Community pulls together to raise funds for a park

In a community effort, residents of Dixon and the surrounding area have been working together to beautify the Village of Dixon. As a result, Centennial Park has been created but work is not yet finished on the project.

Because of efforts of Dixon Public School alumni and other volunteers, the park is located on the block as you turn on to the main street of Dixon. The park bears the cornerstone of the old Dixon Public School (which no longer stands), a flag pole in the center of the park, and a stone monument with a picture of the school on it. The memorial was erected to the memory of the school and to those who attended there.

The school had been established in 1883, constructed in 1931, and closed in 1986.

Coming up with the idea of creating a park at an alumni reunion a couple of years ago, many people have played a part in bringing the idea to reality. Velma Dennis, former postmaster of Dixon, donated the land to the city for the purpose of creating a park. Trees, shrubs, and flowers adorn the site; Dixon elementary school alumni donated the playground equipment, Dixon high school graduates donated the flag pole and base, and several people have shown interest in donating Dave Headley and Carla Kemp are directing "The Dracula Spectacular" Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 9 - 12.

Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. each evening, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m.

The performances will be held at the Wayne High School Lecture Hall. The cast includes:

Dracula — Ron Lofgren; Countess Wrath — Emily Lutt; Genghis — Micaela Snyder; Nadia Naive — Mollie Spieker; Kelly — Keeley Niemann; Student — Cory Foote; Elvis — Alex Wieland; Julie — Emily Bruflatt; Hans — Casey Daehnke; Gretel — Jessica Murtaugh; Father O'Stake — Rick Mitchell; Nick Necropheliac — Jon Brandow; Master Landau — Roger Niemann; Mistress Landau — Ardie Sommerfeld; Pretty Girls — Heather Headley, Amy Kemp and Audrey Victor; Outpatients/ zombies — Collin Jeffries, Brett Dorcay and Derick Dorcay; Brides — Jessica

Henderson, Liz Lofgren, Blair Sommerfeld; Emily Ramold, Kelli Kwapioski, McKenzie Sommerfeld and Taysha Murtaugh.

According to the directors, "the play is a humorous comedy/melodrama, designed to appeal to all ages. It has a terrific ending."

This summer's musical includes a number of returning actors to the Community Theatre in addition to new talent on the stage.

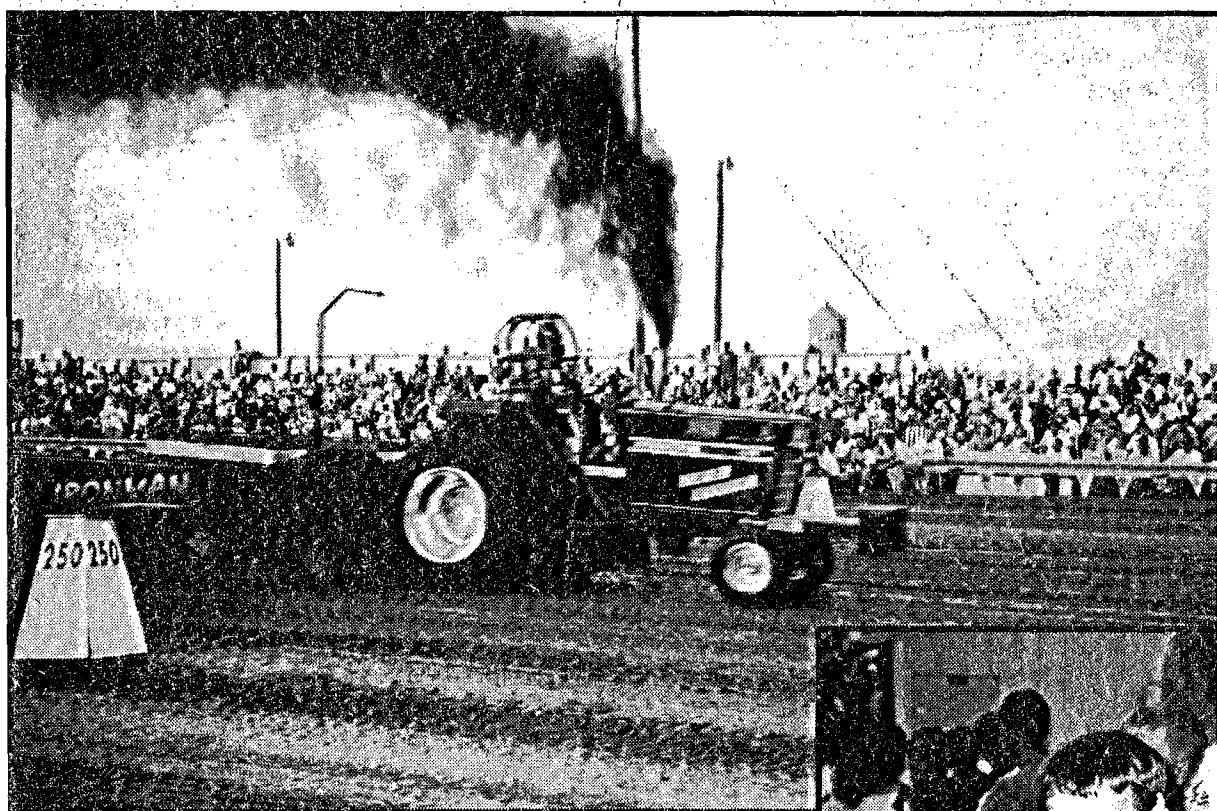

The Wayne Community Theatre is in need of a new permanent home for future productions.

They lost the use of the building space in the Mineshaft Mall earlier this year due to a portion of the building being condemned. The area that once housed the Carriage House Theatre is now being renovated for other uses.

The Wayne Community Theatre had used the facility for its productions for approximately eight years.

"We are in the process of trying to locate grants to either renovate or build at a new location," said Mic Kemp, a member of the Community

Jury trial is held in Wayne

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

A jury trial began Monday in District Court in Wayne between Heidi Heinemann of Ricketts, Iowa, formerly of Wayne, plaintiff, and Northeast Nebraska Medical Group of Wayne, defendants.

Heinemann along with her attorney Kathleen Rocky of Copple & Rocky of Norfolk are alleging medical malpractice against Northeast Nebraska Medical Group of Wayne. Bill Settles of Lamson, Dugan, and Murray of Omaha is attorney for Northeast Nebraska Medical Group.

Heinemann came to Northeast Nebraska Medical Group with abdominal pain in July, 1998, where a physician examined her and admitted her to Providence Medical Center. Near the beginning of her six-day stay at PMC, Heinemann became a patient of another doctor. During that weekend Heinemann was under the care of a third doctor, who was on call. All three doctors are employed at Northeast Nebraska Medical Group.

Testimony alleges a mis-diagnosis of Heinemann initially given by the first doctor and another later by the second doctor.

Heinemann's condition worsened at PMC and she was taken by ambulance to St. Luke's in Sioux City where she was examined by an OB-GYN doctor who determined she had an infectious mass in the area of her pelvic and abdomen. As the OB-

GYN doctor proceeded to perform surgery on Heinemann, it was discovered the infection was possibly stemming from a ruptured appendix. At that time, a general surgeon was called in to finish the operation.

In August of 2000, still having pain in her pelvic and abdomen area, Heinemann again saw the OB-GYN doctor who performed surgery for removal of adhesions (scar tissue).

Because of the alleged mis-diagnosis, Heinemann incurred added medical expenses, and more lost time from work. Heinemann is suing for damages.

The trial is expected to be completed today. There will be a story in the next Wayne Herald.

Cheerleaders receive recognition

The Wayne High Cheerleading Squad recently took part in a camp at Creighton University in Omaha.

Instructors were provided by the Universal Cheerleading Association (U.C.A.) UCA teaches approximately 160,000 cheerleaders worldwide to combine stunts, transitions, and dance sequences into compact, spirited routines.

UCA teaches safety techniques for stunting, tumbling, kicks and jumps and gives coaches hands-on involvement through participation and coaching exchange. Coaches also attend separate sessions where they learn proper stretching techniques and the importance of strength and fitness training.

Thirty-two cheerleading squads attended this year's camp which was held from June 19-22. The girls' day started around 8 a.m. and lasted until 9 at night. Even with a rigorous schedule, the girls took it upon themselves to practice as a squad before and after camp hours.

The Wayne High squad kicked off the camp by performing their home pom routine the first night.

Throughout the week, the Wayne High squad received nine superior ribbons, two excellent ribbons, and one outstanding ribbon for their cheers, sidelines, intermediate dance, advance dance, and extreme cheer and dance routine evaluations. All of these cheers and dances were taught to the girls in three days or less.

In addition to all the ribbons acquired by the squad, they also earned a camp champ ribbon and trophy for their personalized extreme routine.

Seniors of the squad, Katie Barry and Natalie Rauss earned the right to travel to Australia and participate in the Annual Easter Parade.

The entire squad won the opportunity to participate in the Hollywood Christmas Parade by being named camp champs for their personalized extreme routine.

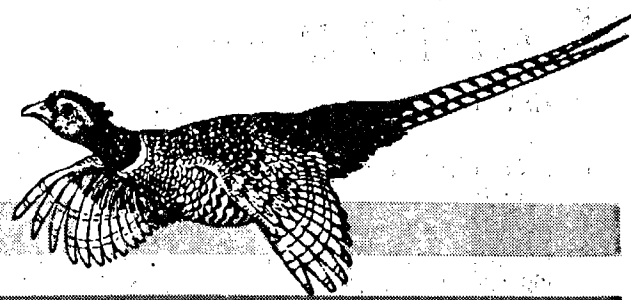

Captains Call Broders and Leigh Campbell earned the right to participate in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Theatre Board of Directors. Funding for the theatre comes mainly from two sources. "The Wayne United Way annually provides funds, and we are very thankful for their support," Kemp said. He also expressed thanks to Dave Headley for the hours he has put in in various ways to help make the theatre's productions successful.

In addition, an annual fund drive is typically held each fall, allowing patrons to support the theatre. The Wayne Community Theatre puts on three productions each year, including a musical each summer. "Musicals are expensive to produce. Music, costumes and props need to be rented, as well as the payment of royalties," said Headley. "The high school has been gracious in letting us use the facility.

We appreciate their assistance," Headley said. Although board members and those involved are uncertain as to the location, "plans are to carry on with the theatre's tradition of providing entertainment to the community." Tickets for "The Dracula Spectacular" can be purchased at State National Bank and Sav-Mor Pharmacy or at the door.

Future plans include building a shelter, adding picnic tables, rest rooms, a tennis court to south side of park, and a foot bridge to the tennis court. Also, shamrocks are wanted on the cement slab around the base of the flag pole depicting the team, "Dixon Fighting Irish." Mayor John Young, Velma Dennis, and other volunteers provide upkeep of the park. Betty Schroeder

Schroeder receives teacher award from ARC

GRAND ISLAND—At their recent State Convention in Grand Island, on June 29th, Betty Schroeder was presented with the Teacher of the Year Award from the ARC (Advocating for the rights of Citizens with Disabilities) of Nebraska. The purpose of the award was to recognize a classroom teacher who has demonstrated excellence in teaching students with developmental disabilities.

Schroeder resides in Wayne and has 24 years of experience working with children with disabilities. The past 16 of these years have been spent in the West Point school system working with children in the preschool classroom who have developmental delays.

As a teacher, Schroeder was recognized for her ability to challenge and get children with moderate to severe mental retardation to reach their fullest possible potential. If one teaching method doesn't work, the veteran teacher will try another. Schroeder is not satisfied with mediocrity and is continually searching for ways to improve her instruction methods. Her ability to look past the child's handicapping condition and see each child for the unique individual that they are was also recognized.

Schroeder is a supportive friend to parents that are just learning to cope with, and face the reality that, their young child has a permanent disability. One of the things that demonstrates her willingness to go above and beyond the call of duty is her adapting of regular toys so that children with physical disabilities can also use them. For children with physical disabilities, she has adapted regular battery operated toys so that they may be used with light pressure switches and has taught the child's parents to do the same.

whirlpool tub and the creation of a hair care station for our patients. We urge all our golfers to return their completed registration forms and remittances to the foundation office no later than Aug. 1," said Bartling. According to Laura Gamble, RN at Providence Medical Center, the hospital currently has a room that contains a single bath tub and a lift, where an average of three patients per day are given tub baths.

"Some patients prefer tub baths rather than using the shower in their room. And other patients simply are not able to stand in a shower," Gamble said. "We also have yet another area where we wash the hair of our female patients, most of whom are on an extended stay at PMC. Currently we do not have a hair care station, so the sink on which our patients must position their heads for washing is uncomfortable. The whole process is awkward for both the nurse and the patient. It will be a welcome addition to our hospital to have the new whirlpool tub, which also comes with a lift, and the hair care station all in one location. This project, when completed, will not only assist our nurses with patient care, but it will also be an obvious enhancement to the quality of care we provide for our patients. We have been hoping for a whirlpool tub for a long time," Gamble said. The Providence Medical Center Pro-Am Golf Tournament is the first of its kind for the Wayne Country Club, and also the first such undertaking for the Providence Medical Center Foundation, which hopes to make the event an annual affair. Anyone having questions about the tournament or wishing to pick up a registration form is asked to contact Troy Harder at the Wayne Country Club (375-1152) or Sandy Bartling (375-5529).

Hypocrites' view of things Capitol news

It is amazing what you can do or get off the internet, anything from CD's to golf Clubs, chat with a friend or order a meal to go.

One of the many things I receive are sayings and stories from friends who are a lot more brushed up on the English vocabulary. Here are different sayings/stories I have received. I hope you find it as amusing as I have.

I swear an oath on my honor as a hypocrite that...

I will cuss cows but eat beef, blast miners but wear jewelry and drive a car but condemn oil companies.

I don't want trees cut for any purpose other than to provide the newsprint for my next issue.

I demand that politicians and federal judges in Washington save all endangered species who do not interfere with my snowmobiling activities or hurt the small business man.

I feel government is imminently qualified to micro-manage nature, after all, look what a smashing job they've done with the IRS, EPA, USDA, FBI, BLM and assorted other alphabet agencies.

As a self-righteous hypocrite it is my duty to celebrate Earth Day with barbecues and parades and by leaving tons of trash behind.

I demand that feedlots and farms stop polluting our ground water. That privilege should be preserved for me every time I flush the contents of my toilet into a septic tank or the ocean.

I want to relocate grizzly bears and wolves to the West but not in my big-city backyard. After all, people live here!

I give my permission for mountains lions to eat lambs but if a lion eats my dog or cat I demand the abominable beast be shot on sight.

I will cuss oil companies on talk radio and stand in the way of their drilling more wells while sitting in my gas guzzling SUV with the engine running.

I will write letters to the editor on my computer, belittling utility companies for not providing enough electricity. They need to learn to burn more coal and use less Nuclear Energy to solve our power problems. Just ask California residents for their opinion.

I avow at the next cocktail party I attend while smoking a cigar and sipping a Gentleman Jack over the rocks that I will sue the cigar companies for causing my lung cancer and the Jack Daniel's Distillery for making me a alcoholic.

Although I have never personally milked a cow, I demand to have a say on how farmers and ranchers do it.

As a pompous hypocrite I demand that water, herbicides, and pesticides be taken away from farmers immediately, but I don't want it to affect the price, quantity or quality of the food I buy in the store.

It is my strongly held conviction that we should ban all pesticides, except the can of bug spray I use to kill ants and other unwanted bugs in my home.

As a mealy-mouthed hypocrite I vow to help stop global warming by watching the Discovery Channel on my giant sized television in my air-conditioned house.

I assert that cattle pooping on our nation's grasslands is a national disgrace while fertilizing my urban lawn with steer manure and urea is simply good ecology.

I will complain about fertilizer runoff from farms but not from golf courses because I happen to be a golfer.

I will hound hunters in the woods because they use guns despite the fact that hunting groups have increased habitat and wildlife numbers.

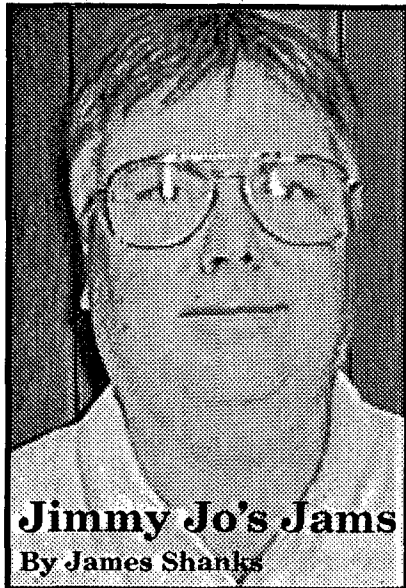

I demand that the government end all timber cutting or recovery in our national forests but I'll cry like a singed coyote if the feds allow wildfires to burn near my house.

As a card-carrying hypocrite I disavow the use of fur, leather, wool and all animal by-products, except the ones used in medicine that might save my life.

I demand labels be placed on all food products but not on a rock album that endorses killing cops.

As an arrogant and self-serving hypocrite I firmly believe that rural folks have done a terrible job of taking care of the countryside and they must do a better job.

Finally, what ever happen to taking responsibility for one's own actions?

State experiencing lack of revenue

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It's summer and it's hot and perhaps your attention span isn't up to its usual standard. So, this will be comparatively short. No thought will be given to sweet.

The state is experiencing a revenue shortfall. That means the treasury isn't getting all the bucks that were anticipated. The aforementioned dollars were counted upon by the Legislature for purposes of (what else?) spending.

The shortage of money has a lot to do with the state sending out tax refunds to businesses that legitimately qualified under state economic development incentive (read tax break) programs.

You could compare this to, say, political astronomy.

In the East it appears that the chickens might be coming home to roost. That means you can expect the bull to start rising at almost anytime.

Nebraska does not know, in fact, how much its various corporate tax incentives will cost down the road. It will be a lot; but how much "a lot" means is not clear. Those tax credits just keep piling up.

There are at least three things for taxpayers to keep in mind if the refunds become problematic for the treasury:

First, don't get cranky with the Legislature. Those tax incentives had "trouble ahead" written all over them when they were enacted; but they seemed as popular with the public as they were with lawmakers who were anxious to bolster the state's economic future and, as always, be popular with business.

Second, it is a virtual certainty that if the state ultimately needs to collect more tax dollars because of the cost of those giveaways, "you" are going to pay for them, not big business. Business made investments and created jobs in return for the tax breaks. You (speaking figuratively and collectively) got the jobs. That was the deal and business couldn't have cashed in on it if it hadn't met the standards set out by the Legislature. The appropriateness of the standards is another debate altogether.

Third, the Legislature this year rejected a proposal from Sen. Bob Wickersham of Harrison to set up a system to calculate the cost of future giveaways before they are approved.

That's it.

The situation is one to which responsible voters ought to give thought - along with our favorite among the admonitions carved into the Capitol: Salvation of the state lies in watchfulness of the citizen.

Chamber members offer thanks

The Wayne Chicken Show has come to a close - some of us are sad to see it over and some are relieved that all went well. We had the highest attendance at the show in the history of the event. One person referred to the increase in population as having a town within a town. I spoke to a family from Florida who decided to make our event their family vacation. Others from California, Washington, Texas and several other states expressed how much they enjoyed the Wayne Chicken Show. When we receive comments like this, it makes me realize what a remarkable event we have. Even more remarkable when you look at how many people, businesses and organizations are involved in the production of the festival. We have estimated that over 1,000 volunteers assist in various areas, with over 25 organizations taking responsibility of some area. In addition to the physical support, I am always impressed with the generosity of the business community. Without the support of all these folks, this event would never happen! In addition to this lengthy list of supporters, there is a core group of individuals that nurture, plan, coordinate and commit to the Chicken Show. This group is the Chicken Show Council who devotes a tremendous amount of time, heart and enthusiasm throughout the year. They are the folks that take the risks to make it better and have enjoyed watching it grow and succeed. My hat goes off to this incredible group!

ter and historian; Julia Shear, media and public relations / contest; Leo Ahmann, Henoween; Lou Wiltse, general support; and Vickie Meyer, general support.

In addition, I would like to thank those who have contacted us with suggestions, questions and especially words of encouragement and support. We will be hosting a Chicken Show Rap-up meeting on Friday, Aug. 10 at Geno's Steakhouse beginning at 7 p.m. The community is encouraged to come and provide feedback on this year's event.

Blood facts are given

In an effort to raise public awareness and aid the Siouxland Blood Bank's need for blood donations, a number of facts about blood will be run occasionally.

What is blood?
Blood transfusions are a critical part of everyday medicine and currently there is no substitute for human blood. About 4.5 million patients receive blood each year. So, we know blood is important, but what exactly is it?

Whole blood is a living tissue that circulates through the heart, arteries, veins, and capillaries carrying nourishment, electrolytes, hormones, vitamins, antibodies, heat and oxygen to the body's tissues. Blood fights against infections and helps heal wounds, so we can stay healthy. Whole blood contains red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets suspended in a fluid called plasma. Healthy bone marrow makes a constant supply of red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets.

You may need to receive blood for a variety of reasons. Blood is critical to the survival of premature babies and patients undergoing heart surgery or joint replacement therapy. Patients received organ transplants, cancer therapies, and support for sickle cell anemia depend on life-saving transfusions. Blood also plays a life-saving role in serious accidents, civil and military conflicts, and major tragedies, such as earthquakes and hurricanes.

Blood substitutes.
Despite much promising research, a true substitute for blood cells (that is, the red cells and platelets) will not be available for many years. More likely, blood transfusions will continue to become even safer because of improved blood donor screening and testing. In addition, scientists are exploring new technologies that can virtually eliminate infectious diseases from blood transfusions.

Typically, each donated unit of blood, referred to as whole blood, is separated into multiple components, such as Red Blood Cells, Plasma and Platelets. Each component is generally transfused to a different individual, each with different needs. It makes sense to transfuse only that portion needed by the patient for a specific condition or disease. Plus, by making whole blood into different components we also gain the ability to save many lives from one single donation.

For example, a heart surgery uses an average of six units of red blood cells and six units of platelets. The average liver transplant needs 40 units of red blood cells, 30 units of platelets, 20 units of cryoprecipitate, and 25 units of fresh frozen plasma. The average bone marrow transplant requires 120 units of platelets and about 20 units of red blood cells. Severe burn victims can need 20 units of platelets during their treatments.

White blood cells.
These are the body's primary defense against infection. They can move out of the blood stream and reach tissue being invaded by foreign substances like bacteria, fungi, and viruses. In the blood stream, there are about 600 red blood cells for every white blood cell. While white blood cells can be used in the treatment of cancer, in general, white cells provide no added benefit for a patient who needs a transfusion. If necessary, white blood cells may be removed from blood products before a patient receives it.

Writer gives more hints for 'fishing 101'

Now that you have an idea as to what type of rod and reel you need, let's talk about tackle.

There are several different categories of tackle that you can use to catch fish.

The ones that I'll be referring to aren't species specific as they will catch all species of fish.

Live bait, jigs and crankbaits when fished properly will catch almost any species of fish.

Livebait

Live bait is about as basic as you're going to get because we're talking about the old hook, line and sinker.

It can be as simple as a crappie rig or as complicated as a dropper rig. Hook size can depend on the species of fish that you're after. If it's a bass, you'll want to use larger hooks. If it is a panfish such as a bluegill, perch or crappie, you'll want to downsize your hook.

When I'm fishing the Missouri River, I like to use a little bit larger hook because you never know what you might catch. A #2, #4, or #6 hooks will all work well.

Some people swear by a gold hook while others prefer the bronze hook. I've found that the bronze hooks are stronger than the gold and you're less likely to have a fish straighten your hook.

The line size you use can depend on the type of water you're fishing. If you're fishing an area with a lot of snags and debris, you'll want to go with heavier line.

The opposite is true if your fishing an area that is snag free, you can use lighter line because you aren't fighting snags.

Four to six pound test works great for smaller panfish while six to eight pound works well when fishing for walleye.

If your bass, who are notorious for

Gary Howey
"Of the Outdoors"

burying in the trash, you'll need to use heavier line. Ten pound plus is what you'll need when fishing for bass in brush and trees.

Ten pound will work well for most fishing conditions.

Sinkers give you the extra weight that allows you to cast and get to the bottom quickly. If I'm fishing from a boat, I'll use as small a bell sinker as I can get away with 1/4 or 3/8 ounce. These weights will work under most conditions as long as you stay away from the heavy current.

If I'm fishing from shore I'll use a heavier sinker so I can hold right on the edge of the slack water just inside the heavy current.

The bait you'll use again depends on the species of fish. A night-crawler or worm will catch most species.

Some species like the walleye will change their bait preference during the year. In the spring, they're more apt to take a minnow, as the water warms they'll go after nightcrawlers and leeches. When the water starts to cool, they'll switch back to minnows again.

Live bait can be worms, minnows, leeches, frogs, water dogs or minnows.

The livebait you use should be matched to the species of fish you're after.

Jigs

Jigs are a lure for all seasons. They'll catch just about every species of fish all year long. They can be cast from shore or jigged vertically from a boat.

You can fish them shallow by holding your rod tip high or fish them deep by counting them down and slowing down your retrieve.

At times color seems to make a difference, especially when fishing for species such as walleyes.

I go by the old wives tale to use a dark lure on a dark day and a light colored lure on a bright day.

Pink and white, chartreuse or fluorescent red are good for walleyes while black, white and brown work well for bass and panfish seem to prefer a white.

If I need to add color, I'll use a plastic body to change or add color. Again, use a small jig 1/64 - 1/32 oz. for small fish and a larger jig 1/4 - 3/8 oz. for larger fish.

Livebait can be added to make the jig more productive. Try night-crawlers, minnows or leeches on a jig if you're not having any luck with a plain jig.

Crankbaits

Crankbaits are a bait that imitates a baitfish, crayfish or some other creature that lives in the aquatic world.

They can be cast from shore or trolled behind a boat. You can trigger strikes with crankbaits by pausing, slowing or speeding up your retrieve.

Again, if you're fishing for larger fish such as walleye, largemouth bass or pike, you'll need to use larger baits that resemble baitfish found in the body of water that you're fishing.

For smaller fish like the small-mouth bass, you'll have to down size your bait to look like a crayfish or smaller baitfish.

They are an excellent method of locating the aggressive larger fish.

When it comes to lure color, water quality is the big factor.

If you're fishing dirty water, go with a bright noisy lure. Fluorescent holds their color better in dirty or stained water and a lure with rattles in the body helps fish in dirty water to locate your crankbait. Fire tiger is an excellent color for stained water because it contains several fluorescent colors in its pattern.

In clear water, go with a natural color such as bluegill, perch or shad color; nothing too flashy or noisy as in clear water fish are much more spooky.

The depth that a crankbait will dive all depends on the size of the bill. A short billed crankbait will be a shallow diver and a big billed bait will dive deeper.

Most quality crankbaits will indicate the depth the bait will dive on the box.

Crankbaits made by Rapala, Pradco or Storm are excellent baits and cover all the depths.

With the baits I mentioned, you're on your way to enjoying fishing and the great outdoors.

Fish hard, fish often and introduce someone to the great outdoors.

Valerian Caution: CNS Depressants, Pregnancy, Lactation

The use of valerian as a sedative dates back to the 16th century in Asia, North America, and Europe. We know about the chemicals in valerian that seem to cause sedation (valepotriates), but we do not understand how the herb causes sedation.

A study of 128 persons taking 400 mg of valerian extract confirmed the herb's sedative and sleep-inducing activity. Users of the extract reported significant improvement in sleep quality. Night awakenings and next-morning grogginess were rare. In another study similar results were obtained with 450 mg or 900 mg of valerian extracts. The larger dose was no more effective than the smaller dose and caused significant next-morning grogginess.

The reported dosage for valerian ranges from 400 mg to as much as 3,000 mg taken as often as 3 times daily and at bedtime. Use in pregnancy or by lactating women should be avoided because of insufficient information. Valerian use may potentiate the sedative effects of CNS (central nervous system) depressants.

normally cools itself by sweating. When the humidity is high, sweat will not evaporate as quickly, preventing the body from releasing heat quickly. The result can be heat stroke or heat exhaustion.

The risk for heat-related illness and death is higher for infants and the elderly whose internal thermostats do not regulate body temperature well.

Others who are at increased risk are the obese, the chronically ill (which includes those with heart disease, high blood pressure and asthma), and people who take certain medications, such as antidepressants and tranquilizers, that interfere with the body's temperature regulation.

Heat-related illness and death are readily preventable, Dr. Raymond said. Here are some tips for hot times ahead:

- *Spend as much time as possible in air-conditioned places;
- *Drink plenty of water--avoid alcohol and drinks with caffeine;
- *Wear loose, light-colored clothing;
- *Eat light meals;

If outdoor activity is unavoidable, slow your pace and take frequent rest breaks to cool off.

*Protect your skin by using a sunscreen lotion with a protective factor of 15 or greater and wearing a wide-brimmed hat, long-sleeved shirt and pants. Sunburn interferes with the body's job of heat dissipation, and too much sun exposure is a risk factor for skin cancer.

Being in an air-conditioned place for a few hours each day will reduce the risk of heat-related illness. Fans can be a source of relief, but the higher the humidity, the less cooling relief they provide. Air movement at high levels of humidity can increase heat stress.

Heatstroke, the most serious heat-related illness, is a medical emergency characterized by a body temperature of 105 degree F or greater. Symptoms include hot dry skin, rapid heartbeat, shallow breathing, disorientation, delirium, and coma. An individual suffering from heat stroke should be moved into the shade or into an air-conditioned location and emergency medical assistance should be summoned.

Heat exhaustion is a milder form of heat-related illness that can develop following exposure for several days to high temperatures. It is characterized by rapid heartbeat, cold clammy skin, nausea, dizziness, weakness, and fatigue. An individual suffering from heat exhaustion should be moved into the shade or into an air-conditioned location immediately. If the individual's temperature exceeds 102 degrees F, seek emergency medical assistance.

Ring-Johnson family gather for reunion

Ring - Johnson family

Descendants of John and Maria Johnson gathered for a reunion on July 6-8 in Wakefield.

Friday evening 65 members gathered at Merle Ring's farm for a picnic supper. The evening was spent visiting and catching up on the last three years since the 1998 reunion. Later in the evening everyone gathered in Merle's living room around the piano and organ for a time of singing old familiar songs. Family members shared genealogy projects they were working on.

Saturday morning about 80 family members gathered at Merle's for brunch. Following the brunch, more time was spent visiting and watching videos of Sweden taken by Merle and Donna on their trip to Sweden last year.

Saturday evening all gathered under the big top tent at Jim Stout's for a whole hog roast with all the trimmings. For entertainment, many of the family actors presented a very interesting rendition of some very familiar fairy tales. A raffle was held for a beautiful hand-quilted quilt made by Coreen Bard. Marian Christensen was the lucky winner. The evening was topped off with a tour of the MPM dairy, hayrack ride, fireworks and root beer floats.

Keep healthy at the fair

Fair season is upon us and one of the things that we stress in the 4-H program is to teach young people who to feed, care for, fit and show their animals.

Because fairs, expositions and petting zoos are such an enjoyable activity for many people, it is important to keep these events as open and accessible as possible. However, it is equally important that visitors to these events understand that they play an important role in preventing the spread of disease. These precautions are quite simple and are no different than what would be done to prevent the spread of colds or flu among people.

PRECAUTIONS THAT VISITORS SHOULD TAKE:

- Following these simple guidelines should help to prevent human illness and lessen the chance of animal-to-animal disease:
- Do not touch or pet animals, except at designated petting exhibits;
- Wash your hands after any direct contact with animals;
- Avoid eating in animal exhibits;
- Do not feed human food to animals.

It is the responsibility of the fair exhibitor to make sure that they have properly handled their exhibits and that they are of good health, but the above suggestions are things that fair goers can do to play their part in assuring that no unwanted animal disease would be spread. We hope to see you at the Wayne County Fair Aug. 1-5, 2001.

Pastor Craig Holstedt smiles while having his head shaved after his youth group sold nearly 800 enchiladas.

Youth group sells enchiladas for trip

Adults and youth from 10 Presbyterian Churches of the Homestead Presbytery in Nebraska are leaving for Juarez, Mexico on July 28 to build two houses for the people of Juarez.

To raise money for the mission trip, members of the Presbyterian Churches of Wayne, Wakefield, Laurel and Bancroft combined to sell chicken enchiladas at the annual "Halloween" portion of the Wayne Chicken Show.

Pastor Craig Holstedt told the group that if 500 enchiladas were sold, he would let them shave his head. Dr. Mark McCorkindale, a member of the Wayne congregation, said he would have his head shaved also if all of the nearly 800 enchiladas were sold before the group left.

By 7:30 p.m. on the Friday night of Halloween (Friday the 13th) the first 500 enchiladas were sold and by Friday, July 20, every enchilada was gone.

On Sunday morning, July 22, following the regular worship service, as members of the congregation gathered in the Fellowship Hall, Andrew Metz and Joseph Holstedt did the honors of shearing Pastor Holstedt and Dr. McCorkindale.

Some now refer to them as the "Chihuahua Brothers!"
"We wish to thank all the members of the church and the community who have so wonderfully supported us. In particular, we would like to thank Pac 'N' Save and the Magic Wok restaurant for their support in this fund raiser," Pastor Holstedt said.

Mission trip successful

Our Savior Lutheran Church's Mission Group spent July 9-13 working at the Agape Center in Omaha.

This was the group's fourth summer mission trip and their first inner city mission trip. The Agape Center in Omaha houses a food pantry, Fontanelle Community Church, Lutheran Metro Ministries Office and a vocational training center for prisoners returning to the world of work.

A total of 33 people worked throughout the week. The work included tearing off shingles, replacing an exterior door, closing an entry, sheetrocking, painting, repairing and washing windows, cleaning up the grounds and landscaping, stripping and waxing flagstone flooring, stripping and refinishing a registry, resetting and painting a mailbox and general cleaning.

The group returned from the Agape Center knowing that they had made a great improvement in the facility. According to those attending, "at the heart of all we do is meeting human need wherever it might be, that they might touch the lives of others with God's love."

Fosamax Now Available In Once Weekly Tablet

Fosamax is for the treatment or prevention of osteoporosis, (thinning of bone). It helps to increase bone density. Some of the drawbacks with the daily Fosamax are that it has to be taken first thing in the morning with 8 oz. of water, you must stay fully upright for 30 minutes, and must not drink or eat anything for 30 minutes. For those in a hurry in the morning, this has been inconvenient. The new weekly tablet has the same restrictions but it is taken only once weekly and is as effective as the daily tablet.

Enjoy Coffee and Not Raise Cholesterol?

There are conflicting reports regarding whether or not coffee drinking raises cholesterol levels. According to a report in American Journal Epidemiology, researchers may have found the key to the conflict. Their finding may be good news to those who enjoy coffee - lots of coffee.

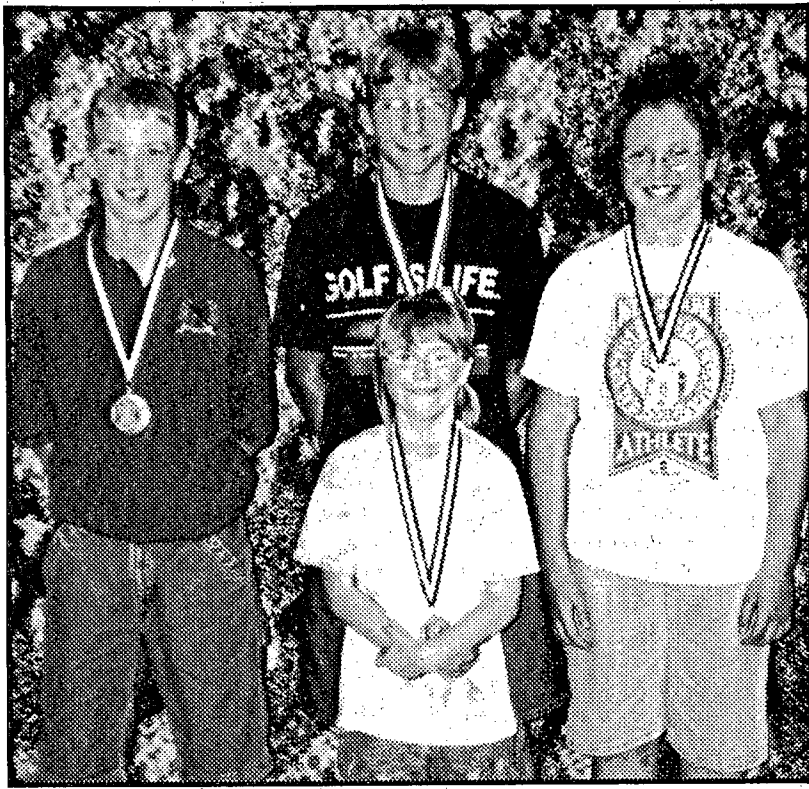

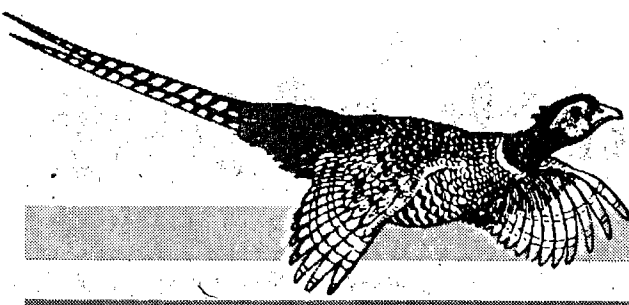

Researchers at Johns Hopkins University analyzed 14 studies on coffee and cholesterol and found that drinking 6 or more cups of coffee per day significantly raised total cholesterol, LDL or "bad" cholesterol, and triglycerides. Coffee drinking did not increase levels of HDL or "good" cholesterol.

The researchers indicate that coffee oils primarily are responsible for the increase in cholesterol and triglycerides. Filtering coffee removes much of the oil and greatly reduces the chances of increasing cholesterol levels. Don't drink boiled or unfiltered coffee if you want to help keep your cholesterol in check.

Xeriscaping helps conserve water

In a previous article, Xeriscaping (ze-ri-scaping) was discussed and how it pertains to the work we do and the landscape we enjoy in our yard. The focus of Xeriscaping (derived from the Greek meaning for "dry") is water conservation and ease of gardening. There is a growing interest in landscapes which are water efficient, are adapted to our growing conditions, and do not demand a great deal of time for maintenance.

Summer is a perfect time to touch on this "hot" topic as we are very aware of the effort it takes to maintain the landscape around our homes and businesses during hotter and drier weather. Northeast Nebraska has been blessed with good rains this summer, however planning for less water use in the future can be a smart investment in many ways. Just recall the dry summer of 2000...

The basic fundamentals of Xeriscaping are:

- Plan and design from the beginning.
- Create practical turf areas of manageable sizes, shapes and use appropriate grasses.
- Use appropriate plants and zone the landscape according to the water needs of the plants.
- Consider improving the soil with organic matter like compost, peat moss, or manure.
- Control weeds early so they will not produce more seeds and become aggressive water users.
- Irrigate efficiently by applying the right amount of water at the right time.
- Maintain the landscape sensibly by mowing, pruning, and fertilizing properly. Mow turf higher when hot and dry to shade soil and out-compete weeds.

And it can't be said enough—landscape water running in the street is wasteful and usually avoidable. Set and check your sprinklers so as to make the most of watering and hand water tough corners and edges. Better yet, improve those hard-to-water spots through mulching and plant choices. Finally, try to water from early to mid-morning. There is less potential for hot evaporating winds and temperatures, and less trouble with plant diseases than watering in the evening when night temperatures are above 70 degrees. Plant choices are the final key to Xeriscaping. You can still have high water using plants; just group them together and place them in areas that are easy to water. And don't overlook the native plants of Nebraska—many excellent choices for our conditions. A search for "Xeriscaping" on the computer will turn up many good sites with plant lists.

For those challenging hot and dry sites, consider using some of the more drought-tolerant plants to ease your mind and workload. This summer try to notice the landscapes you walk or drive by. Chances are your neighbor is growing something beautiful with very little care. (Note: plants of any type may take a bit more water initially in their establishment. Think about plants starting out in spring when there's more rain. Root systems typically need time to get established before enduring scorching summer conditions.) Here are a few plant choices for hot, dry exposures.

- Annual plants: portulaca (moss rose), vinca (periwinkle), mexican sunflower (Tithonia), marigold, zinnia, sweet alyssum, and bachelor's button.

- Perennial plants: native grasses, yarrow, butterfly weed (Asclepias), New England aster, coreopsis, iris, daylily, shasta daisy, gayfeather (Liatris), lavender, purple and prairie coneflower, blanket flower (Gaillardia), beebalm (Monarda), peony, black-eyed susan, blue flax, poppy, lamb's ears, penstemon, and of course yucca, sedum, and cactus.

- Shrubs: lilac, american plum, artemisia, siberian pea-shrub, potentilla, chokecherry, honeysuckle, juniper, and many viburnum.

- Trees: Scotch and ponderosa pine, hackberry, honey locust, Ohio buckeye, hawthorn, green ash, amur maple (small tree/shrub), Colorado and Black Hills spruce.

Staying young is challenge

At last, a break in the heat! But, so far, no rain. We keep a watchful eye on the few clouds overhead and pray they contain moisture.

I froze 17 pints of sweet corn last night; plus, had corn on the cob for Cornhusker Games last weekend. It was 105 degrees on the turf in Memorial Stadium.

I actually had a second cup of coffee and watched 30 minutes of the Today Show this morning. This is a typical winter weekday activity, but there is no time in summer. Al Roker has a beard and Katie Curic has let her hair grow. Matt looks the same. Fatherhood evidently agrees with him.

Ann Margaret was a guest on a Forever Young segment, sponsored by AARP. Now 60 years old, she's apparently the spokesperson for osteoporosis. If we all looked like her at 60, we could believe we are forever young. Unfortunately, most of us are heavier, grayer and more wrinkled than she is.

One typical July activity for me is the Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing alumni banquet, which is held in the hospital cafeteria on the third Saturday evening.

There were 160 in attendance last Saturday, and the school closed 25 years ago. The classes of '51, '56 and '61 had great reunions, with lots of hundreds involved. There were two alumna of the year awards and I was amazed at the accomplishments of some of the graduates.

One award went to a member of the class of '46, who must be at least 75, and she's still running her own company! A letter from a former instructor, who is 100, said she was teaching her peers in the retirement home to play bridge. The could be examples of forever young, for sure.

I just have to use them as role models and stay motivated. Right? Right.

supper. Yumm! Since I'm not a gardener, God has always seen to it that I live near gardeners.

Wanda, across the road in the O Pioneers house, provides rhubarb and asparagus. And Lee, to the east, raises the best tasting sweet corn we've ever eaten.

The hot, humid weather last week was hard to take. I actually got to the Platte River Park pool a couple of times to cool off. It looks like the air conditioning bill for the summer will rival the heat bill for last winter.

We did get most of the weeds out of the new shelter belt before it got super hot. The Big Farmer babies those evergreen trees.

So, it's the typical July in Nebraska. I was glad I wasn't playing in the Shrine game or the

Free Irrigation Well Nitrate Testing Now Available

NORFOLK --- The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) has again hired FFA teachers to collect water samples this summer. However, if landowners would like to collect the samples themselves, the LENRD will pay for the cost of the analysis.

LENRD Water Resources Manager, Rick Wozniak, said "We want to encourage landowners to participate in this program because of the benefits they will receive by knowing the amount of nitrate in their water. Nitrates in irrigation water can be used to lower fertilizer costs."

Landowners interested in collecting their own samples from their irrigation wells should contact their local county Extension office, their local Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) office or the LENRD office and pick up a 5 oz. bottle and postage paid mailer from one of these agencies. The LENRD will pay for the cost of shipping and analysis of the sample.

Landowners in Madison and Pierce Counties, who do not want to collect the samples themselves, can contact the LENRD office for assistance.

Guidelines for the FREE irrigation well nitrate testing program include:

- 1) Sample is to be taken only from irrigation wells.
- 2) Run the well at least 4 hours before taking the sample.
- 3) Try to sample when not chemigating, but, if you are chemigating, take the sample upstream of the chemigation injection site.
- 4) Be sure to fill the sample bottle completely.
- 5) Please fasten all lids securely to prevent leakage during shipping.
- 6) The sample needs to be received by the lab as soon as possible after collection, preferably within 24 hours. Try to collect the sample so that you can mail it early in the week (on a Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday), so that it does not sit in the Post Office over the weekend.
- 7) If it is not possible to send the sample to the lab immediately after collection, refrigerate until it is sent.

The LENRD will provide you with the results of your sample and an explanation of the results. For more information contact Skip Kahler at the LENRD office, (402) 371-7313

Free lead poisoning testing is now available for children

National Lead Poisoning Prevention Week is July 16-20. Goldenrod Hills Community Services offers FREE screening for possible lead poisoning for children between the ages of 12 months and six years. The test involves a simple finger stick administered by a registered nurse. Parents/guardians are informed of the results by mail in one to three weeks.

According to Nebraska Health and Human Services and the "Keep Your Child Lead-Safe" pamphlet, lead poisoning is a disease caused by ingesting or inhaling lead. It can affect almost every system in the body and can be harmful even in small amounts. Children most at risk are those who have a brother or sister with a high blood lead level; live with an adult whose job or hobby involves the use of lead; live within one block of a major highway or industry likely to release lead; or live in or often spend time in homes built before 1978-especially if they have peeling or chipping paint, or are being remodeled.

Lead-based paint is one source of lead exposure. This particular paint was banned for household use in 1978. Homes built before 1978 are more likely to contain lead-based paint which can create a fine lead dust due to the friction of windows or doors being opened or bumped against objects. Chipped or peeling paint can pose a risk to children. Soil may be contaminated with lead from exterior paint chips, lead dust, lead-based insecticides, or leaded gasoline.

People who work with smelting and refining of metals, plumbing fixture fittings and trim, motor vehicle parts and accessories, firing ranges, road construction or automotive repairs have an increased risk of passing lead onto their children. Stained glass work, refinishing furniture, making fishing sinkers, reloading bullets, and pottery are hobbies that involve lead. Serving foods in various imported, ceramic, lead crystal or pottery glazed dishes may also expose children to lead. The use of folk or cultural medicines such as Azarcon, Greta, Pay Loah, and Shung fa pose another risk. Vinyl mini-blinds, especially if they are made outside the United States, are another exposure. Plumbing fixtures may also be a threat.

The majority of children have no visible symptoms of lead poisoning. At low levels, lead may damage the nervous system which may lower IQ scores and make learning difficult. It can interfere with growth and cause hearing loss. It may cause excitability to make concentration difficult. Moderate and high levels of lead can cause symptoms that are commonly mistaken for flu and other illnesses. These include fatigue, irritability, headaches, difficulty sleeping, loss of appetite, abdominal pain, vomiting and constipation. It is always a good idea to check with your doctor if you notice these symptoms.

Several steps can be taken to protect your child. Keep your child away from peeling paint, paint chips or surfaces with lead-based paint. Do not vacuum hard-surfaced floors or window sills. Instead, wipe down these areas with cleaning solution and water to help control lead dust. Wash toys and keep play areas free of dust. Plant grass or bushes in the soil around your home. Remove shoes prior to entering your home. Have your home tested for lead prior to remodeling. Keep children and pregnant women away from any area being remedied. Replace imported vinyl mini-blinds with lead-free vinyl blinds.

People with an occupational exposure to lead should remove their clothes and shoes before entering their home. Their clothing should be washed separately from others and their hands and face before eating and sleeping will also help protect your child. Wash your hands before preparing food or playing with your child. Provide children with regular meals that consist of high iron (meats, beans, peanut butter) and calcium (milk, cheese). Less lead is absorbed into their system when these foods are in their bodies. Fatty foods should be avoided as they cause the body to absorb lead faster. Avoid using foreign or cultural medicines.

This week serves as a reminder to have your child tested. If you have any questions about lead poisoning or would like to schedule a FREE screening, please contact Goldenrod Hills Community Services at (402)-529-3513, ext. 57 or 1-800-445-2505, or check with your local physician.

Lions Club to sponsor screenings at County Fair

The Nebraska Lions Foundation and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska Mobile Screening Unit will offer free screenings for glaucoma, visual acuity, diabetes, hypertension, and hearing problems in Wayne on Aug. 3, 4.

The unit will be set up on Wayne County Fairgrounds at 3 - 7 p.m. on Aug. 3 and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Aug. 4 and is available for individuals 19 years and older. Individuals under 19 can be screened with written parental consent.

The visit is sponsored by the Wayne Lions Club. Local health care personnel and Lions Club members will assist with the screenings, which include:

- detecting glaucoma by measuring the pressure within the eyeball with a computerized puff tonometer.

- monitoring hearing loss by measuring the intensity of pitches that an individual hears in a sound reduced booth;

- using a "finger-stick" blood sugar test to check glucose levels, which is among the most up-to-date, safest monitoring devices available.

Although a screening by the Lions Club and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska Mobile Screening Unit does not provide a complete examination, it can serve as an early alert in detecting conditions which require individuals to visit their physician for treatment of those illnesses.

2001 marks the twelfth year of partnership between Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska, an independent licensee of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association, and the Nebraska Lions Foundation to offer free health screenings to Nebraskans.

DIGS UP DIAMOND

Ed Kalin of Coleridge came to Wakefield to watch the Laurel-Coleridge baseball teams play Wakefield on the 4th of July and went home with a diamond ring.

Kalin was the lucky winner in the Diamond Dig sponsored by Aid Association for Lutherans as part of their activities to support the efforts to place the MIA monument in the Wakefield Cemetery and fund a scholarship in memory of the MIAs.

Teaspoons were sold for $2 each to participants in the dig. Approximately 100 people took part in searching the infield of the ball diamond for the ring.

Gary Van Meter of Mines Jewelry in Wayne donated the diamond for the dig in memory of a cousin, Major Charles Conner, who is also a MIA. Conner was a Marine aviator who, on his fatal mission, was piloting a doctor to a fire base when his plane was shot down over the Gulf of Tonkin on Oct. 29, 1968.

The ring was valued at $225 and the winner had a choice of three styles. Kalin chose the solitaire.

RELATIVES COMPETE

Ten year-old Garrett Idler of Los Alamos, N.M. competed in the Junior Olympics State Track and Field meet in Albuquerque in June. Garrett placed second in the 100 meter dash, third in the 200 meter dash, first with a state record in the mini javelin and second in the triathlon.

Garrett's 12 year-old sister, Alissa, competes in swimming. The two are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Dewain Cisney of Arizona and great-grandchildren of Margaret Cisney of Wakefield.

FARM BUREAU SCHOLARSHIPS

Leslie Boeckenhauer and Joel McAfee, both 2001 graduates of Wakefield High School, are the first recipients of a $1,000 scholarship awarded by the Dixon County Farm Bureau.

The youth are the children of Tim and Shirlene Boeckenhauer and Stan and Kaye McAfee.

In making the recent announcement of the awards, Farm Bureau officials said, "Farm Bureau is excited to announce the presentation of these new scholarships." The organization plans to offer two $1,000 scholarships annually. Applicants must be from families who are Dixon County Farm Bureau members. Preference will be given to the students planning to enter or further their education in production, agriculture or agri-business fields.

Applications for 2002 will be available next spring.

PROMOTED

Terry Swagerty of Roseburg, Ore., son of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Swagerty, has been advanced at Umqua Community College at Roseburg to the position of Executive Director of Business and Work Force Development.

Terry graduated from Wakefield High School, attained his Bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska and his Master's degree from Oregon State University. He has been on the staff of Umqua Community College for 19 years.

Biting flies are plaguing Nebraska this summer

Cattle and horses aren't the only creatures getting bitten by stable flies this summer.

The stable fly is abundant in urban areas this year because of substantial early rainfall and poor management of grass clippings and compost piles, said Dave Keith, a University of Nebraska entomologist.

Stable flies look like common house flies, but have biting beaks extending from their heads. Many people have complained of pain or bites around the feet and ankles, where stable flies typically attack, Keith said.

While DEET-containing insect repellents help, clothing probably is a person's best defense, Keith said. Those plagued by flies should wear long pants and dark socks to protect themselves. White socks seem to attract these biting flies.

Residual sprays, such as Dursban and diazinon, will reduce the number of flies around outdoor pet areas. Spray vertical walls and vegetation near kennels, but don't apply it directly to animals, kennel floors or animal bedding, Keith said. Ointments or sprays containing insecticide, such as Fly-Off, Swat or Adams Fly Repellent, are available from veterinarians and pet stores and can be used to treat dogs' ears to prevent stable fly feeding.

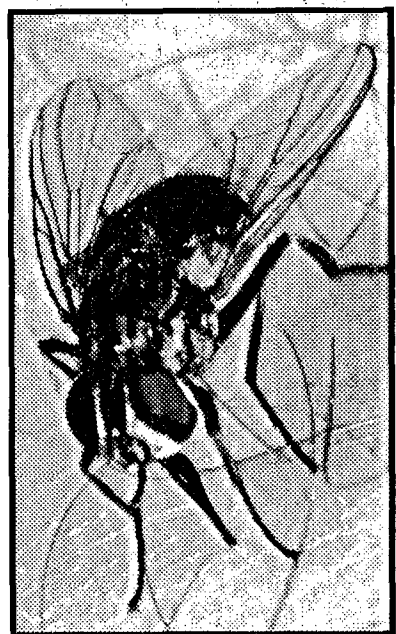

These flies commonly breed in piles of wet organic material, including grass clippings.

"Whenever you have wet organic matter, you'll get fly activity," Keith said. "Even though it's been dry lately, the stuff is still wet underneath."

If homeowners want to keep grass clippings, Keith said, they should spread the clipped grass thinly over garden soil and use it as mulch. A thin layer of grass dries too quickly to support breeding flies.

Proper composting methods can prevent most problems, Keith said. To make a compost pile, spread thin layers of clippings on the ground and alternate layers with soil and dry leaves. Apply some granular nitrogen fertilizer and water, then allow decomposition to generate internal heat, which makes it impossible for flies to survive. The compost should be turned every seven to 10 days to maintain active decomposition, Keith said. Homeowners also should clean the undersides of their lawn mowers, which may collect clippings and moisture than can support hundreds of stable fly maggots.

CARROLL VILLAGE BOARD PROCEEDINGS

Carroll, Nebraska July 11, 2001

The Board of Directors for the Village of Carroll met in regular session on the above date with the following members present: Marlee Burbach, Jim Fernau, Franklin Gilmore, Bob Hall, and Mark Tietz. Also present were Cynthia Puntney, Village Clerk, John Mohr, maintenance, and Charles Caskey, Village Attorney.

A Public Meeting was held preceding the Village Board Meeting to discuss a proposed ordinance pertaining to wrecked or abandoned motor vehicles. Also present for this public meeting were Alice Mohr, Mandy Fernau, Deb Hall, Kelvin Puntney, Scott Hurlbert, Arnold Junck, Alan Cook, Howard McClain, Brock Muhs, and John Dunklau. Board members also received a total of six phone calls from Village residents who were unable to attend the public meeting in favor of passing this ordinance. A discussion was held on the proposed ordinance—several sections of the ordinance were explained in further detail, including:

- a vehicle with a non-current license plate is considered a nuisance;
- a vehicle completely enclosed in a building shall not be considered a nuisance;
- when a formal complaint is received by the Village Board from residents, the Board will take that complaint into consideration and proceed accordingly;
- if a vehicle is valued at $250 or less, no title is needed for the Village to impound the vehicle and sell it;
- if a vehicle is valued over $250, the Village Chairperson will notify the last registered owner and they will have 10 days to take care of the nuisance before the Board takes further action;
- there is no grandfather clause that takes affect on nuisances;
- this ordinance only deals with nuisance vehicles, other nuisances (properties with unkempt yards, trash, and/or unsightly buildings) falls under the General Nuisance Properly Village Ordinance, already in effect.

Following the hour-long discussion, it was the consensus of those in attendance that this ordinance should be passed by the Village Board to keep the Village of Carroll looking nice and to keep up property valuations. It was also announced to those in attendance that copies of the Village Code Book are available from any board member for residents to look at if they have any questions on Village Codes.

Ordinance No. 2001-01 — An Ordinance for the Village of Carroll, Nebraska, pertaining to wrecked or abandoned motor vehicles — was introduced by Franklin Gilmore. The vaccination clinic was held on June 22nd. Village ordinance states that all dogs within the village limits are required to show proof of current vaccinations and will be issued a dog license for a $3 fee.
