Assisted Living Week to be observed

The week of Sept. 9-15 has been designated as National Assisted Living Week.

There are currently more than 800,000 people residing in approximately 32,000 assisted living facilities around the country.

Studies suggest that by 2030, approximately one in five Americans will be aged 65 or older. Sponsored by the National Center for Assisted Living (NCAL), the week spotlights the crucial role assisted living plays in helping those people to live independently while enjoying their quality of life.

The week also brings awareness to assisted living facilities and is a vehicle for celebrating the care-providers, volunteers and others from the community who foster the spirit of this year's theme, "Sharing the Wisdom of Generations," throughout the assisted living community.

The Oaks Retirement Community in Wayne has scheduled a number of activities to celebrate the week.

On Sunday, Sept. 9 a Grandparents Celebration will begin at 2 p.m. with the Sharing of Generations and Residents and Family Fun Day.

A barbecue lunch for staff and assisted living residents will be held at noon on Monday, Sept. 10 and an armchair tour of Southeast Asia, Part 2 will be at 3 p.m.

Bake and Take will take place at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Don Stenberg Attorney General

YOU ARE THE ABSOLUTE GUARANTEED WINNER!

But ONLY If You Have the Winning Number... Misleading language and qualified promises in sweepstakes offers are enticing many Nebraskans to send money and make purchases in hopes of guaranteeing a sweepstakes win.

Some sweepstakes mailings appear to require sending money, or the purchase of magazines or other merchandise in order to enter the sweepstakes. Do not send money with a sweepstakes entry, and do not purchase magazines or merchandise you do not really want.

Mailboxes across Nebraska have been flooded with sweepstakes offers. While many of the businesses offering sweepstakes will actually award the prizes described in their mailings, the odds of winning may be as high as one in several million!

The Nebraska Attorney General's Office is working to require legitimate sweepstakes offers to refrain from using misleading statements. Wording that implies you are a winner when you have, indeed, not been selected to receive a prize will no longer be allowed in some major sweepstakes promotions, and sweepstakes offers will be required to clearly state your odds of winning.

Here are some things to remember to avoid losing your hard earned money to deceptive sweepstakes offers:

- You are never required to send money or make a purchase in order to enter a legitimate sweepstakes.
Your sweepstakes entry will have exactly the same chance of winning whether or not you send money or purchase magazines or merchandise.
Responding to a request, for example, to send $19.95 for a surprise merchandise package when entering a sweepstakes will only get you more offers to send more money.
Never respond to a postcard requesting you to call about a sweepstakes win. It may result in an expensive phone bill.
If you believe you have been selected to receive a sweepstakes award, call the sweepstakes promoter to verify any winnings. Our office has toll free numbers available for several of the major sweepstakes.

State-run assessments are costly

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The old law of "downstream effects" is proving its validity around and about Nebraska these days.

The downstream law involves cosmic physics. It applies to law-making, and occasionally it seems to override other cosmic laws.

For example, there is the old cosmic law that says certain kinds of stinky stuff will always run downhill. The law of "downstream effects" proves that this ain't necessarily so.

A case in point is reflected by a statute enacted by the Legislature in 1997. In theory, it had some things going for it.

This particular law said that counties could request that state government take over the job of assessing real estate to determine its value for local property tax purposes.

Now, this sounded good to some folk for at least one big reason: If the state took over the assessment process for a county, the resulting effort would comply with state law. That is, the assessments wouldn't be artificially low. In case you are new to the local property tax system, or slightly more naive than Mary Poppins, for many years some local assessors were known to keep the local, political peace by failing to put valuations at levels required by state law.

A local assessor who does his or her duty can catch a lot of flak. In northwestern Nebraska, one county board asked the assessor to resign because she insisted on obeying the law - or on not violating it, take your pick - and raising assessments to required levels.

Since 1997 nine counties have asked the state to handle an assessment for them. It's a costly job for the state.

Now, enter Douglas County. Or, for purposes of this discussion, great big Douglas County. The Omaha-dominated, and most populous of Nebraska's 93 counties, it represents a lot of property. That means a lot of expense for assessing it. That means the state would take a real whack in the treasury - if it decided to do the job for Douglas County.

So, are you seeing the law of downstream effects coming into play?

The intent of the law was that state-run assessments could be more accurate and, in fact, would likely raise more money for local government. And, it was argued, the law would even provide an element of property tax relief (sort of)

because the participating counties wouldn't have to pay for a local assessor's office. The political advantage, for local officials, was that they could blame the big, bad state for those accurate (but higher) property valuations.

The reality of the law is that if the state were to take over assessment duties for any and every county that asked, the state would have to start looking around for a whole bunch of money to pay for the program.

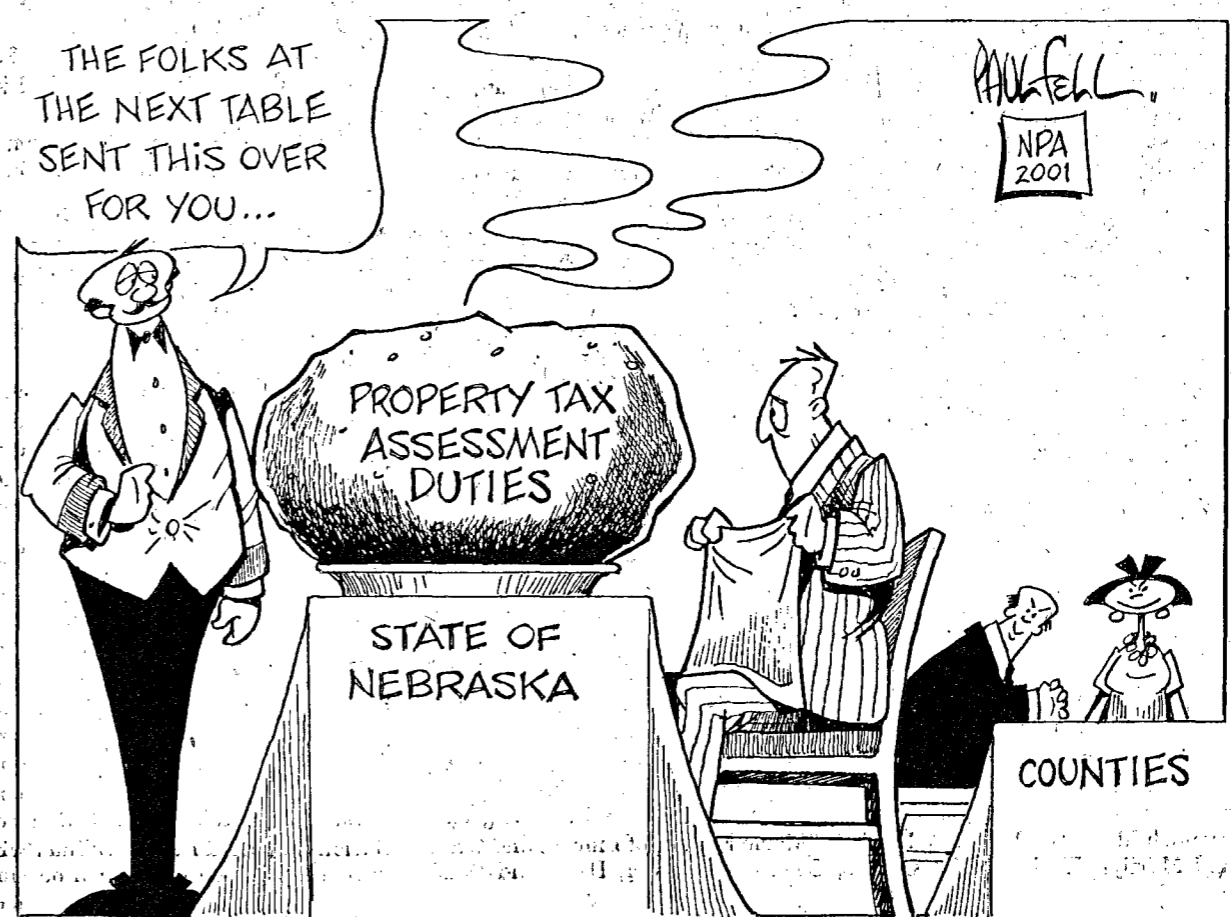

Gov. Mike Johanns doesn't have the final word on approving or denying such requests from counties (and he didn't claim that he did) but he made clear that he doesn't think the state should do this multimillion dollar job for

Douglas County. And, it would appear he thinks the entire law was a mistake.

What Johanns can see is that stinky stuff could start running uphill, in the direction of Lincoln. There's no indication that assessments are cheaper when run by the state, no evidence of meaningful, local property tax relief, and every indication that the state could bear an enormous cost (and a lot of political heat).

It's a tiny bit like one of those Wylie Coyote/Roadrunner cartoons.

That which was intended to deal with one problem doesn't work, and ends up causing another one if the program were greatly expanded.

Pilar Ahmann won the State Pedal Tractor Pull for four-year-old girls held at the Nebraska State Fair recently.

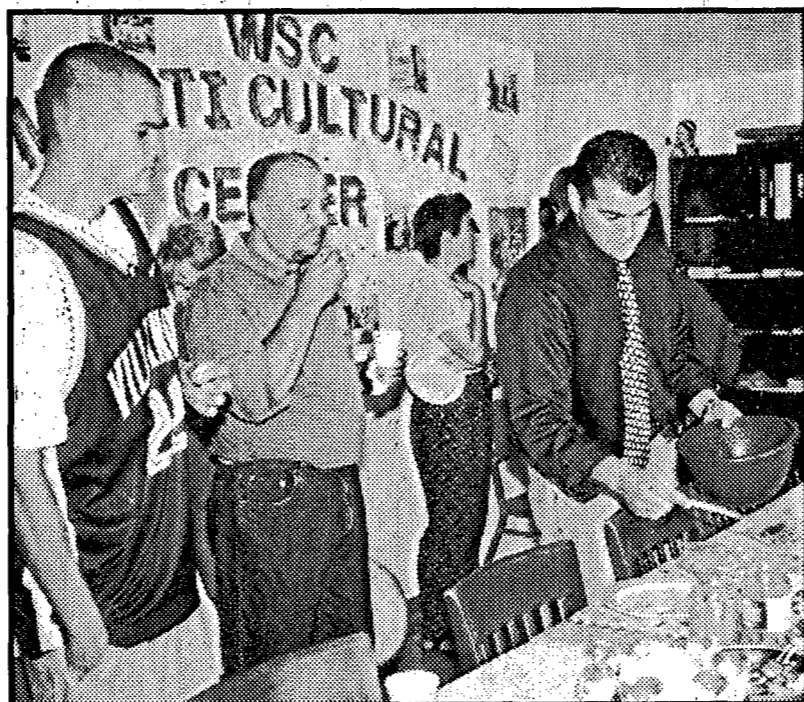

Granddaughter wins pedal pull

Pilar Ahmann, four-year old daughter of Sue and Dave Ahmann of Lincoln and granddaughter of Jane and Mark Ahmann of Wayne, won the State Pedal Tractor Pull for four year old girls.

The event was held recently at the Nebraska State Fair. Pilar has now qualified for the National Pedal Pull Contest to be held in Omaha on Saturday, Sept. 22.

The top five qualifiers in each age group at the national meet qualify for the International Competition to be held in Manitoba, Canada in June of 2002.

In addition to the state crown, Pilar won both the Lancaster and Seward County Fair Pedal pulls for her age group.

Celebrating at the Multicultural Center

Wilcox to speak at First Fridays forum

Dr. Daryl Wilcox of the Wayne State College School of Education and Counseling will speak on math education for Native Americans during the First Fridays forum in the Niobrara Room of the Student Center on the Wayne State College campus, Sept. 7 at 9 a.m.

Wilcox will talk about the continued cooperative effort between Winnebago Public School and the Wayne State College School of Education and Counseling.

Last year, WSC and Winnebago received a grant to fund a program to improve mathematics instruction and enhance college students' pre-career experience. The Native American Education grant for 2000 was valued at $45,561 and was awarded by the Nebraska Commission on Higher Education.

This year the effort will continue through a $32,181 grant from the Dwight D. Eisenhower Professional Development Program and the Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education of Nebraska.

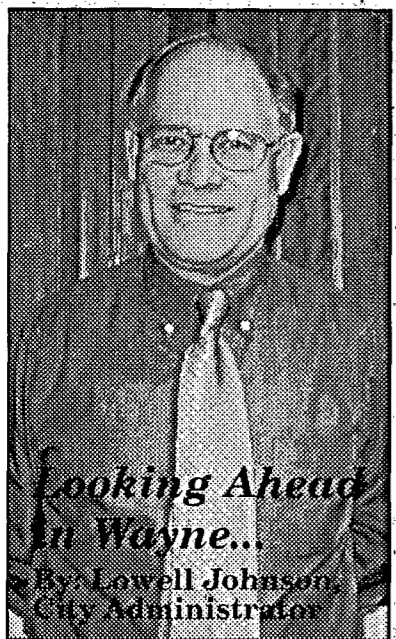

A free continental breakfast will be served. Although designed for senior citizen appeal, all ages are welcome to attend. There is no admission charge.

During each First Fridays event, a special guest of honor is recognized, birthdays are acknowledged and a talk or performance by a member of WSC's faculty or staff completes the session. The First Fridays event series is co-sponsored by the Visual and Performing Arts Office and the Wayne State Foundation.

$20 fee for unlocking cars

Beginning in October, a $20 fee will be charged for police services to unlock cars in Wayne. Our records show that Wayne police unlock between 400 and 500 cars per year and the fees will help recover costs of training for new car models, tools required and officer time. Dispatches will inform people who call for assistance that a fee will be charged.

City of Wayne budget

The final hearing for next year's budget will be Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. The 2001-2002 budget proposes returning the property tax levy to the tax lid amount of 45 cents to establish a sinking fund for a new fire truck and for building repairs. Potential increases are proposed for utilities to cover capital improvement costs and pass through the increased charges the city must pay. Call for copies or information.

Community Activity Center

Contractors will begin construction next week and hope to have the building enclosed for winter. At this time we are not planning to hire a graphic designer to set up a new website but are looking at proposals for having the site built by area businesses at less cost.

Sunbeam program meeting is scheduled

An informational meeting for Wayne State College students interested in learning about the WSC College Sunbeam Program will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 4:00 p.m. in Connell Hall, Room 131.

During her commencement address at WSC in May, Doris Buffett Bryant, president of the Sunshine Lady Foundation, Inc., announced the formation of the Wayne State College Sunbeam Program beginning with the 2001-02 academic year.

The goal of the College Sunbeam Program is to promote the ideal of community service among college students, to provide opportunities for "real life" experience in the non-profit sector and the world of philanthropy, and to develop community activists and leaders. A committee composed of WSC faculty and staff will select six students to serve as Sunbeams for one academic year. Each Sunbeam will be eligible to receive up to $5,000 during the year for a project or an organization with which they are personally and materially involved which provides a service to the local community and which is compatible with the Sunshine Lady Foundation mission and guidelines. Wayne State College is only the second college in the nation to have a College Sunbeam Program. The other school is Davidson College in North Carolina.

"We encourage students to attend the informational meeting on Sept. 12," said Judy Johnson, WSC director of college relations and campus coordinator of the Library begins new service for parenting

The Wayne Public Library has recently begun circulation of a collection of materials in the Parenting Corner.

In 2000, the library was approached by Deb Allemann of Goldenrod Hills about the possibility of housing a parenting collection. Funds were received from a grant through the Nebraska Library Commission and the Wayne County Extension Board.

The money was used to purchase a TV/VCR and books for parents.

Additional funds were received from the Wayne United Way to purchase books for the collection at the children's level.

"The Parenting Collection meets our pledge of serving, teaching and nurturing children in order to create children of promise in our community," said Lauran Lofgren, Library Director.

Books and videos are available on such topics as discipline, behavior disorders, single parenting, learning disorders, death, giftedness, working mothers, birth, divorce and time management.

Videos are available for a one week check out or can be viewed on the library's TV/VCR. Groups and organizations may check out the videos and the TV/VCR for use at meetings or other events.

Books are available for two week check out.

For more information on the collection, contact the library at (402) 375-3135.

Children's Librarian Peggy Nelson examines the materials that recently became available for circulation at the Wayne Public Library. The materials are designed to assist parents and other caregivers with parenting skills.

Winside kicked off its eight-man era with a 10-point win over Osmond last Friday, 38-28. The Wildcats played 11-man football since the early 90's before the enrollment numbers declined to push the Wildcats to the eight-man ranks in Class D-1.

Osmond jumped on the scoreboard early with a quick touchdown, before Winside would rally with two straight scores to take a 14-12 lead with touchdowns coming from a seven yard touchdown run from Adam Hoffman and a three yard gallop from Shane Jaeger in to the half. Winside would then begin to put on the afterburners in the third quarter with 24 points. Adam Hoffman contributed three of the scores with a 10 yard run, one yard run, and a 74 yard kick-off return. Denton Cushing provided the last score of the game for Winside with a safety to help pull out the 38-28 victory.

Adam Hoffman led the way on the ground attack with 120 yards on 18 carries and three touchdowns. Russell O'Connor contributed with 41 yards on nine carries, while Shane Jaeger had 56 yards on 15 carries and one touchdown.

Adam Hoffman completed two out of seven pass attempts for 60 yards. Ben Lienemann provided the only two receptions for 60 yards.

The Winside defense was led by Ben Lienemann and Eric Morris with nine tackles apiece. Tom Schwedhelm and Denton Cushing finished up the tackle chart with eight apiece.

Hoffman, incidentally, finished the game with over 300 total yards with rushing, passing and returns. Winside will host Bloomfield on Friday.

Laurel-Concord posts 7-6 season-opening win

The Laurel-Concord football team opened defense of its C-2 State Championship with a 7-6 win at Lyons Decatur Northeast last Friday.

The Bears lone score came in the third quarter on a 50-yard swing pass from Blake Erwin to Bennie Surber. Cassidy Neuhalfen booted the point after which proved to be the game-winner.

Erwin was 7-12 through the air for 115 yards with Marc Manganaro catching four passes for 44 yards. Surber rushed for 51 yards on nine carries with David Asbra netting 23 yards on eight attempts.

Asbra was the defensive force for Mike Halley's Bears with 17 tackles with Tyler Stingley and Blake Erwin netting nine each.

"Our kids gained some valuable experience in the opener," Halley said. "There's plenty of work for us to do in all aspects of the game."

The Bears will host Neligh-Oakdale on Friday.

Use sprinkler, not furrow

Irrigation system could lower nitrate levels

Irrigating with sprinkler instead of furrow irrigation systems can reduce shallow groundwater, nitrate contamination, University of Nebraska research shows.

Results from a six-year study of irrigation systems on three corn test fields near Shelton, leave little doubt that if more center pivot sprinklers were used to irrigate crops, groundwater nitrate contamination could be significantly reduced, said Roy Spalding, an NU hydrochemist and co-leader of this research.

Compared to conventional furrow and surge irrigation, nitrate-nitrogen contamination in shallow groundwater can be kept consistently at or near 10 parts per million using a center pivot, the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources researcher said.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's safe drinking water standard for nitrates is 10 ppm. Much of Nebraska's shallow groundwater exceeds that standard, which forces many communities and private water well users to treat the contamination or use bottled water, he said.

Nitrate contamination has been linked to health risks such as Blue Baby Syndrome, which lowers oxygen-carrying capacity of infants' blood, and bladder cancer in middle-aged women.

"The best way to control nitrate leaching to the groundwater is to control irrigation water usage and to spoon-feed just the right amount of nitrogen fertilizer to crops through a sprinkler system," Spalding said.

He and fellow NU researchers came to that conclusion after six years of controlled testing of gravity-type furrow and surge irrigation and sprinkler-type center pivots. Studies were conducted in three adjoining, 40-acre corn plots at the university's Nebraska Management System Evaluation Area near Shelton from spring 1991 to fall 1996.

Irrigation methods and fertilizer management techniques on the test fields were closely monitored using more than 30 multi-level sampling wells. These wells allowed researchers to analyze water samples from as many as 16 different depths throughout the underlying aquifer.

When research began, samples showed nitrate-nitrogen levels averaging 30 ppm, three times the EPA's safe drinking water limit. Nitrate levels were generally highest in the fall, when groundwater levels were the lowest, indicating that irrigation water and rainfall had flushed much of the nitrate from the soils to the shallow groundwater.

There were significant climatic differences in each of the growing seasons during the research, including an unusually wet season in 1993 followed by dry seasons in 1994 and 1995. However, shallow groundwater sampling consistently found higher average nitrate-nitrogen levels under furrow- and surge-irrigated fields than beneath the center pivot-irrigated field.

"There also were larger fluctuations in the nitrate-nitrogen concentrations associated with the furrow irrigation method. This again suggests that center pivots are vastly superior in applying uniform amounts of water," Spalding said.

After the wet 1993 growing season, shallow nitrate levels dropped about 10 to 15 ppm under the fields. Levels began building up in the 1994 growing season beneath the furrow-irrigated field but remained at about 10 ppm beneath the sprinkler-irrigated field.

Researchers carefully monitored the amounts of nitrogen fertilizer and irrigation water applied to the fields. Compared to the furrow-irrigated field, the surge-irrigated field received 60 percent less water and 31 percent less nitrogen, while the center pivot field got 66 percent less water and 37 percent less nitrogen. Although the surge-irrigated field received almost as much water as the center pivot field, it wasn't able to limit nitrate contamination nearly as well, Spalding said.

"With a center pivot, the producer can uniformly apply water and nitrogen at optimum times for crop uptake, thereby using substantially less water and nitrogen," he said.

"The good news is that it's clear that careful management by the producer and innovative agricultural practices can maintain groundwater nitrate concentrations at more acceptable levels without significantly compromising crop yields," Spalding said.

Center pivot is the primary irrigation system used in Nebraska, accounting for more than 4.6 million of the state's more than 7 million acres of irrigated cropland, according to an NU agricultural economist's recent inventory of Nebraska's irrigated acres.

The research findings were published in the July-August edition of the Journal of Environmental Quality.

This research, conducted in cooperation with IANR's Agricultural Research Division, was funded in part by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Nebraska Research Initiative and the Central Platte Natural Resources District.

Local couple to sponsor lecturer

Edward & Lauren Knievel of Elgin will be hosting 1991 Nobel Prize Nominee, Dr. Joel Wallach, BS, D.V.M., ND in his upcoming seminars in Norfolk and Grand Island, Nebraska.

Born and raised in Missouri, Dr. Joel Wallach attended the University of Missouri, where he received a Bachelor's degree in Science of Agriculture. A veterinarian for 30 years, he worked as a research veterinary pathologist with the National Institute of Health for The Center for the Biology of Natural Systems, Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri; Yerkes Regional Primate Research Center in Atlanta, Georgia, at Emory University.

Having discovered and identified the first animal models for cystic fibrosis, monkeys, he found that he could reproduce their condition at will because it was a nutritional deficiency. His find offered great promise for children with the disease, but when he made it public, the institute fired him on 24 hours notice.

Chagrined and perplexed, Dr. Wallach made the decision to go to medical school so he could treat children for cystic fibrosis himself.

Realizing that traditional medical school was likely to be as repressive as the National Institute, he accepted an invitation to teach nutrition at The College of Naturopathic Medicine in Oregon, not even knowing what a naturopathic doctor was. When he learned that he could be a primary care physician, deliver babies, sew up chainsaw wounds, write prescriptions and get paid by insurance, all throughout a program that encourages interest in nutrition, he simultaneously enrolled as a full time student. Soon people were flocking to the college clinic.

Doctor Wallach's innovative slant is derived from his background in veterinary medicine. Because there is no health insurance, animal products such as meat and dairy are kept affordable by preventing and curing diseases with nutritional formulas in animal feed. When he started incorporating similar nutritional formulas with people, word got out that "if you're not happy with your doctor, go see Doctor Wallach. He'll treat you like a dog, but you'll get better."

Doctor Wallach received a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree from the University of Missouri in 1962. He majored in Animal Husbandry (nutrition), and minored in Field Crops and Soil. In 1964 he received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine from the University of Missouri in Columbia. Doctor Wallach continued his Post Doctoral fellowship at The Center for the Biology of Natural Systems, Washington University, St. Louis Zoological Gardens and Shaw's Botanical Gardens from 1966 to 1968. In 1982 he received his Doctor of Naturopathic Medicine degree from The National College of Naturopathic Medicine in Portland, Oregon. Dr. Wallach was the recipient of the 1988 Wooster Beach Gold Metal Award for significant breakthrough in the basic understanding of the cause and pathophysiology of Cystic Fibrosis awarded by the Association of Eclectic Physicians. In 1991 Dr. Wallach was a Nobel Prize Nominee in Medicine for his stunning discoveries in the use of trace minerals to prevent catastrophic diseases in the newborn.

Dr. Wallach's lists of published books includes; Rhino Express, Diseases of Exotic Animals, Let's Play Doctor!, Rare Earths Forbidden Cures, Dead Doctor's Don't Lie and Let's Play Herbal Doctor!. Doctor Wallach's tape "Dead Doctor's Don't Lie" has sold millions of copies.

Doctor Wallach's famous "Dead Doctor's Don't Lie" lecture is free and open to the public. He will be appearing in Norfolk on Monday, Sept. 10 at 7:00 p.m. at the Johnny Carson Theater, 801 Riverside Blvd. The lecture in Grand Island on Sept. 11, will be held at the Liederkranz, 401 West 1st Street (1st & Walnut) beginning at 7 p.m. He will also be available at Husker Harvest Days west of Grand Island on September 11 for book autographs.

Although the lecture is free, and open to the public, a food item donated to local area food pantries would be greatly appreciated. For more information, call Ed and Lauren Knievel, 402-843-5889.

Fever-Fighter May Help After Stroke

According to a recent Journal of the American Heart Association report, 20% to 50% of persons who experience stroke also have a slight rise in body temperature. Although not high enough to result in fever, this rise in body temperature is associated with increased risk of poor outcomes, including death. Researchers in The Netherlands tested the theory that giving the fever-fighter medicine acetaminophen (the active ingredient in Tylenol and many other nonprescription fever medicines) could improve stroke outcomes.

Stroke victims were given acetaminophen immediately after the type of stroke in which the blood supply is cut off from the brain. A temperature drop of 0.4 degrees C was noted. Although this decrease in temperature in stroke victims is modest, it has been estimated that risk of death doubles for every 1 degree C increase in body temperature. The researchers described the treatment as "very promising."

Americans urged to learn heart attack signs

Every year, 1.1 million Americans suffer a heart attack. Of those, approximately 460,000 of them die with about half of those dying before they reach a hospital, according to the American Heart Association. In recognition of National 9-1-1

Day on Sept. 11, the American Heart Association and the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute encourage Americans to learn the warning signs of a heart attack and call 9-1-1 immediately. "People often downplay the importance of the problem they are experiencing or witnessing. They think that driving to the hospital is faster than calling for an ambulance or are embarrassed to ask for help," said Dr. Theresa Hatcher, an American Heart Association spokesperson in Nebraska and chair of the Association's Operation Heartbeat in Douglas and Sarpy counties. "The reality is that, if you recognize the warning signs of a cardiac emergency, calling 9-1-1 is the right thing to do. Our emergency medical system is the first link in the chain of survival and can make the difference between life and death."

In a heart attack, heart muscle dies. Clot-busting drugs and angioplasty can literally stop a heart attack in progress and minimize the loss of heart muscle but only if they are administered soon after the onset of symptoms—preferably within an hour, Hatcher added. By calling 9-1-1 immediately, heart attack victims can begin receiving treatment on the way to the hospital. Patients who arrive by ambulance may also receive more prompt attention upon their arrival at the hospital.

According to the American Heart Association, the warning signs of a heart attack include:

*Chest discomfort. Most heart attacks involve discomfort in the center of the chest that lasts more than a few minutes, or that goes away and comes back. It can feel like uncomfortable pressure, squeezing, fullness or pain.

*Discomfort in other areas of the upper body. Symptoms can include pain or discomfort in one or both arms, the back, neck, jaw or stomach.

*Shortness of breath. This feeling often comes along with chest discomfort, but it can occur before the chest discomfort.

*Other signs: These may include breaking out in a cold sweat, nausea or light-headedness.

Cardiac arrest is another life-threatening emergency requiring immediate response, Hatcher said. The warning signs of sudden cardiac death differ from heart attack. In cardiac arrest, a victim collapses and loses consciousness, stops normal breathing and loses blood pressure. Brain death starts to occur in just four to six minutes after someone experiences sudden cardiac arrest. Survival is directly linked to the amount of time between the onset of sudden cardiac arrest and defibrillation (shocking the heart back into a normal rhythm). Chances of survival drop 7-10 percent with every minute of delay. Few attempts at resuscitation are successful after 10 minutes.

Sudden cardiac arrest claims about 220,000 adults in the United States annually. More than 95 percent of sudden cardiac arrest victims die before reaching the hospital. Sudden cardiac arrest is caused by a life-threatening abnormal heart rhythm that can result from heart attack, respiratory arrest, electrocution, drowning, choking or trauma, or no known cause.

For more information on heart attack or cardiac arrest, visit the American Heart Association's web site at www.americanheart.org. For a free copy of the warning signs of heart attack, call 1-800-AHA-USAL.

Market Journal hosted in Concord

"Market Journal" looks at marketing electronically. For over 150 years, the Chicago Board of Trade has relied on the open outcry system of trading, but soon may be switching to a more technological system.

The Sept. 13 edition of "Market Journal" will be down linked from 8 to 9 p.m. at the Haskell Research Lab east of Concord. Please call the Dixon County Extension Office by noon on that date if you plan to attend. If less than five people are in attendance, the viewing site will be cancelled.

Doug Jose, host of "Market Journal" and University of Nebraska agricultural economist discusses the advantages and disadvantages of a new electronic trading system with Gene Kunda, senior economist with the Chicago Board of Trade and Roy Huckabay, vice-president of the Linn Group. Members of the Chicago Board of Trade will decide whether to change the markets from the open outcry system to a computerized one.

"There's honestly a real question whether the electronic system could handle the volatility and volume whereas we've never been over-capacitated or over-taxed in open outcry," Kunda said. "There's a lot of fat finger errors that can occur whereas if you have open outcry sometimes, there's still a human element."

Since the electronic system is technologically advanced, overtaxing it would be difficult, Kunda admits. An electronic system also can reduce problems with back logs and paper trails.

The Chicago Board of Trade has already established some electronic markets which are beneficial to retail-oriented customers but most large commodity orders are still completed through the open outcry system.

Huckabay's trading group has found great success using an electronic system.

I'd say 70 to 75 percent of our orders end up in the pit electronically," Huckabay said. Also appearing on the program are Roy Smith, Plattsmouth grain farmer and market analyst and Al Dutcher, NU state climatologist. Smith will give his thoughts on current and future market trends and Dutcher will discuss upcoming climate conditions.

"Market Journal" also can be seen the third Thursday of each month live via the Internet. Both editions are archived for later viewing at the "Market Journal" website.

Herbs for Health
Purple Coneflower Enhances Immunity

The purple coneflower was the most widely used herb in the US during the nineteenth century. This flower, which is one of the several from the species echinacea, is native to the great plains. It was used by American Indians to treat everything from coughs to snakebites. During the first half of this century, Echinacea was listed in the National Formulary, a book of "remedies" that generally were recognized as being useful. With the advent of antibiotics, the herb fell from widespread use by most physicians.

Echinacea seems to enhance a nonspecific type of immunity. The herb stimulates the body to make chemicals that fight illness caused by bacteria, viruses, and fungi. Numerous studies have shown that the herb does enhance immunity. One such study involved persons who were prone to have upper respiratory infections. Study participants were given either fresh juice from Echinacea purpurea or a placebo two times a day for 8 weeks. Those who received the herb had about 40% less illness. They also had 40 days between episodes of illness as compared to 25 days in the group that received the placebo.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

"Unlock your potential", what does that mean to you? If you ask Clayton Bratcher what it means to him, he will tell you, "To me, it is discovering yourself. It is learning to accept what people think, but not taking it personally."

As an Allen FFA member, Clayton had his chance to unlock his potential at the June 20 - 24 Washington Leadership Conference (WLC). Clayton arrived on June 20 in Washington D.C. to begin his learning. Clayton was one of 900 FFA members to develop his leadership potential at WLC. WLC participants worked with ice breakers, career exploration, reflections, and tours.

Reflections are looking back on how the day's activities influenced our lives. The group toured the Supreme Court, the Library of Congress, the Lincoln Memorial, the Vietnam Wall, and other various attractions.

The week ended with a banquet, dance and one final reflection. At this reflection, WLC participants received their key as a reminder to keep unlocking their potential.

Allen has sent two FFA members to the WLC in the past twenty-five years. Kelly Fendrick participated in 1997. Clayton is a senior at Allen and is the son of Maggie and Jeff Bratcher.

NEW POSTMASTER

Patrons of the Winside Post Office have been greeted the past few weeks by a new face. It's the face of Sandra Atkins. Though she is new to Winside, Mrs. Atkins is not new to the northeast Nebraska area. Prior to coming to the Winside Post Office, she was post master in Carroll for the past 10 years and also has been an active EMT and First Responder volunteer.

Atkins grew up in Carroll and graduated from Winside High School. She started her postal career in 1979 as a PTF (part-time flex) clerk-carrier in Wayne for 12 years. Over the years, Atkins has served as officer-in-charge at different offices and filled in other offices in an emergency situation.

Atkins also is an EMT-Paramedic and works part time for the Norfolk Ambulance. She teaches EMT-B classes, CPR-AED, First Aid and First Responder Continuing Education Classes for Northeast Community Classes.

Atkins and her husband Jim (who is retired from postal service), reside northeast of Winside on an acreage. They have four adult children. Boating, camping and visits with children and grandchildren fill in any spare time. She also enjoys horses.

An official installation date with an open house for the public will be announced at a later date. Atkins said she looks forward to serving the community and invites everyone to stop in and introduce themselves. The post office business hours are Monday-Friday, 7 a.m. - noon and 1-4 p.m. and on Saturday from 7-9 a.m.

PIERCE BEGINS DUTIES

Mr. Lynn Pierce is the new Winside Elementary School Principal and Guidance Counselor.

"I will be visiting in each classroom weekly and will also work individually with children as needed," said Pierce.

Prior to coming to Winside,

Open house was held at Winside Elementary Public School on Aug. 27. Lynn Pierce, the new principal/counselor at Winside Elementary, gave an introduction and reviewed the new parent/student handbook for the elementary school with the parents, students, and other interested persons attending the event.

Pierce was an elementary principal last year at Tecumseh; seven years as a counselor at Neligh/Oakdale and four years in Valley as an elementary health and drug educator. He is a native of Verdigré.

Living in Winside, Pierce has a wife, Maggie, daughter Haley, 3 1/2, son Seth, 2 1/2, and a baby on the way.

CROWD AT OPEN HOUSE

Winside Elementary Public School held an Open House for parents, students and other interested persons on Aug. 27. An exceptionally large crowd filled the multi-purpose room during an introduction by the new elementary school principal/guidance counselor, Lynn Pierce. A new parent/student handbook for the elementary school was handed out and reviewed by Pierce.

"This book was created this past summer by a number of parents and staff members after it was suggested last year to Supt. Arden Svoboda. Its purpose is to communicate expectations between the school, parents and students; to inform parents about programs available at the school and to bring uniformity and fairness to the students," said Pierce.

There are 137 students enrolled in Winside in the K-6 grades. Pierce briefly discussed individual sections of the handbook and suggested parents review them.

"We would like to also encourage more parental involvement with the school, perhaps volunteering as a teacher's aid and helper."

Afterwards he encouraged parents to return to their children's classroom, visit with the teachers, tour the rest of the building or visit with him.

The elementary has the privilege of two Wayne State College student teachers this semester. They are Nicole Cross teaching and helping in the first grade classroom and Joe Gubbels in the fourth grade class.

Patience needed in today's society

We've just spent three days with two grandchildren, and we are both feeling our age! Where do a six and four-year-old get all that energy? We've done Platte River Park, Louisville Lakes, and the Children's Zoo. They're still going strong, and Grandma is dragging.

I did manage to get three fresh peach pies made, and are they ever good. I found some real lard in the freezer for the crusts.

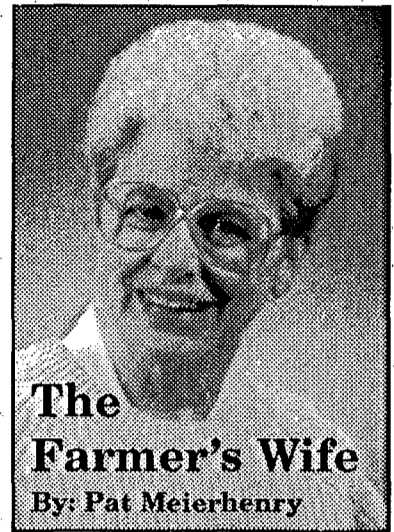

The thing that's really bugging me these days is the annual invasion of the crickets. I sprayed the basement a month ago, which helped, but they are still getting in somehow. That eternal singing gets under my skin. I've torn the kitchen apart, looking for one that never shuts up. Who ever said they are lucky?

One nice thing, though, about getting older is that I waste a lot less energy on anger than I used to. Which helps in tolerating grandchildren and crickets.

There's an excellent article in Sunday's Parade magazine entitled "Why Are We So Angry?" Why, indeed? One expert singles out time, technology, and tension. For me, it was always fatigue. Even on my worst days, though, I didn't yell in public or kick ATM machines. Civility is getting harder and harder to find.

In the sermon yesterday, the minister told of buying gas at a convenience store. When he went inside to pay, the clerk's hands were shaking and there were tears in her eyes. It seems a woman had sent her daughter in to buy cigarettes. Since she was obviously underage, the clerk refused; prompting the mother to come inside and yell and curse at the clerk.

The State Health Department determined that two doses of mumps, measles and rubella were necessary to provide immunity. They lobbied the legislature, which passed the law making two doses mandatory at the start of this school year.

There have been letters sent home, notices on TV and in the paper, many free clinics; and still, when school began, there were a significant number of students without the second shot. Countless hours have been spent, sorting records and tallying immunizations. When my friends began calling parents to say their children would have to stay out of school until they were in compliance, they were called all kinds of unprintable names.

One thing we've learned: "venting" does not help the situation. A psychology professor at Iowa State says catharsis is worse than useless. Research has shown that letting anger out makes people more aggressive, not less. Like any feeling, anger lasts only about three seconds. What keeps it going is negative thinking. Important stuff to think about.

Gardeners can't resist looking ahead

By Deb Daehnke
Member of the Master Gardener class

While we haven't even finished with this garden season, most gardeners can't resist looking ahead to improve, revamp or even relocate their entire garden for the next growing season.

With that in mind, if you were looking for something different, I'd available with purple flowers. It also has seed-filled tendrils that dangle down the long stems helping give it that spidery appearance. Because of its heights, it works best at the back of the flower bed, as a hedge, or can be a spectacular specimen plant. I planted six pink and whites in a grouping this year and reached about five feet tall covering an area approximately four foot by seven foot. They have flowered continuously since mid July and should continue until mid autumn. They survived our cool, windy spring and our extended hot, humid weather this summer. And even though the grasshoppers have devoured some of my other plants, the Cleomes were left virtually untouched. I did not fertilize since I add plenty of compost to my beds in late fall or early spring.

There are new varieties now available that reach only about 15 inches tall and make good container plants. But if you have the space, try the larger varieties. These specimens will make a show that won't disappoint. Some varieties may have an unpleasant scent, but I did not have that problem. If the scent isn't a problem, they make fabulous cut flowers.

Cleome self-sows, so keep an eye on it. Unwanted plants should be easy to pull and discard. Or, you may try digging them up and sharing with friends. I plan to collect some seeds this fall and try germinating them indoors next spring. The do need temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees to germinate, so don't place them outside too early next year if you decide to direct seed in

Wayne County Extension Board meeting planned

The Wayne County Extension Board will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Wayne County Courthouse meeting room. The meeting is open to the public. An agenda is available at the Extension Office at 510 Pearl Street in Wayne.

Cover crops benefit fields in several ways

Planting small grains for cover crops will help protect soil in fields left bare by early harvests and provide extra feed and forage for livestock, a University of Nebraska forage specialist said.

Cover crops might be especially useful this year in areas of the state where soybeans or corn will be harvested earlier because of dry conditions. They also are useful on fields harvested for forage, said Bruce Anderson, NU forage specialist.

"Establishing a cover crop rather than leaving the ground bare for up to nine months will reduce erosion and dust storms next winter and spring," Anderson said.

Cattle producers anticipating a hay shortage might be able to get livestock out to pasture several weeks earlier than normal next spring if cover crops planted now are available for grazing, thus reducing the need for spring hay, Anderson said.

"Another potential benefit will be the opportunity to graze on the annual small grains early in the season and allow other pastures, perhaps stressed this year by dry weather, to get more growth on them," he said.

Anderson suggested planting oats, rye, triticale or wheat. While oats must be planted now to get much useful growth, rye, triticale and wheat can be planted until the end of September.

"Which of these small grains to plant depends of the producer's needs," Anderson said.

If a producer wants feed for this fall, oats might give the greatest forage yield potential, Anderson said. Another advantage of oats is that it dies over winter and won't interfere with next year's crop. However, oat residue is not very durable and provides less effective soil protection for a shorter time.

For better soil protection, rye is a good choice. It also provides abundant early spring growth to get cows off hay sooner. Its fall growth usually is slightly better than wheat or triticale but far less than oats.

Triticale works best for producers looking to maximize late spring forage yield and quality, especially as hay or silage. It may be more expensive to plant and less winter hardy than rye, but it works well for spring forage, Anderson said.

Winter wheat is the best choice if harvestable grain is the goal following winter soil protection.

Bluebird group to hold picnic near Stanton

Donna Liska, Wayne County Coordinator of Bluebirds Across Nebraska (BAN) has announced that the group will sponsor a potluck picnic on Sunday, Sept. 9.

The event begins at 1 p.m. at Maskenthine Lake two miles north of Stanton. BAN will provide all the drinks and prizes. Attendees are asked to bring a covered dish to share and their own table service.

Those unable to attend the meal are invited to attend an afternoon program that will follow. BAN officers and Northeast Nebraska county coordinators will be introduced, area BAN members will report on interesting activities the past year in their bluebird boxes and there will be a question and answer session.

The picnic will be held in the large shelter on the west side of the lake, a little north of the boat dock. Bluebirds signs will point the way. In case of inclement weather, the event will be moved to the social hall of the New England Congregational Church at the north edge of Stanton.

Mrs. Liska also stated that there are currently 10 members of BAN in Wayne County. Eight bluebirds were fledged during the Wayne County Fair in two nests. Birds were also fledged at Greenwood Cemetery this year.

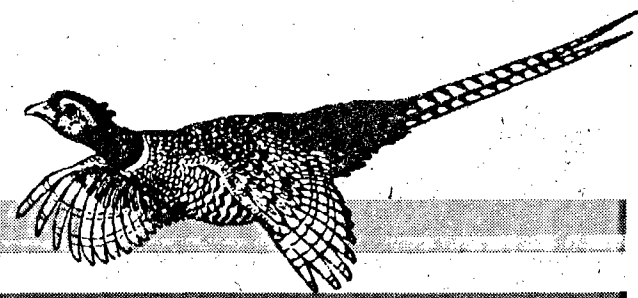

Mrs. Liska said she spends time monitoring boxes in this area and is trying to get bluebirds established in this area.

Rings to observe 50th

Merle and Donna Ring observed their 50th wedding anniversary on a weekend trip to Winnipeg, Canada with their son, Dr. Bruce Ring and his wife, Elizabeth of Crookston, Minn.

The couple's five children had "pulled off" a well-executed SURPRISE celebration for their parents 49th anniversary last year, knowing a 50th would never come off as a surprise.

The Ring's son-in-law, Brad Sheafe of Fairfax, Va. had created the first line of the invitation, "Fifty years of marriage is surely fine, but it's much more original to celebrate 49!"

At last year's celebration, more than 175 relatives and friends had graced the lawn of Evergreen Heights, rural Wayne, to 'greet' the Rings as they returned from Lincoln. As Merle related, they were only only surprised — totally surprised — but bewildered that so many family (grandchildren included) and friends remained so innocent for so long without accidentally alerting them that 'something was up!'

Merle and Donna Ring were married Sept. 1, 1951 at First Lutheran Church in South Sioux City.

Hosting last year's celebration were their children, Dr. Bruce Ring and Elizabeth of Crookston, Minn., Ron and Ruth Ring of Lexington, Ky, Jane and Kerry Jech of Marshalltown, Iowa, Jeanne and Doug Walker of Lincoln and Krista and Brad Sheafe of Fairfax, Va. Twelve of their 14 (now 15) grandchildren were also present at the event.

Creighton — Scholting

Larry and Kim Creighton of Omaha have announced the engagement of their daughter, Monica, to Bill Scholting, son of Delbert and Shirley Scholting of Omaha.

The bride-to-be is a 1998 graduate of Millard West High School and is employed at Alegent Health System.

Her fiancé is a 1996 graduate of Bryan High School and is employed at Hertz Equipment Co.

The couple is planning a Sept. 29, 2001 wedding at Divine Shepherd Lutheran Church in Omaha.

Look before you leap

It is estimated that more than 54 million Americans are currently on a diet. Some succeed in taking weight off, but far fewer — maybe just five percent — manage to keep the weight off over the long term.

With half of the adult population in the United States considered to be overweight, it's little wonder that consumers are constantly searching for the 'magic bullet' to help them lose weight quickly and effortlessly. But can diets that promise such easy results be true?

Fad diets are a short-term, quick-fix approach to weight loss that don't work over the long haul. These diets tend to over-promise results but don't deliver. Food choices are often monotonous and caloric intake may be very restricted, so that once the novelty wears off, so does the motivation to continue.

At the Great Nutrition Debate, sponsored recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, there was agreement that Americans are too fat, but no consensus about the best way to lose weight and keep it off. There is a lack of scientific research to corroborate the theories in the variety of diet books on the market. Most of the books promise weight loss programs that are easy, allow favorite foods or foods traditionally limited in weight loss diets without limitations, and do not require a major shift in exercise habits. Fad diet book authors often take a scientific half truth that is complex and use that as the basis for their arguments. Few, if any, offer solid scientific support for their claims in the form of published research studies. Most evidence is based on anecdotal findings, theories and testimonials of short-term results.

Some of the most popular diets these days are those that promote low carbohydrate and high protein intakes and promise significant weight loss. These diets are nothing more than low calorie diets in disguise, but with some potentially serious consequences. Following a low-carbohydrate, high-protein diet will encourage the body to burn up its own fat. Without carbohydrates, fat is not burned completely and substances called ketones are formed and released into the bloodstream. Abnormally high ketone levels in the body, or ketosis, may indeed make dieting easier, since they typically decrease appetite and cause nausea. However, ketosis also increases the levels of uric acid in the blood, which is a risk factor for gout and kidney disease in susceptible people. It was also noted that following these diets can result in dehydration, diarrhea, weakness, headaches, dizziness and bad breath, and over the long term, can also increase risk for atherosclerosis and osteoporosis.

Tips for spotting fad diets:

- Claims or implies a large or quick loss of more than one to two pounds per week. Slow, gradual weight loss increases the chance of weight loss success and of keeping weight off over the long term.
- Promotes magical or miracle foods. No foods can undo the long-term effects of overeating and not exercising or melt away fat.
- Restricts or eliminates certain foods, recommends certain foods in large quantities, insists on eating specific food combinations, or offers rigid, inflexible menus.
- Implies that weight can be lost and maintained without exercise and other lifestyle changes.
- Relies heavily on undocumented case histories, testimonials and anecdotes, but has no scientific research to back claims.
- Contradicts what most trusted health professional groups say, or

Leadership summit held

Dreama Anderson, Deb Hammer, Carol Marsh and Susan Urbanec of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne attended the annual Leadership Summit "Connecting Hearts" on Aug. 24-25.

The Leadership Summit was hosted by Zion Lutheran Church in Clear Lake, Iowa, a congregation that has developed an exciting small group ministry program.

The Leadership Summit examined biblical community — the call to be connected to one another. Carl George, who has authored "Prepare Your Church for the Future" and "The Coming Church Revolution," was the keynote speaker. He stressed that all members are partners in the ministry of the church.

The Leadership Summit focused on developing lay leadership, building community through caring relationships and the value of Small Group Ministry.

Small Group Ministry provides the opportunity to grow leaders within the church. Community develops as people care for each other and reach out to serve others with a joyful heart and growth will be the result of developing caring relationships.

The group from Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne attended workshops on "How to Small Group Your Sunday School Program" and "How to Use Small Groups for Evangelism." Forty-three churches were represented at The Leadership Summit coming from Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

The Principal's Office by Dr. Don Zeiss, Wayne High Principal Focusing on Sportsmanship

Good sportsmanship is the attitude and behavior that exemplifies positive support for the athletic programs of NSAA member schools, as well as for the individuals who participate in such programs. People involved in all facets of high school activities are expected to demonstrate respect for others and display good sportsmanship.

Following a year of considerable study and debate about what the appropriate sportsmanship approach should be, some new guidelines were established for addressing acts of unsportsmanlike conduct. Those guidelines have been incorporated into an NSAA Sportsmanship Manual. Copies of the manual have been distributed to member schools.

"Unsportsmanlike conduct shall include the following: fighting, verbal abuse or dissent toward an official or opponent, racial or ethnic slurs, inappropriate comments or actions that may be construed as sexual harassment, profanity, obscene gestures, flagrant and violent fouls, taunting, trash talk, baiting, cheating, throwing or abusing equipment, inappropriate posters, physical intimidations or abuse of an official or opponent and unauthorized leaving of a team bench area."

As a part of the NSAA Sportsmanlike legislation, any high school participant or coach rejected from a contest for unsportsmanlike conduct shall be ineligible for the next athletic contest at that level of competition and any other athletic contest at any level during the interim, in addition to other penalties the NSAA or school may assess.

Again, the expectation for enforcement of these new regulations falls on the school administration. If a coach or athlete is ejected from a contest for unsportsmanlike reasons, it is the school's responsibility to assure that the coach or athlete does not participate in the following contest at that level, or any contest at any other level during the interim. The NSAA will actively monitor ejections and enforcement of the sit-out rules, but it is necessary for schools to take a prominent role in assuring that the new sportsmanship rules are followed and enforced.

Sometimes, situations occur at contests that, if not addressed, can lead to unsavory, unsafe or unsportsmanlike situations. School administrators are encouraged to visit with the other school's administration if there are unusual circumstances that occur in any high school contest. If you believe that such situations are not appropriately addressed or if you believe the NSAA should be aware, please call or e-mail the Executive Director.

Likewise, if positive displays of sportsmanship are exhibited, please consider sending a note to the other school's administration or coach recognizing that act. If you do recognize good sportsmanship in this manner, the NSAA would like a copy of your letter or other recognition. We are looking for appropriate recognitions of good sportsmanship that we might be able to reproduce in future NSAA Bulletins.

Today's society is filled with examples of poor behavior and poor sportsmanship. Of one watches college or professional sports, it shouldn't be too surprising why high school coaches, athletes and spectators sometimes exhibit behaviors that are unsavory or unsportsmanlike. But we don't have to settle for those kinds of behaviors that society has often taken as natural and expected. Together, we can change that culture of what activities participation should be all about — a learning experience for our student-athletes that is conducted in an atmosphere where self, opponents, coaches and officials are respected and treated properly. Together, we can make a difference!

IN MEMORY OF PAM LAMOUREUX
 Where are you, God? Everything is such a mess right now, and I feel very alone. I don't know if you're here with me or not God, are you even there anymore?
 "Yes, I am here, but in quiet ways. I am with you in the sunshine that falls across your bed. I am with you in the hands of the aides that gently wash your face. I am with you in the love of your children. And I am in the strong hands of your husband Who is not quite ready to let you go."
 "As I speak to him, he will begin to understand that although he has your body with him now, I have always had your soul with me. It is time for you to come home. Time for you to leave the strong hands that hold you, And come into my arms to hold you for Eternity. And there, to wait for those strong hands to join you once again.
 We would like to thank everybody for their cards, letters, prayers, thoughts and kind deeds during our time of sorrow. We would also like to thank the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department, Premier Estates staff, management, and residents; all the businesses; and to everyone who participated in the Benefit Dinner for Pam. We would also like to give a very special "THANK YOU" to the people who spent their time and energy to put this on for us. I am very proud to be a part of this community. Pam would have been so proud also. Thank you so very much and may God Bless you all.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the National Primary Drinking Water Regulations, the City of Wayne, NE3118104 public water supply system is hereby making public notice of the violation of drinking water microbiological standards. The violation consists of the detection of total coliform bacteria in more than one sample collected from the distribution system during the month of August 2001.

The Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services Regulation and Licensure Drinking Water Program has adopted drinking water standards and has determined, based on information provided by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) and other scientific and medical information, that the presence of total coliform bacteria is a possible health concern. Total coliform bacteria is common in the environment and is generally not harmful in itself. The presence of these bacteria in drinking water however, generally is a result of a problem with water treatment or the pipes that distribute the water, and this indicates the water may be contaminated with organisms that can cause disease. Disease symptoms may include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, and possibly jaundice, and associated with headaches and fatigue. These symptoms are not just associated with disease causing organisms in drinking water, but also may be caused by a number of factors other than your drinking water. The U.S. EPA has set an enforceable drinking water standard for total coliforms to reduce the risk of these adverse health effects. Under this standard, not more than 5 percent of the samples collected during a month can contain these bacteria, except systems collecting fewer than 40 samples per month that have one total coliform positive sample per month are not violating this standard. Drinking water meeting this standard is associated with little or none of this risk and should be considered safe.

The City of Wayne Public Water System is continuing to test the water and is working with the Drinking Water Program to identify the source of the problem and to return the water supply system to compliance.

We believe the violation was due to contamination while testing, or from the repair of a service line upstream from the two test sites. Two tests taken since the violation were both negative. This follow up sampling demonstrates the water is no longer contaminated. There was no E-coli found in any of the contaminated samples. There is no action that needs to be taken by the consumer, since the following up tests were negative.

For additional information, please contact Harold Reynolds, Water and Wastewater Superintendent at 402-375-5250. (Publ. Sept. 6)

QUILT PATTERN PUBLISHED
Quilt Presents Sampler Quilts has published a design created by Janet Sievers of the Quilt Shop in Wakefield. The design is referred to as "Nearly Amish Sampler" for those with no time to quilt.

The magazine goes on to say, "Janet Sievers is adept at developing quilt designs that can be sewn by quilters with limited time available to spend on their favorite activity to be accomplished on a tighter schedule."

Quilt Presents Sampler Quilts combines traditional blocks in lovely solids with the Amish favor. The quilt can be approached as a block of the month project or as an activity to be accomplished on a tighter schedule.

The Quilt Shop is located in The Hatchery Building at Third and Main Streets in Wakefield.

FISCHER REUNION

About 72 descendants of August A. and Dora Fischer, their son Verner "Dutch" Fischer and daughter Alta (Fischer) Pearson, who lives at the Wakefield Health Care Center, gathered for a family reunion in Wakefield Aug. 3-4.

DIRECTOR VISITS
The Nebraska Director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture paid a visit to Wakefield recently along with staff members. Merlyn Carlson said the trip was for the Department to gain a better understanding of what is happening in the rural areas of the state.

With Carlson were hosts from the M.G.W. Company, Tom Gustafson, Dennis Blank, the department's administrative director, Susan Joy, who is the director of the poultry division and Tim Bebee.

Bebee and Gustafson showed the visitors a large part of the Waldbaum Company operations from the laying houses to the processing.
