Tornado safety information given

Since we are in the time of year when tornados and severe storms are more likely to occur, the American Red Cross wants the city of Wayne and surrounding communities to know that they are ready to respond in case of such a disaster. There is a difference between a tornado watch and a tornado warning.

A tornado watch means that conditions are right for severe thunderstorms and possible tornados to develop. A tornado warning means that a tornado has been sighted or detected by radar. Take cover immediately!

Some simple rules to follow are: Never take shelter in an automobile! Go quickly to the nearest shelter. Move away from the tornado's path at a right angle. If there is no time to escape, go to the nearest ditch or ravine and lie face down with your knees drawn up under you. Cover the back of your head with your hands. There are more specific rules depending on the type of building you are in: For example:

In School: Follow the instruction of the school administrators/teachers. Go quickly to an inside hallway on the lowest floor. Avoid seeking shelter in the gymnasium or auditorium. If there is time, open windows or draw curtains or blinds to lessen the danger of flying glass. Students must not board school buses during a tornado warning. Wait until the danger has passed and an all-clear signal is given.

In a Home: If possible, go to a corner of the basement, away from windows for maximum safety. If there is no basement, take cover in an interior hallway, closet or under heavy furniture in the center part of the house, if possible, take a transistor radio with you to listen to your local radio station for weather reports. Remain under cover until an all-clear signal has been given.

In other Buildings: Go to pre-designated shelter areas or to an interior hallway on the lowest floor, preferably the basement. Stay away from windows, doors, and outside wall. After a tornado passes, people should look out for and use caution around: fallen electric wires, open flames or fires, fallen trees or utility poles, damaged or weakened buildings, traffic lights not working, polluted drinking water, broken glass and nails, gas leaks and oil spills, flooding and looters. Always remember - take appropriate action!

Police get M.A.D.D. award

The Wayne Police Department received a statewide "Outstanding Law Enforcement Award" from Mothers Against Drunk Driving on May 23.

The award, presented to the Wayne Police Department night shift officers, Lt. Phil Shear, Senior Patrolman Matt Hoffman, Officer Brian Swanson, Officer Scott Miller, Officer Bruce Hoke and Officer M. George Eichenberg, was for their "outstanding commitment to the prevention of drinking and driving."

M.A.D.D. 2000 State Chairwoman Barbara Clinch and Allen Curtis, Executive Director of the Nebraska Crime Commission made the award presentation in front of 125 people in Lincoln.

During the award ceremony, Clinch said, "Our communities are so fortunate to have dedicated men and women who go to extraordinary lengths to ensure that our public roads are safe from people who drink and drive."

She told the group that in 1999, there were 125 people who died in Nebraska due to alcohol-related crashes. Of those, 19 were between the ages of 15-20 years old.

Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster said he was extremely honored by the recognition his officers received.

"When a team within the police department competes on a state wide level with all other law enforcement agencies, it is very rewarding to receive such an award."

Webster said the Wayne Police Department was one of three police departments statewide who received team awards, the others being the Lincoln Police Department and the Bellevue Police Department.

Diers is sold to Bomgaars

A long-time Fremont business will soon mark the end of an era when Diers Farm & Home Center is sold to Bomgaars Supply.

Robert Diers, co-owner, announced plans to sell the area's leading farm supply business to Bomgaars Supply, a farm store chain based in Sioux City, Iowa.

Family owned and operated for nearly 40 years, Diers Farm & Home Center began as a father and son operation, owned by Eugene Diers and sons, Tracy and Robert.

The first Diers Farm & Home Center opened in Columbus in 1958 and was followed by additional store openings in Fremont (1962), West Point (1968) and Wayne (1970).

Eugene Diers died in 1972 and Tracy Diers in 1987 but members of the Diers family continued to own and operate the business: Robert Diers, Tracy's son, Brad; and Robert's son, Kirk.

The business has grown to include not only farm supplies but also electrical, plumbing, paint, hardware, lawn and garden departments.

"We appreciate the patronage of our customers through these many years," said Robert Diers. "And we're pleased that they will continue

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

As summer begins, most school children are more than happy to put away books and any thoughts for school for the next few months.

Point High School, earned a Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1963. She has attended numerous National Science Foundation workshops across the United States over the years.

ence class. This was the beginning of the IPS program at Wayne High School.

Ms. Zobel has also taught general science, applied natural science, applied physical science and seventh grade science during her 31 years with the Wayne Public Schools.

She remembers one group of students who surprised her on her birthday with a present of a lab manual and a jar of sludge to identify. They were most surprised when she handed them her lab report with the proof of lab data and graphs with the correct identification of substances they had put in the jar.

"I would also like to thank this year's freshman class for their neat send off. They planned a party and I had no idea that anything was going on. It was a great last day," she said.

Contact with students and faculty are what Ms. Zobel lists as what she will miss now that her teaching career has ended.

She will not however, miss the paperwork and meetings involved with her job.

Ms. Zobel plans to spend time working in her yard and traveling.

Byron Heier is a 1961 graduate of Wayne High School.

He graduated from Wayne State College in 1965 with a Bachelor of Arts in Education and continued his education by earning his Master's degree in the early 1980's from Wayne State. He also earned 45 credit hours beyond his Master's degree.

Heier began his teaching career at Platte Center in the fall of 1965. In addition to teaching business classes, he served as an assistant basketball coach and the yearbook sponsor.

In 1969 he was the first teacher hired by the new Columbus Lakeview High School in Columbus. He taught there for four years and was also the yearbook sponsor.

After taking a one-year leave from teaching, Heier began his career at Wayne High School in 1974.

He has taught a wide variety of business courses. During his tenure, he introduced the first computer classes at Wayne High and was instrumental in Wayne being one of the first high schools in the state to offer computer education.

For several years Heier assisted with football and track. He also drove busses for 24 years for all boys athletic activities.

Byron is the third member of his family to retire from teaching at the Wayne Public Schools. His sister, Twila Wiltse retired after 27 years at Wayne Middle School. His brother, Darrel, taught at Wayne High School for 31 years. Byron completed a 35-year teaching career, 27 of those years at Wayne High School.

He and his wife, Barbara, have four children, all of which graduated from Wayne High School.

The couple plan to spend part of their retirement time with their children and three grandchildren.

Heier also said he will not miss the daily routine of school but will miss the students and faculty he

JoAnn Benschoff graduated from Pierce High School in 1957. At that time it was possible to teach with training obtained through the summer at Wayne Normal College (Wayne State).

Mrs. Benschoff taught for two years at a rural school near Osmond and one year at a school south of Pierce.

She was then married to Kermit Benschoff and moved to the Carroll area. There she taught at a rural school southeast of Carroll for one year.

Mrs. Benschoff then put her teaching career on hold for 13 years while she and her husband raised their three daughters.

At that point she went back to college and earned her bachelors' degree from Wayne State College in 1974. She taught Title I at Carroll Elementary for one year before becoming a fourth grade teacher at Wayne Elementary School, a position she held for 25 years.

Mrs. Benschoff has a number of plans for her retirement.

"We plan to travel and we love to square dance. I also like to do crafts and read and will do some subbing," she said.

In addition, the Benschoffs plan to spend time attending the activities of their nine grandchildren.

When asked what she will miss about teaching, she said, "working with the kids and visiting and working with other teachers and staff."

Things she won't miss are getting up early to go to work and recess duty.

Whitt chosen to receive teaching award

The Nebraska State Colleges' Board of Trustees selected Dr. Deborah L. Whitt as the 2001 Teaching Excellence Award recipient.

Whitt has been a faculty member at Wayne State College since 1987 and is currently professor of speech communication.

The system-wide award recognizes innovation and leadership in teaching and Whitt will be recognized for this achievement at the annual NSC board meeting held at Wayne State in November.

A Columbus Lakeview High School graduate and alumnus of Wayne State, Whitt earned her master's and doctoral degrees in speech communication from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UN-L). She also served as a teaching and research assistant in UN-L's Department of Speech Communications and later became an adjunct instructor at both Wayne State and the university.

During her tenure at Wayne, Whitt has been the faculty club coordinator, an associate forensics coach, chair of the Communications Arts Assessment Committee, coordinator of the Principles of Human Communication, chair of the revisions of the language arts program and coordinator of the Communication Arts Department.

Her innovative thinking most recently led to the incorporation of service-learning components into her classroom. Students in her class organized a fund-raising campaign for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and participated in a walk-a-thon to help raise money. They also developed an advertising campaign and organized a press conference to present foundation executives with the money raised.

Whitt also helped develop a health communication emphasis at the college in 1999. She worked with faculty members in the math and science division at Wayne State to reformat the general education speech course in a way that would benefit students going into health professions.

She has been an advisor to undergraduate honor students and master's candidates since 1988. Whitt also developed a new course for education in 1997 and developed a two-day national conference on family issues in 1994.

Last year she was awarded a $2,000 Teaching-Learning Grant to enhance instructor-student research collaborations. She also received a Distinguished Service Award from South Sioux City Schools for the development and delivery of intercultural communication for English as a Second Language teachers.

Whitt and her family live in Wayne. Her husband, Dr. Ron Whitt, is a professor in communications arts at Wayne State. Deb is the daughter of Ferd and Germaine Libbig of Platte Center.

The Teaching Excellence Award is a system-wide honor, and each state college — Chadron, Peru and Wayne — forwards one candidate for consideration by the Board of Trustees. Other nominees this year were Dr. Michael Leite, associate professor of science at Chadron State and Dr. Bill Synder, professor of business at Peru State.

The award has been given annually since 1985 and includes a $3,000 stipend, which is funded through an endowment by US Bank. The endowment, managed by the Lincoln Community Foundation, is in memory of George Rebensdorf, a former member of the Board of Trustees.

WEEKLY TIP

Heart Failure Blood Test Approved By The FDA

The early symptoms of heart failure are subtle and hard to diagnose. Shortness of breath often is a first symptom, but that can signal numerous lung diseases as well as heart disease. Almost five million Americans have congestive heart failure. The fifteen-minute test (Biosite Diagnostics' Triage BNP) will be used in emergency rooms where millions of people show up short of breath each year. The test by itself can't diagnose heart failure but it can point toward congestive heart failure or lung disease.

Main Street Focus

By Leo Ahmann

Just a reminder for you, Customer Appreciation Night is coming up next week, Thursday, June 14, beginning at 6 p.m. Downtown merchants and those not located downtown, will be offering you great in-store specials as well as treating their customers to free food (until it runs out) . . . barbecue dogs and brats, desserts, drinks, etc. It's a way for Wayne businesses to say "thank you" to their customers.

Last Thursday Jason Essel, a Design Assistant with the School of Architecture at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, was here in Wayne visiting with business people regarding possible facade changes to their buildings. This is a cooperative effort with the University and the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program (of which we are a member) to assist in the renovation of facade changes for business buildings. Jason did measurements and sketches of four buildings here in Wayne — First Realty, Grandmom's, The Magic Wok and The Ren.

In a few weeks these businesses will receive, at no charge, suggestions and ideas for renovations. This is the first step of a three-step process provided by the School of Architecture and the Main Street Program. The remaining two progressive steps are very reasonable in cost, with the possibility of a rebate at the end.

If there are other businesses thinking about changes to the front of their building, please give us a call at 375-5062. It was an interesting afternoon and I'd like to thank the businesses visited for their time and cooperation.

We will be accepting applications for the position of Office Manager here at Main Street until 5 p.m. on Monday, June 18. If you're interested in the position, or have questions about what's involved, stop in or give me a call.

Last week the city Council voted to recognize Main Street Wayne as the approving group for the message and design of banners to be placed over the highway on poles the Main Street Wayne Program will be erecting downtown in the very near future.

On Monday, June 18, at 7 p.m. at the Renaissance Coffee House, the Economic Taskforce Committee of the Main Street Wayne Program will be presenting a town forum to give interested community people the results of our Consumer Survey. The information will be helpful to the city, business owners and others.

The Main Street Office will be closed Monday and Tuesday, June 11-12, as I will be at a state Main Street Managers retreat. It is always enjoyable and informative to meet with the other managers throughout the state (14 full-time membership communities and 13 associate member communities in Nebraska), regarding what's happening in their programs.

A special thank you to Duane Schroeder and Pheasants Forever, for tilling "The Park," the area between Doescher's Appliance and Edward Jones Investments. You should be seeing continuous progress in that area.

Last Friday I had the opportunity to play in the Catbacker Golf Tournament. Somebody asked me after the tourney was completed, "how I hit 'em. My answer, "I hit them all right-handed." Until next time. . .

Capitol news

Playing fair in politics?

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Every so often something really annoying happens around and about the Capitol.

Annoying in the sense that it makes a fellow wish he could stomp on someone's toes, or something. This is not a reference to the usual annoying nonsense and blabber and piffle and lying and advantage-seeking smarminess that are part of government everywhere in the world. This is a reference to those things that are particularly annoying.

The instant case involves a guy who was standing around the Capitol rotunda with a sign. The message on the sign was intended to convey that taxpayers were getting screwed by a bill the Legislature was about to pass on behalf of the Union Pacific, mostly, and some other businesses. It was one of those economic development measures wherein the state provides tax incentives to business, in hopes that business will keep doing business in Nebraska.

The rotunda is where lobbyists gather when the Legislature is in session, to ply their lawful trade on behalf of all manner of legitimate interests who want lawmakers to do something, or not do something. The rotunda is also where all manner of organizations show up, carrying signs and banners and news releases, to make their case for various causes.

On this day, however, Tim Rinne was standing around with a sign that was aimed at the Union Pacific. It said:

"Memo:
To the Taxpayers of Nebraska
From the Union Pacific Corp.

(U.P.)
RE: LB620, corporate tax breaks.
U.P. YOURS"

Well, guess what? All of a sudden a 1983 state policy about signs and demonstrations came into play and Rinne was told to go away.

If that doesn't annoy you, fellow Nebraskan, it ought to.

There are two possibilities here. One is that a lobbyist or lobbyists complained about the sign, and then the Capitol security staff goose-stepped into action.

The other is that some security type employee saw this particular sign and something clicked within that person. Like: "Uh, oh. My guess is that we don't allow people to insult the U.P. and outfits like that. I'd better see what can be done to stop this."

Either way, it stinks.

Do you think anyone would have given Rinne the boot if he had been holding a sign that said: "Stop Supporting Lazy Welfare Mothers!?" As young people sometimes say in the vernacular: Duh!

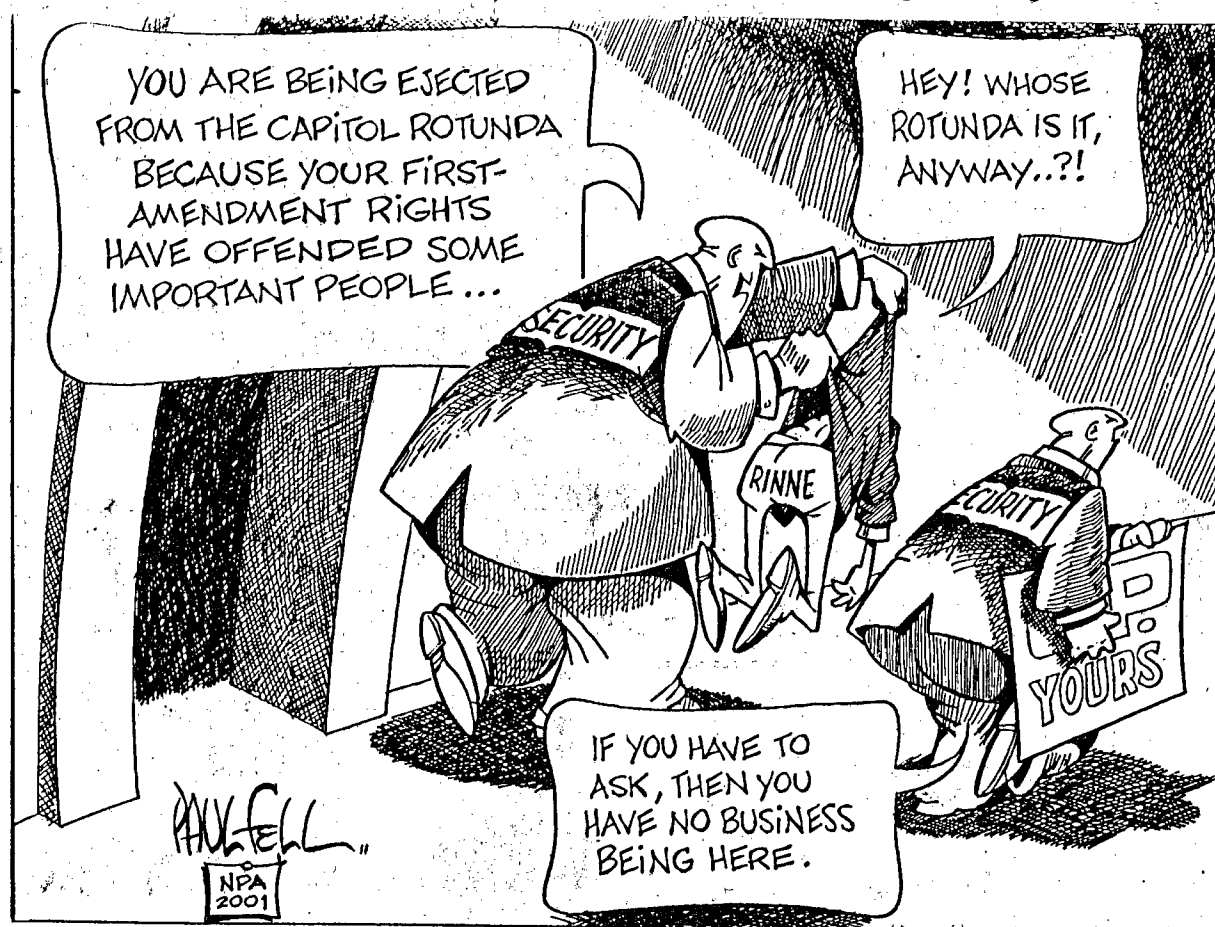

It doesn't matter if the U.P. legislation is the best thing to happen to Nebraska since the state began giving away its tax base in a tradeoff aimed at bolstering economic development.

What matters is the appearance of someone being run out of the Capitol because his cause was offensive to a powerful business interest.

This is not a suggestion or allegation that the U.P. had anything directly to do with Rinne being tossed. More's the pity. It seems more likely that Rinne, or anyone, could have been shown the exit for taking the name of any corporate tall dog in vain.

Don't feel bad if this deal annoys you. It would have annoyed Thomas Paine, too.

Paine was the patriot pamphleteer who wrote "Common Sense," among other things.

Legislature completes another session

After ninety days of hard work, the session has come to an end. We adjourned Thursday, May 31st as scheduled. Senators returned to their homes and jobs. Although I enjoy my time in Lincoln every year, it is always great to be back home in South Sioux City.

We accomplished the two mandatory tasks for this session: the budget and redistricting. After difficult choices in the Appropriations Committee and on the floor, we ended up with a balanced budget, as required by the State Constitution. The redistricting process entailed a lot of time and effort by the Redistricting Committee and by individual senators who proposed their own plans and amendments. All of the redistricting bills moved through final reading last week, so we avoided calling a Special Session as several other states have had to do.

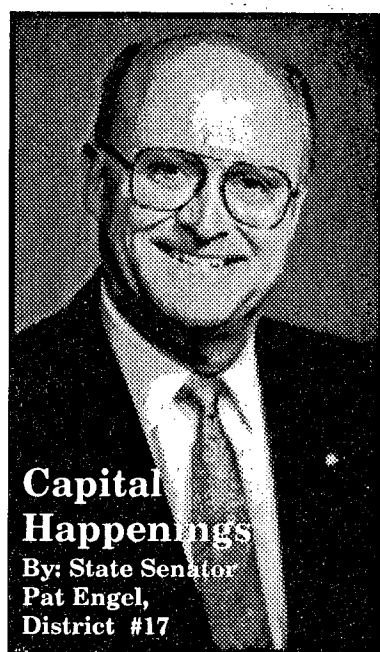

The Governor vetoed several bills passed by the Legislature. We took up motions to override the Governor's vetoes last Wednesday and Thursday.

Vetoed and overridden: LB 451 relates to juvenile justice and the Nebraska Probation System. The bill creates a uniform method of juvenile intake to avoid unnecessary detention of juveniles, which should save tax dollars in the long run. I voted in support of the override, because I think that this is an important issue. The Governor also vetoed the accompanying appropriations bill, which was also overridden.

Vetoed and overridden: LB 671 creates a $500 mandatory shipping license for out-of-state liquor retailers shipping to Nebraska. The bill would also require retailers to collect sales and other applicable taxes and remit them to the state. Out-of-state sellers are not required to pay fees or taxes of any kind. In-state sellers do, so this bill keeps everyone on a level playing field. The Governor also vetoed the accompanying appropriations bill, which was also overridden.

Vetoed and sustained: In an unprecedented move, the Governor vetoed a substantive bill without vetoing the accompanying Appropriations bill that provides funding for the bill. The Governor vetoed LB 24, which would have created the Nebraska Immunization Task Force. The Task Force would have been required to develop a plan to implement a statewide immunization registry. I believe that this can be accomplished within the existing Health and Human Services System, and does not require a separate task force. The study would take one year, and would require $31,000 in state funds. The veto override was not successful, so the substantive bill is dead. However, the Appropriations bill still stands, so $31,000 will be transferred to the Department of Health and Human Services.

Vetoed and sustained: LB 215 is a bill relating to regulation of real estate brokers. The bill was amended by Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha to prohibit real estate brokers from discriminating against clients on the basis of sexual orientation. I did not support the amendment, the bill, or the override, because I do not believe that anyone should get special protection because of their sexual orientation.

Governor Johann vetoed two other bills that were not considered for an override. LB 238A would appropriate funds to carrying out provisions of LB 238, which will provide for state licensure for emergency medical service instructors. LB 772A is the appropriations bill to LB 772, which creates a Nebraska Futures Center within the Legislature.

The Center would help track and develop long-term state policy. The Center will be valuable in the future because of term limits for state senators, which was adopted by the voters last fall. The Governor line-item vetoed small funding amounts for an additional staff member, but the Legislature should be able to absorb the cost. The total amount vetoed was $37,782.

Several other key pieces of legislation achieved final passage. LB 465, prioritized by the Revenue Committee, would change the structure and operation of the Tax Equalization and Review Commission. The commission's responsibilities include hearing appeals of property tax valuation and exemption decisions made by county boards of equalization. The bill increases the number of commissioners from three to four, and requires that two of the commissioners be attorneys. LB 465 passed 42-0. I hope that this will make the commission more effective and consumer friendly.

LB 536, sponsored by Sen. Cap Dierks of Ewing, would extend and modify an existing program that provides tax credits to ethanol producers. The bill provides credits of 18 cents per gallon for new ethanol plants in the state. The program is funded with a half-cent per bushel grain check-off and $1.5 million annually from General Fund. LB 536 passed by a 45-3 vote.

The detasseling bill, LB180, sets the minimum age for corn detasseling work at 12 years old. It provides for a 48-hour maximum workweek, and nine-hour maximum workday. The bill passed 46-1.

LB593 prohibits racial profiling by police officers and would create a pool of information about the extent of racial profiling. The bill would also require officers to record information on the drivers they pull over in traffic stops, such as the number of stops made, the race of the occupant and the number of citations and warnings issued. The bill passed 47-0.

As always, if there is anything I can do for you, please do not hesitate to contact me at my Lincoln office. Senator Pat Engel, District #17, State Capital, Lincoln, NE 68509; 402.471.2716 or e-mail lengel@unicam.state.ne.us.

Honor roll announced at Wayne State

There were more than 700 students at Wayne State College named to the Honor Roll for exemplary academic achievement during the spring 2001 semester.

Bonnie Scranton, assistant vice president for enrollment management at the College, praised the efforts of the honor roll students. She said achieving status as an honor student requires hard work and dedication.

"Honor roll students should be proud of their academic achievement," said Scranton. "In addition, the people who support these students such as parents, spouses, educators and community members should take pride in their achievement."

To be named to the honor roll, a student must maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and be enrolled as a full-time student.

Herbs for Health

St. John's Wort May "Interact" with Sun

A few prescription medicines have been shown to increase one's sensitivity to sun exposure. The result can be a sudden and painful sunburn after only a brief period of time in the sun. Now there is evidence that the popular herbal remedy St. John's Wort also may "interact" with radiation from the sun - but in a different manner. A report in the prestigious medical journal The Lancet describes the experiences of a 35 year old woman who used 500 mg of St. John's Wort each day for four weeks. She began to feel a stinging-type pain on her face and on the back of her hands following sun exposure.

The physician who examined her could find no evidence of sunburn. She complained of pain after light touching. Exposure to cold temperature caused acute pain in areas that had been sun-exposed. Use of the herb was stopped, and symptoms disappeared over a two-month period.

The author of the report noted that St. John's Wort contains compounds that can damage certain cells upon exposure to sunlight. Myelin in nerve cells can be damaged, resulting in pain.

Bowfishing is encouraged for those who wish to extend their archery seasons

When I first started using a bow and arrow, I was 10-years-old and learned to shoot a bow through the Watertown Parks and Recreation Program.

We used 30 pound fiberglass recurve bows and cedar shaft arrows.

At that time, there weren't many if any archery seasons, so we decided to try bowfishing.

Each spring the Sioux River would overflow and water would back up through the culverts.

The Carp would move up the ditch through the culverts into a low spot behind our house. It didn't take my brother and I long to grab our spears and wade in after the Carp.

It wasn't long before two young kids became bored with spearing, so we decided to try shooting them with a bow and arrow.

At that time, there really wasn't a lot of bowfishing equipment and we had more time than money, so we devised our own gear. We took a discarded tuna fish can, screwed it to a one by two and used Dad's electrical tape to mount it to the bow. We borrowed Dad's chalk line string, wrapped it around the tuna can and tied it to the "fish" arrow that we fashioned from a cedar target arrow.

I was now ready for one of the greatest adventures a 10-year-old could imagine. Stalking 10 to 20 pound Carp with a bow. It took us a while to figure out how to quietly sneak up on the fish to get close enough for a shot, but it didn't take long before we'd become pretty darn good at bowfishing and were getting a few fish.

Well things have changed, now days, we have several companies that make bowfishing gear, numerous species of fish that can be taken with a bow and organizations that promote the sport through tournaments.

Since most bowfishing is more or less snap shooting, a recurve bow still works the best. You don't need to pull the bow to full draw to get enough power to stick a fish, as most species have pretty light skin. I use a PSE BlackHawk recurve and one of my bowfishing buddies uses

 'Of the Outdoors'

Bear recurves.

The tuna cans have been replaced by large capacity heavy duty reels with heavy dacron/nylon line such as the Retriever Zero Drag Bowfishing Reel, Zebco 808 or The Brute reel.

There are several styles of arrows available to the bow fishermen. Fiberglass arrows seem to be the choice of most. Some prefer arrows with vanes while others feel that the vanes get in the way. Since most shots are at short distances, I feel that I don't need the vanes to stabilize my arrow. There are a couple of different blade styles available. They all work about the same as they have removable heads that allow the blades or wire to pivot which lets you remove the fish quickly.

One nice thing about bowfishing is that it can be done from shore or from a boat. Rough fish spawn in the shallow water and make easy targets for bow fishermen working from the bank.

Rough fish, those without a limit are the primary target of bow fishermen. Carp, Grass Carp, Big and Smallmouth Buffalo, Gar and Big Head Carp are the fish that most bow fishermen are after.

These species of fish create problems for fisheries biologist because they reproduce and grow quickly and destroy the aquatic vegetation, clouding up the water making it almost impossible for sight feeding game fish to feed.

The Big Head Carp population has exploded on the Missouri River creating another problem. Since these fish compete with Paddlefish for food, they need to be kept under control to protect the Paddlefish population. Big Heads can reach 30 to 40 pounds and will put up one heck of a fight when arrowed.

Most of these species make for some great eating when prepared properly. Buffalo, Grass Carp and other species when scored and deep fat fried are great table fare.

In Nebraska and South Dakota there is also a special season for archery Paddlefish with a drawing for limited number of permits in both states.

Paddlefish are quick and are only visible a split second before their powerful tail takes them away at unbelievable speed. Most of the time, you're shooting at a paddlefish shadow or wake and don't see the entire fish.

Huge Paddlefish roam the waters of the Missouri and this boneless prehistoric fish is probably the finest eating fish I've ever tasted.

The Bowfishing Association of America and The International Bowfishing Association are a couple of the organizations that promote bowfishing and bowfishing tournaments.

Bowfishing is another of those exciting outdoor activities that are fairly inexpensive and helps the archer to practice and bring home some excellent eating.

Puls Feuerbach earns vet degree

Jennifer Puls Feuerbach of Hoskins has earned the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) from Iowa State University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

Graduation exercises were held May 5 at Iowa State University, and 96 veterinary college graduates were awarded DVM degrees. Each pledged to protect animal health and promote public health as they took the veterinarian's oath.

Dr. Puls Feuerbach graduated from Winside High School as Jennifer Puls, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Puls of Norfolk.

With an interest in small animal medicine, Dr. Puls Feuerbach accepted a veterinary position with a general practice clinic in Anamosa, Iowa. Prior to veterinary school, she earned a bachelor's degree in dairy science from Iowa State University, and served as chair of the ISU Agricultural Council.

Nationally, 2,200 students graduate from the country's 27 veterinary schools each year. Iowa State organized the nation's first public veterinary school in 1879, and was the first college to offer a four-year veterinary curriculum.

According to ISU placement reports, approximately 14 professional veterinary positions were available for each graduating veterinarian in the ISU Class of 2001.

The individuals were presented doctoral hoods for doctor of medicine and recognized for scholarship achievement and awards.

Locally, Maria Eaton of Wakefield

Her first year appointment for post-graduate medical education (class of 2001) is the University of Nebraska Affiliated Hospitals, Omaha - internal medicine preliminary.

Megan Adkins

Adkins named member of honor society

At the 100th year Ivy Day ceremonies at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln recently, Megan Adkins of Laurel was named a new member and the Vice-President of Black Masque Chapter of Mortar Board.

Membership in Mortar Board, which is the only national senior honor society at the University of Nebraska, is a demonstration of the highest levels of academic excellence, campus leadership and community involvement. Nineteen outstanding juniors were selected for the 2001-2002 Mortar Board class.

Following a brunch at the Embassy Suites, the formal induction was held during Ivy Day ceremonies at UN-L's Student Union. Dr. James Griesen, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs and David Maurstad, Nebraska Lieutenant Governor, assisted in the program.

Mortar Board began nationally in 1918 and UNL's Chapter became the 12th national chapter of Mortar Board in 1920. Today, over 200 chapters form the national network of this honor society. At the University of Nebraska, the active chapter is involved with Ivy Day, Masters Week, Homecoming, Professor of the Month programs, Alumni reunions, People Who Inspire program and a gavel exchange with the Missouri chapter each year at the Nebraska-Missouri football game.

Megan is the daughter of Rick and Joan Adkins of Laurel. She is an ASUN student senator, Student Alumni Association member, Chi Omega activities director, a UNL cycling and aerobics instructor and a Dean's List High Scholar.

Getting the best buys

Most people are busy these days. They have less time than they used to for shopping and for planning what to eat. Much research in the last few years has shown that the way people eat has a lot to do with how healthy they are - and how healthy they stay. This research has also shown that eating a healthy diet, low in fat, high in fiber, with plenty of fruits and vegetables, may help to lower cancer risk.

People have heard the message. They've begun to make changes in the foods they choose and the ways these foods are cooked and served. Still, most people are eating too much fat and not enough fiber and fruits and vegetables. But we also want to do all that at a lower cost. Following are some tips for reducing costs while keeping good nutrition in mind.

Breads and Grains-Look for bargains on day-old bread and bakery products.

Buy regular rice, oatmeal, and grits instead of the instant and flavored types.

Try whole-grain bread and brown rice to add nutrients and variety to family meals.

Vegetables and Salads-Look for large bags of frozen vegetables. They may be bargains and you can cook just the amount you need, close the bag tightly, and put the rest back in the freezer.

Foods at salad bars can be costly. Some food items - lettuce, cabbage, onions, and carrots usually cost less in the produce section of the store than at the salad bar. But if you need only a small amount of a vegetable, buying at the salad bar can

Sandy Preston
Dixon County

save money if it reduces the amount you waste.

Fruits-Buy fresh fruits in season, when they generally cost less.

Milk-Nonfat milk is the least expensive way to buy milk. When using it as a beverage, mix it several hours ahead and refrigerate so it can get cold before drinking.

Buy fresh milk in large containers (gallon or 1/2 gallon). These generally cost less than quarts.

Buy fat-free or lowfat milk to cut the amount of fat in your family's meals. Note that children under 2 years of age should be given only whole milk. Meat and Poultry counter. Buying cuts of meat on sale can mean big savings for you.

Look for specials at the meat

Buy chuck or bottom round roast instead of sirloin. These cuts have less fat and cost less.

They need to be covered during cooking and cooked longer to make the meat tender.

Buy whole chickens and cut them into serving size pieces yourself.

Dry Beans and Peas- Use these sometimes instead of meat, poultry, or fish. They cost less and provide many of the same nutrients. They are also lower in fat.

Bulk Foods-Buy bulk foods when they are available. They can be lower in price than similar foods sold in packages. Also, you can buy just the amount you need.

TIPS FOR HEALTHY COOKING-

Go easy on fat, sugar, and salt in preparing foods. For example, make baked chicken instead of fried chicken or make baked cod with cheese instead of fried fish. You don't have to leave out all the fat, sugar, or salt just limit the amount you use.

Flavor foods with herbs, spices, and other lowfat seasonings instead of using rich sauces and gravy.

Make homemade desserts sometimes to save money and serve additional healthy foods to the family. Try a fruit crisp or a pudding.

Remove skin from poultry before cooking to lower the fat content.

Always follow food safety rules in the kitchen to make sure that the food you prepare for your family is safe.

Ella Berg honored with family reception on 90th birthday

Ella Berg was honored for her 90th birthday at a family reception on May 27 at the Winside American Legion.

The reception was hosted by Ella's children and spouses, LeRoy and Eileen Damme of Winside and Byron and Jane Berg of Englewood, Colo. and her five grandchildren and one great-grandson, Mike and Kim Forsberg and Mason of Laurel, Kent Damme of Winside, Jeremy and Kay Keenan of Sioux City, Iowa and Tara and Jenna Berg of Englewood, Colo.

Forty people attended the event, coming from Newman, Grove, Albion, Battle Creek, Genoa, Madison, Norfolk, Elkhorn, Laurel, Omaha, Winside and Englewood, Colo.

Jeremy Keenan read special events of 1911 and LeRoy Damme played accordion numbers. Byron Berg also entertained with a "special" number.

Day Camp and VBS held at Our Savior

Day Camp and Vacation Bible School (VBS) is ongoing at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne. Opening was held on Monday for VBS (4 and 5-year-olds, and kindergartners) with Peg Webster in charge and for Day Camp for grades 1-6 with Nebraska Lutheran Outdoor Ministries (NLOM) in charge. At Our Savior, VBS is held indoors with activities planned throughout the week. Day Camp is held outdoors with children being divided in villages (groups) with one NLOM staff member in charge of each group. Some of the week's activities include: on Wednesday there was a junior/senior gathering at the front porch which included songs and rootbeer floats, on Thursday there is a cook-out at noon at Bressler Park, and in the evening at the Industrial Park in Wayne at 7:30 p.m. there will be a family night which features s'mores being made for the group. At noon on Friday, families are welcome to bring sack lunches and eat with the children before the closing being held at 12:30. Dismissal will be held at 1 p.m. One of the goals of VBS and Day Camp is to help campers see how Bible and stories relate to everyday life. Shown, top photo, Day Camp opening and bottom photo is volunteers starting the week off with songs with the VBS children.

Birthday celebrations abound

Memorial Day weekend: cemeteries are decorated, lawns are mowed, alumni reunions are taking place, and farmers are scrambling to get the last beans in the ground. We've had lots of rain, and temperatures have been unseasonably cool. There are dark clouds hovering as I write (3 p.m. on Saturday) and the sun's having trouble getting through them.

I'm actually writing at the desk of Bess Streeter Aldrich, in her home in Elmwood. One of the volunteer things I'm doing in my semi-retirement is that of docent, once a month, for visitors who want to tour the house.

It actually gives me shivers to be here, with a big photo of Bess on the wall, her wicker furniture in the sun room, and her good china on the dining room table. I had coffee with her granddaughter two weeks ago, and I told her how much I enjoy these three hours once a month.

If no one comes, it's a welcome quiet time. Today, I've brought a book along. But first, I'll jot this down and get it to the post office because there isn't any mail on Monday.

I celebrated a birthday this month for almost a week. It wasn't a major one; then, again, at my age, they're all major. Regardless, I celebrated.

It began with a retirement luncheon for a co-worker at another nurse's home in Lincoln. That evening, we met Allan and Kay at the Cracker Barrel for supper.

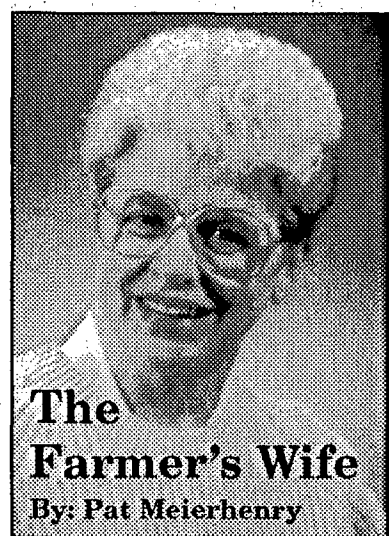

That particular restaurant chain has made "comfort food" a national pastime. I actually had okra, which I love. Of course, the guys had meat loaf and mashed potatoes.

The next morning was the advisory board meeting of the nursing program at Southeast Community College. Consensus seems to be that they are training nurses as fast as they possibly can.

I drove from Lincoln to Omaha and arrived at the airport in time to greet my "twin," who flew in from Phoenix.

When I was about 10, my Sunday School teacher sent names, addresses, and birth dates of her class to a church newsletter. I heard from three people who had birthdays the same day as mine. I wrote to all of them, but the correspondence with Marilyn never stopped. It waned at times, but never ceased.

By: Pat Meierhenry

She lived in the big city of Chicago! When we were both 17, she took the train to Lincoln and I picked her up in my Dad's new '55 Chevy. Folks on the train had entertained her with tales of the Nebraska prairie, where there was no electricity and no plumbing.

She stayed for two weeks. She dated an old boy friend of mine; and I taught her to drive in our hay field, using the old Ford I'd been driving to school.

She came back a year and a half later; and a year after that, I rode the train to Chicago to sing for her wedding. I remember how close her parents' home was to the neighbors; and how big the city seemed.

The first thing my birthday twin and I did was have a birthday lunch at "Art Chicks." "Art Chicks" is called a "girl friends' gallery" and is located in a big old building on the main street of Louisville. In fact, the building was once a hatchery/creamery kind of thing.

It's now painted and decorated in what I call "funk." There are high-heeled shoes in all colors nailed around the front door; photos, clothes, and jewelry from the 50s on the walls; and a garden full of metal sculpture, herbs, and fun things next to it.

We had reserved a table for eight; my sis, my neighbor Wanda, Dixie from the antique shop, and three nurses from the Care Center. The plan is to arrive early and head for Grandma's Closet. Here, we pick out hats, gloves, jewelry, and boas.

Then, properly attired, we head for our table. There are approximately 30 other lovelies at the same seating. Lunch is a tasty salad, raspberry tea, and a scrumptious dessert complete with birthday candles.

Then, the CD goes on and you "do the hokey pokey" after "YMCA!" I'm reminded of the sign that says, "What if the hokey pokey really is what it's all about?" It's all outrageous fun. Word of mouth has advertised it, and cars from Omaha and Lincoln stream into town. Sometimes, there are even buses. Look 'em up: web site is www.artchicksgallery.com.

That night, it was to the Loft Theater, our local community theater in a barn. All amateurs, and they always give a polished performance. There were buses here, too; even one from West Point.

Friday morning, we headed to Lincoln; had the flavor of the day at the Coffee Mill in the HayMarket, and lunch with my Mom. She was baking cinnamon rolls when we arrived and my friend says she still remembers them from her stay in 1957.

That evening, it was to the Omaha Civic for the Women of Faith Conference. This was something I'd wanted to attend for years; and always had a conflict.

About 9,000 women found a place to park, and began the evening with lots of music led by a worship and praise team.

For the first time at women of Faith, Debbie Morris spoke. Remember the movie, "Dead Man Walking?" Debbie was a 16-year-old girl raped and terrorized by Robert Willy, who murdered a girl just two days before abducting Debbie.

This was a powerful story, and we met her husband the next day and bought her book. The conference went on all day Saturday, too; and was very worthwhile. Exhausting, but worthwhile! And, I'm out of time, so will finish this up next week!

Summer

People seem to know we're talking about planting plants that use less water, but beyond that, it gets muddy, if you will.

Common sense tells us that zero-scaping means NO landscaping and that's exactly right. Actually zero-scaping is not an accepted term for landscaping at all, other than slang for "nothing has been done."

Xeriscape (ze-ri-scape) on the other hand is a term originally defined by the Denver, Colo. Water Department in the early 1980's and comes from the words "xeri" (referring to dry) and "scape" (referring to vista). The focus of Xeriscape is how to landscape appropriately for dry weather in dry regions, as a means to conserve water. In fact, the most common reason for considering Xeriscaping as an approach to landscape design is the water savings, and resulting dollar savings, potential it offers.

While some of us are still recovering from the heating costs of winter and the crazy fuel prices now, the thought of pouring a lot of money into the water bill this summer is disheartening. While most of you probably have your gardens planted by now, keep in mind that summer is an excellent time to evaluate your situation, look at other people's and places' plant choices and plan for any fall changes that would enhance your landscape next year. Planning is one of the most important steps to a successful Xeriscape because it allows you to install your landscape in phases, which minimizes initial expenses.

Soil improvements should be considered the bottom line in landscape planning. Most soils are improved by the addition of organic matter. This allows for better absorption of water and improved water-holding capacity of the soil. Soils that have adequate organic matter also provide beneficial nutrients to plants, as well as air for deep root growth. Improve the soil prior to planting and installation of irrigation systems.

Changes that may be made this year involve mulching and irrigation. Mulched planting beds are an ideal replacement for turf areas. Mulches cover the soil and minimize evaporation, reduce weed growth and slow erosion. Organic mulches typically include bark chips and wood grindings. Non-organic mulches include rock and various gravel products.

A well-planned and maintained sprinkler system can reduce a traditional landscape's water use by up to 40 percent. For efficient water use, plan to irrigate turf areas separately from other plantings. Landscape plantings should also be grouped according to similar water needs. Locate turf where it provides functional benefits and keep it separate from other plantings when possible so it can be watered more efficiently. Also, try to water turf between 1 and 10 a.m. for best efficient use, considering turf disease potential and evaporating high winds at other times of the day.

Turf alternatives include native or low water-use plantings, patios, decks and mulches that add to your property value, while they beautify your landscape. Locate plants according to their specific water and cultural needs. Try to consolidate high water-use plants to the most accessible and easily maintained portion of your yard. Then utilize the many beautiful low water-use plants available, in designated zones in the rest of the landscape. Use your plantings to create "rooms" or use areas in the landscape and be sure to allow space for mature plant size.

Watch this column for future Xeriscape plant recommendations and do your own research in the meantime by visiting parks and arboretums and sharing information with fellow gardeners. Seek out low-water use plant choices from local professionals like those at nurseries, the County Extension office and the USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service.

Happy Gardening!

This mass instructor training is an historic event for the American Red Cross. Never before have they set aside one day to train instructors across the United States. This supports and reinforces the Red Cross commitment that all instructors who teach CPR can also teach AED information and skills. This nationwide event will have a significant impact on the ability of the Red Cross to reach more and more people with this lifesaving training.

Feverfew for Migraine Headache

Feverfew (Tanacetum parthenium), was used as a fever reliever as far back as 78 AD. Now, this herb is used to prevent migraines by reducing the severity and frequency of the headaches. Other uses include relief of menstrual pain, asthma, dermatitis, and arthritis. The active ingredient is parthenolide which inhibits the release of serotonin from the blood platelets. Parthenolide relieves inflammation by inhibiting prostaglandin synthesis and the release of arachidonic acid.

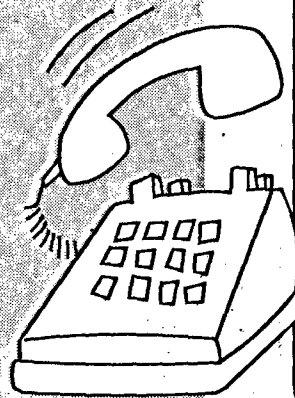

Few studies have been conducted on the use of feverfew for migraine headache prevention. A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled, crossover study of 76 patients showed a 24% reduction in the number of attacks, but no change in the duration of attacks. There was a significant reduction of nausea and vomiting.

In another study, migraine sufferers received either a freeze-dried, powdered feverfew extract of a placebo. Fewer headaches were reported each month by the individuals who received feverfew. However, headache frequency increased significantly in the group receiving the placebo.
