No guts, no glory

More than 350 people were on hand for the 10th annual Pheasants Forever Banquet on Friday. Among the evening's activities were a silent auction, a live auction, a number of raffles and the popular game, "No Guts, No Glory." Contestants were given the opportunity to take a $20 prize or play for more money and the chance to win a large prize. Kevin Modrell was the winner of the game and chose a shotgun as his prize. Organizers estimate that over $15,000 was raised during the event. The money will be used toward a number of habitat related projects.

Exchange student likes rural life

By Lynn Sievers
 Of the Herald

Experiencing cultural changes, Ingrid Simoes of Brazil has been living with three Rotary families in Wayne for the past seven months through a Rotary foreign exchange program.

Ingrid began her visit on Aug. 15 with the Dan Rose family and was with them until Nov. 27. At that time she moved in with Brian and Amy Taylor until about a week ago when she moved in with Wilma Moore.

Through the program, not only has Ingrid had to deal with small town rural life but also with home life on three different levels. The Roses' have two daughters; Megan, recently graduated from college and Marisa, in eighth grade. Roses' have hosted four exchange students. Taylors haven't yet started a family, and Ingrid was their first exchange student; and Moore has grown children and hasn't hosted exchange students before.

Ingrid, 15 years old, has been attending Wayne High School since her arrival taking classes at different grade levels according to her ability in each subject.

She is from Promissao, Brazil which is in the state of Sao Paulo located in the southeast part of Brazil. Promissao has a population of around 35,000.

Her family consists of her mother, Dulce Simoes, a teacher; her father, Dario Lazaro, a lawyer; an older brother, Gustavo Simoes, a graduate in computer science; and an older sister, Erica Simoes, a graduate in architecture who is going back to school to take engineering classes.

Some differences between high school in Brazil and here include shorter hours in Brazil (classes run from 7 a.m. until noon), students there don't go to different classrooms because the teachers move from one room to another, some schools there have classes on Saturdays, high school in Brazil is three years, students there can choose where they want to attend school, and the average classroom size there is around 50 students.

and biology are required every year," Ingrid said. "Since there is one less year of high school there than here, we have to hit it hard. Here you can pretty much choose which classes you want to take and major courses you may only have to take one year."

team for about the past five years. Sports there are not integrated into the school system as they are here. Sports are held in clubs. A popular sport there is soccer. While attending Wayne High, Ingrid has played basketball.

Dan noted with a smile that they disagreed often about watching soccer or football on the television while she was at their home. He did say that when the World Series came on she did ask questions about baseball. "Soccer is still the best though," Ingrid laughed.

"Promissao is structurally different than here. We don't have malls and there are no fast food stores. There is more junk foods here than at home," Ingrid said. "We don't have 24 hour stores and there aren't as many conveniences there as here. Brian Taylor joked that while Ingrid was living with them she teased

New attractions announced for the Wayne County Fair

Although the Wayne County Fair is still more than four months away, members of the Wayne County Fair Board have already scheduled a number of attractions for fair-goers.

Dates for the 2000 fair are Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 3-6.

Earlier this year members of the Wayne County Fair Board and those from across the state attended the Nebraska State Fair Convention in Kearney.

At that time, a showcase of talent was displayed and board members received ideas on possible fair attractions.

Since that time, a number of different types of entertainment have been booked for this year's fair.

On Thursday night, Classic Cowboys of Norfolk will provide bull riding. The event will feature bull riding and mutton busting and will be similar to last year's event.

On Friday night, during the annual barbecue, Joanie Keller will pro-

Banquet to be held

The first Quality of Life Banquet will be Sunday, April 2 on the Wayne State College campus.

The event, which is designed to recognize the area's 60 service organizations, as well as raise money toward the establishment of a skate park, begins at 5 p.m.

From 5 to 6 p.m. skate board demonstrations will be given. The public is invited to visit representatives of various service organizations during that same time period.

$3,000 was received by those organizing this event. The money has helped to offset the cost of the banquet and the ticket prices were lowered to $15 each.

Tickets may be purchased until Tuesday, March 28 from George Holm at K & G Cleaners, from participating service groups or from any of the skaters who have been going door-to-door.

"This is your opportunity to find out about the service organizations in our community, as well as learn more about the plans for the

Semester Abroad students spend spring 2000 in Europe

Molly Linster and Katie Lutt, both of Wayne, and Kelly Fredrick of Wakefield are among eleven students from Wayne State College who will be joining students from University of Nebraska, University of Nebraska-Omaha and University of Nebraska-Kearney to attend classes in the Czech Republic and at Aristotle University in Greece through the Nebraska Semester Abroad program.

The students will be accompanied by Dr. Kathy Conway, education professor and Gerald Conway, business professor.

Linster is a sophomore wellness major, Lutt is a junior elementary education major, and Fredrick is a sophomore psychology major.

The rest of this year's participants are: Rhonda Calvert, a senior human service counseling major from Sergeant Bluff, Iowa; Sarah Connealy, a junior wellness major from Lincoln; Darren Hagedorn, a junior human service counseling

Wayne High School to present musical

Wayne High School will be presenting their Spring Musical on April 7-8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wayne High School Lecture Hall under the direction of Nathan Ley. The High School is presenting "Promissao," a whimsical musical about two sisters who stumbled upon a mystical village which only blossoms every 100 years. The musical is full of humor, musical numbers, songs and dances. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Call Nathan Ley at 375-3150 for tickets.

major from Scribner, Jim Hervet, a junior accounting/finance major from Hastings, Amber Huggenberger, a sophomore English major from Emerson, Agnes Humlicek, a senior CIS/business management major from Clarkson, Mollie Martoz, a senior finance major from Stanton and Valerie Spilker, a junior human service counseling major from Omaha.

Jan Dinsmore, a member of the Nebraska Semester Abroad Consortium, is encouraged by this year's participation from Wayne State.

"When we began this program several years ago, we wanted to encourage students from Nebraska to travel abroad and to be able to have this experience together with professors from Nebraska institutions. This is the first year we've had 11 students participate even though we have always sent two-four students each year. The affordability of the program and having two professors from Wayne State helped with the numbers this year," Dinsmore said.

The semester begins as soon as the students arrive in Prague in mid-March and will finish in Greece at the end of May with a trip to the Greek Islands. Students are able to earn 12 semester hours in the program itself, however, this semester some of the students have enrolled in extra classes at WSC before they leave and will be finishing those classes while abroad.

In late April, they will have a spring break along with the European students. This will afford the students time to do traveling on their own. Popular spots in the past for Nebraska Semester abroad students have been Italy, France, Germany and Austria.

Students interested in the program and other study abroad activities should contact Jan Dinsmore, 209 Connell Hall, 375-7428.

Board approves all day Kindergarten

The Wayne Board of Education met in special session on March 22. Agenda items discussed included All Day Kindergarten and certified teacher contract.

Board members approved the proposal of offering All Day Kindergarten beginning for the 2000-2001 academic year.

It would require the hiring of two additional elementary teachers. There would be four sections of all day classes, with three in Wayne and one in Carroll.

All Day Kindergarten will be offered with parents knowing up front of the schedule designed for a full day. For those parents not wishing to send their child to a full day, they would have the option of enrolling their student for a half day of Kindergarten and it would be their decision to make.

Also discussed was allowing a grace period for parents to determine if their child would be better suited for a half day or for a full day. Administrators and staff members will bring back recommendations to the Board concerning the daily schedule and the grace period for allowing parents to make a decision if they would choose to option their child to attend All Day Kindergarten.

A certified teacher contract was approved for Jeanene Kindshuch. She was hired to fill the vacancy with the retirement of Middle School Librarian Fauneil Bennett, effective at the end of the school year. Bennett has taught in the Wayne School District for 33 years.

The next regular meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education will be held on Monday, April 10 at 7 p.m. at the high school in Wayne.

Fundraiser has high goals

The Wayne High School High will be the beneficiary of a fundraiser being planned by the Wayne State Radio station.

Members of the KWSC FM/Wayne (K 92) radio station will be on top of the Swans' building at Second and Main Streets in Wayne.

They will be broadcasting live from noon on Friday, March 31 until noon on Saturday, April 1.

Anyone interested in donating money for the event can drop off the money from noon to 10 p.m. on Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Checks may also be sent to the High School by April 1.

The students have set a goal of $1,000 for this event.

He was preceded in death by one son, Joel, one great-granddaughter, Krystal, two brothers and one sister.

Schumacher-Hasemann Funeral Home in Wayne is in charge of arrangements.

Great Dane employees hold fundraiser benefit

Todd Whitehead of rural Oakland is an employee of Great Dane Trailers in Wayne.

His four-year-old daughter, Haley recently had open heart surgery to close one of three holes in her heart.

Ken Duncan of Wisner, also a Great Dane employee, became aware of the situation and quickly put together a fund-raiser to help the family with expenses.

Donations were made by Frankie Fenner of Norfolk who donated candy, a wreath and a combination crib/bassinets. Ken Duncan donated a cement Nebraska football and a cement bench. Richard Longe of Wayne donated a half of a hog and the processing was donated by Jim Wozny of Winside Lockers.

The drawing for prizes was held March 17.

Winners included Mike Olson (candy), Jerry Rennerfeldt (wreath), William Baier (cement football), Eleanor Liekhus (crib/bassinets), Eleanor Liekhus (cement bench) and Jane Johnson (half a hog).

Over $650 was raised from the benefit.

Haley had surgery on March 7 and is currently at home doing well.

Area students among scholarship winners

Stacey Martinson of Allen, Ross Gardner of Wakefield, Jon Gathje, Clinton Keller, Dustin Schmeits, and Kristin Wilson, all of Wayne, and Aaron Lessmann of Winside are among incoming freshmen who each received a Regents, Muchemore, or Chancellors scholarship from the University of Nebraska at Kearney.

Martinson, Gardner, Keller, Schmeits, and Lessmann each received a Chancellors scholarship, and Gathje and Wilson each received a Regents scholarship.

In order to qualify for one of these scholarships, students were required to be classified in the top 25 percent to their graduating class and have scored at least a 24 composite ACT score.

A Regents scholarship pays full tuition for up to 135 hours at UNK and is estimated in value at $10,000 per year; a G. Robert Muchemore Foundation scholarship pays full tuition for 15 hours per semester for eight semesters; and a Chancellors scholarship pays $1,000 per year, for up to eight semesters.

Tea Drinking and Cancer Prevention

Camellia sinensis is the plant source of all teas - green, black, and oolong. Although many individuals like the taste of beverages made from tea, the central nervous system stimulant caffeine appears to have much to do with the herb's popularity the world over. Yet, tea has other constituents - especially polyphenols - that may impart health benefits to tea drinkers. Green tea is not fermented, as is black and oolong. Therefore, these constituents are more likely to be unaltered in green tea.

When tea infusions are given to laboratory animals, the animals get fewer tumors, and the growth of existing tumors is slowed. This observation has led researchers to explore the effects of tea drinking on cancer in humans. In a large study in China it was shown that individuals who consumed the most tea were least likely to have cancer of the esophagus. In a US study of postmenopausal women it was shown that women who consumed 2 or more cups of tea daily were less likely to have cancer of the digestive and urinary tracts as compared to women who did not drink tea.

them about so much of their food coming out of boxes.

"An average meal at home would consist of rice, beans, salad, chicken or beef," Ingrid said. "My mother goes to the market two to three times a week. We have a lot of fruit too. Our noon meal is our biggest meal."

Noting the difference in her English proficiency now as compared to her arrival, Roses' said she understood the language but hadn't had enough practice with conversational English. Ingrid said she had seven years of English before coming here as it's required but it must be taken as a private course.

"I think the younger you are the better chance you have to learn another language," Kyle Rose said. Ingrid's English is easy to understand now. She laughs and remarks that when she talks to her family about once a month, she forgets to keep speaking Portuguese to them and speaks in English.

"They wait until I'm finished and tell me they couldn't understand me," Ingrid said. "Sometimes when I write to them in Portuguese, I forget and write in English. I have made a friend at Wayne State College who is from Brazil and I also practice my Portuguese with her sometimes. I don't think I will forget the English language when I go back home because I have friends who will want to practice speaking it."

The Taylors' said it was fun having Ingrid around. Technology, such as the Internet, is affordable now and e-mail helps keep people globally more connected. Brian noted how proficient Ingrid is on e-mail.

"Her parents only called once a month and when they did they would tell her how bad her Portuguese was getting," Brian said. "Ingrid and her family sent a lot of e-mail messages to each other, though. Her brother was practicing his English over the Internet."

Taylors' noted that it was their interest in international involvement that helped them become exchange student hosts. The Rotary is a professional organization that promotes international ties.

"Two years ago, we lived and taught in Korea for seven months," Amy said. "One nice thing about Rotary exchanges, there are certain standards whether students are coming to the United States or leaving it to be exchange students elsewhere."

The Rotary, the largest and oldest civic organization in the world, has been in Wayne for 13 years. There are just under 1.2 million Rotarians worldwide and the organization is 95 years old. There are 46 clubs in this district with 19 exchange students being hosted by several of them. Students can choose three countries they would like to go to.

A standard procedure on foreign exchange set by the Rotary includes splitting a student's stay with two or three families to give them as much diversity as possible.

Since the students are to be ambassadors for their countries, there are strict international rules that must be followed. A couple of these rules are: students can not drive or get drivers licenses while in another country, and there is supposed to be no dating while in another country.

"Clubs keep a close eye on students," Dan said. "If something does not seem right then it will be discussed with them but if it doesn't change, they will be sent home."

"There's a liaison person who is not a host mom or dad available within the Rotary for the prospect to talk to if there are problems," Wilma said.

Wilma notes that she wanted to be a host since her children were in school but she was hesitant due to less activity in a one person household that would be remedied by having family and friends around as much as possible during Ingrid's stay.

Ingrid remarked that the Rotary is a good organization for foreign exchange and that she had searched around but found them to be the best.

An exciting Rotary event yet to come for Ingrid is a four week bus trip that travels from San Diego to Washington D.C. The tour of U.S. sights will begin June 13 and foreign exchange students will be picked up at 10-15 different locations along the way. Rotary members chaperone the trip. Ingrid will return to Wayne on July 10 and after that she will return home.

When asked about some of her most favorite things she discovered while in the U.S., she smiles and says that seeing new movies before her friends in Brazil get a chance to is great; and that Nacho cheese is now her favorite cheese. Watching television, she said, was her least favorite thing to do. At Christmas time she saw snow for the first time.

"I thought it was pretty and fun but I don't like being cold," Ingrid said. "In Brazil it's always warm with the coldest temperatures being in the 40s and 50s in the winter."

Brian noted that he and Amy are pretty excited with the prospect of visiting Ingrid in Brazil sometime when it's cold here.

"I would love to go to Brazil," Dan said. "Two Rotary visitation teams have come from Brazil and I've met other foreign exchange students in this area that were from Brazil."

Global travel is not new to the Roses' either. The family went to Belgium two years ago to visit one of their former exchange students, Ben Van der Auwera.

Marisa, the youngest of Roses' two daughters, announced she is hoping to be a foreign exchange student in 10th grade.

"I want to go to another country Japan is my first choice and Italy is my second choice," Marisa said.

"My foreign exchange experience has been a good one," Ingrid said. "At first I just wanted to learn the language but I am learning so much more. The culture difference is sometimes a little hard, like trying to understand why Americans do things they do, but I am learning how to handle things. It has been fun."

This drawing of a cement skate park is one option available to the city of Wayne. Several other options have also been discussed.

Skateboard Park in Wayne," said George Holm.

A second anonymous donation of $15,000 was recently received by the Skateboard Park committee. Although the donor wishes to remain anonymous, it was indicated that the person felt that the addition of a skatepark in the community would benefit the entire community, both financially and otherwise.

At the present time, more than 30 responses from service organizations have been received by the banquet committee. The information provided will be included in the printed program to be distributed at the banquet.

One goal of this project has been to open a greater line of communication between the groups on their needs, goals and ways they can compliment each other by working together.

During Sunday's banquet, an area youth will speak on the youth of the community and youth involvement in the community.

A Wayne resident will also speak briefly on the quality of life in Wayne and what types of community services and support draw people to the community.

Organizers of the event hope to raise community awareness about the benefits of having a skate park in the community.

They have put together a fact sheet that indicates the youth who have been participating are learning about design and construction of safe ramps, rails and fun boxes and assessing various types of building materials.

It is estimated that in the United States there are 35.9 million skaters and 10 million of those are skateboarders. Skating is a world-wide sport; skate parks have been built in Europe, Mexico, Canada and South America.

For more information about either the Quality of Life Banquet or the proposed Skate Park, contact George Holm, 375-1327; Paul Judson, 375-4667; Tim Sharer, 375-2044 or Dave Knight, 375-2184.

Wayne Area Retired Teachers listen to weather information

The Wayne Area Retired Teachers met March 6 at Tacos & More in Wayne. Marilyn Wallin, vice president, conducted the meeting in the absence of Harold Maciejewski.

Fifteen members responded to roll call.

Committee reports were given. Lois Youngerman, Community Service Chairman, suggested that each member present write a note to an absent member stating that they were missed and urging them to attend future meetings. In addition, members are to bring a child's book, used or new, to the next meeting. The books will be given to the Head Start program.

Mrs. Youngerman also presented material and information about the Ponca Community Educational Foundation that provides scholarships, special use awards, teacher endowment grants, an emergency help grand and school projects support.

This is accomplished through memberships, memorial donations and endowments. The motto of this organization is "We have no greater asset than our young people; no better cause than their education."

Alice Schutte, legislative chairman, gave an update on current legislation pertaining to retirees.

Vera Diediker, protective services chairman, urged members to be aware of using herbs unless under a doctor's supervision so there isn't conflict with medications being taken.

Patrick Gross of Wayne presented a program on his duties as weather observer at Wayne. This is an essential service to farmers in the area and gives immense data to all citizens.

Gross reports this information daily to the National office at Valley. Reported are the high and lows of temperature and precipitation. Rainfall measurements are taken in the morning. The measurements of precipitation are taken at 7 a.m.

Being a weather observer involves accurate record keeping. He also explained equipment used and the function of it.

Gross also presented statistics on high and lows of temperatures and precipitation amounts during the depression years.

The next meeting will be at the Harvest Cafe in Laurel on Monday, May 1 at 9:30 a.m. Ella Larson and Marguerite Stage are program chairpersons.

Nebraskans invited to nominate books for the 2000 book awards

The 2000 Nebraska Book Awards program, sponsored by the Nebraska Center for the Book (NCB), will recognize and honor books that are written by Nebraska authors, published by Nebraska publishers, and/or set in Nebraska or relate to Nebraska.

Books published in 1999, as indicated by the copyright date, are eligible for nomination. They must be professionally published, have an ISBN number, and bound. Books may be entered in one or more of the following categories: Non-fiction, Fiction, Children/Young Adult, Cover Design/Illustrations, and Poetry.

Certificates will be awarded to the winners in each category. Award winners will be announced at the Nebraska Center for the Book Annual Literature Festival in the fall of 2000.

The winning books will be displayed at the Literature Festival and presented to the Governor to be included in the permanent collection at the mansion. Winners will be entitled to display award stickers on their book covers.

The entry fee is $35 per book. Deadline for entries is May 15, 2000. Entry forms are available from the Nebraska Library Commission home page, www.nlc.state.ne.us/public/nebawards.html, or contact Mary Geibel, 402-471-2045, 800-307-2665, e-mail: mgeibel@neon.nlc.state.ne.us for print information.

Enter by sending the entry form, two copies of the book, and the entry fee to NCB Book Awards Competition, Nebraska Library Commission, The Atrium, 1200 N. Street, Suite 120, Lincoln, NE 68508-2023.

The Nebraska Center for the Book brings together the state's readers, writers, booksellers, librarians, publishers, printers, educators, and scholars to build the community of the book. As the people who know and love books and value the richness they bring to our lives, our Nebraska Center supports programs to celebrate and stimulate public interest in books, reading, and the written word.

American Red Cross "A Sad Story"

I wish you could see the sadness of a business man as his livelihood goes up in flames, or that family returning home, only to find their house and belongings damaged or lost for good. I wish you could know what it is like to search a burning bedroom for trapped children, flames rolling above your head, your palms and knees burning as you crawl, the floor sagging under your weight as the kitchen below you burns.

I wish you could comprehend a wife's horror at 3 in the morning as I check her husband of 40 years for a pulse and find none. I start CPR anyway, hoping to bring him back, knowing intuitively it is too late. But wanting his wife and family to know everything possible was done to try to save his life.

I wish you could understand how it feels to go to work in the morning after having spent most of the night, hot and soaking wet at a multiple alarm fire? How is the building constructed? What hazards await me? Is anyone trapped? Or to an EMS call, "What is wrong with the patient? Is it minor or life-threatening? Is the caller really in distress or is he waiting for us with a 2 x 4 or gun?"

I wish you could be in an emergency room as a doctor pronounces dead the beautiful five-year-old girl that I have been trying to save during the past 25 minutes, who will never go on her first date or say the words, "I love you Mommy" again.

I wish you could know the frustrations I feel in the cab of my emergency vehicle, my arm tugging again and again at the horn, as you fail to yield the right-of-way at an intersection or in traffic. When you need us, however, your first comment upon our arrival will be, "It took you forever to get here!"

I wish you could know the brotherhood and self-satisfaction of helping save a life or preserving someone's property, or being able to be there in time of crisis, or creating order from total chaos. I wish you could understand what it feels like to have a little boy tugging at your arm and asking, "Is Mommy okay?" Not even being able to look in his eyes without tears from your own and not knowing what to say. Or to have to hold back a long time friend who watches his buddy have rescue breathing done on him as they take him away in the ambulance.

A sensation that I have become too familiar with. Unless you have lived with this kind of life, you will never truly understand or appreciate who I am, we are, or what our job really means to us. . . . I wish you could, though!

'Life is about what we perceive things to be'

Dear Editor,

Pope John Paul II, how blessed are we to know this man in our lifetime? Should we all look to John Paul to bring ourselves and our religion - Christian, Jew, Islam - into the new century?

For about 25 years, because of personal experiences of domestic violence, I've been active in several civil rights causes. This activism has cost me the loss of more than one job. I've been shunned by former friends, my church and my family and I lost custody of my then 10-year-old daughter.

I was depressed to the point of attempting suicide, until I began to study "A Course in Miracles." (Not a religion, just a simple course in forgiveness.) It says "Nothing real can be threatened. Nothing unreal exists. Here in lies the peace of God." In order to translate this concept, we can look to the Bible. It does contain all of the truths and the fallacies of mankind and the teachings of Jesus are the 'Miracles.'

Life is about what we perceive things to be. If we are using perception to justify our own mistakes-our anger, our impulses to attack, our lack of love in whatever form it may take-we will see a world of evil, destruction, malice, envy and despair. All this we must forgive, not because we are being 'good' and 'charitable,' but because what we are seeing is not true. As we learn to look past them or 'forgive' them we are forgiving ourselves, looking past our distorted self-concepts to the God created in us and as us.

Now let us take this concept and apply it to what is happening all over the world with conflicts over gay rights, racial issues, abortions, whatever. (Humans seem to be able to fight over most everything.) I think that if we could all apply some of the concepts of the Unitarian Universalists, we could all get along a lot better. these are: 1. A religion that respects the differences between people and affirms every person as an individual. 2. A church that values children, that welcomes them on their own terms-a church they are eager to attend. 3. A congregation that cherishes freedom and encourages open dialogue on questions of faith. 4. A religious community that affirms spiritual exploration as a way to truth. 5. A church that thinks globally and acts locally on the great issues of our time: World peace, women's rights, racial justice, homelessness, gay and lesbian rights and protection of the environment.

Religious wisdom is everchanging. Churches cannot move on because of 'fear of change.' A book published a few years ago-I think by Spong-the church must change or die.' The UMC has just lost another minister and Jimmie Creeches former church has lost half its membership because we cannot accept the civil and moral rights of a large part of our population. Ask yourself: What would Jesus do?

Thanks is given

Dear Editor,

On Feb. 12 I sustained some life threatening injuries that caused massive internal bleeding. I spent three weeks in the hospital and now I am lucky enough to be able to heal here at home in Wayne.

I read the Siouxland Blood Bank editorial in the March 9 edition of The Wayne Herald and was deeply touched to learn that 33 people had given blood on my behalf. To add a bit of pleasant irony I was given exactly 31 units of blood to keep me alive.

I have not lived in Wayne since 1995 and I think it is to the specialness of this community that so many gave of themselves in my time of need.

I would like to extend my deepest gratitude to all those who gave and continue to give blood. Nobody in this sort of traumatic situation survives alone. On behalf of myself and my family, we thank everyone for the support.

Capitol News

There will be a study done

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The standard thing to do is to say "We hate to say I told you so," but it's a standard that reflects one of our cultural oddities.

The fact is, it usually feels really good to say "I told you so," and that's why so many of us smirk when we say it. At the very least, "I told you so," is usually reflective of some vindication of the party of the first part. The guy who said that it would rain on the parade, that the car wouldn't start, that the groom would leave her at the altar.

In this case, the issue is the much-discussed issue of higher pay for Nebraska teachers. Guess what?

After all the hype and talk and talk and the Legislature is GOING TO DO A STUDY!

Well, who'd a thought it?

Lots of people, actually. They just don't happen to write columns that let them say things out loud, so to speak.

One look at the budget awaaaay back before the Legislature convened, and one look at the potential costs of the proposals being talked about, would tell anyone experienced in the ways of the Legislature that this idea had "Study Before Opening" stamped all over it.

It's an election year, so it was stamped in red ink, in big print.

In fairness, the study was probably the fair thing to do all the way around.

This is not to take a position against higher teacher pay. This is to say that higher teacher pay is going to mean either NEW TAXES or HIGHER TAXES.

Them's the facts, folks:

The local property tax is the bogeyman of our time. It was the bogeyman of the last century in Nebraska. However, only a silly person would think that the Legislature could hike the sales and/or income tax rates without catching a lot of flak for it.

Yeah, people are fed up with property taxes. But take a whack at their take-home pay and see how they like it. Do it in an election year and you probably won't be around next January for the oath of office ceremony. Juice the sales tax rate and then see if you can outrun that mob from the local Chamber of Commerce.

This is the old "government is a process" thing at work. Sometimes, something that gets railroaded through the Legislature in a hurry. But this, decidedly, is not one of those times.

Teacher Pay - Part II will be with us in 2001.

Session winding down

Hello everyone! The session is officially winding down with only four weeks remaining. Last Thursday my priority bill, LB 1004, concerning the use of out-of-state DUI and refusal convictions, was heard on select file.

Two weeks ago on select file, concerns were raised concerning whether the law could be used to unfairly target minorities. To commendations are made, the Education Committee would then hold public meetings in each congressional district prior to December 31, 2000.

Two of Senator Nancy Thompson's bills have been amended into LB 1399. The Master Teacher Program Act would reward teachers who demonstrate a commitment to high quality teaching by receiving national certification. It would provide an annual bonus of $5,000 for the life of the certificate.

According to the floor debate, there are currently eight teachers, including from District 17, who would qualify for the program.

The Attracting Excellence to Teaching Program Act would provide renewable student loans for outstanding Nebraska teacher education students. The loans would provide up to $2,500 per year for students who agree to teach in Nebraska upon graduation. For each year the student teachers in Nebraska, one year of their loan would be forgiven.

The body adopted amendments to the bill concerning the makeup of the task force and the amount of the annual bonus. After all of the amendments were considered, the bill advanced to select file.

Advancing to final reading last week was LB 1436. Introduced by Hastings Senator Ardyce Bohike, this bill would create the teen tobacco education and prevention project committee, which would review anti-tobacco policy proposals from high school students around the state and select winning proposals within four class distinctions based upon population size. Under the original text of the bill, funding for the program would be provided by the first $500,000 of interest income from the Tobacco Settlement Trust Fund.

However, the body adopted an amendment that would use $21 million of the trust fund's principal over a three-year period.

Lincoln Senator Ron Raikes' priority measure, LB 715, concerning the revamping of the state aid formula, failed to advance last Thursday. Because of the complexity of the subject matter, Senator Doug Kristensen motioned to bracket the bill until April 11. Senator Raikes did not object to the motion.

In brief, LB 715 would have changed school aid in that it would take into account how districts spend their property tax dollars. Additionally, the proposal would have attempted to reduce the gap of per-pupil aid between dense and sparsely populated districts.

Last Tuesday, Senators Kermit Brashear and John Hilgert filed a motion to pull LB 1405 out of committee and out onto the floor. This bill forbids the use of fetal tissue from elected abortions for research purposes. Sponsored by Senator John Hilgert and prioritized by Senator Paul Hartnett, the legislation stalled in the Judiciary Committee with a 4-4 vote. The motion will be heard this week and need 25 favorable votes in order to pass.

As always, if you have any comments or questions about any matter pending in the legislature, please do not hesitate to contact me at my office: Senator Pat Engel, District #17, State Capital, Lincoln, Neb. 68509; (402) 471-2716 or e-mail lengel@unicam.state.ne.us

American Red Cross emergency response vehicle is acquired

Rowan Wiltse and LeRoy Janssen have been working to clean and "spruce up" this vehicle so that it can be used to respond to disaster situations. It is set up to serve food to both victims as well as emergency response people and also comes equipped with cots, blankets, and limited first aid supplies to help and assist medical personnel on the scene.

March is Red Cross month. It's the time of year when we turn to the people in our community for help in raising funds we need to provide the vital services families in Wayne and the surrounding communities have come to count on.

We still need to do some work on this vehicle before it will be ready to go out to a disaster scene, which means we need some financial support from the people in our community.

To make a donation to the Wayne Chapter of the American Red Cross, you can either call 375-5209 or mail a donation to 112 E. 2nd Street in Wayne.

If you would like further information about our plans with this emergency response vehicle, you can contact either Rowan Wiltse or LeRoy Janssen. We hope to have it available to show in parades this summer so that the people in Wayne can see "their dollars work!"

The Golden Years

It used to be said that life began at forty, but for writers Bruce Vilanch, life seems to be beginning just a little bit later. At fifty-one years old, comedy writer Bruce Vilanch is hardly resting on his laurels. As the wordmaster for celebrities ranging from Bette Midler to actor Nathan Lane, the Oscar shows, Tony awards, Grammys, Emmys - you name it, Vilanch has essentially remained behind the scenes. But having written for other people for all of these years, Vilanch is about to be center stage with the soon-to-be-released documentary, "Get Bruce!" Vilanch is also seen nightly on the TV show, "Hollywood Squares."

Winside girls win season-opening track meet, notching six, first-place medals

Jim Winch's Winside girls track team won the season opener at the Wayne State Indoor last Saturday, scoring 108 points to edge Pender with 104.

Bancroft-Rosalie was third with 80.33 with Battle Creek placing fourth with 75.67. Emerson-Hubbard and Osmond rounded out the field of girls teams.

Winside had six, first place finishes including Crystal Jensen's wins in the 60-meter dash (8.2) and 300-meter dash (46.2). She was also a member of the winning 4x160 relay which was timed in 1:34.3 with teammates Ashley Hoffman, Keisha Rees and Julie Jacobsen.

Jacobsen placed first in the triple jump with a leap of 33-4 and Jenny Cleveland was first in the 60-hurdles in 10.7. Laurie Deck won the two mile run in 13:27.0.

Cleveland added a pair of second place finishes in the 800 in 2:47.1 and triple jump, 32-5 while Jacobsen had a pair of third place efforts in the 400 (68.5) and long jump (15-2.25).

The 4x400 relay team was third in 4:44.6 with Crystal Jensen, Keisha Rees, Jenny Cleveland and Becky Krause and Jessica Wade was third in the high jump at 4-9.

Deck added a fifth in the mile in 6:19.6 and Cassie Anderson was fifth in the two mile run in 14:55.0 while the 4x800 relay was fifth in 11:47.8 with Deck, Sara Mohr, Kayla Bowers and Brooke Boelter.

Boelter placed sixth in the 800 in 3:06.0 and Krause was sixth in the 60 hurdles in 14.5.

The Winside boys placed sixth with 41.5 points. Pender won the team event with 97.5 and Bancroft-Rosalie was second with 95 followed in order by Lawton-Bronson, Emerson-Hubbard, Battle Creek, Winside and Osmond.

Adam Hoffman paced the Wildcats with a runner-up finish in the triple jump at 38-6 while running a leg of the second place 4x160 relay which was timed in 1:22.3 with teammates Scott Marotz, Mike Deck and Justin Koch.

Hoffman also placed third in the 300-meter dash in 41.4 and fourth in the 60-meter dash in 7.6.

Mike Deck placed fourth in the 400-meter dash in 60.0 and Scott Marotz was fourth in the shot put at 43-7.5—edging teammate Dustin Wade with a 43-3 shot put for fifth place.

Nathan Trautman tied for fifth in the high jump at 5-7 and Travis Yosten finished sixth in the 800 in 2:31.7. Boelter added a sixth in the mile run in 5:46.9.

Wayne State softball team has a 3-3 week

The Wayne State softball team went 3-3 during the past week which left Jon Misfeldt's Wildcats with a 6-12 record on the season.

Last week the 'Cats split with Peru State, winning the first contest, 9-0 before falling, 1-0 in the nightcap.

Michelle Lewis earned the pitching win against the Bobcats, scattering five hits and striking out two while recording the shutout.

Lewis and Tara Minnick had two hits each and each notched two rbi with Sarah Herrick and Heather Conley each notching a pair of hits as well.

Eight of the nine starters had at least one hit and WSC notched 12 hits in the contest.

"This is the WSC team I've been waiting for to show up," Misfeldt said. "The sticks came alive and every time we needed a defensive stop we got one."

WSC fell to the Bobcats, 1-0 in the nightcap as Peru State had four consecutive two-out singles in the bottom of the final inning to earn the win, thus handing Kim Nielsen the loss.

Nielsen struck out nine and scattered 10 hits. WSC managed just three hits in the game with Nielsen belting a double while Michelle Lewis and Heather Conley each singled.

"I really didn't expect this kind of turnaround after the first game," Misfeldt said. "It seemed like we had everything going for us but the energy just wasn't there."

Last Friday the 'Cats split another twinbill with Northwest Missouri State.

WSC lost the first game, 5-2 before rebounding to win the nightcap, 7-4.

Sarah Herrick blasted a two-run triple in the sixth inning which scored Jessica Hinde who had singled and Jennifer Berning, who reached on an error.

Katie New was tagged with the loss, scattering eight hits while striking out one.

WSC trailed the Bearcats by a 4-1 margin heading to the sixth inning of the second game before Misfeldt watched 10 of his batters go to the plate in the inning and the 'Cats rallied to win, 7-4.

Freshman Brandi Brockhaus started the rally with a leadoff double with Jennifer Berning earning a walk. Sarah Herrick belted a two-run double and Michelle Lewis hit a single.

Missy Paces hit a two-run double to put WSC ahead by a 5-4 margin before Codi Drieling blasted a two-run homerun to account for the final margin of victory.

Michelle Lewis earned the pitching win, striking out four while scattering seven hits. Kim Nielsen earned the save.

Tuesday in Wayne the 'Cats split yet another twinbill with Midland Lutheran.

In the opener WSC fell by a 6-5 margin in eight innings. The game was tied at four at the end of seven innings but Midland scored three in the tie-breaking inning with WSC netting just two runs.

Michelle Lewis was the losing pitcher. WSC was out-hit, 11-8 with Codi Drieling leading WSC with three singles while Sarah Herrick tripled and doubled. Michelle Lewis had two base hits and Jennifer Berning had one single.

Celebration planned to honor WSC men

WAYNE—The WSC Athletic Department is holding a men's basketball postseason celebration honoring the Wildcat men's basketball team and its fans on Thursday night (tonight) at 7 p.m. in Rice Auditorium. Admission is free. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Head coach Greg McDermott, several team members and WSC President Dr. Sheila Stearns will speak. In addition, a highlight video will be presented and an autographed basketball will be given away to one lucky fan in attendance.

WSC recently completed the most successful season in school history. The Wildcats compiled a 26-6 record, won a share of the Northern Sun Conference championship and advanced to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Division II Tournament.

WSC's 26 wins is the most in school history, eclipsing the 24-3 mark set by the 1967-68 squad. It was also the program's fourth straight 20-win season—another record.

WSC student trainer receives scholarship

WAYNE—Wayne State College student athletic trainer Kris Hinnerichs was awarded the Mid-America Athletic Trainer's Association Undergraduate Scholarship at the recent convention in Omaha.

Hinnerichs, a senior from Stanton, received a $500 scholarship, sponsored by Swedo Braces. Hinnerichs was the highest-rated undergraduate applicant from District 5 according to Jeff Rudy, program director at UNL. District 5 consists of all four-year colleges and universities in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota and South Dakota.

A vocational business education major, Hinnerichs was one of three undergraduates to receive a scholarship. In order to be eligible for these scholarships, applicants must be nominated by a certified athletic trainer and be at least a junior academically. Applicants must have a minimum 3.00 grade point average and have worked at least one year as a student athletic trainer.

Wayne State soccer team to host Clinic

WAYNE—The Wayne State College women's soccer team will host a youth soccer clinic on Saturday, April 15. The clinic, which is open to all kids grades K-6, cost $20 per person and includes a clinic T-shirt.

Grades K-3 will report for the morning session from 9 a.m. to noon. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. in the WSC Rec Center. Grades 4-6 will report for the afternoon session from 1-4 p.m. with registration at 12:30 p.m.

The clinic will be held on the fields located directly behind the WSC baseball/softball complex. Shinguards will be useful but not necessary. Campers need to bring their own shoes. No metal spikes will be permitted.

The clinic will be conducted by Wildcat head coach Justin Cole and members of the WSC women's soccer team. Campers will be taught basic fundamental offensive and defensive skills, learn ball handling drills, the importance of passing and spacing, game techniques, goalkeeper skills, teamwork and much more. Live scrimmages will be conducted at the end of each session.

For more information contact the WSC women's soccer office at 402-375-7506. Checks must be made payable to the WSC Athletic Camps. Send check along with child's name, grade, T-shirt size, parental contact and phone number to WSC Women's Soccer, 1111 Main Street, Wayne, NE 68787. Checks must be received no later than April 7.

Youth wrestling Potluck set for Monday

WAYNE—There will be a Wayne Youth Wrestling Potluck on Monday, March 27 for the families of all second through eighth grade wrestlers. This potluck will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the high school commons. A short program will follow the meal. For more details contact coach Murtaugh at 375-2750.

Summer sign-up for Rec activities slated

WAYNE—Pre-registration days for all summer activities (swimming, baseball, softball, golf, tennis, and park recreation) will be held at the City Auditorium on Saturday, April 15 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Participation fees and payments must be paid prior to participation. For more information, stop at the City Rec Office in the northwest corner of the Auditorium or call 375-4803.

7-6 sluggers to host N. Dakota

Wayne State's baseball team dropped a 10-5 decision at UNO on Tuesday which left the 'Cats at 7-6 on the season.

The game was tied at five in the sixth inning before UNO's Jeremy Clark blasted a grand slam home run.

Chad Walker was tagged with the pitching loss with Adam Walkenhorst and Josh Stolpe each seeing action from the mound.

WSC was out-hit by an 11-8 margin with Rob Watt doubling and singling to lead WSC while Andy Schultz singled twice.

Eric Fitch also smacked a double with Joel Tremblay, Joe Hartman and Mike Blohm notching base hits.

WSC defeated Quincy College, 9-4 at the Central Missouri State rain shortened tournament.

The 'Cats sent 13 batters to the plate in the ninth inning and scored seven runs to break the two-all tie.

Andy Schultz hit a two-run triple to break the tie with Joe Hartman notching a two-run single and Joel Tremblay, a two-run double, all in the same inning.

Brady Borner earned the win to improve his season record to 3-1. Borner struck out eight and walked four while scattering seven hits.

Both teams finished with nine total hits with Joel Tremblay and David Muryn each netting a double and single to pace WSC.

Andy Schultz singled twice with Joey Baldwin, Rob Watt and Joe Hartman each notching one base hit.

WSC will host North Dakota in double headers on Saturday and Sunday with action beginning at noon both days.

Dr. Stearns to share positive message with high school students, educators

Dr. Sheila Stearns, president of Wayne State College, will be speaking to an audience of high school students, educators and counselors in Newcastle on March 28 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. Dr. Stearns will meet with juniors and seniors at 1 p.m.

"I will be sharing a message on leadership and exploring education possibilities in the new century. I look forward to meeting the bright young individuals who attend school in Newcastle and the leaders who make a difference in their education and their community," Stearns said.

Stearns became Wayne State College's 10th president on July 1, 1999. She was inaugurated Oct. 29, 1999 during a campus-wide celebration.

She was born in Fort Snelling, Minn. and attended school in Glendive, a small agricultural community in eastern Montana. She received her bachelor's degree in English, master of arts in history, and doctoral degree in education, all from the University of Montana. Beginning her career in education, Stearns taught English and social studies in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

From 1983-1993 she held administrative positions for the University of Montana in Missoula, including the position of vice president for University Relations. In 1993 Stearns became Chancellor of Western Montana College in Dillon, the position that she held until coming to Wayne State College.

Stearns and her husband Hal have two children. Hal is a Brigadier General in the Army National Guard and a long-time history teacher and speaker.

It's been a strange week for western Cass county. It was kind of like what took place in the western part of the state last month.

I arrived home at 6 p.m. on Tuesday. Mike was watching the news. Someone had robbed a bank in Lincoln, and two people near Greenwood had been shot. Greenwood is 10 miles west of us.

Just then, the young man who had stayed with us while doing construction walked in. Yes, our back door was unlocked, and he rang the bell first. He was just in the area, so we had a good visit. He left about 7:00. We ate supper.

Then, our kids began calling to tell us to lock our doors. There were TV new spots saying they were searching South Bend, four miles away, and Louisville, seven miles. Then, I got nervous.

At first, I turned out lights so I could see outside. Then, I turned them all on. We don't own a gun, never have. I was wishing for a big dog.

Finally, at the 10 o'clock news, they announced finding the cass county plates of the stolen pickup in Rock Port, Mo. We reasoned they were headed to Kansas City, and went to bed. And, actually, slept fairly well.

In the morning, we discovered the burned out vehicle was in Crescent, Iowa. That still seemed far away to me, and went to work. And discussed it, of course.

In fact, an early phone call told us that a young man who lives just south of us insists he met the silver pickup traveling at a high rate of speed. I wondered if that was about the time I had stopped for gas on highway 50.

After Lenten services that evening, we had coffee and dessert in the church. And, of course, the conversation centered on the three bank robbers. I was amazed how many of my neighbors had had shot guns out and loaded.

When we got home, my sis called to tell me about the lady at South Bend who saw the pickup in her driveway, motor running, brake lights blinking on and off. She was home alone, her husband out of town, and she had her shot gun out. And couldn't get 911 to respond! I guess she finally called a neighbor, who called the State Patrol. That gave me the chills.

I fell asleep okay that night, but woke up at 3 a.m. and panicked. I had a hard time getting back to sleep, trying to imagine what I would have done in that situation.

Anyway, the two people who were shot are recuperating, although Mr. Delne has even lost an eye. And there have been arrests. It all sums up to what we don't like to admit. Rural areas are no safer than urban. Our lives could change dramatically in the blink of an eye; or "I know not what the future holds, but I know who holds the future."

Healthy jumpers

Students from District #51 spent Monday morning jumping rope as part of Jump Rope for Heart. This is the first year in recent history that the students have been involved and more than $400 was raised. The students then spent the day in Wayne touring several places. Prior to jumping, the 10 students spent more than a month studying the effects of tobacco, making posters and learning jumping styles.

Local student takes part

Amy Kemp of Wayne participated in "Expanding Your Horizons," a conference for junior high girls to increase their interest in math and science. Over 265 seventh, eighth and ninth grade girls from Nebraska and western Iowa attended the conference.

The conference was held at Dana College in Blair on March 13. This is the eighth year Dana has hosted the event.

Professional women from the Omaha-metropolitan area, representing such fields as pharmacy, engineering, accounting, chemistry and physical therapy donated their time to conduct workshops, serve on career panels, and answer the participant's questions.

NEW EMPLOYEE LUNCHROOM

The M.G. Waldbaum Company celebrated the opening of a new 10,925 square foot area on the south side of the main plant.

Employees and members of the Community Club were present to snip the ribbon. Present were Michelle Tullberg, Dean Kirkeby and Larry Archibold, both plant superintendents, Leslie Bebee and Val Bard.

The new area provides production employees with a new lunchroom and locker area which has been in use for about three weeks. There is also a conference room for department meetings new Quality Assurance (QA) officers and the micro lab has been relocated to this area. Jeff Olsufka was the coordinator of the project.

With the relocation of these rooms, the vat room area in the plant will not be renovated, according to a company spokesperson.

To celebrate the moving into the new area the company served employees omelets to all three shifts during the day last Thursday.

TREE CITY USA

Wakefield has been named a Tree City USA by the National Arbor Day Foundation. It is the tenth year Wakefield has received this national recognition.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

To become a Tree City, USA, a community must meet four standards: a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program and an Arbor Day observance.

STATE GEOGRAPHY BEE

Eric Bodlak has qualified to participate at the state level of the National Geography Bee. The bee will be held on Friday, April 7 at the University of Nebraska-Omaha in the Strauss Performing Arts Center.

Eric, a fifth grader at Wakefield, won the recent bee held at school and then took a written exam to qualify for the state event. One winner from each state and territory will advance to the national competition which will be held in May at the National Geography Society headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Eric is the son of Marvin and Carlene Bodlak.

STATE SPEECH CONTEST

Six Wakefield High School students, under the direction of coach Justin Smith, will compete in the State Speech Contest at Kearney on Friday in seven events. The Wakefield team finished second in the district contest held at Lyons on March 6.

Going to state are Todd McQuistan and Richie Dutton who placed first and second; respectively, in the humorous prose division. The pair were also first in the duet acting event.

Wakefield had another one, two placing in informative by Melissa Hansen and Jennifer Victor.

Amanda Ekberg received first place in entertainment speaking and Annie Bierbower was second in persuasive speaking.

Receiving superior ratings at the District Contest were Josh Henderson, Tim Bendt and Kassi Anderson. Others taking part were Jessica Moody, Andrea Lueth, Ty Nixon, Nick White, Kim Hattig, Nicole Hansen and Kayla Erwin.

The state contest will be held on the campus of the University of Nebraska-Kearney.

COMPETE IN STATE EVENT

Nebraska Women's State Bowling Tournament is currently going on at Grand Island with a theme of 'Carousin' in 2000.' A team from Wakefield competed in the tournament on March 4-5, the third week of the event.

Participating were Shirley Dicus, Shar Bonnema, Angel Hilsinger, Marian Keagle, Mary Ann Roberts and Donna Lundin.

Following that weekend's competition Marian Keagle and Mary Ann Roberts were in first place in the doubles and Mary Ann was also in first place in the singles event in their respective divisions of the tournament.

The ladies rolled a 1072 scratch series in the doubles and Roberts tossed a 557 scratch series in the singles.

Roberts reviewed patches for 125 pins over her series average; for bowling 75 pins over her average, and patches for 206 and 205 games.

Keagle earned patches for lines of 211 and 207. She rolled a 597 series in the doubles event.

The Women's State Tournament ends in May. It was announced that next year's event will be hosted in Kearney.

STUDY AT GI CLINIC

University of Nebraska Medical Center students are working with health professionals across Nebraska as part of their health care education requirements.

Maria Eaton, a third year medical student, has been assigned to work and study at the Grand Island Clinic in pediatrics from May 1 through June 23. Maria is a Wakefield graduate and the daughter of Paul and Janelle Eaton.

The student rotations are part of the Medical Center's Rural Health Education Network (RHEN) an innovative program developed to help address the shortage of health professionals in rural Nebraska.

The purpose of the program is to change how and where primary care students are educated. Students are exposed to a rural health setting with the idea that if students received their training in a rural area, the chances are much greater that they will return to a rural area once their training is complete.

RETIREES

The Wakefield Health Care Center recently honored Willie Gustafson upon her retirement. Mrs. Gustafson has been associated with the Wakefield Health Care Center since Oct. 1, 1980.

She began her work there as a Certified Staff member (CSM) Late in 1992 she also began working in the laundry department along with her nursing duties. In 1994, Mrs. Gustafson retired from her nursing tasks and only worked part time in the laundry department.

GRANDDAUGHTER BAPTIZED

Kaitlin Victoria Wagner, daughter of Brian and Vickie Wagner of Omaha was baptized Sunday, March 12 at the Lutheran Church of the Master. Rev. Kip Tyler, former Salem pastor, officiated.

Her sponsors were Vahn Thomsen of Wakefield and Becky Wagner of Ankeny, Iowa.

Dinner followed at the Wagner home. Along with the parents and sponsors, those attending were grandparents Ken and Denise Thomsen, of Wakefield and Darel and Joyce Wagner of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and great-grandparents Cletus and Helen Huegel of Ceresco, Iowa.

Reader reward given

The Accelerated Reader reward for the third quarter for the Wayne Middle School fifth grade included the group getting to make pizzas at Godfathers in Wayne. Another example of encouraging children to read is the 'Idlita-read' (after the Idlita-rod dog sled race). The Idlita-read event was recently held at the school. The dog sled race is 1,049 miles so the children were to attempt to read half that amount in minutes of book reading to beat their chosen musher. Wayne fifth and sixth graders were involved in 'Idlita-read' and their reward for this event was getting to see movies dealing with dog sled racing. The teachers extend thanks to Godfathers and to all of the community helpers for participating in the reading programs.

Hansen spends spring break on mission project

Dordt College junior Tony Hansen, son of Daniel and Bonnie Hansen of Carroll, is one of over 200 Dordt students who are using their spring break, March 9-20, to serve on a mission team with P.L.I.A. (Putting Love Into Action).

Each year, P.L.I.A. sends groups of 12-15 Dordt students to a dozen or more work sites across the United States, from Pasadena, Calif., all the way to Washington, D.C.

Depending on the specific needs of each location, the students do general construction work, serve in soup kitchens, or do ministry outreach in inner-city neighborhoods.

Hansen is serving as a team leader in Mendenhall, Miss., where his team is working with children in an after school program, and is doing various projects at the Mendenhall Ministries Farm.

Singing around the state

Eleven Wayne Middle School students have been accepted to the "Sing Around Nebraska Honor Choir." The group attended a clinic in Columbus on Feb. 26 and later that day gave a public concert. The students were selected by audition to sing in the choir. There were five other "Sing Around Nebraska" sites in the state on the same day. The choir gives young outstanding singers a chance to sing excellent quality music in a mass choir. Those involved include, front row, left to right, Megan Kardell, Amanda Brenner, Jessica Dickey, Carly Wacker and Jessica Volk. Middle row, Corissa Arickx, Elizabeth Baier, Emily Buryanek, Kayla Hochstein and Emily Bruflat. Back row, Danielle Vesclio, Aaron Daum, Jesse Dunklau and Sean Draper. Kathryn Ley and Cheryl Kopperud are the vocal music directors.

Wayne County Red Cross receives teddy bears through 'Helping Hugs'

Tracy Mann, manager of the Target Store in Norfolk, delivered two cases of 'Helping Hugs' teddy bears to the Wayne County Red Cross for distribution in Wayne and Knox counties to children during time of disasters.

Target, in partnership with Hershey, presented 'Helping Hugs' bears to the Wayne County Red Cross for them to use when comforting kids in emergency situations. Target Stores founded the "Helping Hugs"™ program 10 years ago. Target is committed to enriching the lives of families in the communities they serve.

Research has shown that children are affected by stress in emergency situations just as much as adults but while the adults are busy dealing with the emergency, children's fears are often overlooked. EMTs and American Red Cross disaster response workers have found that providing a plush animal helps calm the fears of a child involved in a fire, natural disaster, an auto accident or other traumatic situations.

Since their first donation in 1991, Target, with the help of Hershey, has given nearly 900,000 'Helping Hugs' plush bears to Red Cross chapters and EMTs nationwide. They have seen firsthand what a powerful calming effect these cuddly teddy bears can have on a child facing a crisis.

There was a fire recently in the area that the Wayne Red Cross responded to. It was a single family fire where the home and all belongings were destroyed. The Red Cross provided money for meals and clothing to the family of three (they were provided shelter by a family member).

The two small children were each given a teddy bear and it was now the only personal belonging that they had! The Wayne chapter received many comments from people in the area as well as friends and relatives of the victims, that those teddy bears provided much comfort to the kids. In fact, the smallest child did not let go of that teddy bear for days after the fire.

"We certainly appreciate this wonderful program that the Target Stores implement and their generosity in sharing with our chapter here in Wayne," said Lori Carollo, Wayne Red Cross manager.

Recommendations have changed

Looking back at food guides

As long as we have had food to consume, there has been advice on what and how much to eat. Yet, science-based recommendations on what foods to eat began only about a century ago.

As we enter the new century, let's take a look back at the changes in dietary recommendations that brought us to the guidance we know today.

Dietary tools for consumers include dietary recommendations or guidance aimed at assisting the public formulate lifestyle and dietary choices to promote health and prevent disease. Additionally, food guides such as the Food Guide Pyramid assist consumers in selecting foods to be included in a healthful diet and lifestyle.

In 1894, the food composition tables and dietary standards for Americans were created. While there was still much to be discovered in terms of diet and health, the scientific basis for intake of various foods, dietary intake and health was created. Even at this time, the present day themes of balance, variety and moderation were noted.

Food guides — frameworks to help people choose which foods to eat and in what quantities in order to achieve a healthful diet — did not appear in USDA publications until 1916.

The person most frequently credited with creating the first guide is Caroline Hunt, a nutrition specialist in USDA's Bureau of Home Economics.

In the USDA guide, foods were divided into five categories: milk and meat; cereals, vegetables and fruit; fats and fat foods; and sugars and sugary foods.

Her rationale for grouping these foods together was based on what was then known about nutrition science.

How to Select Food was the first daily food guide targeted to the general population (1917), followed in 1921 with one that was targeted to the average size family (which was five) and noted the amount of food to purchase each week.

The Depression in the 1930's ushered in new guidelines responding to food and resource scarcity. A USDA food economist, Hazel Stiebeling, developed a guide to help families shop for food. It consisted of family food plans and included 12 major food groups. Stiebeling emphasized a balance between "protective" (nutrient dense foods, including milk for calcium) and "high-energy" foods (including fats). Today, research continues for the development of guidelines that provide healthful eating advice at different cost levels.

Another major historical event that influenced food guides was World War II. The Basic Seven debuted in 1943 and green and yellow vegetables; oranges, tomatoes and grapefruit; potatoes, other vegetables and fruits; milk and dairy products; meat, poultry, fish, eggs and dried peas and beans; bread, flour and cereals; and butter and fortified margarine. To prepare for limited amounts of certain foods during the war, this guide focused on alternative food choices rather than number of servings per food group. The Basic Seven was used for many years, but the lack of specificity regarding serving sizes called for a revision.

Seven food groups were reduced to four when the USDA introduced the Basic Four in 1956. It was intended to meet only a portion of caloric needs for individuals and it was assumed that people would eat more than what was recommended in order to be satisfied. There was also little information on fat and sugar intake or on appropriate caloric intake.

The U.S. Senate issued Dietary Goals for the United States in 1977 and were a focus of controversy among nutrition and health professionals. Because diets to meet the Goals were so different from usual food patterns and a recommendation for protein was not apparent, the USDA did not adopt them. However, the Senate's report and dietary recommendations drew attention to the need for the federal government to take responsibility for providing dietary guidance to the public.

The USDA's Hassle-Free Guide replaced the Basic Four in 1979 and added to the foundation diet a fifth group — fats, sweets and alcohol. This food guide was distinct because it gave special attention to calories and dietary fiber, and highlighted the need to consume a moderate amount of fats, sugars and alcohol.

In order to provide authoritative and consistent dietary advice, the USDA teamed up with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in 1980 to issue the first edition of the Dietary Guidelines for Americans. The Guidelines were based on the most up-to-date science available on diet and health, and have subsequently been updated in 1985, 1990 and 1995. A fifth edition will be released in 2000 and future editions will reflect new science and benefits of a healthful and enjoyable diet.

As we reflect on the importance of nutrition in our diet and the recommendations that have been made, remember that fitness is an important part of health.

March is National Nutrition Month. The 2000 slogan, "Food and Fitness: Health for a Lifetime" reinforces the importance of nutrition as a key component of a healthful lifestyle, but the campaign also emphasizes the role of physical activity as part of a healthy lifestyle. Speaker series to be held in Concord

The Concord Evangelical Free Church in Concord will be sponsoring a speaker series featuring Al Magnuson beginning on Sunday, March 26.

On Sunday, Magnuson will be speaking at the 10:30 a.m. service and at the 7 p.m. evening service.

He will also share his experiences during services on Monday, March 27 and Tuesday, March 28. Services begin each night at 7:30 p.m. and are open to the public.

Al Magnuson grew up on a cattle/wheat ranch in northeastern Colorado. He attended a rural church with his family from birth. He was honored during his senior year from a Colorado Star Farmer award from the Future Farmers of America.

However, God called Al to Christian ministry and he refused a university scholarship. Instead, he attended Grace University (then Grace Bible Institute) in Omaha. He graduated in 1967 and attended Dallas Theological Seminary for two years.

Magnuson has also traveled with an evangelism team and served as a youth pastor in Iowa and had three pastorates in Iowa and Nebraska.

He serves in the first denominational position within Baptist General Conference dedicated to ministering to those churches. In October of 1999 he administered a conference in Nebraska specifically for pastors of churches in small communities. Participants came from seven evangelical fellowships/denominations and from eight states. A second conference is being planned for 2001.

Magnuson has been married for 35 years. His wife Cheryl is a first grade school teacher in the York Public Schools. Their son, Steve, is an attorney in southern California. Their daughter, Carol Allen, is a pastor's wife in Sioux Falls, S.D. and the mother of the couple's two grandsons.

Fauneil Bennett conducts the Grace Evening Circle meeting

President Fauneil Bennett conducted the meeting of Grace Lutheran Evening Circle.

Christian Growth Leader Carol Rethwisch read "Stretch, Be All You Can Be" and the Christian Creed.

Fauneil Bennett read thank you notes from several Valentine shut-ins that were visited as was a letter from Seminary Student Stuart Rethwisch.

Lee Larson, Mission Service chairperson, reminded members of the prayer concerns for March, especially Missionary Smith in Russia suffering from back problems as well as the speaker from Bethesda that the Duo Club will be having on March 20.

Orvella Blomenkamp, Hospitality chairperson, gave a report on the number of cards sent to shut-ins in February as well as a brief report on cards sent through the years since 1988.

A Spring Workshop will be held Saturday, March 25 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Immanuel Lutheran at Laurel. Seven members indicated that they plan to attend.

The Evening Circle will be holding a Mother-Daughter Banquet on Saturday, June 10 to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Grace Evening Circle. More details will be available at a later date.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, April 11.

Mites were collected and Pastor Anderson gave the lesson from the Quarterly titled, "The New You." The evening closed with The Lord's Prayer.

Hostesses were Verna Mae Baier and Lorraine Johnson.

Altona ladies met March 3

First Trinity Altona Ladies Aid met March 3.

Clara Heinemann presented the Bible lesson, "A Fresh Perspective, Seeing through God's Eyes."

Clara Heinemann also presided at the business meeting. The LWML project for March is peanut butter and canned vegetables.

The Spring Workshop will be Saturday, March 25 at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Laurel.

Erna Greenwald was honored with the birthday song.

Following the meeting a bridal shower was held for Darlene Frevert.

Cassandra Snow of Allen was recognized for the poster she drew for the 2000 Arbor Day Poster Contest.

Snow wins first round

Cassandra Snow, a fifth grade student at Allen Consolidated Schools, in Desiree Kneiff's class, has won the first round of the 2000 Arbor Day National Poster Contest sponsored by Keebler Company and the National Arbor Day Foundation. Her poster was selected to represent the Allen Schools at the state level.

The theme of the poster contest is 'Trees are Terrific...in All Shapes and Sizes!' Cassandra's poster depicted different shaped trees and wildlife. The explanation given by Cassandra for the artwork included "Trees give animals a place to live and different trees provide different foods."

In Allen, the Arbor Day National Poster Contest is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation and David Mooter, the state coordinator. The National Arbor Day Foundation is a non-profit, membership organization dedicated to tree planting, environmental stewardship, and the celebration of Arbor Day. Marcia Rastede, instructor in Allen Schools, is also a member of the City Tree Board and assists in the Arbor Day activities.

PESTICIDE DISPOSAL PROGRAM AVAILABLE STATEWIDE

LINCOLN - Nebraskans wanting to properly dispose of unwanted pesticides can do so free of charge during a statewide pesticide collection program, which continues through the next three weeks.

"This program is a great opportunity to get rid of unusable pesticides or products which are no longer legal to use," said Merlyn Carlson, Director, Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

Pesticides, including all types of herbicides, insecticides and fungicides, will be accepted except those in pressurized containers. Items such as tires, paint and batteries will also not be accepted.

This project is made possible by grants from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Nebraska Environmental Trust, in addition to funding from the Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA).

In the past four years, this cooperative venture between NDA and NU's Cooperative Extension Division has safely disposed of more than 1.1 million pounds of waste or unwanted pesticide materials.

"This program is a true partnership between EPA, the Department of Agriculture, and the Environmental Trust," Carlson added. "The cooperative spirit surrounding this project also extends to those helping at the collection sites."

There is no cost to individuals or businesses bringing up to 1,000 pounds of product for disposal. Those with larger quantities will be charged a nominal fee of $1 per pound for each pound over 1,000.

Collection sites are open 8 a.m. to noon on the day they have agreed to accept pesticides. Remaining collection sites include:

Date	Town	Facility
April 6	Norfolk	Madison County Weed Control
April 7	Concord	NU Haskell Ag Laboratory

For more information, contact Rich Reiman at the Nebraska Department of Agriculture at (402) 471-2394 or call your local county extension service.

WINDSURFING AT WILLOW CREEK

Wayne County 4-H Public Speaking Contest held

Karissa Dorcey of Wayne and Jara Settles of Hoskins received top honors at the Wayne County 4-H Public Speaking Contest held March 20 at the Carriage House Theater in Wayne.

Twenty Wayne County 4-H'ers participated. Karissa's speech, entitled "On the Tracks to Success" earned her the trophy for top overall speech. Jara Settles' Public Service Announcement earned her the top PSA trophy and her speech received the Reserve Champion Speech honor. Tamara Schardt of Wayne received Reserve Champion PSA.

The Public Speaking Contest is designed to provide an opportunity for 4-H youth to gain experience and confidence in speaking before an audience.

Northeast District counties are allowed to enter senior, intermediate and junior participants in the District Public Speaking Contest to be held on April 29 in Norfolk.

The Wayne County qualifiers in the Senior division speech category are Karissa Dorcey and Lisa Miller, both of Wayne. Katie Osten of Carroll and John Temme of Wayne qualified with their speeches in the intermediate division. Jara Settles of Hoskins and Kaitlyn Braithwait of Norfolk are eligible for further competition in the junior division.

The Novice Division of the county contest allows eight and nine year olds to read a poem or story about any topic they choose. In this year's contest, there were six entries. Placings were Purple: Samantha Dunklau, Brett Dorcey, Derick Dorcey, Marisa Austin, and Lucas Ruwe. Blue: Lisa Temme.

The Junior Division is for 10 and 11 year olds who wish to deliver a speech they have written about 4-H. Placings for the five contestants were: Purple: Jara Settles, Jesse Dunklau, Elizabeth Baier, Emilie Osten, and Kaitlyn Braithwait.

Placings in the Intermediate Division, consisting of members ages 12 and 13 were: Blue: John Temme and Katie Osten.

Senior division placings for 4-H'ers age 14 and older were: Purple: Karissa Dorcey, Lisa Miller and Ann Temme.

4-H'ers were also able to compete in a second area of public speaking in the Public Service Announcement division.

Public Service Announcements were added to the contest to encourage youth to begin developing broader communication skills. The objective is to enable them to write and deliver a message which conveys a complete thought in 30 or 60 seconds. This is a reality in personal communication as well as in broadcasting.

There were five participants in the Public Service Announcements division. Tamara Schardt will go on to compete at the District level in the senior division. Tamara earned a purple ribbon. Jara Settles and Derek Schardt will represent Wayne County in the junior division. Jara and Derek both received purple ribbons and Sandra Miller a blue ribbon. Dacia Ganseboom received a blue ribbon for her PSA in the Novice division.

Each participant was provided a ice cream coupon from Dairy Queen.

Judges for the event were Mark Ahmann and Kati Chromy, both of Wayne.

Dixon County Speakers do well in contest

Sixteen 4-H'ers in Dixon County participated in the 4-H Public Speaking Contest which was held on Monday, March 13 at the Haskell Agriculture Laboratory near Concord, NE. The 4-H speaking contest gives 4-H'ers the ability to develop their speaking skills and also share their 4-H learning experiences with others.

Those participating in the event were awarded the following ribbons:

NOVICE DIVISION- included those 4-H'ers who are 8-9 years of age. Purple ribbon: Whitney Smith of Allen with her speech entitled "And to Think I saw it on Mulberry Street", Ben Vanderheiden of Laurel, his speech was entitled "Golf is a Lifetime Sport", and Kristina Lunz of Wakefield recited a poem entitled "Oh Teddy Bear".

JUNIOR DIVISION- included 4-H'ers 10-11 years old. Purple ribbons: Ali Thompson, Becky Hoelsing, and Ashley Maxon of Laurel. Ali's speech was entitled "Quick Read", Becky gave her speech on "I'm not a Hitchhiker I'm a 4-H'er", and Ashley's speech was entitled "Why I joined 4-H".

Blue ribbons were earned by Clint Luhr of Wakefield with a speech entitled "Changes in Me." Anne Langhorst of Willis presented a speech, "My Fair Cat."

INTERMEDIATE DIVISION included 4-H'ers 12 and 13 years of age. Purple ribbons went to Carla Rastede, Kelli Rastede and Codi Isom, all of Allen. Carla's speech was entitled "Mastering the Mystery of Muffin Making." Kelli's speech was entitled "If It Wasn't for 4-H..." and Codi's speech was on "My Goat Doesn't Bite."

In the Public Service Announcement Division, there were six participants, all who gave 30 second PSAs.

Receiving purple ribbons were Kelly Rastede of Allen; Heather

Bearnes of Laurel; Stephan Garland of Ponca and Doug Langhorst of Jackson.

Blue ribbons were given to Ben Vanderheiden and Ashley Maxon, both of Laurel.

Each county is eligible to send two 4-H'ers from the Junior, Intermediate and Senior age divisions in both the Public Speaking Category and the Public Service Announcement Category to the Northeast District Contest on Saturday, April 29 at the Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk.

Representing the Junior Division are Becky Hoelsing, daughter of Dan and Jill Hoelsing of Laurel and Ashley Maxon, daughter of Glen and Nancy Maxon of Laurel.

In the intermediate division, Kelli and Carol Rastede, daughters of Allan and Marcia Rastede of Allen will be the representatives.

In the PSA category, junior division representatives are Stephan Garland, son of Mark and Dia Garland of Ponca and Heather Bearnes, daughter of Tim and Deb Bearnes of Laurel. Intermediate division representatives are Kelli Rastede, daughter of Allan and Marcia Rastede of Allen and Doug Langhorst, son of James and Rita Langhorst of Jackson.

THANK YOU

Thank you to our family, our church family, former neighbors through the years on the farm, and neighbors, friends and relatives far and near for the many kindnesses shown us for our 50th anniversary. We were overwhelmed with the number of cards, well wishes and phone calls. All the gifts and flowers were so nice. The food brought in was delicious. Kids and Grandkids — you are the greatest! Thanks so much for the card shower. The music for the church service was wonderful. Thanks for the dinner and the brief get-together at our house after church. Thanks Carm and Dennis. We Love You All! Bud and Donna

I want to thank everyone that sent flowers, cards and those who visited and phone calls and while I was hospitalized at Providence Medical Center, Mercy Hospital in Sioux City and University of Iowa. First a very special thank you to Dr. Martin and the nurses at Providence for the wonderful care. Also thank you to Sister Gertrude. I am most thankful for everyone remembering me in prayers. Thanks to Rev. Jeff Anderson and Rev. Bahn. Thanks to the rescue helicopter people in 5 C. All my love and thanks to my husband, my two sons and my daughters-in-law, granddaughters who all came to Iowa City for me. I especially thank God for being with me and bringing me through the critical surgery. Love and thanks to all my friends and family and may God bless all.
Evelyn Henschke

To ALL who helped in any way — the words "Thank You" can not adequately describe the appreciation we feel for your kindness and support since the death of our mother, grandmother, great grandmother, Lucille Wert. We're so grateful for your prayers, visits, hugs, phone calls, cards, flowers, memorials and assistance. Your care and concern for all of us made it easier to say goodbye for now, to a very special lady in our lives. God bless all of you.

MUSICAL TO OPEN

The Allen Music department is proud to announce this year's musical will be 'The Wizard of Oz,' the Royal Shakespeare version which is based on the movie.

The cast members are as follows: Dorothy-Stacey Martinson & Danielle Bertrand; the Scarecrow-Andrea Swetnam; the Tinman-Kyle Oswald; the Lion-Shannon Klemme; Oz-Brett Keitges; Glenda (the good witch)-Rachel Stallbaum; the Wicked Witch-Kristin Hansen; Auntie Em-Shannon Koester; Uncle Henry-Tim O'Quinn; the munchkins-3rd, 4th, & 5th graders; and the Ozians-High School Chorus.

'The Wizard of Oz' will open for its matinee performance Wednesday, March 29 at 1 pm.

On Thursday, March 30 the program is at 8 p.m. On Friday, March 31 the program is at 7:30 pm, and the final performance will be Saturday, April 1 at 7:30 pm.

Very few class D or C schools can boast of a Music Department strong enough to do a project this big and involved. Only with your continued support can we offer musical treats like this.

The members guarantee the same excellent-quality performance that the Allen Music Department has become renowned for. Adults and children alike are assured an enjoyable and memorable evening. Please come out and support their production of 'Oz.' Admission is $3.00 for students and $5.00 for adults.

ALLEN'S SMOKER

The Allen Fire Department is holding its Annual Smoker Saturday, March 25 from 6 pm until 1 am. Tickets are a $5 donation which entitles you to a chance to win a Remington 870 shot gun. A ticket also includes the meal where they are serving Pork Sandwiches. AAL Branch #2796 will match funds.

CLASSIC CLUB

On Friday, March 31, Classic Club members are invited to take a trip to WinnaVegas casino and Eppley Auditorium in Sioux City. Reservations needed to be in by February 9. The afternoon will begin at WinnaVegas for a few hours of fun and includes buffet lunch at 5 pm. The group will then go on to Eppley Auditorium for the 7 pm performance of the Hughes Brothers. The five Hughes Brothers perform regularly in Branson and are presently on tour to share their lively blend of music and comedy.

They sing rich harmonies, dance all styles and guarantee laughter with their comedy. Some of the members saw the show on their trip to Branson, but for some it will be a new experience. It promises great entertainment for all!

9 PATCH QUILTERS

Nine Patch Quilters met at the Senior Center on March 6. Plans were made for the Senior Center Quilt for 2000.

The next meeting will be April 3 at 7:30 pm at the Senior Center. Bring a quilt gadget hint or tip for roll call. Background prices and patterns for the Senior Center quilt will be distributed. Visitors and new members are always welcome.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary met on March 13 at the Senior Center. Plans were made to send poppies to Fort McPherson and cookies to the veteran's home for District Convention. Donna Stalling and Pearl Snyder will attend the convention in South Sioux on March 18th.

The Auxiliary will have a grocery raffle at the Pancake Breakfast on March 19. Members are to leave raffle items at the Cash Store.

The ladies who judged the essay contest for the Martinsburg VFW received a nice thank you.

The next meeting will be April 10. Hostesses are, Wanda Novak and Amy Magnuson.

NEW GRANDCHILD

John and Sue Stapleton are the new parents of a baby girl. She was born March 10 in Grand Island. Natalie Marie weighed 8 lbs. 1 oz. and was 20" long.

She joins a brother, Derek who is 4 years old. Grandparents are Lois and the late Matt Stapleton of Allen. Send congratulations to 5012 Ft. Kearney Road, Grand Island, NE 68801.

TRACK TEAMS TAKE PART IN MEET

The Allen Girls Track team placed second. The Allen girls and boys track teams took part in the Wayne State College Indoor Meet Friday, March 17.

Out of 11 schools, Allen girls placed 2nd with 92 points. First place went to Newcastle with 120 points.

Coach Hingst's comments: "It was a real team effort as everyone on the team placed. Everyone worked hard whether they were in their favorite event or in the event that the team needed them to be. Alicia Liebsch was unable to run due to injury and everyone had to adjust. They had a goal and they did a great job of achieving that goal. I was very proud of their efforts. They have worked hard."

Osmond couple heads north to adventure in Alaska

By Duane Weber
for the Osmond Republican

(Editor's Note: Duane and Mary Jane Weber are former publishers of the Osmond Republican. They are now full-time RV-ers, and spent much of last summer in Alaska, part of the time serving as park hosts. Duane shares highlights of their Alaska visit in this, the first of a two-part travelogue.)

In the summer of 1998, while volunteering as camp hosts at Hidden Village RV Park near Lynden, Wa., Mary Jane and I decided to spend the next summer in Alaska.

I had wanted to go to Alaska for a long time, and at one time while in the Army I had the opportunity to go to Alaska or Hawaii. Mary Jane out-voted me on that one — we went to Hawaii. Now, some 30 years later, I was getting closer to the long awaited venture.

During the ensuing year, we planned for the big trip. Hidden Village was a great place to do this, because many of our guests were either going to or returning from Alaska. One couple — staying at Lynden for the entire summer — had lived in Palmer, Ak., for a number of years and still owned a house there.

All were a great source of information and eager to share their plans or experiences. We were also able to make reservations at Bellingham, Wa., for our return trip on the Alaska Marine Highway ferries from Haines to Prince Rupert, British Columbia. Later, through some friends who had been to Alaska the previous summer, arrangements were made to volunteer as hosts at an Alaska state park in Fairbanks for 30 days.

For our trip to Alaska, we parked our full-time home — a 40-foot fifth-wheel coach — and purchased an 8-foot slide-in camper, which we loaded on our one-ton truck. This proved to be a good decision for the mountainous driving, road conditions encountered in some areas and the smaller campsites at some locations. With some additions and modifications, our little camper became very comfortable and convenient.

We departed Nebraska on May 22 and began to wend our way to Alaska through the Black Hills and Badlands of South Dakota, then to North Dakota, crossing into Saskatchewan, Canada, north of Williston. It would require a book to list the many interesting places we visited along the way. Highlights in Saskatchewan included a visit through the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Academy in Regina and a tour of the Tunnels of Little Chicago in Moose Jaw, the latter reportedly a hang-out of Al Capone and others involved in "bootlegging" whiskey to the U.S. during prohibition.

Our route then took us through beautiful Banff National Park with a stop at Lake Louise, then through the Columbia Ice Fields and Jasper National Park.

The scenery in these areas, which are situated along the borders of Alberta and British Columbia and the Continental Divide, is spectacular and the wildlife viewing is great. The only snow we encountered throughout the entire trip was at Banff National Park. Snow fell lightly for several hours as numerous elk grazed in the park — a peaceful winter scene.

We continued on to Dawson Creek, B.C., where the Alaska Highway begins. It ends some 1,422 miles later at Delta Junction in Alaska. There is a visitors' center in Dawson Creek where movies are shown and excellent information regarding the construction of the Alaska Highway is provided. A handout is available at this stop, which warns of construction areas and delays on the highway and where gas may be obtained.

The highway was constructed during WWII as an overland route to develop and supply strategic defense locations in Alaska. The project was accomplished through an agreement with the Canadian government and was built by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and civilian contractors. The highway is considered a significant engineering feat through some of the most difficult terrain, requiring building a roadbed over areas of permafrost, through forests and over many rivers and streams. For the most part, the highway follows the original route. In some areas it has been straightened or rerouted.

Maintenance is a continuing necessity because of the permafrost, frost heaves and traffic. The Canadians now maintain the highway, per the agreement, for the most part, since there are less than 200 miles of the highway in Alaska. The highway is generally very good, but with some bad areas in construction zones. Since there are no other detour routes, traffic must travel through these work areas. With reasonable caution and common sense, travel was very good.

Campgrounds and accommodations are plentiful along the highway, and the scenery is spectacular. Recreational vehicles by the thousands travel the highway each summer. It is particularly enjoyable because, as you travel the route, you continue to meet many of the same people along the highway and in campgrounds, developing a camaraderie and friendships along the way.

We continued into the Yukon Territory and Whitehorse where we attended the stage production, "Frañtic Follies," an entertaining "spoof" on the gold rush days.

Gold was a very important part of the early development and settlement of nearly all of the communities along the highway. At Whitehorse, we left the Alaska Highway and traveled over the Top of the World Highway, which swings up to the northwest, and follows the top of Dawson Range to Dawson City.

Dawson City was very interesting and must look much like it did during the Klondike Gold Rush on the Yukon River. Situated on the banks of the Yukon River, it has dirt streets and boardwalks and is very rustic and nostalgic.

"Gertie's," a gambling house saloon, also presents a stage show based on the gold rush days. During our stay in Dawson City, the Commissioners' Ball took place with the attendees attired in their best 1890s finery, complete with colorfully dressed "dance hall girls."

The cabins of Robert Service and Jack London are in Dawson City and are well-preserved. Both resided there during the gold rush days and wrote extensively about life and times of the area and era — Service in poetry, while London wrote several novels and short stories.

Here we also toured the No. 4 bucketline dredge that was used to clean gold from the bed of Bonanza Creek. The huge dredge traveled up and down the creek on a pond of water, which it created as it dredged huge quantities of soil and rocks to be processed through the internal workings of the dredge to sift out the heavier gold. This type of mining is known as placer mining as compared to the hard rock mines in the Anchorage and southeastern parts of Alaska where gold veins are held in hard rock rather than flakes and nuggets of the placer mines of the northern areas. The original gold miners hand-dug shafts down through the permafrost during the winter by burning fires in the holes and then excavating the loosened material with shovels and buckets. The material was stockpiled during the winter and then panned or processed through a sluice when the creeks thawed in the spring to provide the necessary water.

We crossed the Yukon River at Dawson City on a free ferry and continued on the Top of the World Highway to the U.S.-Canadian border at a remote crossing near the continental divide where the elevation is 4,127 feet. In Alaska, the road known as Taylor Highway changed from hard-surface to gravel. The road was generally good, but made for slow traveling and its dirty.

We stopped at the community of Chicken (population 14) and then continued on to Tok. Along the route, the windrows of tailings were evidence of the gold dredges that had also moved through this area. Upon arrival in Tok, our rig was very dirty as were all other rigs coming into the town on the Alaska Highway. The first order of business was to don shorts since the weather was very warm. The second order of business for most RVers was to clean their rigs at one of the many vehicle wash racks at the RV parks and in Tok.

The following day we drove on to Delta Junction and the end of the Alaska Highway. The drive was beautiful with the snow-capped Alaska Range in the distance.

Rika's Roadhouse along the Tanana River was our next stop. This was a very important way station for the early gold miners and travelers. A ferry operated here in the early days, before a bridge was built across the river.

The Webers visited many interesting sites on their journey to the North. This picture depicts downtown Dawson city in the Yukon Territory.

Now a long bridge and the Alaska pipeline cross near the roadhouse. The two-story log road house and outbuildings are very picturesque and well-maintained. The U.S. Army Signal Corps operated a station here for a number of years until replaced by radio communication. The Army facilities are still present and maintained for visitors to view.

We arrived in Fairbanks June 10 and checked out Chena River State Recreation Site on the banks of the Chena River. The campground in the heart of the city is a popular facility. This would be our base until July 15 when we began our travels through Alaska to the south and east.

(Travelogue will be concluded in next issue of Leisure Times.)

VA Greater Nebraska health care system to be in Hartington April 3-4

HARTINGTON — Area Veterans will soon have an opportunity to attend a special health care clinic.

The VA Health Care Systems, Grand Island, Lincoln, and Omaha invite area veterans to attend a wellness clinic at The VFW CLUB, 126 East Main Street, Hartington.

The clinic will be held on April 3, 2000, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and April 4, 2000 from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The clinic will offer special health-screening services, pneumonia and tetanus shots, wellness education, and information on veterans' benefits.

The clinic is "free" to any veteran. No appointments are required.

The Veterans' Administration is encouraging all veterans to enroll for health care services.

Enrollment will help the VA plan more effectively to meet future health care needs, and will also help VA provide better preventive care.

To enroll, you may stop by the Screening Clinic and pick up an enrollment packet, or you may contact the VA office and a packet will be mailed out to interested people.

Hartington residents will risk jail for fund-raiser

HARTINGTON — The American Heart Association and the Cardiac Arrest Parole Board Members will be sponsoring Cardiac Arrest on April 12 at the Hartington VFW from 11:30 a.m. to 1p.m.

The Hartington Cardiac Arrest will benefit the American Heart Association's programs of research and education. In fact, the American Heart Association will invest $510,734 in 1999-00 on valuable cardiovascular research in Nebraska.

The American Heart Association has also developed useful educational programs targeted toward all ages in order to teach them how to combat heart and blood vessel diseases.

In order to be released, the criminal will need to post a goal "bail" of $100. You raise bail by asking colleagues, friends, and neighbors for donations. As an added incentive, we will award a Cardiac Arrest sweatshirt and other prizes for the "Most Wanted" arrestee.

Upon arriving the criminal will be booked complete with an official mug shot and Cardiac Arrest t-shirt and thrown in the "slammer" to spend time with other jailbirds. A light meal will be served instead of the traditional bread and water.

Gift gives Senior Center members chance to surf the net

HARTINGTON—Hartington Senior Citizens Center members now have the chance to surf the internet, thanks to a gift from several local businesses.

The Senior Center is the recipient of the collaborative efforts of the Bank of Hartington, Hartington Telecommunications Co., and Specialized Software Services.

The Bank of Hartington recently provided funds for the purchase of a computer and printer for the Senior Center. This is their first computer and serves a dual purpose. It provides Linda Conzemius, Center manager, with the technology for computerized bookkeeping and using the Internet for researching and networking. The computer will also be shared with the seniors for educational purposes, learning how to use a computer, learning different computer programs and how to access the internet.

Hartington Telecommunications Company is providing a phone line and Internet access for this endeavor and Specialized Computer Software Services, Dick Steffen, is providing the computer expertise to train Conzemius and the seniors.

"The Senior Center really appreciates the opportunity for the technological advancement of a computer, which would not have been possible without the assistance and collaborative efforts of these three businesses," said Conzemius.

Hartington Economic Development Coordinator, Carla Becker, has been helping the Senior Center in their efforts to improve their facility and was instrumental in coordinating the computer acquisition, as well as with the collaborative efforts. "It's rewarding when an environment can be created to provide growth and technological advances for all ages and multi-purposes," said Becker. "The benefits of these efforts speaks immensely of the giving and quality of our community."

Team work is secret to Laurel couple's wood working success

BY MARY ANN WARD
LAUREL ADVOCATE

LAUREL — Upon entering Mildred and Verlin Jensen's home, it's obvious they have used their talents to furnish and decorate.

Looking around, there are mantle clocks, wall clocks and grandfather clocks; shelves, jewelry boxes, wooden cases and rocking horses. A glass enclosed curio cabinet holds Mildred's angel collection and a quilt rack displays some of her handy work. These items are but a sample of Verlin's woodworking.

When Verlin retired in 1978, he had more time to spend on his hobbies, woodworking and tinkering with lawnmowers. But he started making toys when he was asked to repair a wooden rocking horse. While he had it apart, he took a pattern from it, and the rest is history. Since then, he has made many rocking horses plus wooden puzzles, wooden trucks and trains, and even birdhouses.

In the last few years, he and Mildred have been working together on woodworking projects, because Verlin has had problems with his eyesight. She cuts the wooden components and he puts the items together, sands and finishes them. They are currently making dust pans by attaching license plates to wooden handles, and birdhouses by putting a license plate roof on a wooden base.

Mildred has also done woodburning on some of Verlin's projects, but she also has hobbies of her own, and they can be seen around their home too.

She became interested in crocheting when she attended a craft class. Her daughter, Sally attended the same class and encouraged her mother to look for new patterns and begin making doilies, tablecloths, etc. She followed Sally's urging and that is how she began the hobby that has allowed her to make and give hand made items to family and friends.

Mildred said that she does read a pattern but much of her work is done by looking at a design and then replicating it, Verlin said. "She can sit and watch TV and crochet at the same time without hardly looking at what she is doing." And, she prolific!

She has crocheted seven tablecloths of various sizes and shapes, including one for each of her daughters. Grandchildren have been recipients of baby afghans of which she has made twelve. Flower girl baskets are also items that she has been asked to make, and she also crochets doilies, dolls, afghans, and pillow case edgings.

Mildred has also embroidered many pillow cases and two quilt tops.

Besides their hobbies, the Jensens have also been involved in their church and community. In fact, Verlin has been a member of the Lions Club for almost fifty years. During that time has served as president, vice president and most recently, treasurer. Because of Verlin's eyesight problems, Mildred now helps with the treasurer's duties.

Mildred and Verlin Jensen display some of the many handcrafted items they've made over the years. Teamwork has been the secret to the Jensens' success over the years.

After visiting with the Jensens it is obvious that they are enjoying their retirement and are supportive of each other's interests. And—family and friends are enjoying the results of their talents!!

Bereuter warns to be wary of offers for 'free gifts'

By U.S. Rep. Doug Bereuter

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here is some good advice I'd like to pass on to you from the U.S. Postal Inspection Service:

It happens every day. Thousands of people are notified by mail that they have won a free prize. Usually, it's a postcard notice that says your prize will be one of four or five "valuable" items—a new car, a vacation, a color television, or a $1,000 savings bond. Major companies sometimes give away expensive items in special promotions, but they usually don't notify winners with a postcard. Typically, these post card notices are mailed by con artists whose sole purpose is to deceive.

If you contact the company by phone, as the postcard will tell you to do, your "free" prize could end up costing you hundreds of dollars. The following examples illustrate the point.

A man in San Mateo, California, paid $398 for "shipping charges" to receive a "free" 1988 Pontiac automobile. Needless to say, he got nothing. A Bergen County, New Jersey, resident paid a $69 "shipping and handling fee" to get his "free" $1,000 savings bond (with a maturity of 30 years). He could have bought the bond from the U.S. Government for only $50.

Often you never get a prize. If you do get one, it typically is an inferior, overpriced, or grossly misrepresented piece of merchandise. For example, an "all terrain vehicle" turned out to be a lawn chair with wheels, a "sport fishing boat" was an inflatable raft, and a "genuine fur coat" was a dyed rabbit pelt worth about $30.

Beware if the notice lists nice-sounding prizes like "designer" or "diamond" watches. They are likely to be cheap or practically worthless junk.

Further, the scam artist makes you pay for your "free" item, either by requiring you to order merchandise or by charging a shipping, handling charges, or processing fee. You can almost be certain that the fees required to get the prize will exceed the true monetary value of the prize itself.

And the merchandise you are required to buy will be grossly overpriced, as has been the case with the water filters and purifiers and the vitamins that are often marketed to the lucky "winners."

Every day, consumers throughout the U.S. lose many thousands of dollars to these unscrupulous free prize promoters. Their operations are staffed by high pressure sales people armed with sophisticated selling techniques designed to get you to send money.

Don't be swayed by their carefully scripted sales pitches and pressure tactics. Even better, arm yourself in the best possible way against falling victim to these kinds of frauds—by knowing how these con operators work and being prepared to ignore their come-ons.

If you receive a questionable mailing promising you a free prize, or if you have been victimized in a free prize promotion through the mail, contact your postmaster or the nearest Postal Inspector.

New Dollar Coin

On December 1, 1997 a bill calling for a new $1 coin was signed into law. The coin is now being placed into circulation.

The new dollar coin replaces the current Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, which has been in circulation since 1979. This new coin will be golden in color, have a smooth edge (in contrast to the reeded edge of the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin) and have a wider border than existing U.S. circulating coins. The use of a gold-colored alloy, the smooth edge and the wider border is to ensure the new dollar coin is easily distinguishable for both the sighted and the seeing impaired.

The new golden dollar features Sacagawea, the young Shoshone interpreter who from 1804 to 1806 assisted Lewis and Clark during their expedition from the northern great plains to the Pacific Ocean and back.

Sacagawea was instrumental to the success of the expedition because of her navigational, diplomatic, and translating skills. Sacagawea's image was chosen by the American people. Over the course of the last year, the U.S. Mint held public hearings on C-Span, conducted focus groups, held public coin design exhibits, posted the designs on the Internet, and requested feedback from the general public.

The Mint expects to produce at least 100 million of these new coins in 2000. There are two steps taken before coins reach the public. First, the Mint ships them to the Federal Reserve. Then, the Federal Reserve receives and fulfills orders from commercial banks which circulate them. The amount of time it takes to go from the Mint to a specific area of the country depends on the location of the nearest Federal Reserve.

The State of Nebraska is served by the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City.

This new dollar will save money for the taxpayers. The cost to manufacture the new golden dollar will be about 12 cents, providing taxpayers with a profit of 88 cents per coin. The profits will go to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury to help fund U.S. Government operations.

No taxpayer funds will be used in either the manufacture or the promotion of the new coin. All costs are funded from the Mint's earned revenue.

Making Sense of the Long Distance Telephone Market

The long distance telephone marketplace can be overwhelming. Whether you make only one or two long distance calls a month, or hundreds, a little shopping around can make a big difference in the prices you pay. The Federal Communications Commission has launched a consumer education campaign.

FCC Telecom Tips:

1. Understand your own calling patterns.
2. Ask your long distance provider about any promotions they might be running.
3. Phone companies each have different restrictions and offerings.
4. Ask if there are monthly, minimum or per-call fees in addition to the per minute rates.

Tell your husband to move.

Send him out for a walk or a bike ride. Ask him to mow the lawn. Anything that gets him off the couch and into the habit of regular activity will help reduce his risk factors for heart disease. (And that goes for you too!) To learn more, call us at 1-800-AHA-USA1. Or visit us at <http://www.amhrt.org> on the World Wide Web.

Nursing home residents share opinions of presidents as primary election nears

This spotlight is a regular feature in the Leisure Times—fingernail sketches and pictures of residents at Pender Care Centre. Here's a look at four residents and who they thought was the most influential president.

--A temporary resident of Pender Care Centre, John McGovern, was born Jan. 30, 1928 in Omaha. He was a long-time resident of the Beatrice State Home. The past 38 years, John has been feeding and taking care of horses on a farm near Homer. "I love it. A horse is just like a kid to me," he said. At age 72, John enjoys playing horseshoes, the harmonica and taking care of his cats. "I love to feed my cats," he said. "I have 12 of them." He entered the Pender nursing home last month after he broke his hip leading a horse into its barn. Although John was just a young child when Herbert Hoover was president, he feels the most influential president was Abraham Lincoln. "I think he was the greatest president; I really do. He was the first Republican, and he turned the slaves free," the PCC resident said.

--Margaret Anderson was born May 20, 1908 in Oklahoma. When she was seven years old, her parents and two sisters moved to Nebraska. Margaret, 91 years old, taught for many years before she married Floyd "Flink" Anderson in 1932 at Bancroft. She says that area residents never knew her husband by his real name, they just always called him Flink. After her marriage, she continued teaching at a rural school near Bancroft for almost five years and then began teaching kindergarten at Rosalie, a position she would hold for the next 21 years. However, she was forced to retire because in those days a federal law existed which stated that when teachers turned 65 years old they had to retire. Margaret's husband worked as a farmer and then at a filling station east of Rosalie. He died May 14, 1979. Margaret has been a resident of Pender Care Centre since April 1997. Her oldest sister, Ellen, died four years ago in Falls City. Ruth, the middle child, is living at a nursing home in Falls City. In her spare time, Margaret enjoys crocheting, knitting and quilting. She believes the most influential president was John F. Kennedy. "He was young and a great mixer with all people," she said. "He treated everybody the same and was just an all-around good person."

--Born in Bancroft, Alice Brummond and her family moved to Oakland when she was a young child. Her family consisted of her parents, herself and two sisters. Alice's husband, Alfred, was a farmer. Most of Alice's life was spent helping her husband on the farm and working as a housekeeper in the area. She continued working until 1991, when her husband died. When not busy listening to music or talking with other residents, Alice, 86 years old, likes to watch television and play bingo. She came to Pender Care Centre in November 1993. When it comes to a great president, Alice's answer was the same as Margaret's: John F. Kennedy. "I liked Kennedy. I thought he spoke the truth. I liked everything about him," she said.

--Pender native Bill Schroeder, 94, was born and raised on a farm west of Pender. He spent a majority of his life working as a farmer in the area. In 1943, he enlisted in the Army Air Corps, serving for three years. He then married and moved to California, where he lived for 30 years before moving back to the Pender area. While in California, he worked on his brother's orange grove and drove truck. To pass time, Bill enjoys playing cards and watching television. He has been living at Pender Care Centre for a year. His choice for best president? He couldn't make up his mind.

Pender Care Centre Activities:

Friday, March 24: 8:30 a.m. beauty shop; 9 a.m. men's coffee; 2 p.m. Chimmers.

Saturday, March 25: 4:45 p.m. music with Carol Baker; 6 p.m. Lawrence Welk.

Sunday, March 26: 4 p.m. worship with St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Monday, March 27: 9 a.m. exercise and games; 10 a.m. Belles & Beaux; 2 p.m. movie.

Research contributes to understanding Alzheimers

(NAPSI)-One in 10 persons over age 65 and nearly half of those over 85 have Alzheimer's, a progressive degenerative disease of the brain. The disease process may begin in the brain decades before the symptoms of Alzheimer's appear. A person will live an average of 8 years and as many as 20 after symptoms appear. By the middle of the 21st century, some 14 million people in the U.S. will have Alzheimer's, unless science finds a way to prevent or cure the disease.

Recognizing the importance of continued research efforts to find the essential link to solve the enigma of Alzheimer's are the Metropolitan Life Foundation Awards for Medical Research.

The winners of the Foundation's 14th annual Awards for Medical Research in Alzheimer's disease were recently announced in Washington, D.C.

The major winner is Douglas Wallace, Ph.D, Director of the Center for Molecular Medicine at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. Dr. Wallace has been recognized by the awards committee for his pioneering research on the contribution of mitochondrial defects to neurodegenerative disease and Alzheimer's. He will receive a $50,000 personal prize and $200,000 will be awarded to his institution for continued support of his research related to Alzheimer's disease.

The second major award is shared by Larry Squire, Ph.D. Professor of Psychiatry and Neurosciences at the University of California School of Medicine and Veterans Affairs Medical Center, in San Diego, California, and Mortimer Mishkin, Ph.D., Chief, Section on Cognitive Neuroscience, Laboratory of Neuropsychology at the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Maryland. Drs. Squire and Mishkin were selected by the committee for their contributions to the understanding of memory systems in the brain. They will each receive a $25,000 personal prize and $100,000 will be awarded to each of their institutions.

"Alzheimer's disease is a tragic illness for both those people diagnosed with the disease and those family members and friends who serve as caregivers," said Robert H. Benmosche, chairman and chief executive officer of MetLife. "MetLife is proud to support research efforts that may one day uncover a solution to this devastating disease."

The Metropolitan Life Foundation

Awards for Medical Research recognize those scientists whose work has significantly contributed to the understanding of Alzheimer's disease. The program represents Metropolitan Life Foundation's major initiative in scientific research. A total of $7 million has been awarded since the inception of the program in 1986. For more information, please visit the Foundation's Web site at www.metlife.org. Facts About Alzheimer's

- 4 million people in the U.S. have Alzheimer's.
- 19 million have a family member with the disease.
- One in 10 persons over age 65 and nearly half of those over 85 have Alzheimer's.
- The average lifetime cost of Alzheimer's disease, per person, is $174,000.
- The total annual cost of Alzheimer care in the United States today is at least $100 billion.

Are colas costing you?

Many experts feel that Social Security recipients continue to experience serious erosion of benefits due to a government index that does not accurately reflect their true cost-of-living. The annual Cost-of-Living Adjustment (COLA) for 2000 will be just 2.4 percent despite continuing annual increases in spending on prescription drugs and other out-of-pocket health care costs.

COLAs are determined by the annual rate of change in the Consumer Price Index (CPI). The CPI measures the changes of prices in a fixed market basket of goods and services over a period of time.

"But whose market basket is the government looking at?" asks Michael J. Zabko, Executive Director of TREA

Senior Citizens League (TSCL). Currently, the CPI to which the Social Security COLA is tied, the CPI-W, surveys the market basket of urban wage earners and clerical workers. It specifically excludes the market basket of those who receive pension income like Social Security," Zabko points out.

If the government were to index COLAs to the CPI-E, seniors would receive a COLA of 2.6 percent this year instead of 2.4 percent. The CPI-E gives greater weight to health care costs.

For more information, send a self-addressed business-size envelope and $1.00 for shipping and handling to TREA Senior Citizens League, Dept. N925, 909 N. Washington St. Suite 300 Alexandria, VA 22314.

Operettas were big events

Pender woman kept busy during summers visiting state capitol, attending area dances

Every year that Dorris Nichols taught music, she put on a big production. One that was a favorite of all the students was "The Blue Moon." Another was "The China Shop" which was spectacular. Then when she produced "The Gypsy Girl," she really went all out. Each operetta that she staged somehow involved the whole town of West Point. Sometimes it was borrowing for the stage settings, like furniture, oriental rugs, clothing or sewing costumes. Each production was performed for three nights. At the entrance to the Auditorium each family would be given a souvenir.

I learned so much from her that her influence carried through all of my life, especially in the years that I was teaching and even in the clothes that I chose.

In the summer of my junior year, Dorris asked me and my friend, Ethel Beckenhauer, to spend a week in her home in Lincoln on "A"

Street where she lived with her mother. She took us shopping and to see the sights in Lincoln like the University and the State Capitol. She cooked our Sunday dinner in a fireless cooker, which was unusual because we all went to church while supper cooked. Also during the same summer another close friend, Ina Flores, and I sold books of tickets in Blair for drawing or prizes. The event was the new bridge at Decatur over the Missouri River. We earned so much a book to make money. We worked hard at that but also enjoyed the carnival-like atmosphere and met many people.

People from other small towns came to know us because we sold chances at many different celebrations. We became familiar with many other small towns and returned to them for dances during other celebrations and fairs.

Ina and I were in Blair at a dance another time, and returning home we were involved in a car accident on the night before Easter. My right eye lid was cut and needed stitches. When we got back to West Point I called Dr. Anderson, and he came down to his office, stitched the eye, bandaged it and scolded me. I asked him not to tell my dad and he didn't. I wonder if he was ever paid.

Easter morning I got ready for 6:30 church with a bandaged eye and bruised forehead. Dad said, "What happened to you?" I told him that I fell down in the alley after I put the car away. I had not driven our car to Blair, for we had gone with a group of friends. I wonder if dad believed me. I sang in the choir at two services, and when anyone asked what happened they all heard that I fell down in the alley on cinders.

I had another method of earning money. I had an electric curling iron and several of the older girls called me to re-trace their marcel, for which I received a quarter. Their marcel (deep, soft waves in the hair made with a heated curling iron) would last another week that way. My girl friends would take care of a baby after school for a quarter.

I stopped taking lessons from Mr. Flats but still played with the town orchestra at Sunday night silent movies. Once I was watching the movie instead of watching my notes. All of a sudden I felt a whack on my head. I had been hit on the head with the teacher's violin bow! Later he said that I was there to play the violin and not watch the show. I did not receive pay for playing, nor did anyone else. It was all volunteer. And, of course, I was to benefit from this exposure to many types of music. I'm sure I learned a lot.

A little introduction to Dr. Anderson. He was our family doctor. He was also a good friend of Dad's. They both liked to shoot blue rocks. Besides this, his wife's sister was a good friend of mine. Alice Hultman was her name. She and I would go to dances together and I would stay overnight with her at Dr. Anderson's house.

If her sister, Mrs. Anderson, was entertaining a large dinner crowd at a sit-down meal, Alice and I would wait table and clean up afterward. Then I would usually stay overnight. These were special, fun times at the Andersons. We were instructed in the proper way to set the table, how to serve the people and how to remove the dishes used. We were also told how to wash sterling silver and stemmed glassware. In spite of all the information gleaned before and after a meal, it was a pleasure just doing this and being there in that big, beautiful house. Dr. and Mrs. Anderson were so kind and thoughtful that I have many pleasant memories of times with them.

After graduating from high school in the spring of 1927, a group of eight girls decided to go camping at Shademan's Lake north of West Point. It was really a part of the Elkhorn River. Our folks decided that we needed a chaperone, so we asked Mrs. Irene Stern, a sister of Mrs. Anderson, to go with us. We pitched a tent and put our cots side by side in it. It was early June and very cool. Four of us brought men's coveralls and wore them every day. Whenever we made a trip to town for food, we became odd-balls because we wore those coveralls. We ate more peanut butter, sandwich spread and lettuce sandwiches than anything else. One night several of us had dates, so the boys came, picked us up and we went dancing at a town nearby. A week of roughing it was enough, but it was fun while it lasted.

Coveralls had been unusual wearing apparel, so Alice Hultman and I thought that wearing men's white duck pants would be striking. We each bought a pair and wore them off and on until the time of the County Fair, then we wore them every day. They were very hot, especially around the waist and under a belt. People stared at us as we walked through the crowds, and we heard many remarks about girls dressing in men's clothes.

After the fair, I had to think of teaching. The rural school started the day after Labor Day and I should be ready. After graduating from Normal Training and high school in the spring, I was the first of the class to sign a contract to teach in the fall. At 17, I was so proud to accept a teaching position. The wages would be $75.00 a month!

In preparation, I visited the schoolhouse on a hot day in August, for school would commence the first week in September. The schoolhouse was square and small with one door which opened off of a cement slab into a hall or small box-like room. There were hooks along one side for coats and a bench for the water bucket, a washpan and a few lunch buckets. Beside the bench was a wooden holder for a roller towel.

Another door opened into the school room, which had six rows of desks screwed to the wide board floor. In the center of the room was a round oak stove setting on a square piece of metal. Across the front of the room was a strip of wonderful slate blackboard extending from one corner to the other. In front of the blackboard and near the south end was a teacher's sturdy desk and straight chair. The room boasted two windows on the north and two on the south (cross ventilation!). Near the back and to the north was a cupboard with many shelves from floor to ceiling. It had flowered curtains covering all of it to keep out the dust. All of the books and supplies were kept there. In winter there might be room for lunch buckets on a low shelf.

The books were shabby and antiquated, which gave me a sunken feeling in my stomach. These books were nothing like those recommended in the Normal Training class. I returned home and called the previous teacher for help. She accompanied me to school the next day, then showed me what books to use for each grade, how to make assignments and what to expect each day. Without her assistance, I would have been lost.

She also gave me a warning: "Do not ask for new books or supplies. Make do with what is here. The district has no money for use for those needs. Consider yourself lucky to be paid a salary each month."

It was astonishing as the year passed how much these students learned from the old books which were not recommended. More wonders were experienced when the eighth graders had excellent results in their County Examinations. The books used must have had the information they needed.

Early in the year, we were stressing cleanliness in Health and Hygiene classes. The textbook stated that bathing once a week was necessary, also washing heads and practicing other health habits. That brought up a problem. One family of five boys told us that they bathed in the summer when the creek was deep, but it was almost dried up now. Even so, they were asked to come to school the following Monday morning with clean heads or I would wash them. I never dreamed that would come to pass. Well, it did!

A tub full of water was waiting under the pump on Monday morning. I hoped I wouldn't have to carry out my threat. By noon, the sun had warmed the water, so five heads were washed. What a disclosure—one of the five boys was a blonde!

Oh, yes, there were repercussions. Another warning came with the school board the next morning: "You are not allowed to do things like that! The parents are very upset, and we had to come here to set you straight about what you can do!"

The next two years went well and the children learned in spite of the textbook disadvantages. They all liked school, were eager to learn and liked the teacher, who certainly liked all of them.

One noon recess while playing "Last Couple Out," a strange car chugged into the school yard. A man came over to our group and asked if the teacher was in the school house. The children shouted, "No!" Then they giggled and crowded around me and said, "This is our teacher right here." How they laughed, but the salesman didn't. He then tried to sell some of his products that he carried, but was told that no solicitors were allowed on the school grounds.

His mistake was not recognizing one of the group as the teacher might not have been a bad one. One eighth grade boy was taller than the five-foot teacher, who had shoulder-length curls and a short dress. These were the "Flapper" years.

The children played "Anti-I-Over" the cob shed. If the ball bounced in the door, someone had to retrieve it. Whoever went in came out with sandfleas also. In school, they hopped from one to another and bit. The blonde boy brought a needle. The eye of the needle was buried in a crack in his desk top with the point up. He could reach in his shirt, catch a flea and impale it on the needle very quickly.

Every Friday at 2:30 we would have Art. One thing they enjoyed was woodcarving. We used scrap wood and pocket knives, which were furnished and kept sharp by my father. Some extra special carvings came from their efforts. The best was taken to the County Fair. There were other creative ventures with paper, metal and plaster of paris.

On cold, stormy days we played learning games at noon recess or afternoon recess. The mental arithmetic game was one favorite. A captain was appointed for each side, then they chose students. Each child was given a problem at their grade level and if answered correctly would score. High score would win. This really made them think.

The other favorite was Spelldown. Again, two captains, chose sides. Words were given each child at their grade level. The side spelling the most words correctly would win. The competition was stimulating.

Learning and listening seemed to be enjoyed in those days. Storytime was a delightful time also. A chapter or two of a choice book was read to the whole school from 1:00 to 1:15 every day. As the teacher selected the book, the pupils quickly slipped their Palmer Method penmanship books out of their desks, placed them and their papers at an angle, took the right position and began to write. Time flew as they continued to write and listen. It was so quiet you could hear the dip pens scratching diligently when the reader paused. Then on to recitations and study time.

The teacher usually boarded with the Director's family during the week, but not this teacher. I broke tradition by driving a 1924 Ford sedan eight miles to school every day.

In the fall, the surrounding country was saturated with autumn colors. The sound of corn pickers hitting the bang-boards of wagons was like hearing a drum beat in four-four time. The pheasants were fighting or flying across the road or running for cover as I drove swiftly along. The drive was a revelation in itself with sights and sounds which were strangers to me.

When winter moved in, there were snowy roads to break through. The narrow tires and wheels on those old cars seemed to get through as easily as wagon wheels. The cars at that time had no heaters, but my father had rigged up a heater on the manifold and extended it to the floorboard under my feet. What a luxury! I was toasty warm all the way.

On arriving at school, usually cobs and coal had to be brought in from the shed. When the fire was burning well, it was time to prime the pump and get a bucket of water. Sometimes when the pump acted up, parents would bring water in a cream can for our daily use.

One spring morning as I was driving to school after a heavy rain, the car started to sink down on a low, muddy road just a mile and a half from school. It settled down on its running boards and stopped. My cue to go. I fastened my galoshes, shouldered the schoolbag filled with papers and my lunch and started through the mud. A meadowlark kept me company, flitting from post to post because I mimicked his song. All of the fathers and children were waiting in their wagons. Teacher was late!

When they heard where my car had bogged down, they unhooked a team and went to the rescue. We were starting recess when the team pulled the car into the school yard. The men told me that the track in the road would be solid enough to drive on by dismissal time so I could get home that evening.

Learning and liking it was surely our main objectives, which all of the pupils accomplished in the two years I remained. So many other incidents occurred, like the snakes that were brought to school, the blooming orchard created in the school room, snow angels and forts in the winter, the nature walk before school ended in the spring and May basket time one year.

This is the way it was 72 years ago, as I am now eight-nine years old.

Use Time For You

Did you know your computer could do this?

Able to leap entire continents in a single keystroke. Faster than a click of a mouse. It's a stereo. It's a movie studio. It's the home PC.

Thanks to innovative software, computing peripherals and easy-to-understand technology, the limit to computing potential today is approaching zero—except perhaps walking the dog or doing the dishes.

"As technology becomes easier to use, more people are discovering the additional benefits of owning a home computer," said Erin Nelson, senior marketing manager for Dell's online technology superstore, Gigabuys.com. "PCs can now be used as a movie editor, music mixer, television tuner, home entertainment system or answering machine."

According to Nelson, with the addition of a few simple programs or external components, consumers can expand their home computers into powerful entertainment and personal management tools to perform tasks not typically associated with a PC, such as:

- Mixing music. Creating a CD of favorite songs is easy with CD-Recordable equipment. By adding an external or internal CD-Recordable drive to a home PC, along with a compatible CD-Recordable software package and a stack of CDs, music aficionados can create personalized CDs designed for workouts, romantic evenings, or just a mix of favorite songs. In addition, the more adventurous music fans can cut and add music snippets to create party mixes.

- Editing old and new home movies. With the help of fast processors and new technology, computer owners can create and edit their own home movies. Using products such as the Dazzle Digital Video Creator, home computer users can plug audio and video devices into their PCs, including CD players, MiniDisk decks, cameras and camcorders, to create and edit movies. To facilitate the use of the programs, make sure that all the software and peripheral equipment used can work with each other. Pre-bundled technology packages, such as those found on sites like Dell's Gigabuys.com, can ensure product compatibility to help minimize frustrations.

- Tuning in to television. Many consumers may be unaware that computers can tune into television shows. Adding a video card upgrade and a TV tuner to the home PC allows consumers to watch or monitor television shows on their home computers while working in other software programs. An added benefit to "TV tuner" technology upgrades includes the ability to monitor a television show for specific words or topics, such as a favorite stock or television character. Some programs allow tracking of several channels at once.

- Creating a home theater. Bring surround sound home through the computer with affordable home digital audio and video technologies.

Sound cards and various levels of sound technologies, such as Dolby Digital and DVD players, can bring the sensation of a movie theater home. Videotapes, laser disks or stereo TV broadcasts are decoded by the sound technology to convert sound into different channels, sending the sounds to appropriate speakers attached to the PC.

- Managing voicemail messages. Consumers can benefit from the multiple mailboxes and Caller ID features of telephone and voice mail products that convert the PC into a home telephone system. Telephones complete with software programs are available to convert a computer into an advanced messaging system that can allow a family of six to have six personal voice mailboxes complete with passwords and limited accessibility. In addition, messages can be saved and copied to other mailboxes.

"Getting the most out of a home computer is easy, with the right equipment," said Nelson. "Dell offers thousands of software and peripherals so that consumers have a one-stop source for their technology needs, and can get the most out of their computers."

For more information regarding additional computer uses, visit Dell's www.gigabuys.com for answers to package and installation questions.

Bookworms in the making

THE GRANDMAPA storytime program, coordinated through the Wayne Public Library, involves senior volunteers who read to young children in participating home day care facilities. Above, Jean Griess has undivided attention as she read books in the home of Dalene Feak, one of the day care providers involved in the program.

Many more Americans will need long-term care and help paying for it

Americans over the age of 85 are now the fastest-growing segment of our population, and at any given time, 22 percent of them are in a nursing home.

This year alone about 7 million men and women age 65 and older will need long-term care, and it is estimated that by the year 2005 the number will grow to about 9 million. If you were to need nursing home or home health care, would you have the resources to pay for that care without impoverishing yourself?

One year in a nursing home can cost $46,000 on average—twice that amount in some areas. And home health care, though less expensive, is still costly. For example, to have an aide visit twice a day to help with bathing, dressing and meal preparation easily can cost $30,000 a year.

Private long-term care insurance can help you plan for the unexpected and often catastrophic costs of long-term care if you are unable to care for yourself.

For more information about long-term care insurance, contact the Health Insurance Association of America's Center for Disability and Long-term Care Insurance at (877) LTC-4USA or visit HIAA's website at www.hiaa.org and click on the Consumer Information section for the Guide to Long-term Care Insurance.

Site of your life?

Whether you get your health information off the cuff or online may make a big difference in how you feel.

For example, many people are getting vital facts from the Cancer Research Foundation of America website (www.crfa.org) and its new colorectal cancer information section (www.preventcancer.org/colorectal.htm).

The site presents important information about the disease and the efforts against it. The site also features self-help guides, a risk assessment test and other useful facts.

One important fact is that while March is officially National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, any time of year is a good time to be sure your diet is high in fiber, low in fat and to get a simple, painless screening test from your doctor. When detected early the disease is 90 percent curable. That's good news, wherever you get it.

Offers unique dining experience

WAYNE CARE CENTRE offers a unique dining experience for the residents that reside at the facility. Residents are offered selective menus that allow for choice in the food they eat. Menus change daily with several selections of entrees, vegetables and potatoes or pasta. Each resident is polled for their choices and food preference.

You should know about Vitamin C

In this age of holistic medicines and herbal supplements, vitamin C continues to be one of the most talked-about substances, with health benefits that include greater energy, stronger bones, improved vision, increased disease resistance and longer life.

The problem is that the acid form of vitamin C, ascorbic acid, when taken in large doses may cause a number of side effects such as heartburn, nausea, flatulence and diarrhea.

Furthermore, large doses of the acid can irritate the kidneys, bladder and intestines. Actually, ascorbic acid is an intermediate in the production of what Alacer Corporation refers to as the "real" vitamin C, mineral ascorbates.

Researchers have found that vitamin C as mineral ascorbates provides all of the health benefits with none of the side effects. Mineral ascorbates are produced naturally by most animals (but not humans), yet when consumed regularly serve as excellent transporters of both minerals and vitamin C to the more than 70 trillion cells of the body.

Indeed, researchers have found that the mineral ascorbates help promote long life by extending the life of body cells.

Mineral ascorbates are available in a number of products and in several forms:

- The Emer'gen-C products, available in ten different flavors as effervescent drink mixes, that (when water is added) provide 1,000 mg of vitamin C plus the B vitamins and chromium, forming some 32 mineral complexes. The flavors include raspberry, tangerine, lemon-lime and even cola. The mix comes in convenient single-serving packages that when water is added provide a quick vitamin C energy boost, as all components work together in synergy.

- Emer'gen-C Nutritious Coffee, a decaffeinated blend fortified with 500 mg of mineral ascorbates, gives the body an energy boost, plus nutrition to ward off disease.

- Other products that include more than 1,000 mg of vitamin C per serving are Super Gram III, a time-release tablet and CMA (Calcium-Magnesium Ascorbate), a night-time vitamin C that aids relaxation.

These products were developed by Alacer Corporation, and are available at finer health food stores. To learn more, you can visit the website at www.alacer-corp.com.

Spending reduced in senior programs

Spending reductions in senior programs create 25 percent of the $295 billion budget surplus, according to an analysis by TREA Senior Citizens League (TSCL). The reduced spending on the programs upon which the nation's seniors depend most totals $73 billion over 10 years and comes at the same time health care costs for seniors are expected to more than double.

The additional surplus is welcome news to lawmakers and central for plans to provide the much-promised tax cut. "The news is not so welcome to seniors, especially those who have to choose between groceries or their prescription drugs," states Michael Zabko, Executive Director of TSCL.

For more information, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope and $1.00 for shipping and handling to: TREA Senior Citizens League, Dept. N917, 909 N. Washington St., Suite 300, Alexandria, VA 22314.

Reminders for the self employed

By Greg Heineman

Social Security Manager in Norfolk

With the income tax filing season upon us, it's a good time to remind self-employed individuals about some special tax tips. If you're self-employed, you need to know that there are two income tax deductions that reduce your tax liability. These deductions are intended to make sure self-employed people are treated in much the same way as employers and employees for Social Security and income tax purposes.

First, net earnings from self-employment are reduced by an amount equal to half of the person's total Social Security tax. This is similar to the way employees are treated under tax laws because the employer's share of the Social Security tax is not considered income to the employee.

Second, as a self-employed person you can deduct half of your Social Security tax on the face of the Internal Revenue Service Form 1040. This means the deduction is taken from your gross income in determining your adjusted gross income. It is not considered an itemized deduction and you must not list it on your Schedule C.

For more information about Social Security and how it affects self-employed persons, call or visit your local Social Security office to ask for the factsheet, 'Social Security: If You're Self Employed.' It also is available at www.ssa.gov on the Internet.

Good news for medicare beneficiaries that have no drug cards

There's encouraging news for the more than one-third of Medicare beneficiaries who have no prescription drug coverage. President Clinton's plan for adding a prescription drug benefit to Medicare "offers the best option for American seniors," according to Michael Zabko, Executive Director of TREA Senior Citizens League (TSCL).

Zabko noted the plan addresses several key considerations: it's universal, affordable, voluntary, modernizes Medicare, discourages irresponsible use, helps low-income beneficiaries and works with the private sector.

TSCL is a national organization of politically active seniors concerned about protecting Social Security, Medicare and other retirement benefits.

Financial planning process can help

Like a turn in the game of Life® that engaged Baby-Boom children in the '50s and '60s, the clicking wheel is stopping at ERetirement.

Experts would say that it's time that the Baby-Boom generation gets serious about retirement planning. After all, its oldest members are in their mid-50s, just 10 or 12 years away from traditional retirement age.

Yet saving among Americans remains a matter of concern among policymakers. This year the savings rate (after-tax income minus outlays) reported by the Department of Commerce fell to negative 1.2 percent, the lowest since the Great Depression. Others raise concerns that even as workers put significant pre-tax dollars in their 401(k) plans, consumer debt is at near record levels.

As much as retirement seems a happy inevitability for most American workers, planning for it seems to be something many consumers gladly put off. Like closing the door on a closet that badly needs organizing, the attitude seems to be out of sight, out of mind. Consumers also may not have the knowledge they need to create and follow a retirement savings plan.

Underscoring this point, a 1999 survey of Certified Financial Planner Practitioners indicated that financial planners think their clients have limited knowledge of retirement issues. Responding CFP Practitioners ranked clients' knowledge about retirement planning third among seven financial areas, following money management and investments, at nearly the same level as establishing and evaluating financial goals, and ahead of taxes, insurance and estate planning.

Clearly, the core issues of assessing financial goals and building retirement resources are too important to sit in the uneasy middle of consumers' knowledge about financial issues.

Interestingly, the Social Security Administration has begun mailing itemized benefits statement to qualifying U.S. citizens. This snapshot of what Social Security payments could look like may be what it takes for Americans to seek financial planning advice focused on retirement.

With retirement concerns edging forward in Baby-Boomers' thinking, now might be the right time to talk with a qualified financial planner about financial goals, including retirement. The financial planning process takes a holistic view of your financial resources, obligations and goals, resulting in a personalized financial plan. To know if you are truly getting financial planning advice, look for the following six steps:

1. Establishing and defining the client-planner relationship. The financial planner should clearly explain or document the services to be provided to you and explain both his responsibilities and yours. The planner should explain how he is paid and by whom. You and the planner should agree on how long the professional relationship should last and how decisions will be made.

2. Gathering client data, including goals. The financial planner should ask for information about your financial situation and retirement interests. Working with the planner, you'll want to mutually define your personal and financial goals, understand your time frame for results and your risk tolerance. Your financial planner should gather all necessary documents before giving you the advice you need.

3. Analyzing and evaluating your financial status. The financial planner should analyze your information to assess your current situation and determine what you must do to meet your retirement goals. Depending on what services you need, this could include analyzing your assets, liabilities and cash flow, current insurance coverage, investments or tax strategies.

4. Developing financial planning recommendations. Your financial planner should offer recommendations that address your goals—whether retirement-focused or all-encompassing-based on the information you provide. The key at this step is helping you understand options so that you can make informed decisions. The planner should also listen to your concerns and revise recommendations as appropriate.

5. Implementing the financial planning recommendations. You and the planner should agree on how the recommendations will be carried out. Your planner might carry out the recommendations, serve as your "coach," or coordinate the whole process with you and other professionals such as attorneys or stockbrokers.

6. Monitoring the financial planning recommendations. You and the planner should agree on who will monitor your progress towards your goals. If it is the planner who is in charge of the process, expect him to periodically review your situation and adjust the recommendations, if needed, as your life changes.

For America's Baby-Boomers, it's time to square retirement hopes with the reality of saving. With expert financial planning help, Baby-Boomers can maximize the income of their highest earnings years-right now-and create a productive financial structure that will support their retirement goals.

Randolph facility undergoes major changes

BY DAVID W. CARSTENS

Randolph Times

RANDOLPH— Changes have abounded in recent months at Randolph's Colonial Manor Nursing Home.

By next fall, the facility will have a brand new assisted living wing to compliment what's been a period of growth for the Colonial Manor.

In January, it was announced a Sioux City-based firm would be taking over the ownership of the Colonial Manor.

The facility had been locally owned and operated since 1968.

The new owners, Careage Management, plans no major changes in staffing and intend to build upon on the strengths of personnel already at the nursing home.

The company owns a similar facility in Cherokee, Iowa.

"We are a small company and plan on staying that way," said Careage's president Dan Myers of Sioux City. "We will be very active, not only in the facility, but in the community."

Careage Management met with administrator Steve Freese throughout the month of January to make the transition a smooth one.

The community had the chance to meet with the Manor's new owners in a large public open house on Feb. 13.

The renovation of one of the Manor's three wings was also started in January.

The interior of the wing was completely gutted and new walls were constructed to form nine new units that measure 260-square-foot each.

"The assisted living area will promote independence for its residents," Freese said.

In addition to the large room layout, the new section will offer its own kitchen and dining room area plus a separate entrance.

Earlier this month, the staff at the local Manor started a new service for Randolph's seniors and disabled persons who live independently within the community.

The program, known as "Caring Connection," is a free service provided by the Colonial Manor to provide daily telephone contact with those signed up for the program.

Each day, participants receive a phone call from a Manor staff member between 8:30-9 a.m.

If the party doesn't answer the phone after several attempts a pre-designated third party will be called to stop by the residence to check on the participant.

Those interested in the program can register with the Manor direct or contact the a local pastor for registration forms.

"This was one way we saw that we could provide a service to the community," Freese said.

Steve Freese, left, administrator of the Colonial Manor in Randolph, discusses renovation plans with Jim Billerbeck as he works inside the facility's assisted living unit. The unit is scheduled to be open in October.

Smokers watch their money, health go up in smoke

BY DEBRA A. KOLECKA, ARNP

Health problems related to smoking account for $50 billion in annual health care expenses. Smoking has been associated with emphysema, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, heart disease, and bladder cancer. When one smokes, the heart rate increases, the blood pressure rises, lips wear away, and the senses of smell and taste weaken. Smoking may cause a choking sensation and shortness of breath, or one may develop a morning cough. Because smoke contains carbon monoxide, the body doesn't get enough oxygen, which can cause a drop in the energy level and make exercising difficult.

Smoking can lead to stomach ulcers, gum disease, and increased nervousness or anxiety. It may cause impotence in men and infertility in women. It worsens asthma and causes premature aging of the skin. Infants born to smoking mothers often suffer from lower birth weight. Children of smoking parents have an increased risk of sudden infant death syndrome, ear infections, and asthma.

The physical benefits of quitting smoking are both immediate and long-term. If a person stopped smoking right now, within a matter of hours the body would be getting healthier from the lack of nicotine.

Within two hours after the last cigarette, the blood pressure and pulse start to return to normal and the body temperature of the hands and feet increases as blood flow improves. Four hours after the last cigarette, the carbon monoxide level in the body drops and blood content returns to normal. Within eight hours, digestion improves and the amount of oxygen in the blood increases. Within 24 hours, the chance of having a heart attack starts to decrease. Within 48 hours, the sense of taste and smell improve. By 72 hours, the lungs relax and breathing becomes easier.

After one to nine months, the lungs have less chance of developing infections, and breathing conditions like emphysema and morning coughs gradually decline. After one year of not smoking, the risk of heart attack falls to that of someone who has never smoked. By ten years, the chances of developing lung and other cancers decrease, and the chance of stroke will almost reach that of someone who never smoked.

Giving up cigarettes requires a lot of determination. One may experience withdrawal symptoms. Irritability, tiredness, dizziness, trouble concentrating, anxiety, and depression are common. Many smokers try four to six times to quit smoking before they stop altogether. People with a low motivation to quit relapse more quickly than do people who are more determined.

The following tips may help you stop smoking. Make a list of the triggers which lead you to light up. For each of these triggers, list things you could do to distract you from this urge. These might include waiting, talking it out, reviewing why you want to stop, changing the routines that give you the urge to smoke, trying nicotine gum, taking a walk or exercising, working on a hobby, doing a crossword puzzle or some other thinking activity to distract you. Set a quit date and tell everyone you are quitting. Choose a support person to contact when your cigarette craving is great. Ask family and friends to support you. Avoid smoking areas of restaurants and smoke-filled places. Make your home smoke free. Get rid of all tobacco, matches, lighters, and ashtrays. Drink plenty of water to help "wash out" the nicotine from your body. Focus on the benefits of not smoking.

Quitting "cold turkey" is one way to stop. If one tries to quit this way, it will take about two weeks before all withdrawal symptoms disappear. Many products are available to help one quit smoking, and they can greatly increase the chances of putting out that last cigarette.

Nicotine chewing gum, skin patches, nasal sprays, or oral inhalers can be used in place of the nicotine in tobacco.

They lessen both the craving for cigarettes and the withdrawal symptoms from nicotine. Many smokers who try to quit may use nicotine replacements for a few weeks to a few months, depending on the level of addiction. Over time, the dose is gradually lessened. Heavy smokers often need to take more nicotine for a longer time than do lighter smokers.

There is also a prescription medication that reduces the nicotine cravings and withdrawal symptoms. You will need to discuss with your health care provider the appropriateness of this medication for you.

Many smokers benefit from counseling or quitting workshops. Others have benefited from hypnosis, acupuncture, plastic cigarettes, 24-hour hot lines, and Internet chat rooms. Each person needs to find the method that may be the most effective way for him/her to quit.

A resolution to stop smoking requires a lot of determination and support. The effort, energy, and patience it takes is well worth it for your health and that of your loved ones.
