City Council

Moving forward with activity center

Clara Osten
 Of the Herald

Following more than an hour's worth of discussion, members of the Wayne City voted to move forward with the plan for the Community Activity Center, including space for two gyms.

During a special meeting of the council, ideas were shared concerning the rationale for having space for two gyms.

Discussion also involved possible ways to cut costs on the project, which is estimated to cost $3.9 to $4 million. A May sales tax bond was passed, allowing for the collection of $3 million in city sales tax. The remainder of the funding would have to come from fund-raising or other city sources.

Bob Keating, a member of the Activity Center Committee, presented a number reasons the committee felt it would be unwise to cut the size of the building or eliminate one of the gyms.

These included the fact that the city recreation programs for students in grades three through eight involves a total of 12 teams and the additional gym space would allow for use by these teams and the general public at the same time. The same would be true of adult leagues using the facility.

He also stated that the City Recreation Department did not want to be dependent on the school for use of gym space.

Jeff Zeiss, Recreation/Leisure Director, also presented a list of activity that are held in the high school, middle school and auditorium throughout the year and stated that these facilities would not want any additional use.

In addition, Zeiss said that with the new facility, it is hoped that the recreation/leisure programs could be expanded.

Several of the council members at the meeting felt it was a better idea to construct the building as originally proposed and phase in the interior as funds become available.

Jeff Morlok, Construction Manager, said that actual building construction would generate fundraising. He also said that there are a number of options available during the construction process which would allow for completion as funding becomes available.

Morlok said that the committee's goal is to begin dirt work in May and complete drawings for the facility in June. The committee would then come to the council with construction costs in July and begin actual construction in late July or August.

Councilperson Dennis Linster made a motion to move forward with the project as originally planned and see where fund-raising goes.

The council voted 6-0 in favor of Linster's motion.

The Community Activity Center was the only item on the agenda at Tuesday's meeting.

The council's next regular meeting will be Tuesday, March 13.

Carroll youth fights tumor

By Jennifer Kantrovich
 Laurel Advocate

Four year-old Jesse Wamstad has been battling Wilms' tumor since he was two.

It all began in September of 1999 when Ken and Carrie Wamstad noticed their son, Jesse, was experiencing frequent abdominal bloating. The doctors in the area initially treated him for Rotavirus, a disease in which symptoms include abdominal swelling.

In February of 2000, Carrie felt a mass under Jesse's ribs. An ultrasound at Providence Medical Center in Wayne confirmed a mass in the right kidney area, and Jesse was referred to pediatric surgeons at Children's Hospital in Omaha.

A CAT scan was performed on Feb. 11, which showed a tumor was encased inside Jesse's right kidney.

This led doctors to diagnose Jesse with Wilms' tumor, the most common type of kidney cancer affecting children. It is a relatively rare form of cancer with only 350 to 500 new cases diagnosed each year in the United States.

On Feb. 12, Jesse's right kidney and Stage II tumor were removed and an infusa port for receiving chemotherapy treatments was inserted under the skin in his chest. Treatments began in the hospital while Jesse was recovering from surgery and continued through June.

After chemotherapy was completed, Jesse began monthly check-ups. It was during a check-up in October that doctors discovered a recurrent tumor in place of his right kidney.

Three small tumors had also developed in his lungs. Since the tumors were recurrent, they were classified as Stage V, which meant that Jesse would undergo a much tougher regimen of chemotherapy.

A biopsy was performed on the abdominal tumor on Oct. 20. Because the tumor was vascular, hemorrhaging occurred, and blood entered his abdomen, causing it to swell from the normal 17 inches to a little over 23 inches.

"Jesse was in critical condition," said Carrie. "He also was in more pain during this than anything else he's had to endure."

Jesse started the second round of chemotherapy on Oct. 24, which began shrinking the tumor and helped relieve the swelling and pain.

A CAT scan performed on Dec. 4 revealed the chemotherapy treatments had been effective in shrinking the tumors and eradicating the smallest lung tumor.

On Jan. 3, 2001, 95 percent of the abdominal tumor was removed. The doctors were unable to remove 100 percent of the tumor because it had adhered to the bottom lobe of the liver and to the main vein that runs along the spine.

The remainder of the abdominal tumor and lung tumors, where were inoperable, would be treated with chemotherapy and radiation.

A central line for stem cell harvest was inserted near Jesse's collar bone on Jan. 15. The next day, cells were harvested and frozen. In the event chemotherapy and radiation damage Jesse's bone marrow, he will be given his own stem cells which will replenish his bone marrow.

On Feb. 15, Jesse began 15 days of radiation. The treatment itself is very quick and only lasts a couple

Head Start to move

Wayne Head Start is going through many new and exciting changes.

The organization is making a move to a new location in Wayne, 1210 East Seventh Street. The final stages of remodeling are nearing completion and it is hoped to have classes there in March.

"First foremost, Goldenrod Hills Wayne Head Start would like to thank Rod and Loreta Tompkins for making this move a reality. Without them, the new center would not be possible," said Lori Davis, Head Start Teacher.

She also extended a thank you to everyone who helped with the remodeling.

Head Start is a federally funded comprehensive preschool program for income eligible children and families. Head Start involves the child's entire family.

"We feel that parents are the best teachers their children have, and only by working with the parent and children together will our program help change families' lives for the better," Davis added.

Head Start is a program concerned with the mental, physical and social development of the individual child.

Head Start is excited about the new move and the new programs that will be offered. Davis is looking forward to the move and hoping that being in town will make Head Start more involved in the community.

Those involved with this project have indicated their excitement about the upcoming events and invite the public to visit the new center.

Read Across America 2001 was held at the Wayne Public Library on March 2 (Dr. Seuss' birthday). Celebrating with the "Cat in the Hat," readings on Dr. Seuss books were held for area children.

Read Across America celebrated

For the fourth year, the National Education Association (NEA) has promoted Read Across America (RAA) on March 2. This year, March 2 celebrated what would have been Dr. Seuss's 97th birthday.

Last year more than 30 million celebrated NEA's Read Across America on ships, in stadiums, city halls, schools, libraries, homes, and even in the hallowed halls of the Supreme Court. Kids of all ages read on March 2 with judges, police officers, firefighters, teachers, librarians, nurses, politicians, authors, actors, and others.

The theme for this year's celebration—said to be the largest literacy event in the nation, if not the world—was "Oh, The Places You'll Go," the beloved Dr. Seuss book that offers a wealth of wisdom on setting goals and meeting challenges.

A fun Read Across America classroom project is a Dr. Seuss Trivia Quiz. Sample questions for grades K-3 include:

1. When is Dr. Seuss's birthday (a) April 2 (b) January 25 (c) March 2 (d) June 2?
2. Who asks, "Do you like green eggs and ham?" (a) The Cat in the Hat (b) Sam I Am (c) Horton (d) The Grinch?
3. Mr. Gump's wump has (a)

Seven humps (b) Blue humps (c) Bumpy humps (d) A big appetite?

4. Finish this phrase: "One fish, two fish, red fish, ___" (a) Green fish (b) Blue bell (c) Green bell (d) Blue Fish?

Quizzes for grades 4-6, 7-8, and 9-12 can be found on NEA's Read Across America Web site at www.nea.org/readacross. The Web site also includes other games, downloadable public service announcements (PSA), certificates of participation, the names of state RAA contacts, and ideas galore.

More information is available at www.nea.org/readacross. Answers to sample K-3 questions: 1. (a); 2. (b); 3. (a); 4. (d).

Heartland Stainless able to provide specialized services

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Heartland Stainless, Inc. at 115 Clark in Wayne (the former Morris Machine Shop) offers a number of specialized stainless steel services. The business is entirely stainless steel fabrication/installation services as of April, 2000.

Buying Morris Machine Shop in December, 1990, Keith and Bonnie Langenfeld and Dave Nielsen, all originally of Orchard, have been gradually changing the agricultural-based business to stainless steel sanitary process system fabrication and installation; mainly for food and beverage industry businesses.

Langenfeld and Nielsen had a background in food production services as Nielsen owned Orchard Dairy Products which he sold to Mid-America Dairyman in 1988. Langenfeld had been working for Nielsen prior to that.

"It's not that we wanted to shut down the ag repair part of the business but with the dwindling number of farmers and less equipment, the farmers were pretty much taking care of repair themselves," Keith said. "As the stainless steel part of the business grew, more room was needed so we went entirely to stainless steel services."

"We still have customers call and ask for the types of services offered in the past," Bonnie said.

Seven men are employed at Heartland Stainless who work on a variety of stainless steel equipment. Some of the equipment they make includes custom-made CIP (clean-in-place) equipment which is used in plants for cleaning tanks, sanitary piping, etc. Custom-built processing equipment for dairies, egg processing plants, and beverage plants are also made on-site at Heartland Stainless. At the Wayne shop, Bonnie is office manager and Dorothy Wert is secretary.

Also at Heartland Stainless, the workers design and build some of their own equipment such as a centralized high pressure washer system that is used for cleaning equipment and floors which is sold to factories. Also designed were numerous cheese-curd collection augers used in the process of making cheese.

Another product they build is COP (clean-out-of-place) systems. This equipment is used when pipes have to be taken down and put into the system to be cleaned.

Heartland Stainless is a distributor for Alpha-LaVal Flow Equipment and Tri Clover (the two largest distributors in the world of stainless steel fittings, valves, and pumps that process flow materials).

Specialized equipment has also been made for the University of

Feel students are 'profiled'

Dear Editor,
Does profiling happen in small town Wayne America?

It is not unusual to pick up a newspaper or log-on to an internet news site and read a story of how police are being charged with racial profiling. Many of us read the article and then go about our day.

And why not? It doesn't affect us right? Wrong. Maybe it is because we are not a minority, or maybe it is the fact the profiling happened so far away we just can not relate to it.

But in all reality, we would be fooling ourselves to think that we are separated from the plague that is spreading across the rest of America.

Profiling, in general, is singling out a specific group, be it race, gender and even in this case, college students.

I have learned profiling is unethical, and yet members in this community stand behind, and even advocate, profiling college students over and over again.

Why is it that students from Wayne State College can not gather in groups of more than 15 without a police officer parking outside their home or circling the block? Is it that they are students? When was the last time you saw an officer circle your house or sit outside of the country club?

It is common to see an officer drive past the bar several times at 1 a.m. on a Thursday night. Is this profiling? Let's see. Hummm... Thursday night... college students... patrolling officers? Is the issue really alcohol, or is the issue really the students?

Understand that I am not advocating drinking, but drawing attention to the fact that profiling is not an issue in some far off costal city. In fact, it happens close to home, and as unethical as it is, is supported by many leaders in this community.

Bush wants Nelson's vote

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

President Bush had hardly exited the building in Omaha before the popular wisdom on the political scene was that the Republican president was twisting the political arm of Democratic Sen. Ben Nelson.

Bush, the pop wisdom went, had pressured Nelson in front of a Nebraska audience to support the administration's programs for cutting taxes and retiring the national debt.

There is, however, another possible analysis. It's this one:

Bush doesn't have Nelson by the arm to any greater extent than Nelson has the president by the same appendage.

Even Nelson, regarded variously as a centrist and a fiscal conservative, said that Bush definitely put a twist on his political arm when he said that both Nelson and Republican Sen. Chuck Hagel could be counted on "in the pinch."

Well, the fact is that the cards Nelson is holding in this political/policy game might be every bit as good as those held by Bush.

You think Bush was playing chummy with a Democratic senator, right here in the GOP bastion of Nebraska, because good old Ben Nelson likes to go hunting in Texas? Do you think the Republican president referred to Nelson as one of Nebraska's two "fine" senators because he admires that insurance executive haircut that Nelson wears?

Huh-uh, sports fans. The Senate is split 50-50, Republican-Democrat. And a couple of Republicans don't like the Bush plan. Get it? Ben Nelson's vote is a hot property. He is a Democrat who would be politically safe in voting for a Bush agenda; and he is a politician who could probably do so without much philosophical difficulty - providing.

Providing what? Providing Nebraska with just about any reasonable thing that he and Chuck Hagel agree that Nebraska might need.

Did you notice Bush mentioned that agriculture might be in line for some of those "contingency funds" that the president doesn't yet have - but wants Congress to set aside for special things? And the Texas oil guy said he is a big supporter of ethanol. Boy, the eyes of Texas had to be rolling when he spat that out!

Nelson has said he wants what amount to some safety features in the Bush plan, and he wants some undefined stuff for agriculture. Small potatoes. Nelson and Hagel might have a chance to do what the guys from the big states do all the time - tell the big political dudes and their pals to come across for Nebraska. How about some real, heavy-handed help relocating a labor-intensive manufacturing concern in Nebraska? How about research dollars and anything and everything else the politicians from the more populous states divvy up with one another all the time?

Are you saying: "Ohhhh, nooooo! Not politics! We just want our senators to do what Nebraskans have always done - vote their consciences

(so long as they are Republican) and not get much more than squat for the folks back home in return."

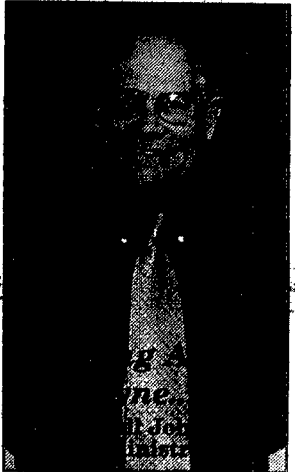

Okay. Be that way. This is just to wise you up as to reality vs. popular wisdom.

Think of it this way: Lots of freshman, minority party senators show up in Washington, and the fact is they want something from the majority. Not a really solid position from which to become a player. Nelson, on the other hand, has something that Republicans, including the Republican, want.

So, as they used to say when the dice stopped rolling on the floor in the backroom of Kelly's pool hall, "Them's the facts. Like it or not."

Looking ahead in Wayne

A number of projects are being planned within the Wayne community in the upcoming months. The following is an overview of what has and will be done this year in the city.

City Council.
City Council meets next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall.

Cable TV.
In six weeks the city library staff will assume the operation of the local cable channel #19. We will designate a phone number to receive community notices. We will again be able to play video recordings of school or other community events and will have the capability to display digital photos.

City Auditorium Renovation.
Renovation is planned for this fall. We are currently waiting for final word of changes to emergency exits the State Fire Marshal will require to renovate an older building.

Community Activity Center.
The building committee and the City Council are reviewing planned usage and structural options with the architect and projected costs.

Sewer Plant.
Harold Reynolds is planning early treatment again this year to control midge flies and odor during spring and summer.

Web Site.
The Council is planning a City of Wayne web site to provide city schedules, utility information, and access to meeting agendas, city codes and zoning regulations on the Internet to residents. The site will be hot linked with the Chamber of Commerce and school sites.

E911.
Enhanced 911 emergency calling should be available to residents in the Winside, Carroll, Wakefield and Wayne areas by mid-summer. Equipment is being installed that will record emergency calls and provide dispatchers with the address that E911 calls originate from.

Sen. Engel gives legislative update

On Monday we advanced a bill that will economically benefit Northeast Nebraska. LB 505 would allow the State Game and Parks Commission to spend $900,000 on a development project at Ponca State Park.

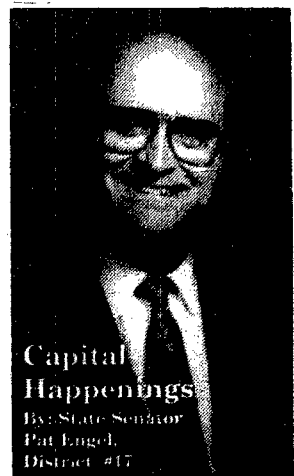

The money will come out of the Nebraska Outdoor Recreation Development Cash Fund, and no new General Fund appropriations are involved. Money in the fund is generated by the State cigarette tax and has been earmarked for State Park development since 1979. One cent per pack goes into the fund. The project would include a new educational/interpretive center, visitor center, group meeting facilities, office space and cabins.

Nearly $4.9 million federal dollars from the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers and the National Park Service have been committed to the project. The Better Ponca Foundation has also committed funding to the project. The State needs to pay for part of the costs of the planned improvements, which is what this bill allows.

We have been debating Sen. Nancy Thompson's bill that would ban smoking in restaurants. Many people have contacted my office in support of and against the bill. On Monday, Sen. Adrian Smith of Gering introduced an amendment to the bill that would ban smoking in a car with minors present. Sen. Smith said his amendment related to the same concept as the bill - protecting people from breathing secondhand smoke in privately-owned confined areas. His amendment did not advance. As of the date of this submission, we have not voted on advancement of the bill yet.

Monday we also advanced a bill that would provide tax credits to businesses that provide child care for children of employees. LB 433, introduced by Senator Dave Landis of Lincoln, would give businesses a non-refundable credit against their income taxes equal to 30% of the costs incurred by the business in furnishing child care service. I voted against advancement of this bill.

The Appropriations Committee and the Health and Human Services Committee have been working on a plan for use of Nebraska's share of the nationwide tobacco settlement. Nebraska is expected to be able to problems in Nebraska's system of mental-health services and to fund medical research

The Appropriations Committee heard last week that would permit the state to pay the tuition of college students who agree to teach subjects for which there are teacher shortages, such as math and special education. Funding for the plan was vetoed last year by Gov. Mike Johanns. The bill seeks $5.2 million over the next two years and would cover tuition costs of teacher candidates. The proposal would pay their tuition for each year they agree to teach in a shortage area after graduation in Nebraska. Teachers who leave Nebraska or change subjects before the contract is finished would be required to reimburse the state for their tuition.

We debated LB 400 on Select File last week. The bill addresses training requirements and licensure for child care providers. The bill would increase the number of annual required training hours and would provide for a tiered licensing system. The legislative body did not advance the bill to the next stage. I voted against advancement of the bill, because I believe the additional training requirements could become too burdensome on child care providers, especially for individuals who operate a child care center out of their home.

Last week we also advanced LB 270, which would allow for licensing of acupuncturists in the state. Currently, the only people who can practice acupuncture in Nebraska are medical doctors who perform acupuncture within the scope of their practice. LB 270 would allow people who meet specific training requirements to practice acupuncture in the state.

I will continue to keep you updated. In the meantime, if you have any comments or questions about any matter pending in the Legislature, please do not hesitate to contact me at my office: Senator Pat Engel, District #17, Box 94604, State Capitol, Lincoln, NE 68509; 402.471.2716 or e-mail tengel@unicam.state.ne.us.

Girl Scout Week celebrated

What can make millions of women admit to celebrating an 89th birthday?

Why the 89th birthday of Girl Scouting, of course! During Girl Scout Week, March 11-17, Girl Scouts from around the country will celebrate the anniversary of the organization's founding 89 years ago.

With the same dedication that the 12 initial Girl Scout members had in 1912, local girls will participate in activities that celebrate the fun and friendship that Girl Scouting provides.

From nature walks and learning Morse code in the beginning of the 20th century, to meeting with members of Congress and developing Web sites in the year 2000, Girl Scouts has always been in step with the times.

During the week of March 11, Girl Scouts participate in special activities and events. Girl Scout troops frequently conduct ceremonies in schools, public buildings and houses of worship, tracing the history of Girl Scouting or demonstrating what Girl Scouts are doing today.

Through a recent study conducted by the Girl Scout Research Institute, the organization found that although girls are maturing earlier than previous generations, they still very much want and need to express their concerns and dreams. Along with parents, teachers and other responsible adults, Girl Scouting provides a safe environment where girls everywhere can express themselves and obtain the skills to become confident women.

Prairie Hills Girl Scout Council is one of five Girl Scout councils in Nebraska and serves nearly 2,300 girls in 19 counties in northeast Nebraska. Girl Scouts is the world's pre-eminent organization for girls, with a membership of more than 3.5 million girls and adults, making it the world's largest organization dedicated solely to girls.

Mardi Gras

The Wayne Public Library hosted a Mardi Gras party last week for children. Those in attendance were able to paint pictures, eat cake and have juice.

Book Fair to be held

Would parents encourage their children's love of reading if they could? Of course. What's more, they can!

Scholastic Book Fairs will be coming to St. Mary's Catholic Church on Wednesday, March 14 to bring the best books and learning products from more than 150 publishers to readers of all ages.

The fair, which will be held in Holy Family Hall, is open to the community.

The Book Fair features traditional children's favorites and new works by popular authors and illustrators. Parents and teachers will find plenty to interest them too.

The fair is open for purchases as follows: Wednesday, March 14 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, March 17 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. and Sunday, March 18 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The theme this year is "Climb Up for a Reading Adventure."

Building classroom libraries is one goal of the fair. Visitors can purchase and donate requested books for any classroom's library.

This year's event will include contests, free prizes and several surprises and all are encouraged to attend.

Inhaled Steroids Are Life-Saving in Asthma

Our bodies produce a type of steroid known as corticosteroid. This is NOT the steroid used by body builders with the intention of boosting muscle mass. Rather, corticosteroids - such as cortisone - help us handle many types of stress.

Cortisone-like steroids have been used for decades to treat lung diseases, including asthma. They have been taken my mouth and, more recently, by inhalation. A Canadian study recently published in The New England Journal of Medicine concludes that asthma sufferers who regularly use steroid inhalers also lower their risk of death due to asthma. Persons with asthma who dies were compared to those who lived. It was found that the survivors averaged using about one-third more inhaled steroids than those who died. Over 17 million persons in the US have asthma, resulting in over five thousand deaths each year.

Livebait rigging 2001 is discussed

When I do seminars, I get a lot of questions about the best walleye bait for this time of year.

There are several baits or rigs that work well in cold water conditions, one being the jig that I talked about last week.

The other rig that I like to use in cold water is a livebait rig. It's not complicated, but it does catch fish.

Livebait rigs consist of a hook, line, sinker and a minnow. Pretty basic, but they can be altered to catch fish under all types of fishing conditions.

The reasons that livebait rigs are so effective is that you don't have a whole lot down in the water to spook the fish. You've got a snap swivel or rubber bobber stop, slip sinker (Lindy, Roach or egg sinker) and a monofilament leader with a small #8 hook.

The rig can be drug along the bottom, jigged up and down or just set there and it will still catch fish.

I use live bait rigs exclusively when the bite is slow and the walleyes are finicky.

When using a live bait rig and I detect a bite, I'll feed the fish line and give them time to draw the bait into its mouth.

If you don't feed them line, they'll have a tendency to drop the bait as soon as they feel tension or the resistance from the sinker.

Another nice thing about these rigs is that you can fish different conditions by changing the length of the snell. I've found that a longer snell is pretty important if you're fishing in clear water or working spooky fish. It allows you to position your bait either close to or a considerable distance from the sinker.

In darker or dirtier water, I'll shorten up my snell so that it's closer to the bottom. Fish in dirty water conditions feed more by sound than they do sight, so a short snell puts my bait right in front of the sinker that is banging along the bottom.

The fish can zero in on the sound to locate my bait.

In clear water, I'll run out to a 15 foot leader. This allows me to get my bait way out behind the slip sinker. The fish don't see the weight and the disturbance created on the bottom by the weight is far enough from the bait that it won't spook the red or chartreuse Buck-Shot Rattle Bead and then tie on a red #6 or #8 hook.

The rubber bobber stop lets you lengthen or shorten the snell by simply sliding the stop up or down.

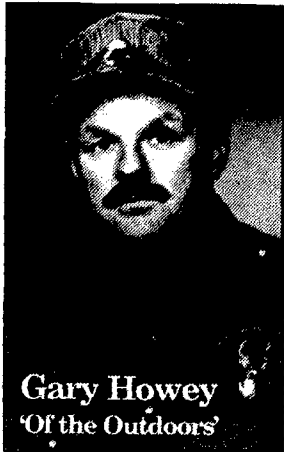

I use the colored hook as an attractant, it's not real gaudy, just a hint of color to draw attention to the minnow. This seems to make a difference when I'm fishing clear water lakes such as Oahe.

I add the rattles when I'm fishing very deep water or stained water. Under these conditions, the clicking sound given off by the rattles helps to draw fish to the bait.

Livebait rigs are very basic, the old hook, line and sinker. They deliver your bait to the bottom quickly, allowing you to feed line to finicky fish and with the adjustable length rig, you can change your snell length and the way you present the bait without retying your line.

Livebait rigging takes a little patience and it takes awhile for you to feel your way along the bottom with a livebait rig, but once you've got the hang of it, it's a deadly method that will help you to catch fish when other methods fail.

The problem with the long leader on a traditional slip sinker rig using a snap swivel is that once you've reeled in the line to snap swivel, you've got 15 feet of line and a flopping walleye hanging off the end of your rod.

You can hold the rod tip up and gain a foot or so, but you still have an awful lot of line out before you can get the fish into the boat.

To solve this problem, you can eliminate the snap swivel, replacing it with a rubber bobber stop.

Here's how to make an adjustable length live bait rig. Insert your line through your slip sinker and then slide a rubber bobber stop on the line in front of the sinker. On the end of the line I like to add a small

Colorectal cancer facts stated

March is national colorectal cancer month and in this year alone, the American Cancer Society estimates that 135,400 people will be diagnosed with colorectal cancer and 56,700 will die.

Colorectal cancer starts in the colon or rectum and before it begins, changes usually occur in the organ's lining. One change is a tissue growth called a polyp. Colorectal cancer most often starts as a benign polyp or growth that becomes malignant over time. Once detected, a polyp may be removed, preventing it from becoming cancerous.

Lodge members donate gloves

Science students at Wayne-Carroll Public Schools in Wayne will be safer conducting experiments in laboratories thanks to a donation of Kevlar® safety gloves by Wayne Masonic Lodge #120 A.F. & A.M. of Wayne.

Kevlar® safety gloves are made of an organic fiber that resists heat up to 800 degrees Fahrenheit, are highly cut-resistant, and repel most liquids. A crisscross coating on the gloves enhances grips for dry surfaces. The gloves last up to 30 percent longer than other protective gloves.

"Statistics point out the need to protect our children and schools from accidents in school science labs," George Eichenberg, Worshipful Master said. "The members of Wayne Lodge see it as our civic responsibility to participate in this program sponsored by Masons statewide to supply safety gloves and protect local students from accidents."

The Grand Lodge of Nebraska made the safety gloves available to local lodges through the Institute for Science Safety Education, a non-profit organization in Omaha headed by Dr. Larry Duff, whose dissertation research led to the production of the gloves by Dr. Duff and Gayle Ellison of the Institute.

Sharing experiences

Students from St. Mary's Elementary School recently spent a morning with the seniors at the Wayne Senior Center. A tour of the facility was given by Tracy Keating, Director of the Center. Above, the children visited with the ladies working on a quilt and watched as the actual quilting was done. While at the Senior Center the group also helped decorate cookies (below) and were able to enjoy cookies and pop with those there for lunch. The students also chatted with members and staff of the Senior Center about happenings in their lives.

Be on the lookout for carbon monoxide

When the weather outside is frightful, the fire may be delightful. But did you know it also could be dangerous? The number of deaths from home fires increases during the late fall and winter. Follow these simple safety tips and prevent home disasters.

The leading cause of home fire deaths is heating equipment. To help avoid a tragic home fire, never use lights or heaters with a damaged electrical cord and keep portable space heaters at least three feet away from anything that can burn. Also, be sure not to leave burning candles unattended.

Install a smoke alarm on every floor of your home, and test it monthly. Always have a working fire extinguisher within easy access and know how to use it.

Fuel-burning appliances pose another danger - carbon monoxide poisoning. Carbon monoxide, an odorless, colorless gas released by combustion, can kill without warning.

Signs of carbon monoxide poisoning include headache, nausea and dizziness. However, death can occur rapidly without warning signs, especially if you are sleeping.

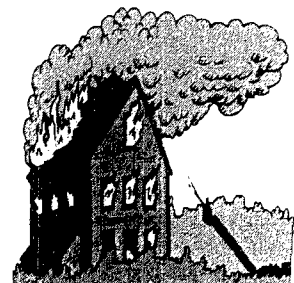

Protect yourself by having fire place chimneys and home heating systems inspected and cleaned annually. Leave doors and windows ajar when using kerosene or propane space heaters.

Camping stoves and charcoal can rapidly produce toxic levels of carbon monoxide. Never use them inside a home, tent or motor vehicle.

Do not use a gas range or oven to heat the home. Install battery operated carbon monoxide detectors on every floor of your home as well.

Severe winter storms can magnify the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning. Gasoline-powered electric generators have caused many carbon monoxide poisoning deaths after power outages. Never operate a generator in a basement, garage or any location where fumes can enter the home.

Deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning also have occurred in idling motor vehicles after a heavy snowfall, so always clear away snow from exhaust pipes before starting your car.

For more information on winter safety, check these Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Web pages: www.cdc.gov/safesusa/winter.htm and www.cdc.gov/ceh/emergency/cold.htm. sUSA - www.newsusa.com - (source: News USA).

Help can't wait

Imagine for a moment the thought of standing out in the cold watching your home and all your possessions go up in flames. Are the volunteers who were willing to be trained and then serve others in time of need. Red Cross disaster responders are on call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week - just like any other emergency response team.

The local chapter has assisted in eight fires throughout northeast Nebraska during the past couple months. Their funds are running low and they need the support of the community to replenish funds and build for the future to secure that they will remain a vital organization in this community.

Lori Carollo, chapter manager of the Wayne Red Cross, says, "The communities donations allow us to answer the calls for help when it's needed most and to fulfill our promise of WELL BE THERE WHEN HELP CAN'T WAIT! The money we raise is spent wisely - nationwide, nearly 90 cents of every dollar is spent directly on programs and services, a stellar record among non-profit groups!" Tax-deductible donations can be sent to the local chapter at 112 East 2nd Street in Wayne or if you would like more information, call Mrs. Carollo at 375-5209. She would be glad to speak to groups of any size or nature.

"The more people informed - the more people prepared to respond, both physically and financially," says Carollo.

family members all out and safe? Know what - where do you go and where to you turn now?

You can turn to your Wayne Red Cross because "they'll be there, when help can't wait!" Unfortunately, the local chapter has had to respond to a higher than usual number for single family fires during the past three months.

The two most recent fires were the Levi & Rhonda Webb family in January and the Carmela Lopez family just a few weeks ago. Both of these families will attest to the quick comfort that the Red Cross brought into their lives. Rhonda commented many times that she didn't know what their family would have done without the Red Cross. We offered shelter - a warm place for the family to stay. We provided vouchers to stores for them to shop for food to eat and clothes to replace those that had burned in the fire. We helped clothe and feed the Lopez/Vega family too.

But all of this would not have been possible with selfless hours of

SECOND GRADERS

February is just too short a month. Twenty-eight days is not enough time to do justice to Valentine's Day, Dental Health Month, Black History month, George Washington's Birthday and Abraham Lincoln's birthday. (Yes, we observe both the day they were born. How could we squeeze everything about those great men into one President's Day?)

We enjoyed learning about Mount Rushmore, the Statue of Liberty, Washington, D.C., the role of the President and symbols of our nation. As our study of what makes our country great continued, we wrote poems entitled "Important Americans" about the second graders.

We will continue the study of what it means to be a responsible citizen during the month of March as we expand our appreciation from our nation to Nebraska and Wakefield. Our main concentration will be Wakefield's history Jan Johnson is working with all the second graders on a magnificent quilt depicting photographs of the community. The quilt will be available for viewing during the Wakefield Institute on March 19-23.

SPELLING BEE

Mark Schroeder, a sixth grader, won the Wakefield Spelling Bee recently.

Other winners were Andy O'Neill, best speller in the seventh grade and Matt Erwin who finished third place in the bee; Lindsay Rawlings, a seventh grader who finished fourth and went to the County Bee, along with sisters Bonnie and Rachel Kluthe.

Rachel, who is a fifth grader, finished second in the contest and Bonnie finished fifth and also represented the best speller in the eighth grade.

The Oaks presently has 37 one and two bedroom independent apartments, 14 garages, and 30 assisted living apartments.

The proposed architectural plan includes 10 new independent apartments and 6-8 new attached garages. When all plans are completed, the Board of Directors will vote on the addition. Construction could begin as early as this spring.

According to Kaye Morris, Administrator, The Oaks has just completed an addition of 11 assisted living apartments. An Open House featuring these new units will be held April 22 and the public is invited.

Ann Witkowski, RN, center, discusses patient care with students in her class as part of their clinic nursing experience. Groups of students have been spending time this semester at Providence Medical Center in Wayne to experience in the rural nursing community.

Nursing students learn at PMC

According to Ann Witkowski, RN, MSN the Associate Degree Nursing Program at Northeast Community College has been in existence for about 11 years.

Witkowski, a member of the Associate Degree Nursing Faculty, reports that because of an increasing awareness of the need for quality healthcare in rural areas, it was decided to expand the Associate Degree Nursing student clinical experience into the rural communities.

"We chose Providence Medical Center at Wayne because we were certain that the diversified clinical experience at PMC would be of great benefit to our students," Witkowski said.

The nursing students and Mrs. Witkowski arrived at Providence Medical Center in January and will continue their experience at PMC through April.

Four to six students can be seen throughout the hospital on Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

Students actually participate in the care of the patients under the direction and supervision of a registered nurse and Witkowski.

"This is a true example of working in partnership," Witkowski said.

"To date this has been a very positive experience for the students and myself. The administration, physicians, nurses and all the hospital staff members at Providence Medical Center have been very receptive to us. Everyone has been gracious and accommodating. Patients have expressed to me that they are glad to see young students at PMC who are interested in nursing as a profession," Witkowski.

Northeast Community College at Norfolk serves a 20 county area in Nebraska.

March has been proclaimed as Red Cross Month

On Feb. 26, President Bush signed a proclamation declaring March 2001 as Red Cross month. President Bush, who also serves as the honorary chairman of the American Red Cross, asked that "each American enlist in the Red Cross 'army of mercy' - and give part of themselves to advance this organization's noble humanitarian mission."

The White House Press office distributed the proclamation to news media nationwide and posted it on the White House Web site. Local and state government officials throughout the country will also be signing similar proclamations honoring the American Red Cross and its humanitarian mission. Presidential proclamation as well as a sample proclamation, which can be used to customize the document for local and state government endorsement, are available on CrossNet.

Gathje part of Scarlet and Cream Singers performing in Norfolk

Jon Gathje of Wayne is a member of the the University of Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream Singers performing at 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 11 at the Johnny Carson Theater at 801 Riverside in Norfolk. Gathje graduated from Wayne High School in 2000. He is the son and Rick and Sandra Gathje of Wayne.

There is no admission charge for the Scarlet and Cream performance, but donations to support the performance are appreciated. Reservations are not necessary.

Scarlet and Cream is sponsored by the Nebraska Alumni Association in cooperation with the School of Music. The Northeast Nebraska N.U. Alum Chapter is helping to make this show possible.

This year's show opens with a tribute to women in jazz featuring hits from Dianne Reeves, Billie Holiday, Ella Fitzgerald and others. The set ends with an tap number to "That's How You Jazz."

Also on the program for this year's Scarlet and Cream Singers is a Musical Theater set featuring the singers' acting skills as the take on characters from, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Man of La Mancha," "Guys and Dolls" and more. The groups' remaining sets include music from the hit Broadway musical "Rent," an 80's set that is sure to bring back memories, and a vacation set that should warm up the state of Nebraska. And of course, no Scarlet and Cream show would be complete without the spirit of the Nebraska School Songs.

Scarlet and Cream is comprised of 23 full time University of Nebraska-Lincoln students, 16 singers, five band members and two technicians. They perform locally, regionally and nationally for around 15,000 people each year. This year some of the group's notable stops are the House of Blues in Chicago, Washington D.C. and the Colligate Showcase in Nashville, Tenn.

The group is directed by Mrs. Julie Enersen of Lincoln, who was a member of Scarlet and Cream from 1982-'86. She is assisted by Mrs. Amy Loch of Omaha who was a member of Scarlet and Cream from 1996-2000. Program co-ordinator for the group is Alyssa Hoffman.

WIT-to-Wayne State Day is set

Representatives of Wayne State College and Western Iowa Technical Community College will be on hand at WIT's office in the Southern Hills Mall in Sioux City (next to Sears) on Saturday, March 17 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. to provide information about the WIT-to-Wayne degree transfer program available to students at Western Iowa Technical Community College.

Staff and faculty members from both schools will be available to answer questions and discuss specific academic programs at WITCC and Wayne State. The WIT-to-Wayne transfer program is designed to ease the transfer transition for WITCC students enrolled in a degree/diploma program that transfers to Wayne State College.

Non-residents of contiguous states that participate in this program may qualify for a non-resident scholarship with a cumulative grade-point average of 3.0 or higher on all coursework, which results in a 50-percent reduction in the Wayne State College non-resident tuition rate.

They also receive a special WSC identification card enabling WITCC students to take advantage of services offered on the Wayne State campus, including recreational facilities, library services, non-tournament athletic events on campus, and other WSC special events while still a student at WITCC.

"We're excited about the WIT-to-Wayne program," said Susan Salmon, WSC director of admissions. "One of its greatest benefits is that it provides students at Western Iowa Tech an affordable, step-by-step transfer from their associate program to a bachelor degree program at Wayne State. Our goal is to make the transfer process as seamless and smooth as possible for them. We encourage people to come out and see us on March 17 at the Southern Hills Mall."

Herbs for Health

Older Antidepressants Often as Effective as Newer, Costlier Ones

According to new guidelines from the American College of Physicians - American Society of Internal Medicine, both newer and traditional antidepressant medicines are equally effective for many persons with depression. Older medicines typically are in the class termed tricyclics (e.g., Tofranil, Elavil). The newer agents include selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors, or SSRIs (e.g., Prozac, Zoloft, Prozac).

The major difference cited between tricyclics and SSRIs are side effects. SSRIs are more likely to cause diarrhea, nausea, headache, and sleeping difficulties. Tricyclics are more likely to cause blurred vision, constipation, dizziness, dry mouth, and tremors. Interestingly according to the new guidelines it is noted that St. John's wort may be effective against mild depression, at least on a short-term basis.

Pruning of fruit trees now will ensure bountiful harvest this season

By Brian Kai, member of the Master Gardening class

Having drawn the short straw, I am writing the first of a series of articles that will be printed by us who are involved in the Master Gardener's program.

When I inquired about how and what I was to write, I was told to tell about myself or my gardening experiences. About myself, I am a family farmer. I farm with my brothers and father in southeastern Wayne County. I have six children and my wife teaches grade school. So I have a high level of tolerance.

I enjoy farming, gardening, carpentry, mechanics, people and in fact, I am interested in about everything, kind of a "jack of all trades, master of none." So I am diversified.

My gardening experience comes from grandpas, (one had the neatest pocket watch), a grandma, (she could put a feast on the table in 30 minutes out of an empty refrigerator), and an old maid great-aunt who made donuts that would float up to heaven. By the way, that's how you can get a boy's and man's attention, food and toys. I haven't figured girls and women out yet. But anyway, this taught me respect

Have you ever noticed that you never look up in the winter time? I know that you are probably trying to negotiate that next patch of ice, but then again, you don't look at the horizon, the clouds, the trees, especially the trees.

This time of year I look up and take note of pruning that is to be done in the upcoming, warmer months. But, the subject I want to talk about is mainly those poor, neglected fruit trees, especially apple trees, since there are more of them than other kinds of fruit trees here in northeast Nebraska.

In my reading it was stated that pruning fruit trees is both an art and a science. So if you can stack cans, (art) and light a match (science), you're in. The basic tools required are a ladder, lopping shears and a brush saw. You can use a chain saw for bigger branches, but if your saw is like mine, the apples will be setting on before it starts. The pruning should be done in late dormancy or after severe cold temperatures pass.

Removal of cross branches is essential and lop all branches generally two inches away from their beginning. The goal is to remove enough branch area on the inside of the tree to let air flow through and let sunlight in. It is usually best to continue to walk around and look up into the tree because there will always be one or two cross branches I will miss.

You can't prune a neglected fruit tree severely in one year. I consider them to be like an expectant mother - be gentle. It is recommended that you prune for three years, a little at a time.

Other kinds of fruit trees are pruned similarly, but don't take my word for it, there are some excellent NebGuides available at the local extension office that will give you a much clearer picture of this process.

Barring a late frost, all you have to do is sit back and the fruit will be ready about the time you're on vacation.

Oh, by the way, I saw a robin the other day because I was looking up. Spring will come.

Structure key to locating fish

No matter what species of fish you're after, in order to catch them, you've got to locate them first.

Fish like all other critters in the world, look for certain things to make their life easier.

Food, security, comfortable temperatures and oxygen.

In the aquatic world, when all or most of these items are found in one general area, you've got a honey hole.

The key to the items I mentioned above is structure. Structure can be defined as any change in the bottom contour.

Structure can be a large change or a subtle change, no matter how large it is, fish will relate to it.

In a test, bass in a stock tank with no structure roamed around the tank aimlessly. When a piece of wood was put over one end of the tank, the bass moved under the board. When a pile of rocks were put in the tank, the fish moved in around the rocks.

To test the theory, a black circle was painted on the bottom of the tank and the bass moved in around the painted circle. It doesn't take a whole lot of change for fish to hang around it!

All species of aquatic life relate to the structure and the reason for this is simple, structure has all or most of the things fish need to survive.

Different species of aquatic life require different types of food. Minnows or small bait fish feed on zoo plankton. Zoo plankton thrives on rocks, weeds, and brush piles. All of which are types of structures, because they create a change in the bottom contour. The smaller prey fish will move to the structure to feed on the minnows and the larger prey fish will follow them to complete the food cycle.

Structure provides security to all sizes of aquatic life. Rocks, weeds, brush piles and other forms of structure give aquatic life a place to hide.

Changes in the bottom contour generally happen where there are current changes, weeds grow where deep water comes up to shallow water, which is a contour change. Rock piles, another contour change or "structure" creates a change in the bottom and slows down the current. This creates a slack water pockets which is a reduced current that allows the fish to rest and not have used up a lot of energy fighting current. The water forced over and around the rocks is highly oxy-

Gary Howey
'Of the Outdoors'

fish are relating to.

The first thing that I like to do when fishing a new body of water, is to stop by a local bait shop and see where the fish have been biting (Spot A) and what type of prey fish are prevalent in lake or river.

Then, I'll get a contour map and check out the depth of the areas that fish have been caught. I'll look for any bottom changes or structure that are different (Spot A) from other areas. If the area that the fish are being caught has rocks, trees, etc. I'll look for other areas on the lake river that have similar depth, structure or other changes and I'll check out these areas. The same things that are attracting fish to (Spot A) will more than likely attract fish to Spot B, C, and D.

By obtaining information from the bait shop and using a contour map, I can find an area similar that all the other anglers are fishing and avoid the crowd.

Locating fish isn't real complicated, you need to find what they are eating and the larger prey fish will be close by.

What they are feeding on will be relating to structure, the changes in the bottom structure or contour.

It's a process of elimination, look for structure, and eliminate unproductive spots.

Structure is the key to locating and catching fish, look for the changes in the bottom and you'll find the fish.

Finding recipes on the Net

There are several ways to locate recipes on the Internet. Here are some suggestions to get you started. If you don't have easy access to a computer, share this information with a friend or family member who is linked to the Internet and have them "surf the net" for you.

Many of these sites offer added features of letting you specify certain ingredients, preparation time, and nutritional content. They also provide cooking tips, definitions of food terms and much more. I have had good luck looking for recipes and thought that might be something you would want to try.

1. Use an Internet "search engine." Most web browsers offer a button to access various search engines. Just type in the name of the kind of recipes you wish in the "search" blank, such as "sweet potato recipe" or "bread machine recipe." Check for further tips at the search engine site on how to refine your search.

2. Go to Specific Sites. Many of these sites offer added features of letting you specify certain ingredients, preparation time, and nutritional content. They also provide cooking tips, definitions of food terms and much more. Alice Henneman, MS, Registered Dietitian and Extension Educator University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension in Lancaster County has put together some information on finding specific sites.

Osteoporosis Drug Fosamax Effective For Men

Osteoporosis is not just an older woman's disease. Twenty percent of those affected are male. Men are often overlooked when doctors recommend a bone density test. However, one in four hip fractures in older people occurs in men. In a new study men given alendronate (Fosamax) had a 7% increase in spine bone mass and a 3% increase in hip bone mass. They also had 90% fewer spinal fractures. Men taking Fosamax should exercise and take calcium and Vitamin D.

Adkins and Jaeger are named to alumni association

Megan Adkins of Laurel and Shannon Jaeger of Winside are among 35 University of Nebraska-Lincoln students named to the Student Alumni Association (SAA) for the 2001-02 academic year.

Adkins is a junior majoring in community health and physical education and Jaeger is a freshman majoring in biological sciences.

Sponsored by the Nebraska Alumni Association, the SAA promotes interaction among students, faculty and alumni for the betterment of the university community. Nearly 80 student leaders representing all areas of campus belong to the SAA, which works on several events, including homecoming, Distinguished Scholars Day and Masters Week.

The organization also administers the Student Enhancement Fund, an annual $25,000 fund from the Nebraska Alumni association. The fund supports interesting and unique student programs that create greater harmony on campus, enhance campus life for students, or create greater understanding of the relationship between students and alumni.

Salvation Army has new chair

Colonel Milford Hickam, Nebraska Field Representative for The Salvation Army announced that Rec. Mary Tyler Browne of Wayne has accepted the chairmanship of the local Salvation Army Service Unit.

Rev. Browne will be the Army's official spokesperson for all Salvation Army programs and services benefiting the needy citizens of Cuming County.

Other members of the Committee include Chief Lance Webster, Welfare Secretary and Ilene Nichols, Resource Coordinator. Hickam added, "Rev. Browne is well respected as a leader in the community and is most compassionate where human need is concerned. We are very pleased to have Rev. Browne as our leader."

Locally, The Salvation Army assists transients and local needy individuals with food, lodging, transportation, utilities and rent as well as some medical assistance. The Army's main funding comes from the Wayne Community Chest and through an annual mail appeal to donors and friends.

Last year, The Salvation Army assisted a total of 21 families and spent $1,724.71. "Many of the families coming to us are in dire straits," Hickam said. "We could do so much more if our funds were not so limited!"

One of Rev. Browne's challenges this year will be to assist the Army in organizing a Christmas Bell Ringing program such as they have in other Nebraska communities. It is hoped that churches, service clubs and others will get behind the effort. The bell ringing would take place at one or two major businesses in the city and would run from just after Thanksgiving through Christmas Eve.

Rev. Browne concluded, "We would welcome anyone who would like to be a part of the bell ringing!"

Chess and card playing require concentration

I can't believe it's time for this thing again! In fact, it's late. A fax machine gives a feeling of security, but something still has to be written before I can send it. I'm betting that the poor layout gals at the Herald are muttering to themselves, wondering where this is. I guess about a month ago, one I mailed went to Virginia. How does that happen? I try to remind myself that the miracle is all the mail that gets delivered correctly.

Myles and Jacey are here today, and Myles and Grandpa are having a game of chess. Alex and Thomas can also play this game. I can barely remember which way the pieces all move. I tried to learn to play chess when I was dating Mike. I soon realized I was never going to be good enough to impress him.

It's like bridge. You have to keep playing it to be any good at it. I once took bridge lessons with 11 other women. We met once a week, drinking coffee, and concentrating on the game. By the time I went to bed after each of these sessions, I was so wound up from caffeine and the mental workout, I couldn't sleep! I just kept replaying hands.

When I do the mental assessments for the long-term care insurance owners, the bridge players consistently do well. To be good at card games, you have to remember what has already been played. I never liked to play pitch with my Dad because he'd get very upset when I made a dumb move, saying, "Don't you remember what was in the last hand?" I usually didn't.

Obviously, in order to do that, one has to be quiet and paying attention. I'm sure you can figure out what my problem is.

When we were in Europe, we saw chess games in parks, on lawns. The pieces were about 24 to 36 inches high. The Big Farmer finally found someone to play one game with him in the Black Forest. He says it's very different to stand among the chess men. He spoke no German; the other fellow spoke no English. But chess is international.

Now, Mike thinks we need a set like that for the lawn of the Farm House!

Pesticide disposal program available

Nebraskans wanting to properly dispose of unwanted pesticides can do so free of charge during a statewide pesticide collection program, which begins March 17.

"This program is a great opportunity to get rid of unusable pesticides or products which are no longer legal to use," said Merlyn Carlson, Director of Agriculture.

Pesticides, including all types of herbicides, insecticides and fungicides, will be accepted except those in pressurized containers. Items such as tires, paint and batteries will also not be accepted.

New this year is the opportunity for farmers to dispose of old electrical transformers and capacitors from irrigation system renovations. These transformers and capacitors may contain PCBs and this program provides the opportunity to remove these materials from the landscape.

This collection program is made possible through grants from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Nebraska Environmental Trust, in addition to funding provided by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA).

In the past five years, this cooperative venture between NDA and the University of Nebraska's Cooperative Extension Division has safely disposed of more than 1.4 million pounds of waste or unwanted pesticide materials.

"This program is a true partnership between EPA, the Department of Agriculture, Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and the Environmental Trust," Carlson added. "The cooperative spirit surrounding this project also extends to those helping at the collection sites."

There is no cost to individuals or businesses bringing up to 1,000 pounds of product for disposal. Those with larger quantities will be charged a nominal fee of $1 per pound for each pound over 1,000.

Collection sites are open 8 a.m. to noon on the day they have agreed to accept pesticides.

Area collection sites include:

West Point, April 23 at Cuming County Fairgrounds,

Norfolk, April 24 at Madison County Weed Control,

Concord, April 25 at Haskell Ag Laboratory

For more information, contact Rich Reiman at the Nebraska Department of Agriculture at (402) 471-6851 or call the local county extension service.

Livestock assistance program approved for Wayne County

Direct payments are available to livestock producers in Wayne County who suffered grazing losses due to natural disasters during the calendar year 2000, according to Deb Pieper, County Executive Director of the Wayne County Farm Service Agency.

Livestock Assistance (LAP) assistance is based upon the value of feed calculated on a corn equivalency basis required for eligible livestock during a three-consecutive-month period where a minimum 40 percent feed loss occurred.

Eligible livestock are beef and dairy cattle, buffalo or beafalo, sheep, goats, swine and equine used commercially for human food.

Livestock become eligible for LAP benefits only if they are owned or leased for at least three months before the payment period. LAP payment period for Wayne County is July 1 through Sept. 30, 2000. To be eligible for LAP, a producer must possess beneficial interest in eligible livestock; report eligible livestock and grazing acreage; report a percent of loss of grazing; be a citizen of the United States of legal alien and have a gross income of less than $2.5 million for calendar year 1999.

Applications for LAP benefits must be filed at the local FSA Office

When producers apply for LAP, they will be required to provide the following information: 1) The number, kind of livestock and weight range of livestock owned or leased during calendar year 2000; 2) Acres, location and type of grass or forage used to support eligible livestock; 3) An estimated percentage of loss of grazing; and 4) Information about significant changes in livestock numbers, including dates when the changes occurred.
