Board listens to proposal for zoning

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

A number of area citizens were on hand to show their support for some type of zoning regulations for rural Wayne County during Tuesday's Board of Commissioners meeting.

The issue of zoning has once again been brought up in light of the fact that Christensen Family Farms of Minnesota has proposed to construct a hog facility in Wayne County.

Scott Heinemann presented the commissioners with a signed petition from 129 residents who live in the county who oppose the idea of the hog operation being located in Wayne County.

"I think people's minds have changed about zoning. A number of the people who have signed this list have said they would be willing to serve on the planning commission," Heinemann said.

John Feller, an attorney from Beemer, representing Heinemann, spoke at length to the commissioners about the possibility of implementing interim zoning plans and permanent zoning regulations.

He told those present that Christensen Farms had dropped plans to construct a hog operation in Cedar County after that county began work on interim zoning.

Feller also listed the counties surrounding Wayne County that have, or are in the process of implementing zoning regulations.

"Wayne County is virtually the only county without regulations. Hog confinements like to go where there is very little local control," Feller said.

He went on to add that while zoning regulations can limit, they can also protect the livestock industry.

"It is time to re-visit the idea of rural zoning. I feel that there is a significant emergency in the county and would suggest interim zoning while plans are developed. It is unfortunate that Wayne County is under this kind of pressure. Zoning regulations can take from one year to 18 months to complete," Feller said.

"Education is important in the zoning issue. There will always be some things that make some people happy, but not everyone will be happy all the time. People have to develop a way to live together," he added.

Should Wayne County decide to move ahead with interim zoning regulations, the county could select all or parts of the zoning plans from any of the five surrounding counties.

"Having zoning regulations doesn't mean Christensens can't put in a hog operation, just that they would have to follow the rules and regulations and be good neighbors. Zoning regulations can't be discriminatory, they need to apply to all producers," Feller said.

A Wayne County Joint Planning Commission had worked for zoning regulations for nearly four years. However, the rural residents of the county strongly opposed the idea in early 1995 and the issue was dropped.

Angie McLean, with the Northeast Nebraska Development District, told the commissioners that her office could provide help with developing a comprehensive plan.

Involved in the plan would be a study of housing, transportation, land use and economic trends in the county. Ms. McLean also said she could assist with grant writing, although applying for the grants would take time.

She said that the plan developed in 1994-95 could be updated.

If the Board of Commissioners decides to move ahead with the issue of interim zoning, a planning commission of seven to 15 members from around the county will be formed. The issue will be put on the agenda for the board's next meeting, Aug. 17.

Thanks given to Hoskins residents

Dear Editor,
We would like to express our sincere thank you to each and everyone who had any part in making the Hoskins Centennial a success.
Thank you to the people who volunteered to serve on the various committees. Your help was greatly appreciated. We can't forget those who supported the fundraisers which we had during the months prior to the centennial.
Our thank you also goes out to all that helped financially, our local businesses and many businesses from area towns. This helped to make our plans a reality.

A special thank you to the residents of Hoskins who mowed, trimmed and planted flowers to make our village look the best it could for our centennial.
Thank you to everyone who came to help us celebrate and to those who participated in the events during the Fourth of July weekend.
We hope you enjoyed the time spent in Hoskins.

Capitol News —

Fate of initiative questioned

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Doers and thinkers and writers and commentators have worn me out with their newly-adopted habit of tossing in a phrase about "the New Millennium" every other time they want to make a point.
It's either: "As the world approaches a new millennium," or, "With the new millennium on the horizon," or "We must consider, as the new millennium approaches..." blah, blah, blah.
A change in the western world's calendar doesn't change the world. People change the world.
This particular bit of musing from the statehouse, the one you're currently reading, is intended to prompt some thought about a bit of news that has the potential to influence life in Nebraska — regardless of what year or month is displayed on your office organizer.

That aside, a host of court cases and ensuing decisions by courts high and low could change the face of Nebraska agriculture. If the little guys score some victories, they will need to hold onto them; they will need to, since the big guys will mobilize to get whatever constitutional and statutory changes are needed to benefit their stockholders. Both have every right to endeavor to influence government as they see fit.

as the judicial and legislative battles unfold.

For the better part of three decades one of the state's ongoing issues involved the local property taxes levied by local governments, under an often-changing bunch of rules approved by the Legislature. The system is still in a state of flux, as policymakers look to nudge local governments toward more efficient use of the taxpayer dollar. But the days of landmark decisions by the state Supreme Court, which tossed out several property tax laws, thus mandating certain provisions of the existing system, appear to be over — at least for the foreseeable future. (Let me add one cautionary note: the Nebraska Supreme Court is about as predictable as a yearling stallion in a pasture full of mares; so, the foreseeable future isn't a guarantee of anything. But the critter does, at this point, seem to have settled down).

Thus, AS WE FACE THE NEW MILLENNIUM, OR EVEN IF WE DON'T WANT TO FACE IT, AND EVEN IF WE'RE SICK OF HEARING ABOUT IT, the collective decisions made by the judiciary and the Legislature on the shaping of Initiative 300 in years ahead might well decide the kind of place Nebraska might be for millenniums to come.

Chamber exec says good bye

In this day of lower-than-ever unemployment rates, qualified employees are more important than ever. The Chamber/Industries is pleased to accept applications and resumes from individuals who may be seeking employment.
Employers can notify the office of any staffing needs. To make this work, however, both the job-seeking public and employee-seeking businesses need to contact the office at 108 West Third St., by fax at 375-2246, e-mail at chamber at bloomnet.com, or by phone at 375-2240.

Once more, I want to thank all those who contributed to the success of the 19th annual Wayne Chicken Show! The Show literally would not happen without the contributions of time, money, time, effort and more time from each one.
Likewise, the Wayne Industries Vendor Golf Day was a huge success just a few days after the Chicken Show. This annual fund-raiser helps keep membership investments at a level most can afford. It also allows local businesses the chance to invite vendors to Wayne for a really special day. Thanks to all who helped in any way!
The Chamber's Planning Team continues to address the needs of a changing organization. The Team is Because I have accepted a new position as Economic Developer for the City of South Sioux City, my last day in the office will be Aug. 17.

Please understand that I have absolutely enjoyed my work with the Chamber and Wayne Industries! I have worked with many wonderful people and will miss them even as I look forward to new challenges. I wish both organizations and their boards of directors much success as they continue the important work already begun.

The state is pursuing its first ever court case to enforce Nebraska's law that restricts corporate farming. The constitutional provision, adopted in 1982 as Initiative 300, could provide the courts, the Legislature, the people and the press with something to work on for years to come. Or, if you prefer, FOR A GOOD CHUNK OF THE COMING MILLENNIUM.
Since its adoption, many have complained that Initiative 300 has not been enforced; that big agribusiness interests flaunt its provisions through one dodge or another, and that the failure in enforcement does continuing damage to that Nebraska icon of mythological proportion, the family farm. It goes without saying that a years-long series of court battles would, as do most issues of import, continue the economic development boom enjoyed by lawyers.

Members of the Wayne State College Industrial Technology Club traveled to Indianapolis, Ind. this summer and earned awards in the Technology Education Collegiate Association (TECA) competitive events that are in conjunction with the Industrial Technology Education Association conference.

The WSC group earned a second place finish in the live manufacturing competition. Members of the team were Brent Essink of Columbus; Josh Climer of Hartington; Todd Gronau of Vail, Iowa; Kyle Nelsen of Hubbard and Erik Pehovlack of Plainview.

Fourth place was earned by the problem solving team which included Tim Thayer-Mencke of Hooper; Gronau, Justina Manning of Norfolk; Jason Novotny of Fremont and Hank Harrison of Waterloo, Ill.

Others attending the conference were Will Winchester of Wolbach, Amy Sigwalt of Westside, Iowa and Randy Stribley of Bellevue.

"The competitions have become much more intense and competitive as compared to those in past years. Again this year, Wayne State has done an outstanding job representing the College at the ITEA international conference. We look forward to next year in Salt Lake City and the opportunity to once again compete at this conference," said Steve Vergara.

"While at the conference, members attended many educational sessions, went on business and industry tours and interacted with other TECA and ITEA members from around the nation. Members also had chances to associate and view companies who have the latest equipment and products in technology education. The next annual conference will be in Salt Lake City, Utah," said Vergara.

TWO UTILITY AWARDS

The City of Wakefield received two awards during the Wholesale Partners Annual Meeting July 16 in Valentine. Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) presented awards at the meeting to its electric wholesale customers that performed well in three categories during 1998.

The Wakefield Municipal Utility received the Peak Performance award for Best Load Factor and for Economic Development.

The local utility received the Best Load Factor award for a municipal utility with annual revenues of less than $1 million. Wakefield had a load factor of 62 percent in 1998.

NPPD Vice President Gary Westphal said the new category at his year's annual meeting recognizes utilities with strong load factors. A load factor compares a utility's normal electrical load to its peak demand load.

"A customer with a high percentage load factor promotes efficient use of NPPD's resources and spreads fixed operating costs over more energy billing units," Westphal said. "We compliment Wakefield for keeping your peak demand as close as possible to normal operating load, which results in lower costs for your end-use electrical customers."

NPPD Senior Vice President of Customer Service Dennis Grennan recognized nine utilities for economic development efforts that created new jobs, increased commercial/industrial electrical usage, utilized the resources of NPPD and other economic development allies and worked with the public and private sectors to achieve common goals.

During the past year, the City of Wakefield was a leader in efforts to assist the M.G. Waldbaum Company with a major $18 million expansion project adding new processes and employment. Other projects included expansions of the Wakefield Health Care Center and Wakefield Community School and improvements at the city park.

Grennan handed the awards to Wakefield Mayor Jim Clark and City Administrator Dan Zulkosky during the ceremony. "We're proud to be an economic development partner with Wakefield, working to attract new jobs, businesses and industries while helping existing companies to grow," said Grennan.

NPPD announced a total of 25 awards to wholesale customers, including public power districts, cooperatives and municipal utilities throughout Nebraska. The other award category was Most Improved Load Factor.

MASONIC ALL-STAR MARCHING BAND Traci Lueth from Wakefield High School, was one of over 220 high school students from across Nebraska who were members of the fifth Masonic All-Star Marching Band.

Traci is the daughter of Roger and Lori Lueth of Wakefield. Following four days of practice, the Masonic All-Star Marching Band on July 24 led the Shrine Bowl Parade in downtown Lincoln, played at the reviewing stand during the parade and presented a half-time show during the Shrine Bowl Football Game in Memorial Stadium on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus.

Hosted by the Nebraska Masonic Grand Lodge, the band was directed by John DeStefano, Neal Schnoor and Brad Weber. Traci received a scholarship from Corinthian Masonic Lodge 83 of Wakefield.

Wakefield Midgets win State Championship

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Wakefield Midget-Legion baseball team claimed state championship honors with a 7-0 win over Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley on Tuesday night in Wakefield.

Paul Eaton watched as pitcher Jeremy Hoefs kept the visitors bats at bay all evening, scattering three hits while striking out seven.

Hoefs retired the final nine batters he faced and struck out the side in the sixth inning.

Offensively the winners pounded out eight hits led by Todd McQuistan's two-run double and a single as he went 2/3 from the plate.

Clint French belted a couple of singles and Tucker Greve doubled while Andy Servine, Ty Nixon and Hoefs each had one single.

Wakefield took the lead in the first inning and the host team had opportunities to end the game early as they left 12 men on base in the first five innings.

Scott Dugan was the losing pitcher for Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley.

Wakefield opened state tournament play with an 11-5 win over Ravenna as Clint French tossed a one-hitter.

French blasted a three-run triple to pace the offense. Andy Servine singled twice and Todd McQuistan belted a two-run double with Jeremy Hoefs also hitting a double. Wakefield out-hit its opponents by a 6-1 margin.

Wakefield edged Crofton in the second round, 7-6 as Crofton suffered its first loss of the season.

Clint French runs down a fly ball in shallow left field from his shortstop position. The Wakefield Midgets ended the season with a 24-13 record.

Jeremy Hoefs rifles a pitch toward his catcher during championship action Tuesday night in Wakefield. Hoefs scattered three hits and struck out seven.

Todd McQuistan turns to bunt the ball before being hit by a pitch during the championship game with Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley on Tuesday. McQuistan sparked the winners with a double and single.

Wakefield took a 7-0 lead over Crofton until the seventh inning when the visitors came alive with the aid of four hits and several Wakefield errors.

Crofton scored six runs in the final inning and had bases loaded with just one out before Jeremy Hoefs struck out the final two batters.

Wakefield finished with six hits led by Tucker Greve with two singles while Todd McQuistan, Ty Nixon and Clint French had base hits as well as Hoefs.

In the winners bracket finals Wakefield defeated Dodge-Howells-Scribner, 7-2 as Todd McQuistan scattered five hits and was the third Wakefield pitcher to go the distance in as many outings.

Tucker Greve's two-run double in the fourth inning highlighted a four-run rally. Wyatt Brown and Clint French each had two hits and Wakefield out-hit D-H-S, 9-5.

On Monday Wakefield was defeated by Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley, 5-1 as both teams managed just four hits while each suffered four errors.

Andy Servine was the losing pitcher. P-W-G scored four unearned runs in the third inning.

Jeremy Hoefs had half of Wakefield's hits with two singles.

The rematch with Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley happened after the visitors 10-runned Dodge-Howells-Scribner, 11-1 earlier Tuesday evening.

A RECAP OF the Class C Midgets State Baseball Tournament had day one action seeing Dodge-Howells-Scribner defeating Tecumseh, 9-3 before Crofton defeated Hebron, 13-3. Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley blanked Gordon, 8-0 before Wakefield downed Ravenna, 11-0.

Day two action last Saturday had Tecumseh downing Gordon, 12-6 while Hebron edged Ravenna, 3-2. Dodge-Howells-Scribner defeated Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley, 10-4 and Wakefield edged Crofton, 7-6.

Round three on Sunday had Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley 10-running Hebron, 13-3 with Crofton downing Tecumseh, 5-2. Wakefield defeated Dodge-Howells-Scribner, 7-2.

Monday's fourth round had Dodge-Howells-Scribner edging Crofton, 1-0 in eight innings of play before Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley downed Wakefield, 5-1.

Fifth and final round action on Tuesday had Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley ending Dodge-Howells-Scribner's season, 11-1 before Wakefield claimed state with a 7-0 win over Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley.

WSC Women's Soccer Team

Recruits are netted

Wayne State College women's soccer coach Justin Cole put the finishing touches on his 1999 recruiting class when he announced Monday the signing of three high school seniors.

In addition, Cole announced that two player will transfer to Wayne State in the fall and four others plan to walk on the team.

Signing with the Wildcats were midfielder Jackie Arnold (Stromsburg-Stromsburg High School) forward Mary McDaniel (York-York High School) and midfielder Abbey Kalblinger (North Platte-North Platte High School), forward Lisa Walters (Casper, Wyo.) is transferring from Casper, while defender Brienne Abshier (Norfolk-Norfolk High School) will be transferring to Wayne State after playing her freshman season at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Adding some offensive punch, finding a solid defender and securing a quality goalkeeper were the Wildcats' top priorities in the off-season.

"I feel as though we have addressed some serious needs on our team with the signing of players," Cole said. "I believe these student-athletes will be able to come in and immediately command some big minutes for us."

Also joining the Wildcats in the fall are goalkeepers Anna Eberle (Sioux City, Iowa-North High School) and Ellie McIntosh (Casper, Wyo.-Kelly Walsh High School) midfielder Becky Woelfel (Columbus-Columbus High School) and defender Rachel Bennett (Omaha-Papillion-LaVista High School).

Cole said this corps of recruits should help the Wildcats "as they prepare for their first season of Northern Sun Conference play."

"I really believe these players will not only improve our team depth, but should have a great deal to do with the way this season turns out," Cole said. "The potential is there for several of these ladies to be impact players for us this fall. We have improved both offensively and defensively with this incoming class, and I think the battle for positions in camp will do nothing but make us a better ball club."

Wayne State finished 6-5 in Cole's inaugural campaign, recording the first winning seasons in the team's brief history. The Wildcats return nine starters and 11 letterwinners from last season.

"I'm anxious to see how our newcomers gel with our returnees," Cole said. "Not only are these ladies quality athletes, but they are quality people as well. I think they will be a really nice fit with our program."

Smoking: Four Reasons to Quit

Nicotine-containing gum and patches have been available without prescription for some time now. Sales remain brisk, indicating the desire of many smokers to give up cigarettes. If you smoke, here are four good reasons to quit (reproduced from Prevention Medicine).

- (1) Your risk of heart attack will drop dramatically. After 2 to 4 years, your risk will actually approach that of a nonsmoker. Your risk of having a stroke also will fall.
- (2) Over the next 15 years, your risk of developing lung cancer will drop to about that of a nonsmoker. Also, your chances of dying from other types of cancer will drop.
- (3) Women who stop smoking before pregnancy or during the first 3 to 4 months reduce their risk of having low-weight babies.
- (4) Former smokers live longer than people who continue to smoke. If you quit before age 50, you have only half the risk of dying in the next 15 years as compared to people who continue to smoke.

Wayne State track team signs seven

Seven individuals have signed national letters of intent to attend Wayne State College and participate on the Women's cross-country or track and field teams, head coach Brian Kavanaugh announced today.

Those signing with the Wildcats were Traci Bernecker of Plainview, Elly Harder of Concord; Tabbi Raasch of Bancroft; April Sachau of Martinsburg; Jodi Epping of Sanborn, Iowa; Molly Sewell of Sioux City, Iowa; and Michel Solan of Spring Hill, Fla.

While at Plainview High School, Bernecker was a 200-meter state champion her sophomore year, and placed fourth in the 100-meter dash and fifth in the long jump her senior year.

A three-year state qualifier and four-year letterwinner in track and field, Bernecker also was part of Plainview's state champion 4x100-meter relay team her senior year, and the 4x100-meter relay team that placed second in 1997. Bernecker was also a four-year letterwinner in volleyball and basketball, and was an Omaha World-Herald All-State honorable mention in both sports for three and four years, respectively.

Harder was a four-year letterwinner in track and field at Laurel-Concord High School. She qualified for the Class C state meet all four years. In 1996 her 4x800-meter relay team placed third and in 1997 the squad placed fifth. In addition, Harder placed fifth in the 1600-meter run in 1998. Laurel-Concord named Harder their Female Athlete of the Year for 1999. Harder also lettered three times in basketball and four in volleyball.

Raasch attended Bancroft-Rosalie High School, where she was a four-year letterwinner in track and field and qualified for state in the high jump all four years. In addition, her 4x400-meter relay team qualified for state three years and was the district high jump champion in 1998. Raasch also lettered four times each in volleyball and basketball, and was all-state honorable mention in basketball her junior and senior years.

Sachau was a three-year letterwinner in track and field at Allen High School. As a freshman, she qualified for the Class D state meet in the 3200-meter run, and as a senior qualified for state in both the 4x800-meter relay and the 3200-meter run. She also just missed the school record for 3200 meters this past year. In addition to competing in track and field, she was a four-year letterwinner in basketball and lettered two years in volleyball.

Epping was a four-year letterwinner and four-year state track meet qualifier while at Harley-Melvin-Sanborn High School. In addition, she helped lead her team to the district title in 1998. Epping also was a four-year letterwinner and starter for the volleyball team.

Sewell was a four-year letterwinner for the Bishop Heelan High School track squad and helped lead the team to four straight district championships. She qualified for the state track meet her junior and senior years in the shuttle hurdle relay, and the 1998 relay squad set a school record time of 1:06.19. In addition to track and field, Sewell lettered two years in soccer and also participated in cross country.

Solan transfers to Wayne State from Florida Southern University. In 1998, her first year competing for the Florida Southern cross-country team, Solan was the team's top runner for most of the season. At the NCAA Southeast Region Qualifier, Solan led Florida Southern to a second-place finish, placing fourth overall in 22:43 for 6,000 meters, just missing the last individual qualifying spot by eight seconds.

Loetscher inducted into 'National Society of Collegiate Scholars'

Jolene Loetscher of Wayne has accepted membership in the National Society of Collegiate

Jolene Loetscher

Scholars and will be honored during a campus ceremony in the fall at Northwestern University. The National Society of Collegiate Scholars (NSCS) is a highly selective, national, non-profit honors organization. Founded in 1994, NSCS recognizes first and second year undergraduate students who excel academically.

The Society was established on the principle that with scholarship comes a responsibility to develop leadership and a duty to perform service.

"NSCS provides the opportunity for students, like Jolene, to be recognized for their outstanding academic accomplishments early in their college experience," said Steve Loflin, NSCS Executive Director. "Jolene will also have the opportunity to join other high achieving college students in developing leadership skills and a sense of civic responsibility."

Jolene will be a junior this fall majoring in broadcast journalism at Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism. She is the daughter of Eliene Loetscher of Wayne and granddaughter of Eldon and Bernice Loetscher of Emerson.

Swedish family visits Nebraska

Dale Hansen and his family of Wakefield have had the pleasure of having guests from Ganghster, Sweden for several weeks.

The Wikstrom family, Claes, Birgitta and their 15-year old son David arrived in Omaha on June 17. They toured Omaha and saw the College World Series.

According to them the games were "very interesting and fun, but also confusing." They had never played or seen a baseball game. Baseball is not a sport played in Sweden, as soccer is their primary sport.

The family also saw SAC Museum and the Wildlife Park. Claes was less impressed by the buffalo and deer than the robins. He couldn't believe how large the robins are here. He is a birdwatcher and the first souvenir he bought her in America was a bird book.

They went to the Henry Doorly Zoo and saw the aquarium and the jungle. They also did some shopping before arriving at the Hansen farm.

On June 18 they were dinner guests in the Elsie Johnson home at Laurel. They toured Earl and Vicki Johnson's acreage and the Laurel cemetery.

On June 19 the Hansens had a large family gathering at their home. The Swedish family was surprised at the number of relatives that were gathered and yet some were unable to be there. They found there are over 150 relatives in America.

It took a lot of time figuring out how everyone was related. Birgitta's father and Sue Hansen's grandfather were brothers.

The Wikstroms then went with other cousins to Valentine and from there toured the Black Hills and Mt. Rushmore. They arrived back in Wakefield on June 25.

The Hansens then showed them the dairy and their workplaces.

Claes, David, Ross, Birgitta and Sue all competed at a fun run at Pender. David, Ross, Birgitta and Sue all got medals. Claes received fourth place in his division, which involved tougher competition. The three and five kilometer race were easy for Claes and David because they usually compete in 10 and 15 kilometer races in Sweden.

From June 25 to July 6 the Wikstroms spent time at the Evert and Ardith Johnson's home. They also enjoyed fireworks in Norfolk.

Before their departure, they visited many relatives, toured Ash Falls, Niobrara, Gavins Point Dam, a buffalo farm, and spent time golfing, shopping, boating and swimming as well as touring the Laurel-Concord School.

They also toured the state capitol, the Governor's mansion and went to Pioneer Park's outdoor theater showing of "The Wizard of Oz."

The Wikstroms were supper guests of the Dough and Lynette Krie family of Coleridge, Don and Carla Noecker and family of Hartington, Brent Johnson and family of Concord, Evelina Johnson of Concord, Marlin and Suzy Johnson, Jim and Doris Nelson, Dean and Phyllis Salmon and Dwight and Mary Johnson.

They were also guests of Emmett and Renea Johnson and family, Matt and Teresa Roberts and family, Jim and Sally Block and family and Duane and Pat Johnson and family.

WSC professor to present paper

Dr. Richard Keenan, associate professor of humanities at Wayne State College has been selected to present his paper, The Year 2000 and Armageddon; Warnings from American TV Evangelists, at the 1999 Popular Culture Association International Conference in Cambridge, England. The conference takes place the first week in August.

"Obviously, I was pleased to have been selected to make this presentation," Keenan said. "I have been a member of the Popular Culture Association since 1991, and consider this to be a great honor."

Keenan's paper states that according to American television evangelists, Americans and the world should get ready for disaster to begin on New Year's Day 2000. The potential Y2K computer breakdown is one force which motivates their warnings. Keenan's research suggests that another is the New Testament's promise of Armageddon, violent, chaotic punishment for the entire earth which is believed to begin the return of Jesus Christ.

"While most of the TV evangelists are hedging their bets about Armageddon for 2000, they are betting on the Y2K computer failure," Keenan said.

Keenan is an associate professor of communications at Wayne State College, a position he has held since 1994.

Shannon Jaeger, front row right, was among those students who attended a career workshop in Omaha recently.

Jaeger attends career workshop

Shannon Jaeger, a student at Winside Public School, was among 18 Nebraska high school students participating in the University of Nebraska Medical Center one-week summer Health Professions Career Workshop held July 19-23 in Omaha.

The goal of the workshop was to encourage young Nebraskans to pursue a career in the health professions with the hope that they may someday practice health care in rural Nebraska where critical shortages of health care professionals remains a major concern.

According to the Nebraska State Health Department, around 60 percent of Nebraska counties have a shortage of family practice physicians and around 20 counties have no hospital.

While at UNMC, the workshop introduced the students to health science careers through lectures, shadowing professionals and hands-on experiences. The students selected to participate in the program competed with 113 others and were rated on grade-point-average, school and extracurricular activities, health career interest, work experiences and reference letters.

The students spent the week learning about UNMC's academic programs, shadowing health care professionals and doing research in their area of interest. At the end of the workshop, students made presentations about their finds to their family and colleagues.

Notification of Rights under FERPA for Elementary and Secondary Institutions

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) affords parents and students over 18 years of age ("eligible students") certain rights with respect to the student's education records. They are:

(1) The right to inspect and review the student's education records within 45 days of the day the District receives a request for access.

Parents or eligible students should submit to the school principal (or appropriate school official) a written request that identifies the record(s) they wish to inspect. If the District decides not to amend the record as requested by the parent or eligible student, the District will notify the parent or eligible student of the decision and advise them of their right to a hearing regarding the request for amendment. Additional information regarding the hearing procedures will be provided to the parent or eligible student when notified of the right to a hearing.

TIMING IS EVERYTHING!

How long does it take to sell a home? Is thirty days reasonable? Will it take ninety days, six months — even a year?

The "market" determines the time required to attract a buyer. The "market" is simply the buying activity currently occurring in this area. It includes factors such as how many families are moving in, local interest rates, the number of homes for sale, the local business climate, and the value buyers are placing on available properties.

Your real estate agent can offer a wealth of information and statistics on local real estate. Find out the time it has taken to sell homes in the area and the final sales price. This information gives you an estimate of the time required to sell the "average" home, in the current market.

Offer your home in above average condition, at an asking price below market, and you may expect a shorter sale time. The reverse is also true. Offered in average condition at a price above the market, you may experience an extended sale time or no sale at all.

Gather information on the market from your agent, then make an informed pricing decision. An early sale can be the pleasant result!

Please call to discuss a marketing plan tailored for the sale of your home.

How to manage health care costs

In the last decade, health care has undergone major changes, as has access to community health care resources. It's important to recognize these changes if we need to reassess our financial situations.

Health care now is provided in a managed care environment. The ability of local hospitals and providers to cover the costs of those who can't pay for care is virtually nonexistent.

Access to health care services is guaranteed, however, as you can show how you will pay the costs. What's more, the inability to cover health care costs is regularly listed as one of the top five reasons for personal bankruptcies. So, what a business downturn won't devastate, a health care catastrophe could.

Therefore, if you are going through financially difficult times, do not drop your health insurance coverage. You may, however, want to make changes in your coverages.

Week in Colorado

Sixteen confirmation students and four adult sponsors from Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne spent the week of July 24-31 attending confirmation camp at Rainbow Trail Lutheran Camp near Hillside, Colo. The week included Christian growth and learning, backpacking in Colorado's Rocky Mountains and whitewater rafting down the Arkansas River. Those taking the trip included, front row, left to right, Pastor Martin Russell, Ray Olson, Jon Ehrhardt, Brad Erickson, Tyler Anderson, Noah Judson, Darin Bargholz, Will Karr and Pastor Paul Judson. Back row, Ashley Karel, Jamie Beckman, Tiffany Frerichs, Brittany Burke, Lisa Miller, Alissa Dunklau, Missy Nissen, Liz Hagmann, Kim Stenwall, Carolee Stuber and Jennifer Damme.

Hansen is awarded scholarship

Trisha Mary Hansen, daughter of Timothy and Mary Hansen, all of Wisner, was recently awarded a Nebraska Cattlemen's Research and Education Foundation Scholarship at a banquet held in McCook.

The banquet was part of three days of activities held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Nebraska Cattlemen's Association, and it honored the six Foundation Scholarship recipients as well as the sponsors who assisted with the event.

Hansen and her parents also had the opportunity to meet Nebraska writer and "Sunday Morning" television show host Roger Welsh during a social hour preceding the banquet. Welsh was the featured speaker at the banquet emphasizing the importance of laughter when faced with Nebraska trials; including the weather and poor farming situations. Welsh uses humor and a compilation of Nebraska stories to both entertain and captivate his audiences.

Hansen's scholarship is valued at $1,000 and is underwritten by Fort Dodge Animal Health. She will be a freshman at Wayne State College. The scholarship will be used toward the majoring in Accounting. The scholarship will be used toward the 1999-2000 school year.

Workshops announced

Raising organic grains can be a productive and profitable alternative for Nebraska farmers.

Organic farmers can sell their corn, wheat and soybeans at prices two to four times that of crops raised using conventional methods. Although they are not allowed to use chemical pesticides or fertilizers, the use time proven techniques such as crop rotation, tillage and application of livestock manure or compost to raise their crops.

Although organic production is a good option for farmers seeking alternative crop markets, making the transition to organic farming can seem intimidating. The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension, the Nebraska Sustainable Agriculture Society and the Center for Rural Affairs will host three organic grain farming workshops in August to help farmers make this transition.

These workshops will provide in-depth information and demonstrations of soil fertility management and weed control in organic systems, markets and the organic certification process.

Each workshop will take place on an organic farm. Organic farmers and a representative from the Organic Crop Improvement Association will be present to answer questions.

Three workshops are scheduled in eastern Nebraska: Randolph, Monday, Aug. 9 — host, Rick Gubbels; Aurora, Saturday, 14 — host, Paul Hünefeld and Clarkson, Tuesday, Aug. 17 — host, Tim Cada.

Registration for each workshop will begin at 12:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served. There is no charge to attend.

For directions to the workshops, call (402) 254-6893 or (402) 471-0817.

Arboretum hosting open house

The Northeast Arboretum will be hosting an open house on Thursday, Aug. 19 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The event will celebrate the arboretum's 10th anniversary as an organized arboretum site.

The evening will begin with an indoor program of slides and scrapbook items from past activities at the arboretum. Current and previous directors, officers and contributors of memorial trees and other special friends of the Northeast Arboretum will be recognized.

Following the indoor activities, those present will take a walk around the arboretum grounds and see how the trees and shrubs have grown.

There will be drinks, snacks and door prize drawings for potted trees, including a ginkgo, and other items to take home.

House full of guests for several days

Let's see if I can get this scribbled in thirty minutes, between loads of laundry. Tonight will be the ninth night in a row for guests; all but two of those were a full house. All while the temperatures soared outside; I can only imagine our electricity bill. But, how did we live without air conditioning? Yes, I'm spoiled.

To boot, the garden produce all came on at once: tomatoes, cucumbers, zucchini, green beans, and corn. My Mom helped me freeze corn, or I'd still be at that. But it's all so good.

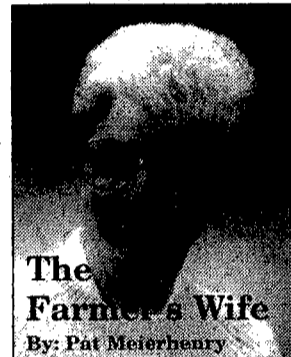

Guests the past four nights all came to see a 13-year-old from Chino, Calif., throw the discuss at 4 o'clock on Thursday, the hottest day of the week. Heat index was 118 degrees.

I think Omaha hosting the National Junior Olympics is wonderful, but conditions this week really amounted to child abuse. The kids were getting blisters on the track; they were carrying them to the first-aid tents. If they have to have them in July, I would suggest Denver, or Missoula, or Washington State.

Our guest book has even taken on an international flavor this week, with a couple from near Sydney, Australia. He's Irish, but born and raised Down Under; she's from Virginia. They met in Ecuador! Kids get around these days.

They were in Murdock to hammer out details for marketing alfalfa pellets for rabbits, guinea pigs, and chinchillas that are produced here.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

You guessed it; the connection occurred on the Net.

The idea of small towns in Nebraska manufacturing items for the world markets intrigues me. Earlier this summer, a couple from Burwell told us they make underwater electrical connectors. They are unique because they don't have to be pulled up and dried off to connect.

They were developed for deep sea oil exploration, but their product was used on the movie, "Titanic." And now, Disneyworld is converting all their underwater stuff to these connectors. Isn't that amazing?

The secret is to find a niche market, and go after it. I just don't know what mine is yet.

Time to get this in the mail and finish folding towels, and try to stay cool. (Wow, 20 minutes.)

Multispecies grazing is sound practice

By Jill Heemstra, Extension Educator

Multispecies grazing refers to the use of more than one large species of animals to graze a common pasture. This practice is widespread throughout the world, but is not common in the U.S.

Most references will be made to the use of sheep, goats and cattle, although bison, horses, deer and other species are also used.

Its lack of acceptance is often attributed to prejudices against a certain species, the loss of sheep/goats to predators, increased management skills associated with adding a new species and costs of fencing.

One benefit is the potential for increased production from the same forage resource. Averaged across nine studies, multispecies grazing increased production by 24 percent compared to cattle-only grazing and nine percent compared to sheep-only grazing.

This is possible because different species of animals choose different plants to graze. Cattle are competing with one another for their favorite grasses but in a pasture. If you mix species, there is less chance of competition because sheep tend to select broad-leaved plants that cattle do not often choose and goats select woody plants that both cattle and sheep avoid. There is always some level of competition between different species, but it is less than within the same species.

A common rule of thumb is that you can add one ewe or goat for every cow without reducing the number of cows. In this situation, individual animal performance is the same as before mixing. The addition of more animals to the pasture results in more total production per acre.

Another way to increase production per acre is to replace a certain number of one species with another, but keeping overall animal units the same. For example, a 100 lb. cow is equivalent to one animal unit. Five ewes or six goats are also equivalent to one animal unit. You can replace one cow with five ewes and still have the same number of animal units in the pasture. When replacing one species with an equivalent number of animal units of another species, individual animals tend to perform better. This is due to reduced competition for the same plants.

In the first situation, production per acre was increased through increased animal numbers. In the second situation, production per acre was improved through increased individual animal performance.

The ideal mix of animals will depend on the plants present in the pasture current market prices of each species. Another benefit of multispecies grazing is the opportunity to spread financial risk among different enterprises.

There are also long-term benefits to multispecies grazing. When plants are grazed continuously, they are at a disadvantage compared to ungrazed plants. The ungrazed plants gain an advantage over the grazed plants and begin to dominate the pasture. This shift results in a plant community that is less desirable to the animals in the pasture and will lead to reductions in carrying capacity and/or individual animal performance.

For example, leafy spurge is avoided by most cattle, but is readily consumed by sheep and goats. In a cattle-only pasture, leafy spurge often spreads rapidly unless drastic measures are used. In pastures where sheep and goats are present, leafy spurge can be reduced to manageable levels. Uniform use of the forage will encourage a healthy, diverse plant community.

Loss of sheep and goats to predators can be a struggle for some farms or ranches. Practices such as herding or the use of guard animals can help decrease these losses.

A research project mixed goats with the cow herd. After goats and cattle had gone through a calving/kidding season together, they were "bonded." The goats stayed with the cow herd and predation losses were greatly reduced. These goats would also be less likely to escape from the pasture because they did not want to leave their new "herdmates."

Another consideration is the cost of weed control. If a particular animal species can be added to the pasture to control a weed, then herbicide use can be reduced. One particular operation added goats to control leafy spurge and cedar trees without expecting them to be a profit center. The goats saved money by being the cheapest method of weed control. Some enterprising individuals get paid to graze their sheep or goats where weed problems exist.

Multispecies grazing is a very sound idea, both economically and ecologically. Each individual producer must examine the benefits and costs to determine the fit for their particular operation.
