FAIR DAYS

WAYNE COUNTY

Auditorium renovation discussed

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

An update on the renovation of the Wayne City Auditorium was presented during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Ken Kwapnoiski, chairperson of the renovation committee, spoke to the council on the recommendations for renovations. He told the council that his committee felt the auditorium should be returned to some of the functions it has served in the past such as wedding receptions, theater productions, reunions, seminars as well as an overflow for recreational activities.

He also stated that several of the items on the renovation list should be considered as general maintenance items rather than renovation items. The council has already agreed to move forward with a new roof for the building. The project will be paid for as a maintenance item from the general fund.

Other renovation projects will be completed, with council approval, using the remainder of the money collected from the recent city sales tax receipts.

The council also heard a report for City Administrator Lowell Johnson on his meeting with ZBM Architects regarding the deterioration of the siding on the Library Senior Center. Johnson said there has been a breakdown of the finish and the wood has become discolored. The architects will work with the paint company that did the original painting to arrive at a solution to the problem.

The council passed Resolution 2000-40 which will accept the bid for a horizontal boring project for the city's electrical distribution division. The project includes providing service to the Middle School and replacing underground wire on West Third Street.

A public hearing date of Tuesday,

Aug. 29 at 7:35 p.m. was set pertaining to the acquisition of real estate. Linda Dawn Casey have accepted the city's offer of $117,500 for property for the new fire hall. A public hearing to purchase the property is required by state statute.

The council gave its approval to move forward with proceedings necessary to extend 10th Street to Providence Road.

A bid of $2,950 was accepted from Terra Com for soil boring for the fire hall site and the two possible Community Center sites.

Mayor Sheryl Lindau made a number of appointments during the meeting.

Matt Hoffman, Lt. Phil Shear and Police Chief Lance Webster were appointed to the Police Retirement Committee and Shirley Bergt and Anna Swinney were appointed to the Wayne Housing Authority for Villa Wayne.

Israel trip yields more than archeological dig

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Having a love of the outdoors, Missy Baier recently returned from a trip to northern Israel where she was part of an archeological dig of the ancient Biblical city of Bethsaida. Baier is a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and is the daughter of Stan and Imogene Baier of Wayne.

Baier learned of the University of Nebraska-Omaha (UNO) sponsored trip through a friend and the group left July 3 on a 10 and 1/2 hour flight from Newark, N.J. to Tel Aviv, Israel. The dig began on July 1 and the group returned to the United States on July 23.

Bethsaida is on the north shore of the Sea of Galilee; the country of Jordan can be seen to the west. The ancient city dates back to nearly 5,000 years ago when it was a major spot in commerce trade between Mesopotamia and Egypt. The Biblical Geshurites inhabited the city at that time. Later the city was overthrown by the Greeks and it later fell into Roman rule. Important in the time of the New Testament, it was the birthplace of the apostles Peter and Andrew and home to Philip. The city had disappeared by the Middle Ages. The search for the lost city went on unsuccessfully for years until investigations from 1989-1993 proved its whereabouts.

On the excavation, each participant had their own spot or 'loci' in which to dig. Each 'loci' varied in size depending on what they were looking for. In Baier's 'loci' she was

Freshman orientation set

Orientation activities have been scheduled for incoming freshmen at Wayne State College from Friday, Aug. 18 through Sunday, Aug. 20.

"It's important to help new students make the transition from high school to college as easily as possible," said Curt Frye, WSC vice president and dean of students. "Studies have shown that students who attend orientation activities are more likely to do well in school because of the connections they make during that first weekend. It gives them a chance to meet other new students in a relaxed atmosphere."

An important part of the program is the role of upper-class students serving as mentors. Each mentor works with a group of 10-12 new students answering questions about campus life, introducing them to key campus staff members, and taking a campus tour to help them find the buildings and classrooms listed on their class schedules. The orientation program also focuses attention on the campus computer network, as well as academic and related educational support resources available to WSC students.

Activities will begin with move-in and orientation check-in at residence halls for freshmen participating in the orientation program on Friday, Aug. 18, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. A "New Beginnings Buffet" will be held from 4:30 - 6:15 p.m., with activities continuing throughout Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday.

Terrace Hall renovations planned

Wayne State College students will benefit this fall from $1.8 million in renovations in Terrace Residence Hall.

Renovations include an improved ventilation system, new fire sprinklers, new wiring, recessed lighting with night-light and battery modes and new bathrooms.

Each room is wired for two computers. Traditional radiators have been replaced with flat plate space savers for an increase in heat efficiency and safety.

An automatic fire suppression system capable of extinguishing cooking fires on the stove has been added in the kitchen.

The residence hall also received Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliance updates, including an elevator and a new ramp leading to the west door and wider doorways.

"This project represents an ongoing effort by Wayne State College and the Nebraska State College System to provide students with an updated and welcoming educational environment. The quality of work at Terrace Hall represents our commitment to put students first," said Sheryl Lindau of Wayne, vice chair of the Board of Trustees for the Nebraska State College System.

"I'm really impressed with this project, the quality of work on the previous Connell Hall renovation and what WSC has been able to do with older buildings on campus to restore the buildings' character. There are really some beautiful buildings on campus," Lindau said.

Before the renovation project began, student residents of Terrace gathered for a type of "town hall meeting" to provide suggestions about how the structure could be updated to suit their needs. The present Terrace Hall was built in 1939.

Terrace houses male students on its first floor and female students on its second and third floors. After 140 students have moved into the 70 room structure and have a chance to find out how well the renovations fit within their needs, Bill Huey, vice president and project manager of Prochaska and Associates, said his representatives plan to host another meeting to find out how successful the project was from the students' point of view. Although a great deal of renovation occurred, great effort was applied to maintain the building's historic quality, according to Curt Frye, vice president and dean of students.

"Our goal in housing is to create a positive living and learning environment. I believe the improvements to Terrace Hall help us to reach that goal," said Larry Emanuel, assistant dean of students and director of housing.

An opening celebration for the hall is planned during Homecoming festivities, according to Emanuel.

An additional project is planned next summer to replace the windows in Terrace Hall, according to Carolyn Murphy, vice president for administration and finance.

The same meals will be made available to all enrolled participants regardless of race, color, sex, age, national origin or disability, and there is no discrimination in the course of the meal service.

Nonpricing programs provide meals at no separate charge. Pricing programs provide free and reduced price meals to those meeting the approved eligibility criteria. Persons who believe they have been treated unfairly in receiving food services for any of these reasons should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

The following household size and income criteria will be used for determining eligibility. Participants from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Charges need to be substantiated

At the present time there is a petition being circulated in the City of Wayne for the recall of Councilman Verdel Lutt.

While the Herald believes in the constitutional right of citizens to petition and/or recall an elected official for just reasons, we feel that there are a number of issues not being addressed in this particular recall attempt.

The petition lists four areas of concern against Mr. Lutt. However, none of these accusations are explained in any detail. Specific examples need to be given to substantiate the need for removal from office. Violating an oath of office, harassing, intimidating and threatening constituents and failing to represent constituents are all serious charges that need to be explained to the the voting public.

The recall petition, whether successful or not, will cost all the taxpayers of the city and should an election be required, additional tax dollars will need to be spent.

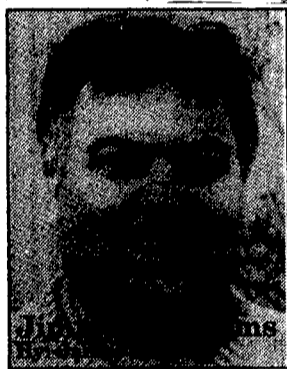

Careful consideration of the issue needs to be made, before any drastic action is taken.

Flipping burgers is not so bad

Bill Gates offered these tips to the nearly four million high school and college graduates about their first jobs.

Here, in a nutshell, is what he had to say:

- Life is not fair. Get used to it.
- The world does not care about your self-esteem. The world expects you to accomplish something before you feel good about yourself. You're not going to make $40,000 a year right out of high school. And you won't be a vice-president with a car phone until you earn it.

- If you think your teacher is tough, wait until you get a boss. He doesn't have tenure.
- Flipping burgers is not beneath your dignity. Your parents and grandparents had another word for it... it's called opportunity.
- If you mess up, it's not your parents' fault. So don't whine about your mistakes. Learn from them.
- Life is not divided into semesters — you don't get summers off. Few employers are interested in helping you "find yourself."

Interesting words from the world's richest man. If you have not figured out what the man is talking about, it's called "attitude." Bill Gates' words are nothing more than good old fashion common sense. To most people, it's not as obvious when you are out in the mean cruel world having to figure all this out.

If you take the time to look at successful people, you will find out they paid a price in direct proportion to the amount of success they have achieved. Nothing worthwhile ever comes easy.

I recall how it felt to earn minimum wage working for my father. There's temptation to feel like you should put in a minimum wage effort, but that doesn't do anyone any good. I know, he told me that everyday of my life.

One of my former bosses used to keep us moving by starting every day by saying, "what have you done for me today?" He did not care what you did for him yesterday, he was only interested in what you were going to do for him today. He was right to say that. He was paying me a wage and he wanted to get the most of that wage back everyday. He also once told me that he was never going to pay me what I was worth. Because if I ever got to the point I was worth what he was paying me, I would never achieve the success that I wanted. He was a smart man.

Someone has to flip burgers. Whenever I see a teenager driving a new SUV with a carload of friends in tow, I wonder if he or she really appreciates how hard Mom and Dad had to work to buy this new toy. That may be unfair, but it is what comes to mind. Very few 16, 17 or 18-year olds can afford a Tahoe or Expedition on their allowance.

Our first job is rarely what we wish we were doing, but at least we can get paid and learn a valuable lesson about getting ahead in a tough, unfair world that doesn't seem to care.

Howard Lamb could be valuable asset to Bush administration

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Now that we know Nebraska's Sen. Chuck Hagel will not be the vice presidential nominee on the Republican ticket, the Cornhusker press can move on to speculating about other things.

Things like whether Nebraska's Sen. Chuck Hagel will be asked to serve in a George W. Bush cabinet, if GWB becomes president. The former is a topic sure to take up more than a few column inches between now and November, and between November and whenever if GWB is the next inhabitant of the White House.

Hagel did well by colleague John McCain in his prime-time introductory remarks for the Arizona solon. Don't you wonder what those two guys, war veterans and plain talkers, say about George Bush the Younger when they are having coffee and a little private time together? Do you really think all of those primary-season memories have turned to sweetness and light? There's no doubting the sincerity of their commitment to a Bush victory - but you've got to figure there are some great one-liners being exchanged among the two war veterans.

If consistency is one mark of a statesman, give Howard Lamb of Anselmo a modicum of credit in that column.

Lamb is a rancher and a former state senator. During his years as a lawmaker he was a devout agricultural conservative. That is, he firmly believed that the state didn't need to spend a whole lot of money unless it helped the ag sector, directly or indirectly. He also believed that taxing ag land was an offense against man and, probably, the Almighty.

Lamb was such a determined workhorse and war horse for his cause, I often told him that, if I lived in his district, I would have voted for him twice - in every election.

Lamb did want to build a veterinary school at taxpayer expense. But, as noted earlier, if it was for agriculture it was not an expenditure, it was an investment.

It was also well known that Lamb was a fiscal conservative in the personal, as well as the political, sense. That's where the consistency thing comes in.

Lamb was a delegate to the GOP national convention last week. It was in Philadelphia. Philadelphia is an expensive town. Too expensive, in Lamb's view.

Like many a son of the soil, Lamb was and is entirely modest about his economic success. You could also say that, whether it was his money or yours, Howard never spent a nickel that didn't need spending; that is, the guy was never wasteful.

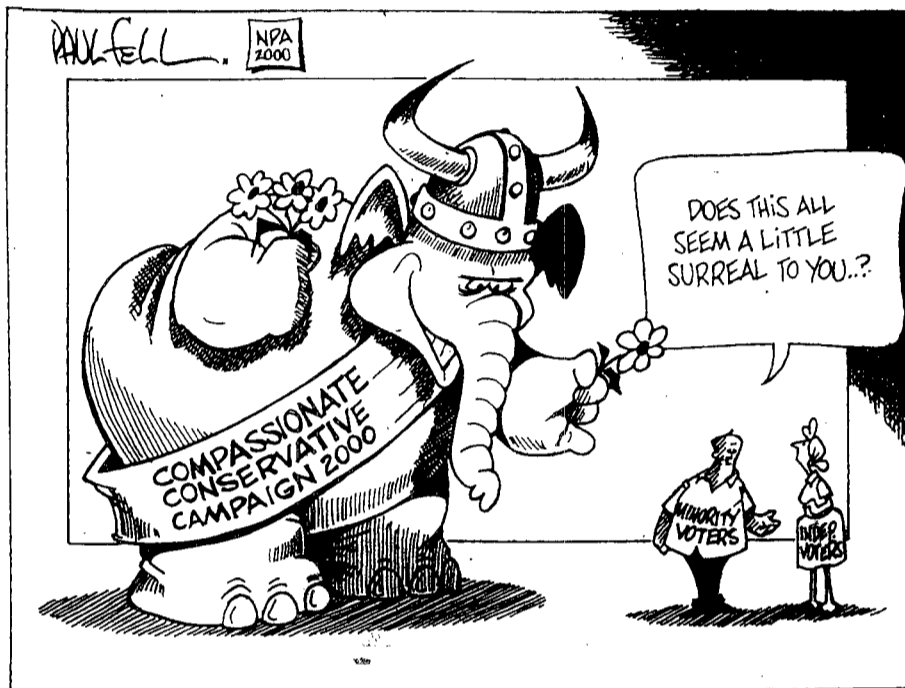

And so it was last week in Philly. Lots of other delegates were shelling out serious bucks for overpriced hotel rooms around and about the convention center.

Not Lamb. He took his Nebraska values with him when he went back East. He didn't pay those rip-off hotel rates.

Lamb stayed at a hotel in New Jersey. Even with transportation costs, he said, he still came out money ahead.

If the Republicans don't find a place for Hagel in the would-be Bush administration, it might not do them any harm to have a look at Howard Lamb.

Letters

Emergency Service providers should work together

Dear Editor,

This letter is in regard to the recent letter to the Wayne Herald Editor from Marcile Thomas, Administrator of Providence Medical Center.

Marcile's letter was in response to scrutiny and criticism to the hospital's ambulance service; thus it failed to outline the training and capabilities of rescue squad EMT's or helicopter ambulance paramedics and flight nurses.

The purpose of this letter is to clarify information regarding Basic Life Support (BLS) rescue squads staffed by Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT).

Rescue squads and ambulances have established protocols and training. Rescue squads can extricate (including use of jaws of life), defibrilate (use electrical current to regulate and/ or restart the heart), intubate (establish and maintain an airway by placing a tube into the trachea) and a vast number of other procedures at the scene of the accident. Many EMT's will soon be trained to administer medication and intravenous fluids (IV). These skills are sharpened and maintained through day-to-day experience at rescue scenes as well as drills and recertification trainings.

Rescue squad (BLS) ambulances are required by law to provide assessment and stabilization to the best of their capabilities, just as Advanced Life Support (ALS) ambulances are.

Once dispatched, our rescue squad's "volunteer" EMT's are en route to the scene in less than five minutes (usually 2-3 minutes). Rescue squads are dispatched to a wide variety of accident, trauma and medical scenes, including some that are outside their established territory. Rescue squad ambulances are not bound by territory and EMT's are licensed in the entire state of Nebraska.

However, the protocol of our rescue squad it to respond when dispatched and to notify another rescue squad if the scene is either within their territory or is within our district, but is closer for them to respond to. There are two purposes for this procedure. The number one reason is to ensure quick response to the patient and the other reason is simply professional courtesy to area rescue squads.

The rescue squads also work in close collaboration with helicopter services to ensure that any patient needing treatment in a trauma center receives it within the "golden hour." The "golden hour" refers to the optimum limit of one hour between time of injury and surgery. To ensure optimal chances for survival and recovery, the patient should not be on the scene for more than 10 minutes, so the quick response times (as noted above) can make the difference between life or death.

In situations where it is known immediately upon dispatch that the patient is in a life threatening trauma situation, the rescue squads can dispatch a helicopter simultaneously with their response so that the helicopter will be on the scene by the time the patient is packaged for transport.

The patient can then be flown to the trauma center while receiving treatment from highly trained and experienced flight paramedics and flight nurses. The flight crews are trained in such areas as "Pre-hospital Trauma Life Support," PALS (Pediatric Advanced Life Support) and ACLS (Advanced Cardiac Life Support).

It should be noted that if a helicopter is requested by a rescue squad and is responding to a scene, it can be canceled at any time by that rescue squad, if they determine the service is not required. There will at no time be any charge to the patient or the rescue service if the helicopter is canceled.

The area helicopter services will only charge if a patient is transported by them. Patients are indeed provided optimal chance for recovery when local hospitals also collaborate with the helicopter. When this happens, patients are clearly the focus within our area medical and rescue systems. In the long run, collaboration amongst all medical facilities and rescue squads will give our regional area the chance to have excellent services well into the new millennium.

The EMT's that staff our Rescue Unit Ambulances are all VOLUNTEERS. Becoming an EMT requires an individual to take a 150 hour training course. To maintain this certification, EMT's must complete 30 hours every three years of continuing educational classes. In addition EMT's must recertify every six months in defibrilation and intubation.

They are required to obtain annual recertification in Adult/ Child/ Infant CPR. These volunteers also need to attend rescue drills monthly. All the above hours are required to receive and maintain the EMT certification; however this does not include the countless hours of response to actual emergency calls!!

Marcile noted that her staff are exposed to "potential to risks encountered in the field including dangerous accident scenes, potentially violent environments and of course vehicular accident." These are the same potential risks EMT's are exposed to at rescue scenes.

Being a part of a successful rescue service requires tremendous commitment, dedication and PRIDE not only amongst its members but also amongst their families and the community as a whole.

It is vital that area EMS (Emergency Medical Services) get along with each other. We all WILL need each other in the future; there will be emergency situations that we hope will never happen... but will. Keep in mind that "ensuring our patients' optimum outcome (safely) is our only goal!!"

Supports councilman

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in support of Verdel Lutt.

In many years in Wayne he has been nothing but helpful, courteous and informative whenever I have asked questions or needed information concerning city government.

Mr. Lutt responds truthfully and succinctly as one adult would talk to another. It seems to me that items #1, 3 and 4 are subjective judgments on Mr. Lutt's character. I am

Explaining his position

Dear Editor,

Recently a petition has been filed for a recall of my position as city council representative in Ward 1. I would like to explain my position and present some facts.

Early in the year a group of citizens formed a committee to gather signatures to repeal the parking ban on some Wayne streets from midnight to 5 a.m. The required number of signatures were gathered and the issue was presented to the voters in the City of Wayne, and therefore the parking ordinance remains in effect.

Several weeks after the election the committee was not able to accept the defeat and decided to try to undermine city and county officials. A letter was written to the editor of the Wayne Herald. The letter accused city officials of deceiving the public, mis-wording the ballot and purposely causing the issue to be defeated.

I was somewhat offended that this committee, and a certain individual, would print this before facts were gathered and found to be true. I called the head of the committee and told him I was upset by his actions. I told him badmouthing and mudslinging was usually done before the election, but once the election is over most accept the vote of the public and move on. I asked him for a public apology to the council and mayor.

Several weeks later the individual requested that our city clerk draw up papers for a recall petition for my council position. Advertisements were then sent over the Internet asking for petitioners in the First Ward. These petitioners would be paid $2.00 for every signature gathered.

On July 27 the petition was picked up and signed by Bryan Bumgart.

The following day a 5 page Internet message was sent out accusing me of intimidation and harassment, accompanied by other degrading statements and pictures.

I now feel this has gone too far. I must make a stand. I have lived in and around Wayne for 48 years and enjoy living and working in the community. I have served on the council for 6 years and have done my best to serve the residents of my ward and city. My only request is that you support me during this time, and that you call me if you have questions. I appreciate all who have already called or stopped and given me their support.

My request for the committee is to stop hiding behind the Internet, hired petitioners, and unnamed financial backers. Thank you.

Verdel Lutt,

The landscape by Tiberias, Israel shows Mt. Arbel in the background and farm ground in the valley below. A lot of the crops there consist of fruit trees.

Baier and some of her friends visited the Caves of Amud which were in a nature reserve they visited on one of their sightseeing trips.

Israel

trying to unearth a Roman tower. Nearby, pieces of pavement, pottery, a Roman axe, large pottery, jewelry, and an incense shovel were found in another 'loci' where a Roman house was being excavated.

On the economics of the area where Baier was, much of the income for the area is from farming and tourism.

"Their farming consists mainly of fruit trees," Baier said. "They raise a lot of bananas, apples, and some of the best plums I've ever had."

The group stayed at Kibbutz Ginosar, which was nearby to where they were digging. A kibbutz is a collective farm with dormitories. Baier noted that only about two percent of the residents live in a kibbutz, which is a good example of Communism.

Baier said they went sightseeing on the weekends. Some of the sights they saw were Korazin, sister city to Bethsaida; Hazor; Megiddo, which is called Armageddon from ancient times; Qumran, where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found; and Jerusalem.

While visiting ancient holy sites, she found it was custom to cover the legs, arms, and upper arms so not very much skin showed. At other places, though, the native Israelites dressed very 'American.'

"We found that if your skin was not covered, residents would spit on you and say and do bad things as they felt you were disrespectful," Baier said.

Baier noted the money exchange between Israel and the U.S. was four shekels to one American dollar. Most of the money in Israel was in coins of 1, 5, and 10 shekels and also of 1/10, 1/2, and 1/5 shekels. Anything over 10 shekels was in paper.

"Their bills were made on very pretty paper," Baier said. "The money was printed in red, green, and blue with gold on it. There was a lot of Hebrew writing on each bill."

Noticing some of the prettiest skies she had ever seen, Baier said

Nicolae Roddy, a teacher at Creighton University in Omaha, was among Baier's group visiting Israel. He is shown looking at the 'High Place' (where offerings were made) which is located at the gates of the city of Bethsaida.

Melissa Baier

While sightseeing, Baier visited the archaeological dig at Masada which has been worked on for a long time. In Biblical times, the city was built on a cliff and it was Herod's city. The Jews jumped off the city walls after being defeated by the Romans.

with little industry around there was no smog and the sky and seas were a beautiful blue.

"I swam in the Mediterranean Sea and in the Dead Sea," Baier said. "The Dead Sea has so much salt in it that I wouldn't sink."

While sightseeing, Baier said she bought some items in gift shops. Some things were very reasonable such as shoes and groceries but an average meal in a restaurant was around $10.

"You got a lot of food, though, when you ordered in a restaurant," Baier said. "They eat a lot of chick peas there and there are many different kinds of sauces you can order to cover your food."

An example of something they like to eat is a pita (a flat bread in which you can wrap meat, etc.). A couple of the sauces that are popular are tomato and cucumber as they raise a lot of those vegetables. She noted they eat a lot of lamb and some beef.

Israel is similar to Nebraska in some ways. The seasons are the same. It is summer there now and the temperatures ran in the 90s to 100 degrees but not with as much humidity as in Nebraska.

On the subject of the English language, "Everyone I talked to knew English," Baier said. "They must learn it in school. There are a lot of tourists there.

Nearly everyone had a cell phone and there are Burger Kings and McDonalds, but a big difference is the size of the roads and sidewalks which are half the size they are here.

"People drive pretty crazy," Baier said. "I saw a taxi driver run over someone's foot."

Baier noted she really enjoyed her time in Israel, "Working on the site, talking, and hanging out with people was a lot of fun. I love being outdoors and playing in the dirt. It's great being able to do what you like to do."

Late summer spinner tactics help bring in Walleye

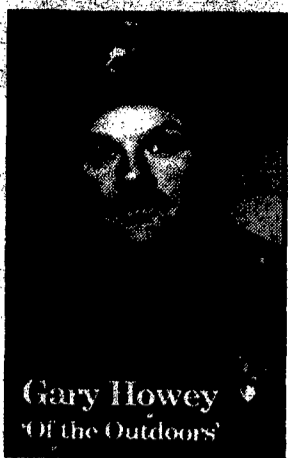

As the summer wears on and temperatures start to rise, walleyes become more active.

It's during the dog days of summer that the walleye spinners really start to produce. Spinners baited with crawlers or leeches are your most effective bait at this time of the year.

You can use them behind walking sinkers or bottom bouncers and fish almost any condition.

When I fish a spinner rig, I like to use my trolling motor to keep the boat drifting sideways over the flats. If I'm fishing in deeper water, I'll use a bottom bouncer to get my bait to the bottom.

In the river, I'll use a walking sinker, either a Lindy or Roach to keep my bait in front of the walleye's nose.

Gary Howey
Of the Outdoors

Spinners come in all sizes and colors, I've found that the natural colors work best in clear water and a fluorescent or fire tiger color produces the best in murky water conditions.

I prefer spinners with the larger Colorado blade. The vibration and flash from the larger blade seems to attract the fish.

I've also become a believer in spinners with rattle beads. While filming several walleye shows, I've had the Northland Rainbow Spinners with the Buck Shot Rattle Beads out produce regular spinners two to one. The rattles seem to add that little bit of sound that attracts the fish.

When you're fishing with a crawler, you'll use the two or three hook spinners. I've found that using two hook spinners and letting the crawler dangle down behind works best for me. I do get a few short bites, but I feel that the third hook is just in the way and a three hook rig is more likely to end up snagged on the bottom.

If I'm getting the end bitten off of my crawler, I'll feed the walleye by dropping back with my rod when I detect a bite. This will allow the walleye to take the crawler into his mouth. After dropping back line, I'll take up the slack and if I feel pressure on the line, then I'll set the hook. It's similar to feeding a fish line when you're using a live bait rig and it helps you to hook more fish.

When drifting with a spinner, speed can be very important. If you are moving too fast, you'll run by the fish before they see your bait or you'll have a problem keeping the rig on the bottom.

When my drift becomes too fast, I'll put out a boat brake and if one isn't enough to slow by drift, I'll put out a second.

I'll tie both brakes on the same side of the boat, one just off the bow of the boat and the other just up from the transom. This leaves the middle open to fight and land fish.

The boat brakes not only slow your drift, they'll also keep the boat from rocking back and forth, which lets you fish more vertically.

Some anglers simply let their spinner rig drag behind the boat, allowing the movement of the boat to work the rig.

I like to have the rod in my hand and work it vertically almost as if I was fishing a jig. This little extra movement helps to trigger the less aggressive fish. Another reason to keep the rod in your hand is that you never know what will attach itself to the spinner. I've had rods pulled almost out of the boat by pike and, of course, snags.

When fishing with spinners, I'll use 10 pound test, the heavier line allows me to pull free from snags. When using heavier lines, I generally fish a fairly limp line like Berkley XL. The limper line has less memory and eliminates many of the coils that you'll have with heavier line.

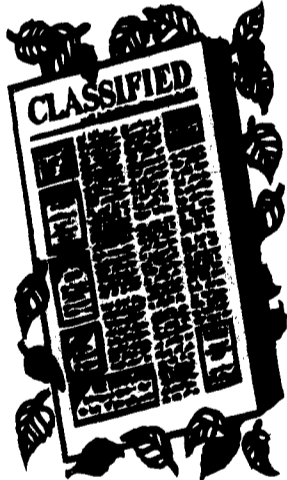

Fishing spinner rigs in the heat of the summer is a very productive method and will do a great job of attracting and catching walleyes.

Herbs for Health
Effects of Pennyroyal Oil
Unpredictable and Dangerous

A report in the medical journal Pediatrics describes the poisoning of two infants following ingestion of pennyroyal oil in certain herbal teas. Such teas may be used as home remedies, providing that all things natural are not safe. One infant died with liver failure, brain swelling, and nerve damage. The other infant developed problems and had seizures. The blood of both infants tested positive for pennyroyal and its metabolite, menthylformate, both poisonous constituents of pennyroyal oil.

Pennyroyal oil is present in two major family plants (Labiatae). One species (Hedeoma pulegioides) grows in the northern and eastern US and Canada. Another species (Melissa pulegium) grows in Europe. Oil is extracted from the leaves and flowering tops of these plants and has found use as a home remedy - especially to induce delayed menses. The Lancet Review of Natural Products, an authoritative reference on herbs, notes that pennyroyal's effects are "unpredictable and dangerous." One woman is known to have died after losing kidney and liver function after ingesting about one ounce of the oil.

The Golden Years

When the seas get rough what's a sailor to do? In the case of retired sailors Ernie Cox and Arthur Moore, they settle into the YMCA. As part of an $8.5 million renovation, the fourth floor of the facility in Brooklyn, New York has designated a wing for the retirees called "Seafarers Sage Haven." Having spent their lives on boats, these men do not want to live on their own, but prefer to live together, just as they did at sea. Days and nights together at the Y are spent reliving stories of ancient storms, bewitched ships, lost loves, and wayward captains.

Don't Wait For Food To Cool Before Refrigerating

The sooner you get cooked food into the fridge, the sooner any harmful bacteria it may harbor will stop multiplying. According to Ms. Berry of the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline, the idea that refrigerators can't handle hot food may be a carry-over from the days of the ice box. People didn't want the ice to melt. "Things kind of get handed down from generation to generation."

New product is boon to hunters

Hunters are always looking for ways to carry their equipment more efficiently. When traveling in a pick-up truck, there is always the danger of items rolling around, causing disarray.
 Now there is a box that goes in the back of a truck that kennels a hunting dog on one side and holds hunting equipment on the other.

Inventor Tim Schultze of Wayne came up with the idea of the Hunter's Box in February, 2000. After getting his dog, he wanted somewhere to put him along with his hunting gear. He then began to formulate his concept.
 This original idea is now being made available for licensing to manufacturers interested in new product development, especially in the hunting products industry. Schultze is hoping to have the Hunter's Box in full production and available to the public within the very near future.

 Additional information about the Hunter's Box can be obtained by contacting the Publicity/Press

Fruits and vegetables vital

Improve your diet

Mixed messages have been delivered over about breads, cereals and other grain products for healthy diets over the years. Some of today's quick weight loss diets wrongly advocate low bread and cereal intake Current U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendations are to eat at least six servings of whole grain or enriched breads, cereals, rice and pasta each day. That's not too difficult when you consider that a sandwich made with two slices of bread equals two servings, not one. If you need to control calories try two things: 1) watch your serving size, and 2) pay close attention to what is added to the bread or pasta. For example, pasta in a rich cream sauce has 285 calories per serving. A serving of pasta, by itself, has a slim 105 calories.

Other excellent additions to daily eating are vegetables and fruits. Rich in carbohydrate and fiber and low in fat, they provide variety, texture, color and flavor. Plan to include at least two servings of fruits and three servings of vegetables each day.

Add fruits, vegetables, breads and cereals - especially whole grain products - to your diet at recommended levels to increase dietary fiber. The typical American diet provides approximately half the recommended fiber. Daily fiber intake of 20-35 grams from a variety of food sources is considered an appropriate level.

When you increase fiber-rich foods, also increase fluid intake. At first, focus on only one change to give you more fiber each day. As your body adjusts you can make more changes.

Here are some easy ways to increase the fiber in your diet:

- Eat fruits with their peelings.
 - Add cooked dry beans and peas to your salads and soups.
 - Substitute half or more of your all-purpose flour with whole wheat flour when baking.
 - Use whole grain breads and pasta.
 - Use brown rice instead of white rice.
 - Eat a whole-grain or bran breakfast cereal.
 - Eat a bran muffin instead of a plain muffin.
 - Choose vegetables, fruits and whole grains for snacks

STRATEGIC PLANNING COMMITTEE
The Strategic Planning Committee, which was appointed by the Wakefield City Council will share some of its findings and ideas with the community during "For Your Information" night, Thursday, Aug. 10. The event will be held at the Logan Valley Golf Course beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Munchies will be provided by the Community Club. A Cash Bar will also be available.

The Wakefield City Council decided late last year that there was a need for a strategic plan for the community. This plan would provide the councilmen and other groups in the community with a blueprint for growth and development and also determine priorities for improvements.

One councilman told the planning committee at its first meeting, "I've been elected to represent the community, but I'm not sure what the people want. Some things I thought would be good for the community, have not been popular with the citizens. Therefore, I feel a real need to hear input as to what Wakefield wants and what direction they want to go in."

The 15-member committee began meeting in early January of this year with a cross section of representatives. During a series of meetings, the group began to make lists- the weaknesses of the city, its strengths, needs. The group had brainstorming sessions to determine actions which might achieve goals and needs. As the discussions continued, many of the priorities changed. It was gratifying for the committee during the discussion period to have one of the high priority goals, a community/school recreation center, pass the hurdle of a bond election.

One of the key issues identified was housing. The lack of building sites, lack of market rate rentals, need for housing assistance.

The strategic committee members will discuss findings with those present at the FYI gathering. Introductions will be made by Mayor Jim Clark. A recap of the committee's efforts will be presented by Councilman Gerald Muller.

An explanation of the program and planning process will be made by Don "Skip" Miesner of the Sioux Land interstate Metropolitan Planning Council (SIPCO). Other planning members will also be making brief presentations.

The Strategic Planning Committee will also seek feedback from those present as to views and suggestions for community improvements and how to achieve the goals.

Participants in the planning process are Dan Zulkosky, Kathy Skinner, Lisa Salmon, Juan Rodriguez, Jon Pretzer, Gerald Muller, Mike Moody, Kathy Johnson, Terry Hoffman, Anne Bren, Leslie Bebee, Terry Baker, Linda Rischmuller, Erelene Stubbs, Cheryl Brandenburg of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development and Don Miesner.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE
Coach Justin Smith announced last week that the first football practice will be held Monday, Aug. 14 at 8 a.m. at the practice field west of the school.

The coach also reminds players that physical cards must be in order to participate in practices. Anyone with questions may contact Coach Smith at 287-3011.

PLAYED FOR THE NORFOLK GOLDEN GIRLS
Shannon Anderson of Wakefield has completed her summer playing for the Norfolk Golden Girls (14 and under) Class A fastpitch softball team. The Golden Girls finished 40-20 for the season. The team placed fourth or better in five out of the six regular season tournaments. The highlight of the season was when the team won the Nebraska Class A State Championship at Hastings in mid-July. The team went 5-0 at this tournament and Shannon pitched in and won four of the games, giving up only six runs in the four games against the top Class A teams in the state.

For the season, Shannon went 20-9 as a pitcher. She pitched 176 innings, gave up only 60 runs, struck out an astounding 322 batters and walked 35. She pitched two perfect games and four no-hitters.

As a hitter, she was equally impressive. She batted .320 for the season with six doubles, 10 triples and three home runs. She was the leadoff hitter much of the season and had an on-base percentage of over .450, according to Head Coach Jay Curran.

At the awards ceremony at the end of the season, Shannon was given the co-Most Valuable Player Award for outstanding performance as an all-around player and contributor for the team.

She is the daughter of Harvey and Earlene Anderson of rural Wakefield.

ON DEAN'S LIST

Cunningham is pursuing her Associate of Science in Nursing at the college, which is affiliated with St. Luke's Regional Medical Center. She is a graduate of Allen High School. Her father is Ken Pettit of Wakefield and her spouse is Scott Cunningham of Laurel.
