Rod Tompkins encouraged the council to bring Keno to Wayne, stating that it would provide another reason for people to come to Wayne.

Pastor Kevin Ruffcorn, representing Association Wayne the of Congregations and Ministers, said he hoped that the issue could be presented to the public before any decision was made.

No action was taken on the issue. Also receiving considerable discus-against consumer fraud schemes," said Officer In Charge Cindy Lisko. "We want to prevent our customers from becoming victims of deceptive mailings."

Consumers should be aware of schemes involving bogus employment opportunities, medical quackery, phony charitable solicitations and work-athome schemes, warned Lisko. Other schemes include prizes or sweepstakes, lottery schemes, identity theft, travel promotions, chain letters, false billings and insurance fraud.

Every year, thousands of people and businesses are victimized by mail fraud schemes. Be educated! Don't be duped!

Amos to be featured at performance

Actor John Amos, star of "Roots," "Die Hard II," and "Coming to America," will bring his critically-acclaimed one-man show, "Halley's Comet," to Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus on Thursday, Feb. 14, at 8 p.m. as part of the WSC Black & Gold Series.

The Emmy-nominated actor (as the adult Kunta Kinte in "Roots") has been on a world tour with "Halley's Comet" for the past ten years. Amos is also currently appearing in the NBC hit series, "The West Wing," where he portrays Admiral Percy Fitzwallace, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This critically acclaimed "Halley's Comet" tells the humorous and poignant story of an 87-yearold man who shares a lifetime of memories with the comet he first saw 76 years ago. Written and directed by Amos, the show takes the audience on a journey from the turn of the 20th century to present day. Amos transforms himself into a variety of characters to show how the world has changed in the past century.

Amos based the show on a personal experience. "As I was watching the comet in 1986, I was struck by the sight of an elderly man standing near me who kept chuckling to himself as he stared into the sky," he said. "It was as if he had found a long-lost friend, and I guessed that he had seen the comet when it appeared the last time in 1910,"

The American

From that brief encounter, Amos started to imagine all that the man must have lived through in the intervening years. Borrowing from his own experience, Amos created characters for the production that has enthralled and charmed audiences around the world since it was first shown.

Tickets for the performance are available at the Wayne State Business Office, Hahn Administration, Room 102, or by calling 375-7517. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for students (high school and younger). Amos is inviting police, fire and emergency personnel in Wayne and surrounding communities to be his guests at the "Halley's Comet" performance at Wayne State. To reserve complimentary tickets, please call Black & Gold Series coordinator Jane O'Leary at 375-7581.

SECTION OF THE OWNER

Think about what you say first

Dear Editor: I would like to commend the Wayne Herald for not printing the name of the victim in their front page article, dated Jan. 24, 2002. Over the last few weeks, I have been saddened by comments made in our community regarding a recent publicized sexual assault. NO ONE deserves to be a victim of this violent crime! I think we all need to remember that the crime of sexual assault is not about sex ... it is about power and control, with sex being the weapon of choice.

Many people in our community, our state and our country embrace a lifestyle we may not agree with. The very fact that we live in a "free" country should be enough for us to realize that everyone has a right to "choose" their lifestyle and their sexual orientation. Just because a person makes a choice to do something we may not agree with does not mean they should be any less protected under the laws of our state and country. There are many documented cases of sexual assault where the victim made a choice that may not have been wise (walking alone at night, accepting rides from strangers, drinking excessively, being lured into a relationship through the internet, etc.). Our laws still allow us the right to make these choices and not be assaulted because of them. This case is no different.

The Wayne Herald

Please think about what you have possibly said about this case - and could your actions and words have silenced other victims of sexual assault and kept them from seeking the intervention and assistance they may need? I hope not!

Statehouse Correspondent

America has regularly legislated

And don't kid yourself. general comeback in a nanosecond if the current crop of greed mongers thought the majority of us pect we won't stand for it, they look tries and low-paid workers who would regard life in a south

What would the planet be like today if the federal government had failed, decades ago, to legislate morality in regards to industrial pollution? This particular bit of societal morality is constantly under attack for reasons that are often as pathetic as they are obvious. ("If you don't let us pollute, we won't be able to do business and people will lose jobs, stockholders will lose money, and we'll move to another state that will underwrite our pollution with tax breaks!")

Nebraska has ever reflected the independent spirit of its Old West heritage, or at least paid high-volume lip service to it. There's hardly a place where it is easier to demonize government. The cry of "Government deregulation!" - sold as a virtual panacea for every economic ill of the 1970s - was as popular in these parts as the national anthem. Somehow, Nebraska and the rest of the nation bought the notion that government was always part of the problem, and never part of the solution. Now, consider the tragedy of Enron. If there aren't laws on the books sufficient to put a bunch of overpaid, millionaire hustlers in jail over the Enron scam, something is terribly wrong.

What might have prevented the shattering of lives and careers, the devastating financial losses to thousands of middle class investors? Morality.

Morality via legislated, government regulation.

The kind of legislated morality that wouldn't have allowed auditors to act simultaneously as auditors and "consultants." The kind that would have slammed down hard and fast on the laughable house of corporate cards Enron used to disguise its losses.

The obvious problem (in part) is that government at every level botches so many things that it is easy, and politically effective, to bash it at every turn. With few exceptions (such as anti-abortion forces) it seems ordinary Americans don't view the government as a tool that they can wield in their interest.

Be it Enron, or a production operation that pays lousy wages for dangerous work, a cry that government regulation will be bad for business will usually win at least a first round of public sympathy.

It's like burglars complaining that the people who make deadbolt locks are interfering with their livelihood.

Projected red ink, a limited county tax and criminal-law changes were topics of interest at the State Capitol last week. The state's budget problems are only going to get worse in future years, according to projections. If current trends continue, the state would have a $380 million revenue shortfall in the 2004-05 fiscal year. Spending is outpacing revenues by more than 2 percentage points a year, according to budget officials. The state is not allowed to run deficits. Therefore, we're faced with these options: rein in spending, raise revenues or a combination of the two. I think our emphasis should be on reducing spending.

This long-term projection of the state's finances comes at a time when the state is grappling with an estimated $50.7 million revenue shortfall for the current two-year budget cycle.

The Legislature on Jan. 23 gave first-round approval to LB 259,

LB 259 was amended to require the approval of county residents before such a tax could be imposed. The sentiment was that such a tax which would allow counties to should not be imposed without a vote of the people.

After lengthy debate, the Legislature on Jan. 25 gave firstround approval to LB 82, a bill which includes a long list of changes to the state's criminal-justice laws,

Among its provisions, LB 82 would increase the loss threshold for criminal mischief offenses, increase penalties for those who repeatedly violate protection orders, extend the definition of chemical and biological poisons and increase penalties for unlawful possession of a firearm on school

Marlon Brink. "Our women's team had another good weekend. They are a pretty young bunch, but they get out there and don't back down from anyone in their event. This was a good confidence booster for them.

"Tiffany Schacher, Angie Kraus, and Tracie Fehringer probably were the three that saw the most improvements  $\mathbf{this}$ week. However, we had several others that showed some nice improvements which is what we are looking for every week."

"Eric Havranek had a very good meet. I think he is one of the top sprint/jump talents in the area. He hasn't maxed out his potential yet either, so I think we should see improments from him yet this season.

"Shannon Schumacher had a good day jumping, setting a personal best mark, so that should help his confidence in the coming weeks.

"A lot of our kids are local area kids, so it is fun for them to be doing well at meets that are close to home for many of them. We have a pretty good group of fans that we see week in and week out, which I think helps us as well."

The Wildcat track & field teams traveled to Storm Lake, Iowa to compete in the 1st annual Dennis Young Invitational hosted by Buena Vista University on Jan. 19.

The WSC women's team placed second out of 13 teams with 72 points, while the men's team took sixth place with 47 points.

The Wildcats will next be in action at the USD Open on Saturday at the DakotaDome in Vermillion, South Dakota.

Stated Wildcats Head Coach Marlon Brink, "I thought we gave a very good effort overall. We are working to improve steadily each week to peak at the NSIC Conference Meet, and it appears that we are on our way to doing that.

"Traci Bernecker had possibly her best day ever as a Wildcat trackster. She has a great work ethic in practice and the weight room and it continues to pay off for her in competition. Already this season she has made significant improvements over her times from last year and we are just in our second week of competition.

"We have several young athletes on the women's side who are doing a great job competing and working to be the best they can be. I think our women's team will surprise some people at the conference meet.

"Eric Havranek had another solid week in competition. He lowered his time in the 55 meter dash to a lifetime best during the prelim rounds. Earlier this season he recorded his best lifetime indoor best in the long jump. He looks to be on track to be a significant factor in the NSIC scoring."

Waterfowl season has been difficult to predict

This year's waterfowl season has been a tough one to predict! With cold weather early, waterfowl started their southward migration and it looked as if the ducks and geese would arrive at anytime.

Then it happened, our cold weather left and the temperatures warmed up making it an unseasonably warm fall and winter.

The geese that moved south stayed put, hanging around southand North Canada ern Dakota. This meant that hunters in South Dakota and Nebraska would be shooting local ducks and the few migrators that came into the area.

SWEATY PALMS.

MUST BE GOING AROUND.

Down south, the hunting was also poor, as the big push of ducks never came because the huge flocks migrating never arrived. The ducks that were in the area became educated and call shy, so it was a tough year in areas like Stuttgart, AR.The guides were telling the hunters to stay home because hunting was so. poor.

A friend of mine from Sioux City makes an annual trip to Louisiana each year to hunt waterfowl and this year he indicated that they saw fewer ducks than on any of the previous trips.

Since waterfowl hunting is a big economical boost to these areas down south, you can bet that it will be a tough year for those that depend on waterfowl for their lively hood.

On a hunt we filmed near Pierre in December we were really surprised at the lack of geese in the area.Usually Capital Lake is covered with geese, as are several areas up and down the river. This year, most of the geese were setting up in North Dakota and hadn't migrated any farther south.

The waterfowl hunting along the Missouri River that creates the border between Nebraska and South Dakota was good early as the local ducks raised in northeast South Dakota came into and there was good shooting for a couple of weeks.As the ducks hung around the area, they too became educated and were harder to decoy.

We made three filming trips for waterfowl during the early season and in six days of filming only had one decent hunt.That was a hunt near Tekamah with Ralph Kohler and even Ralph admitted that it was a strange year, making it hard to predict when the ducks and geese might arrive.

I just returned from Osh Kosh. Neb., which is one of the hottest spots for Canada geese in the Midwest.There were huge numbers of geese in the area and we did very well, but our guide Norbert Nau indicated that the big push of geese had never arrived. With the season ending this week, it looked like the number of geese and their harvest would be way down.

Even though most waterfowl chance that we might get a shot at some of the light geese when they make their way back north.

The spring light goose conservation order or action was implemented several years ago to help control an out of balance light goose population because the huge numbers has destroyed much of their nesting grounds and habitat in Canada.

During the light geese conservation order or action, hunters are allowed to take Snows, Blues and Ross geese.

The spring light goose conservation order opens up Feb. 1 and runs through May 15 in South Dakota. Electronic calls and unplugged shotguns are legal again this season.Hunters will also have an additional half hour of hunting in the evening, as the shooting hours are one-half hour before sunset to one-half hour after sunset.

There are some areas closed to light goose hunting, so you'll have to check your hunting regulations to make sure of which areas are open.

The South Dakota daily bag limit is 20 with no possession limit.

Resident hunters will need a combination or small game license plus a state migratory bird stamp.Non-residents need a nonresident snow goose license, which are available at permit vendors across the state.

In Nebraska the season opens a day later, Feb. 2 and continues through April 14. As in South Dakota, electronic calls and unplugged shotguns are legal during the light goose season.

ed for the conservation action will be divided into three zones.You'll need to know these zones because in Zones 1 and 2 you're only allowed to hunt four days a week (Saturday, Sunday, Wednesday and Thursday).

Our area is Zone 3, which includes everything north of Highway 93 in Butler and Polk counties and Highway 30 in Dawson and Gosper counties.

Maps of these areas are available from permit vendors through, out the state or from the local Game and Parks office.

Again the weather could create problems for light goose hunters!If there's no snow north of us, the geese might continue north and not spend much time in our area. If and when they stop, the hunting will be fast and furious as hundreds even thousands of snow geese pile into the river, ponds and lakes.

Every year, is different, and Mother Nature controls everything!Warm mild winters are great for people and cattle, but lousy for waterfowl hunters.

Don't let the lack the warm weather stop you from getting out and enjoying the outdoors, because every minute you spend enjoying the outdoors is one more minute of your life that will be enlightened by all the things that the good Lord has made.

POLES TO DISAPPEAR

The power poles along the east side of Waldbaum's main plant and next to Highway 35 will be history as the City of Wakefield implements its five phase electrical update plan.

City Administrator Dan Zulkosky said these poles will be removed from the landscape. The wiring that ran along the poles has already been taken down.

Residents may also have observed workers from Nebraska Public Power District and city employees replacing poles in various areas of the residential section. Zulkosky said that 28 transmission poles and street light poles and street light poles are also scheduled to be replaced or have been replaced.

He added that the new lines carry 12,500 volts of power compared to the current lines capability of only 4,160 volts. He added that the new lines are much more efficient losing less than one percent power compared to approximately 20 percent from the old lines. This loss of power, according to Zulkosky, is paid for by the city, but not used by residents so does not produce any revenue for the city.

One of the next areas where a transformer will be replaced is at the school. He explained that although this particular box is not that old, it is not large enough to meet the demands.

The city currently is in phase three of the update, and when completed, not only will power supply be more efficient but also will allow for community expansion without taxing the electrical system.

The First Fridays program will be held on Friday, Feb. 1, at 9 a.m. in the Niobrara Room in the WSC student center. Carrigg has spent the last year following the progress of Columbus High School teacher Jerry Meyer, a WSC alum, and his students as they struggled to create a living memorial to a real hometown WWII hero, Andrew

Higgins, a boat builder and entrepreneur, has been credited by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as "the man who won the war for us" because of his innovative boat Higgins a reality. Starting in August 2000, Meyer integrated this service project into history classes at CHS. The end result is an interactive monument in Pawnee Park. The project allowed relationships to develop between veterans and high school students as they worked together to design and build the monument.

The documentary examines the relationships and provides a record of the project. Carrigg hopes to finalize the project this spring and show it on Nebraska Public Television.

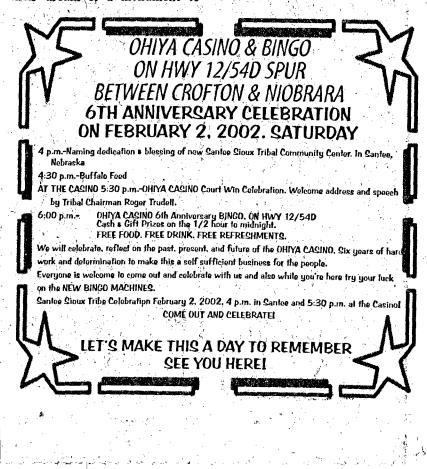

A WSC brass ensemble will also provide musical selections at the First Fridays event. A free continental breakfast will be served, Although designed for senior citizen appeal, all ages are welcome to attend. There is no admission charge.

Use food variety to tackle osteoporosis

Osteoporosis is a bone disease that affects women and men in their later years, but the problem actually begins much earlier in life. Females often begin to avoid milk products during their teen years. Avoiding dairy foods creates a problem since calcium supplied by milk and other foods is needed to build strong bones during adolescence and young adult-During the midhood. dle and older adult years, bone growth stops. However, the need for calcium doesn't disappear.

Calcium continues to be used for maintaining bone structure, and to slow down the loss of calcium from bones. Studies show that. older women who normally eat less than half their recommended daily calcium intakes can slow down bone loss by boosting calcium in their diets. What can help you?

Eat at least two to three servings of calcium rich food a day. You should aim for daily intakes of 800 - 1200 milligrams (mg) of calcium. Intakes up to 2500 mg/day are considered to be safe.

For the calorie and fat conscious, select low fat or skim milk, low fat or nonfat yogurt, low fat cheese (cheeses labeled 3 grams or less of fat per serving), canned. fish with bones, green and leafy vegetables, and dried beans and peas. You could try one of these techniques as well suggest by

Alice Henneman, University of Nebraska Extension Educator in Lancaster County. Oatmeal made with 1 cup milk

instead of 1 cup water Individual 8 oz. carton of yogurt

2 pieces of "string" cheese 8 ounces of calcium-fortified orange juice

8 to 10 ounces calcium-fortified soy milk

Smoothie made with a cup of milk or yogurt and thickened in the blender by the addition of 1/2to 1 cup of small pieces of frozen fruit. Add about a teaspoon of sweetener or to taste. Building Calcium Into Your

If you take a calcium supplement, some studies suggest that taking it before bedtime provides

Will Davis Sav-Mor Pharmacy More Good News: Aspirin May Reduce Severity of Stroke In the most common type of stroke a blood clot or some other form of blockage reduces blood flow to the brain. According to a new study reported in the medical journal Stroke, persons who took a single aspirin tablet during the week before they had such a stroke lowered their risk of severe strokerelated damage - including loss of speech or speech difficulty and paralysis. In the study of more than 1,200 persons it was found that about 50% of aspirin users had mild strokes, and only about 10% had severe strokes, however 43% of individuals who did not use aspirin had mild strokes, and 15% had severe strokes. Many physicians recommend a small daily dose of aspirin for patients who are at special risk for heart disease or stroke. Yet, chronic use of aspirin is not without risk, including bleeding problems. Ask your physician if taking aspirin every day is right for you. Sav Mor Pharmacy 1022 N: Main St. • Wayne, NE 375-1444

Friend Marlyce from Orlando e- room. Then, it was mass gift mailed yesterday that she and her hubby had played 18 holes of golf. Well, I answered, folks have been doing the same in Nebraska most of the month.

It looks like the wonderful weather is about to change. Friend Jo in Cozad reported snow there Monday morning; and it seems headed this way.

A neighbor once told Mike that the first grandchild seems to take forever; but, that, after that, "they just keep coming."

Since the Big Farmer was a bit older when we were married, many of his cousins were already enjoying grandkids while we were still raising our children. Our first "grand" finally arrived 11 years ago, and they have kept coming, thankfully. And, we are trying to enjoy them as often as we can.

Christmas at the Farm House last month was a kaleidoscope: everybody accompanied us to church. The adults ate in the dining room; the kids in the family games of Risk at the card table. This was culminated by a traditional "birthday cake for Jesus," an angel food baked by Great-Grandma. And then they collected their loot and headed for their home.

Farm Bureau offers scholarships to college-bound high schoolers

Wayne County Farm Bureau is awarding a $500 college scholarship to an area high school senior who will be majoring in an agricultural-related field of study.

The applicant's parents or grandparents must be a Wayne County Farm Bureau member. However, the board will accept membership applications with the scholarship application. The deadline for this scholarship is March 15, 2002.

Monsanto and American Farm Bureau have teamed up to offer 100 scholarships of $1,500 each to college-bound high school seniors across the country. Their goal is to help young people from farm families develop their skills for a challenging future in agriculture so they will return their knowledge to America's rural communities.

Scholarships are awarded based on applicant's interest and involvement in agriculture, ability to communicate their potential. The deadline for this scholarship is Feb. 15, 2002.

There is also a $500 scholarship for juniors or seniors at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln who are majoring in ag or agribusiness. This scholarship is in memory of Kenneth E. Schwartz, a long-time employee of Farm Bureau Insurance Company of Nebraska. This scholarship has a May 31, 2002 deadline.

Also available is the NFBF Charles Marshall Educational Loan. These funds are available to worthy individuals enrolled for training in accredited institutions for the advancement of professional skills in nursing or other educational areas. This scholarship has a deadline of May 1, 2002,

Information and application forms for all these scholarships may be picked up at the Farm Bureau Insurance Office at 318

Cousin Paul says we'll have lots of exciting Christmases yet: I tell him I'm not sure I can handle them!

Grand #7 arrived last Thursday, at Faith Regional Health Services in Norfolk. This doesn't look like the same place that Kay and Ann were born in. We knew it was a boy before we arrived. We stayed with Myles and Jacey while Max and Ann drove the few blocks to the hospital.

I left at noon to take them to school, and when I got back home, Mike already had the news. Ann has maintained her reputation of "Speedy" with Dr. Vrbicky; his name, Jaxson, incorporates his dad's and Great Grandpa Meierhenry. He weighed 7 lbs. 14 oz. and looks at lot like his broth-

Myles and Jacey wore t-shirts that said "I'm the big brother" and "I'm the big sister" to bring him home the next day. And, supposedly, we should be able to view his photo under "special deliveries" at www.frhs.org. Grandma and Grandpa are back home, recuperating, also.

In 1907, a three-leaf clover was created as the first club emblem. An H was printed on each leaf, standing for head, hearts and hands. Hustle was added as the fourth H in 1911, but was later

Willow Creek State Recreation Area

Willow Creek State Recreation Area is located 1 1/2 miles southwest of Pierce, Nebraska. It covers some 1600 acres including a 700 acre flood-control reservoir. Begun in 1982, the $5.2 million reservoir project was built by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District with cost-sharing by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission.

Recreation - Picnickers will find shelters along with an ample supply of tables and fire grates. A 3-mile hiking and horseback trail winds through the area. Park roads may also be used by horseback riders. Come winter, roads and the lake surface (ice permitting) are open to snowmobilers. There is a designated swimming beach, but swimming is unsupervised.

Camping - All camping is first-come, first-served, and stays are limited to 14 days. There are 100 pads with 64 electrical hookups. The modern shower house has laundry facilities and there is a dump station. Fees are charged for camping, with an additional cost for electricity. Campers are asked to self-register on arrival and deposit the appropriate fee in the drop box. Drinking water and vault toilets are available at the campground.

Boating and fishing - The main body of the lake is open to all boating and water skiing while the wooded west end is restricted to 5 mph, wakeless boating. Anglers will find crappie, bluegill, bass, catfish, walleye, northern pike, tiger musky and bullheads. The deepest point of the lake measures 35 feet in depth.

Wildlife and Hunting - Parts of the area are open to hunting, in season, beginning the first Tuesday after Labor Day. Species available include: pleasant, quail, mourning dove, rabbit, squirrel and a variety of waterfowl. Deer hunting is allowed, but is restricted to archery, muzzleloader or shotgun slug only. Rifles and handguns may not be used in the area. There are also numerous bird species in the area for bird watchers.

General Information - A current Nebraska Park Entry Permit is required for all vehicles at Willow Creek. Permits and other goods and services are available in nearby Pierce or from any Nebraska hunting/fishing permit dealer.

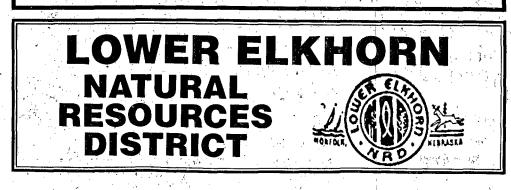

Pets are permitted but they must be kept on a leash. Alcoholic beverages are prohibited. Vehicles must remain on roadways. Click here for a printable map.

Nearby Recreation - To the north and east are Niobrara and Ponca State parks and Lewis and Clark Lake. These all have modern campgrounds, picnicking and other facilities. Cabin lodging is available at Niobrara and Ponca. Both parks have swimming pools.

About a half hour to the northwest is Grove Lake State Wildlife Area and Trout Rearing Station. One of the few trout streams in Northeast Nebraska crosses the area.

A few miles north and west of Grove Lake is Ashfall Fossil Beds State Historical Park where visitors can watch ongoing excavations of prehistoric animals preserved under layers of volcanic ash deposited eons ago.
