The Allen Music Department presented Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph & the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat" to the public last week.

The group performed to a packed gym at one afternoon matinee and three evening shows. "Joseph" was unlike any musical Allen has ever attempted in the past. There were no speaking parts-- the whole show consisted entirey of songs. There were nine different kinds of music included in the production such as jazz, rap, country, 50's rock, speak easy, french art song, calypso, and psychedelic rock.

It was a huge undertaking for Richard Lacy and his Music Department of 46 high school choir members. Mr. Lacy does an excellent job of directing and even had the younger children take part in the musi-

An Easter Egg Hunt was held at the Wayne Senior Center with children from Rainbow World in Wayne entertaining the seniors with songs and finger plays. Winside IT students compete

By Dianne Jaeger

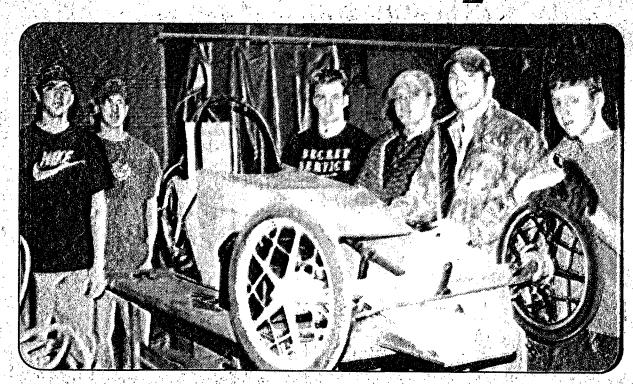

Winside Correspondent The Winside Industrial Technology students in one of instructor Tom Meyers classes are participating in the Omaha Public Power District 2002 Power Drive Competition.

The program has approximately 50 schools across the state designing and building powered vehicles. These vehicles are not toys! The students must design the vehicles to compete in several different competitions including maneuverability, braking and an endurance competition. They also have to keep a record of their progress as well as all expenses used to build the vehicle.

The OPPD Power Drive challenges students to do the following, 1) Apply class lessons in a real-world situation to produce a light-electric vehicle 2) Design with other students in teams to build the vehicle from the ground up 3) Solve any problems that may arise 4) Compete against other schools 5) Promote the efforts of the community to gain support 6) Have fun in the

Wayne Red Cross gets new sponsor

Rick Endicott is pictured with Gary Van Meter from Mines Jewelers. Gary was one of the first callers last Wednesday morning, pledging $250 and becoming a new Sponsor of the Wayne County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Along with this donation, though, Rick had to add 25 layers of clothing which was quite challenging as everyone searched for items that could be added to his already welllayered body. But, this also meant the chapter raised more money as all those additional layers had to be removed.

We should support Catholic church

Dear Editor,

There is no one organization or institution that has done so much good for humanity around the world than the Catholic Church.

They have built churches, schools, orphanages and hospitals and have sheltered (taken in the homeless), fed the hungry and brought people to Christ. Before we render them helpless in our frenzy, we must ask ourselves who will step in to do the many good works being done throughout the world.

If we are so outraged (as we rightly should be) over the injustice done to our children in this aspect, we should also be just as outraged at the other, injustices that are hurting our children in the physical, moral and spiritual areas. If we all vented as much outrage at these injustices as well, think of the benefits that could be accomplished for our children.

This problem should be approached like any other organization that has a few bad apples. Compare this situation to a couple bad cops in a police department. Would we destroy the whole department or go in and ferret out the bad apples and make the department better?

If Bishops were made to report to the police immediately any reports of abuse, then an independent investigation could be made. If an offending priest has his day in court and found guilty, then the problem has been dealt with in a timely manner protecting chil-

In conclusion, all Christians should rally and support the Catholic Church in its efforts to rid the church of a few bad apples and pray for the blessed future.

Budget cutting continues

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent

Nebraska Press Association The current round of cuts in the state budget could ultimately serve a variety of purposes. For obvious reasons, government has long been the chief proving ground for "the law of uninconsequences." tended Government is also subject to something akin to Darwin's law of natural selection - that is, the strong have a way of adjusting and surviving.

The proof of both these theories can be seen when spending on a program is adjusted - whether increased or reduced - and it is later realized that there were unanticipated results.

The result most feared by bureaucrats and/or program beneficiaries: Spending on a project is drastically reduced, and no one notices. Not only does the roof not fall in, the windows don't even rattle. Constituents don't complain to lawmakers. Washington doesn't threaten to withhold federal dollars. No persuasive analysis can be drawn up, showing that, somehow, Nebraska is the worse for having reduced or abandoned the pro-

If a budget reduction triggers a provable loss in productivity, something that shows a short-term savings will mean a long-term expense, the worth of a program may be better established in the minds of policymakers.

Town Hall was a huge success

Nearly 100 people from all over Wayne County attended a Town

Hall style meeting at the Wayne Middle School last Thursday evening. The Wayne Herald and KTCH hosted the meeting. A group consisting of Superintendent of Laurel-Concord Schools, Dan

Hoesing and several other community leaders, were present for the meeting. They focused on how to accomplish goals though cooperatogether and maximizing their resources to achieve a common goal.

Many things are going on here in Wayne now. The Community

Because state aid to schools represents nearly 25 percent of the state budget, I believe it is item that has to share some of the burden regarding cuts.

School districts have had fair warning that their state aid could be reduced. School districts don't have to respond by raising property taxes; they have the option of reducing their spending.

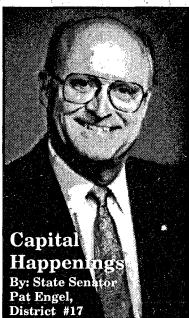

Another bill comprising the budget package was LB 946, which contained a proposal by Gov. Mike Johanns to place a surcharge on business tax incentivès available under three economic development programs. The bill would generate $24.5 million in revenue.

Supporters of LB 946 said business needed to contribute its fair share to solving the state's financial woes. Opponents argued that the state's credibility would be damaged if the rules for the economic to delay consideration of the bill until the end of the session, which would effectively kill the bill. The motion to delay the bill prevailed on a vote of 25-15.

taxes, make further spending cuts or a combination of the two.

Time is running out in developing a budget plan. Under its rules, the Legislature must deliver a budget to the governor by April 3.

On a non-budget item, the Legislature debated LB 1236, which would make reforms in the operation of the State Fair Board. The bill gained first-round approval on a vote of 32-0.

The State Fair Board would remain a private corporation under the bill. The intent of the bill is to move the board toward greater private financial support, more openness, and improved sharing of information about the condition of the fairgrounds and the financial status of fair operations. The bill would reduce the size of the board from 29 to 11 members, with a limitation on terms in office. The board has been under scrutiny because of deteriorating fairgrounds facilities and declining fair attendance.

WSC rugby teams victorious

Wayne, State's men's and women's rugby teams (exhibition sports) took the field for the first time in history last weekend in Storm Lake, Iowa and the 'Cats came away with a sweep under coach Darrin Barner.

The women's team posted a 5-0 win over Winona State while the men posted a 10-5 win over the Storm Lake Albatross.

Mariah Murrey of Neligh scored on a 35-yard run to break a scoreless tie in the second half.

WSC used its scrum pack to slowly ruck and maul their offensive position off the right side base of the ruck pile.

scrumhalf Linne', Ourada of Prague and Steph Ngirchoimei of the Hawaiian Islands spun the ball hard to the left with long option pitches and hit Murrey on at full pace with a large hole in the defensive backline of Winona State.

Lewis Benton scored twice on runs of 50 and 70 yards. Corey DeJong of LeMars rambled 50 yards for a score.

Barner was elated with his team's debut peformance.

"I call our men's backfield cartoon characters because when they get the ball out in the open and have a set play it's like Willy Coyote trying to catch seven road runners. The men's backfield is not fast—they're sonic." WSC will host a rugby classic on Saturday, April 6 with WSC's men and women playing against Chadron State. The women will also play St. Olaf of Minnesota and the men will play a second game with Storm Lake.

Police investigate burglary at Geno's Steakhouse

Lt. Phil Shear of the Wayne Police Department was called to Geno's Steakhouse shortly after 7 a.m. on March 20 to investigate a burglary.

Likewayn suspects used force to

Unknown suspects used force to gain entry into the restaurant and once inside, took a cordless telephone, a Budwiser beer mirror and some blank checks from the business.

Police Chief Lance Webster said there are similarities in how the suspects got into Geno's and how they got into the Super Wash. It is possible that the same suspects were involved in both burglaries.

Preliminary investigation indicates these burglaries may be drugrelated but that theory has not been proven yet.

Spring fishing is just around the corner

It may not look like it in northeast South Dakota, but spring is just around the corner and that means that fishing should start to pick up shortly.

As the water temperatures start to warm, the walleyes will move up below the dams and into gravel areas in preparation for the spawn.

The move isn't something that happens all at once, as many of the smaller males moved early this winter.

The larger females will be the last to arrive and will hang in deeper water until water temperatures are optimum for the spawn.

Spawning begins in the spring when the water temperatures reach approximately 48 degrees, which is usually in May in the upper Midwest.

The smaller more aggressive males will continue to bite throughout the spawn. Fishing for the larger females is generally slow for about 10 days after the spawn as this is the recuperating

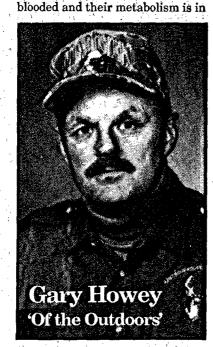

Generally after the spawning and recuperation period, walleyes will go on a feeding binge that can last up to a month.

The best walleye fishing happens when food supplies are at their lowest. The smaller fish from last year either have grown up or been eaten.

This is when the walleyes are on the prowl in the shallower water, usually 15 foot or less looking for their next meal.

Remember just because the walleyes are on a feeding doesn't mean that they will be dashing and darting here and there gobbling everything in sight.

Walleyes like all fish are cold direct relation to the water temperature, so their dashing and darting will be more of a slow motion dashing. Everything in the aquatic world will be moving at this speed, so your bait should be slowed down also.

Jigs or live bait rigs tipped with minnows are the ticket for walleyes at this time of year.

Jig fishermen use 1/8 to 1/4 ounce jigs when fishing shallow water or a lake where there isn't much current.

River fishermen and anglers that fish deeper water might want to go to a heavier 3/8 ounce jig so that they can fish vertically and keep their bait in contact with the bottom.

Live bait anglers using open face spinning gear should try and keep in contact with their line at all times as spring walleyes aren't exactly gobblers when it comes to taking the bait.

Fish with an open bail and have the line across your finger, when you detect a bite, simply drop the line off your finger and move the rod tip towards the fish. After a short count, a couple of seconds or so, reel up the slack line and set the hook.

Sauger, the walleye's smaller. cousin is notorious for grabbing the tail of the minnow or the tail of your grub and holding on all the way to the surface, only to spit out the bait when they reach the sur-

There are a couple of things that can be done to make sure that the sauger can't spit the hook,

One is a stinger or trailer hook that lies along the minnows back and hooks into the bait's tail. These can either be a single or treble hook, depending on the bottom conditions. Snaggy bottom, go with a single hook, clean bottom go with the treble.

Another thing that will help to hook the fish is to feed the fish line for a longer period of time! Instead of feeding line for a couple of seconds, make it 5 to 10 seconds. Many times the additional second or two will give the sauger enough time to get the bait and hook into his mouth before you set the hook.

I mentioned earlier that the walleyes will be in shallower water, usually 15 foot or less. In the summer months walleyes will move shallow in low light periods and back into deeper water as the sun starts to rise. During the spring, the low light angle of the sun rays doesn't really affect the walleye's sensitive eyes, so they will remain shallow throughout Locating fish is the key to catching fish! In the spring, you'll want to look for warmer water and these areas are usually on the north shoreline, as this is the part of the river or lake that gets the most sunshine.

Another spot to look for walleyes is areas where a creek or stream flows into the lake or river. The first reason these areas are productive is because these shallower creeks and rivers warm up more quickly and this warm water attracts the fish.

Northern exposed rocky areas are also a good bet as the suns rays warm the rocks and retain the heat throughout the day and into the night. These warm areas attract both the walleye and the critters that they feed on.

Spring fishing may be a little slow, some of the fish you'll catch will generally be decent fish and there's no better way to spend a nice warm day than by spending a few hours fishing and enjoying the great outdoors.

Herbs for Health Saw Palmetto for an Enlarged Prostate

Problems related to an enlarged prostate (called BPH or benign ostatic hyperplasia) most often occur in men after age 45 lowever, symptoms typically do not appear until age 60 or later. Jp to 40 percent of men aged 70 years and older have symploms that include an urge to urinate and difficulty emptying the bladder completely. If BPH is allowed to continue without treatment bladder infection and possibly kidney damage can occur. Prescription medicines used to treat BPH symptoms include inasteride (Proscar) and terazosin (Hytrin).

According to a recent report in The Journal of the American Medical Association, an extract from the saw palmetto plant may provide a safe and effective alternative to treating BPH. Dr. Timothy Wilt and colleagues reviewed 18 carefully controlled, with BPH. Side effects from the herb were mild as compared with prescriptions medicines. They concluded that saw palmetto wa effective in improving BPH symptoms and the flow of urine.

Learning about wellness

Over 650 students, teachers, staff members and members of the Wayne community attended the Wayne State College Wellness Fair last week. Booths were provided by a number of area businesses and several Wayne State classes. Those attending could get blood pressure, blood sugar and body fat tested, sample healthy foods and get a minimassage. In addition, a number of door prizes were given away at the event and demonstrations of Sumo wrestling were conducted as members of the Wayne State faculty and staff "wrestled."

City emergency sirens to be tested

The Wayne Police Department communications personnel test the city's emergency management warning sirens on the first Monday of each month at 10 a.m.

The Wayne warning sirens are nearly 20 years of age. Police Chief Lance Webster said it is very important to make sure they are in proper working order.

In addition to the monthly tests personnel from the Wayne Electric Production Department routinely check and service the siren equipment.

The siren sounds most likely to be heard by the citizens of Wayne are the Fire Department Alert Siren which is a rising and falling tone commonly called a wail siren. The Tornado Alert Siren is a continuous pitch tone. When the Tornado Alert Siren sounds, residents should take cover. This siren is used to warn of an imminent strike by a tornado on the city.

For more information on what to do during a tornado alert, residents can go to the City of Wayne web page www.waynene.org/public-safety and click on the emergency management box.

It's time to 'spring clean' highways

The week of April 13 through April 20 has been designated as the 12th Annual "Great Nebraska Trash-Off," Sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Roads, this event gives volunteers an ideal opportunity to do some "spring cleaning" of their adopted highway areas.

Organizations wanting to participate in the April 13-20 Trash -Off should contact the Nebraska Department of Roads office in their area by April 3 to reserve the traffic warning signs, orange litter bags and safety vests.

Last year approximately 4,500 volunteers participated in the Trash-Off and over 1,500 miles of highway right-of-way became litter-free. This dedication of Adopt-A-Highway volunteers in preserving Nebraska's natural resources has made the program a huge success in Nebraska,

While this designated week is a great time for groups to conduct their clean-up activities, 100 percent participation is not always possible. The Department of Roads welcomes citizen and group litter pickup efforts anytime during the year.

UNORDERED MERCHANDISE IN THE MAIL

Consider It A Free Gift

Thousands of people receive unordered merchandise in the mail each year. Fortunately, if you are the recipient of an unordered package, you do not have to pay for the merchandise. Federal laws prohibit mailing unordered merchandise to consumers and then demanding payment.

Unfortunately, some less than reputable companies may send unordered merchandise and then attempt to collect from you. If you receive unordered merchandise in the mail, you may keep the shipment and consider it a "free

Here are answers to some of the frequently asked questions we get from consumers who have received unordered merchandise:

Q. If I receive merchandise in the mail that I did not order, am I obligated to pay for the item? Am I required to return the merchandise at my own expense?

A. "No" to both parts. If you are sent books, address labels, articles of clothing or anything else through the mail that you did not order, you have a right to keep the merchandise and consider it a "free gift".

Q. Am I obligated to notify the sender if I keep the unordered merchandise?

A. You have no obligation to notify the sender of your intention to keep the shipment as a free gift. However, your letter may discourage the sender from billing you for the merchandise or it may help to clear up an honest error. If you receive billing notices for the unordered merchandise, or if the sender threatens to contact a collection agency, you may want to write a letter to the company stating that you did not order the item and have a right to keep the merchandise as a free gift. You may also consider filing a complaint with our

Q. I believe the unordered merchandise I received was the result of an honest shipping error. What should I do?

A. If you believe the package you received was the result of an error, write to the business and offer to return the merchandise. Ask the business to arrange for the pick-up of the package or to send a pre-paid shipping label. Specify a reasonable amount of time for the merchant to comply with your offer. After that time has expired, you reserve the right to keep the merchandise or to dispose of it as you see fit.

Q. If I recognize that a package is not something I ordered, may I simply hand it back to the postal worker?

A. Yes, if the package and the envelope on the box have not been opened, write "REFUSED" on the package, and give it to the postal worker.

Q. Is there anything I can do to prevent unordered merchandise from

A. Read the fine print carefully when ordering "free" or "trial" offers or when filling out a sweepstakes entry. You may find that by filling out the form you are authorizing the business to enter you into their "club" with regular purchasing obligations.

Overfilling prevention devices become mandatory

The propane industry's ongoing commitment to providing consumers with the most effective ways to safely fill propane cylinders has led to the development of the Overfilling Prevention Device

States across the county, including Nebraska, have adopted National Fire Protection Association regulations requiring that all small propane cylinders (4-40 lbs.) be equipped with an OPD by April 1, 2002.

"The Overfilling Prevention Device is another innovation from the propane industry that allows consumers to enjoy the many exceptional uses of propane in a safe, reliable manner," says Dave Zach of Zach Propane Service, Inc. in Wayne.

When an OPD-equipped cylinder is being filled, a valve within the cylinder closes when the designated liquid capacity of propane is reached. However, an OPD is a safety enhancement, not a primary filling device.

Propane cylinders manufactured after October 1998 already contains OPDs and are available in all 50 states. The OPD device is easily recognized by a unique triangular hand wheel that is used to open the valve on propane cylinders. If a cylinder does not contain a triangular hand wheel, it is obsolete and cannot be refilled.

Obsolete propane cylinders should never be abandoned of thrown in the trash. Local propane marketers should be contacted for proper disposal information. "Obtaining an OPD-equipped an OPD device is a quick and easy, process," according to Zach. The OPD device will provide consumers with additional peace

Celebrate Safe!

In Nebraska, April and May are busy months for high school students and their families. Special events such as awards ceremonies, proms and graduations provide opportunities to celebrate the hard work and accomplishments of these young people. Unfortunately, at times these celebrations are marred by tragedy due to the use of alcohol or another drug.

Families have a powerful influence over a young person's decisions about whether or not to use alcohol. In fact, parent's disapproval is the key reason children give for not using alcohol. Research suggests that children are less likely to drink when their parents are involved in their lives and when both parents and children report feeling close to each other. (Hawkins, J.D., et al. 1997).

Parental expectations are a strong influence over youth high-risk behavior. A strong no-use message by parents is an important deterrent to underage use of alcohol. Adolescents drink less and have fewer alcohol-related problems when their parents discipline them consistently and set clear expectations about drinking. (Hawkins, J.D., et al 1997).

"Do as I say, not as I do," is a dangerous message to promote concerning alcohol use. Parents' drinking behaviors and favorable attitudes about drinking have been associated with adolescents' initiating and continuing alcohol use. (Andrews, J.A., et al 1993).

While alcohol is legal for adults, it is illegal in all 50 states for those under the age of 21. Expecting young people to be law-abiding citizens is a part of good parenting.

This year, as families plan celebrations to acknowledge the accomplishments of our area youth, parents and the community-atlarge can encourage safe, healthy, law-abiding behavior by establishing clear, no-use expectations for our young people. Doing so will help to ensure a safe, healthy future for these young, promising community citizens.

Having high expectations and setting clear boundaries is an important part of building a healthy community, and everyone in the community plays a part in providing that safe, healthy environment not only for our children, but for future generations to come.

In the most common type of stroke a blood clot or some other form of blockage reduces blood flow to the brain. According to a new study reported in the medical journal Stroke, persons who took a single aspirin tablet during the week before they had such a stroke lowered their risk of severe strokerelated damage - including loss of speech or speech difficulty and paralysis. In the study of more than 1,200 persons it was found that about 50% of aspirin users had mild strokes, and only about 10% had severe strokes, however 43% of individuals who did not use aspirin had mild strokes, and 15% had severe strokes.

Nebraska Farmers Provide Financial Snapshot

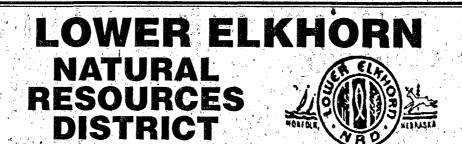

Nebraska farmers and ranchers will have the opportunity to "let their voice be heard" by participating in the 2001 Agricultural Resource Management Study. This annual national study, being conducted by the USDA's National Agricultural Resource Statistics Service, provides vital statistics about the economic condition of production agriculture. Most importantly, these statistics are used by members of the agricultural community and their legislators when making important decisions that impact the future of America's farmers and ranchers.

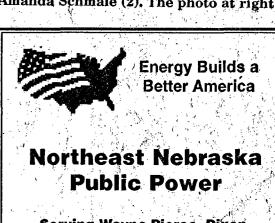

Data collected will present the only objective, true picture of the financial well-being of Nebraska farm operators and will be the last financial picture presented to Congress as they work on the next Farm Bill. These data are also a resource when policymakers determine Federal assistance. For example, in 2000, direct government payments totaled 1.4 billion dollars to Nebraska farmers and ranchers,

"Reliable accurate descriptions of the current economic health of Nebraska's farms and ranches are crucial," said William Hamlin, director of the agency's state office in Lincoln, "especially when policymakers, farm organizations, analysts, local USDA agents, farm suppliers, lenders, and other make decisions that affect growers." "Representatives from the USDA's Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service office will be contacting selected operations between February 15 and March 31," Hamlin said.

Agricultural producers chosen to participate in these surveys will each represent 100 fellow producers, and will therefore make an important contribution to the overall welfare of America's farmers and ranchers. All individual data collected are held strictly confidential by law (Title 7, U.S. Code). Only combined data are published.

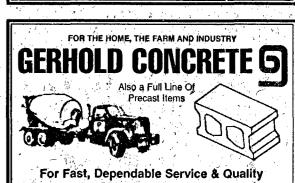

Farm Production Expenditures will be released July 18, 2002. For a copy of the completed report or to obtain other agricultural statistics, visit the National Agricultural Statistics Service website at www.usda.gov/nass/ or call (402) 437-5541.

IS YOUR CYLINDER SAFE?

Nebraska State Law requires beginning April 1, 2002 all propane cylinders with a 4-40 lb. capacity must be equipped with an Overfill Prevention Device (OPD). This includes cylinders used for grilling and camping. An OPD is a safety feature that helps prevent cylinders from being overfilled. Check your propane cylinder to ensure it can be filled after April 1. An OPD can be identified by a 3-pointed handwheel with "OPD" stamped on it. Non-OPD cylinders cannot be filled after April 1. Obsolete propane cylinders should never be abandoned or thrown in the trash. Contact your local propane dealer for OPD retrofits or OPDequipped cylinders and proper disposal.

that is "discretionary" - meaning they can spend it as they choose also affects spending patterns.

Some teens become accustomed to spending their earned money or luxury items or wants. Problems then may arise in early adulthood, when they cannot afford to continue this level of living. It may be tough for teens who are used to having brand-name clothing or the best electronics to manage necessary expenses on a starting salaryunless they are willing to adjust their standards by purchasing generic clothing, for example.

While societal influences are strong, research shows that the family is the primary environment for learning about money. Children learn both the facts and the emotional side of finances from their families. Through their own habits, parents model financial behavior to their children. Parents also convey their attitudes and beliefs about money through discussion or lack of discussion abut finances.

Allen students attend leaders conference at Aurora in March

Kelli Rastede and Aaron Smith of Allen were selected by the Dixon County Farm Bureau to attend the 2002 Nebraska Future Leaders Conference held March 17-19 at the Leadership Center in Aurora.

There were 115 students from across Nebraska attending the conference.

Kelli, 16, is the daughter of Allan and Marcia Rastede and is a sophomore at Allen High School. Aaron, 16, is the son of Rick and Joy Smith and is also a sophomore at Allen High School.

The conference is sponsored by Nebraska Farm Bureau's Education Promotion and Committee, with cooperation from County Farm Bureaus, who identify local students with an interest in citizenship and leadership, Conference workshops focused on leadership skills, personal responsibilities and personal motivation.

Participants learned how personality differences affect leadership styles from Nancy Eberle of Bradshaw, a Nebraska Farm Bureau board members. Understanding how other personality "types" approach the same issue will help the students be more effective leaders, she said. In a related session, consultant Michelle Roggash talked about habits for "Creating Fit Leaders." Leaders need high levels of physical, spiritual and intellectual fitness, she said, and suggested ways to develop personal discipline in these areas.

The students visited Lincoln on March 18 for meetings at the State Capitol, the Governor's residence and Memorial Stadium. Gov. Mike Johanns discussed citizenship with the students and encouraged them to study public issues and become involved in the political process. Conference participants met with staff members in the State Treasurer's office and toured the statehouse and residence.

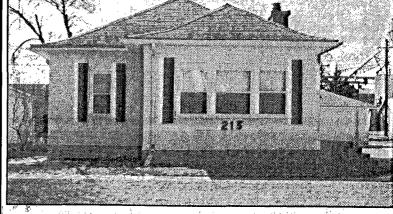

The students visited Memorial Stadium, did "the tunnel walk" and toured the Devaney Center. Officials and student athletes encouraged the high school students to set goals and develop plans to achieve those goals. Terry Pettit; coaches advocate and assistant to the UNL athletic director. spoke to the students about the importance of leadership in all areas of their lives.
