Library to become a reality

By Dianne Jaeger - Winside correspondent

The Winside Public Library Foundation is pleased to announce the receipt of a $75,000 grant from the Lied Foundation Trust to be used for the construction of a new library facility.

The Library Foundation was formed six years ago and has been raising funds since its conception. Through various projects and private donations including the land for the library by Winside State Bank, almost one half of the $148,000 estimated cost has been raised. Christina Hixson, trustee of the of the grant.

Ernst Lied, a 1927 graduate of the University of Nebraska and an Omaha businessman until he relocated to Las Vegas, Nev., started the Lied Foundation. He established the Trust in 1972 in honor of his parents, Ernst M. and Ida K. Lied.

Before his death in 1980, at the age of 74, Lied named Christina Hixson, his associate for more than 40 years, as the sole trustee of the trust.

The Winside Library Foundation is very proud to be associated with the Lied Foundation. The name of the new facility will be "The Lied Winside Public Library." Plans are being made for the ground breaking in the spring with construction to follow when possible.

Plans for a new library in Winside began developing as early as 1996 when a group of individuals and members of the library board began discussing the lack of space at the library's present location. The group applied for an Internal Revenue Tax Exempt Classification 501 (c) (3) and was granted it in December, 1997, under the name, Winside Library Foundation.

We had numerous fund raisers and dinners," said Chairwoman Daisy Janke. "At the library was a book that listed groups and organizations that have given donations to various libraries. So I started writing letters to some of these groups. A few months later the phone rang and I about dropped it when someone from the Lied Foundation said they were considering giving us $75,000 but they needed a little more information. Of course we sent it to them and later received a formal commitment from them."

"We also received a $5,000 gift from Bernard K. and Norma G. Heurmann Lied Foundation Trust, notified Daisy Janke, Library Foundation President, Foundation of Omaha from the letters we sent, said Janke. Another Omaha Construction Company has pledged $1,000 after we begin construction. As of now, we have approximately $150,000 in pledges and cash raised from memorials, donations and fund raisers."

Plans for the new library include individual areas for adult reading and children reading, a computer area and a conference room with a small kitchen area for public meetings.

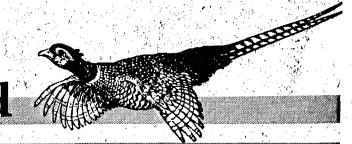

"We plan to continue having fund raisers like the upcoming German Dinner on March 17," said Janke. "We appreciate and hope individuals will continue to make memorials and donations to the library. All donations and memorials made will be acknowledged on a wall display in the new library."

"It is the Foundation's plan to help the village with the upkeep of the new library as well as to help with the purchase of new furnishings and books," said Janke. "We would also appreciate help from anyone interested in attending Foundation meetings and working on the upcoming construction and move. Just contact one of the officers, myself, Scott Watters or Darci Frahm, if you can help."

Mentoring is important to your son and the Wayne Boy Scouts

A basic belief of the Wayne Boy Scout program is that youth of every age can benefit from constructive, one-on-one interaction with adults and peers beyond the home and hearth of the family.

In today's society, constructive, one-on-one interaction with adults and peers is not available for many youth. As divorce rates climb and dual-worker households steadily increase, fewer children receive full-time parental supervision or have positive role models in their lives.

Fortune magazine recently reported that the number one indicator of a child's success is a good relationship with a caring adult. It also reported that children who are connected with their parents, families, and friends are more likely to realize their dreams and avoid negative outcomes. When temptation abounds, youth need guidance from positive

"I love Scouting because we go camping, sledding, fishing, and swimming. But most of all, I like the things we learn and build."

role models and adult mentors to help them avoid negative obstacles that may impede their future success. Scouting builds positive relationships between youth and adults, as well as youth and their peers, as a support network to guide youth through the challenges of adolescence, their teen years, and beyond.

To ensure that youth are always protected, the BSA requires two-deep leadership for all meetings and activities, as well as special youth protection training for volunteers to help them recognize signs of abuse and neglect.

Redrawing boundaries is frustrating

By Ed Howard Statehouse Corréspondent The Nebraska Press Association

It's probably a good thing, a very good thing, that state senators put aside the notion of trying to redraw the boundaries of legislative districts this year.

The idea of lawmakers being able to redraw political boundaries for the sake of convenience, at any old time, is frightening.

State legislatures are required to redraw political boundaries every ten years, following the federal census. The process is famous for all manner of shenanigans, real and attempted. Federal courts have often ordered legislatures to make new deals - using full decks. Redistricting can be a kind of world championship of gerrymandering drawing legislative and other political boundaries to best serve the side that's in power, and screwing other folks. That's politics. That's why we have (we hope) objective courts.

The recent situation in the Unicameral centered on two legislative nice guys. Cap Dierks of Ewing and Douglas Cunningham of Wausa are incumbents who, because of last year's redistricting, will have to run against each other in a newly created district. That's kind of a shame, but it's how it is.

Then, Sen. George Coordsen of Hebron announced this year that he wouldn't seek another term. Thus was born the idea of using some of his district's current turf as the starting point for again redrawing the legislative map in order to avoid the Dierks-Cunningham tiff,

For reasons that have absolutely nothing to do with Dierks or power by throwing out the order Cunningham, the idea was a bad one. A very, very bad one.

Think about it. What would happen if, somehow, the courts lost their minds and went along with the idea that state legislatures could redraw political boundaries whenever it suited them? As in, whenever one bunch had enough muscle and votes to enhance its that was supposed to provide stability for a decade?

Bad. Very, very bad. Attorney General Don Stenberg, reversing years and years of previous opinions (including his own) from the Justice Department, said that such willy-nilly map changing would be defensible in court. Yeah. Well. Al Capone was defensible in court. That didn't make him right.

And opening the door for redrawing governmental maps in Nebraska, or any other state, is ultimately an invitation to political gangsterism.

Legislature reaches half-way point

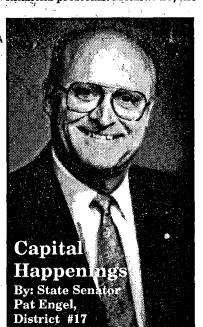

With the Legislature having reached the half-way point of its 60-day session, senators will be increasingly faced with tough decisions regarding the state's severe financial problems: 11) which bearing

The advisory board that sets state revenue projections delivered more bad news on Feb. 22. It further reduced projected tax revenues. The result is that the state now faces a revenue shortfall for the current two-year budget period of $185.7 million, according to the Legislative Fiscal Office.

The second-half of the session is likely to be dominated by budget considerations. Gov. Mike Johanns says his budget proposal will concentrate on spending reductions. However, there is mounting pressure to consider tax increases.

I believe we need to focus on spending reductions to balance the budget. The cuts will be painful, but they need to be made. All Nebraskans will need to make sacrifices to deal with the state's financial problems. Meanwhile, the work of the Legislature goes on in

The Legislature on a vote of 25-22 on Feb. 25 gave first-round approval to a proposed constitutional amendment to permit casino gambling on the four Native American reservations in the state. The measure, sponsored by Sen. DiAnna Schimek of Lincoln, would go before voters on the November death of a fetus could be charged ballot if passed by the Legislature.

I voted against advancement of vehicle homicide to first-degree the measure because I don't think gambling is going to solve any of our budget problems and could make them worse.

Attempts to amend Sen. Schimek's proposal to further expand gambling were not adopted. These included proposals to allow slot machines at the state's horse racing tracks, permit five casinos along Nebraska's borders and give the Legislature the authority to decide the question of expanded gambling.

John Amos, the actor and the person, is remarkable

By Judy Johnson

We should have had a pretty good idea of what kind of fellow actor John Amos was when he set some conditions for his appearance at Wayne State College.

The stage and screen actor ("Coming to America," "Roots," "The West Wing,") was scheduled to bring his one-man show, "Halley's Comet," to campus on Feb. 14 as part of the college's Black and Gold Series.

About a month before that, he called to say he wanted the college to extend a special invitation to area firefighters, police and rescue workers, and that he would be glad to pay for the extra tickets himself.

Pretty neat, I thought. You don't often find someone of his fame and stature as an actor who makes such a generous offer.

Approximately 700 attended his performance in Rice Auditorium.

"Halley's Comet," written and produced by Amos and performed on stages around the world over the past ten years, was a twohour monologue featuring his character, an 87-year-old man and the famous comet, which the old man was seeing for the second time in his life.

Amos's character addressed the celestial object as "Mr. Comet," proceeding to recount many things that had happened since the comet's last appearance in

He recalled events which had' touched his life as a son, a father, a friend, and an African American in the intervening years.

Amos took the audience along on a journey that included the Depression, three wars and the civil rights movement as seen through the eyes of a man whose life was touched with immeasurable sadness and great joy.

He described-no, he experienced-the sorrow and horror of losing a daughter in the civil rights struggle in the South; the pride and helplessness of reading a letter from a son fighting in World War II, receiving it after his son died in battle.

The range of emotions and experiences Amos conveyed kept the audience fixed on the simple stage which had only minimal hour, he said. As I waited for his return, I noticed a small group of college students nearby. Cameras, camcorders and programs in hand, they were hoping to get to shake Mr. Amos's hand and maybe have a photo taken with him.

He didn't disappoint them. Although it was nearly 11:15 p.m., John Amos was gracious and gen-

Several property owners voiced their concerns during a public ness as Sebade Construction for hearing at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

The topic of debate was the assessments levied against the property owners for street and sewer projects completed on Grainland Road and 10th Street.

Patrick Luft, representing Premier Estates, questioned how . the city arrived at the prices each property owner must pay.

Pastor Mark Steinbach of Praise Assembly of God Church also questioned the fact that some of the assessments did not seem to be equal for equal amounts of work completed.

Love of woodworking lasts a lifetime for area men best seller.

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Sharing a love of working with wood, Roy Sommerfeld of Wayne and Wesley Schram of Ponca have spent their lives doing so. Because of this, their paths crossed and the two became friends.

Sommerfeld worked for years at Carhart Lumber Company in Wayne until he retired. The last 20 years, he has been working with his hobby of woodworking in his shop, "little big barn," behind his house in Wayne. Schram, too, has always enjoyed woodworking as a hobby.

Schram had a saw mill for a number of years in Ponca and still has lumberyards where he has different varieties of wood for sale. For years he has loaded up his pickup with lumber and taken it around to area schools for their industrial arts classes and also to area woodworkers.

Wanting to find certain kinds of wood for projects, Sommerfeld came across Schram's name close to a decade ago. When Sommerfeld needs Red Oak, Cedar, etc., he visits Schram.

Oddly enough, the first big oodworking project each man took on was to make family mem-

Board looks at budget

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

The Wayne Community Schools Board of Education held a short meeting Tuesday discussing budget items, legislation, a resignation, and modular sales.

The budget looks grim for schools in Nebraska with the outlook of $186 million less coming in from state aid. The board spoke of other schools nearby also having financial problems. It was mentioned that Hartington and Crofton are looking at merging. There is a possibility that Coleridge may also merge with

The board agreed changes may have to be made if the outlook of state aid remains the same. They agreed they may need to look at the possibility of tax increase, spending cuts and consolidation in

The board approved the resignation of Mary Ann DeNaeyer, math teacher at the Middle School for many years. She is taking early retirement.

The board approved the sale of eight modulars and keeping two of them. The two remaining buildings will be used for offices, classrooms and storage. The modulars were used while the Middle School was remodeled. The proceed from the sale will meet the debt of $171,000 still owed on the mods.

The Wayne High boys basketball team captured the Class C1-4 District Championship with a convincing 67-50 win over Ord, Monday night at Columbus High

Ord cut the gap to nine at 29-20 early in the third quarter but Wayne responded with an 8-0 run to lead 37-20. The lead never dropped below double digits from that point on.

Wayne led 50-29 after three quarters of play.

"Our goal is to go out and win every quarter," Ruhl said. "We talked at halftime about how we got out-scored by a point in the second quarter and we didn't want to let Ord back in the game if we had anything to say about it."

Brad Hansen poured in 19 points to lead the winners with Brad Hochstein tossing in 11. The well-balanced Blue Devil attack had eight scorers with Caleb Garvin and Jon Ehrhardt each netting eight points with Luke Christensen netting seven and Ric Volk, six. Wayne led 18-7 after one quarter of play and 36-20 at the half. The Blue Devils opened up a 28point cushion during the third quarter before Crofton cut into the gap in the final period.

"It was important for us to get off to a good start and we jumped out quick," Ruhl said. "Our defense was very aggressive and created some turnovers which turned into transition baskets."

Brad Hochstein scored 17 to lead Wayne with Brad Hansen adding 15 and Jon Ehrhardt, 12. Luke Christensen tossed in eight points and pulled down a teamhigh seven rebounds.

Ric Volk tallied six points and dished out six assists while Caleb Garvin finished with four points.

two college transfers. Head Coach Scott Hoffman said, "we are happy with the quality of our recruits, we have signed some kids that will continue to help us turn our program around."

"We got some good regional kids, Nate Meyer (Logan View HS), Bryce Dennis (Osmond HS), Jake Robinson (Pender HS) and Andrew Spanjers (York HS), that was one of our goals, to recruit as many local kids as we can and we did that," said Coach Hoffman.

"We got three good recruits from the Des Moines area in Josh Purcell (Ames), Adam Peterson (Des Moines) and Colby Herron (Van Meter), these three will have an immediate impact next season," said Hoffman. "Trent Kling, Colby Herron and Tyler Chambers have huge upsides and will be forced to be reckoned with."

Coach Hoffman adds, "we graduated four seniors on the offensive line and four linebackers, we needed to address those areas and I believe that we have. We also needed to add some depth at key areas and we are in the process of doing that."

The Wildcats will look to sign between 6-10 more high school seniors during the signing period.

Last season, the Wildcats went 4-7 in Hoffman's second season as the head coach at Wayne State College. The four wins are the most wins since 1995, when the Wildcats went 6-4 under Dennis

Studies indicate hunting is still popular

Hunting has received a bad rap for years, the antis would like you to believe that the majority of the people in the U.S. don't approve of waterfowl or any type of hunting.

Recent studies indicate that they are wrong. According to a recent study by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, more peoplé are heading to the marshes, fields and flooded timber to hunt ducks and geese than any time in the last decade.

During the 1991/1992 season. an estimated 1.2 million hunters in the U.S. hunted waterfowl. During the 2000/2001 season, the number increased to 1.6 million.

Waterfowl harvest has also increased over this period. In 1991/1992 season, hunters in the U.S. harvested 6.2 million ducks or 5.2 ducks per hunter. In 2000/2001, season they harvested 15.3 million ducks or 9.6 ducks per hunter.

During this same period, goose harvest also increased from 1.9 million in 1991/1992 to more than 3 million in 2000/2001.

Studies by the National Shooting Sports also indicate that most waterfowl hunters pursue other species including deer (92%), pheasant (67%), turkey (60%), rabbit (58%), quail (58%), squirrel (54%), dove (52%), grouse (46%), elk (23%), and bear (17%).

These hunters dedicate their time, money and labor each year to conserving and creating precious wildlife habitat. They belong to groups such as Ducks Unlimited, The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, The Wild Turkey Federation and Pheasants Forever, groups that have helped to bring many animals back from near extinction.

It's the hunters through their purchase of permits, habitat stamps, and taxes on their equipment that help to fund the DNR, Game & Parks and create the habitat that is so desperately needed.

The hunters are there to lend a hand to create habitat, build nesting boxes, platforms and to educate our youth not only about hunting, but wildlife in general and safe gun handling.

Hunters donate millions of hours making sure that wildlife have a place to live and raise their young, while anti-hunting groups spend millions of dollars trying to not only stop hunting, but to eliminate the right of Americans to have pets, to eat meat and to raise animals on a farm for a living. Some animal rights groups have gone as far as setting fire to laboratories, releasing mink from fur ranches and harassing hunters in Hunting is an important part of our American heritage and economy and shouldn't be taken lightly.

If outdoorsmen and women don't stand up for their rights, hunting and many of our freedoms that we take for granted could disappear.

Herbs for Health Saw Palmetto for an Enlarged Prostate Problems related to an enlarged prostate (called BPH or benign prostatic hyperplasia) most often occur in men after age 45, However, symptoms typically do not appear until age 60 or later. Up to 40 percent of men aged 70 years and older have symptoms that include an urge to urinate and difficulty emptying the bladder completely. If BPH is allowed to continue without treatment bladder infection and possibly kidney damage can occur. Prescription medicines used to freat BPH symptoms include inasteride (Proscar) and terazosin (Hytrin). According to a recent report in The Journal of the American Medical Association, an extract from the saw palmetto plant may provide a safe and effective alternative to treating BPH. Dr. Timothy Wilt and colleagues reviewed 18 carefully controlled, scientific trials involving the use of saw palmetto in 2,939 men prescriptions medicines. They concluded that saw palmetto was effective in improving BPH symptoms and the flow of urine.

Police Officer Scott Miller displays the new uniform being worn by members of the Wayne Police Department.

Police have new look

Officers for the Wayne Police Department are looking a little different these days.

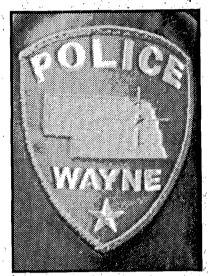

The department recently changed their uniform styles from a French blue shirt with contrasting pockets to a dark navy blue shirt and trousers.

The new uniforms are more comfortable and should be more durable, according to Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster. He said the department did test of the new uniform style last year to see how it wore and how it was perceived by the public. One officer last year was outfitted in the new Webster said this was the right time to make the switch because approximately 85 percent of the old style of uniforms were due for replacement this year due to age and wear. The last big purchase of uniforms was in 1996.

"One reason the Wayne Police Department uniforms look very good and last a long time is due to the expert dry cleaning they receive at K&G Cleaners," Webster said, "Dry cleaning is the wear."

RAISING FUNDS

The Graves Library Foundation is currently raising funds for a new 7,100 square foot community Library building.

The current library building built by and given to Wakefield by Philo Graves in 1915, is showing its age, especially along the North wall in the basement.

The plaster is crumbling under the paneling along the stairway going down to the basement. The ceilings in the outside entrance to the basement is falling.

You can observe the structural decay of the North wall in the upstairs area of the balcony where there is mold on the wall and cracks.

In addition to the deterioration from the moisture in the walls, the Foundation Board also states that the building is not handicap accessible; the restroom facilities are not adequate, plus space is needed for reading materials and adding technology services for the community.

The Foundation has purchased a lot in the one hundred block of West Third Street and has had an architect draw up a proposal for a one-story building. Estimated construction cost is $720,000. The board states that the lot and architectural fees are all paid.

APPEALS MAILED

The Library Foundation Board members recently mailed a brochure and letter to Wakefield residents and businesses asking for donations for the project. The board stated that the mailing has not been totally completed, or that they may have missed someone.

The board also expressed their appreciation to those who have responded with a contribution to the project, and invited anyone who would like more information, or was missed and would like a brochure, to contact board member Larry Clay.

Other members of the Foundation Board are Terri Sampson, Alice Johnson, Paul Eaton, Janyce McQuistan, Eugene Swanson and Harry Mills. SCHOLARSHIP

May is just around the corner and it is time to start thinking of applying for scholarships. Wakefield Community Club has increased the amount of scholarship money given to a graduating senior from one $500 scholarship to two $500 scholarships effective for the 2001-02 school term.

Parents and students should note these scholarships are based on community involvement. Be sure to list all activities that have been performed over the years. Nothing is too small or trivial. Be sure to list all activities in order of each year.

"Without voluntéers, small towns such as ours will not continue to survive," states Community Club Officers. Plus, it is an excellent way to receive help with college tuition. Application forms are available from guidance counselor Sondra Remer at the school and need to be completed by the middle of May. The scholarships will be presented at graduation ceremonies May 19.

CARE CENTER MEETING

The Wakefield Health Care Center Auxiliary met on Feb. 6 in the assisted living dining area. Twenty-six members and visitors attended. President Esther Oberg opened the meeting. Vivian Olson led with devotions.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Corrine Carlson and a report was given by Treasurer Lois Berns. Lois stated the Auxiliary purchased a mirror for the Physical Therapy Room and two treatment carts for the nurses.

Carol Sharpnack gave a report on the Blue Light Fund. She commented on the success of the fundraiser for 2001 and reported a record $1,086 was collected. It was announced the executive committee will be hosting an Appreciation Tea for the Care Center staff on Feb. 27.

The guest speaker Tina Stround was introduced to the group by Marilyn Abts. Tina is with the Alzheimer's Association Big Sioux Chapter in Sioux City. The association serves Dakota, Dixon and Thurston counties in Nebraska by offering support groups and services such as an I.D. program for lost individuals and adult day care. She spoke about the warning signs of Alzheimer's and stressed the importance of discussing changes with your physician. Many times what is thought to be a symptom of the disease turns out to be simply a medical nutritional condition or even drug interaction.

Another reason to talk to physicians about changes is that early detection of Alzheimer's is very important. There are several medications available to individuals with the disease that have shown very positive results with symp-

Tina also stressed the importance of exercising the brain with activities such as crossword puzzles and learning new things.

Volunteers are always welcome and they can contact the Association in Sioux City. If you are interested in helping at the local care center, you may contact Marilyn Abts.

The Alzheimer's Association has a toll-free Helpline available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. people with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders, their families, caregivers and the general public can get information and support when needed. The Helpline is answered by real people not recordings.

Terry Hoffman, Health Care Center administrator, spoke to the group about recent legislation changes that will affect nursing homes in the state by cutting funding for Medicare and Medicaid programs.

At this time, it is not a problem for the Wakefield facility and Wakefield Health Care Center has been able to keep all fulltime personnel. The Care Center is struggling with a low census.

Terry expressed a great appreciation for all the local financial help and volunteers at the Care Center. He also reported that they will be needing to upgrade the computers and software sometime in the coming year as the company providing support will not longer support the software currently used by Wakefield. This upgrade will probably cost the care center over $10,000. ACCEPTED

Earned Income Tax Credit is a refundable federal tax benefit designed to supplement the wages of low-and moderate-income workers, particularly those raising chil-

In 1999, the Earned Income Tax Credit lifted 4.7 million people out of poverty, more than half of them children of working parents. Last year, nearly 19 million working families and individuals received more than $30 billion in EITC benefits. In 2002, the average EITC refund for a family with children will be nearly $2,000.

This year, Congress enacted legislation making millions more lowincome families eligible for a refund through the Child Tax Credit, even if they owe no income tax. Families with earned income above $10,000 who claim dependent children under age 17 can claim this new refund, which can be worth from several hundred dollars to over one thousand dollars for families. This refund is in addition to the Earned Income Tax Credit a family may receive.

However, qualified families and individuals may fail to take advantage of both the Earned Income Tax Credit and the Child Tax Credit, either because they are unaware of their existence, are uncertain of their own eligibility, or do not know how to apply, As a result they miss out on an important benefit.

Goldenrod Hills Community Services is participating in EITC outreach and has developed a tax preparation assistance program which not only helps qualifying low-income families fill out simple tax forms and apply for Homestead Exceptions, but will also assist with EITC and CTC degrees. Something isn't right! This is winter and winters in Nebraska aren't suppose to be this

It's usually well below zero and we have snow drifts up to our waist. This has been a great winter for people, but it's been a goofy year for many outdoor activities.

Ice fishing has really been bad, as it's real tough to ice fish without ice. It looks like it's going to be a poor year for spring light goose hunting, because there is no snow line all the way to Canada. With no snow to stop the birds, they'll probably wing their way all the way into Canada.

There is one thing that has been pretty decent this "winter" and that's the walleye fishing on the

With warm weather, many anglers didn't put their boats away this winter and have been chasing walleyes most of the win-

When the water temperature starts to cool, the fish slow down, they don't move much, so they don't need to each much. Everything in their world has slowed down to a crawl and winter walleye anglers will have to do the same with their fishing technique.

Slow is good when it comes to cold water angling! At times, just letting your bait drag along the bottom will take cold weather walleyes.

Since the walleyes and sauger move less, they use less energy and eat less. This is one of the reasons that I down-size my baits at this time of year.

I'll go with lighter line, from 4 to 6 pound test depending on the area I'm fishing and the bite.

Cold weather is the ideal time for jigs and live bait rigs. I'll also go to a smaller jig or live bait in the winter. With the lighter line, I'm able to fish a lighter jig and fish it properly. I tip my light jig with a small minnow to give it the added scent and a little more movement.

You'll want to fish with a tight line and have your line as straight up and down as possible as possible. The more line you have out, the more apt you are to not being able to feel a bite.

One thing that cold weather walleye and especially sauger will do this time of year is to grab a hold of the minnows tail and hold on, letting go before you get them to the boat.

To take these short striking, tail biting fish, I'll ad a stinger or trailer hook. A trailer hook is no more that a short piece of mono or leader material hooked behind the jig. Th business end of the trailer is either a single small or treble

The hook is stuck in the minnows tail or near the dorsal fin and when the short biters pick up the minnow, they'll have the trailer or stinger hook in their mouth.

I'll use a stinger with a treble hook in areas that aren't snag infested and go to the single hook if the area I'm fishing has a lot of snags.

Winter walleye fishing isn't as fast and furious as it might have been during warm water conditions. The fish you'll catch will generally be larger and if you remember to slow down and use smaller baits you'll take some excellent fish this winter.

WAYNE PUBLICIPATE Wayne The Wayne The Care I

To parents

Daycare evaluations are valuable

One of the hardest parts of being a parent working outside the home can be finding the right day care. Appropriate day care can be selected by considering the caregiver, setting and activities.

Parents need to follow their intuition when selecting a caregiver. A good caregiver is welltrained, warm and loving toward children and encourages a child's interests and stimulates a child to explore and discover new things. A caregiver's education also counts.

Those with some sort of professional training and who frequently attend workshops and conferences to learn more about the profession tend to be more effective teachers and caregivers. Caregivers also need to deal well with stress and have specific, daily plans for the kids.

The day care setting needs to be safe, healthy and provide equipment such as games, toys and furniture in good repair and appropriate for children. Parents should never consider a day care if the caregiver appears angry or talks about the children or families in a negative way. Avoid a day care program if any sort of physical punishment, withholding of food or isolation of the child is used. A normal adjustment period of a child toward a new day care setting will last one to two weeks. If after that time the child is unwilling to be left at the daycare, the parent should re-evaluate the setting.

A day care should be licensed, and some also are reviewed by the Association for National Education for Young Children, which takes parent surveys and observations from a validated person from the program to write a report. Regardless of whether a day care program is accredited or not, parents need to check parent references provided by the day care to be sure other parents are satisfied.

Parents should always be welcome visitors at a day care at any time and hear happy sounds when they enter the setting. If they are not welcome, a parent needs to be

New Guidlines For Antibiotic Use

The CDC, together with some physician groups, has developed new guidelines for the use of antibiotics. Their goal is to reduce unnecessary antibiotic prescriptions and to help patients understand why they should not demand drugs when they are not needed (i.e. for a common cold.) The guidelines are an attempt to help preserve antibiotic effectiveness in the future. These suggestions are aimed at generally healthy adults with an occasional virus and don't apply to people over 65 or those with diabetes, heart or lung problems or weakened immune systems.

Not sure about trends

I kept thinking about life's irritants last week; not dwelling on them, just being aware of them. As I am again nursing in the public schools on a very small parttime basis, I am again reminded of how traditional my values are. The way students dress today blows my mind. I am especially appalled by the jeans that are hanging below the hips. How do they keep them on?!

One of the other nurses at East High last week informed us that the practice began in the prisons. I don't even want to consider the implications. I do know that the gangs have adopted the fad. So, why would any average American high school, or grade school student, want to wear their jeans like this?

I don't usually even forward the stuff that I get via the net. There is so much out there. I'm amazed at how often I get the same thing from different parts of the country. But last week, an old friend sent me a student's prayer from netlaughter.com that really hit the nail on the head. I herewith submit it for all of you to read, and think about, and maybe pray about, if you feel so led. I've come to agree with those who say our "tolerance" has been led astray.

CONSTRUCTION WO Two New RC&D Areas Approved RR #2 Terry Meyer BOX 199 375-4272

Two new Resource conservation and Development areas in Nebraska have been authorized for funding by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, according to an announcement by USDA Secretary Ann Veneman today (1/11/02)

One new area is called PrairieLand RC&D and includes Boone, Madison, Stanton, Nance, Platte, and Colfax counties. The other new area is called Great Plains RC&D and includes Polk, Butler, Saunders, Douglas, Sarpy, York, Seward, Lancaster and Cass counties.

The Resource Conservation and Development areas are a multi-county organization headed by a local citizen council to improve the way of life in the region. Projects vary by council but can range from natural resource improvements, business and economic development, recreation and tourism development, community improvements, and educational workshops for cit-

"We are excited for these two new areas. With this approval, we can better support the council with the full-time coordinator, program assistant, and office space," said Steve Chick, State conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service and whose agency administers the program for the USDA. Location of the offices and selection of coordinators will now have to be determined. AND THE STATE OF T

"The coordinator serves as a point of access to USDA programs and services. Representatives on the council come from local communities, county agencies, natural resources districts and private business. The coordinator and others provide the daily staff to the council in organizing projects selected by the council, writing grants for funding and pulling various interests together," said Chick. "USDA helps fund some of this program," said Chick, "but mostly, like last year, 96 percent of the existing council actions were funded from outside sources."

Nebraska has nine other RC&D areas previously authorized and one application from the Sandhills area pending at USDA.

George Lyons of Stromsburg, and interim president of the Great Plains RC&D Council, said, "This is great because we have worked hard to get this approval. Now we can get in full swing with our planned projects."

All of Nebraska's congressional representatives, the Governor, most local county commissioners, and local natural resource district boards had endorsed the authorization of the new RC&D areas in Nebraska.

More about the Resources Conservation and Development program and activities is available on the NRCS webpage at www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

HOSKINS SADDLE CLUB MEETS The Hoskins Saddle Club met on Feb. 11 at Stu's Bar and Grill. Election of the president and secretary was held. Both were elected to serve 2 years. Larry Smolek was voted in as president and Joyce Vanosdall was voted in as secretary.

Discussion was held about the 2002 Hoskins Horse Show which will be held on Saturday, June 8; a rain date was also discussed. It was voted on to order the medals from Norfolk Sporting Goods again this year.

Discussion was also held regarding the possibility of adding some new arena lights. A few of the light poles will need to be replaced in the near future.

The next meeting will be on March 11 at 7 p.m. At that time, some clean up days will be decided on (consisting of painting, cleaning up and whatever needs to be done before the annual playday).

Discussion was also held on setting up some rides at different members places this year. Dates for some of these events will be decided at the next meeting.

The Northeast Nebraska Saddle Club "Roundup" will be on March 23, 2002, at the Snyder Auditorium, with the Social Hour from 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. The meal and entertainment to follow. The West Point Saddle Club is sponsoring it. COMMUNITY MEETING A community meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Winside Elementary Multi-purpose room to discuss the school's financial situation.

School Superintendent Arden Svoboda says the school board has some choices to make. The district now levies a property tax of $1.01 per, $100 of actual valuation to support its budget. "We're looking at what cuts we can make and probably at the same time see if the public is in favor of going to a vote to go above the $1.01," He

"The legislation is also considering several bills dealing with state aid that could have an impact," he said. "Another consideration is that the school districts cash reserve has been dwindling. We have taken $100,000 out of the cash reserve two years ago and $149,000 for this year. We're down to $80,000 in the reserve," Svoboda said.

The public is encouraged to come to the March 5 meeting to discuss the situation. SCHOOL CALENDAR

2002 Progress Edition

Paper has been serving community for 125 years

The Wayne County Review, an ancestor to the present-day Wayne Herald was started at LaPorte by C.E. Hunter and printed at Ponca in the early part of 1896.

By August of that year, equipment was installed and the paper was printed and published at LaPorte.

The LaPorte Review was a seven-column folio. It was published every Saturday and its subscription rate was $2 per year, "payable strictly in advance."

News from the outer world was infrequent in the pioneer days. A.P. Childs, an ambitious newspaper man, came to LaPorte from New York and joined Hunter in publishing the Review.

A copy of the Review from 1878 indicates that land in Wayne, Cedar, Pierce and Antelope Counties is being offered for sale by the B & M Railroad Co. for as low as $1 to $2 per acre for cash.

When the county seat was moved to Wayne in 1881, A.P. Childs loaded up the Review plant and brought it to Wayne. C.E. Hunter retired from the firm and moved to Wakefield where he was postmaster for a number of years.

About 1883 Childs sold his newspaper to R. M. Goshorn who later disposed of a half interest to W.H. McNeal. This publication became the Wayne Herald.

Childs wasn't long without a newspaper. He established the Wayne Democrat in 1884. In 1894 W.S. Goldie bought the Wayne Democrat from Childs. Goldie continued to run the newspaper until the spring of 1911 when he sold the property to E.O. Gardner and G.A. Wade. Gardner died in March of 1929 and Wade became the sole proprietor of the Democrat.

Charles Simmons started a newspaper in Wayne and from this venture evolved W.S. Goldie's Graphic in 1891. A few years later E. Cunningham bought the Graphic plant and inaugurated the Wayne Republican which he later disposed of to Bert Gibson.

For a considerable period, three newspapers were published in Wayne.

In 1889, McNeal purchased Goshorn's interest in The Wayne Herald. McNeal sold the Herald to William and E.W. Huse in 1903. One year after the change in ownership of the Herald, E. Cunningham bought the Herald and Republican, thus effecting a consolidation of the two newspapers.

E.W. Huse remained with the consolidation for a few years and then went to Beatrice to manage the Daily Express. Frank Briner, J.A. Lister, Elmer Lundburg and A.J. Woodward were publishers of the Herald successively until 1910 when Huse returned and bought the plant

When Huse took charge, the equipment was worth less than $3,000 and the payroll was $22 per week.

The first move in 1910 was to put in a rebuilt No. 1 linotype, the first standard type casting machine in northeast Nebraska outside of Norfolk. The No. 1 eliminated the so-called "patent insides." A few years later the Herald found the No. 1 unequal to growing requirements and a new No. 14 linotype was installed.

Late in 1926 the Herald moved to a new building, located on Main Street, just south of the present newspaper building. By 1931 the Herald's equipment, which invoiced around $50,000, included a Duplex printing press. The payroll by this time had grown to $300 per week.

In 1947 Huse relinquished the Wayne Herald to Mark Cramer. Cramer's son, J. Alan, purchased the newspaper from his father's estate in 1959. James Marsh bought an interest in the Herald in 1969.

The Herald moved to its present location at 114 North Main Street in 1966. It was also at this time that a new Goss community press was purchased and the paper began printing by the process of offset lithography. A single section of the newspaper, which once took two and one-half hours to print, was now able to be produced in approximately 13 minutes.

Gary and Peggy Wright purchased the Herald in 1987 and owned and operated the business until 1992 when it was purchased by Northeast Nebraska Media, Inc.

In recent years, new technology has allowed the Herald to produce both the newspaper and other publications using four-process color on a regular basis, something which was once very expensive and used only on special occasions. Pictures, which at one time were a luxuary and time-comsuming process, are now taken using digital cameras, downloaded into a computer and printed within minutes.

Advertising copy which was once put together with a 'cut and paste' method of adding and subtracting copy and artwork, is now done completely with the use of the computer.

The Morning Shopper operation was moved into the Wayne Herald building in September of 1992. At this time the paper also converted to the use of soy-based ink and the use of recycled newsprint when available.

The Herald currently is under the direction of publisher James Shanks. In addition, there are 14 full-time and several part-time employees who work in circulation, advertising, editorial, composing, production and bookkeeping for the publications produced.

County, city named after general

Both Wayne County and the City of Wayne are namesakes of a fiery hero of the American Revolutionary War.

Described as a handsome, darkhaired man with penetrating brown eyes and an aquiline nose, Anthony Wayne was captured by the spirit of the Revolution and his flamboyant leadership earned him the rank of general and the nickname "Mad" Anthony Wayne.

Wayne was born to parents of English ancestry on Jan. 1, 1745, in Waynesboro, Penn. At the age of 16, he attended a private academy in Philadelphia, and was reported to be more proficient in feats of mock warfare than in academic endeavors.

Two years after Wayne left the academy he took a job as a surveyor. A Philadelphia land company sent him to supervise the surveying and settlement of land in Nova Scotia in 1765. Soon after this venture failed, he returned to Pennsylvania where he took Mary Penrose as his bride. They settled on his father's estate and managed his father's tannery.

Preceding the revolutionary period, Wayne was a leader of the Whig Party and a member of the colonial legislature When war broke out in 1775, he recruited the 4th Pennsylvania regiment and later protected the retreat of this force back to Fort Ticonderoga.

Wayne led a division at Brandywine, commanded at German town and took part in the siege of Yorktown. In 1777, he was appointed to the rank of brigadier general. After his daring attack and recapture of Stony Point in 1779, Congress awarded him a medal. His bravery and ambition allowed him to be made a brevet major general on Oct. 10, 1783, Gen. Wayne retired from active service one year later.

After retirement, Wayne spent much of his time engaged in civil pursuits until his death on Dec. 15, 1796. His character is remembered by a once popular saying, "where Wayne went there was a fight always; that was his business." Gen. Wayne also possessed a distrust in people. He believed that a man could not even depend upon himself.

Illinois pioneers are first to settle in county

Nebraska was admitted to the union in 1867, but there aren't any records of white men in Wayne County prior to 1869.

However, during 1869. a number of families moved from Lee County Ill., and settled in the southeastern part of the country. They were drawn to this western country (then marked on school maps as part of the "Great American Desert") by Willard Graves, who is said to have owned 40 sections of land in Dixon, Dakota, Wayne and Cuming counties.

In this first group were the families of C.E. Hunter, Harrison Allen, A.D. Allen, Nathaniel Allen, Isaac Miner, Nathaniel Miner, Wilson E. Durrin, Wesley Mahollam, Abner Fletcher, and Capt. B.F. Whitten.

With them came Pitt Hines, Martin Hines and the Bato and Fenton families, all of whom settled in the south part of Dixon County, R.B. Crawford arrived in the fall of the year. He and his wife had been teaching school previously in Dakota County. John McGuire took his homestead in the south part of the county the same year.

In the spring of 1870, 13 more families arrived from Lee and DeKalb Counties in Illinois, also having been induced to come by Willard Graves. These were the families of O.G. Crane, George Hunter, Enoch Hunter, Al S. Miner, William Agler, Isaac O. Mathew Richardson, Richardson, George Alexander Scott and Benjamin Harmon. The Cass, Steinbrook and Drummond families came with them but only remained during the first season. John T.

Bressler arrived from Pennsylvania in April of 1870.

> According to one of the pioneers, was necessary at that time to leave the railroad Fremont and journey to West Point in a open wagon which carried mail. Wisner had not been established, but nearly all the homestead land Cuming county been had taken.

> At that time there were no towns in Wayne County. The county was boundless prairie with fires sweeping over the county each fall, destroying all vegetation. Each settler found it necessary to plow a fire guard several furrows wide around his shanty. If a prairie fire was sited, the usual defense was to set a "back fire." Frame shanties and dugouts were the earliest dwellings. Some settlers dug caves in the side of the hills with coverings of slough grass, sod or boards. But, lumber was scarce and had to be hauled several miles from sawmills along the Missouri River.

Winter storms were described as having "great fury," because there weren't any trees to break the storm's force. The principal fuel was slough grass and corn. Some breaking of the soil was done in the season of 1870 and a fair crop of sod corn was raised, which was used mainly for fuel.

The county was organized by a proclamation of Gov. David Butler in the fall of 1870. The first county meeting for the purposes of organization is said to have been held on Sept. 26, 1870 in the house on the George Scott homestead.

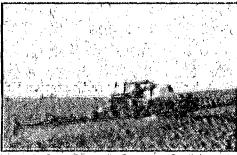

Wilson E. Durring, Isaac O. Miner and Mark Sperry were the commissioners; C. E. Hunter, clerk; B. F. Whitten was named treasurer but did not qualify, and George Scott was appointed; Abner Fletcher,, county judge; R.B. Crawford, county superintendent; A.D. Allen, sheriff; W.G. Vroman, surveyor and Nathaniel Allen, coroner.

The boundaries of the county were defined and its organization legalized by the state government on March 4, 1871. The population of the county is estimated to have been 50 to 60 in 1870.

Railroad determined Wayne site settle in this part of the country, where only rolling hills clothed in deep grass beckoned, where disease, prairie fires, drought, grasshoppers and blizzards caused setback and suffering?

In truth, Wayne into existence because of the railroad, and was first called Brookdale by the railroad until settlers decided that the county seat be named for the county. Both bear the name of General Anthony Wayne, Revolutionary soldier.

LaPorte was established as the first county seat, but when the railroad came through in 1882, missing LaPorte, the businesses were moved to Wayne and Wakefield by means of horse and windlass.

By 1882 Wayne was being settled fast. Main Street was at first just a crude road through the prairie with one store and one bank (frame structures), followed by a furniture store, a music store and another bank. A few frame houses popped up on the prairie close to Main Street. Land was selling as high as $5 an acre.

In 1880 Henry Ley arrived in Wayne and established the "German Store," extending credit to settlers who were prompt to pay their account annually, after the crops were in and sold. But, Ley was know to delay collections for legitimate reasons.

Tobacco, cheese, dried fruits and pickles were freely sampled by customers who might buy green coffee to be roasted and ground at Ley's store. There was little fresh fruit, due to lack of refrigeration and when the first banana bunch arrived, it was hung for all to admire, newspapers to write about and for each customer to have a free sample.

Leys operated the store for 10 years, later entering the banking profession. In 1896, under a new owner, fire from a kerosene lantern necessitated remodeling of the building.

In 1891 another downtwon store, doctor's office, grocery, general store, office and a private dwelling. The bucket brigade was inadequate in thwarting the fire, but 30 barrels of salt from Miller's grocery was helpful.

John T. Bressler of Fire limits were fixed in 1891

Why did the pioneers come to LaPorte bank here in 1885 which has continued as the First National Bank. In order to help make farm country of the surrounding land, he dug saplings from river beds and planted them on his homestead, helping transform the treeless prairie to its present ecology.

Bressler became a state senator in 1894, and was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1896 where his committee informed McKinley of his nomination. He was a member of the county congressional and state committees for the Republican Party and worked for state ownership of the college, as did Henry Ley, James Brittain and P.H. Kohl.

In 1905 Bressler gave the city a block of land for a city park where trees were planted and a bandstand erected. Another park, donated by Bressler in the east part of town, was similarly equipped. In 1910 he became mayor of Wayne.

In 1884, Wayne, now with a population of 200, was incorporated and village trustees were appointed, later elected in Wayne first election on April 1, 1884. Sidewalks were among the first order of business, and bicycles, tricycles and velocipedes were prohibited on sidewalks and in public streets. A calaboose was erected for $140 for persons guilty of misdemeanors.

The Wayne Town Hally Association provided a building for county offices and court, which burned in 1884, destroying the county offices as well as the newspaper printing office. Temporary offices were provided by businessmen. In 1885 the sheriff's residence and jail was built and a bond issue for a courthouse, located on the same site, passed in 1898. The courthouse was occupied in

By 1889, Wayne had 1,130 residents and the city was divided into three wards. In 1890 the city council voted for a blaze destroyed half a block of 12-foot board sidewalk on Main ed in Wayne until Nebraska Main Street, taking six frame Street from the depot to Fourth Bell bought it in 1910. buildings, including a clothing Street. Gasoline street lamps were purchased for the business district and a bond issue passed for the construction of a water works system. For many years, the water tank stood in the middle of the street at the top of Main Street hill.

Pennsylvania settled in Wayne and were protected by a hose in 1881, reestablishing his cart and 500 feet of hose. J.G.

Mines was appointed fire marshall. The firehouse on Main Street and Third Streets had first a steel bell and then a bronze one. Firemen pulled the two-wheeled fire cart until later when teams of ponies Social life kept pace with the work, including husking bees, balls, spelling bees, debates and literary society meetings. Mrs. Mary Brittain had read in a New York magazine about Parisian women who organized into groups for study and social activities. She presented the idea to Wayne women who decided to follow suit. The Acme Club, organized in 1885, took a course from the University of Chicago and studied history and literature. That same year, the Monday Club organized to establish and maintain the library.

Billings at the frame opera house on Fifth and Main Streets included eastern company productions, community plays, concerts, speeches and addresses. Sam Jones conducted a revival there, which lasted several weeks, the local Shakespearean Club sponsored plays and the Andrews Opera Co. presented "The Mikads."

In 1884 nine businessmen formed the Wayne Silver Corn Band. Several years later they contracted with the Sioux City Corn Palace and the Wayne Corn Palace Band was "one of the best in the Northwest," playing often for the Sioux City street fairs and carnivals. They also played for receptions for visiting dignitaries who arrived by train to deliver speeches from the back platform. William Jennings Bryan was one such orator.

·The telephone came to Wayne in 1897 with 25 subscribers. Nebraska Bell serving first the city of Wayne and then farms that were connected with the Wayne exchange A.B. Clark put in the first farm phone, using his fence posts to support the wire, with poles to raise it over roads and driveways. An independent exchange operat-

Bids were opened in 1898 for an electric light plant, at first providing electric light service only in the evenings at 50 cents per month for 16 candle lights and $1 for 32 candle lights. Education process starts in 1871

Formal education in Wayne Moses Herner land, District 7 District 2, 17 and 19. County was organized on Sept. 5, 1870 when Dr. R.B. Crawford was named superintendent.

Actual classes didn't start until the following year after newlyelected school officials met with county commissioners and towns people to decide where schools would be built.

The first official school meeting was held at LaPorte on April 3, 1871, by moderator A.A. Fletcher, treasurer George Scott and director A.S. Miner. They agreed to set a levy of seven mills for a school building, a levy of two mills for a teacher fund and two-mill levy for a district contingent fund.

It was later that month that the county was divided into three school districts.

For several years, District 1 was known as "Bloody One" because of frequent wranglings and altercations among officers, employers, teachers and pupils.

District 1 was later reorganized to include Hancock, Brenna, Plum Creek, Leslie and the south half of Logan precincts. District 2 was near LaPorte and District 3 was at Hoskins.

The first school in Wayne County, District 3, was built near Hoskins in 1871 by Solon Bevins at a cost of $1,500. The first teacher in District 1 was Miss Mary Keel and her pupils were the children of Isaac and Al Miner.

By October of 1932, a total of 88 districts had been formed throughout the county. Some of the districts and histories recorded included:

District 5- Better known as Frog Pond School, District 5 was located in Plum Creek precinct after the building had been moved from two other sites. In 1882, a school was built about three miles northeast of the present site and later moved to a mile west to accommodate students. When more settlers came to the territory the district was divided. The new district was 32.

District 6: It was formed June 12, 1872 and included all of Wilbur and the north part of Strahan and Hunter precincts. To the surprise of many, public power districts in Nebraska are owned by you and other residents of your Nebraska communities. You elect a Board of Directors from among your friends and neighbors; and, as a resident of Nebraska, you have a say in your utility's management and direction. Obviously, we can't call and check with each one of you on every little decision. But rest assured, your input is valuable to us. Why? Because we work for you.

Northeast Nebraska Public Power District serves 8,100 customers in Dakota, Dixon, Wayne, Pierce, Thurston and Cedar Counties, including 14 northeast Nebraska communities: Allen, Concord, Dixon, Hoskins, Hubbard, Jackson, Martinsburg, Maskell, McLean, Newcastle, Obert, Osmond, Ponca, and Waterbury. Remember we are the public power district that works for you.

Farmers are given hints for care of their horses

August 16, 1887

Farm and householdment of horses-

Be kind to your horse. Gleanings from the American Agricultural: Kindness with the family horse is of the most importance. Always cultivate in an acquaintance, and on social and friendly terms with him.

If he is tired and worn out, it is astonishing, how these little attentions encourage and cheer him up. If not in use, he should be given a reasonable amount of daily exercise. No animal will do well without exercise. It promotes a good action of their limbs and assists digestion.

The harness should be made to fit, thus avoiding bruises. In cold weather, the lips and tongue of the horse may be made very sore by contact with the frozen bit. The bit should always be warmed before being placed in eh horse's mouth. Flies are very annoying to horses, and the use of the net or some preparation that will keep the flies away, is well repaid.

Care in driving is of the greatest importance. How often Hints for the farmer- treat-, do we see an animal driven until wet with perspiration and dotted with foam, standing without blanket or protection of any kind from the cold northern winds. When in such condition, he evidently suffers intensely; besides the danger of ever recovering.

If any law on our book should be more rigidly forced than another, it is the one on fast driving. When in use, blankets should always be provided in cold weather, so that they will dry without chilling. Protect them from drafts when warm, and either rub down or let them stand in a stable where cold air can not strike them,

Box stalls for horses-

The stable for the horse should be of good size. The narrow dimensions of many of the stalls are a positive cruelty of horses. They are built too narrow to enable a horse to extend his limbs when convenient. He is compelled when in a recumbent position, to double his limbs up under him, and his legs are thus kept cramped, when they should be completely at rest. Box stalls permit the animal to choose it position and change it at pleasure. Comfort is essential to health, and it is evident that the animal cannot be comfortable when closely tied in a narrow stall.

The stalls should be kept clean and the floor daily sprinkled with some good absorbent, as gypsum, to absorb the foul odors continually arising. Absorbents are not generally used free enough about stables.

Besides having pure air for the animal to breathe, a stable that is stored full of hay and grain ought to be kept well ventilated, and kept clean, that the impurities of the air may not penetrate these. All food should be kept as pure as possible. Cleanliness about he stable is just as important to the health of the horse, as cleanliness about he house is important to the health of the family.

Winter caused many hardships for farmers the Jan. 5, 1888 issue of The Wayne Herald.

Winter Improvidence

The approach of winter is hailed with a chuckle of delight by the dealers in agricultural implements. It is not the season for sales but is the seed time for future orders.

The first snow lays the foundation for the opening of the next spring's ledger. As it flakily descends on the new reapers or covers with a mantle of white the expensive thresher lying houseless and exposed in the sodden barn yard, the implement dealer rubs his hands.

He knows that wet means rust and that rust means decay and repairs, and that each accrues to his advantage. When

The following story came from sleet and the seeder and hay rake drip with the winter rains, the autumn profits of the western farmer are already being subjected to a vigorous attack, whose effect will be seen when the spring time calls loudly for the blacksmith, the wheelwright, and the implement dealer.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are wasted every year in the far west through the improvident neglect of our farmers to house their machinery and implements.

Chilly cattle, shivering horses, and cold swine are the destruction of the well filled cribs and overflowing mows. Warm stables, sheds and pens pay for themselves a dozen times over in the course of a farmer's life. When all the vital the plow share is covered with forces of animals are directed to keeping themselves warm there is an enormous waste of food expended in making heat which would otherwise go into fat.

With fat cattle at six cents a improvidence of saving the work of stopping up cracks by extra feeding to induce warmth needs no argument. Corn at 35 cents a bushel is an expensive stove by which to warm hogs.

Winter should be the farmer's home harvest.

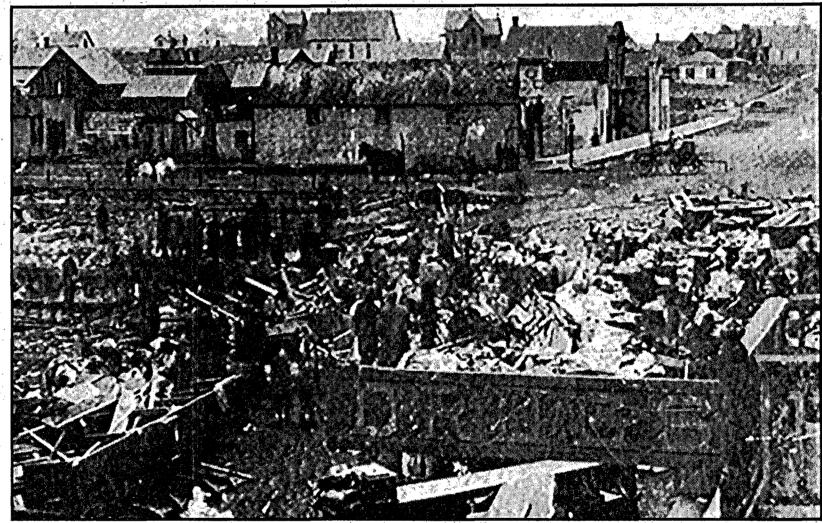

The fields are bare of crops, but there is all the more time to attend to loose fences and pound and hogs at five the shaky gates. The barns and mows and cribs have received their burden and opportunity is given to repair their sides and roofs by a timely board or shingle or needed nail.

There are groves to clean up for the benefit of wood pile, walks to patch up in interest of dry feet and a neat door yard. and a score of odds and ends of indoor work which, if neglected, soon call for the painter and carpenter and heavy bills for too long postponed repairs.

The provident farmer looks forward to winter as the season when he can enjoy with some leisure the fruits of his seed time and harvest, and prepare at ease for the coming year.

Snow and wet have no terrors. The sheds will protect his machinery from damage, the warm barns and pen for his stock. Undisturbed by storms and sleet he can revel in the cosy comforts of his home secure in the consciousness that he had provided against the wind and the weather.

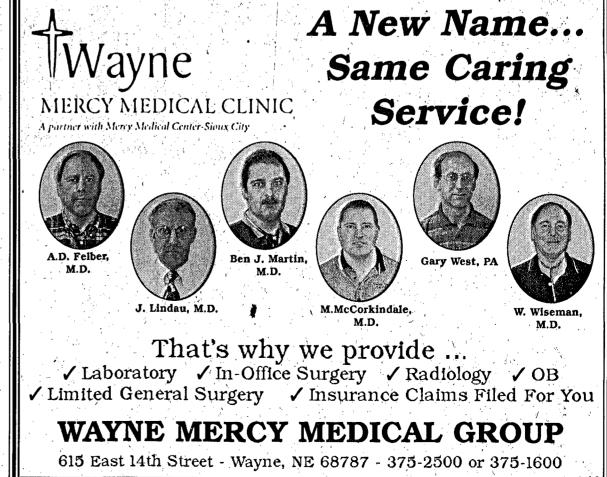

A fire in 1891 destroyed a half block of Wayne's business district. The blaze consumed six buildings, including a clothing store, doctor's office, grocery store, general store, an office and a private dwelling.

A former Wayne man attempts bank robbery

The Nebraska Democrat Jan. 4, 1912 issue.

Art Shoan, well known here, gets into trouble by keeping bad company. Confesses to attempt at Bank Robbery

Tuesday afternoon it was reported here that Art Shoan was under arrest for bank robbing. Mr. Shoan grew to manhood in this vicinity, and was frequently employed by business men and farmers in this vicinity, and was known as a good hand without bad traits.

City Tribune he has fallen from the law, a confessed law breaker. The Tribune says:

Here is the story of two bank robbers who were going to steal the safe from the South Sioux City bank, cart it away with a team of stolen mules and a stolen wagon and hide it somewhere till morning, when they expected the time lock combination would go off and the safe would open itself automatically without further effort on their part.

After being sweated for two hours by County Attorney C.N. Jepson and Chief J.B. Richard this morning it appeared as though Bill Cornwell, a paroled penitentiary convict sent up from Sioux City some years ago for 10 years for larceny from the person, stood an excellent chance of going back to the penitentiary.

Cornwell was arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of having been connected with three attempts to carry off the safe of the South Sioux City bank, the burglarizing of a grocery store at Greenville and the burglarizing of a saloon at Hinton.

Sunday night, Art Shoan was arrested when the typewriter

This story was taken from taken out of the South Sioux identified some bottles of City bank was found in his room, and this morning he turned state's evidence against Cornwall, who he said inveigled him into all of the burglaries mentioned.

> Shoan is a farmer from Wayne, Nebraska, and came to Sioux City last June. He told this morning of having met Cornwell last summer and of how the latter laid before him the plans for robbing the South Sioux City bank.

"What did you intend to do with the safe had you got it onto But according to the Sioux the wagon?" asked the chief.

"Oh we intended to ditch it grace and is in the clutches of somewhere till morning," was the reply. "How did you expect to get at the contents of the it?" safe?"

"Oh, it was supposed to be a time lock and we thought it would open in the morning," was the reply.

Shoan also told of going to Hinton the night of December 23 with Cornwall, where the two burglarized a saloon. He whisky taken from the saloon, and also a rubber coat they stole from the section house. He also told of breaking into a grocery store at Greenville last week.

Cornwall would not admit being with any of the deals, but frequently found himself in such a tight place he refused to answer questions, and often contradicted himself. A bottle of nitro-glycerine was turned over to the police by Shoan, which he said Cornwall left in his room, together with a kit of burglar's tools.

When asked if he knew what "soup" is, Cornwall said, "Yes" "Do you know how to make "Well, I can make tomato soup." he replied.

"I'm talking about this kind of soup, the kind yeggmen use to blow safes with," said the county attorney, as he held up a bottle of nitro-glycerin.

Cornwall professed to be ignorant of such "soup."

Fairness found as rule of travel

The following article was taken form the Thursday, July 7, 1932.

Fairness Found Rule of Travel Men on Road Do Not Hold Hoover Responsible For Conditions

Absolute fairness is the rule among the great multitude of men commonly called "bums" who are traveling from place to place all over the county, according to Harold Hayes who arrived in Wayne last Thursday evening after spending four weeks in the northwest. Many of these travelers are skilled engineers and other specialized artisans who havejust had hard luck. They are traveling from one section to another and most of them are trying to locate work, Mr. Hayes says.

This traveling population, Mr. Hayes further asserts, does not hold President Hoover responsible for conditions. They know they are victims of an unfortunate economic crisis and they all hold hope that things will improve soon.

When Mr. Hayes found himself out of work here some weeks ago, he "rode the cars" to Wisconsin to visit his mother. Finding nothing to do there, he returned to Wayne and four weeks ago last Friday springs and then went to left for the northwest in search of work.

Going to Chadron, Neb., and then to Billings and Helena, Mont., Hayes rode freight and have money, though many don't oil cars with the other travelers. and they spend dollars reck-He found mining operations lessly, he continued. Big prepapartially at a standstill. Long rations were ander way at lines of freight cars loaded with Reno for the Fourth of July coal are standing on tracks fight which Jack Dempsey probeside the mines, waiting for the market.

Leaving for Montana, Mr. Hayes traveled to Vancouver, Wash, and then down to Portland, Ore. The irrigated fruit valley near Portland he found the most beautiful and productive of any places he stopped. Cherries, strawberries and other berries were ripening. The crops were enormous but canneries are operating only part time. One plant was open two days to can the strawberry crop. Raisers received work to bring berries in just the and some even add extra two days and then to market only the largest and finest fruit. The canneries have large stocks of goods left over from seasons so they are putting up only a portion of this year's crop. The producers have to find a way of disposing of the rest, and much goes to waste. Oregon, with its fruit and wonderful roses, looked like a paradise garden, Mr. Hayes says.

The traveler stopped in Ashland, Ore., at the mineral Sacramento, Calif., and from there to Reno, Nevada. Reno is crowded, Mr. Hayes says, with gamblers. Everyone seems to moted.

Mr. Hayes went to Salt Lake City and the Mormon temple and tabernacle impressed him as most beautiful. He went to the tabernacle but visitors were not allowed in the temple. The Royal gorge, the next stop made, presents wonderful magnitude and marvelous scenery. Hayes stopped in Denver and Omaha enroute back,

On freight trains one finds all types of people, Mr. Hayes says. Most of the railroad lines allow the men rides without objection freight cars in which they allow the travelers to stay. Some of the men are "seasoned bums" who have been on the road for years. They have no work and no homes and they prefer this life to any other. In the traveling population also are the skilled artisans who are making earnest effort to locate jobs. At various stops they go from house to hours and store to store trying to pick up work. Most people are kind, Mr. Hayes observed, and allow a man to mow a lawn, clean up an alley or do something of that sort to earn a little. Another group among the travelers includes boys between the ages of 15 and 20 who are traveling just for the fun of it. These young folks usually have homes and care. Three of these young men lost their lives in smoke sheds at Reno and two in a tunnel in Montana, while Mr. Hayes was traveling. HOme is the best place for these young people, Mr. Hayes asserts.

Most stores and most home keepers are good about giving food to hungry men, the Wayne traveler found. Some cities have missions and each transient is given a ticket which entitles him to food and lodging at the mission. Breakfast at such places usually consists of oatmeal, bread and coffee. The dinner menu is usually potatoes and gravy, bread and coffee and the supper is hash, bread and milk. All supplies for the missions are donated.

The travelers have congregating places in each city. They bring their supplies to such a place and prepare their coffee. Everyone gets an equal share, the rule being to divide with the others, Tobacco, which is hardest to obtain, is divided with comrades even to breaking the last cigarette, Mr. Hayes says.

Most of the travelers, Mr. Hayes says, are men who like to be neat and clean. Being so is a hard task when riding behind train engines. The men wash often and with their tin can facilities boil and wash their clothes.

If Mr. Hayes is successful in finding work here again, he will remain. Otherwise he plans to head south and go through Texas and Mexico.

Food Production Program For New Year Explained at Meeting

All farmers and town people are urged to attend the meeting at Wayne auditorium Tuesday, Jan. 12 at 1 p.m. when the food production program for 1943 will be officially launched. Any who are unable to be present are asked to hear Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard speak over the national radio networks that day at 3 p.m.

All county committeemen will be present and some will appear on the program. This meeting is a follow-up of the district conference at which the 1943 farm goals were intro-

Everyone is being asked to produce all possible to further the war effort. Among the goals set for Nebraska is to increase corn production 10 percent, dry beans 32 percent, potatoes 13 nine percent, pork 40 percent, poultry eight percent, eggs 19 percent.

In connection with farm production a farm mobilization committee of more than 100 Nebraska men and women was announced by department of agriculture war board.

Civic and service clubs, churches, war veterans, professional and trade associations, state and county governmental agencies, railroads, food processors and distributors, radio and the press are represented on the emergencies like this — when committee. Its job will be to help all Nebraska mobilize resources, farm and non farm for the big 1943 food production program.

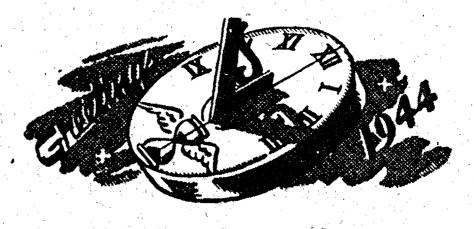

First meeting of the group will be in Lincoln January 12, which has been proclaimed Farm Mobilization day by President Roosevelt. Foods importance as a war weapon, the responsibilities of farm families in this phase of the war and means of helping farmers meet production problems will get major attention.

In his letter to state organization heads requesting their services for the mobilization committee, War Board Chairman Abner K. Chestern pointed out that responsibility for wartime production of food goes beyond the people of the farms. "Our state is primarily dependent upon agriculture," he wrote. "No matter what our jobs may be, we trace our welfare to the farm. More than that, our success in war during the year ahead will be measured to a great extent by Nebraska food production. In we are feeding great armed forces, millions of our allies every pig, every cow, every chicken and every acre counts heavily.

"In the mobilization of their resources for 1943 war production, our farm families need the understanding, encouragement and support of all the people of Nebraska. To show that support - to give farm families proof that their fellow Nebraskans in all walks of life are behind them - is the purpose of the state farm mobilization commit-> believe you and the people you represent are willing and anxious to help in every possible manner in filling Nebraska's number one war contract, contract that calls for more food we've than before ever produced." concluded Chairman

ME'RE MAKING AYNE A BRIGHTER PLACE TO LIVE

The City of Waynes first power plant was built in 1897 with a steam engine boiler that was used for street lights during the evening hours. When people went to bed, however, the engine power could be shut off:

In 1913 The Wayne City Council was petitioned by the people for continual electricity through the night hours with coal fired steam generators:

In the 1930's Wayne discontinued the use of coal & began using diesel engines since diesel fuel was at that time a by-product of gasoline. In the 50's the city converted the engines to operate on natural gas rather than diesel fuel to save costs.

During the oil embargo of the early 70's the electrical department could no longer generate electricity as cheap as it could be bought from NPPD. The City built tie lines from NPPD directly to the City and the City Council then leased the power plant capacity back to NPPD for their general use.

Today, Wayne's power plant is used on a stand-by basis and is required to be generating within two hours of being called by NPPD. It's not uncommon to generate, especially when it's very hot in the summer time and there are many central air conditioning units operating at the same time.

As the City of Wayne grows, the electric loads are growing as well which is what led to the decision to expand the power plant in 1997.

Since NPPD purchases our generating capacity even when we're not using it, we added two diesel generators with a total of 7,000 kilowatts. We now lease a total capacity of 19,500 kilowatts to NPPD.

The Electric production division is headed up by Prod. Supt. Gene Hansen, Doug Echtenkamp, Jeff Triggs, Keith Doescher, Bill Breitkreutz & Dan Kardell.

For 105 years the City of Wayne Electric Dept. has been providing safe, reliable, low cost electric service to the residents, businesses and schools of the Wayne Community. Currently, eleven men with an accumulation of 180 years of experience on the Wayne electric system are working diligently to insure that this long time commitment to quality electric service continues.

The Electric distribution division is headed up by Dist. Supt. Garry Poutre. Garry's crew consists of Line Foreman Tim Sutton and journeymen lineman, Bob Backman, Terry Fry and Brian Loberg. With each of these men having from 10-20 years of experience, they have not only come to know the electric system very well but have built much of it them-

These men maintain some 2,300 residential and commercial services, 30+ miles of overhead and underground power lines, hundreds of transformers and street lights. They work on electric lines and equipment with voltages ranging from 120-13,800 and at times can be found working in the worst weather conditions, restoring power that mother nature has interrupted.

The distribution division personnel would like their customers to know that they have a number of pieces of equipment that are available to them to help them determine their energy usage and power quality.

The Electrical department can be contacted 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to respond to any power related problems or electrical emergencies. For questions call 375-2866

WAYNE, NEBR.

RFK says Teddy visited in Wayne, won; he can too

Wayne and make it, I can too." That's one of the statements made by Sen. Robert Kennedy, New York, speaking in Wayne Saturday. With few exceptions, his speech was similar to speeches given before and being given in other rural areas of the nation.

The Democratic nominee for the president spoke before a crowd estimated at anywhere from 2,000 to 4,000 in front of the Wayne City Auditorium. He was 45 minutes late in giving a speech which had been rescheduled for 3 p.m.

"Teddy" referred to was Teddy Roosevelt, last presidential candidate to visit Wayne. He made it to the White House. When the senator heard this, he added this line to his talk.

After being welcomed by Mayor William Koeber and hearing the remarks by Henry Ley concerning his getting a spanking for going down to hear Teddy Roosevelt, the candidate for the presidency launched into his regular speech, which was interrupted by shrill shrieks from the teenagers pressed people having little voice in the close to the speaker's platform and by the adults in the crowd.

He asked if the kids thought he had an accent, noting that he had pronounced another state "Indianer," and making sure he called this state "Nebraskuh." He said he realized he was in country where they voted for Barry Goldwater last election.

In reference to his 11 children, he said he was doing more for Nebraska's farmers than any other candidate, adding that he would challenge any other candidate to match his record by primary day. "Let's not just have talk. Let's have action," Kennedy said.

After coming from Los Angeles, San Francisco and the congested East, the senator said he found marvelous rural country with smaller towns in the heart of America and was pleased and proud to be in the area.

He offered a word of praise for the states that have primary elections, noting that in some states the politicians make the decisions in regard to candidates with the state of Nebraska to win now." he added.

Kennedy asked for the help of "you people as I run for president of the United States." When this was greeted with applause, he stopped and asked: "Do you really think it was that good?" Applause was the answer.

He touched on the problems that face the nation in a time of concern when 12,000 federal troops had to be called out in Washington to preserve order, a reflection on all of us. He said as Attorney General 3 1/2 years, he knows the importance of obedience and if he is elected he will make sure laws will be obeyed.

According to the senator, people want justice for all, black, white and other colors, in its country. The call for law enforcement but they also call for justice, he continued.

Justice for the farmers is also wanted. Sen. Kennedy referred to the farmer as the forgotten man. Thousands have left the farm; income for farmers is down 5 per cent when the national gross is up; farmers receive 50 percent of the matter. "I have to do well in the pay workers in industries do; farmers are the backbone of the nation' and farmers need a voice in the executive branch as well as the legislative branch.

Sen. Kennedy said the farmer has purchasing power the same as he had in 1936, but economic conditions were bad then and good now. He said the focus of attention is too much in the urban areas and some forget that what affects rural areas affects all.

Looking ahead, he said the next 40 years this nation will need to build as many schools, hospitals and other institutions as it already has. Because of this, rural towns have to attract industry as rural areas must prosper along with urban ones. Kennedy said if he would be elected, he could help, acting on problems in cities AND rural

Referring to the situation in Vietnam as a "made in America war," he said it was a war of South Vietnam and we cannot win it for them but we can help. He said USA casualties are on the rise and SVN casualties are declining. "This is their war," he emphasized, "they should carry the burden, not the American army and marines."

He spoke of the corruption of the South. Vietnam government and asked why general mobilization has not been called for yet. "Why spend billions and send our boys when they refuse to call general mobilization?" he asked. He concluded on this topic by saying only one-third of our dollars reach the intended use because of corruption and he thought we should go to the negotiation table and bring about an "honorable truce to bring our soldiers home."

The senator said the nation has to be strong. He pointed out how this had paid off in the Berlin and Cuba crisis, in the latter the Russians withdrawing missiles from Cuba.

Finally, he touched on the need for jobs instead of welfare and the need for employment and meaningful pay. He said Nebraskans were generous, courageous and compassionate people and that's why "I ask for your support in the primary." He pledged to work for a better Nebraska, better Midwest and better USA if elected.

Following his talk he moved through the throng to the convert ible and with police escort moved out to Hartington. From there he went back to Norfolk and then flew to Washington before getting into Indiana to campaign the first of this week.

Kennedy notes-

Here are some miscellaneous items concerning the visit of Sen. Robert Kennedy, candidate for nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket:

Mrs. Alfred Sydow, Wayne, got a hug and a peck on the check from the senator when she told him she had started working for Wilson's election and had never stopped working for the Democrats since.

Don Schumacher and a group of youngsters from the Wayne High band had to entertain for over an hour as they started playing before the 3 p.m. speech time and played from time to time until the senator finally arrived. A busload of newsmen brought a lot of shrieks. The teenagers thought the senator was in he bus. he arrived several minutes after newsmen did.

Paul McCluskey and Mrs. Henry Ley, who had headed the work for the Kennedy drive and his visit, were waiting behind the high tion announce the senator had arrived at the Wayne Auditorium. They almost left even though they knew plans called for the senator to join them in a convertible at the school. They stayed and learned later it was not the senator who had arrived in downtown Wayne but the bus with newsmen aboard. The senator met them south of WHS.

Charles Quinn of NBC-TV had films of the Wayne visit on "The Frank McGee Report" Sunday afternoon on NBC. Wayne, Hartington and Norfolk shared time on Quinn's report on the Kennedy campaign.

The Norfolk Daily News said the turnout at Wayne was the largest of any of the crowds in the three towns visited in Northeast Nebraska. The Omaha World Herald said the crowd at Hartington was largest. Charles Quinn of NBC-TV said the crowd in Wayne was impressive.

Possible reason for some estimating there were more McCarthy placards than Kennedy placards was the fact that Kennedy for President officials in Wayne County had asked those with placards not to hold them up during the senator's speech. Prior to the speech there were quite a lot more

Blue Devils win battle of Hansen, six. statistics despite 59-58 loss in district action

Game statistics reveal that Wayne High beat Wisner-Pilger in the first round of Class B district action at Norfolk Monday night. That is, in all but one category-the final score.

Wisner nipped the locals, 59,58 to win the right to play Randolph, a 71-39 winner over Crofton tonight (Thursday) in the semifinal round. Also tonight, West Point Central Catholic takes n Hartington Cedar Catholic after both clubs won Tuesday night, Hartington beat Hooper-Logan View, 51-42 and CC toppled Tekamah-Herman, 85-61.

Wayne beat Wisner in scoring percentage, free throw shooting and even rebounding in the battle for a seat in the state basketball tournament next week.

The Devils hit 25 of 58 shots for 47 per cent while the Gators made 27 of 68 for 38 per cent. In free throws, Wayne made 62 percent (8 of 13) compared to 50 percent (5 of 10) for Wisner Turnovers- Devils, Gators, 23.

Senior Kim Baker added to that effectiveness by going to challenging 6-8 Steve Hornbeck for the rebounds.

"I thought the whole team played real well," Bill Sharpe pointed out. "It's just Wisner's good defense that hurt us."

"We should have come out in a zone defense a lot sooner than we did," Sharpe said. "but I didn't think they could shoot as well as they did."

In the early going the locals Rick Mitchell and Earle Overin. held a six-point margin until just before the end of the first 15-7 record.

Scott Ehlers, eight and Marty tled the lead to one, 17-16. From then on the lead switched Both Keating, who had 15 hands, with Wisner mounting four-point leads in the remainder of the game.

Bigilow evened the match with 1:19 left on a jumper from the top of the key to make it 56all. Hornbeck countered with a layup before Wisner's Randy Kindschuh went to the line. Kindschuh, who tied Hornbeck the middle for four points and for team scoring honors with 18 points, made his first shot for a three-point lead. 59-56 before missing his last shot. With about four seconds left Wayne's Keating tipped in a shot by Bigelow.

FLAMES SHOOT THROUGH the roof of the State National Bank and Trust Co. in the wee hours of the morning Thursday. Fire fighters pour water onto the bank building and the adjoining Wayne Herald office. A fire wall between the two buildings, along with the efforts of firemen, prevented flames from spreading to the newspaper building. The bank was gutted and several other adjoining businesses were destroyed in the blaze.

President says bank to open at new site
By LaVon Anderson

"We will be conducting business as usual," said Wayne's State National Bank and Trust Co. President David Ley Thursday following a fire which completely destroyed the 94-year-old bank building in the wee hours of the morning.

By Thursday afternoon, Ley, a fourth generation bank president, had already announced that a temporary main bank would be set up in the former True Value hardware store building which the bank owns at First and Pearl Sts.

Until then, normal business operations were being conducted at the bank's drive-in facility at 10th and Main St.

Ley told The Wayne Herald late Friday afternoon that the temporary main bank at First and Pearl Sts. should be open for business by today (Monday).

"Equipment is streaming in now," said Ley, "and by this weekend we should have all of it in place and functioning in anticipation of Monday's opening."

Blueprints are being prepared to reinforce the temporary bank building so that it can support the weight of vaults, and a security system is being installed.

Local bank officials are being assisted by the bank's major correspondent, First National Bank of Omaha, which sent in a team of three individuals trained in disaster prevention and organization.

"They arrived first thing Thursday and got us going," said Ley.

By Monday, Ley said he expects all services to be in line at the new location, except for trust and safe deposit boxes.

He added that because of safety concerns, bank officials have not been permitted to enter the gutted interior at the old location to check the vaults and safe deposit boxes.

All that remained standing following Thursday morning's blaze were dangerously unstable exterior walls consisting of heavy stone slabs.

Experts were expected to begin work this weekend on taking down the walls of the gutted building and making a final determination as to the cause of the blaze.

The Bank president said retrieval of items from the gutted bank building will have to wait until the walls are down and clearance to enter is received from the state fire marshal, insurance company and consultants.

"They all have to be in agreement as to when the site is safe to enter and when the vaults can be opened to minimize damage," said Ley, adding that the entire bank building was remodeled in 1979 and brought up to fire code standards for maintaining records and safe deposit

Ley said clearance to begin retrieving the items could come during the early part of the week.

Until the items are recovered, Ley said there is 24-hour security at the site on all the safe deposit boxes, vaults and papers.

In the meantime, Ley said the bank will be conducting normal business operations at its temporary main bank and at its drive-in facility.

He added that all deposit records were available through the bank's computer system and are totally safe and current.

"Our customers and the community have just been outstanding," said Ley. "Our customers have suffered some inconvenience I'm sure, but they have been understanding-and it's very much appreciated."

The bank president added that the transition has gone very smoothly not only because of the participation and willingness of bank employees, but because of the support from area banks, the community, and bank customers.

"We're looking forward to our new headquarters-which will be spacious and adequate-to be open on Monday," said Ley, "and we invite the public to stop in and take a look at the new facilities as soon as possible."

The State National Bank and Trust Co., which employs approximately 30 persons, was founded in 1892 by Henry Ley.

Until the fire which destroyed the building Thursday morning, it had been located on the southwest corner of second and Main Sts. since its beginning.

Following Henry Ley as president were his son, Rollie W. Ley, his grandson, Henry E. Ley, and his great grandson, David Ley.

David, who became bank president in 1979, said there was only a small amount of smoke coming from the second story of the bank building when he arrived on the scene shortly after 1 a.m. Thursday after being called by police.

Flames began billowing from the roof approximately one-half hour later.

"I knew then it was serious," said Ley, "but I didn't know how serious until about an hour later."

Although Thursday morning's loss was insured, Ley said there are no estimates at this point as to the dollar amount of the damage.

"Things started to mushroom also was destroyed by the right away," said Fire Chief Dale Preston, adding that as John Prather, sports writer of things progressed it became apparent that the Wayne department was understaffed for a fire of such size.

· At 1:38 a.m., Preston said he requested mutual aid from the 1:55 a.m., a call was put in for mutual aid from the Winside Fire Department, and at 2:09 a.m., the South Sioux City Fire Department was contacted for assistance.

"To the best of my knowledge," said Preston, "a call for assistance from Wakefield was put in when it became apparent that the ceiling of the main bank building was starting to collapse." "About the time I called Winside was when fire broke through the roof."

Preston estimates there were 50 firemen on the scene from the four towns with eight pieces of pumping and fire fighting equipment, including two aerial ladders.

"At one particular time we were hooked up to six hydrants on three different mains, pumping approximately 3,000 gallons of water a minute, with a big portion of that going to adjoining buildings."

Preston added that a total of 4,150 feet of hose was laid out chief. to battle the blaze.

The first signs of trouble came at 1:01 a.m. Thursday when the bank's burglar alarm sounded at the Wayne Police Department.

"A number of things can trigger the alarm," said Police Chief, Vern Fairchild, adding that two officers responded to the alarm within a minute after it sounded.

The officers checked the outside of the building and found everything secure. Within four minutes after the alarm, Fairchild said the officers radioed back to the police station asking that the dispatcher contact bank officers.

At approximately 1:07 a.m., as an officer was returning to his car in back of the bank building, Fairchild said he heard a light popping sound and could see a whisp of smoke.

The officer, according to Fairchild, immediately radioed back to the dispatcher to contact the light plant and shut off electricity to the building.

"By 1:13 a.m. we knew we had smoke and a call was put in to the fire department to stand by," said Fairchild, adding that the first firemen began arriving on the scene by 1:16 a.m.

Fairchild said bank officials "For about two hours we were also had arrived by this time and unlocked the building to find the upper level full of smoke.

remembers waking up at approximately 12:30 a.m.

"I smelled something but thought I was dreaming and went back to sleep."

When Prather awakened again at about 1:30 a.m., the apartment was extremely smoky and smelled like a hot iron."

Prather said he went to the spare bedroom, located in the south end of the apartment, and turned on the lights.

"The lights made a strange noise and flickered on and off. I grabbed a coat, a pair of jeans, and left."

Prather, who found police investigating in the bank's drive through area, said he returned to his apartment with an officer and found the area even smokier than when he left just a few minutes earlier.

"I went back up to retrieve some cash I remembered I had, and that was the last time I was in the apartment," said Prather, who lost all his personal belongings in the blaze.

About 30 minutes after leaving his apartment, Prather said he watched as flames began appearing through the roof of the bank, just east of the drive through.

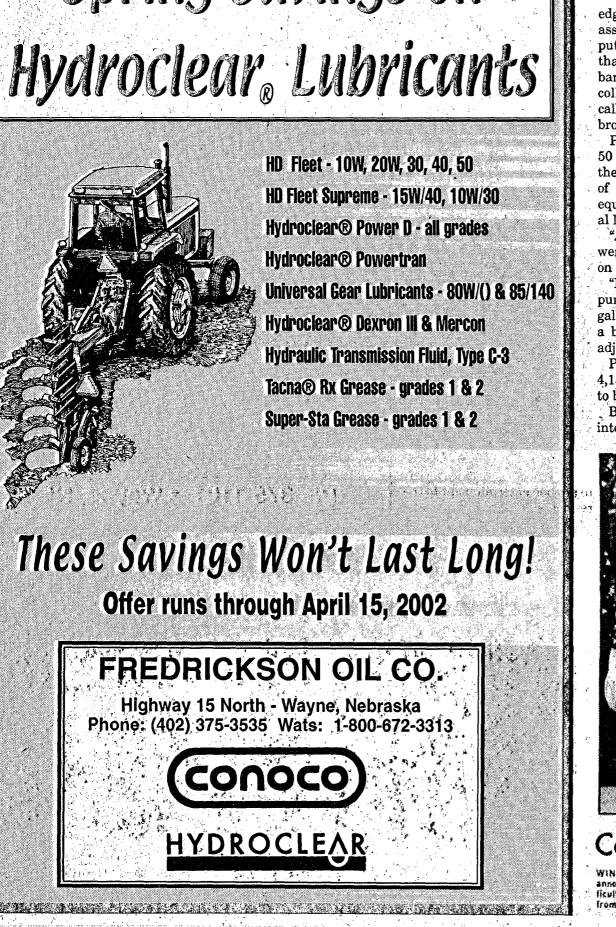

Preston, who has been a member of the Wayne Fire Department since 1972 and fire chief since 1984, said he feels extremely fortunate that no lives were lost in the blaze.

"We were very fortunate that when the floor broke loose and fell through we didn't have anyone inside the building."

Preston added that two or three firemen did receive some smoke inhalation while in the process of changing air bottles.

The fire chief added that he is extremely grateful for the

By dawn Thursday, police lines had been strung around the bank's perimeters for bank security as well as spectator protection, and street barricades were put in place as traffic in the downtown area was re-routed to reduce heavy vibration.

The devastation became apparent as smoke continued to billow from the building's gutted remains.

All that remained standingalthough dangerously unstablewere the heavy stone slab walls surrounding the main bank building.

"The bank itself is completely gutted," said Preston, "but that doesn't mean that everything inside was a total loss. We can't say that it was a total loss because until we get inside the area we don't know what is salvageable. We're assuming that blaze. the fireproof vaults and safe deposit boxes are intact."

Wayne Firemen remained at the scene of the blaze until Friday evening when control was relinquished to the state fire marshal's office which is continuing its investigation.

Police Chief Fairchild said security will continue and barricades will remain up at the site until the walls of the gutted structure have been taken down and the debris is cleared.

Work on tearing down the walls was expected to begin Saturday, according to Deputy State Fire Marshal Curly McDonald of Wayne.

"We're still on a holding pattern as far as our investigation," said McDonald, adding that no one will be permitted to enter the gutted bank building until the walls are taken down and the area is determined safe.

McDonald added that investigation of the blaze would probably begin Sunday, with other fire marshals arriving today (Monday).

"Hopefully, said McDonald, "we should have some information by Tuesday as to the cause of the fire."

"Right now we're crossing our fingers and hoping there is no damage inside the vaults. At his time we have reason to believe that everything inside the vaults is safe and intact."

Late Friday afternoon, The Wayne Herald spoke with individuals whose businesses were destroyed or damaged by the blaze and asked about their future plans.

Century 21-State National

"All the records from the farm management were saved." said Felix Dorcey, chairman of the board of Century 21-State National which manages farms in a five-county area of northeast Nebraska.

Dorcey said that while Thursday morning's blaze destroyed the back end of the office, the front of the office where all the files from the farm management and real estate were stored received water and smoke damage.

Dorcev said he was called to the fire about 1:40 a.m. Thursday to find John Dorcey, Century 21-State National president, already there.

"We immediately began moving things out with the help of several bank employees and businessmen."

Among those

David Ley.

By Friday, Dorcey said telephone lines were being installed and a temporary office for Century 21-State National was being set up in the Les' Steakhouse building.

George Goblirsch, DDS

Among the businesses completely destroyed by fire Thursday was the dental office of Dr. George Goblirsch, located on the second floor of the main bank building.

Goblirsch has practiced dentistry at the same location in Wayne since 1947 following his served as a dental officer.

Since 1947, the office area had been remodeled and enlarged.

Although his accounts receivable were stored in a fireproof file, Goblirsch told The Wayne Herald Friday that officials have not yet been able to get near the scene of the blaze to determine if anything was salvageable.

"Right now my plans are not definite," said Goblirsch, adding that patients with emergency dental problems are temporarily being directed to other dentists.

TOM KEIM, A FIREFIGHTER with the Wakefield Volunteer Fire Department, directs the effort of firefighters as they attempt to bring the fire at the Black Knight under control. Flames shooting from the roof of the building were estimated to be as high as 100 feet in the air. Fire crews from six departments fought the blaze for four hours before bringing the fire under control at approximately 4 a.m. Firefighters remained on the scene for several more hours putting out hot spots.

Fire destroys Wayne 'gathering spot'

June 25, 1995 Wayne Herald By Les Mann and Tom Mullen Of the Herald

Firemen thought at first they would be able to contain an early morning fire to the kitchen and bar area of the Black Knight Restaurant but before daybreak the popular Wayne gathering place was a total loss.

Only the dogged efforts of the firemen and hundreds of thousands of gallons of water kept the total destruction from spreading to connecting buildings on Main Street. As it was, the Edward D. Jones offices, Doescher Appliance, The Twin Theatre and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, all received moderate to severe smoke and water damage.

"When I first got there, there was some smoke but the fire-fighters thought they had it whipped," said Nick Sieler, co-owner of The Black Knight. "Then it was 'Oh My God, call Winside and Carroll."

As of Wednesday, the owners said they doubted the business would ever reopen. The fire chief has ordered the fire-weaken exterior wall to be demolished for fear it might fall into the street.

The original call came in at with a second hose and a 12:37 a.m. and before Fire Chief hour and a half the Dutch Sitzman turned the block thought they had the blaz over to insurance companies at 6 control and the main of p.m. Monday, crews and equip-confined to the kitchen a ment from six departments had areas.

battled the blaze. The fire was declared under control at 4 a.m. but crews were on the scene for mop-up all day Monday.

"I thought we were going to lose that whole half-block," explained the chief who said the fire started in one of the restaurant steam tables which had been left on since Sunday afternoon. The blaze got an eight hour head start on the firefighters said the chief.

He said the flames had moved into the area between false ceilings in the building by the time firefighters arrived and they weren't able to get at it from above or below. "This was one of those no-win fires," said Sitzman. He said the structure of the building with multiple ceilings and multiple roofs created so many hidden voids in which the fire could move and feed on oxygen.

When firemen first arrived they attacked the fire from within the restaurant using breathing equipment. When a second wave of firemen entered the building a section of burning ceiling fell in behind them said Stizman. That group got out but left their hose which had become tangled in debris. Another team went in with a second hose and after an hour and a half the crews thought they had the blaze under control and the main damage confined to the kitchen and bar areas.

But Sitzman said he kept firemen off the roof of the building even after they thought they had it under control because he feared the blaze might still be burning in the hidden areas.

"It was not a safe situation not knowing how long it had burned into the roof area," he explained, "I was afraid they (firemen on the roof) might hit a hot spot and we'd lose somebody."

His fears became reality at about 2 a.m. when flames erupted through the roof of the building and the structure was rocked by at least four explosions "that were quite radical." He said the explosions could have been caused by carbon dioxide or pails of grease."

"My philosophy is that people are more important than structures," said the chief. "When I saw the fire break through the roof, I was relieved that we had not sent any personnel on the roof."

Sieler watched as the business he had worked at since he was an 11-year-old dishwasher went up in flames. At one point he and long time waitress Kathy Varely leaned on each other as they watched flames shoot through the roof. He praised the work of the firefighters who kept the flames from spreading to businesses on either side of the restaurant.

Sieler's partner in the restaurant, Ken Kwapnioski was camping with his wife near Yankton when the fire broke out. Sieler said when it looked like the damage was going to be contained he decided not to interrupt Ken and Karen's outing, but when the fire erupted through the roof he put out the word for park rangers to track down his partner.

At 4 a.m., when a ranger woke Kwapnioski, he said he thought it was his partner playing one of his practical jokes. "It's no joke, sir," said the ranger. "We have it on the teletype." Kwapnioski said it took he and Karen only a few minutes to break camp and head home. They arrived in time to watch the mop-up.

The fire leaves 26 full and partime restaurant employees without jobs. Sieler and Kwapnioski were buying the business on contract from previous owners John Mohr and Marie Mohr. The Black Knight had been at the location since 1978.

"John and Marie gave me my first job," said Sieler. He said he and Kwapnioski were looking forward to having the business paid for in five more years. "There are a lot of people who relied on the Black Knight for a living," he added. "We had a great team." The restaurant had bookings for special dinners and reunion functions past the year 2000.

The sled zone

Area children are enjoying the two-week Winter Break from school this year and the six inches of snow that fell on Christmas day. Children of all ages could be found sledding down Sherman Street which is blocked off from traffic to allow for safety. Warmer temperatures have provided for excellent sledding conditions. The temperatures in Wayne climbed to more than 40 degrees on New Year's Day, the first time in several weeks. However, the forecast calls for colder temperatures and the possibility of freezing rain and snow.

Assignment surprises teacher

The following story was taken from the Feb. 1, 1990 issue of the Wayne Herald.

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

What began as a routine reading series, involving students at West Elementary in the Wayne schools turned out to be an assignment which really took fourth grade reading teacher JoAnn Benshoof by surprise.

Benshoof said her assignment that her students write an essay called predicting the outcomes, was just part of a writing assignment which had her pupils predicting what life would be like in the year

"Instead of giving them a topic, I wanted them to address the whole spectrum of topics they had listed in the book (teacher's guide)," Benshoof said, "They really didn't go to any resource but I let them do whatever they wanted to do."

As a result of the board assignment, the youth came with a collection of essays (which appear in today's Wayne Herald) dealing with issues ranging from AIDS and drugs to cleaning up the Alaska oil spill to college and better lawnmowers and hoverboards. One student even said his graduation present will be a '57 Chevy.

Benshoof said the students learn about many issues facing the nation through a news-magazine called The Weekly Reader. She said her students also watch the news on TV and try to keep up with current events as part of their general assignments and this, she thinks, is what enabled the youth to turn in such a good series of papers.

"They're really concerned about some things," Benshoof said, They're concerned about if there will still be drugs and smoking by the turn of the century. They're an usual set of kids because they're well disciplined and they, for the most part, come from a good strong family background."

Benshoof, who submitted 17 papers to the newspaper, said the essays surprised her somewhat at There will be a lot more towns in her students' depth of knowledge. She said she was surprised how adept the youth were at current

"I was surprised," she said. "I didn't expect this from my group of reading kids because they really knew what was going on."

"I thought these papers were something we could put in the paper so the community knows they're world-minded. It surprises me sometimes, what they say."

Sudents predict 2000

Students from West Elementary were recently assigned an essay about their predictions for the year 2000. The following is the compilation of articles the fourth grade students wrote.

I think that we will have a lot of new things. The towns will grow much bigger than they are today. There will be more bigger buildings in the towns. There will be country with no drugs in it because and no smoking. There would be more kids and more schools. There would be more teachers teaching in school. There would be lots more books and more birthdays to celebrate. There will be more people to play with.

Mrs. Benshoof's reading class When the year 2000 comes I think that there might be more drugs and I think that there will be no more animals. I think that women will be doing jobs that men easier ways of getting to places do. I think that people will be living faster. We could have flying cars, a in more places. I think people will be learning more about dinosaurs. they are not safe for kids or adults I think people will be learning more about the face of the earth. Jody Campbell

In the year 2000 I predict that I'll go to college. The other thing that I predict is that I will be a lot smarter than I am right now. I predict that I won't be smoking or taking drugs. I hope it will be a drug free community. I also hope that I will graduate from college. I predict that my graduation present will be a '57 Chevy. I predict that I'll have fun in the year 2000.

Eric Hefti I think that in the year 2000 that there will be no more wars, drugs, child abuse or killing animals. There will probably be new buildings, cars that use water and policemen and women that if you ask them a question, they will answer with a question.

There will probably be no more pollution and more bikes. Comic books that will be with types that the comic book will play in one of

For most, the auto body repair process is an unfamiliar one - one that occurs, on average, only once every 7 years. And there's a lot at stake: A car is not only one of the most expensive assets owned in many households, it's also integral to most familles' daily routines.

With so much riding on the decision, it's no wonder that most people look to a qualified resource - a recommendation from a friend, family member or insurance agent. Church provides home for museum Theophilus Evangelical Church is home to the Winside Museum where church artifacts as well as area artifacts are being preserved. People are welcome to stop in and get a glimpse of the past and reminisce.

Wayne County Museum helps preserve history

In 1953 Dorothy Huse a new filling station going up in used as a play room, Nyberg met with the Wayne county board to discuss the location for a county museum. At that time, the Wayne County Courthouse was suggested.

After consulting with a number of people, this request was granted and the project completed by April of 1954. Mrs. Jessie Austin Reynolds was appointed recorder for the museum. A mural on the south wall of the room was painted by Rodney Love in memory of his father, E.R. Love.

The first relics for the museum were presented by Mrs. H.H. Haun on July 20, 1953.

By April of 1958, a total of 786 antiques had been collected and recorded and the room in the courthouse was overcrowded. The historical group discussed many possibilities for a new museum, finally deciding on a site on Highway 35 east of Wayne in 1968 when Mrs. Mable Sorensen donated 2.1

The first couple, August Wittler and Minnie Vahlkamp were married at the church.

In the spring of 1891, the, congregation joined Evangelical Synod of North America. In 1894, there was a resolution to buy land for the cemetery. On Nov. 7, 1897, the new church building was dedicated with Rev. V. Luterman delivering the sermon. At that time a new organ was purchased for $98. In February, 1898 the choir was organized and a 575 pound bell was dedicated. The parsonage was built in 1902 and the church received a new addition and remodeling.

In 1926, English language was used in teaching Sunday School and catechism instead of German before. Rev. A. Jahnke introduced the English language into his services starting with every four weeks and then every other Sunday. In 1934, the entire church was renovated and wired for electricity with lights installed in the church and parsonage in 1938;

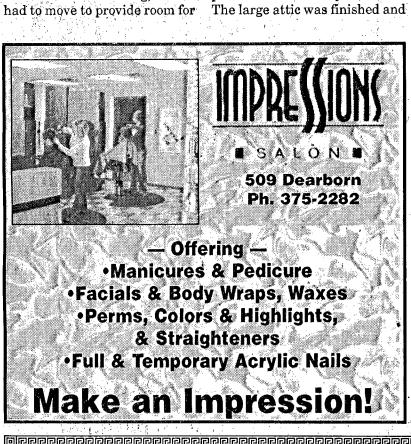

In 1938, both the first 50year confirmation reunion and the Golden Jubilee were held.

The altar was purchased by the Ladies Aid for $270 in 1943 and the electronic organ was purchased in 1953 (another organ was bought in 1980). In 1955, the church merged with the Reformed Church. On Sept. 1. 1963, the church celebrated its Diamond Jubilee.

Rev. Gail Axen of Stanton came to serve the Theophilus United Church of Christ in October, 1979 until its closing with the last services held June 7, 1987.

From June-October, 1986, there was a proposal to move the church into Winside to be used as a museum and in October it was decided to give the church and all its contents to the Wayne County Historical Society so history could be preserved and the community could have the opportunity to see the local artifacts and share in the memories.

C.W. Gurney owned 30 acres of nursery stock two miles east and one mile south of town, providing gardeners with trees, plants and other garden supplies.

In August of 1913 the first Dixon before 10 p.m. the lights blinked County Fair, with E. J. Hughes as twice indicating there would be a secretary, was held at the east edge of town.

One mile east of Concord, a oped on 320 acres of land donated in 1955 by C.D. Haskell for this purpose. In recent years, the Northeast Nebraska Research and Extension office has moved to Norfolk and the site at Concord is known as the Haskell Agricultural Laboratory. Its many activities including 4-H and extension work have been a great boon to the community.

The Concord Fire Department was established in 1930 and in July of 1931 the department was divided up into two companies, hose cart Co. No. 1 and chemical Co. No. 2. The Concord Volunteer Fire Department operated under a very small budget, with money raised by a bingo stand at the fair and by putting on plays for the public's enjoyment. Also, a small fee, 50¢ was assessed to each member of the department.

The village of Concord observed its centennial in 1883 by noting the many obstacles that had been overcome in the previous century and with determination to meet the future in the same way.

As the railroads received land grants from the government, the town of Dixon came into existence.

On May 16, 1890, the town of Dixon was filed for record by the Pacific Town Site Company. Streets and alleys on the plat were dedicated and granted for use.

An early map of Dixon townsite showed a hotel, a bank, a newspaper and a livery stable. By 1893, a Nebraska Gazetteer listed 26 businesses. By 1895 the town also included three churches.

During its early history, the railroad played an important role in the history of the town. At first, passenger trains ran every day, then, later on, every day except Sunday. Freight trains ran erry every day, either east or westbound. They were switched at the elevators and livestock loaded from the stockyards to be shipped to markets in Sioux City or even as far away as Chicago.

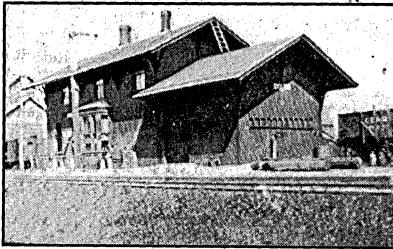

On Aug. 6, 1909 a fire destroyed the whole east end of the north side of Main Street in Dixon. Six buildings were consumed. The fire started from an unknown cause in the O'Flaherty warehouse, which was vacant.

The first mail to this area was delivered by the stage coach which ran from near Omaha to Niobrara. Rural carrier service began in 1902 and was often difficult because of the roads.

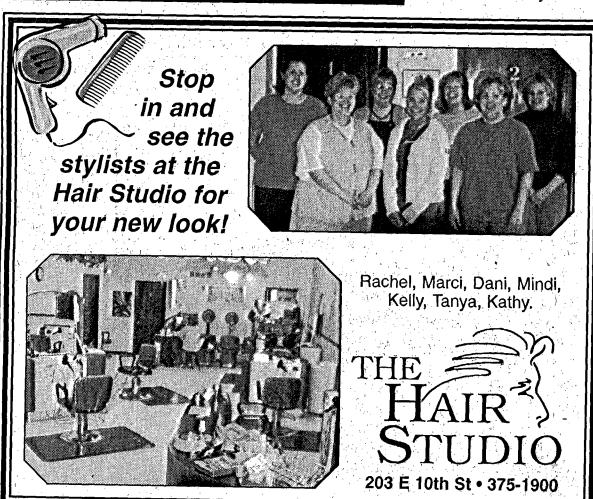

Electricity came to the town around 1918, a 110 volt DC, with a battery backup when the generator wasn't running. However, the batteries didn't have the capacity to provide more than a very dim light. About dusk every evening, the power plant was started and would run through the evening. Several times a week power would be furnished in the afternoons housewives could iron and the few

As the roads were gradually improved, the need for the railroad decreased. As larger and more powerful farm machinery arrived, farm acreage grew in size and numerous farmsteads around the town disappeared. The better roads and transportation found farmers and townspeople patronizing supermarkets and chain stores in Sioux City or other distant places. The population of Dixon decreased to 225 by 1941 and steadily dwindled as the years passed.

Hoskins

During the period from 1869-1872, a group of pioneers settled in the southwest of what is now Wayne County.

These families of German descent came from Wisconsin and Germany to establish homes in the new region.

Frank Puls was probably the first settler in the area, as he arrived in 1869. He first named the settlement Donop.

Pioneers in the community traveled to Wisner for provisions. The trip required two days and was difficult, as there were no roads or bridges. Ponca, Omaha and Pawnee Indians used to camp around the settlements. They were harm. A few Indians did odd jobs, but mostly, they begged for food.

Most of the settlers established their residences on homesteads in Wayne County. Many homes and barns were made of sod and the floors were covered with fine sand hauled from the creek beds. During this time, the settlers' principal crops were wheat, corn and oats.

By 1881 the railroad extended from Emerson to Norfolk. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, a division of the Northwestern, began building from the east and the Union Pacific began a line from Norfolk eastward. By March the crews had reached Hoskins.

The present site of Hoskins was chosen by Clarissa Hoskins, a civil engineer for the Peavey Elevator company which bought land and, established towns when the railroad was being built.

In January of 1899 a meeting was called to consider incorporation. In Feb. 7, 1899 the town was incorporated and the first election held in the village on April 1, 1899.

A fire on Christmas Eve in 1945 very sociable and did not cause prompted the people of Hoskins to make plans to purchase a fire truck for the town and the rural district. Enough money was raised and in 1946, the first fire truck was purchased. Around 1987, Woodland Park erected a steel building to store some of the equipment and to provide faster response time to that area. At the present time, the department has one tanker truck and one ambulance housed at century.

Woodland Park and one equipment ban, one ambulance and two pumper trucks housed in Hoskins.

A number of businesses have prospered in Hoskins throughout it 100 year history. They included a meat market, two banks, three general merchandise stores, a hotel, two implement dealers.

Sports have played an important part in the history of Hoskins. In the 1930's the town went to the State Tournament twice and in ne tournament held in Hoskins, came in second. In 1935 the Hoskins Kittenball Association was formed and remained in existence until breaking up during World War II.

Softball began again in Hoskins in 1957 when Adolph Bruggeman donated land for a playing field south of town. Since that time, both slow and fast pitch softball have been played with a number of teams traveling to state and national competition.

The village of Hoskins currently has a number of businesses and industries helping to ensure the community's success into the 21st

Bakefield

Wakefield was incorporated in 1883 with more than 200 inhabitants. That number grew to 1,100 by 1920 and has remained somewhat consistent since that time.

Philo Graves, the townsite proprietor, and George W. White, manager of the flour mills and a leading businessman, were the 'town fathers.'

The town was built on land given by Philo Graves. He also helped all the churches in town build their buildings, donated land and helped lay out the cemetery, built the first school house, built and donated Wakefield's library in memory of his son and gave the town its city park. The walnut trees were planted and cared for by Mr. Graves.

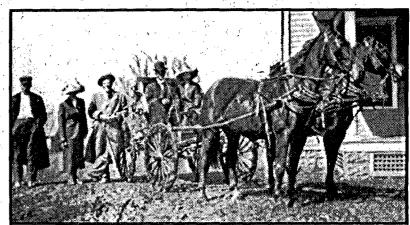

Among the highlights of Wakefield's history is the fact that daily temperature and precipitation records have been recorded since 1894. A reading of 116 degrees on July 17, 1936 and a reading of 41 degrees below zero on Jan. 12, 1941 resulted in a temperature range of 157 for the town of Wakefield.

One of the greatest setbacks to the prosperity of Wakefield was the fact that two banks were lost in the late 1920's. The Security State Bank went broke in 1927, followed by the Farmers National Bank in 1928.

. In 1920 the town was home to five doctors, two lumber yards, a couple of automobile agencies and two farm implement dealers, just during the winter of 1913 and 1914. Before this fire, there were five elevators in Wakefield.

The mill area was also the recreation area for the town. The old swimming hole was there, as well as boating and skating. In certain winters, ice was shipped out in car load lost from Logan Creek above the mill.

The Postmaster General estab-

to name a few.

In 1921 Main Street was paved, but a hard surface road in and out of town was not completed until 1949.

The Wakefield school system has maintained high standards. Through 1905 the school had only 10 grades. At that time, the 11th and 12 grades were added. The present school school was constructed in 1977 and within the past several years, additional space was added as the school population continues to grow.

In the early days of the community, one of the busiest locations was the mill area, which included a mill and two elevators and a livestock buying yard. The mill shipped out flour in car load lots. The mill and one elevator burned lished a post office by the name of Wakefield in the county of Dixon, State of Nebraska on Oct. 24, 1881 and appointed John T. Marriott as postmaster. Two rural routes were started in 1902 and a third added in 1904.

The town of Wakefield has been noted for its baseball and has hosted a number of district and state tournaments throughout the years.

A major employer of the community, M.G. Waldbaums, celebrated its 50th anniversary with a parade, omelet feed and numerous other activities. The firm, and one of its founders, Daniel Gardener, have contributed to numerous projects, including those in area towns, in recent

Laurel

The town of Laurel, located in the south part of Cedar County, owes its existence to the early pioneers who bravely set out to settle in the wide open spaces.

Pioneer families arrived as early as 1872. Due to several grasshopper infestations, early settlers decided to raise stock rather than Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad (M & O) arrived in the southern part of Cedar County in 1884. In 1890 the Pacific Short Line tracks were completed, the Laurel Townsite Company was promoting the sale of lots in Laurel and, in the first part of 1892, the Laurel Post Office was established.

The town was named for Laura Martin, daughter of W.M. Martin, who owned the land on which the town was established. The town began attracting new business and appealing to farmers who had been in the area before the town was platted.

The two railroads offered farmers a great advantage on competitive freight rates and allowed buyers to offer higher prices for the farmers' products than other towns.

By the spring of 1893, the new town was ready to incorporate. It had grown from a population of 75 in April of 1892 to over 200 on May 15, 1893, the date of incorporation.

In 1900, 12 buildings were destroyed that burned a city block

Two blizzards in early 1909 stopped trains, downed windmills and caused many cattle and hogs to freeze to death. In 1914 school was closed for two and one-half weeks due to scarlet fever.

Two banks, the Laurel National Bank (1927) and State National Bank of Laurel (1928) closed after patrons withdrew their money after losing confidence in them. A third bank, The Security National Bank, opened in 1928.

A market report from 1933 indicated that corn was 10¢ per bushel; oats, 8¢ per bushel and eggs, 22¢ per dozen.

Binside

On Oct. 7, 1890, the town of Winside was incorporated. About 10 years prior to that, Winside's history actually began with the name of Northside.

Northside was about three miles west and one south of Winside's present location. The location of Northside was chosen by those connected with the railroad but because of problems with landowners, the railroad crew moved several businesses east in the fall of 1885. The lumberyard remained for a short time but soon moved too, leaving Northside empty.

The new town plat was registered on June 14, 1886 as Winside. A named chosen by Dr. Crawford because the new site would eventually "win" over the old town of Northside.

In 1866, lots were auctioned off, the first house in town and the railroad depot were built.

The first fire in Winside was on April 27, 1889, destroying several businesses. Something good happening in 1889 was the donation of land for the city park by J.T. Bressler. By 1890, there were 20 businesses and a population of 130. By 1900, there were 400 people.

A gas lighting and heating system was installed in 1909 at a cost of $4,000 by selling bonds. Gas prices and other problems increased bringing an end to gas lighting and by 1912 there was electricity in Winside. With the electric plant, there were a number of owners through the years and in 1967, Wayne County Public Power began to supply power to Winside.

Sewer and street pavement were some have fairly recent beginthe next improvements with a new sewer system installed in 1921. Main street was paved and storm sewers added in 1925. All of the streets were paved in 1975.

The first Old Settlers Reunion was held in 1915:

Because of the Great Depression in the 30s, a CCC Camp through the Federal Government was set up in the western part of town in 1939 where hundreds of young men worked until it closed on Oct.

nings. Thousands attended the 75th anniversary of Winside in 1965. In 1967, the train depot was torn down and the tracks were torn out in the 1970s.

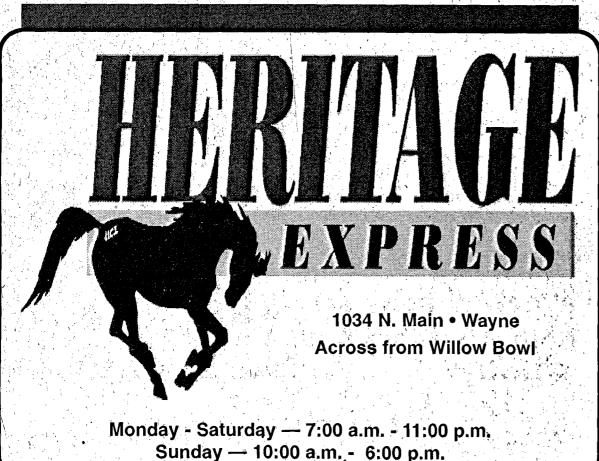

Winside had its Centennial in 1990.

Into the year 2002, there are a number of businesses, churches, and the Winside Public School helping to ensure the town as a viable part of the community.
