was stunned on that day to see the city did not have the flags out on Main Street.

What better way to show our pride in the American Flag and what it stands for than by displaying it.

This weekend is the Fourth of July — Independence Day. Another day to celebrate our flag. Will we have the honor of seeing the American flags flying on the poles down Main Street?

CRAN TOUR GROUP

The Car Ride Across Nebraska Caravan rolled into Wakefield, May 19 and the group ate omelets at the Firehall before their last get-together as a group at the Haskell House.

CRAN Tour organizer Duane Tappe asked Mayor Jim Clark to tell the group about the community and the mayor also read his top 10 list of things he would miss from being on the tour.

Five couples from Wakefield were part of the three-day trip from Scottsbluff to Kearney, to Santee and Norfolk before coming through Wakefield and ending Winnavegas.

In addition to Mayor Clark and his wife Carol, Marvin and Lois Borg, Ken and Eilene Petit, Anne and Bob Busby and Merlyn and Mardell Holm were part of the first organized car tour of the state.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION NIGHT

Those who attended the June meeting and FYI (For Information) night of the Wakefield Community Club received a variety of information during the evening

Senator Bob Dickey of Laurel was an invited guest. He shared information about the recently concluded legislative session and about himself. Senator Dickey was selected by Gov. Mike Johanns to fill the unexpired term of the late Stan Shellpeper.

Headed by the Wakefield Community Foundation, several groups in the community are focusing on playground improvement, both at the City Park and at the school. Members of Brownie Troop 98, presented a check for $600 to the foundation to be used towards equipment at the school grounds. Foundation board members present to accept the check were Lefty Olson and Laura Knox.

Richie Dutton was selected to receive the Community Club's Business Plan of the Year Award. During the school year, Richie developed a business plan for Gophers' R Us which is designed as a service business to run errands for people and provide transportation to appointments, etc.

His plan also received recognition as the best at a competition at Wayne State College earlier this year. His instructor and supervisor was Jennifer Goos,

The evening was sponsored by the Community Club, Kratke Lawn Service, and Merle Carson of Tagge Rutherford Financial Group and was held at the Logan Valley Golf Course

SCHOLAR ATHLETE

For the eighth consecutive semester, the Wayne State College Athletic Department has cumulative grade point average above 3.00. The 13 Wildcat Athletics Programs now have a 3.132 cumulative grade point average following a 3,086 combined GPA for the spring 1999

It is also the third straight semester the department's cumulative GPA hás been above 3.10; according to school officials

Heath Keim of Wakefield is among the student-athletes who earned the Presidential Scholar Athlete Award during the spring semester by having a 3.50 or higher grade point average. Health is a member of the Wildcat football team and will be a sophomore at WSC in the fall.

HONORS PROGRAM

Susan Brudigam has been accepted into the Wayne State College Honors program. Through this program, students take honors classes on a regular basis along with independent study classes as a junior and as a senior.

Susan is the daughter of Lee and Mary Brudigam and will be a sophomore at WSC this fall.

AG YOUTH INSTITUTE

Adam Boeckenhauer has been Department of Agriculture Youth Institute (NAYI). Adam graduated from Wakefield High school in May and is the son of Keith and Julie Boeckenhauer of rural Wakefield.

The Youth institute is an annual event for high school juniors and seniors designed to introduce them to agriculture issues and develop leadership skills. Delegates are selected to attend the Institute based on their interest in Nebraska agriculture and their leadership potential:

Around 130 students plan to attend this year's Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute, "NAYI,

A Stepping Stone for the Future' is. scheduled for July 12-15. During the four-day event, delegates will have the opportunity to discuss agricul tural policy, market trends and other issues important to Nebraska

It is truly an honor for students to be selected a as delegate for NAYI, 1999," said Katy Knutson, Ag Youth Coordinator for the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, who is overseeing the day-to-day planning for the Institutes program.

.company who sold them the prod-

good to be true, it probably is. The increasing popularity of computers creates a new opportunity for work at home schemes, but these schemes still deliver the same false promises.

The latest twists generally do not offer employment. Instead, they sell computer equipment which, in fact, may cost consumers thousands of dollars. Work at home addrtisers may urge employment opportunities doing such things as processing medical insurance claims.

The methods of sale vary: consumers may be told their work will be coordinated with insurance companies by a central computer which does not actually exist. Marian Health Center Is Now Mercy Medical Center—Sioux City.

There's a new kind of spirit connected to keeping healthy today. And it's just become stronger than ever. Right here in Sioux City

Marian Health Center is changing its name to Mercy Medical Center. The name is new. But the only thing we're truly changing is the ability to serve you better. In cooperation with seven other Mercy Medical Centers in Iowa, we are ioined in a common vision to share our knowledge, resources and insights. We are bringing a brand of healthcare quality—united through the spirit of mercy that compassionately responds to the needs of Iowa's people and communities. Yet what will truly remain, is what you've come to depend on most...

the same doctors

the same volunteers the same services

the same conveniences

the same values...

And the same spirit of caring for our community.

Sometimes change can be very healthy.

Taste Disorders

Taste disorders are not uncommon. They may develop as a result of a sinus infection, upper respiratory illness, head injury, age-related change, dental problem or from taking certain medications. The sense of smell may also be involved because both taste and smell combine to form a person's perception of flavor. If the problem persists see your doctor to determine the cause. He can prescribe the proper treatment.

Dedication held for church

Dedication services were held at the new Praise Assembly of God Church in Wayne Sunday afternoon.

Several speakers were present for the event as well as a large group of people attending.

Pastor Meyer, first pastor of the church, noted the church started with one family; the Arthur Jensen family, now living in Oregon. Other early Wayne families included Joe Masten, Russell Sorenson, Don Westerhaus; and also the Waterhouse family of Winside. He noted the group built the original church on Circle Drive in Wayne themselves in their spare time

Pastor Bob Nazarenus of Grand Island, Superintendent of Praise Assembly of God-Nebraska District, offered words of praise, encouragement, and challenge to those in attendance. He said there are 88 Praise Assembly of God Churches across Nebraska with 17,000 members and 230 ministers credentialed at this time

Pastor Al Weiss of Sioux City, a former pastor of the church, was also in attendance. Pastor Weiss was pastor of the church from 1977-82 Pastor Weiss offered remembrances of his time in Wayne. He said Wayne was his second ministry at the time. He noted there were only around 20 members when he first came to Wayne. Church membership grew during his stay.

He said he remembered perform ing his first baptismal service in Wayne with 32 people being baptized: Most of the group were Wayne State College students

Pastor Weiss noted at the time that there was no actual salary, only a percentage of donations. He and his wife had two children during their stay in Wayne. He noted that while life was a struggle then, there were also good memories of Wayne and he was very happy that a new church had been built. He thanked all for helping bring alive the vision of their pasto

Bob Winter, originally from Colorado, also spoke to the group Winter is a contractor with 'Church Builders' firm and was instrumental m the building of the church Winter travels the country and builds churches

Prayers and singing were offered by Pastor Mark Steinbach, current pastor of the church, near the close of the ceremony with funch follow ing Pastor Steinbach noted there are around 160 members at Praise Assembly of God Church in Wayne

This three-day workshop will be held Aug. 10-12 at the Animal Science complex at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and will accommodate around 35 participants.

Nebraska Beef 706 is free to accepted applicants and explores the quality, consistency and value of Nebraska beef. The agenda takes participants from live animal evaluation to carcass fabrication, and adresses beef cattle production practices causing defects in meat quality. Also discussed are many topics such as consumer attitudes about beef and food safely.

Nebraska Beef 706 is presented by the Nebraska Beef Council, the University of Nebraska, and the Nebraska Cattlemen, under the direction of Dennis Burson, UNL Extension Meat Specialist. Beef checkoff dollars are used to fund this program.

ummertime filled with many activities

We've just finished left-over breakfast casserole for lunch. (The cat can't eat all those). I'm about ready for a nap.

I've been reading articles about what a sleep-deprived nation we are, and I believe it. I know I do best when I have eight hours; but get seven, on the average. I'm just enjoying having a regular bedtime.

about how hard shift work is on the body. And, just over 50 percent of Americans work shifts. The article went on to say how irritable these folks become, and how difficult it is on relationships. It's a wonder we are still married!

It's been real corn-growing weather! Even the late planting will easily be "knee-high by the Fourth of July." I just finished closing all blinds on the west side of the house. and the AC has been running.

It's amazing what a wimp I've become regarding heat. We certainly all grew up without air conditioning. Plus, a cook stove for heating water and cooking

I read a book in lanuary called How To Raise A MVP (Most Valuable Person) by the parents of David Robinson, I had remembered this tall basketball player at Navy; and commented "Did David Robinson really get in here?" When we toured a nuclear sub in South

The book is not particularly well written, but gave me a new awareness of this "gentle giant," the rest of his family, and just what goes into professional basketball. The chapter on how San Antonio wooed them is very interesting.

My overall impression was of one class act. So I paid attention when the Spurs went into the play offs. I didn't actually watch the games, but started reading about the Twin

Discussing farm issues
Senator Bob Dickey of Laurel and Farm Bureau President
Bryce Neldig of Madison visit during the Wayne County Farm Bureau picnic last week. The two spoke to Farm Bureau members about the current farm situation and their past experiences in farming.

Rotational grazing offers many benefits

By Jill Heemstra Extension educator, Agriculture

Most pastures in the Wayne county area are cool season grasses, primarily brome and blue-grass. Both-of these grasses contain high levels of crude protein and energy while they are actively growing.
As these grasses mature in the late spring /early summer, the feeding value drops off rapidly.

Livestock are also less willing to consume these mature forages. Instead, they select forage that is green and tender. Any plants that were grazed off early in the growing season have probably regrown and are preferred over grass that has a seedhead. The regrowth is grazed again while a neighboring plant may not have been grazed

This selective feeding pattern results in the overuse of desirable grasses, sometimes to the point that they are eliminated from the pasture. The remaining grass is less desirable to the cattle. Invasive weedy species may also gain a foothold in a pasture.

The net result is a pasture with less feed value than it originally

Several other factors influence the feeding behavior of livestock. Forages close to the water of salt will be grazed more heavily than forages farther away. If livestock have to climb a hill or cross water to get to grass, they may not utilize that forage as often.

Dividing a pasture into smaller paddocks and rotating animals from one paddock to another is one way to control livestock feeding patterns. This rotational system grazing allows portions of the pasture to rest while another por tion is in use.

Rotational systems can vary from a simple two-pasture rotation all the way to 30 or more paddocks. Proponents claim that live-stock production per acre is increased as you move toward a more intensive system.

Other reported benefits of rotational grazing are stable produc-

conditions, greater yield potential higher quality of available forage, decreased weed and erosion problems and more uniform soil fertility levels.

The key to any successful rotational system is rest. The rotation must be adjusted to match plant growth and regrowth. When the grass is growing rapidly in the spring, the rotation will need to be rapid and to get around to all of the paddocks before the forage matures and goes to seed. During the hotter, drier summer months the rotation may need to be slowed to allow each paddock to rest. Rotational systems that set a rigid schedule based on number of days are usually not as successful as those based on current plant growth and growing conditions

Location of fences is an important factor in a rotational system Wise use of existing fences, build ings and water can reduce startup costs. The use of inexpensive, portable electric fences is a great way to test your rotation before you put in more expensive permanent fencing.

As with any other input cost, it must return a profit to the pro-ducer. Reduced weed control costs, improved animal perfor-mance and reduced dependence on harvested feed can offset the costs associated with a rotational system grazing report other benefits as well. Wildlife habitat is improved with a rotational system versus a continuously grazed pasture Moving livestock from one pad dock to another gives the producer more chances to observe them for any health-related problems. Reduced dependence on hay and other harvested feed allows them to spend more time on other aspects of the farm or with their families.

Rotational grazing can offer many benefits for producets in northeast Nebraska. These benefits are available if you have a 200acre pasture or a 10-acre pasture
