WSC graduate returns to Wayne

By Lisa Coble of Wayne State

Tom Schmadeke, a 1994 Wayne State College graduate, has returned to his alma mater (or at least close to it).

During the month of April, friends and former professors could find Schmadeke at the Wayne Mercy Medical Clinic and WSC Student Health.

Schmadeke is in his sixth semester at the University of Nebraska Medical Center pursuing a master's in Physician's Assistant Studies, As an integral part of the physician's assistant program, he must work at 15 different health clinics in onemonth intervals. Schmadeke's month at Mercy Medical Clinic provided him with autonomy, on-thejob training and much encouragement.

Physician's Assistant Gary West of Wayne took Schmadeke under his wing and oversaw the care he gave to a variety of patients.

"Gary was an expert teacher and is a very terrific health care professional. The city of Wayne, in particularly Wayne State, is very fortunate to have him," Schmadeke said. He added that West is the "best mentor and physician" he has met thus far in his eight completed rotations.

Tom Schmadeke

West, who has 25 years of experience in health care, has directly contributed to Schmadeke's goal of becoming a P.A. They met while Schmadeke was majoring in athletic training at WSC.

"Gary was one of the reasons I initially started thinking of a P.A. program even as far back as a decade ago," he said. "He provides the highest level of care to all of his patients. He is definitely someone I want to emulate."

Schmadeke's "job shadowing" day started at 8 a.m. Monday through Friday. He saw outpatients and inpatients and check charts and vitals at Mercy Medical Clinic and Providence Medical Center until 11 a.m., at which time he would walk over to WSC Student Health located in Providence Medical

There, he provided care for students with ailments ranging from athlete's foot to the flu, Schmadeke's biggest test at Mercy was managing numerous health care problems in the aging population who battle several illnesses such as diabetes, heart disease and arthritis in tandem, Before enrolling at UNMC in 1999, Schmadeke taught and practiced

Unclaimed properties in Wayne County total $16,684.64

Lorelee Byrd, state treasurer, was in Wayne recently to present a check for $69.96 to Dale Preston, representing Wayne Grain and Feed, She wants residents to know there is money available in Wayne County and would like to see more people and businesses receive what they are

The amount Wayne Grain and Feed received was a vendor check from Pitney Bowes, Inc. for a refund due to the business in the year 1997. The Pitney Bowes company did not have Wayne Grain and Feed's correct address so could not send the refund to them. Thus, they turned it amount over to the state in the year 2001.

Unclaimed property is not taxes. The most common examples of unclaimed property include: *Health claim payments, *Dividends, *Telephone deposits, *Life Insurance proceeds, *Vendor payments, *Wages, *Bonds, *Utility *Stocks, deposits, *Miscellaneous outstanding checks *Safety deposit boxes, *Gift certificates.

Generally, property unclaimed because checks aren't cashed or there is no activity with an account. For example, if you had a savings account and did not withdraw or deposit any money in it for five years, the bank would, after attempting to contact you, remit that money to the State Treasurer. It would then become the State Treasurer's responsibility to try to locate you.

Unclaimed property is turned over to the State Treasurer's Office every year by companies from across the country. Once you've had unclaimed property, chances are you will have it again--so keep checking for your name. All unclaimed properties are held forever, subject to claim by the rightful owner or heirs.

The unclaimed property list for Wayne County is as follows: (all are

Wayne State student killed

A 22-year old Columbus man, who was attending Wayne State College, was killed when his car and a semi-trailer truck collided on a Lincoln street early on April 26.

Lincoln Police Captain Jim Thoms said Jeremy Shank was killed when the car he was driving southbound in the wrong lane of Tenth Street collided head-on with an oncoming semi.

Lincoln police said Shank was not wearing a seat belt.

Police said the accident caused the fuel tank of the semi to rupture, resulting in a fuel spill which closed Tenth Street for several hours while hazardous materials crews performed a clean-up.

Shank was a senior at Wayne

State College where he was majoring in chemistry. He was involved in various college activities and found in today's Herald.

Tom Osborne makes visit to Wayne

Mentoring works. This was the Congressman Tom message Osborne brought to Wayne on Saturday.

Osborne spoke at a TeamMates fundraising event at Wayne State College which included a dinner, recognition of mentors and mentees in the Wayne school system and a silent auction of a number of items.

He said that during his 36 years of coaching Nebraska football, there were a number of changes.

"Kids are carrying more baggage today. The family structure is changing," he said. "One-third of the children born today are born' out-of-wedlock. Nearly one-half the children do not live with their biological parents."

He went on to say that many of these young people fill the gaps in their lives with the wrong things and are getting the wrong message from society.

"The message these kids are getting is that things will make you happy," Osborne said.

He also indicated that the drug problem, at one time confined to the east and west coast, has reached the rural midwest and in fact, methamphetamine use in rural areas is double that of cities. Osborne presented some solutions to the problems within our culture.

"The first of these is spiritual conversion. We must serve and honor God," he said.

Mentoring is second on a list of solutions. Osborne described the process by which the TeamMates program came into existence in Nebraska. In 1991, while still coaching at the University of Nebraska, Osborne asked members the Nebraska football team to become involved in mentoring relationships. That year, 22 players worked with 22 seventh and eighth grade boys in the Lincoln school system. The boys and their mentors got together to discuss goals and values.

Since that time, the program has grown to include both boys and girls in grades five through eleven. Currently there are 1,700 students in 44 communities benefiting from the mentor/ mentee relationship. "Mentoring is a relationship in which someone (the mentee) cares enough to be there," Osborne said. He said mentors provide a number of positive attributes to their mentees. These include commitment, affirmation and providing a vision for the future,

Osborne also explained that a mentoring program is a cost-effective way to help young people stay on track. He told his audience that it taked $25,000 per year to keep a prisoner in jail; $35,000 to complete a drug rehabilitation program and just $400 - $500 per year to have a mentor work with a stu-

Prior to Osborne's address, he presented certificates to the 40 mentors and mentees involved in the Wayne TeamMates Program.

WSC rugby gals fall

In their last home game on the year, the Wayne State Rugby Football Club Women took on the University of Nebraska women last Thursday night in a game that was a battle until the final whistle before WSC lost, 12-3.

With Wayne States Rugby Women going for their 7th straight win, a phone call to test their athleticism against the Huskers was voted on by the team..

The Huskers did qualify for the National playoffs this year and was defeated by Air Force in early April and their season was over until the game was schedule with WSC. Air Force now sits in the Final 4 of the USA Collegiate Rugby Finals this weekend.

In a offensive game plan that was used to go against the smaller Husker scrum-pack, WSC went to the power game and short yardage runs from the start of the game. WSC moved the ball down the field early and missed a 3-point scoring opportunity slide through their fingers when an early field goal attempt went wide.

The Huskers got on the board late in the first half with a controversial touchdown when the Husker running back was tackled just short of the goal line but was able to slide over the goal line with her momentum and was awarded the touchdown to give the Huskers the 7-0 lead at the halftime.

Wayne State ruggers came back in the second half and moved the ball down the field to tack on 3 points from a field goal to make it

WSC proved they had a great defense when Nebraska had the ball on the 10-yard line for 15 straight minutes and did not score with 23 straight scoring attempts.

WSC finally did get a loose ball that popped out of a loose ruck pile and kicked the ball to mid field and set up for a game winning attempt. With two minutes remaining in the game and needing 50 yards for a game winning touchdown, WSC had to go to some long passes in the backfield to try to crack open some long yardage plays to set up for the victory.

Local players that were involved the running and tackling. of this hard fought game were Molly Muir and Melissa Fluent.

Coach Barner said "It was a complete moral victory for WSC gals, but when your players have 6 times more heart and desire against a school that is 7 times bigger what do you expect.

The girls wanted to make a statement to the area that University of Nebraska can travel up to Wayne to play an athletic event between to sports clubs.

Nebraska has already scheduled Wayne for women's rugby game next year.

Two days after the Nebraska rugby game, the WSC Women played an away game in a driving rain storm and came out on top 7-0 against University of South Dakota.

Wayne State Women's Rugby Club ended their first season at 7-3. Coach Barner said "If we played the first two teams on our schedule that we lost to in March, we would have beat them now, this team was so close ro being either 9-1 or 10-0 for the season."

Lingenfelter, a senior from Plainview, Neb., started 33 games while playing in 92 career games. He had his senior season cut short due an early injury, but was second on the team in scoring at 11.8 points per game at the time. For his career Lingenfelter scored 675 points and connected on 122 three-pointers. He currently sits in eighth place on Wayne State's all-time three-point made list.

Conley, a senior from Omaha, Neb., has been a major part of the resurgence of the Wayne State Softball program. This season she leads the team with an 11-5 record, 1.66 ERA, and four shutouts.

She has a career record of 24-20, however over the last two years has a 20-11 mark. At the plate she has 101 hits, 10 home runs, and 24 doubles in her career. This season she is hitting a career-best .290 and is tied for the team lead with three home runs.

As Wayne State College's top scholar-athletes, Lingenfelter and Conley were nominated for the NSIC's Dr. William Britton and Willis R. Kelly Awards, given to the top male and female scholarathletes in the league. Lingenfelter and Conley will be recognized by the NSIC as Wayne State College's Phillips 66 Honor Student-Athletes during 2002-03 athletic season.

Heart Attack Symptoms May Be Different For Women

More American women die of heart disease and heart attacks than men. Most women know the "classic" heart attack symptoms, but most don't know that women's symptoms may be very different. Some classic symptoms include: squeezing chest pain or pressure and shortness of breath. Symptoms more likely to appear in women are: indigestion or gas-like pain, dizziness or nausea or vomiting, unexplained weakness or fatigue, discomfort or pain between shoulder blades, recurring chest discomfort, and a sense of impending doom. Prompt medical treatment of heart attacks can save lives.

RC&D council holds meeting

Bob Fritschen of Laurel presented information on "Creating Learning Communities" at the April 22 Northeast Nebraska RC & D Council meeting. Fritschen's program gave an overview of Laurel's commitment to provide local learning opportunities and economic development.

Communities that survive and thrive do so because they understand the connection and are doing something about it.

The RC & D volunteers were treated with dessert and received an American Flag lapel pin in honor of National Volunteer Week. This year's theme is "Volunteers -The Heart of America." There has never been a better time to join together with the true spirit of volunteerism. Special recognition was given to Clo Ann Shamblen who has been a "hosted" volunteer at the RC & D office for the past 4

President Bob Lingenfelter welcomed 22 members and guests and conducted the meeting. A group of 20 interested people met in Elgin recently to discuss ways to work together to promote tourism along Highway 14 and its corridor. Interested businesses and communities will benefit from increased tourist travel and by pooling their efforts will find it easier to accomplish this. Another meeting will be held from the south end of highway 14 to see if they'd like to join in this effort.

Saturday's agenda included the Byway Annual meeting, an agri-tourism panel and afternoon tour. The Outlaw Trail Scenic Byway and Northeast Nebraska RC & D will host the 2002 Nebraska Vacation Guide training tour May 20. The purpose of the training tour is to expose their staff to many of the region's outstanding tourism attractions, scenic drives, history, communities and facilities so they can send visitors off the interstate to communities.

Pheasants Forever chapter conducts controlled burn

The Logan Creek Chapter of Pheasants Forever conducted two controlled burns on April 14 and according to those involved, "we had excellent conditions and everything went very well."

The intent of the these burns is to remove existing vegetation, disc the area to encourage annual weed growth and inner seed with various legumes. The weeds and legumes will attract insects and add diversity to the fields. A pheasant chick's diet for the first six weeks of its life is primarily

"What we are seeing with many of the CRP fields in the area is that it provides good winter cover and escape cover but as brood rearing, cover it is poor," said Russ Hamer, one of the members involved in the burn.

The combination burn, disc, and inner seed will recycle nutrients tied up in residual vegetation, open areas up and allow for easier brood movement, provide dusting areas, and attract a large variety of insects.

"The procedure is a efficient and cost effective way to improve the pheasant habitat and spend the habitat dollars," Hamer added.

A portion of the day's activities. included a head fire in a brome. grass field. The head fire is lit only after sufficient back fire and flank fire are achieved. Back fire is burning into the wind, flank fire is burning perpendicular to the wind and head fire is burning with the wind. The procedure is call. ring fire technique. The head fire involves intense heat, large flames, and is extremely fast mov-

Locating turkeys the easy way

So far this spring, I've been on three turkey hunts and because of the weather, it's been a tough sea-

The toughest thing when it comes to hunting turkeys, especially in bad weather is locating the birds.

I've tried coyote, owl, hawk and crow calls to get them to shock gobble. I've tried locating them by driving the roads looking for sign, observing trails, river beds and water holes, hoping to find some sort of indication that they are using the area.

The weather (wind, rain and snow) can completely shut them down. They won't gobble, cluck or putt, they'll flat shut up.

Which isn't like turkeys, especially in the spring. This is the time of the year that the toms strut their stuff, gobble and drumming trying to attract the hens. It's the mating season and both male and female turkeys should be very vocal.

If they were talking, we hadn't been able to hear them and they probably weren't able to hear us because of the 40 plus M.P.H. winds. Over the years, I've located more wildlife (turkey, deer and antelope) by going to a vantage point and glassing the terrain by using my binoculars. Optics is probably one of the most misunderstood subjects in the outdoor world.

I've been known to look for something that would give me an edge, an easier way, a better idea or product. Over the years I've tried binoculars with more magnification, different sizes and brand

Some really looked good but were too bulky, others too small, while others kept fogging over.

I wanted a compact pair of binoculars, that were tough, could take a beating, because I use my gear a lot. I needed binoculars that allowed me to pan an area quickly to spot game. They needed to be a neutral color so that they wouldn't stand out in the woods and they needed to focus quickly and easily.

At the SHOT Show this year, I talked with Bob Knopf, an optics expert that I had not only known for years, but was a friend that I'd spent time with on the water and in the field.

I asked his opinion on binoculars and came away with some excellent information on what to look for in binoculars.

The binoculars I was looking at were listed as 8 X 25, 8 X 42, 10 X 42 or 10 X 50.

According to Knopf, "the first number in any optics is the magnification power, an 8 indicates 8 power magnification and the 10 stands for 10 power magnification.

Once you get above 10 power, binoculars become hard to hold steady for very long because of the magnification. Every movement you make will be magnified 10 or more times, so a slight shake can be quite significant.

The 10 power binoculars is the largest magnification most people can use without using a bipod or some other steadying device.

The second number is the objective, which relates to the amount of light allowed into the binoculars. The larger the number, the larger the objective and the better the binoculars will work in low light conditions.

The weight of the binoculars is also affected by the objective, because large objectives means more glass, which means more weight.

Another thing you'll want to take into consideration is what type of weather you'll be hunting in. Waterproof field glasses will work better under damp conditions and are less apt to fog over than binoculars that aren't waterproof. Again, since waterproof binoculars have more seals and orings to keep out moisture, they too will be heavier.

If you're going to do a lot of walking or hiking in steep terrain, the heavier binoculars can take its toll after a long day of hunting

If you prefer the larger objective binoculars, you might want to consider using a binocular support system such as the Butler Creek Bino Buddy. These support systems will take the strain off your neck and spread the weight over your shoulders and chest.

No matter what size binoculars you purchase, you'll want to make sure that you get fully coated optics as this cuts down on light flair, making the binoculars clear-

Currently the most popular binoculars used by hunters are the 8 X 42 which gives you the best of both worlds."

I use two pair of binoculars, depending on the area, terrain and animal that I'm hunting.

When hunting in steep rugged terrain for turkeys, deer or elk, I'll use my 8 X 25 compacts. They're lightweight, clear and quick focus-

If I'm hunting flatter terrain for antelope and not doing a whole lot of walking or if I'm hunting in damp conditions, I'll go with the waterproof 10 X 42 larger bodied

I've used the new Alpen binoculars this season and have been very happy with their performance and their price.

Locating game using optics is a lot easier than running up and down the hills and mountains looking for a critter.

I hope this information will help you to pick the right binoculars for the job and once you do, your next hunting trip will be more enjoyable as well as successful.

BE WARY OF HOME IMPROVEMENT SCAMS improvement projects. It is also the time when we hear about increasing numbers of home repair scams Be wary of those time-honored home improvement scams designed to make you think you are getting a bargain. You may find out you will be paying more than you planned.

"WE'LL GIVE IT TO YOU CHEAP IF YOU TAKE IT OFF OUR HANDS" This could be the pitch to entice you to buy a partial load of blacktop or concrete for your driveway. You had been meaning to repair the driveway anyway, and this seems like a way to save some money. Later, you find the price was much higher than you could have gotten from a reputable paving contractor in you area. A few weeks later the new concrete begins to break up, or you find dandelions growing through the new blacktop.

"THIS NEW MIRACLE PRODUCT WILL FIX YOUR LEAKY ROOF" "No need to re-shingle," you are told by the itinerant contractor,

"This new 'roof paint' will do the trick." The 'trick" is on you, as the first rain will wash the substance right off of the roof, and the leaks

"NEW SIDING AT A DISCOUNT"

An ad in the local paper, or a telemarketing call offers to side your home at a big discount. All you have to do is allow it to be shown as a "model home" for the company. It sounds like a great opportunity, so you accept. But - the cost of the siding is so inflated you end up paying more than if you had purchased from a local business. Consumers will save time, money and aggravation by following some basic good sense rules: Use a local, well-established contractor. Ask for references and check with customers to find out if they were satisfied with the work performed." Get competitive bids on all work and be wary of any bid that seems too good to be true. DON'T accept high-pressure offers or offers that force you to make a quick decision. Beware of the contractor who comes to your door with a business card containing only a phone number and no address, or the one who is staying temporarily in a local motel. If you feel threatened or intimidated by someone who comes to your door and tries to pressure you into paying up-front for home repair services, you may want to consider closing and locking your door and calling local law enforcement.

Vigilance and planning are needed when it comes to computer security

When most people think of security devices, they may think of an alarm system and a solid, deadbolt lock. Though useful for physical security, these time-tested security devices don't provide any protection for an increasingly important part of a business—the company's com-

Local government has taken notice of this threat. Governor Mike Johanns proclaimed the week of April 20 - 26 as Information Security Awareness Week.

Many people used to leave their doors unlocked at night and maybe even their keys in their car without fear. Now most folks lock their doors and their cars all the time and some even have alarm systems for added protection. Unfortunately, the need and function of physical security has not evolved to the same extent in the information technology world. For most individuals and even many businesses, this increased awareness for security hasn't translated into better care of their valuable electronic data and computer networks.

Chris Currin, senior sales executive for the Omaha-based network security company, Solutionary, said attitudes towards electronic crime have been much slower to develop than the acceptance of physical secu-

"How many employees would consider breaking into the human resources department's filing cabinets to locate private salary information? Yet, those very same people may not see a problem with retrieving the same information from a database with weak access control," Currin said.

Many people may consider only large, well-known companies such as Microsoft or IBM, as likely targets for computer hackers. Currin said the truth is that everyday, throughout the world, servers, personal computers and networks are probed for vulnerabilities and a staggering number of them are exploited. Often, this takes place without the knowledge of their owners.

Without the right protection, from both external and internal threats, companies run the risk of losing or exposing valuable information such as customer e-mail addresses, account information, their employees' salary information and a host of other important business assets. Companies without proper network protection also run the risk of losing the trust of their customers if their data were to be compromised.

On a larger scale, companies and individuals who don't provide proper protection for their computers and networks pose a risk to the integrity of the Internet system as a whole. Dan Hunt, President of Blair-based HunTel net, said proper security measures are important even for home users of computers.

"What can happen is that someone can hack into your machine and then use your computer to hack into someone else's," he said.

Hunt said at the very least, home computer users should install a software firewall. No security software or system is 100 percent secure, but this simple step will at least help block would-be intruders from gaining access. The only way to keep a computer completely safe from intruders is to never connect it to the Internet.

Hunt said that if homeowners have concerns regarding the security of their computer and the information it houses, they should contact their Internet Service Provider for advice. He said his company, which provides Internet service to 4,000 homes in Nebraska and western Iowa, provides advice on computer and network security for a fee.

"You have a responsibility to maintain the integrity of your network. If you choose to be diligent, you can hire us, someone else or do it yourself, but someone must be responsible," Hunt said.

For businesses, Currin said Solutionary offers these six steps of

1. Organize a security steering committee: Any comprehensive security plan needs widespread support if there is to be any hope of success. One of the best methods for gaining support is the establishment of a company-wide security committee.

2. Gather information: Before embarking on any type of security implementation, a company should conduct a comprehensive audit, including not only the devices and systems involved in the security implementation, but also the business processes, security awareness and assets and information that needs to be protected.

3. Assess your company's risk: Risk is equal to the value of the asset in question, times the extent of vulnerability, times the likelihood of an exploit occurring. Remember, the asset value should include a dollar value, the cost of downtime and intangibles, such as a loss in customer

4. Create a solution: Finding a one-size-fits-all network security solution is impossible in today's world, especially constrained by existing business rules and the need for compatibility with all different applications. Common parts of a network security solution include the implementation of firewalls, a network intrusion detection system, anti-virus software and other components. Ask your network security professional

5. Implement and educate: Once you've decided upon a solution, it's time to begin the plan's rollout. There is one part of the security implementation that must never be overlooked - education. For any security initiative to be successful, the end users must receive the proper train-

6. Continually examine, analyze and act: The most important aspect of any security system is the diligent, continual monitoring of system and device events. Also, it is important to keep the security committee that was formed involved in new issues and technologies. It needs to constantly reassess and update the security policy to ensure that awareness of security stays at the forefront.

Debate continues on increases

By Ed Howard

Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association What do you think of the latest referendum petition idea? It's the one that would let Nebraskans vote on the repeal of tax increases just approved by the Legislature. If it picks up steam in the weeks and months ahead, you can bet that it will have plenty of public policy types sweating bullets.

The fear is that, between a flagging economy and the taking away of the additional tax revenues, Nebraska government could be thrown into a gigantic budget mess. Maybe its biggest, ever.

Actually, the state faces a pretty big fiscal mess now. The Legislature did a lot of budget cutting in the just-ended 2002 session, and in a special legislative session last fall.

Gov. Mike Johanns vetoed the plan for higher sales and income tax rates, but lawmakers overrode his decision by the narrowest of margins. Not a single vote to spare.

If the latest petition drive catches the imagination of the electorate, the state's best hope is for an informed and in-depth debate to grow out of it.

Supporters need to gather 60,000 signatures from around the state to put the issue on the November bal-

Main Street will be redone in 2005

The City Council will meet Tuesday, May 14 at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall at Third and Pearl. Repaying Main Street

The Nebraska Department of ads has scheduled Main Street from Clark Street to north of Sixth. Street to be repayed in 2005.

Main Street is part of Nebraska Highway 35 and the Department of Roads owns the entire right of way width from building front to building front. The street still has old brick underneath the asphalt, The project will involve complete tear out of the old street, replacement of storm sewers and street lights, some water main and replacement of all sidewalks.

At this time the only major costs planned for the City of Wayne are for any upgrades of street light styles from the standard lighting, water mains and any other city utilities and any additional street scape designs desired such as trees, benches, etc.

The main issue to be decided soon for the project is whether to keep Main Street partially open for traffic without parking during the 6-8 month project or detour traffic to Pearl and Logan Streets during the project so the project can be done as a complete tear out and rebuild. This is expected to speed up the work by about six weeks.

Other issues to be resolved are the proposed widening of Main from Fourth Street to north of Sixth Street.

Complete sets of proposed plans are available for the public at the Wayne Main Street office of the city office. Fire Hall

The builder expects to have the new fire hall complete in the next two weeks. City Auditorium

Bids for renovation have been opened and we are reviewing them with the architect. The auditorium committee will have a recommendation for the council at the next council meeting on May 14. Questions Phone us at 375-1733 or e-mail

Letters Nebraska experiencing growth

Dear Editor,

Nebraska is experiencing something it never has before — a burgeoning growth of local public health departments all over the state. This development is thanks to the Nebraska Health Care Funding Act passed last year by the Legislature. The funding comes from the tobacco settlement money that Nebraska has received.

We are putting our tobacco money to good use. What better way to promote health for all persons in Nebraska than to promote local health departments.

Some people have questioned why their county should have a health department. What can it contribute to the well-being of citizens? With a $5,000 planning grand for each county, they explored the answer to that ques-

A local health department can provide disease control measures and disease prevention programs. distribute information promoting healthy lifestyles that include exercise and good nutrition, address problems like underage alcohol and drug use (including smoking), train key health professionals to handle bioterroristic acts and natural disasters and establish programs to reduce infant mortality. These are just some examples of the services they can provide. What is done with this money is up to to the counties. They can assess the needs of their citizens and decide what is best. They can develop policies that will help them address those needs. And they can take measures to assure that services are available in their counties, either through contracts with existing service providers or through creation of new services. The only rules are that there must be a Board of Health and a fulltime director.

In June of last year there were only 16 local health departments covering 22 of Nebraska's counties. As of April 8 of this year, there are 11 new district health departments covering 48 counties. That's quite a difference. By the end of June, at least 10 to 12 new departments will be in place.

Departments can be single county agencies if the population of the county is 50,000 people or greater. Counties with less than 50,000 people are required to for multi-county health departments with a minimum of three counties and 30,000 people.

There are two funding streams. The first is for infrastructure development. Departments serving 30,000 to 50,000 people will receive $100,000 annually. Departments serving 50,000 to 100,000 people will receive $125,000 and larger departments will receive $150,000 annually. This is funding that can be used to buy or upgrade computers, develop health surveillance programs, conduct an assessment of community needs and track health. trends, hire public health nurses and other staff and purchase supplies and equipment that will enable them to do their jobs.

The second funding stream is for public health services. For each individual in the department's area of service, the department will receive $1,83 on an annual basis. for a department serving 30,000 people, that's almost $55,000. This funding can be used to buy informational materials, educate teachers and other professionals on what public health is all about, target certain populations like children or the elderly for health promotion efforts and work to eliminate health disparities among racial and ethnic groups.

April is Public Health Month. It's a good time to give some though to our new local health departments and what they can do to improve the health of Nebraskans.

Making credit a tool for better money management

How you use credit is an important part of managing your finances. It's one of the "tools" in your financial "toolbox." How you use this tool determines whether credit helps or hinders your financial situation.

Because it costs money to use credit, always think about your use of credit before actually pulling out the plastic or signing on the dotted line. Whenever you use credit remember that you're paying for the privilege of not paying for something in full at the time of purchase.

Credit does not mean that you have more money to spend; it does mean that you're using your future income to pay for some-Before you decide to use credit to buy something, ask the following questions:

1. Do I really need this or can I

2. What is the minimum amount of credit I can use to get

4. Are there additional fees besides interest which I'll pay? 5. What will using credit add to the cost? Is it worth it?

6. What will I have to give up to repay this credit debt? Limit credit use to:

Our choir concerts were last weekend: Saturday evening in Seward, Sunday afternoon in Lincoln. The Latin song is still repeating in my head; I hope I get rid of it soon. The director mixed us up this year: altos did not stand next to altos, I was between a soprano and a tenor. I've never sung like that before; I know that accomplished groups do that; it was sort of a nervous feeling.

But he claimed it made a fuller. sound; and I can imagine that. I have so much confidence in this director, I believe what he tells us. I've never sung for someone so demanding, but so patient and good humored, before. It was a great experience.

There have been some interesting activities in our county; one, the opening of the long-awaited new jail. The sheriff invited people to spend the night, and about 40 took him up on it. They were dressed in orange jumpsuits, photographed and fingerprinted, fed a jail supper, and slept in a dorm on cots.

The second night, local teenagers were guests. I just didn't have enough curiosity to take part. It made the national news. I had to pay a traffic fine in Lincoln yesterday; that was intimidating

Then, the mayor bought it and began restoration. That turned into such an expensive project, he sold it again. Just tucking the brick cost a lot. A man from Omaha now owns it and has turned it into an art gallery.

So, on the First Friday in the month, when the local businesses agreed to stay open, I went across the street from the antique shop to check out the art. ## Drivers asked to use caution during construction season

The 2002 construction season is underway in Nebraska. With more than 300 state highway construction projects planned, there is an increased potential for traffic congestion and safety hazards. While the dilemma is real, the solution is simple: by slowing down when approaching highway work zones and staying alert, the risk for accident and injuries can be reduced or prevented.

More than 1,000 people were killed nationwide in construction work zones in 2000, the deadliest year on record. Eight of those deaths were in Nebraska. Sixty-three fatal accidents were recorded in Nebraska work zones from 1996 through 2000. Nine of Nebraska's fatal crashes over the past five years occurred in Interstate 80 work zones.

A total of 765 work-zone-related incidents were reported in Nebraska in 2000, resulting in 292 injury accidents and 465 property damage accidents. Of these incidents, 318 were rear-end collisions.

The key reason for most workzone crashes continues to be drivers' failure to pay attention, according to law enforcement officers' reports. More than half of the drivers involved in construction zone fatalities contributed to the accidents by speeding, running off the road or crossing into the wrong lane. Eighty-five to 90 percent of the accidents occurred on straight and level sections of roadway.

More motorists are injured in

More motorists are injured in work-zone accidents than highway workers. Therefore, drivers need to stay alert when driving near highway construction sites any time of day. Drivers should observe lower speed limits, heed posted warning signs and be alert for potential work-zone hazards.

Roads Department and contractor's employees are at risk when working near moving traffic. Since 1991, highway work-zone crashes claimed the lives of two Department of Roads workers and injured 24. The Roads Department wants to ensure the safety of its employees, contractor's personnel and motorists by increasing awareness of potential safety hazards.

It is important to remember that highway work zones are much more than an inconvenience. Work zones are essential to building safer, smoother roads that will ultimately save lives.

Remember: when you're in the driver's seat, you make the difference. Drive safely in work zones.

Superintendent Report: Budget Considerations: Legislature is finished unless a special session is called: We should have a closer preliminary draft of the budget in May and also have a better picture on what our insurance rates are going to do.

Board Committees: Facility - The first modular is going to be moved this week. Discussed the auction in Carroll and whether the building would be placed on the sale bill. If the building is going to be sold, we need to mention the fact that a bond is required. We will also want to think about removing the boiler. If the building is demolished, there is a site in Newman Grove that charges $16,00 per ton to haul and dump verses the $28.00. Also have the option to give the bricks away to an individual in Iowa. The hauling fees would then be greatly reduced. Foundation - No report

Legislative — No report Negotiations No report Policy - No report Community Relations -- No report

Finance - No report Technology - Developed a draft for Administrative regulations regarding technology. The school would maintain a core of 172 computers, which would be replaced on a 4-yr. this system would be $75K annually. In the past, grants and bus sales covered the expense of replacing the computers, however, grants do not cover repairs and the bus money is spent. The expense will have to be worked into the budget. In order to maintain this system, all technical support requests will be assigned priority. For example, lab computers will usually take priority over the teachers due to the fact that they are readily available for everyone's use. Dr. Reinert is also looking at making the Technology Director position more of an administrative position due to the involvement in maintaining such a system. This would make the person more involved in the decision-making process, but does not mean more personal would be needed else

b. Promoting the foundation to alumni here and across the country; c. Evaluating feedback of information from graduating students who are five years out of high school.

I sincerely apologize to Duane Schroeder and Dustin Schroeder for any anguish I have caused in running a classified in the Wayne Stater that may have been regarded as malicious criminal intent. The ad was meant as a joke-"D. Schroeder" is Dustin Schroeder, one of the Stater's editors. I used poor judgment and hope that as a WSC college student, it does not reflect as poorly on the school or the Stater staff; and I apologize if it has. I alone should be held responsible for my actions and further emphasize that my actions in this matter do not reflect those of the school, the Stater, or any other institution that might appear to be involved. I would also like to thank Duane Schroeder for understanding that such malicious criminal behavior was not my intention and to Dustin Schroeder for taking a joke too far. I hope that my words are regarded as sincere and repentant. I have learned a valuable lesson in journalism and advertising ethics, and hope others can use my mistake as a valuable lesson as well.
