You Can't Beat The Fair!

The 1999 Wayne County Fair brought many forms of entertainment. Quentin and Ramsey Jorgensen cover their ears during the Bush Pullers Association Tractor Pull. This 4-H bunny gets lots of extra loving during fair time: Natalie Williams finds these horses to be very tame as she enjoys the merry-go-round with her father Ryun. Andi Diediker grabs a handful of wool to keep his grip during the mutton busting contest. Lots of youth, including Cory Harm, found staying on the log to be difficult during the log rolling demonstrations.

Elementary plans open house

A Board Coffee was held prior to the school board meeting Monday night with many being honored for their accomplishments.

Included in the list of honorees were Clinton Keller, a Class B Boys Golf Gold Medalist; Hailey Daehnke, a Peter Kiewit Scholar; Erin Mann, a National Merit Scholar and Willa Cather Scholar; John Brogie, a Junior Academy of Science winner; Joe Dangberg, a Peter Kiewit Institute participant; and John Murtaugh, in the Nebraska Scholastic Wrestling Coaches Association Hall of Fame.

The Wayne High Boys Golf Team with Coach Terry Munson was honored. The Wayne High Cheerleaders with Coach Jill Corder, who were UCA Camp winners, were also honored.

A public hearing on Basic Allowable Growth Rate was also held prior to the regular Board meeting.

Basic Allowable Growth Rate is a spending lid of 3.63 percent set by the state. If a vote is not passed to raise the amount by one percent over the lid, then the amount stays the same. The Wayne School System showed student population growth so the Board voted to raise the amount to 4.63 percent to help with expenditures.

The Board approved Certified Staff Contracts of Stephanie Reynolds, Barb Gillian, and Mike Fehringer (non-certified).

Mention was made of Edith Zahniser, German teacher at Wayne High, earning the Foreign Language STAR Award.

Dr. Reinert gave an update on the remodeling ongoing at the Elementary building. Pressure testing is complete on the north side of the building, two new boilers have been purchased and will be installed after concrete work is finished, pressure testing will be done on the south side of the building, landscaping will be done, and new window frames are in place around the building awaiting arrival of glass.

Classrooms and offices at the Elementary building will be air conditioned while the gym and hallways will not. Some old window air conditioning units have been taken from the elementary building and are now in place in the elementary building in Carroll.

An Open House is planned with the Chamber Coffee set for Friday.

Construction work on intersection of Highway 35 and 15 begins

Thanks to the cooperation of adjacent businesses, work to modify the intersection of Highway 35 and 15 in Wayne began Aug. 9. Weather permitting, the work is expected to be completed in mid September. Traffic will be maintained through the intersection while work is being performed.

Part of the modification includes repositioning two traffic signal poles. Stop signs will be used to control traffic during the few days the signals are out of operation. When possible, local traffic is urged to avoid the intersection during the time stop signs are in use.

The entire Highway 35 project is scheduled to be completed in October when seeding and sodding work is finished.

Electric usage jumps during the heat wave

Although this summer's heat wave has passed with relatively few problems, officials with the Wayne Electrical Department have released numbers concerning the amount of energy used in the city.

Gene Hansen, Electrical Production Superintendent, said that the city's generators ran for 12 days from July 17 to July 30.

"Generally, during the summer months, we have spurts of up to three days when we need to generate power, but this year was unusual," Hansen said.

The City's electrical department was called on by Nebraska Public Power to generate for both the city's electrical needs and those of other NPPD customers.

"This summer we hit a peak load of 14,500 KW of electricity as compared to our peak last summer of 13,600 KW. This represents a six percent increase, which is fairly significant," Hansen said.

Hansen attributes the increase in part to the increase in air conditioning and irrigation during the heat wave, but also in part to the fact that the city of Wayne is growing.

"We have a number of businesses that have expanded as well

Only three of the eight Wayne City Council members were present at Tuesday's meeting. Because that number was not high enough to represent a quorum, an official meeting could not be held. Council persons Willis Wiseman, Lois Shelton, Darrel Fuelberth, Mel Utecht and Verdel Lutt were absent from the meeting.

Instead, those present listened to three presentations.

Wayne Chief of Police Lance Webster spoke to the council on the need for additional officers in the Wayne Police Department. At the present time the city has eight full-time officers and four full-time dispatchers. This ranks the city next to last when compared to other cities of equal size.

"We are understaffed and with the increase in college population, there are many demands on the officers time. At the present time

Northeast student center in process of remodeling

Students returning to Northeast Community College on Monday will witness the college's Student Center expansion project which is expanding, renovating, and updating the existing building.

However, Kathy Rutenbeck, interim director of student life, says students will not be inconvenienced due to construction.

"Everything is running very smoothly," said Rutenbeck, and "aside from having limited space in the beginning, everything will be operating as usual."

The expansion, which began in May and is scheduled for completion in August 2000, will add 10,410 square feet of new space to the existing building and an estimated 18,000 square feet of renovation to existing space.

Expansion plans will enclose the existing patio and add an 8,000 square foot two-story addition.

The upper level will house the bookstore, child care program, student health, game room, a television lounge, computer lab, a student club and organization meeting room, and adjunct offices.

Additions to the lower level will include an expanded dining area for around 350 students with an optional private dining area for special events, a scattered food court system, and a remodeled kitchen/preparation area.

"We should have the cafeteria and food court up and going when the fall semester begins," said Rutenbeck. "There will be some areas with make-shift flooring and while the dining space will there, it will be limited due to construction."

Returning students will notice an expanded food court area which will offer a wide variety of entrees as well as an "all you can eat" option.

"A wider selection will also help keep lines short and speed up service for students," said Rutenbeck.

Construction is scheduled in phases and when school begins, the construction crew will be working on the new addition away from the students.

"When the new addition is completed, the first floor will be finished," she said. "We'll probably get the carpeting down around Christmas."

"The bookstore will move to the new addition when it's completed," said Rutenbeck, "and the child care facilities will be housed in the old bookstore space after it is renovated."

The estimated construction budget is $1.6 million and funding for the project will be from revenue bonds, which will be repaid over a nine-year period, and available cash funds.

Payment program set up for small hog operations

The 1999 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act signed into law by President Clinton on May 21 authorized additional funding to make additional payments under the Small Hog Operation Payment (SHOP) Program.

The payments will be made to producers who sold hogs and pigs during the last six months of 1998.

These payments are in addition to the $50 million already paid under the Small Hog Operation Payment (SHOP) earlier in 1999.

Producers qualify for the payments if their hog operation marketed fewer than 2,500 hogs during the last six months of 1998, and are still in operation. Hog operations are not eligible for payments on hogs marketed under fixed-price or cost-plus contracts or if an operations gross income for 1998 was greater than $2.5 million.

Farmers who already received previous SHOP payments will not need to reapply; their payments will be made automatically. New producers will be required to complete an application between Aug. 9 and Sept. 24, 1999 at their local FSA Office. To complete a SHOP application, producers must certify the number of slaughter hogs and feeder pigs marketed in the last six months of 1998 and list the buyers of the hogs and pigs.

Producers will be paid up to $10 per slaughter-weight hog (or the equivalent for feeder pigs and other swine) multiplied by the number of hogs (up to 500) marketed during the last six months of 1998. This maximum payment that will be paid to any operation is $5,000.

Plans

Aug. 20 at 10 a.m. at the Elementary School. Coffee will be served in the gym. A ribbon cutting ceremony is planned with the public and other schools invited to attend.

Remodeling at the High School includes work on the Distance Learning Room which is ongoing. No classes are planned to be held in that room until second semester. Other remodeling projects at the high school that are finished include a new electrical system, bleacher repair, floor refinishing in the gym, and stage curtains replaced in the lecture hall.

The Board approved paying RAMBO $53,881.56 of their contract.

The school had hired IEA (Institute Environmental Assessment) to manage Federal regulations and monitor the abatement process needed at the Middle School. Air Safe Environmental was hired to remove asbestos from the Middle School by July 2 but did not finish in time. The delay caused damages for the school as projects scheduled had to wait. The Board approved paying $9,845.91 of the $15,386.91 bill that Air Safe is asking for.

The attic, though, has not been completed so the school has hired Dames and Associates to monitor the situation to see what abatement needs to be done there. A report will be given at an upcoming meeting.

Dr. Reinert and Food Service Director Judy Poehman have been accessing the elementary kitchen problems. The kitchen needs to be enlarged as the amount of meals prepared there is growing. There are between 650-700 meals prepared in three ovens there daily. More space is needed for a walk-in refrigerator as there isn't one now. Also, convection ovens are needed at the high school and at the middle school for preparation of frozen quick foods such as chicken nuggets, fish sticks, etc.

Roger Kruse Associates has been assessing the kitchen problem and has found the present kitchen to be usable as a serving kitchen with meals being transported to the middle and to the high schools. The firm will give a final report in two weeks on improved kitchen design.

The Board voted to approve a lunch price increase for adults from $2.10 to 2.15. Student prices will remain the same.

There was no new business or communications from the public. Bonita Day, past Strings teacher for the Wayne School system, sent a letter of thanks to the District. Day retired after 35 years of teaching.

The future agenda for the next meeting includes the Board inviting Zahniser to share her experiences in Germany, an update on the kitchen problems, policy updates, a report on Middle School abatement, and high school plans.

The next regularly scheduled School Board meeting will be held Aug. 23 at the High School at 7 p.m. and will consist mainly of Board strategic planning practices.

Short ride

Hundreds of spectators were on hand at Thursday performance by Two Wild Events Bull Riding. The group made its first appearance at the Wayne County Fair. Included in the events were several rounds of bull riding and mutton busting for children.

Governor proclaims

August is Childrens' Vision and Learning month

Gov. Mike Johanns has proclaimed August as "Children's Vision and Learning Month" in Nebraska. The proclamation was signed recently in Lincoln and it was then presented to Mary Lauritzen, chairperson of the Nebraska Foundation for Vision Awareness.

In his proclamation, Gov. Johanns cited several factors that emphasize the important link between children's vision and their ability to learn. Among those factors sighted were: Children's ability to learn is largely dependent on their vision connection.

"More than 80 percent of learning is a result of visual processing."

"Research estimates that more than 25 percent of school children may have a vision-related learning problem."

"Academic success supports the development of each child's human potential, societal productivity and personal happiness."

In celebration of Children's Vision and Learning Month, the Nebraska Library Commission is helping to promote the vision and learning connection with various library activities in communities throughout the state. To find out more, check with the Wayne Public Library as to books and resources they have available on the subject.

Gov. Johanns also recognized the Nebraska Foundation for Vision Awareness for their contributions to children's vision and learning. NEVA is a non-profit organization dedicated to educating the public about the importance of early childhood vision care. They are working in cooperation with the Nebraska Optometric Association and the Eye Care Council to promote the award-winning SEE TO LEARN® Children's Vision Program.

This program, currently offered by participating optometrists in 17 states, offers a free vision assessment to all three-year-old children. This assessment is designed to make sure that vision problems can be detected and treated before they affect a child's ability to learn. In 1998, 550 three-year-old children in Nebraska were given free vision assessments and more than 15 percent of those were diagnosed with a vision problem that might otherwise have gone undetected.

To schedule a free vision assessment for a three-year-old through the SEE TO LEARN®, call 1-800-960-EYES. Dr. Larry Magnuson of Magnuson Eye Care (375-5160) and Dr. Donald Koeber of Wayne Vision Center (375-2020) are participants in the SEE TO LEARN® program.

Mortgage

She worked as a lobbyist for Freddie Mac and the National Association of Mortgage Brokers.

In November of 1997 she decided to move back to Wayne to be near her mother, Virginia Wright.

"At that time I ran into Rod Tompkins who offered me a position with Homestead Capital Company, Inc. I worked there as the Executive Vice President and General Manager until May of this year when I decided to open my own office," Ms. Burt said.

In addition to her work as mortgage broker, Ms. Burt plans to open a coffee house in Wayne.

"I am currently working out the details for The Renaissance Coffee House, the name I have chosen for my business. I found that the mortgage company is something that I am able to offer to the community at the same time," she said.

WayneAmerica Mortgage Company provides brokerage services primarily to residential customers seeking sources of financing.

"I work with a number of different lenders and go to bat for my customers. I work with those who need money to purchase a home and with those who want to refinance an existing mortgage," Ms. Burt said.

"I have a good relationship with the local banks. They direct the customers they are not able to help to me. My job is to locate sources of funding for their needs," she said.

In addition, Ms. Burt counsels people in ways to improve their financial situations.

Since her return to Wayne, Ms. Burt has become very active in the community.

She currently serves on the board of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and the Wayne Community Housing Development Corporation. She is also a board member and song leader in the Wayne Rotary Club and is active in Wayne Main Street.

This fall Ms. Burt will teach a course in Business Law for Wayne State College at South Sioux City.

"I am glad I came back to be a part of the Main Street business community with both the coffee house and the mortgage company," she added.

For more information on the services offered by WayneAmerica Mortgage Company, contact Ms. Burt at (402) 375-2735.

Community Builders to meet

The Wakefield community will be hosting the Community Builders program on Thursday, Aug. 26 at 5 p.m.

Tours will begin at the Hatchery, followed by dinner at the Gardner Senior Center and a program on "Community Entrepreneurship."

Joshua Barney, Nebraska's "Young Entrepreneur of the Year," will present the program. Barney founded Northeast Nebraska ComNET in 1996 to provide internet access to rural Nebraska where access was previously unavailable at a local charge.

Starting with two communities in 1997, Barney's company now serves over 22 northeast and north central Nebraska communities, including Wakefield, Wayne and Emerson.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

For more information contact Kathy Skinner at the Wakefield City Office at (402) 287-2080 or Lois Lage, Community Builders Coordinator at (402) 585-4544.

we average 12.5 calls for service per day and generally there is a 20 percent increase when college is in session," Chief Webster said.

Webster also said that because of the city's location between Norfolk and South Sioux City, the incidence of drug usage has been on the rise.

"Because of the shortage of officers, we spend more of our time being reactive rather than proactive and stopping crimes before they happen," he said.

Chief Webster has asked for the addition of two officers and a full-time dispatcher. Partial funding for the officers could be in the form a three-year COPS Program grant.

Mary Kranz, vice-president of the Wayne Child Care Board, spoke to those present concerning attempts to raise funds for its operation. A total of $13,000 has been committed over a period of three years by local businesses.

The Board also asked the city to consider the payment of the facility's street assessment.

The final presentation was by Joel Hansen of the Public Works Department in regard to tree management.

Hansen presented a number of revisions to the city code which would allow the city to follow the standards of the National Arbor Foundation particularly regarding trees in public right-of-way.

The council will meet again Tuesday, Aug. 17 at 6:30 p.m. prior to a 7 p.m. joint meeting with the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

as a number of new houses and apartments in the city," he said.

During the past several years the Wayne electrical department has installed load control switches on nearly 500 residential and commercial central air conditioning units.

"This has resulted in great savings to the city. Without the switches, we would have had used 500 KW more during the heat wave," Hansen said.

The electrical department is currently looking for additional customers who would like to have the switches installed on their air conditioning units. There is not cost to the customer for this service.

During the heat wave, the city's generators ran for a total of 159 hours and burnt a total of 206,731 gallons of diesel fuel. There were 2,739,000 KW generated.

"We have a capacity lease agreement with NPPD and when they need us to, we are able to generate electricity. The electricity generated in Wayne feeds the city first and then goes out on line to the surrounding area served by NPPD," Hansen said.

Total electrical consumption during the month of July was 6,255,000 as compared with 5,749,000 in July of 1998.

Gary Poutre, Electrical Distribution Superintendent, reported only minor problems during the heat wave.

"We had a couple of overload situations. Transformers are more heavily loaded during the hot spells, resulting in electrical outages. However, in a way, this is good for us because this is a test to see if we have any problems with our system," he said.

The outages were localized and electricity was restored by the department in less than one-half hour in each case.

MAKING CHILD CARE A PRIORITY

By Governor Mike Johanns

Dear Nebraska Neighbors:

You've heard it many times before. The idea that today's children represent the face of tomorrow has become something of a cliché as we strive to educate our young people and protect them from a host of negative influences such as drugs, alcohol, and youth violence.

Our children are indeed our future, and if we are to enable them to grow into healthy and productive adults, we must give them a firm foundation of care and supervision at an early age.

In today's world, it is common, and in many cases a necessity, for parents to look to child care providers for assistance as they themselves work outside the home. Surveys indicate that one in five Nebraska children is enrolled in a licensed child care center, the costs of which can create a burden for many working families.

Two weeks ago, I mentioned in this column that I would be attending a ribbon-cutting in Beatrice to dedicate the new Watch'em Grow Child Care Center located on the campus of the Beatrice State Developmental Center (BSDC), a division of the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. The Watch'em Grow program plans to offer child care for first and second shift employees and on weekends. State employees have priority, but members of the community can apply for any open slots.

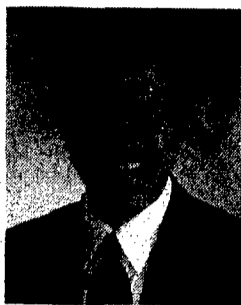

Finding child care where children can be secure, healthy, and successful is especially difficult for people working second shifts. Thanks to a total community effort that involved BSDC employees, local officials, the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce, Family Resource Centers, the BSDC Parents Organization, and many others, the Watch'em Grow program will now make this process much easier. It is very rewarding to see the results of the hard work of so many people come together as a success.

The Watch'em Grow program fits in well with the purpose of my new Business Council on Child Care Financing. Over the next several months, the Council members will examine child care from a business perspective, as a way to help recruit and retain employees.

Among its goals, the Council will work to assess the financial status of child care in Nebraska including costs and gaps in financing; identify the financial impact that accredited and accessible early childhood care and education programs have for Nebraska; and recommend strategies and develop a long-term plan to finance early childhood care and education.

Affordable child care is critical to families and to employers. Working and earning a livable wage is essential to supporting a strong family. Quality child care is critical to employers because of the strong links to productivity and workforce stability.

By bringing this council together, Nebraska joins other states that have convened similar councils to search for financing solutions. We should not delay the process of finding solutions tailored to Nebraska's needs, nor should we delay putting them into place. Combined with other forces affecting the economy, the issue of child care is important to the economic and social health of our "Nebraska United" now and into the future.

Capitol News —

'Make 'em stand in a corner'

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Make 'em stand in a corner. Let the lawsuits about cruel and unusual, and whatever else some people want to say about any kind of punishment, flow like promises from Washington, D.C.

Bite the bullet. Make 'em stand in a corner.

This is my own response to the latest meeting of a panel which is looking into problems that teachers have in classrooms.

It isn't so much a fear of violence, panelists were told. It is a lack of tools to deal with a kid who, like Peck's Bad Boy, takes the attitude: "I won't behave, and you can't make me!"

For reasons to be enumerated, I say, let teachers have authority to do at least one thing: Make 'em stand in a corner.

Let's backtrack a tad, say as far back as the 1960s.

In those days, it is true that a good many school systems nationwide allowed teachers and administrators to be arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. It's good that, collectively, we have endeavored to put a stop to such goings on, especially when it came to notorious abuses of one individual, or group of individuals. It happened. And it's good we no longer tolerate, let alone condone, such stuff.

So? What does that situation have to do with some kid behaving as though no one ever taught him anything about the basic manifestations of civility that are a part of our social contract?

You can't legally yell "Fire" in a theater for fear of endangering people. But, too often, you can disrupt a classroom and endanger the ability of your contemporaries to get an education.

Corporal punishment is out, as well it should be. And, if you suspend or expel some little booger, the school district must provide a separate learning environment - presumably one that is also subject to disruption.

If a kid has to stand in a corner, in a room filled with classmates, that kid may well be seen as more ridiculous than clever or tough.

To those who would say: "Such a thing would make the child feel awful. Why, it could impair development. It could damage self-image."

To them I say: You are correct Ph.D. breath! It could impair the kid's development as a grand slam geek. If a child's favorite avocation is disrupting the educational process for others, by all means let us damage that child's image of himself or herself as clever.

And, if some judge throws out the first rule that lets teachers make the miscreants stand in a corner, there is an appropriate remedy.

Every single one of those spit-wad-throwing, smart-mouth talking, foot-stomping, fight-starting younguns should be sent to another environment. They should be sent, each and every day, to sit in the courtroom of the judge who dumped the rule. Just to sit there, to read and to observe.

Maybe some of them will figure out they don't want to end up like a lot of the people they see in court. Maybe some of them will shape up when they realize that, usually, only judges, juries and lawyers sit in comfortable chairs. In most courtrooms, you sit on a hard, wooden bench.

Maybe some of them still won't behave.

Maybe some judge will make them stand in a corner.

This notion, I believe, might be as worthy of consideration as a good many others that will pass before the Legislature and the State Board of Education in the coming year.

Whaddya' think?

How the Chamber can follow and lead

In their introduction to "Maslow on Management," Stephens and Heil Melinger (1998) explain that "People spend too many hours in organizations and institutions that do not support them in reaching their true potential." How can an organization such as the Chamber help one develop one's abilities? How does one lead? How does one follow? How do followership and leadership apply to an organization such as the Chamber of Commerce?

A brief discussion of the rules of followership and how those rules provide a solid foundation for a leadership role is today's Chamber Corner topic. Next week I will focus on Characteristics necessary in leaders and comment on various authors' view of the new focus for organizations leaders.

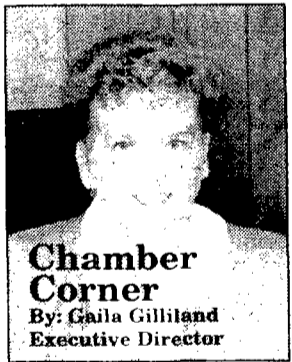

Melinger (1996) gives his Ten Rules of Followership on pages 153-158 in "Military Leadership In Pursuit of Excellence." First, "do not blame the boss." As a follower, your role is to uphold, not to sabotage or undercut, the Program of Work. "Do not fight with the boss." Argue and deliberate with the board and the executive director if needed, but do so privately. "Use initiative." Make your decision! Then run it by the executive director and you'll find less micro-management. Make sure to offer a workable plan for any committee program or activity.

"Accept responsibility." Whenever you are asked to take responsibility, do so. We can each stretch our volunteer leadership muscles. Become known as a risk taker, one who accepts responsibility. "Tell the truth and do not quibble." The Board of Directors deserve and need to know the truth-what-ever it is.

"Do your homework." Make sure to have all the information necessary to make wise decisions. Imagine questions the board might have. Perhaps most importantly, consider implications of the situation I have heard it said that we need to ask "why?" seven times to identify underlying issues.

"Suggestion implementation." Remember, your committee will

Chamber Corner
By: Gaila Gilliland
Executive Director

likely be responsible to carry out the program or activity. "Keep the (Executive Director) informed." I understand a preference to not share bad news, but hearing it from a committee chair or member is better than hearing it from someone not even on the committee. Do you have good news? Go ahead, tout your own horn, you will be noticed!

"Fix problems as they occur." If you see an obstacle or a difficulty with a program or activity, take care of it right away in this Chamber there is no limit to how much community good can be achieved as long as we do not care who gets the credit.

Finally, "put in an honest day's work." Written for the workplace, this rule translates to a volunteer being very selective when choosing to volunteer. Once the choice is made, plan to attend committee meetings and do the work necessary to accomplish goals, but do not let your volunteer spirit define your entire life. Remember-balance family, work, and volunteer efforts.

Nebraska Consumer Bulletin

Attorney General
Don Stenberg

Y2K IS APPROACHING
The Scam Artists Are Already at Work

Even though Nebraska banks and thrifts are well prepared for the Year 2000, scam artists are attempting to frighten Nebraska consumers about the safety of their bank and credit card accounts.

The scam artists never miss an opportunity to try to take advantage of our good Nebraska citizens. New schemes are popping up to exploit the consumers' fears about the Y2K. These schemes are usually attempts to get credit card and bank account numbers. One fraudulent caller even asked the consumer to transfer his entire bank account to the scam artist so that it could be protected from any Y2K glitches.

Recently, the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division received a report from a consumer who had been called by someone implying that he represented the person's bank. The caller said that in order to validate credit cards for the Year 2000, the consumer must have a special sticker placed on the back of his credit cards. In order to provide this, of course, the caller needed the consumer's credit card number and expiration date.

Another report told about a phone caller who explained that all credit cards would have to have the magnetic strip replaced before the new year in order to be Y2K compliant. The caller, who again suggested he was representing the consumer's bank, said this could be taken care of by mailing the credit cards to him at a post office box in another state.

The Y2K Consumer Group has asked our office to make consumers aware of a Y2K scam in which the scam artist contacts people by phone and claims to represent a bank that is having difficulty getting its computer systems ready for the Year 2000. He tells the consumer that all bank customers need to transfer their accounts to a bond account to protect their money until the bank can get its system ready for the next millennium. He then asks for account information to "verify that he is talking to the proper person" and asks for verbal authorization to transfer funds to the special account.

Here are some suggestions to help protect yourself from the Y2K scam artists:

- If a caller informs you that you must provide information or pay a fee to make your credit card or bank account Y2K compliant, check immediately with your credit card company or bank.
- Never give credit card or bank account numbers over the phone when you did not initiate the call.
- If a caller asks questions about your personal finances, such as where you bank or how much cash you keep at home, hang up.
- Be aware that bank employees or police will never quiz you about your bank account over the phone.
- If a caller suggests you should withdraw money from your bank or allow the caller to withdraw it so that it can be protected from the Y2K bug, call your bank or the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office immediately.

If you have questions about the Y2K or other consumer questions contact: Office of Attorney General Don Stenberg, Consumer Protection Division, 2115 State Capitol, Lincoln, NE, 68509, (402) 471-2682, Consumer Protection Line - 1-800-727-6432.

Red Cross committees join

Since July 1, the Knox County Red Cross joined with Wayne County Red Cross. The same Red Cross services will be continued in Knox County even though Wayne County Red Cross will be providing the administrative function and support in the Wayne office, keeping all the records-past and future.

In order to assist in Disaster Assessment and assistance in Knox County, a meeting was held at the Bloomfield Community Center on July 29 with members from Bloomfield, Creighton, Crofton, Niobrara, Verdigray and Wausa in attendance.

Miron Jenness, Red Cross training specialist and Rowan Wiltse, a member of the Wayne County Disaster Action Team presented packets to each team present. Each packet contains information and materials needed to assist victims of single family disaster, such as fire and flood so clients can be served in an orderly fashion. This assistance can include finding shelter, food and clothing. Teams will be able to issue disbursement orders (vouchers) allowing clients to make necessary purchases.

Members from each community also discussed using a call list among towns in Knox County as well as the fire departments (mutual aid) and the 911 system whenever one or more communities need extra help with a disaster.

Area family reunions held

Koester family

Over the weekend, around 200 people gathered for the Koester family reunion. Every three years members of the Koester family get together for a huge family reunion celebration.

This year's family members traveled to Allen from 16 states: Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona, California, Minnesota, Iowa, Texas, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, and Florida.

There were eight children from the original George Koester family. This year the activities were put on by the descendants of Paul Koester. Over the three-day event, many activities and meals were planned.

On Friday, registration began at 1:30. At 5 p.m., "Stump the Koester Klan" was played. Following the evening meal, the group was involved in twilight golfing. The evening ended with a dance at Larry Koester's Pioneer Building with music provided by "Something New." Also the Senior Citizen Center held an Ice Cream Social during the dance.

On Saturday, hot cinnamon rolls were provided by the Senior Citizen's Center. The group then traveled to the old homestead where pictures were taken. This was the last time for the group to see the old George Koester homestead as the house will be destroyed.

After lunch, which was provided by the Village Inn, games began. Volleyball and soccer were played at the football field and Lori Koester had the basketball group.

For dinner, the group enjoyed a banquet on Saturday night provided by the Village Inn. Awards were then given out for the games played and for different areas such as youngest family members, oldest, etc.

The Koester Klan Auction was the last scheduled event for the night. Items were auctioned off by Kenny Burcham. The items auctioned off ranged from door knobs for the old homestead which were decorated to jars of canned asparagus which was sold for $25 a jar at the last reunion.

There were also pictures, pillows, part of the old stair case banister, sweatshirts, and many pieces of Koester history offered at the auction. The money raised will go towards future family reunions and also to the Koester Senior Fund. Every year graduating Seniors of the Koester family receive family scholarships from the fund.

The event closed on Sunday with a continental breakfast followed by a Church service at the First Lutheran Church put on by the family members for the family.

Students complete Kiewit Academy of Excellence held in Omaha recently

Joshua Henderson of Wakefield and his teacher Susan Tyler and Joe Dangberg of Wayne and his teacher Dale Hochstein participated in the Kiewit Academy of Excellence held in Omaha recently.

The first Academy of Excellence sponsored by the Peter Kiewit Institute of Information Science, Technology and Engineering brought 40 of the state's top high school sophomores and their favorite teachers to Omaha for six days of learning, and fun July 25-30.

According to Winnie Callahan, Kiewit Institute executive director, the first of what will be an annual summer effort, was a success. "Students and teachers have been wonderful to work with and their enthusiasm for the program is pretty remarkable," she said.

Last January, schools across the state nominated their top two sophomores in math or science. The nominees were then invited to apply for the weekend program designed to familiarize them with careers and program offerings in information science, computer science, engineering and technology. To participate, students also had to invite their favorite math or science teacher to join them for the week.

The Academy of Excellence is intended to familiarize students and teachers with the opportunities provided through the two colleges and the Kiewit Institute. It provided hands-on experiences where students with their guest teacher learned, laughed and solved problems together.

The Kiewit Institute is jointly administered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Engineering and Technology and the University of Nebraska at Omaha College of Information Science and Technology in collaboration with area businesses and industries.

"Highly trained professionals in technical and engineering fields are needed to solve the labor shortage and help bolster the state and nation's economies," said Paul Seaburg, associate dean of UNL's College of Engineering and Technology.

In addition to the academic activities, students took field trips in the Omaha metro area to learn about the community and its offerings.

"Learning that Omaha is a great place to live and go to school is key to having the institute meet its statewide mission," Callahan said.

Video available to help young drivers

Approximately 64,000 teenagers hit the streets each year in Nebraska as new drivers. Now a video is available to explain to them the differences between a school permit, a learner's permit, and a provisional operators permit, and how to get one.

In the nine-minute video, real Nebraska teenagers talk about the requirements for each type of permit, such as age, identification, and written or driving examinations, and what limitations are attached to each type of permit.

For school permits: a student must be at least 14 years old; take vision, written and driving tests; and live more than one and one half miles outside the city limits of the city where the school is located. The permit only allows the student to drive to and from school activities by the most direct route. Immediate family members may ride in the vehicle.

For learner's permits: an individual must be 15 years of age, take vision and written tests, and must always drive with a licensed driver 21 years of age or older. This permit is valid for 12 months.

For provisional operators permits: an individual must be at least 16 years old, and take a vision test. By either showing proof of taking a state-approved driver's education class, or by logging 50 hours of driving with a licensed adult and taking both a written test and a driving test, they can receive a provisional permit. This permit allows the holder to drive between 6 a.m. and midnight, or at other hours if going to or from school activities or work, or at any time with a licensed adult 21 years of age or older. The permit expires on the holder's eighteenth birthday.

The video also explains that permits can be revoked for law violation, such as speeding and drunken driving.

The video is produced by the Emergency Medical Services for Children Program of the Nebraska Health and Human Services System and the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety. Copies have been distributed to schools, law enforcement agencies and ambulance services.

For information on how to obtain a copy, contact Debbie Kuhn, emergency medical services coordinator at 402-471-0119 or 1-800-422-3460.

WEEKLY Health TIP

Replacing Your Toothbrush

Replace your toothbrush if the bristles look splayed or matted or begin to stiffen. Brushes with these signs of wear have lost the ability to remove plaque effectively from your teeth. Dentists suggest replacing toothbrushes at least every three months. You may want to change more frequently especially after a cold or flu. Store your brush in a container that allows it to dry between brushings.

Wayne State College Community Chorus being formed this fall

Community members are being encouraged to join Wayne State College students, faculty and staff to form a new Community Chorus directed by the WSC music division. The first rehearsal for the new chorus will be Aug. 26, at 6 p.m.

The first performance for the Community Chorus is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 21, at 8 p.m. in Ley Theater on the WSC campus. The group will perform Antonio Vivaldi's "Gloria" and other selections.

The purpose of this chorus is to give people who love to sing a place to perform high quality choral literature with a minimum time commitment. Anyone who has a desire to sing in a community group is encouraged to join. It will be an enjoyable time for all involved and I hope you and other singers you know will participate," said David Lawrence, director of WSC choral activities.

The ensemble is open to any singer without audition. The group will meet Thursday evenings from 6 to 7:40 p.m. in Room 23 of the Peterson Fine Arts Building on the WSC campus.

The Golden Years

Paul Newman wasn't always an actor and gourmet food aficionado. After serving in the Navy during World War II, Newman worked in a sporting goods store, a laundromat and was once hired to sell encyclopedias door to door. He even worked washing golf balls at a driving range. In 1968 he was elected as a delegate to the Democratic Convention in Chicago and briefly considered running for Senate. It was during this time Newman learned he was included in Richard Nixon's infamous "enemies list", and was said to have been "absolutely delighted".

Week-long Mission trip taken

Youth participate in work

The Youth Groups from First Baptist Church in Wayne and the Evangelical Free Church in Concord traveled to Denver, Colo. June 26-July 2 for a week of missionary work.

The nine students and three sponsors from Wayne, Laurel and Concord and Dixon expressed their appreciation for the opportunities to be of service in several inner city neighborhoods.

The Nebraska group joined with other groups from Illinois and New Mexico and together were engaged in a number of activities during the course of their missionary work.

Sponsoring a Vacation Bible School for inner city children was high on the list of accomplishments. A water carnival and games were included for the children in attendance. Singing Bible songs and planning a delivering lessons to preschoolers and kindergartners were the highlights of the Bible School.

Evening puppet shows portraying Bible stories were presented for the children of the neighborhood and many additional children attended the daily Bible School as a result of viewing these puppet shows.

Work projects in the surrounding neighborhoods were undertaken each morning as a major part of the mission work. One group ran a sports camp for the children of the neighborhood.

A second group participated in the painting of a mural. The last group spent their mornings cleaning up yards and painting for elderly and disabled residents in the neighborhood. They also assisted in tearing up asphalt in a parking lot so it could be replaced by a playground for neighborhood children.

Evening prayer walks were conducted throughout the downtown Denver area providing opportunities to witness to and pray with many needy people including a number of homeless people.

The students also took a driving tour of the city including an opportunity to see Columbine High School in the Denver suburb of Littleton.

The final was spent in worship and discussion groups. During that day many prayers were offered for the children who attended the Vacation Bible School. Many friendships were formed during the course of the week's work and worship.

Since returning from Colorado, the Youth Group members have shared their experiences in churches in Wayne, Belden and Concord and at the Gospel Mission in Sioux City, Iowa.

Group sponsors are Scott and Kim Boysen, Shannon Arduser and Angie Brown.

Youth group members participating from the Concord church were Jared Hartman, Teresa Ahlmann, Mark Boysen, Ben Cries, Evan Bloom and Carissa Carlson.

Group members participating from the Wayne church were Kelli Penn, Greta Smith and Corbin Sharer.

Local nursing student participate in program

Abbey Schroeder of Allen, a student at Good Samaritan Health Systems, Kearney, participated in the Senior Clinical Nursing Externship Program offered this summer.

Nursing students from the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing Kearney Division, with the help of Mary Lanning Memorial Hospital and Good Samaritan Health Systems, are getting six to eight weeks of valuable nursing experience this summer.

Fourteen senior nursing students are participating in the Senior Clinical Nursing Externship Program which gives the students an opportunity to apply nursing theories and skills, as well as learn to make appropriate decisions in a hospital setting. Mary Lanning and Good Samaritan provide pay for the nursing students, tuition reimbursement for their externship, pay for the UNMC faculty who supervise the students, as well as pay for the staff member assigned to the student.

Part of the experience requires students to think through scenarios and make decisions based on patient data and symptoms. The students provide faculty information on what steps should be taken and why. The externship also helps the students' organizational skills and helps them decide which area of nursing they may want to work.

The externships also benefit the hospitals. Good Samaritan Health Systems Vice President of Nursing, Carol Wahl, said the program brings together nursing education and experience that benefits UNMC and Good Samaritan.

Youth Leadership Camp experiences gained at WSC encourage Native American students

Fourteen students visiting Wayne State College found encouragement through learning activities organized within the Summer Leadership Camp in Science and Math, July 13-16. The Camp was created to promote science careers and to introduce young Native American students to a college atmosphere.

The Camp is part of a project collaborated by the Nebraska Native American Tribal Schools, Wayne State College, the Health Professions Partnership Initiative (HPPI)/University of Nebraska Medical Center, University of Nebraska at Omaha, Aviation Institute and the Nebraska Indian Commission.

"The Health Professions Partnership Initiative" (HPPI) began in January 1996 when UNMC received a $350,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. Partners in the Initiative are UNMC, the Nebraska Indian Community College, Wayne State College and various other colleges and universities. Other entities involved from the start of the program included the Macy, Winnebago and Santee school systems and tribes.

"We were one of 10 original projects accepted from among many others applying for funding. We were also the only funded project at that time to specifically encourage more Native American programming at all levels of education. The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation was interested in funding health-related projects. Healthcare education was one of the major areas of interest," said Dr. Dave Carver of the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC).

"Our main goal is to have communication among the partners working together to get Native Americans into health professions. We have had tremendous support from Wayne State College through Dr. J. Johar and Dr. Paul Karr. They deserve recognition because they have been with the project from the beginning. Even before we were awarded the grant, we were able to show support from the partners and everyone involved to create a win-win situation, especially for the students," Carver said.

"It is an honor for Wayne State College to host these young students with so much promise and potential. Their dreams for careers in health, teaching and service professions become our dreams. With just a few days together, we are fortunate to become part of their circle, and they part of ours. We hope the circle of their bright educational future will continue to expand," said Dr. Sheila Stearns, WSC president.

"This has been a great learning experience for students. I'm very fortunate to have a group of faculty members willing to create fun activities to allow students to enjoy math and science," said Dr. J. Johar, head of WSC math-science division.

The following WSC faculty were involved in working with the students: Dr. Kevin Alexander, Shawn Percy, Tamara Worner, Jay Todd, Maryott, Dr. Mark Hammer and Ron Vick, Sr.

Since one of the goals of HPPI is to encourage Native American students to pursue careers in health-related profession, select students from Santee, Walthill, Winnebago and Umonhon Nation Public Schools (formerly Macy) were awarded the opportunity to attend the Camp.

"Rural reservations of Nebraska are our target. Our whole purpose is to increase the number of Nebraska Native American students entering and successfully completing a health career track. We are looking at the whole education pipeline and how to identify and nurture students with an interest in health-related careers," said Octa Keen, HPPI project coordinator.

"Octa Keen works as a day-to-day coordinator, by making arrangements and talking with superintendents and teachers of the public schools we work with," Carver said.

Three student participants of the project are attending medical school, Carver said. One of the three is Mills Jones of Santee. Jones was enrolled as a WSC student at one time.

Once these students identify that they want to go on the study math, science or a health-related career, HPPI continues to focus on ways to keep helping students throughout school.

"We have been trying to provide a pathway by starting at the grade school level to get the younger kids in grade school and also in high school to take an interest in a healthcare pathway. We are in the fourth year of a five-year grant cycle," Carver said.

Three mornings of math and science activities were planned for the students by WSC faculty. Students learned about the body and how to test it at the Human Performance Lab in the human performance and leisure studies division.

Students also learned about animals, plants, computers, shapes and worked other properties of science through water rockets, giant bubbles and more. One workshop allowed students to enclose one or two students in a soap bubble by using a hula-hoop and a wading pool.

One of the most popular highlights for the students was a visit at the Behlen Observatory in Mead.

Another student enjoyed the experiments at WSC and realized how they could help him in the future. Looking forward to a possible future as an astronaut and a photographer, Lucas LaRose was interested in the frogs and turtles he examined in the WSC labs. Before the end of the Camp, LaRose expressed his enthusiasm by asking Shawn Percy, WSC assistant professor, to allow him to have his photograph taken with the frogs and turtles as a memory of camp.

Concluding activities at WSC, the Camp group gathered for a "Show and Tell — Omaha, Ho-Chunk and Santee Style," which allowed students time to meet Dr. Stearns, receive recognition for Camp awards and share some insights about their own culture or future aspirations.

Assisting students as a parent with two children attending camp and as a chaperone, Sharon Frenchman is a site coordinator and a teacher at Winnebago school. She said this is her second year involved with the HPPI program. She said she was also impressed by the group's experience at WSC.

Another chaperone, Nate Tuttle of Walthill, said this is the first year he has been involved to do something. Once you have them closed up to learning, it takes a long time to get their spirits back up again," Tuttle said.

"During the past 13 years, Tuttle said he has worked with these students and others from Macy and Walthill.

"I have tried to teach them the ways of our culture and to provide a role model for them. I have seen big changes. I never had the opportunities that these students have now," Tuttle said.

CAN THEY BUY YOUR HOME?

You've placed your home in the hands of a qualified real estate agent. A family has seen your home, and is ready to sign a purchase agreement, at full price.

Now, how can you be certain the buyers are qualified to make the purchase before you sign the contract?

Until recent years, buyers first made a buying decision, then went to a mortgage lender. Because buyers often choose a home at the outer limits of their financial abilities, they also experience frequent turn-downs by lenders. If the Purchase Agreement was negotiated "contingent upon financing," the buyer's earnest money deposit would be returned and they would be let out of the contract. Now, sellers have become wary of buyers who have not been pre-qualified to make a purchase. Buyers have also begun to realize the importance of knowing their financial strength, up front. Lenders have tired of processing loans that are later rejected.

For many buyers today, their first stop in the home-buying process is a mortgage lender. By securing pre-approval for a specific loan amount, they can shop and negotiate with confidence. For sellers, there is less chance of a last-minute loan rejection.

For additional information regarding the qualification process for a home loan, give me a call.

Medicines for Angina Pain

The medical term coronary insufficiency describes a need for oxygen by the heart that is greater than that which is present. When this occurs, heart pain or angina pectoris results. Typically angina pain is experienced during exertion or emotional stress. Coronary insufficiency is caused by a decrease in blood flow to the blood vessels of the heart. Researchers believe the reduced blood flow most often occurs due to fatty deposits that make blood vessels more narrow. Angina pain is described as "crushing" or "Squeezing" in the area of the breast bone, neck or shoulder.

Medicines for angina (called coronary vasodilators) open narrow vessels in the heart. Sublingual (under the tongue) forms of nitroglycerin and isosorbide dinitrate often are prescribed for rapid relief of angina pain. Sustained-release tablet formulations of these medicines are sometimes prescribed to prevent or reduce the severity of angina attacks.

Camp

Growing up as a Native American, Tuttle said he was encouraged to get a job and work to earn money rather than attend college. He said he is trying to help younger students take advantage of their opportunities by helping them with fund raising activities, encouraging them or just spending time on the weekends with a group of about 24 or more students.

One thing he said his students have been excited about is being involved in a science fair. The HPPI program is offering cash prize awards. Walthill served as the host school for the fair this year. Winnebago will serve as the host for the next fair. Tuttle said the students are getting ideas from their experience at WSC to be used at the science fair.

"They are good kids to work with and they are all willing to learn," Tuttle said. WSC instructors Karr and Maryott agreed with Tuttle's praise for the students attending Camp.

"The students worked well with the WSC faculty members presenting workshops. I'm also proud of my colleagues for sharing their knowledge in such creative and understandable ways," Karr said.

"I think everyone had a fantastic time. The students asked questions and participated. We had a very positive response to the workshops. Most of the benefit for the students is just being on a college campus so it's not scary when they go to college and learn that science isn't scary," WSC instructor Betsy Maryott said.

Vick, Sr., WSC counselor, answered questions from the students about their curiosity and fears about going to college during a "Talking Circle" session.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC) launched an innovative, grants program in 1996 to help fund educational partnerships designed to increase the number of minority students well-prepared to pursue careers in medicine, nursing and other health professions. The Foundation has awarded $3.75 million, with an additional $1.25 million authorized, in grants and technical assistance over a five-year period to 10 community partnerships throughout the country to achieve this goal.

The Health Professions Partnership Initiative (HPPI) builds upon the AAMC's Project 3000 by 2000. Begun in 1991, the project has encouraged dozens of U.S. medical schools to collaborate with their local school systems and colleges to substantially increase the number of Black, Latino and American Indian students in the medical-education "pipeline."

One of the underlying premises of the HPPI program is that the only way to dramatically increase minority participation in medicine and related fields is to work to ensure that many more minority students graduate from high school well prepared for a rigorous course of study in college and have the resources they need to pursue a bachelor's degree and achieve their career goals.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, based in Princeton, N.J., is the nation's largest philanthropy devoted exclusively to health and health care.

Since becoming a national institution in 1972, the Foundation has made more than $2 billion in grants, and concentrates its grantmaking in four areas: assuring access to basic health services; improving the way services are organized and provided for people with chronic health conditions; reducing the harm caused by substance abuse; and helping the nation address the problem of rising health care costs.

Wayne High teacher completes institute

Annette Rasmussen receives her certificate of completion from Rick Larsen of the REAL Institute.

Annette Rasmussen of Wayne, a teacher at Wayne High School, recently attended the REAL Institute in Spearfish, SD.

During the week of July 24-31, 43 teachers from 16 states spent eight days of learning and teaching at the REAL Institute. These intensive professional development programs are sponsored each year by REAL (Rural Entrepreneurship through Action Learning) Enterprises, a non-profit education organization dedicated to helping rural high schools and post-secondary institutions create entrepreneurship programs which enable students to create their own small businesses and explore self-employment.

Rasmussen described her experience at the REAL Institute this way, "an opportunity to experience learning activities and curriculum for use in my classroom and time to plan the Entrepreneurship course for the upcoming school year."

The REAL Institute attracted a diverse group of participants including teachers, administrators, and representatives from various community organizations. At the institute, participants addressed the theory and methodology of experiential education: studied and used the REAL curriculum as they planned their courses, learned the basics of business planning marketing operations, and finance; and prepared for the implementation of the program in their schools.

In REAL Entrepreneurship, students assess their own interests and skills, analyze the local community and economy, select promising business ideas based on their research, write comprehensive business plans for the ventures, and (if they choose) actually open and operate the businesses they have created. These businesses are not simulations or school projects; they belong to the entrepreneurs that create them. The goals of the REAL program are to empower individuals, to promote experiential education, and to revitalize rural communities through the creation of businesses and jobs.

Wayne High school is a part of a growing network of REAL schools across the nation. REAL Enterprises organizations and individual teachers make the program happen in Georgia, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. In addition, educators from the United Kingdom and Eritrea, East Africa have been trained to teach REAL.

Rasmussen and Wayne High School will offer the REAL program this current school year. For more information, please contact Annette Rasmussen at Wayne High School.

Ak-Sar-Ben announces increase in scholarships

The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben Foundation has announced an increase in scholarship opportunities for Heartland youth.

Beginning this fall, twenty $10,000 scholarships ($2,500 a year for four years) will be awarded annually to high school seniors from Nebraska and western Iowa who plan on attending a four year institution in the same region.

Proceeds to support this program are raised through the Ak-Sar-Ben Coronation Ball. The mission of the Coronation Ball is to promote, recognize and celebrate voluntarism, philanthropy, and civic pride.

Maureen Turner, 1999 Women's Ball Committee Chairman, noted "The commitment to providing post secondary education opportunities for youth in our region is a perfect fit with the mission of the event where we recognize devotion to community service."

Applications for the Ak-Sar-Ben Leadership College Scholarship will be available in high schools by mid-September or on the Ak-Sar-Ben web site at www.aksarben.org. The submission deadline for applications is Feb. 18, 2000.

The criteria for judging the applications includes leadership, academic achievement, desire to earn a college degree, and financial need. To be eligible a student must be a United States Citizen who will have graduated by the spring of 2000 from an accredited public or private high school in Nebraska or western Iowa and is ranked academically in the top 50 percent of his/her graduating class.

The theme of the 1999 Coronation Ball is Renaissance Revelry-A Moonlight Masque at the Court of Quivira and scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 16, 1999 at the Ak-Sar-ben Coliseum in Omaha.

For more information on how you can partake in the 1999 Coronation Ball, support scholarship efforts, or get involved in other Foundation programs offered as part of their mission "to build a more prosperous Heartland, where communities can flourish and every child can succeed," contact the office at 402-554-9600.

Food-borne illness

Occurring more often

If you recall hearing more about food-borne illness these days, it's because there IS more food-borne illness these days. We might expect the opposite with modern means of food preservation and emphasis on food safety, food contamination would seem to occur less frequently than a generation or two ago.

Why does food-borne illness occur more often today, and more importantly, how does cleanliness at home insure safer food for your family?

No single activity or habit has led to the increase in food-borne illness. Rather, combinations that have caused it include:

*Globalization of the food supply. Countries with different farming and food processing practices are exporting their food products to other countries.

*Changes in food packaging. Foods handled appropriately under one set of circumstances may not be safe when handled similarly under another set of circumstances. Canning, freezing, vacuum packaging and fresh products all must be handled differently.

*Availability of more refrigerated fresh foods. However, fresh foods need to be thoroughly cleaned before eating to avoid residue bacteria and microorganisms that can cause food-borne illness.

*Changes in consumer eating habits. Many foods today are prepared with less sugar and fat. A reduced-or no-fat product contains more water, and thus the opportunity for bacterial activity. Sugar is a preservative, and sugar-free or low-sugar foods may not keep as long as full-sugar foods.

*More food is eaten in large groups. Foods served in large quantities are more difficult to be kept hot or cold to avoid food-borne illness.

Cooperative Extension

Sally Ebmeier Cedar County

more than 30 types of shigella bacteria have been found. Even as more bacteria and microorganisms are detected, they are becoming more virulent and harder to kill.

*Change in agricultural practices. More manure, which is high in microorganisms, is being used as fertilizer. Producers need to ensure manure is properly applied as fertilizer and consumers need to thoroughly wash fresh fruits and vegetables.

While the above descriptions occur outside the home and out of household control, there is one basic function in the home that best prevents food-borne illness—proper hand washing. Poor personal hygiene contributed to more than one third of food-borne illnesses with contributing factors from 1988-1992, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

A 1998 federal study found that 20 percent of food preparers fail to wash their hands with soap and water after contact with raw meat or poultry and before handling other foods; 16 percent failed to wash their cutting boards. Failure to wash either hands or countertops, cutting boards and utensils provides a direct route for bacteria and microorganisms to contaminate food.

Hands should be washed continuously for 20 seconds with soap and hot water after handling raw meat, fish, poultry, and eggs; after using the bathroom, changing a diaper or wiping a nose; or petting an animal.

For more details on food safety, check the World Wide Web at www.fsis.usda.gov/.

Source: Julie Abrecht, Ph.D, food safety specialist, NU/IANR; USDA Food Safety and Inspection Service.

Chryne Specht, aunt of the groom, was in charge of the punch bowl. Carrie, Jaime and Jennifer Specht and Tiffany Fiscus, cousins of the groom were waitresses. Jodie Thompson and Maureen Schuster were Dining Room coordinators.

Alison Thompson was also a special helper during the reception.

The bride graduated from Laurel-Concord High School in 1995 and is a 1998 graduate of Northeast Community College. She is employed by ClockTower Animal Clinic at Lincoln as a Certified Veterinary Technician.

The groom is a 1993 graduate of Laurel-Concord. He also attended NECC and is employed by Burkey Farms in Dorchester.

After a wedding trip to Galveston, Texas, the couple is at home at 1505 Superior, #5 in Lincoln.

Small town celebrations

Nebraska has large variety

The heat wave has been broken, at least in the Midwest, but the humidity is still a factor. It's 11 a.m. on Saturday; the guests left an hour ago, the dishes are done, the second load of sheets is in the dryer and I'm counting on Resolve to get the mud out of the carpet. The half inch of rain yesterday was welcome, but not everyone takes off their shoes when they come in.

It's Rim of the Prairie Day in Elmwood. That's the title of one of Bess Streeter Aldrich's novels, and since her home is in Elmwood, it's a good name for a small town celebration.

We all have them, they just have different names. Limestone Days at Weeping Water, Avoca Fun Day, Louisville Daze, And-Chicken Days. For all the publicity, I still get puzzled looks around here when I mention Wayne and chickens. We stayed up later than usual to watch the winners of the cluck off contest on Leno Tuesday night. Joel Vavra was dethroned by a cowboy from Arkansas! I couldn't believe it. I don't know who the young winner was, but they were both great. I could never have done that in Bressler Park, let alone on late-night television.

I won't make it to Elmwood today, as I pulled an evening shift at the local care center. But I just finished the book. It's wonderful. I couldn't put it down; consequently, missing some sleep.

This copy was at the antique shop, and I gave $10 for it. Apparently, it was published in 1916, and it reflects that era. I discovered Bess when I was in junior high, when I read "Lantern in Her Hand" the first time. In my humble opinion, and I know I've said this before, Bess has Cather and Sandow beat all to pieces.

Even if you weren't crazy about rural Nebraska to begin with, you would be by the time you read her descriptions of prairie, trees, native flowers, birds, weather, and farming. Her husband was Elmwood's banker, and one of the characters in Rim of the Prairie is a kind small-town banker.

It's a romance without any modern "goings on," with a mystery that is only totally solved in the final chapter. No trash talk; old-fashioned and sweet. If you have time for one good story before summer's over, let it be this one. Then come visit the Aldrich house, and stay at the Farm House.

WAYNE STATE COLLEGE

VICE PRESIDENT FOR DEVELOPMENT

Wayne State College and the Wayne State Foundation are seeking an experienced professional to assume responsibility for all aspects of fund-raising and alumni relations. The Vice President also serves as the Executive Director of the Wayne State Foundation. A first-ever national fund-raising campaign was concluded in 1994 with $13.5 million having been attained. A second national fund-raising campaign is entering the second of three years, with a goal of $5 million for scholarship endowment, campus beautification, and unrestricted dollars.

Wayne State College has rapidly emerged into one of the most dynamic, small, regional public colleges in the Midwest. Strong leadership, record enrollment growth, a renewed focus on student development and teaching, and several major building projects are indicators of the College's vitality. The College enrolls 4,000 students and is located in a community of 5,000 in northeast Nebraska. Wayne is located 50 miles west of Sioux City, Iowa and 100 miles northwest of Omaha.

The successful candidate should possess a minimum of a masters degree in a relevant field, a minimum of five years of progressively responsible administrative experience, a record of accomplishment in fund-raising, preferably in higher education, and the ability to manage and provide leadership for a comprehensive development program. Candidates must also possess a proven record of success in the identification, cultivation, solicitation and stewardship of major gifts.

Review of applications and nominations will be accepted until the position is filled, but to be assured full consideration, inquiries should be received before August 30, 1999. During the initial phase of the process applicant names will be kept confidential.
