New directory is built at cemetery

The Greenwood Cemetery Association announces the installation of a new cemetery directory. This directory will allow easy access to information regarding individuals buried in the cemetery.

The directory is located next to the chapel, just inside the main entrance to the cemetery.

The directory lists over 5,000 names of people buried in the Greenwood Cemetery alphabetically and gives the location of burial plots. Maps of the cemetery allow easy location of the plots.

The directory can be updated regularly to insure that the information provided is current.

The Association thanks the anonymous benefactor whose generosity and vision provided this gift to the community. And, thanks goes out to the Genealogical Society of Wayne County for compiling the names for the directory.

Student's hobby brings soldier to life

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Through Reid Weber's portrayal of a Civil War Infantry soldier, Wayne Middle School fifth graders were recently transported back in time. Weber, a history major from Wisner, is a senior at Wayne State College. His love of history led him to speaking to groups and to his hobby of being in re-enactments with First Nebraska Volunteer Civil War Infantry Re-enactors.

At first, Weber was dressed in a blue wool uniform wearing a "hardy hat" complete with ostrich plume and brass. He carried a sword and a gun powder revolver. These were infantry uniforms worn in early battle around 1861. (Hardy hats were forerunner to cowboy hats worn today). If a battle was lost, an officer would give up his sword.

Later, Weber changed into a common infantry uniform wearing a "forage cap" (more prominent in the east- this cap was the forerunner to the modern baseball cap) and knapsack, canteen, haversack, cartridge box, cap pouch, colt revolver, gum blanket, etc. and carrying a musket.

"Infantry soldiers were expected to carry 60 lbs. into battle and walk at least 25 miles every day," Weber said.

Telling the children about Civil War soldiers, he showed them how to load a musket that could hit a target up to 200-300 yards, how the metal on the outside of his canteen could become a plate to put food on, that a gum blanket was made of rubber (which they called gum in the 1860s) for protection from the weather, how bayonettes could be used as weapons plus be used as tent stakes, candle holders and meat skewers, and other information.

Weber said disease was a huge problem for the soldiers; everyone had lice. A soldier would usually wear the same uniform until it rotted off him. Their main food staple was "hard tack" (crackers) made from flour, water, and salt in a bakery many miles from the battle fields. "Hard tack" sat in storage for months before reaching the soldiers. It would be moldy and full of worms. A "muckett" (cup) was used to boil the hard tack. By boiling these crackers, worms came to the top where they were removed and then soldiers could drink the liquid. Salt pork, beans and coffee were also part of their diet.

But, boredom was a soldier's worst enemy. Some soldiers played cards but they were looked at as immoral so if the enemy was close by, they threw their cards away. As most soldiers only had a third grade education, cards didn't have numbers written on them, only symbols which were counted by hand. They also had small pocket books to read. Small Bibles were carried

Arnie's to expand to new location

Work has begun on the remodeling of the former Kum & Go building located at Seventh and Main Streets in Wayne.

What used to be a convenience store and gas station is now going to be an extension of Arnie's Ford-Mercury.

"With the demolition of 40 feet off the north end of the building, we hope to be able to show 25-30 vehicles on the lot, with a new, remodeled office," said Rick Endicott, spokesperson for Arnie's.

The current Office Connection and State of Nebraska offices will remain on the site at this time.

"We're hoping for the completion of remodeling to be done in time for Chicken Days 2002," Endicott said.

With the addition of this site, Arnie's Ford-Mercury hopes to serve even better the needs of the Wayne area, northeast Nebraska, northwest Iowa and South Dakota.

Anikputa is elected mayor

More than 400 Girls and Boys Town youth elected Ashleigh Anikputa of Wayne as the 99th mayor of the world-famous Village of Boys Town on May 7.

Anikputa, a 17-year-old junior, hopes to serve the children of Girls and Boys Town and the organization in gratitude for the opportunities she has received there. "I want to make Girls and Boys Town the best place it can be so more kids have this opportunity for a better home and a second chance at life," Anikputa said.

Ashleigh is the daughter of the late Anneliese Cawthon of Wayne. Ms. Cawthon was the Director of the Dean of Students at Wayne State College. Ashleigh's guardians are Larry and Kathleen Grone of Wayne. Her Boys Town houseparents are Eric and Amy Gross.

Ashleigh was also awarded the Female Athlete Award at a special sports banquet in Boys Town. She is involved in volleyball, basketball, track, band, choir, honor roll, and many other activities. She also serves as a Girls and Boys Town guide to visitors.

Benjamin Cooper Sims, 18, of Chicago, Ill., was elected vice mayor. Anikputa and Sims will take office on graduation day, May 19. Father Edward J. Flanagan conceived the self-government system at the Village of Boys Town in 1926 as a tool for its citizens to build character, citizenship and a sense of community.

Thanks goes to Winside voters

Dear Editor,

Thank you to all that voted for the tax levy override. I do not live in the Winside district so I was unable to vote on it.

My children go to Winside Public because we think the school system is great. I have said for years that the Winside school system put out students very gifted in academics, scholastics, arts, etc. and they have great personalities to go with it!

You can't say that about a lot of other schools.

I am one that does not understand why the government has it so the bigger schools get all the State Aid, etc. (in which they don't even use it all) when us small schools barely get anything.

Thank you to the school board . . . you do an awesome job! Keep up the good work.

Thank you again to all the voters.

Barb Hawkins, Hoskins

Education does count

Dear Editor,

Patrons of Wayne County School District 90-0595, aka Winside Public School, were successful in the tax levy override on Tuesday, May 14, 2002.

This is a positive message given to our children, school administrators, faculty and Board of Education that EDUCATION does count towards community.

As a District we are accountable to the results of this special issue decision to ensure we bring our District into fiscal stability the next three years without losing focus on a quality education for each child entering our halls of academia.

Moving forward in a united effort can only reap rich rewards for our children and community growth. Let up approach education in a positive and productive manner where our children come out winners.

Concerned parent,

Economy sways thinking

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Remember what the Clinton crowd kept saying during their first run against George W. Bush?

"It's the economy, stupid!"

It usually is, whether the race is for the presidency or a governorship.

States as diverse as California and Nebraska were in the same boat earlier this year. California just had a bigger boat. Revenue shortfalls, and a subsequent need to reduce spending confronted them. Thus, incumbent governors in most states face the same problems that confront Gov. Mike Johanns. The fact is that Johanns is situated about as well as anyone could be in a bid for a second term.

Democratic challenger Stormy Dean and company have some things to throw at Johanns. But those things qualify, maybe, as rocks. Certainly, they are not grenades. Nothing explosive.

Example: Even some Republicans in the Legislature thought Johanns took the politically easy way out when he vetoed increased state sales and income tax rates. Johanns insisted that the revenue shortfall could be handled with greater spending reductions. The legislative leadership believed that approach would be Draconian, and cause long-lasting damage to state government's legitimate functions.

A rejoinder: Politically, so what? How many taxpayers are going to care about the "why" of an attempt to block higher taxes? Johanns owns the line every governor seeking re-election would like to have: "I said 'NO' to higher taxes!" There is no shortage of voters who see his veto as one delivered from the political high ground.

Another example: Dean has suggested Johanns showed a lack of leadership, in that the governor couldn't get the Legislature to go along with his wishes for more budget cutting, instead of more taxes.

A rejoinder: So what? The Legislature is about as popular right now as a passel of gnats at a picnic. Most folks figure that herding cats would be easy, and fun, compared to getting the Unicameral to follow a common-sense lead. That's not fair, of course. And again, so what?

Johanns is the first of the last four Republican governors who is blessed (or at least not cursed) by his party's collective mental condition. For the first time since Norbert Tiemann was defeated by Democrat Jim Exon, the GOP isn't overtly exhibiting suicidal and cannibalistic tendencies.

What is the best hope for the Democrats this year?

Answer: A really lousy economy. Voters of any persuasion tend to look for someone to vote against when the economy goes south. Not a lot of investigation goes into assigning fault. Voters sometimes reject the explanation that: "I didn't do it." The political backlash can be: "Yeah, but you didn't stop it from happening, either."

And, no. That's not fair, either. But it is sometimes the reality of politics.

Johanns' advantage is that he does have that tax veto to point to, and if things get worse for wage earners, you can bet that he will point to it early and often.

Main Street Focus

By Leo Ahmann

I hope everyone in the community and those just traveling through Wayne are enjoying the display of new American flags through downtown and along Highway 35. It's another example of everyone working together to accomplish a goal. It's a collaborative effort of the City, the Chamber Flag Committee and Main Street Wayne.

Special thanks to all businesses, groups and individuals that donated to the Flag Committee for the purchase of the flags, to the City for the placement of the strapping and brackets and to Beiermann Electric, Mitchell Electric and Model Electric for their donations of conduit (the poles). What a great sight coming into Wayne. Main Street Wayne is in charge of the placement of the flags and we'll make sure they are up on the proper days. We're also working with the Chamber and Wayne State College on the development of Welcome Flags to replace the worn-out ones.

You might have seen dust flying in the Main Street Park the last couple of days or so. We've been tilling the soil to prepare for the sodding of the park. Once that is completed, we'll begin the planting of flowers, decorative grasses, a rose bush and more. Just as a reminder, if you would like to donate to the beautification of the park, contact Lou Wiltse at the Wayne Greenhouse at 375-1555. If you would like to donate plantings in memory of some, we'll recognize that in the park with a nice marker. Thanks to the Chamber for the placement of the aluminum cast art books in the park.

Our Fund Drive is underway and we have begun to receive donations to our program. If you have your donation card ready to go, drop it in the mail, or if you would like to visit with me about Main Street Wayne, give me a jingle and we'll set up a meeting at your convenience at your place of business.

We think we're a vital cog in the complete picture of the community and we'd be pleased to talk with you about it. There are no membership dues. Your donation is what you are comfortable in giving. We will also be making personal contacts with businesses after the holidays. To those who have already given, we informally, 'thank you' (with a personal thank you to follow).

The Historical Walking Tour brochure pictures and information are at the printers now and should be done soon. I think you are going to be pleasantly surprised with the finished product. As soon as they are here, we'll get information to you as to where they can be seen.

Customer Appreciation Night is set for June 13. Details will soon be on KTCH radio and in the Wayne Herald/ Morning Shopper.

Networking together for the betterment of Wayne . . . that's the Main Street Wayne Program.

Until next time . . .

We should all have a crystal ball

I recently was reading an article concerning the Bush administration handling of warnings leading up to 9-11. I was appalled at how some members of Congress hinted that our President didn't do enough to stop the imminent threat or even more outrageously hint that he let it happen. To that I say "hogwash." Don't blame Bush for 9-11. As it is now coming out, he was unaware of the warning signs personally and the FBI appears to have dropped the ball.

Jimmy Jo's Jams
By James Shanks

Now, the sooth sayers who hinted Bush was to blame have returned to their foxholes seeing that the American people are not buying today's "snake oil" and waiting for another chance to create an issue. If they were smart, they wouldn't have opened this jar of worms, since President Clinton had numerous opportunities to do something about Bin Laden and didn't. But that is another argument.

In retrospect, it seems obvious to many people that the FBI, the CIA, and the White House should have "connected the dots" and anticipated al-Qaida's use of hijacked planes to hit the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. But everything seems more obvious in retrospect, because you know which things are true and which aren't. What makes hindsight so easy is that you know now just what you needed to worry about, but what you didn't need to worry about. Identifying threats and mobilizing to prevent them isn't as easy as finding a single pattern. Intelligence is full of patterns involving numerous groups, targets, and methods. If you're the president of the United States or one of his intelligence advisers, you have to decide which threats are most worth investigating, mobilizing for, or disrupting people's everyday lives for.

It's easy, after the fact, for reporters and political opponents to go back and dig up reports that hinted at what eventually happened. They don't have to sort through the false leads and alternative scenarios. They know how the story ends.

Electrical safety tips for spring

Spring is a great time in Nebraska — new calves being born, tulips and crabapple trees are in bloom and kids and parents making plans on how to spend their summer vacation.

As we all start spending a little more time outdoors, we need to keep a few safety tips in mind. Electricity travels at the speed of light — much too fast for you to react to. So it's important to be educated ahead of time and review some basic safety information.

Here at Nebraska Public Power District, we generate electricity at power plants located across the state and push the power across a 5,000-mile network of high voltage transmission lines. Transmission lines are connected to distributions lines, which ultimately supply your home, farm or business with electricity. We have implemented numerous maintenance and safety procedures to ensure that our high voltage lines are reliable and, in fact, our transmission system reliability is better than the regional average. However, we cannot control the effect that high winds and lightning have on our lines during spring storms.

If you see a line down, always assume it's live. Then report that you see to our 24-hour call center (1-877-ASK-NPPD) or your local utility. If a power line falls on your car, the best thing to do is remain in your call and call for help, unless you are in immediate physical danger.

Storm season or not, remind your children they should never fly a kite in the vicinity of power lines or climb a tree that has a power line near it. In Nebraska recently, a child was seriously injured when he climbed a tree wearing a backpack; the metal hooks on his backpack came in contact with an overhead power line and he was thrown from the tree. Children should never play in or around substations. If you are painting or cleaning gutters, be careful with your ladder. Farmers need to be aware of their surroundings at all times and remember to "look up and look out."

in uniform pockets located by the heart to protect them from getting hit by bullets.

Fighting was a tough job. Weber told the children it took courage and bravery to be a soldier.

Children could ask questions; one asked if there were snipers during the Civil War. Weber said there were and they usually wore green to blend in with the background. They were nicknamed Tree Frogs by the other soldiers. "Being hidden, they usually were able to get clear shots and be accurate," Weber said. "But, no one liked snipers as they didn't fight fair and they were sometimes killed rather than captured."

Weber became involved in Civil War re-enactments through his mentor, Mark Glaubius of Wisner, (also a member of the First Nebraska Volunteer Civil War Infantry Re-enactors). Glaubius began re-enacting over 10 years ago and started re-enactments in Wisner in 1995. Weber bought much of his civil war uniforms, guns, and accessories on-line and from special vendors called sutlers. He usually visits schools during breaks every year and speaks to 4-H groups, Boy Scouts, senior citizens, and anyone requesting him to talk to their group.

As for Weber's background, he is the son of Norman and Dorothy Weber of Wisner. Norman is a science teacher at Wisner-Pilger Junior Senior High School and Dorothy is the Director of the Learning Center at Wayne State College. He has two older brothers Corey and Chris Weber.

With Weber's depiction, one could get a glimpse of the past and see how dedicated these men were in fighting for our country and preserving the freedoms and unity we enjoy today. Anyone interested in having Weber speak can call him at 402-529-6290 or rewebe01@yahoo.com

During Weber's visit, he also wore a common infantry uniform, a "forage cap," a knapsack full of items necessary to soldiers during the Civil War, and carried a musket gun.

Real estates firms merging

It has been announced that Stoltenberg Partners and ERA Property Exchange are uniting to form a new real estate company.

The prime reason for the merger is to provide both the buyer and the seller with the best possible service. The new company will have two brokers, Dale Stoltenberg and Darrel Fuelberth.

Dale Stoltenberg, a licensed broker and certified general appraiser, has been involved with farm and residential sales, management and appraisals in this area since 1968. The company has operated as Stoltenberg Partners since 1974, specializing in farm and residential real estate.

Their residential sales area involves Wayne and all surrounding towns with farm sales and appraisals in all of Nebraska.

Stoltenberg Partners currently operates with Dale Stoltenberg and Alan Stoltenberg as managing brokers with Amy Schweers and Jamie Coufal as licensed salespersons.

Darrel Fuelberth, a licensed broker since 1967 and licensed appraiser since 1973, has offered real estate sales and appraisal services through ERA Property Exchange, a company started in 1956 by his father, R.G. Fuelberth. Kathy Luhr and Bob Berry are licensed salespersons for the company.

The new company, Property Exchange Partners, will start operating around June 1 and will be located in the Professional Building, located at 112 West Second Street in Wayne. The new sales force will include Amy Schweers, Jamie Coufal, Kathy Luhr and Bob Berry.

Accidents are reported in area

On May 15 at about 9 p.m. the Wayne County Sheriff's Office investigated a two-vehicle collision at the junction of Highway # 35 and 90B Spur just west of Winside. A pickup driven by 38 year old Douglas Jaeger of rural Winside collided with a car driven by Nancy Niemann, also of Winside.

Niemann was turning left into Winside and Jaeger was westbound when the vehicles collided. Niemann was wearing a seat belt and Jaeger was not. No injuries were reported.

At about 8 a.m. on Friday, May 17 a northbound car driven by 16 year old Kelli Jayne Heinemann of rural Wayne lost control, rolled and came to rest on its top at a location 3 miles east and about one-half mile south of Wayne.

Providence Medical Center Ambulance transported Heinemann to the Wayne hospital where she was treated for her injuries. No seat belts were in use. Heinemann was the only occupant in the car.

WSC to host cheerleading, dance camps June 18-21

Wayne State College will host cheerleading and dance camps, June 18-21 for about 130 high school, junior high school and middle school students.

Instructors for camps will be provided by the Universal Dance Association, (UDA) and the Universal Cheerleaders Association (UCA).

Individuals have the option to attend and stay on campus or commute to the camp.

"I believe this is about our 28th year for holding camps. Campers who attend learn routines that are presented all over the country. Nebraska is right up there with schools everywhere using the most up-to-date,'in' presentations," said Frank Teach, WSC director of student activities.

UDA creates the majority of camp dance material at regional choreography sessions, and some is contracted to professional studios in New York and California. All the choreography is evaluated on originality, variety and complexity. Camp instructors have completed an intense training course and have been selected from top colleges, pro dance teams and studios.

"UCA's instructors continue to be the best in the business. The fact that they can perform at such a high level, and teach to even a beginner skill level is a tribute to their dedication," said Debbie Purifoy, cheerleading coach at the University of Alabama.

The UCA program includes safety awareness through a solid foundation of safety techniques to promote confidence as skill levels increase through daily safety and spotting awards, coaches participation and hands-on stunt, pyramid and transition specific spotting.

Is the waterfowl population on the decline?

In a recent article released by the Delta Waterfowl Foundation, a non profit waterfowl conservation organization, stated that duck hunters could be in for a tough season next fall.

There's been a lot of speculation about why duck hunting in most of the U.S was so poor last fall. Most of the discussions ignore the fact that we don't have as many ducks as we did a few years back!

For example, the mallard breeding population has fell 27% in two years and is now below the goals set by the North American Waterfowl Management plan.

According to the director of Delta Waterfowl's United States office Rob Olson, "we've lost 3 million mallards from the breeding population and we're predicting another substantial drop when the 2002 numbers are announced in June."

"We're coming out of the most prolonged wet cycle of the last century, a time when we had large blocks of nesting cover provided by the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) across the U.S. side of the pothole region. We missed a golden opportunity to expand the duck population."

The shrinking breeding population and impending drought across the prairie pothole region are bad news for ducks and duck hunters, Olson says.

Last season, many of the hunters simply assumed that the reason for the lack of ducks, especially in the south was the fact that the mallards had short-stopped (stayed in the northern states because of warm weather).

"The mid-winter waterfowl survey conducted by the Fish and Wildlife Service did indicate that some short-stopping did occur," but according to Olson, " it wasn't enough to produce the poor season experienced in the south."

"Some of the states that reportedly wintered large numbers of mallards actually had fewer birds than the previous year. Other states like Missouri did have more birds than usual, but we're talking about a few hundred thousand, not millions."

Olson noted that ducks like teal, shovelers, gadwalls and widgeon aren't short-stoppers. "These ducks typically migrate regardless of the temperatures found up north, yet hunters in the lower region of the flyways didn't see many of those species.

The real reason for the decline, Olson says, is that the nesting success across the pothole region, which accounts for 75% of the continents ducks, has been declining since the 1930's.

Studies by Ducks Unlimited indicate that 90% of all duck nests fail to hatch a single duckling. And in order to maintain existing populations, we need 15 to 20 percent nesting success.

Olson says "that while the large blocks of dense nesting cover provided by CRP are producing ducks above the break-even level, much of the "duck factory" are not."

"Simply having habitat is not the answer. Habitat is the most basic ingredient in duck populations and we need to protect every wetland and grassland we can."

"Research has shown that predation is the main reason production is low. The predator community has drastically changed from one that was once dominated by coyotes, wolves and grizzlies, to a duck egg gobbling collection of critters such as skunks, fox and raccoons. At the same time habitat needed for ducks to survive has been decimated."

In 2001, the total duck breeding population dropped from 41.8 million to 36.1 million, a decline of 14%. At the same time that the population dropped, the number of ponds available for nesting ducks increased. It's not normal for the number of breeding ducks to drop when there is ample water on the prairies to spur a strong breeding effort.

Research indicates that the best hope to sustain our declining duck population is to secure large scale blocks of habitat.

"However, to raise ducks with habitat alone, you'd need to cover 30 to 40 percent the size of a township (36 square mile area) in nesting cover.

"We need to consider intensive management practices such as predator proof Hen Houses and Predator Removal programs."

"This doesn't mean that we should give up on securing adequate habitat. We need to remain committed to securing enough habitat so that someday we won't have to put out Hen Houses or set traps for predators."

According to Olson, "Our best chance to secure habitat is through Acts of Congress such as the Farm Bill, these programs provide the required financial resources and mandate on a scale necessary to achieve large tracts of habitat."

"It's critical that conservation organizations continue too work to achieve legislation that supports waterfowl habitat securement."

By joining and supporting conservation groups, you're helping to assure that someone is on the front line fighting to help wildlife to survive and thrive by increasing habitat and finding the answers and solutions to wildlife problems.

Herbs for Health

Is There an Herb in Your Future?

Herbal medicine is continuing to hit the US like a storm, with sales of herbal products increasing each year by about 25%. One of 3 Americans now uses some form of herbal therapy. Many Patients have turned to herbal products -- perhaps because they believe "natural" products are safer than medicines, and because they feel they are not taking "drugs."

Unlike medicines, the testing of herbal products is not required by the US Food and Drug Administration before approval for consumer use. In some products problems due to lack of testing may include: incorrect amounts of the ingredients; wrong ingredients; and contaminants such as allergens, pollen, mold and mold spores, lead, tin, zinc, arsenic, and even drugs.

Although most persons have few problems when taking herbal products, it is best that they be avoided by pregnant women and/or nursing mothers and young children. because interactions between herbs and drugs are not well understood, care must be taken if both are being used. Ask us if you have questions about herbal products or medicines used by you or your family.

Blood bank to recognize Wayne School

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank will recognize the students and faculty at Wayne High School for outstanding participation in blood drives held during the 2001-2002 school year.

The area blood bank will present a "Certificate of Excellence" to Wayne High School.

Wayne High School played an important role in helping the siouxland Community Blood Bank achieve its mission of providing a safe and adequate blood supply to the Wayne area.

The role of youth in blood donations will play a more critical roles as America's population becomes older. Our aging population will add to a decreasing donor base while blood demands will continue to rise. The students at Wayne High School have demonstrated that our youth are ready to play a part in helping save lives in their community.

Since 1967, Siouxland Community has been serving our region. The blood bank is a member of America's Blood Centers. It is a national network of locally controlled community blood banks and blood centers that support not only their local communities healthcare needs but also network together to share blood where the greatest need is. America's Blood Centers collect about one half of the nation's blood supply.

On a daily basis, over 32,000 people receive blood to improve their healthcare. In America, 4.5 people would die every day without life saving blood transfusions. The Siouxland Community Blood Bank conducts blood drives in over 90 communities, including Wayne, and provides blood services to 25 area hospitals throughout western Iowa, southeast South Dakota and northeast Nebraska.

for more information on how to help the community improve healthcare through blood services, or when the next blood drive is in the community, call the Siouxland Community Blood Bank at 1-800-798-4208 or visit the website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org

Pheasants Forever provides habitat

Pheasants Forever is cooperating with several state and federal agencies to improve habitat in Northeast Nebraska. Logan Creek is working with The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission on several possible Prairie Restoration Projects.

The group will be providing funds for the purchase of seed primarily. Prairie Restorations involve reseeding as many as 100-150 different native species of grasses and forbs. Logan Creek is also working with Natural Resource Conservation Service, Farm Service Agency, and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission to disk and inner seed legumes into old CRP fields.

The disk and seed management practice will not take place until late summer to allow the nesting and brood rearing seasons to complete.

Logan Creek is also working with the Corn Growers Association, NRCS, and FSA to provide incentives encouraging land owners to plant buffers along creeks, streams, and other wetlands. Buffers provide wildlife habitat, filter runoff, and allow land owners to square off hard to farm areas taking marginal land out of production yet still receive annual compensation for the buffered area.

Logan Creek has already allocated a large portion of funds raised by our spring banquet. The group would like to finish the spring planting season up with a few local habitat projects. Contact any of the Logan Creek Habitat Committee members with your project ideas.

Year 2002 Wildlife Habitat Program of the Logan Creek Chapter

1) Grassland Practices Cp 25 Upgrade: Pay for the cost of upgrading to a diverse mix of grasses and forbs. Logan Creek will pay up to a maximum of 50 percent.

Nesting Cover Improvement Provide the best legume mix for producers enrolling in CRP Map, CRP renewals, and filter strips. Logan Creek will also pay $12/acre to disk existing grasses and provide the best legume mix to interseed. Dollar amount based on at least two diskings being implemented.

Field Borders Pay for 20 percent of native grass seed with legume mix. Logan Creek will also pay for fence material to separate the field border from the crop field not to exceed $100.

Prairie Restoration Logan Creek will provide cost share to an approved Nebraska Game & Parks Commission prairie restoration project.

Seed For Habitat Projects. Nebraska Pheasants Forever chapters have grass seed mixes available at a reduced rate. Some mixes are approved for CRP and filter strip programs. The seed can be delivered on site within seven working days.

2) Woodland Practices Tree and Shrub Plantings

Cost share assistance is available for trees, shrubs, and planting costs. Assistance is not to exceed $250.

Thicket Establishment Logan Creek will Pay 100 percent of seed cost to establish a thicket from seed. 1 acre maximum.

3) Food Plots Nebraska Mix Two bags of free food plot mix are available per producer.

4) No-Till Drill

6' Truax Drill. Contact Jeff Davis at Wayne Welding for availability. Rental rates are $5/acre for Pheasants Forever Members and $7/acre for none members.

5) Special Projects

• Projects are subject to availability of funds and committee approval.

• Total payment from all agencies & Pheasants Forever is not to exceed 100% Cost Share.

• Cost Share from Cooperating Agencies will be considered the primary source of funding

"I started noticing my cataracts while I was driving at night. The lights would flare out or flash out. I came to Dr. Feidler for my yearly exam and he recommended surgery to correct them.

I've been coming to Dr. Feidler for many years. Dr. Feidler removed my mother and father's cataracts and many of my friends also. I wouldn't go to anyone else. My surgery was a snap, nothing to it! It's a very minor surgery. Driving at night doesn't bother me anymore!

The staff here is very nice and polite. If they don't know the answer they will ask the doctor. I've been very happy with Dr. Herbert Feidler and Dr. Ann Feidler is a sweetheart."

Food safety important for everyday

We have recently been involved in some food safety programs, generally designed for people who are not usually in food service as their main source of employment.

Most of us are involved through churches, farm sales, county fairs and other public events. It reminds me that even though it is not our primary source of income, we are just as responsible for food safety.

One of the issues covered in the lessons was the difference in cleaning and sanitizing, and there are some important facts related to this material we all need to know.

Cleaning removes food residue from utensils and equipment surfaces. Detergents remove grease or fat associated with food residues and is the most common cleaning agent. Other cleaners include abrasive cleansers, solvents, or acids.

Sanitizing reduces the number of microorganisms on a clean surface through the use of heat or chemicals. Sanitizing is the next step after cleaning. Chlorine, iodine, and quaternary ammonium compounds (Quats) are commonly accepted sanitizers. Chlorine is probably the most important one for our homes and in temporary situations.

Factors that influence the effectiveness of chemical sanitizers are:

• Contact Time - To kill bacteria, the solution must be in contact with surface material for 10 seconds for a chlorine solution.

• Temperature - As the temperature of the sanitizing solution increases, the microbial destruction rate increases. The minimum temperature for chlorine solution should be 75 degrees F. All sanitizers work best at temperatures between 75 -120 degrees F.

• Concentration - Using concentrations above recommendations does not sanitize better and can be corrosive to equipment. Recommendations include:

• Chlorine at 2 teaspoons of chlorine bleach per gallon of water should yield a sanitizing solution greater than 50 ppm but lower than 200 ppm. A concentration of 50 ppm with a contact time of at least 10 seconds is recommended. Wiping cloths should be kept in the sanitizing solution.

• Chemical test strips or test kits are required to verify the chemical concentration of the sanitizers. Concentrations below minimum levels will not sanitize effectively, while those used above the recommended levels can leave toxic residues.

• Soap can lower the effectiveness of sanitizers. Rinse off soap well before sanitizing.

Additional Guidelines include:

• Keep wash, rinse, and sanitizing sinks clean, as well as the tools and equipment used in the wash-rinse-sanitizing process.

• Chemical sanitizers do not work on dirty surfaces.

• The effectiveness of the sanitizer decreases as it comes in contact with dishes and equipment surfaces. Occasionally, test the solution strength.

Nearly 1,000 Nebraska Lutherans — voters and visitors — will gather from 270 congregations and ministry sites to conduct the business of their synod in Kearney at the Tri-City Arena on May 30-June 1.

Vera Hummel, Jim Hummel, Ray Novak, Susan Urbanec, Lance Webster, Pastor Kevin Ruffcorn and Pastor Bill Koeber will be representing Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne as voting members in discussing and voting members in discussing and voting on issues before the church in a worship service that will enfold the business of the synod.

"Bread: Blessed for giving! Broken for living!" is the theme for the 12th regular Assembly of the Nebraska Synod Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. More than 127,000 ELCA Lutherans belong to 264 congregations in Nebraska. The ELCA is the fifth largest Protestant denomination in the nation.

Lee Strobel, a converted agnostic and sought-after speaker, is the assembly's keynote speaker. Strobel is a teaching pastor at Saddleback Valley Community Church in Orange County, Calif. He will bring two addresses centering in outreach, mission and evangelism.

A best selling author, "The Case for Christ," "The Case for Faith," and "Inside the Mind of Unchurched Harry and Mary," he is co-author of "Becoming a Contagious Christian" training curriculum used around the world. Strobel was an investigative journalist for The Chicago Tribune for 14 years. After a two-year investigation of the evidence for Jesus, he received Christ as his Forgiver and Savior in 1981.

On Thursday evening, before the Assembly opens, Lutherans will gather for a tail-gate party in the Arena parking lot. The pre-assembly "Tail-gate" party will provide an opportunity for renewing friendships, fellowship and fun.

Cold storage of peonies can prolong the cut flower's life

Garden Clippings

Wayne Area Master Gardener Program

IANR

Peonies are a popular garden flower, but seldom last more than a few days after picking. However, peonies can survive in cold storage for later use.

Peonies frequently are used for Memorial Day decorations, but often bloom too early to cut for loved ones' graves. They also are popular for spring and early summer weddings, but are often wilting or gone when it's time to decorate. This is when the ability to store peony flowers becomes valuable.

Storing flowers for later use requires planning ahead. Peony flowers need to be harvested for storage when they begin to show the first hint of color.

To prepare the flowers for storage:

- Strip leaves from the bottom third of stems;
- Bunch stems in groups of 10 to 12 and secure with a rubber band;
- Place bunches in 2-gallon, resealable, black plastic bags. Black bags will help keep out sunlight. Gently press out excess air before securing the bags.
- Store bags in a refrigerator at about 35 to 40 degrees. The bags can sit upright or lie down. Don't put the peonies in a refrigerator with items that produce ethylene, like ripening fruit, as this will decrease shelf life.
- Don't add water to the bag during storage - it can cause disease problems and ruin the flowers.

The longer peonies are stored, the shorter "vaselife" they will have. Peonies should not be stored more than three weeks. Peonies that have insects or apparent disease should not be stored.

When ready to display the flowers, remove them from the refrigerator and bag.

Recut the stems at an angle, while holding them underwater and place the flowers in a holder filled with water and a floral preservative. The peonies should open within a few hours or a day, at most.

Students participate in pizza, agriculture

Twenty-three fourth grade students at Winside Elementary School recently participated in Pizza.

On May 14 and 16 their teacher, Mr. Tim Stubbs, invited amy Topp, UN-L Extension Educator from the Cooperative Extension Office in Wayne County, to share with the students the role that agriculture plays in producing the ingredients in pizza.

Students related information that they knew about agriculture, learned about various agriculture careers and also discussed the ingredients and nutrition values of those ingredients.

During the second visit students were able to make their own mini pizza.

This project is sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber Agribusiness Taskforce in cooperation with the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension.

Health Experts Ask: Who Should Take Multivitamins?

Health experts from Harvard School of Public Health, writing in The New England Journal of Medicine, focused on the wisdom of taking multivitamin supplements. Their conclusions include that taking multivitamins is not a replacement for a poor diet or lack of exercise. They also note that "substantial data suggest that higher intakes of folic acid, vitamin B6, vitamin B12 and Vitamin D will benefit many people, and a multivitamin will ensure an adequate intake of other vitamins for which the evidence of benefit is indirect."

So, who is likely to benefit from taking vitamins or multivitamins? Elderly persons may develop vitamin B12 and D deficiencies; strict vegetarians may not get enough B12 in their diets; pregnant women with broad nutrient needs; folic acid for women during their childbearing years; and vitamin E for middle-aged persons at risk for heart disease.

Surgery has changed over the years

I remember the first hip replacements in Norfolk. It was 25 years ago. We were very careful with these patients. They had a special pillow between their legs, and could not bear weight on that leg for a long time.

Results were generally excellent. They frequently did not require a lot of medicine for pain because they had had so much pain prior to surgery, and it was relieved.

Through the years, I've cared for these folks in home health care. Then, they began replacing knees, too. A more complicated joint, but usually successful.

Lately, I've been hearing about group therapy sessions, called Joint Camp. We have now experienced that; it's almost an assembly line.

First, you and your "coach" go to class before the surgery. You learn all about the surgery, any precautions, and exercises. You are expected to do these exercises ahead of the operation day.

At Mercy in Council Bluffs, knees are done on Monday, hips on Tuesday. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, everyone gathers in the "club house" to do those exercises. A therapist leads them, but there definitely is a group mentally that motivates. They serve lunch, the patients go back to their rooms for naps, and then meet again in a group after that. Everyday, they walk, and everyday, it's a bit further down the hall.

The coaches are encouraged to stay all night, and there are chairs that become cots. They learn the exercises, and the precautions, and share the meals. In fact, there is a "gourmet meal" before they go home.

Walkers are used, but weight bearing is allowed. And, most of these folks go home on Friday!

We were told that the hospital in Florida that developed the program charges $20,000 a year for the use of the plan. The docs and other key people flew there to be oriented to it. We even came home with videos called "Home Work."

Mike didn't come home until the following Tuesday, but he's doing the exercises faithfully. He has a platform walker, a home care nurse and therapist; and me, his coach! It's slow, but steady. A far cry from the first operations. Let's hope it's all worth it.

Deadline approaching for assistance

The window of opportunity for producers to obtain marketing assistance crop loans or loan deficiency payments on 2001 corn or soybeans closes on May 31, according to Debra Pieper of the Wayne County Farm Service Agency.

"Producers can obtain a marketing assistance loan or receive a loan deficiency payment on all or part of their eligible corn or soybean crops during the loan availability period which ends on May 31," Pieper said. "Producers with 2001 crop soybeans or corn in storage should consider taking out nine-month non-recourse marketing assistance loans or obtaining a loan deficiency payment before the deadline passes."

With marketing assistance loans, eligible producers get low interest interim operating capital while continuing to hold the commodity for future sale," she explained. The loans have a nine-month term and variable interest rate. The current interest rate is 3.625 percent.

"Producers that obtain a marketing assistance loan on their 2001-crop corn or soybean crops can still take advantage of benefits available if prices fall," Pieper said. "This can be done through the repayment options available to them before their loan matures."

The actual loan repayment rate is the lesser of the county loan rate plus accrued interest, or the posted county price for the day the repayment is made. The difference between these two options is the market gain that producers earn when repaying their loan.

"The market gain they earn with this repayment option is similar to the benefits received from loan deficiency payments," Pieper said. "It is important to note that these options are only available to producers that have not already received LDP benefits or have not re-paid a loan at a discount previously on the same bushels."

Information on FSA's commodity loan and loan deficiency payment programs is available from the Wayne County USDA Service Center located at 709 Providence Road.

Doing their part

Members of the Hi-Raters 4-H Club and several others took part in the club's annual Road Side Cleanup on May 10. Members picked up trash from several miles of country road southwest of Wayne. In addition to cans, bottles and paper, the group also found several car parts and a large piece of carpet in the ditches.

Continuous conservation reserve program available

Most landowners, land-users and the general public are familiar with the large fields and areas that were enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) that USDA initiated about 18 years ago. But the continuous conservation reserve program may be a program that some landowners, land-users and the general public may still not be fully familiar with. Continuous CRP areas are generally smaller in size and perhaps not as visible. The continuous CRP practices are planted to grasses and trees like their larger cousin. But these small continuous CRP practices provide very effective erosion control and wildlife benefits for their size. In short these practices are providing a good bang for the buck in their effectiveness of what they do. In fact since the inception of the continuous CRP, additional practices have been added to give additional options available to landowners and users.

The most commonly used continuous CRP practices include the following: FIELD WINDBREAKS, FARMSTEAD, WINDBREAKS (SHELTERBELTS), GRASSED WATERWAYS, FILTER STRIPS, FARMED WETLANDS, RIPARIAN BUFFERS.

So why should any of these small continuous CRP practices interest you as a landowner, land-user or a person of the general public?

For their size these practices provide effective conservation measures in several ways. There is the erosion control with acts to keep soil, sediment & organic matter from leaving the fields. Herbicides and nutrients from fertilizer applications often attach themselves to soil and organic matter. The CRP practices help prevent the soil, sediment & organic matter from leaving the field. In fact, filter strips properly designed can remove up to 90% of the sediments and nutrients that would have run off into streams and rivers. This helps to preserve water quality in our streams and rivers. Planting of the grasses and trees creates new habitat for upland game birds and songbirds.

For landowners and land-users who have wet areas that they have had difficulty farming, areas that are difficult to access, or cross, or maybe a center pivot corner with a blowing problem these practices fit in very well. In fact for many of the areas just mentioned one of these CRP practices would likely provide the best economical return per acre.

On top of the conservation benefits there are financial benefits for the landowner and land-user. First of all USDA will make an annual payment based on the soil rental rate. Each county has established a soil rental rates for the different soils in the country. The annual soil rental payment is based on the soil type (or three predominant soils) present on the area where the practice is installed. The annual rental payment would be made for 10-15 years depending on the practice.

In addition some practices are eligible for a 20% incentive above the soil rental rate. Let's say you are interested in installing a filter strip. The soil rental rate is $80.00/acre for the soil or soils in the area the filter strip would occupy. The yearly rental payment would be $80.00/ac x 20% incentive ($16.00) or $80.00 + $16.00 = $96.00/acre. On top of this is added a $50.00/acre maintenance fee. Your total annual soil rental payment would be $101.00/acre. If you enrolled 5 acres your yearly total would be $505.00.

All of the continuous CRP practices are eligible for cost share. USDA will cost share 50% of the county average price for installing the CRP practices. These could involve of the following: shaping (if needed), grass seed, planting of the grass with a grassland drill, trees, planting of trees and mowing of the site for weed control to help establish the vegetative cover.

Depending on the practice there is an additional incentive that enhances the economical benefits even more. For some practice there is a Signing Inventive Payment (SIP). SIP is a one time up front payment of $10.00 per acres times the number of acres enrolled times the number of years the practices is signed up for. As an example you enroll 5 acres of filter strops for 15 years. $10.00/acres x 5 acres x 15 years. The one time SIP payment is $750.00.

All continuous CRP practices are eligible for a Practices Incentive Payment (PIP). PIP is one time inventive payment equal to 40% of the total eligible cost of practice installation.

Some additional cost share might be available from your local Natural Resource District. The Nebraska Game and Parks Dept. also has available their Management Access pRogram where they pay for allowing walk in hunting on these site. Landowners and land-users need to know that they still have full control of their land and can refuse to allow any hunting if they so desire.

Landowners and land-users are adequately compensated for enrolling and applying the continuous CRP practices. The CRP practices are generally small in size but provide very good conservation measures. Once applied, the practices enhance the environment and wildlife benefits. If you think you might have an area you would like to put into the continuous CRP contact your local Natural Resource Conservation Service office.

THANK YOU

We wish to thank our dear families, friends, co-workers of Binswanger Glass, customers, the staff of Wayne Community Schools, parents, and children for all of the prayers, words of encouragement, help and concern that have been shown to us during the past six and one-half months.

We appreciate these many acts of kindness: cards, telephone calls, flowers, gifts, food, and visits while being hospitalized in Sioux City and since returning home.

Special thanks reach out to many: EMT's, Mark Tietz and Dennis Spangler; the staff of Providence Medical Center and Drs. Felber, Martin and Gary West P.A.; the staff of Mercy Medical Center and Dr. Barrie Purves, neurosurgeon; the team of oncologists and the team of radiologists of the Siouxland Regional Cancer Center; to Donna Jacobson of Wayne Home Health Care; to Gail McCorkindale, James Olson and Dr. Kahanfe of Providence Out Patient Services; to Dr. Dudley, to Will Davis of Sav-Mor Pharmacy; to Steve Muir of First National Insurance Agency; and to neighbors, Todd and Mary Jenkins for the care of our pets and to Harry and Tom Wittler for snow removal.

A favorite quote states: "A friend comes in when the whole world's gone out." The timing of the personal visits, the telephone calls, and the prayers offered by Pastor Anderson, Pastor Koeber and Pastor Fale were always appropriate to our greatest moments of need. We appreciated being served communion by Pastor Fale both in the hospital and in our home.

Another quote states: "God touches our lives when we make a friend." We are truly blessed to have so many wonderful people in our lives. May all of you be blessed with God's richest blessings.

Richard and Patricia Jenkins

The regular meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education was held at the Wayne High School, Wayne, NE on Monday May 13, 2002 at 7:13 p.m. Notice of the meeting and place of agenda was published in the Wayne Herald.

The following board members answered roll call: Jean Blomenkamp, Bill Dickey, John Dunning, Sue Gilmore, Dennis Lipp, and Kaye Morris.

Adoption of the Agenda: Motion to adopt the agenda. Motion carried.

Approval of Minutes from Previous Meeting: Motion to approve the minutes from the previous meeting. Motion carried.

Personnel:

Dwaine Spieker: Dwaine was selected to attend the National Endowment for the Humanities seminar and would like to receive pay-scale credit. Although the actual time it will take is not known until he is there, it is estimated it will approximately take 3 hours. Motion to give Dwaine Spieker a maximum of 3 hrs. in pay-scale credit while attending the National Endowment for the Humanities seminar this summer. Motion carried.

Termination Resolutions: Motion to approve the Termination Resolution for staff not requesting a hearing for Winter Todd, Monica Sievers, and Colleen Janke. Motion carried. Motion to approve the amendment Resolution for staff not requesting a hearing for Barbara Gillan and Cheryl Kopperud. Motion carried.

Resignations: Motion to approve the resignation of Katie Crawford as custodian. Motion carried. Motion to approve the resignation of John Redel as custodian. Motion carried.

Financial Claims and Reports: Motion to approve the financial claims and reports as presented. Motion carried.

Gifts: None

Bids and Contracts:

Transportation: Dr. Reinert presented the board with the old and new busing contracts. Also included was a summary of scheduled transportation. The summary showed a breakdown of the cost of the contract over the years with a 3% increase. However, due to the elimination of the Wednesday route to and from Carroll and less miles traveled in the Carroll routes next year, the contract should actually be reduced by $10,000. Amendment was made to the contract stating that if funding is lost the contract could be terminated. Areas needing to be addressed in the new contract include changing the bus age and researching whether our insurance coverage is sufficient in the case of accident. Motion to approve the proposed Busing Contract pending an Insurance evaluation and the age of each bus. Motion carried.

Pre-Scheduled Communications from the Public:

Cheryl Suehl/Lori Ruskamp- Cheryl and Lori presented the board with a handout addressing the Elementary faculty and staff concerns regarding the proposed technology plan. They are concerned that centralizing printers will interrupt classrooms as well as the library. Also worried about affects this will have on the children's learning. Staff feel the survey they had done dealing with technology has not been looked at and the teachers are not being involved in the decision process. They hope their concerns will be taken into consideration.

Mary Ann Lutt- She had echoing concerns for the proposed technology plan in the Middle School. In Mary Ann's handout several concerns were addressed. A major concern was that the student's needs are not being met. Staff feel a lab is not sufficient due to the fact that you will not have access anywhere anytime. A few students cannot be sent at any given time to a lab that is unsupervised without disrupting the entire class. Several staff had signed the letter of concerns and they hope they will be taken in to consideration.

Dwaine Spieker- Thanked the board for providing funding to the language arts program and allowing the addition of another position. He reported on the improvements that were able to be made because of the funding and addition. Improvements included being able to add pages to the students term paper, having additional essays on English daily quizzes, allowed them to use essays instead of tests as final grade system, were able to rewrite study guides and quizzes, time spent on average essays doubled, added four major units in the British curriculum, benefits were seen in the extracurricular activities (ex. Speech team), and they were able to incorporate six traits writing. The program has benefited from the decision of the board.

The board thanked Dwaine Spieker for the follow-up. Jean Blomenkamp responded to the technology concerns by stating that when funding is cut, we need to look at where the biggest pay back is. In the past technology was funded greatly from revenue generated by bus sales and grants. The focus of grants is innovation. Once something is not new, you are expected to generate the funds yourself. The concerns will be looked at and will be taken into consideration in the decision process.

Informational Items or Reports:
Administration—
Building Projects-
Dr. Zeiss—

Graduation Requirements in Science- The High School Science department requests and recommends that the board increases the science requirements from 2 to 3 years. This would put us in line with the Math department. The plan would be to implement a course such as Earth Science. The Chemistry in the current system may not be for all students and we don't really have another course that covers the Earth science standards. Current staff would be able to cover the course. It is not likely that in adding this course we would be taking away from other classes. The decision will be tabled until next months meeting.

Foreign Exchange Program- Two students are usually selected each year for the foreign exchange program. Before we except, however, background checks are done on the organization to make sure they are certified. The Educational Foundation for Foreign Study has requested Silja Plum for placement in the 2002-2003 school year. Her acceptance requires a tuition waiver by the Board. Motion to approve the tuition waiver of Silja Plum for the 2002-2003 school year. Motion carried.

Superintendent Report:

Budget Considerations: Dr. Reinert gave an overview of what the school is looking at for Summer projects. Eight modular buildings have been sold and we are looking at keeping two. The site where the modulars were located will become a graveled parking lot. The remaining lease purchase on the modulars is $74,000. The Elementary school will need two door openers on the main front doors for two handicapped students coming into the school. The cost is approximately $18,000. Playground equipment will also be needed. Sprinklers and grass is expected to cost $14,000 at the Middle School. They are also still waiting on the Volleyball Standards/Nets and Weight equipment. The Middle School is facing some problems with the Heating/Cooling system. The Contractor didn't take into consideration how hard the water is in Wayne. The buildup of this causes problems with valves. Chemicals in the boiler system may solve the problem. The High School needs to have the gym floor refinished. The High School will also be getting the boiler from the Carroll school. This boiler will help the system run more efficiently as a backup. The cost of this project will be $3,250. Other areas include the possibility of a preschool, negotiations, the Carroll sale, computer/printers, network is in of more memory, kitchen needs some new equipment, policies, and 02-03 budget increase.

Board Committees:

Facility — June 1st is the Carroll sale. We have an interest in the building. The prospective buyer will be looking at the site. Sam was out to tour the track. It appears we won't need any major digging to fix the drainage problem. He also pointed out that we don't have to have runways as long as we do. The decision has been made to eliminate the pole vault. There are too many accidents lately and the cost to meet the constantly changing standards is high. The downside to this is we cut our points in meets when we compete against other teams who do have individuals pole vaulting. We are near our goal for track funds, but more is needed.

DUNK THE PRINCIPAL

The Winside Elementary students were challenged by elementary principal Lynn Pierce to reach a goal of 3000 points in the Accelerated Readers Program. By the end of March, they had over 4200 points. The students read selected books at or slightly above their reading level and took quizzes over the books. Students earned points if they passed the quiz.

At the beginning of the quarter, teachers set point goals for each student. Each time a student reached a quarter goal they earned the opportunity to dunk the principal. This past week, as weather warmed, Mr. Pierce took the plunge when a number of students succeeded in hitting the mark to trip the seat.

A first grader attempts to hit the target so Winside Elementary School Principal Lynn Pierce falls into the dunk tank.
