Council approves re-zoning requests

By Clara Osten of the Herald

Two requests to re-zone areas of agricultural land near Wayne were approved during the Tuesday meeting of the Wayne City Council.

The first of these came from Frese Farms, Inc. to re-zone a 20 acre parcel of land south of Wayne along Highway 15.

The second was from Chad and Marcia Spahr and involves a 10 acre parcel of land northwest of Wayne.

City Planner George Ellyson spoke to the council on the Planning Commission's decision to approve these requests. He indicated that he had visited with other cities similar in size to Wayne and felt that these requests were consistent with those in other cities.

Re-zoning property requires the passage of an ordinance and both of these requests were passed and given final approval, waiving the three reading requirement.

A bid for $21,552 was approved from Ned Porn Construction of Norfolk for the construction of new concrete for the Wayne Skate Park.

Construction is set to begin on Monday.

Discussion was held on the request for a change order for the fire hall to add additional storm drains. After the last heavy rain, it was noted that the ditch along Highway 35 between Pizza Hut and the Super 8 Motel was too full and backing up the water coming south from Sixth Street.

Representatives from JEO the architectural firm for the project, presented several options for solving the problem. They estimated the cost of installing a second storm sewer to drain the south half of the parking lot to the south west down the railroad right-of-way at $30,000.

Following discussion and conments from City Administrator Lowell Johnson, it was voted to attempt to do the work in-house with city employees. It is anticipated that this option would be much less costly.

Council voted to renew its membership with Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District. Annual dues are $1 per resident or $5,586 for the city of Wayne this year. The district is responsible for all grant applications and works closely with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development in business recruitment and housing programs. Following discussion, the council voted to leave the city's current stump removal ordinance as it is written. It was noted that public education is needed to help inform citizens of the value of planting new trees to replace those removed. It was also noted that a Tree Board could be beneficial to the city. A petition was presented to the council by David Lutt on behalf of his mother, Pauline Lutt. The petition concerns the number of people and number of cars residing at a residence in the 900 Block of Walnut Street. Lutt sited a number of concerns his mother had with the number of individuals in the house, the dirt piles and outdoor parties connected with the house since it was purchased by Mike Holcomb several months ago,

Several council members voiced their opinions on the issue, including the fact that seven vehicles at one residence could create a nuisance and that acting on this partic-at Tuesday's meeting. It will allow the application for assistance from the Transportation Enhancement Program for constructing segments of the recreation trail in the city. The council will meet again on

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

""A good storyteller is a person who has a good memory and hopes other people haven't." --- Irvin Cobb

CHRISTMAS???! Wayne Public Library normally runs its Food for Fines Program food drive during the holiday season, but we've decided to celebrate Christmas in July this year. How will the celebration work? For every item donated to WPL (from an approved non-perishable food list), patrons may have $1 in fines removed from their accounts. If you have no fines and would simply like to make a donation, WPL will gladly collect your items and deliver them to the Wayne Food Pantry. In thanks, the Library will reward you with a 50¢ fine coupon gift for your donation. Pick up the recommended food list at the Library. Food for Fines will last two weeks, from July 16 through Monday, July 30. Don't let the calendar food you. The spirit of the holidays can flourish any month of the year.

COMPUTER CLASSES are back @ WPL. A two session Beginning Word Processing class for Senior will be offered on Wednesday, July 11 and Friday, July 13. PLease note that you may not enroll in Session 2 if you did not participate in Session 1 This class is free but does require some prior computer competence (must be able to manipulate the mouse with ease, point and click, pull down menus, etc). Check with the Senior Center (375-1460) for further details.

On Saturday, July 28, WPL will also kick off a new, experimental computer class schedule. Beginning computer classes (currently Internet & Word Processing) will be offered on a regular basis the last Saturday of every month. These classes will continue as long as community interest remains high. The first class, Beginning Computer Skills & Internet, will be offered Saturday, July 28 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Class size is limited. Sign up now at the Library's Circulation Desk or call to make a reservation (375-3135).

The Library would like to say a special thank you to all of the children (and parents) who helped make this year's Summer Reading Program such a smashing success. And we are especially grateful to our SRP Library Page Volunteers who, once again, helped to create harmony from chaos on program days, cheerfully checking children in, helping them make their hard prize decisions, twisting balloons into animals and keeping both glue sticks and glitter in place during craft periods. Thank you Emily Bruflat, Amber Lutt, Stephanie Kay, Tiffany Gagner, Ashley Burke, Amy Hypse, Emily Buryanek, Ashley Gentrup, Leslie Hintz, Morgan Campbell, Keely Reinert and Tonya Wical. Join us again next year for fun and mayhem!

LOST & FOUND. The Library's Lost & Found box is overflowing. Have you lost anything in the past year? Check at the Circulation Desk. On Aug. 31, unclaimed items will be transported to Goodwill or the Salvation Army in Norfolk. Ask us! We might know where your ball cap, umbrella, scarf or beloved stuffed animal is.

The display case at the entrance to the Library/Senior Center is available for community use year round. In the past, service organizations, artists, clubs and special school classes have used this space to feature their wares and provide information about how their groups work in Wayne. The display is changed at the beginning of each month and the WPL invites community members to take advantage of this free and highly trafficked site. Do you need a space for a meeting in a hurry? Would your book club like to meet regularly at a neutral spot where no housecleaning is required? Think of the Conference Room located at the Library/ Senior Center. The policies for using this room have recently been re-vamped. Reservations should now be made through the Library (375-3135). Two day's notice would be nice but next day notice is accepted. The hours available are 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. or the open hours of the Library/ Senior Center, Non-profit groups will be required to make a $25 deposit for room use. This fee is completely refundable once the room has been inspected for damage. There is a non-refundable rental fee of $25 for for-profit groups. So whether you'd like to meet regularly or at the last minute, keep the Library/ Senior Center Conference Room in mind. Regular WPL Year Round Hours: Noon to 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday; noon to 6 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. From Labor Day to Memorial Day, the Library will offer Sunday hours from 2 to 5 p.m. No Sunday hours in the summer. Letters_ Treatment of players unfair

To the Editor,

The other team quickly lined up and had their photo taken, and put the medals around their necks, and hurriedly left the Fremont softball field, hurrying because of the rain, and hurrying because deep down they know they weren't the best team on the field that day. And, our Wayne 18s team watched in the rain, and wondered what happened.

Saturday, our 18s battled in the heat and humidity, and won their first two games, but lost the third. We lost because we had only eight players available for that game, so the automatic third out left three runners stranded on base one inning, and that other team hit into the outfield gaps caused by having only two outfielders. Despite that handicap, the Wayne 18s lost by only a small margin; but we did lose and went into the loser bracket for the rest of the double elimination tournament.

Sunday we battle and win our way into the finals, to meet the team we had lost to yesterday, when we had only eight players. The light mist and looming clouds foretold more than the coming rain; those clouds also foretold the fate of that other team. The Wayne 18s whipped them offensively and defensively, overwhelming them, avenging our narrow loss from the day before, Excited to have fought valiantly to get into the championship game, the Wayne 18s congratulated the team they had just beaten, and returned to the dugout to begin the championship game against that same team, who now had one loss too. An inning later, the rains began and the umpire suspended the game. Minutes later the Commissioner calls the game, and hands the medals to that other team

We don't know why. The championship game was never finished. In head to head competition, Wayne lost the first and won the second, and our total of runs scored was more than theirs. And, in the whole tournament, the Wayne 18s outscored that other team, trotting off with medals around their necks.

We're waiting to see if there is some rule, which justifies giving the championship to that other team, since only by such a rule, or by an administrator's whim can they claim the championship they never won on the field.

We were willing to wait until the rains stopped. We were willing to play them on another day.....the championship game isn't finished.

We're very proud of how our 18s played the games, how they battled back to the championship, and how they controlled their anger and hurt when the championship was snatched away from them. Our 18s can walk away knowing we were the best team on the field that day, and knowing we now have two goals at the State tournament in a few days.....we've always hoped to do well at State, but now we have an additional goal: we have some unfinished business with that other team

If former Nebraska lawmaker Vard Johnson decides to run for attorney general it could make for an altogether interesting election season.

This view doesn't have to do with partisan feelings on my part. It is strictly a personal/professional thing. As in: Personally, since this is my profession, it would be nice to know that there will be a candidate around who is virtually always quotable and usually eloquent.

Johnson was a Republican many years ago. The Ripon Society type, to be sure; but a Republican nonetheless. Now he is a Democrat. State Sen. Jon Bruning has declared himself for the Republican nomination. Bruning has shown himself to be capable of generating interesting copy, too. He fights with Sen. Ernie Chambers all the time, and once he jumped into an icy North Platte River for charity.

For the record, both men are opposed to crime.

Johnson compiled an impressive record during his service in the Legislature. This assessment includes, but is not limited to, his rebeing a fun guy to write about.

There was the time, for example, when he stood up with no advance notice and announced that he was running for the chairmanship of the Revenue Committee. This occurred about five minutes before the vote was taken. He won, too!

Have we heard the same song before?

Last November, I was pleased to see "bad boy" Clinton gone with his cigar and George W. Bush elected president of these United States of America. I thought it was a great day, seeing Clinton leaving an office that he had shamed and a fresh start for a troubled nation. Much was said about how a new sense of bi-partisanship was going to sweep politics. What we ended up getting was the same old song and dance from Congress and not much else from our new President.

If anyone can keep a scorecard on what is going on in Congress these days, they could make a By James Shanks million dollars. Republicans jumping to Democrats, Democrat controlled Congress throwing away the president's agenda, Republicans crying it doesn't really matter if Jeford left and became an Independent, and finally, Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle playing dealmaker, which he has shown he is not very good at doing.

See how confusing this can get and to top it off, the Democrat version of the Patient Bill of Rights sounds like a trial lawyer's dream and millions of people may lose health insurance due to high premiums. That's not Republican hoopla, that is exactly what I believe. But let's not forget our newly elected President who seems to have lost his way with his own agenda and has not yet shown the bi-partisanship he promised when he was elected.

I sound pretty upset. I am and you should be too. With a surplus budget in the billions forecast for this year, Congress seems to be saying "pork barrel" more and paying down debt less. Isn't it time we stop sending people to Congress who fail to keep their promises. Maybe we need to send everyone of these "gentlemen" to the woodshed for lying to the American people.

I know that's what would have happened to me if my grandfather were still alive.

The Wayne Herald, Thursday, July 12, 2001 Back seat anglers can get non boating blues

Most anglers know what being back seated means! It means that the angler in the back of the boat is put at a disadvantage.

When I fished bass tournaments down south, I ran into guys that were professionals at it.

Well, the worst example of being back seated to me this last week, I was fishing a partner tournament and I back seated myself.

Sounds impossible, well it isn't! My partner who was running the trolling motor was working a breakline between 7 to 10 feet. He was fishing off the deep side of the boat and I was working the shallow side.

We were moving pretty quickly down river and I made a major mistake. We were dragging bottom bouncers and spinners, which were almost identical. The only difference was that I had chose to use a bigger Colorado blade on my spinner.

I had figured since the water was dirty that I needed more flash and vibration to attract the walleye. What I hadn't figured was that the larger blade at faster speed would rise off the bottom.

I had a terrible time finding the bottom and as you know, if you're after walleyes you need to be on the bottom.

With the larger Colorado blade, my spinner and crawler was grabbing more water and lifting my bait high off the bottom and at times lift up my light bottom bouncer.

In order to get my bait down, I had to let out a lot of line, which put me so far behind the boat that I wasn't able to follow the contours and keep my crawler in the fish

I should have used a smaller blade and kept my bait closer to the bottom and along the contour. When my partner tuned out to stay in contact with the contour line, my larger Colorado blade sped up and would lift up my lighter bottom bouncer and spinner up off the bottom out of the fish catching zone.

I could have solved the problem by going to a heavier bottom bouncer, but didn't want to take my bait out of the water any more than I had to.

My Grandpa Menkveld always told me, "you can't catch fish unless your bait's in the water!" Which is true, but if it's the wrong bait, you're just dragging bottom!

If we would have been drifting and fishing out of the same side of the boat, the Colorado blade would have been the ticket in the dirty water because it would have been turning slower and creating more vibration and flash.

The same thing happens when two anglers are trolling crank baits. One angler will be fishing shallower water than his partner, so he should be using a shallower running lure.

The angler on the shallow side should be using a shallow diving #5 or #7 Shad Rap or something similar while the angler in the deeper water should be running a deeper diving #7 or #9 Shad Rap.

In the angler trolling shallow is using the same size crankbait as the deep water angler, either he'll be hung up much of the time or scare the shallow water fish by beating the bottom to death,

Another way that anglers back seat themselves is by not paying attention to what the fish are trying to tell you.

When you're trolling crankbaits, the boat makes a turn and the outside rod catches fish on the turn, this means that the fish want a faster moving bait. As the boat runs, the outside bait will speed up and the inside bait will slow down. If the inside bait takes the fish, slow down your trolling speed.

Speed is pretty important no matter what type of bait you're using. There are days when fish want a slow presentation or a quicker more active presentation.

Generally when trolling, I like to run about 1 1/2 to 2 M.P. H.

When I drift, I like to keep the boat moving just a little faster than the current. If I'm using a spinner, I'll need to move just fast enough so of the boat and things aren't worktell if the spinner is working right by moving too fast your rod tip won't vibrate as the spinner turns.

The next time you're in the back friend, neighbor or kid fishing.

that the spinner will work. You can ing out the way you planned, think about these things and it may help watching your rod tip, if you're you to keep from back seating yourself

Sav-Mor Pharmacy Diet + Exercise: Good "Medicine"

to Reduce Diabetes Risk

Type 2 diabetes typically begins after age 40 in sedentary overweight, persons who became resistant to insulin in their bodies. The disease often is devastating to the body's small blood vessels. But the good news is that the risk of developing type 2 diabetes may be reduced dramatically with simple changes in diet and regular exercise.

The New England Journal of Medicine discusses a Finnish study in which prime candidates for type 2 diabetes were counseled one-on-one on diet and exercise. Patients visited with a nutritionist 7 times during the first year and 4 times a year thereafter. Suggestions given included exercising regularly, eating less food, and eating fiberrich fruits, vegetables, oatmeal, and bran cereal. In the group that was counseled, there was a 58% reduction in diabetes risk as compared to another group of individuals who were given printed information but not counseled. الدي تو الأرج

Group to visit Canada

Nearly 450 young people and adult sponsors from 50 congregations and colleges across the state will leave Waverly High School (near Lincoln), on Sunday, July 15 and travel to Thunder Bay, Ontario for a youth servant event.

Those traveling with the group from Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne will be Brittany Burke, Ashley Karel, Lisa Miller, Katie Olson, Ray Olson and Pastor Kevin Ruffcorn.

Generous sponsors will send the group off with a meal and a prayer. During the journey, Peder Eide will be the trip musician, moving from bus to bus to share his music. Youth and sponsors will be trained in Peer Ministry techniques on each bus, as well.

Peder ministers to more than 70,000 students a year in 34 different states and Canada through gatherings, festival conferences, camps and conventions. He will perform a concert in Thunder Bay.

Peer Ministry techniques include caring ministry skills that empower young people for service in and through their congregations. Putting knowledge to work Saving for Future spending

Are you ready for retirement? For your child's college tuition? Being financially secure means being able to handle your expenses now. It also means planning for your future expenses.

Create a savings system that works for you. If you don't see the money, you'll be less tempted to spend it. For example, consider having money automatically transferred into an emergency or other savings account each month. Have the money transferred into savings before you get your paycheck. If that employer offers a retirement savings plan, try to participate as much, and as soon as possible.

Look for ways to save money Have you even stoped to think about how much money your family spends daily on "treats" such as beverages, snacks, or eating out. How much is spent in one year? How much money could be saved if these treats were brought from home?

--- Think about other ways you could save:

*Maintain your house. Make minor repairs so they don't become major ones. Do the work yourself or trade skills with someone else.

*Be careful about long distance calls. Before making the call, list parts will cost in comparison to the price of the item.

*To protect both your health and the pocketbook, emphasize nutritious food buys. *Use coupons and special sales to buy items you normally would buy anyway.

*Set a limit on spending for holidays and birthdays. Consider giving time and/or services instead of money or gifts.

*Replace a recreational activity that costs money with a "free" alternative like public celebrations and festivities.

*Cut down on the use of disposable products in your household.

*Consider second-hand outlets as clothing sources, and also as places to recycle useable clothing the family no longer wants or needs.

Scents evoke memories

Herald

My latest issue of "Health" magazine has a provocative article on Scents; the importance of smell, especially to evoke memories.

STREET STREET

The article begins by saying that the author hangs her sheets outside once a week; thus transporting herself to the farm where she grew up when she retrieves them.

I try to hang sheets out here when I can. I agree that the sunlight smell in them is wonderful stuff. And, the use of aroma therapy is an interesting topic.

But, my question to this author is: where do you live that you can have a clothesline?

I first heard of neighborhood covenants 30 years ago when my cousin Lyn built a new home in Millard. We visited, and admired. I noticed there weren't any clotheslines, and was informed that they were not allowed.

I couldn't believe it! Sure, my dryer was a special appliance, especially in winter and with cloth diapers. But, surely every home had to have a clothesline.

Drive around in any new development in any city. You won't see one. My Mom moved to a condo a few years ago, and can't have one. Even Doonsbury noticed. The parents in the column moved into a town house, put up a clothesline, and were promptly told to take it down. They put up a fight, which made for some funny columns, but they couldn't win. The covenants are stated, in print, when you buy. Last week, several of us gathered in Jon's condo at the Lake of the Ozarks. I came back from the pool, changed clothes, and hung my towel on the railing. Pretty soon, there was a knock on the door, with the manager reminding us were were not to hang things on the rails!

It's too much for me. My current line is one of the "square round" ones; and I get frustrated hanging sheets because I can't get them out in a nice tight line, as they should, be. But, they smell the same when I get them in.

Anyway, the article was very interesting. It says the survival of the species still may depend on our ability to detect odors. Smell is believed to be the most highly developed sense at birth; a crying infant recognizes the unique odor of her mother's milk and can be calmed with a piece of her clothing. A psychologist found that the smell of certain products, like Johnson's baby powder and Vick's Vapo-Rub, brought more profoundly emotional childhood memories than did pictures of the same products:

Appreciate our noses, and our clotheslines!

LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Cattle need to be monitored

Periods of cool, wet weather followed by hot spells can spell disaster for feedlot cattle, because they may not be able to adjust to the rapid change in temperatures. Producers should take steps to ward off heat stress in cattle and watch for signs that it may be occurring, a University of Nebraska beef specialist said.

"When the average temperature rises by 10 degrees Fahrenheit or more in less than two weeks, cattle have a hard time adjusting," said Terry Mader, beef specialist at NU's Haskell Agricultural Lab near Concord.

Also, when the temperature is above 90 degrees and the humidity is above 50 percent, cattle have difficulty handling the heat."

Dry surfaces in feed yards can radiate heat up to 140 degrees on sunny days, Mader said.

"There are very few places that cattle can dissipate heat on a hot, sunny day," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources animal scientist said. "A cooler, damp surface can help take some heat away from the animal's body."

In an emergency, the animals can be sprayed with a mist of water to cool them down.

"Once you start doing that, though, you have to keep doing it," Mader said, "By spraying them and using evaporative cooling, you limit the animals' ability to adapt to the a heat. That's why this is an emergency step.

Restricting food intake to 85 percent of normal can lower the metabolic rate and keep cattle cooler, he said. This step works best when implemented about a week before temperatures are expected to rise.

Since metabolic rate can play an important role in how cattle regulate their body temperatures, Mader suggested producers feed the majority of the ration in the late afternoon or evening.

"Feeding later in the day shifts the major metabolic period to evening or night, which results in less stress," he said. "If you feed in the morning, the animal must handle the peak metabolic heat load along with the peak climactic heat load. We see the greatest heat stress problems when cattle consume large amounts of feed in the morning, then body temperatures shoot up in the afternoons if climactic temperatures rise rapidly."

Mader recommended cattle that will be finished in July or August be fed or located in pens away from shelters or windbreaks. This allows more air flow and enhanced evaporative cooling.

Supplying ample watering points also is key in preventing heat stress. "Producers should add extra tanks and double the watering capacity if possible," Mader said. "It's important for all cattle to be able to get a drink. The animals also dip their tongues and noses in the water to help dissipate heat." Minimizing other stresses can be helpful, too, he said. "New arrivals in the feedlot add stress for cattle, so watch for signs of heat stress when new animals are introduced," Mader said. "Also attempt to eliminate standing shallow water areas in which flies are likely to breed. Apply fly sprays when necessary." Signs of heat stress in cattle include elevated respiration or panting. The animals also may bunch together, which only adds to the problem since bunching reduces air flow to the body. Animals with weak immune systems often are the first to be affected.

"The greatest danger to cattle comes when it rains and then one to three days later it gets hot outside," Mader said: "When there is heat, high humidity and little cloud cover, producers should be vigilant about watching for signs of heat stress."

The Willow Bowl with its amphitheater will be an ideal location for the Chicken Show events

Hosting the Wayne Chicken Show on our campus will provide the opportunity for many families and individuals to get a first-hand look at Wayne State College. We're proud of our college and the community of Wayne. Visitors from around the state, the nation and the world will not only have a day of fun, but will also have a chance to enjoy our

The Chicken Show is finally here!

By Karin Vaughn

Executive Director, Wayne Chamber

The Wayne Chicken Show is here and the Chicken Show Council has been eating, sleeping and breathing the event.

As many of you are aware, the council has made the decision to move the events on Saturday to Wayne State College. The process began well over a year ago in an effort to make the Chicken Show an even more enjoyable event.

> 1 3/4 Miles North on Hwy. 15 375-3535 Toll Free 1-800-672-3313

There were many factors that led to this decision by the council. Some of date a growing number of participants and activities, safety concerns, accessibility for handicapped and elderly populations, parking for chartered buses bringing tour groups and problems needed to be addressed after the "wrapup" meetings we held following both shows in 1999 and 2000. These concerns, along with other suggestions were brought to our attention and upon review, the council deemed this move necessary. See HERE, Page 7

If you will recall, the council suggested different ideas to the community for this relocation, which included downtown, the fairgrounds and areas at the college. The response was a desire to keep green space (grassy areas) and shade.

With those predominant requests in mind, the college seemed to be the best location. The final destination of the Willow Bowl was chosen due to the natural stage area, trees surrounding the Willow Bowl and other accommodations which will help the event to run smoothly.

A proposal was drawn up last fall and presented to the President, Vice-Presidents and Directors of several departments at the college. They viewed the move as being beneficial to both parties and offered their support for the project Once approval was given, plans began to work out the 'ngistics of the move, lay out of activities and general operations for the 2001 Chicken Show. This involved contacting the 20 different organizations that are involved with putting on different. aspects of the event. We needed to find out if they would support this type of move and identify their needs and concerns.

Once approval was given and the information obtained, the council started diligently working to make it a reality. As they worked, the pieces of the puzzle seemed to fit together effortlessly. Things were clicking, making sense and the council's enthusiasm for the project has continued to grow.

There are several new and exciting things happening with the event. First, Main Street Wayne has agreed to organize the events, downtown, on Henoween, which will provide more resources and support. As a result, some of the new activities you will see include games and events for the teenagers, a window-decorating contest for the businesses, teen dance and chicken dance contest.

Saturday, at the college, two shuttles that hold 50 passengers each, will run a route around the campus to pick people up from the parking areas and drop them off closer to the activities.

The quilt show will be moved from the Masonic Lodge to the Lutheran Student Services building on Tenth Street.

The schedule of activities has been adjusted to help things run smoothly. The parade begins at 10 a.m. instead of 10:30 and all of the contests (except for the Rooster Crowing Contest) will begin at 1:30 p.m. Each contest has not been assigned a specific time, because we never know how many entries there will be for each and therefore can never stay on schedule. Instead, they will follow one right after the other, starting with the Chicken Flying Meet.

There are some new additions to the Chicken Show "Cluck"tibles which include lapel pins, frisbees and souvenir bags (great for collecting candy from the parade and items from the vendors).

In addition to all these exciting changes, we have also been receiving national and international attention. The Chicken Show has been featured in Country Discoveries, a national publication, and is scheduled to be featured in AAA Home and Away Magazine and the Navigator, an in-room magazine for Holiday Inn Express.

The Hard-Boiled Egg Eating Contest has been getting a lot of attention, too, this year. Our Champion Eater, Eric Smith, who holds the title for most eggs eaten in two minutes, has had two guest appearances. First, Eric was flown to Los Angeles, Calif. by a Japanese Television Production Company to compete against people from across the nation. Although Eric placed fifth, the winner went to Japan to compete against their champion eater. The second event was on a very popular talk show from Chicago, III. called The Man Cow Show.

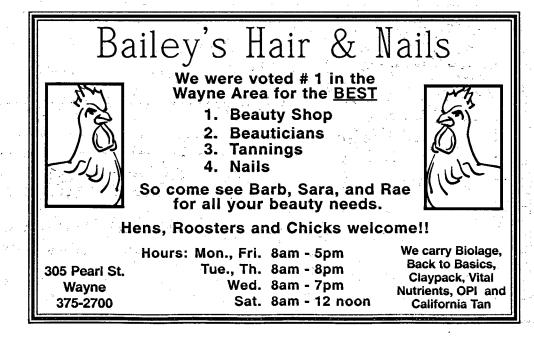

We have also received inquiries on our event from India and Korea. The last two years we have had people from at least 10 different countries at the Wayne Chicken Show.

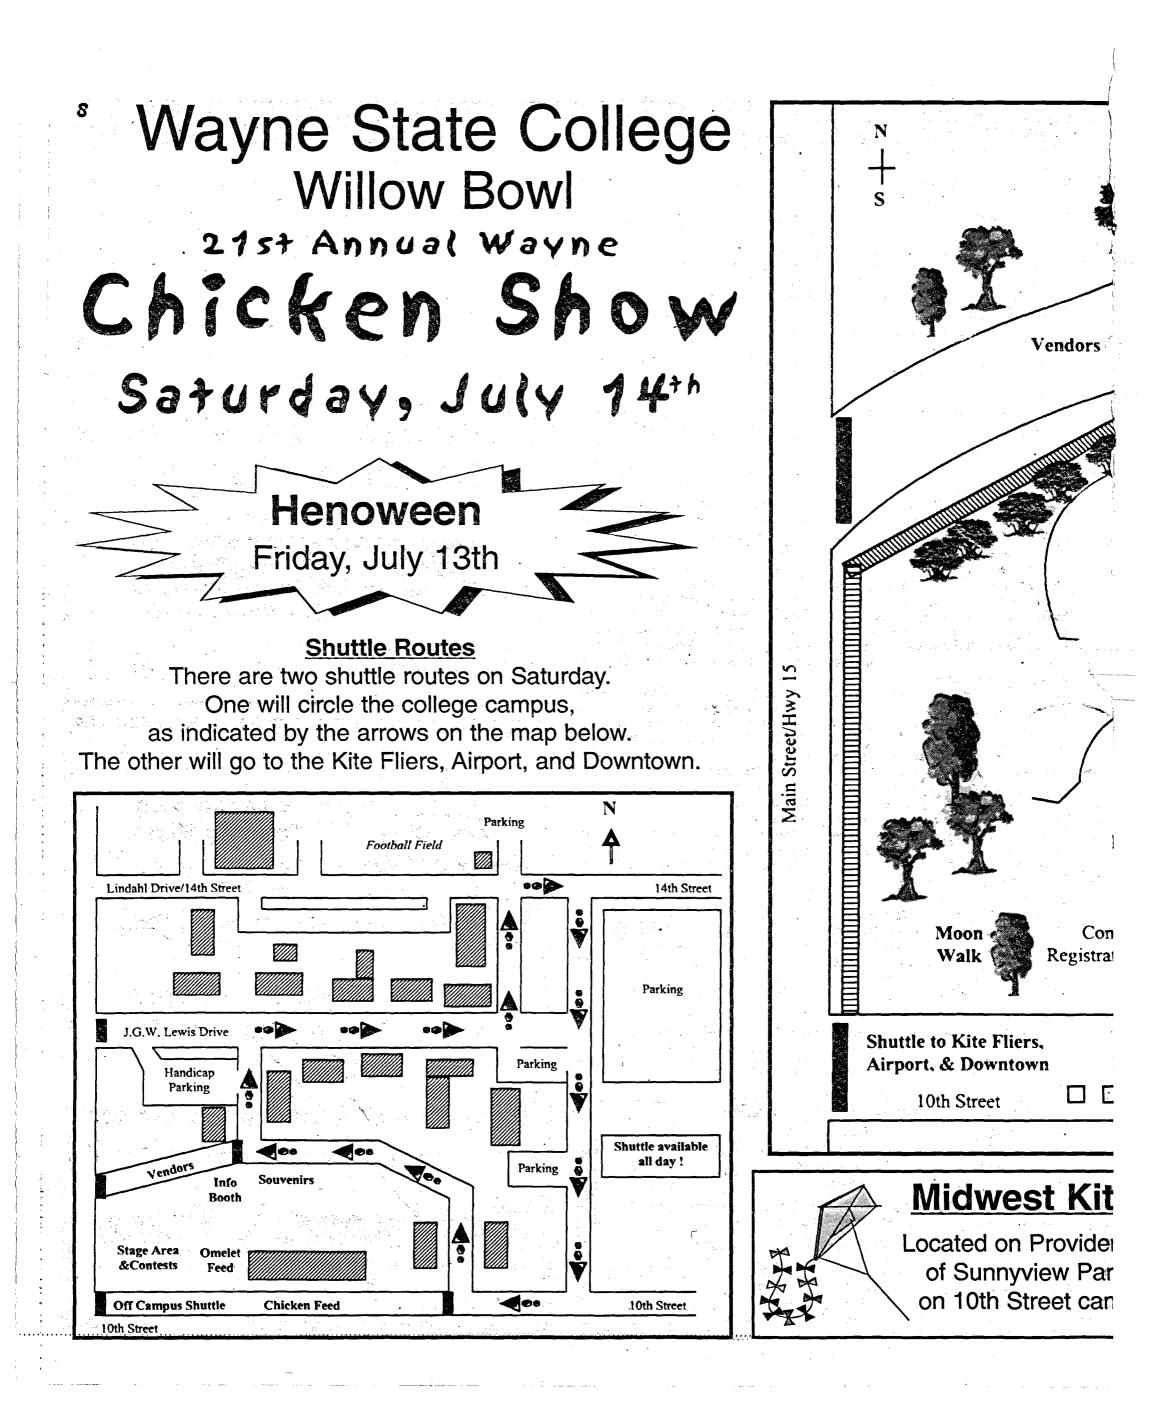

The Wayne Chicken Show Council is currently seeking the help of the Wayne community. The well-know Chicken Show Coupe de Ville, is in need of repair; therefore we are launching a "Save the Coupe" campaign. All help in this endeavor would be greatly appreciated.
