Van found guilty on all five charges

by Mike Grosz
Of the Herald

A Wayne County District Court jury late Tuesday afternoon found Wayne floral shop owner Roger Van guilty on all five charges in the sexual torture case of a Houston, Texas man.

The eight-woman, four-man jury deliberated for nearly 3 1/2 hours, including lunch, before reaching a verdict in the case.

The 55-year-old Van was found guilty of first-degree sexual assault, first-degree assault, second-degree assault, false imprisonment and terroristic threats.

First-degree sexual assault is a Class II felony and carries a sentence of 1 to 50 years in prison. First-degree assault is a Class III felony and has a sentence of 1 to 20 years in prison and/or a $25,000 fine. Second-degree assault and false imprisonment are Class III A felonies and can be punishable up to five years in prison and/or a $10,000 on each count. The terroristic threat charge carries a sentence of up to five years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine.

Van's bond was raised from $50,000 to $100,000 by Wayne County District Court Judge Robert Ensz following the guilty verdicts. Van then posted $5,000, ten percent, and is free with sentencing set for Sept. 4 in Wayne County District Court.

Prosecuting attorney Chris Connolly of the Wayne County Attorney's Office said after the trial he was very pleased and grateful of the guilty verdicts.

"The subject matter was the most difficult part of the case. It had to be presented in a manner that the jury could understand."

Connolly said that former co-defendant Jerry Marshall's testimony was important to the case. "Marshall's testimony backed up things that Cooper (the victim) was saying."

Connolly called the case the most bizarre he has ever worked in his 17 years as a lawyer.

Van's attorney, Jim McGough of Norfolk, says his client maintains his innocence and is discussing options for an appeal.

McGough said the case was "full of lies, deceit and perception. The facts are inflammatory. Different witnesses interpreted different action."

Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster said the case was difficult and challenging, straining the human and financial resources of his department.

Webster added bringing the case to trial would not have been possible without the help of the victim, Jonathan Cooper.

Webster said "he opened his life for all to see, and had to face very personal issues in

Activity Center update presented

The Wayne Community Activity Center is approximately 75 percent complete.

Efforts by Construction Manager, Otte Construction, and Architect Carlson, West, Povondra, have kept the scheduled completion date as the end of October. They have also been able to keep the project under budget to date.

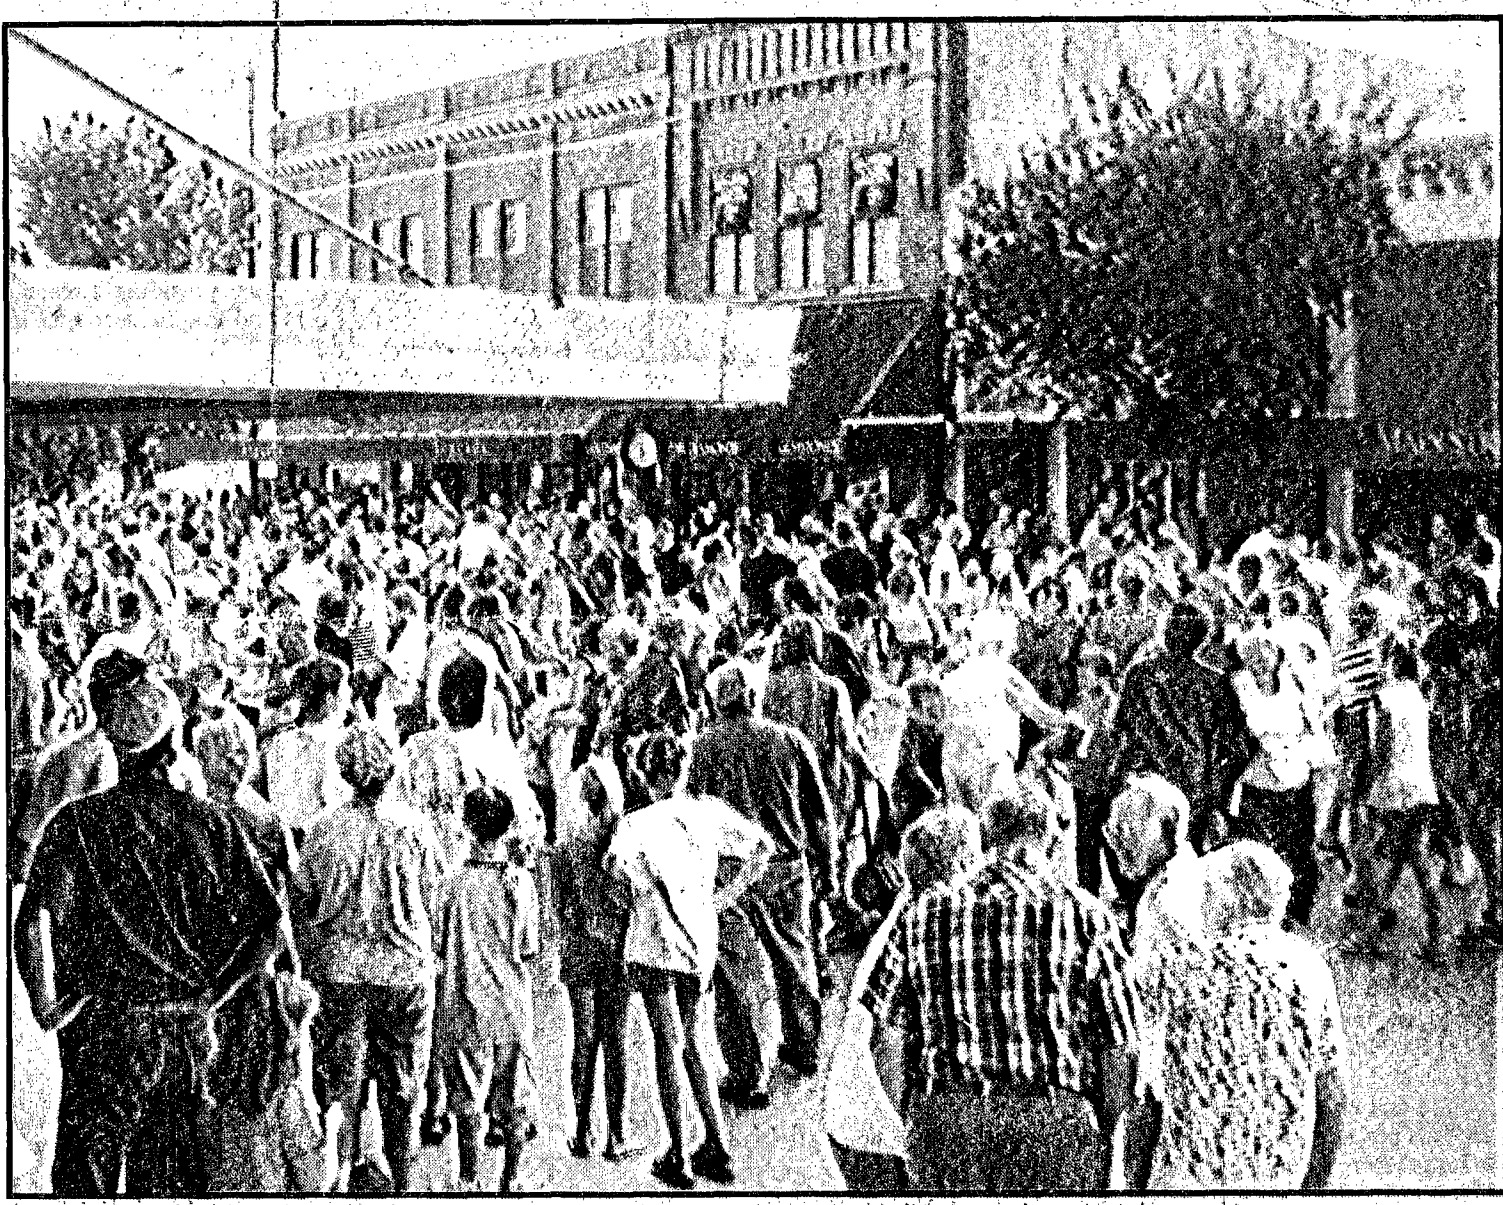

Fundraising efforts are underway to fund a share of the project. The total budget has been projected at $4.2 million. This amount includes $93,000 for the value of the ground donated by the school and $133,000 additional cost to install a geothermal heating/cooling system over a standard system. The city of Wayne has agreed to pay that portion of the construction costs in anticipation that the system will cost more at the present time but save money in the long run.

The city sales tax will raise and estimated $3,116,000. A state grant was awarded to the project for $350,000. Fundraising efforts to date have brought in approximately $173,000.

"Income to be applied to the total budget adds up to $3,871,000, leaving a balance to be collected of $329,000," said Bob Keating, a member of the Activity Center Committee and the Fundraising Committee.

The project has been awarded a Challenge Grant by a Nebraska Foundation for $250,000. This leaves the remaining amount to be collected for the capitol campaign at $79,000. This remaining amount must be collected by Sept. 30, 2002 in order for the project to receive the $250,000 challenge grant money.

Fair is only two weeks away

The hot days in recent weeks can only mean that it is July and fair time is just around the corner.

The 80th annual Wayne County Fair begins with entry day on Wednesday, July 31 and runs through Sunday, Aug. 4.

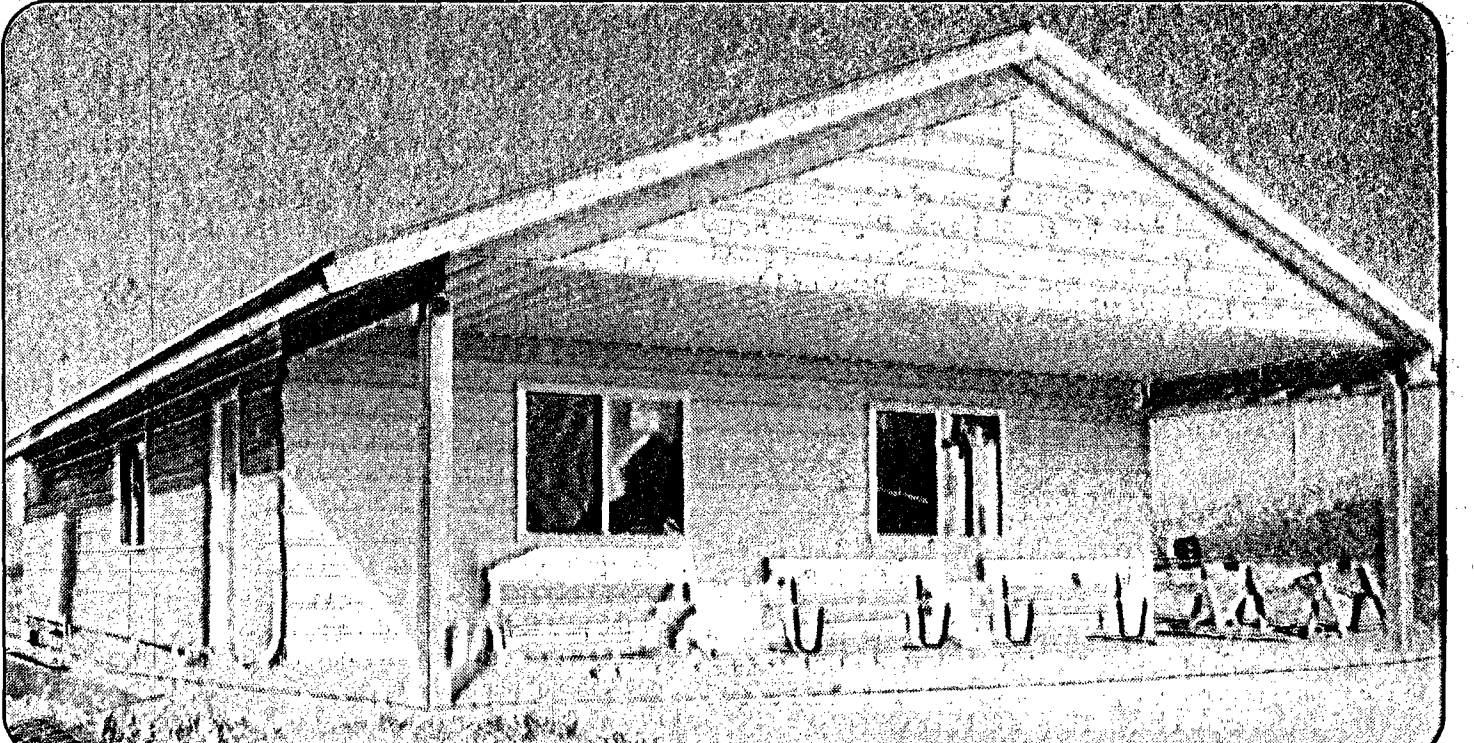

Fair-goers will notice several changes at the fair grounds this year.

Members of the Fair Board and other volunteers demolished the former fair office and have spent a considerable amount of time erecting a 28 by 50 foot new building to be used as the fair office.

The building, which will have central air conditioning and heat, will include a large office and a separate meeting room to be used for board meetings. A 10-foot overhang on the east side will provide shade from the morning sun.

Members of the board have discussed the need for a new, larger office for several years but the cost was prohibitive.

Early this year Eric Grone of Wayne designed plans for a building that could serve as the office. Fair board members revised the plans and construction began

Merchant to be honored at upcoming banquet

The public is invited to attend a ceremony for Robert A. Merchant of Wayne who will be honored by the Grand Lodge of Nebraska on Saturday, July 27 at 6:30 p.m.

Robert Merchant

when he will receive the Grand Master's Humanitarian Award. This award is the most coveted given by the grand lodge of Nebraska.

The evening's events will be held at Frey Conference Suite in the Student Center on the Wayne State College campus. Tickets are $10 per person which includes a buffet dinner. Please RSVP by Tuesday, July 23 to Dave Kirkpatrick, secretary of the Wayne Lodge at 402-375-4703 or Curt Jeffries, master, 402-375-1231.

Merchant was nominated by his lodge, Wayne Lodge No. 120. Freemasonry has and continues to teach the principles of duty, honesty, fidelity, charity, truth, tolerance, harmony and education.

The Grand Master's Humanitarian Award was conceived as an honor that would be given to brothers who best practice and instill these attributes of Masonry into their communities. The purpose is to recognize the recipient for all the work they have done in their hometown and for Masonry. Although Masons do not seek public recognition for activities rendered to individuals or communities in need, they deserve recognition for their work.

Merchant has been deeply involved in the Wayne United Methodist Church, civic organizations, the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers Association, and Wayne Lodge. Merchant's ties with the community, friends and family will be a focus of the evening's presentation.

This is what Merchant Oil Co. looked like around 1950.

Looking back on Masonry, business, life

Looking back on his life, Robert Merchant notes he has been a Mason for 55 years. He was master twice; once in 1955 and once in 1976.

"I got my inspiration in Masonry from my father," Merchant said. "He was also a master."

Merchant learned from his father, E.H. Merchant, in masonry and in business. As a boy, Robert worked at his father's service station in Wayne which was located where Genos is now. The business operated both town and rural service providing tires of all types, and fuel in town and in the country. Robert attended Wayne State College for two years and during this time continued to work with his father.

NEBRASKANS GENEROUS TO HOMETOWNS

By Governor Mike Johanns

Dear Nebraska Neighbors,

The people of our great state have always been generous. As Nebraskans, we don't think twice about opening our homes, hearts and wallets to help those in need. In fact, the Internal Revenue Service ranks our state 13th in the nation in charitable giving as a percentage of adjusted gross income. That's a ranking we can all be proud of.

Our state ranks much lower, however, when it comes to charitable giving through wills and bequests. Currently, we're sitting at 41st in the nation.

This ranking is sure to turn around soon thanks to the efforts of the Nebraska Community Foundation's Legacy Challenge. A non-profit corporation founded in 1993, the Foundation's purpose is to improve the quality of life in the hometowns of charitable donors all across Nebraska by establishing lasting, self-perpetuating endowments.

Four Nebraska communities are already benefiting from the Legacy Challenge. Albion, Red Cloud, Ogallala and Shickley have been the beneficiaries of $100,000 donations from generous residents and former residents. The communities will match the money on at least a one to one ratio in their effort to build permanent unrestricted community endowments. Matching funds are allocated using a population-based sliding scale of one to one for communities with less than 3,000 residents, two to one for 3,000 to 15,000 residents, and three to one for over 15,000 residents.

Investing in our rural communities is not only the right thing to do, it's the smart thing to do. By giving toward the betterment of our communities, we better the lives of those around us. There's no place on Earth like Nebraska when it comes to teaching children the importance of family, community and hard work ethic.

The Nebraska Community Foundation recently released some dramatic numbers based on their own analysis of intergenerational wealth transfer in Nebraska. Over the next 50 years, the estimated transfer of wealth in Nebraska will likely exceed $250 billion. Rural Nebraska will likely exceed $94 billion. Those are some pretty large numbers considering that just 5 percent of those amounts could easily sustain an endowment for many, many years.

Today, rural Nebraska struggles with an aging population, out-migration, a volatile farm economy, drought and an increased need for infrastructure renewal. Charitable donations are key toward helping the hometowns we love flourish once again. They not only sustain the quality of life in our rural communities, they enhance it.

At the state level, we've made significant strides over the course of the past few years with regard to rural economic development. We have success stories every day whether it's the groundbreaking of a new ethanol plant, the opening of a new call center or the ribbon cutting of a new community center. But there's always room for more. The benefits we can derive from the charitable donations of successful Nebraskans are numerous. Libraries, senior centers, parks, swimming pools, museums and scholarships name but a few.

Our "Nebraska United" must continue to support our hometowns. I applaud the Nebraska Community Foundation's Legacy Challenge for their efforts, and I urge those who are able to give generously to the communities they love.

For more information about the Legacy Challenge, visit the Nebraska Community Foundation's web site at www.nbcfound.org discharged from the service. He returned to Wayne and became a partner with his father in the business, Merchant Oil Inc. In 1946, he married Pauline Kunde.

When Robert's father's health began failing around 1949, Robert began running the business on his own. He became sole owner in 1962 and ran it until April, 1987 when he sold it to Grant Ellingson.

Robert and Pauline's family consists of two daughters: Paulette and Randy Cordes of York and Joan and Mike Jones of David City. There are five grandchildren. Paulette works at Epworth Village and Randy is a teacher at the school in York and Joan is a nurse and Mike is in the insurance business.

"I've spent my whole life here," Merchant said. "Life has been good. As long as you take care of people, they'll take care of you."

This past weekend proved one thing for certain, when we throw a party, we can throw a party. This by far was the best Chicken Show I have ever attended. The temperature was wonderful. The crowds were BIG and the entertainment was fantastic. I had the opportunity to visit with a lot of out-of-towners; one was Secretary of State John Gale. Mr. Gale was on the campaign trail through Northeast Nebraska. I visited with him and found he was quite a knowledgeable individual and someone who I hope I can meet again closer to election this fall. Mr. Gale was one of several candidates who took advantage of the large crowds and Wayne's wonderful hospitality.

My in-laws again came down to Wayne to peddle their goods and had a good weekend. My-mother-in-law's hand-crafted towels seemed to be a big hit. One thing I wanted to say was that the people who gave their own time to make this event happen should get a medal. Problems always come up, but I saw only a well managed event and they should be commended. Special thanks should go to President Sheila Stearns and her staff at the college for letting the event be held on the WSC campus. I can't wait for next year to see if the organizers can top this year's event. I bet they will!

Archway needs politics

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

At least one Capitol wag saw what she considered a bright side the other day in the state's economic problems.

"The good news is the state doesn't have the money to buy the arch near Kearney!"

The museum that spans I-80 near Kearney is a tribute to the pioneers who made it west via what we call The Great Platte River Road. To say the least, it is in big financial trouble.

Supporters of the archway, intended to honor people who unarguably deserve the recognition, are doing all manner of things to get the project on sound footing.

That's fine. But one, real problem is that the archway lacked something from the get-go that it really needed.

You know what it was? Good ol' partisan politics! You bet, buckaroos.

Partisan politics would likely have helped out quite a bit. Heck, even nonpartisan politics would have helped a little bit.

Example: If a bunch of elected politicians had to approve the thing, do you think they would have allowed a deal where potential visitors had to first drive past the arch in order get back to it?

Fear of constituent criticism would have put a dose of common sense into that deal.

And, being as gentle as possible about it, no sane incumbent would have voted a nickel for those big metallic things, purported to be horses, that haunt either side of the arch. Talk about an insult to the equine constituency! Those things are enough to scare children and old people.

Politics involves a little salesmanship, too. That's why Democrats and Republicans always say that their party offers open arms - and an open mind - to those from the other party. Of course, some of them are lying but that happens in sales as well as politics.

The point is that if partisan political minds had worked on the thing, there wouldn't be signs on both sides of it telling passersby not to slow down and peek for fear of causing a wreck! Politicians would have come as close as possible to bells and whistles and a daily drawing for a "Get out of jail, FREE!" card.

And, if the archway "as is" had somehow made it through the political process, you can bet your whatever that the last big fight would have seen each party fighting to name it - in honor of the other party.

Good planning

Dear Editor,
Thank you to everyone involved in planning Chicken Days.

The preparation and work that it takes to put something this large is phenomenal. It is great to see all of the organizations and individuals work together to make this possible.

P.S. It is great to be a Hen in Wayne America where Chicken Days just keeps growing every year!

Reward posted

Dear Editor,
A nest box with five, ready to hatch, bluebird eggs was smashed south of Wayne. The destruction occurred the weekend after the Fourth of July.

Active nest boxes are protected by both Federal and State laws. According to Mark Webb, Federal Game Warden, disturbance of these boxes are punishable by up to a $10,000 fine and six months in jail. Nebraska State Statutes also include the protection of songbirds and destruction of private property.

Bluebirds Across Nebraska, (BAN) the state bluebird recovery organization, is offering a $100 reward to anyone with information leading to the arrest of the people responsible for vandalism. Contact Donna Liska, Wayne County Coordinator for BAN, for additional information.

In the late 1970's the bluebird population was down to 10 percent. Throughout the United States, these beautiful, people-friendly birds, along with other cavity nesters, are making a comeback through the nest box conservation program. In Wayne County, there are volunteers checking nest boxes to help increase the number of bluebirds in this locality. The destruction of just one nest box affects the future generations of the bluebirds.

Working together, bluebirds and other cavity nesting birds can be a rewarding and enjoyable part of our environment.

Donna Liska,

Touched by kindness

Dear Editor,
Here is a story about our youth in Wayne.

Our son, his wife and our two granddaughters, who live in northwest Iowa, were here for Chicken Days. Along with many other kids, our granddaughters were given helium filled balloons by one of the parade participants.

We should have tied the balloon to the belt loop of our five-year-old granddaughter, but before we thought to do that, the balloon got away from her and headed for the sky. Our granddaughter burst into tears and ran for her mother's arms.

A couple of minutes later a young lady (about 11 to 13 years old and sitting by herself) came over from half a block away and on the other side of the street to give our granddaughter the balloon that she had.

We are sorry that we did not get her name, because we would like everyone to know what a fine young person she is. We were deeply touched by this act of kindness by such a young person and we enjoyed the rest of the day with a warm glow in our hearts.

Carmen and Tom Tilgner,
Wayne

Thanks from fliers

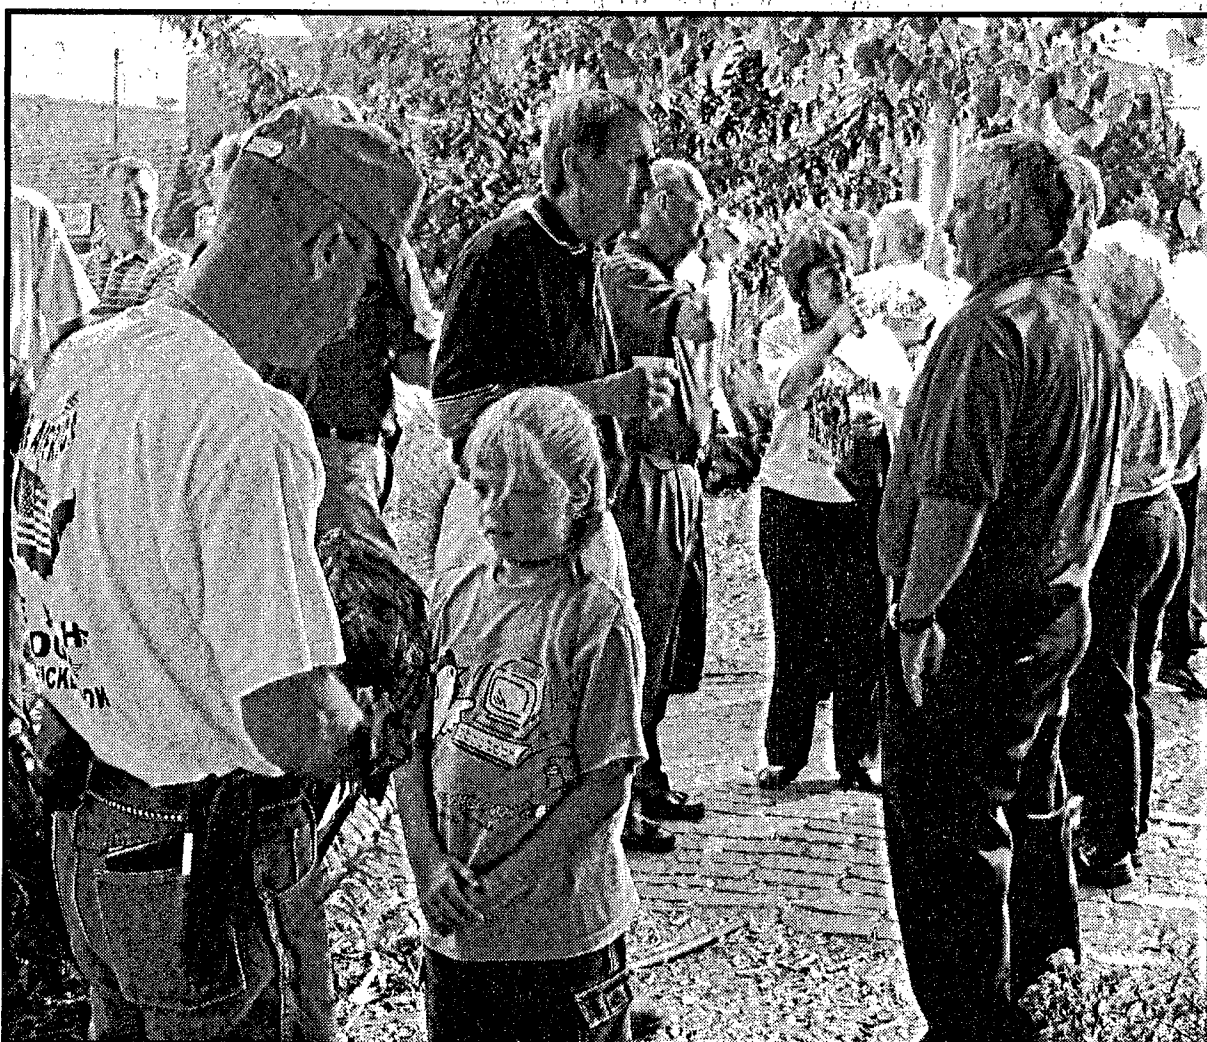

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank all the parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles, that brought kids to the Wayne Airport on July 13 in order for them to have a ride in an airplane.

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) has a goal of flying 1 million youngsters, nationally, by the year 2003, which is the 100 year anniversary of the Wright Brothers first flight.

EAA Chapter 291 of Martin Field at South Sioux City sponsored these rides again this year and flew 109 kids, which is a one day record for the Chapter.

I'd like to thank the Airport Board and Management for their cooperation in welcoming us and allowing the use of their facilities. Thank you also to the pilots, some of whom are from Wayne, for donating their time and airplanes for this event. This is a volunteer effort on the part of pilots with no reimbursement for fuel or other expenses which go along with the ownership of an airplane.

Scott Morgan,
Allen

Can I touch it?

Dacia Dickey was somewhat hesitant to touch the chicken being held by Mitch Osten during Friday's Chamber Coffee. The coffee, held in the State National Bank Park, was a kick-off for the Henoween and Chicken Show activities. During the coffee members of the committees responsible for organizing the activities were introduced and events of the weekend explained.

several months ago. All the labor for the new building is coming from volunteers with the exception of the cement work and electrical wiring.

Other improvements at the fairgrounds include the moving of the small animals to the building just north of the former building. Half of one of the swine barns will serve as home to rabbits, chickens, ducks and geese during this year's fair. The remaining half of the building will continue to be used for swine.

Wayne State College donated several bleachers to the Fair Board. These were painted and used to replace a number of the planks on the swine buildings.

Among this year's attractions is a performance by Sons of the Desert on Thursday, Aug. 1. The performance begins at 8 p.m. in the grandstand.

Sons of the Desert frontman Drew Womack wrote his first song in the second grade, only to stuff the written lyrics behind the family washing machine so he wouldn't get caught by his parents. Years later he realized he had to share his songwriting talents and unmistakable voice with the world. He and his brother, Tim, bassist Doug Virden, boardist Scott Saunders and later drummer Rob Steitler, formed Sons of the Desert. In 1997, the Sons released their debut album, "Whatever Comes First," on Epic Records. Later the band parted ways with Epic and joined the MCA Nashville family.

"Change," the group's latest release, tells it like it could be. The songs convey a world where life isn't perfect, but the people in it can still imagine something better on the horizon.

On Thursday only, admission to the fair will be $10. All other days, the admission will be $6. However, season passes are currently on sale at all the banks in the county and at Pac 'N Save in Wayne. The passes are $10 for adults and $5 for those 12 to 15 years of age. At the gate these prices will be $12 and $6, respectively.

Friday's entertainment will be provided by Tonic Sol Fa, also scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Tonic Sol-fa has been billed as the Midwest's premiere vocal quartet. They pack dynamo and audience interaction into fresh hip-hop harmonies, classic soul, even award-winning originals and cartoons. Tonic Sol-fa is a Midwest Hall of Fame award winner and has been nominated three times for the NACA Entertainer of the Year and five times for the NACA Contemporary Artist of the Year.

Throughout the fair, R.D. Coonrad, Chainsaw Artist, will be creating a variety of wildlife and human figures. An auction of these carvings will take place on Sunday, Aug. 4 at 4:30 p.m. at the grandstand.

Additional activities scheduled for the four-day event will be included in future editions of the Herald.

Spectators lined the streets from First Street to Wayne State College. Here, several of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department vehicles head north at the beginning of the parade.

Careers end for three teachers

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Three teachers, with a combined 99 years of teaching, won't be returning to the classroom when school starts next month.

Sue Larson, left, and Joyce Mitchell, seated next to her, were recognized during this year's commencement exercises for their year's of service to the Wayne Public Schools. Mary Ann DeNaeyer, who also retired this year, was unable to be present for the event.

Sue Larson, Joyce Mitchell and Mary Ann DeNaeyer have recently ended their full-time teaching careers.

Mrs. Larson, a Wayne native, graduated from Wayne High School and Wayne State Teachers College. She taught in Akron, Iowa for three years and has spent 25 years at Wayne Elementary School. Her first year was spent teaching first grade and the last 24 have been in a third grade classroom.

Her family includes her husband, Don, who farms southeast of Wayne and two sons, Don T., a wildlife biologist in Kennewick, Wash. and Doug, a physician's assistant in Omaha.

"I will miss the kids and the celebrations at holidays. I will also miss the special feeling when school starts and the connection with teachers," Mrs. Larson said.

She said she will not miss the additional paperwork that has been required in recent years and recess duty when it is cold outside.

Through her teaching career, Mrs. Larson said changes have taken place.

"The class size is more manageable now. When I started here, there were only two sections of each class. That has now changed to three. This past year I had 18 students in my class, which is a very good number."

Another change Mrs. Larson noted was that teachers today have to compete with television and videos for students' attention and "have to be more entertaining."

Her plans for retirement are not definite.

"August will tell the tale. Right now, I don't feel any different, but that will change when school starts," she said.

"The students at this age need to be treated on an equal basis and know that their feelings are real. I have always tried to understand them. They respect that."

Her future plans include spending time with her grandchildren,

She does hope to do some traveling, reading, volunteer work and plans to do some substitute teaching.

"Teaching has been great. The years have gone by so fast."

Joyce Mitchell graduated from Belden High School and received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Wayne State College in 1967. She taught for three years in Laurel before coming to Wayne.

Her first teaching assignment at Wayne Middle School included both junior high Social Studies and English. In recent years, she has been teaching eighth grade English.

Her family includes her husband, Gene, and three sons, Rick, a sales manager in Hutchinson, Kan.; Rob, a superintendent for a commercial builder in Bellevue and Dan a computer coordinator for Yankton High School in Yankton, S.D. In addition, she has four granddaughters.

"I will miss the kids immensely. They have been my life. I love their spontaneity," Mrs. Mitchell said.

She will not miss meetings and record keeping.

"Through the years, the state requirements have changed and the curriculum now places more emphasis on writing," she said.

She said the students she has taught through her career are a "patchwork quilt" and that teaching has been a "wonderful experience."

the public arena."

Cooper and his partner, Frank Bonner, released a statement through the Wayne Police Department saying "we are happy that this case was decided fairly and with justice by the jury. We are grateful to the Wayne County Attorney's Office for their hard work in prosecuting this case and we would like to offer thanks to the City of Wayne Police Department for their investigation and handling of this case."

Nine witnesses testified in the case. On the witness stand last week were Frank Bonner and Jonathan Cooper, both of Houston, Texas; Dr. Kris Mohandie, a psychologist with the Los Angeles

Police Department who makes $300 an hour; Wayne Police Lt. Phil Shear; William Thomas Cooper of Bloomfield, NJ, the father of Jonathan Cooper and Jerry Marshall.

On the witness stand this week were Marshall, Houston, Texas police officer Ruston Allsbrooks, along with deposition testimony from Frank Adams and Rhonda Rubin of Houston, Texas, a friend of Cooper.

Following the announcement of the guilty verdicts on Roger Van, a sentencing hearing was held for Van's former co-defendant, Jerry Marshall. Marshall reached a plea bargain with prosecutors before the trial and agreed to plead guilty to third-degree assault. Part of the plea deal was that Marshall serve no more than six months in prison with credit for time served and no fine.

Marshall appeared before Wayne County District Court Judge Robert Ensz and was given credit by the judge for his time served and became a free man. He was arrested Jan. 16 and has been held at the Pierce County Jail since.

Marshall's attorney, Ron Temple of Norfolk, said after the hearing that Marshall plans to move back to his hometown in Iowa.

Grass coverage is good for ducks

In a recent study by Ducks Unlimited, nesting wildlife, including ducks have a better chance of a successful hatch in an area with an abundance of grass cover.

In a recent two year study by graduates students in North Dakota, 18 nesting sites were studied and monitored throughout the season.

According to Scott Stephens, who conducted the study, "We've learned that there are dramatic fluctuations on the prairies, not only in water conditions and the number of ducks that attempt to breed, but also in how successful the birds are. It appears that in areas where grass levels exceed 70%, the ducks can hold their own, even in poor years.

There are several reasons that ducks fare better in areas that have abundant nesting cover than on areas where there is intense farming practices. In large blocks of native prairie or cover planted under the Conservation Reserve Program, ducks have ample room to hide their nests from predators. Another factor is that the predators on grassland dominated landscapes is largely comprised of coyotes and badgers, that have relatively large home ranges compared to the smaller predators, such as raccoons, skunks and fox. Larger home ranges means that fewer predators searching for duck eggs within a given area.

Hunters and anglers spend $70 billion on their sport in 2001

Spending by American hunters and anglers totaled $70 billion last year, according to the preliminary results from the 2001 U.S. Fish & Wildlife Survey. Turkey hunting is the fastest growing hunting activity in the nation according to the NWTFF CEO Rob Keck. "Turkey hunters contribute significantly to our economy and their permit dollars and excise tax paid on hunting gear go a long way towards restoring and managing wildlife populations.

Gary Howey 'Of the Outdoors'

Hunters spent $20 billion on trips and equipment while anglers spent $35 billion and those that participated in both sports spent $15 billion.

According to the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation, sportsmen and women are one of the most influential demographic groups in this country. While economic analysts worried about a looming recession last year, American sportsmen were doing their share to keep the economy going. Not only are hunting and fishing traditional activities in our culture, but they also have an economic ripple effect on the Fortune 500 companies and small town family businesses.

While hunters and anglers are widely acknowledged as the major source of funds for healthy fish and wildlife populations, sportsmen and women get little recognition as a major force in the economy through the dollars they spend in pursuit of their pastime. These statistics help to show that hunting and fishing aren't just leisurely activities, but major contributors to the U.S. economy.

Anglers fishing Nebraska waters need to be aware of the new baitfish rule

A new regulation went into effect the first of this year that requires all white perch to be killed prior to being transported away from the body of water that they were taken from. This rule is an effort to control the spread of the fish to surrounding bodies of water.

White perch, a smaller relative of the white bass can reproduce quickly and if not controlled can result in a huge population of stunted fish that are of very little sportfishing value.

Stunted species of any variety of fish can quickly cripple the reproduction of sportsfish species by competing with them for minute food organisms or by preying on the nests of other fish.

Once the predator prey balance is thrown off balance, the prey fish can become detrimental to nesting predators. Their sheer numbers, allow them to surround and totally devastate eggs and small fry.

Herbs for Health
Purple Grape Juice May Protect Heart

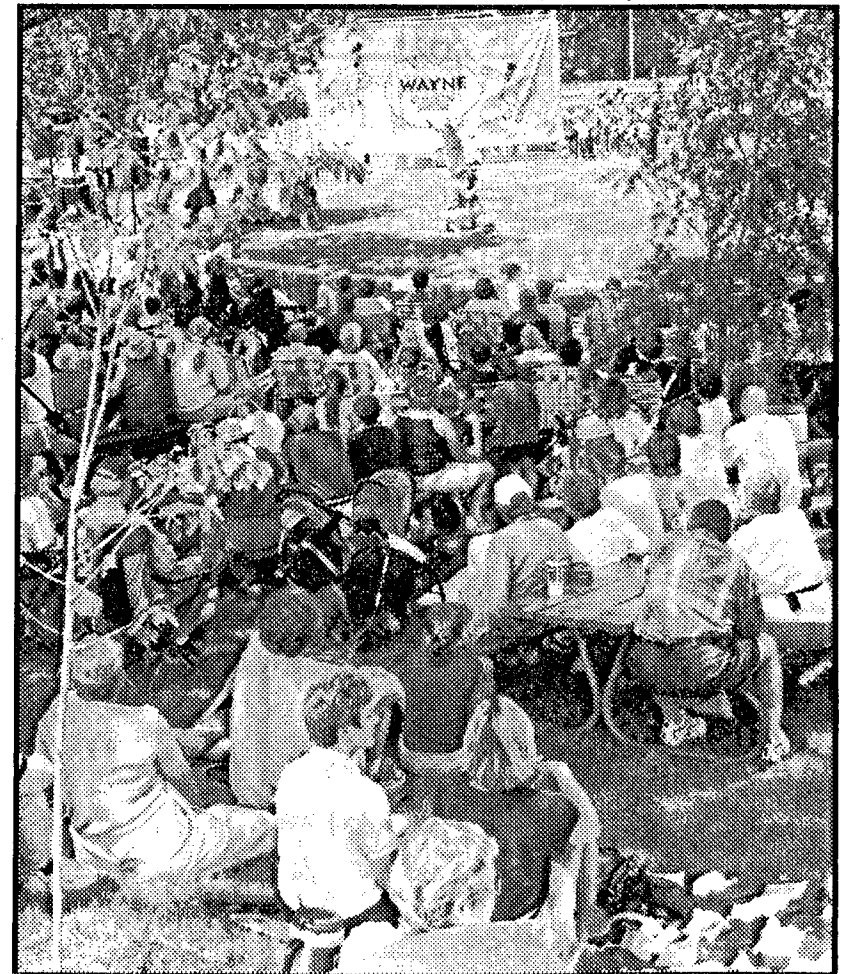

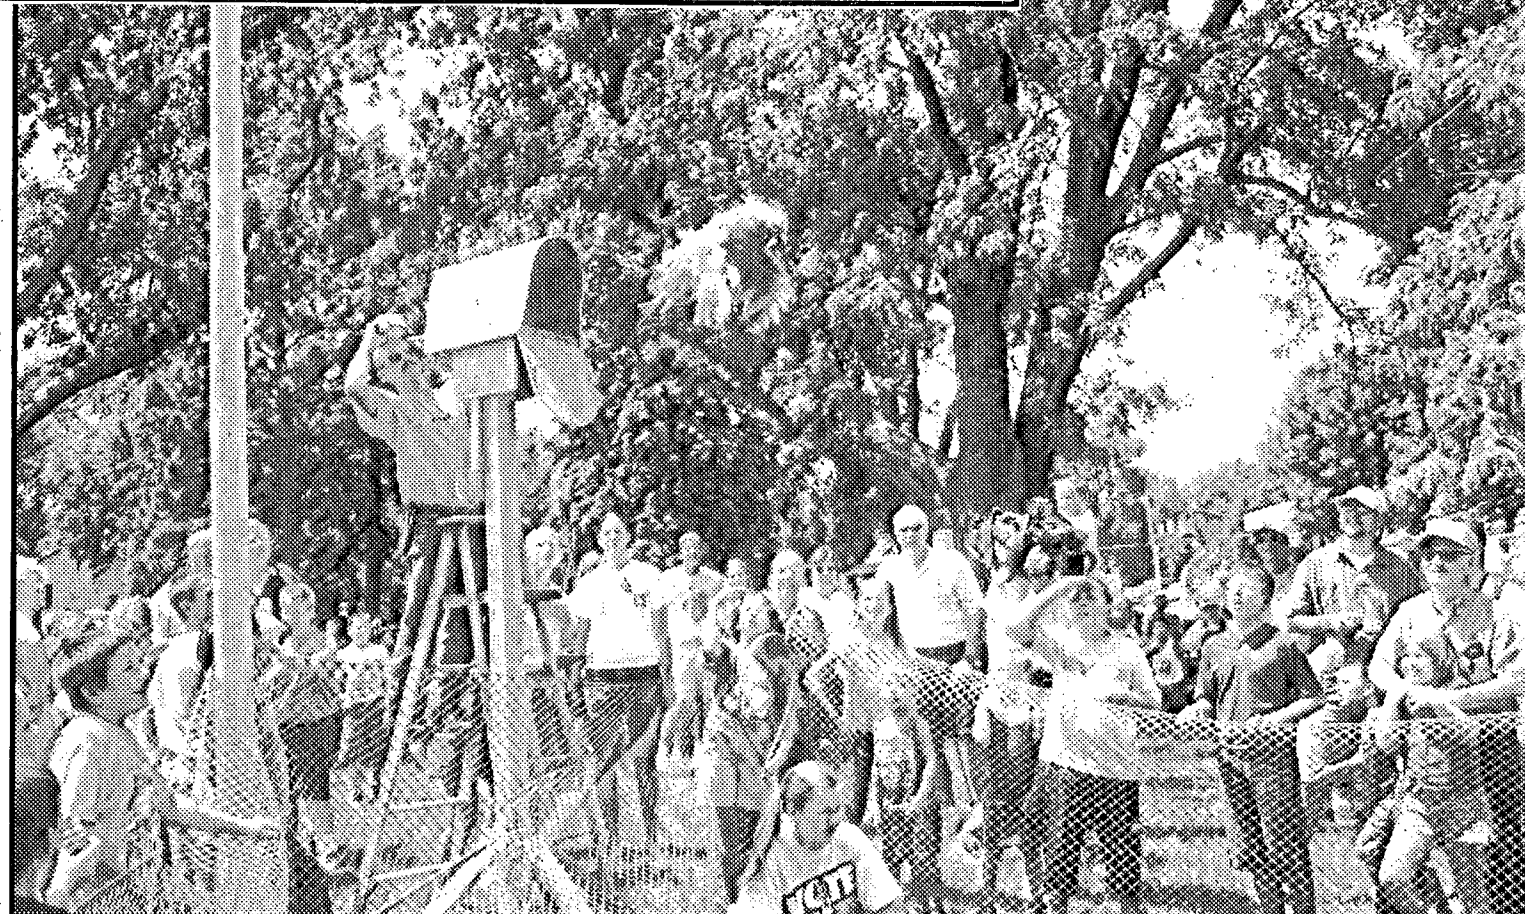

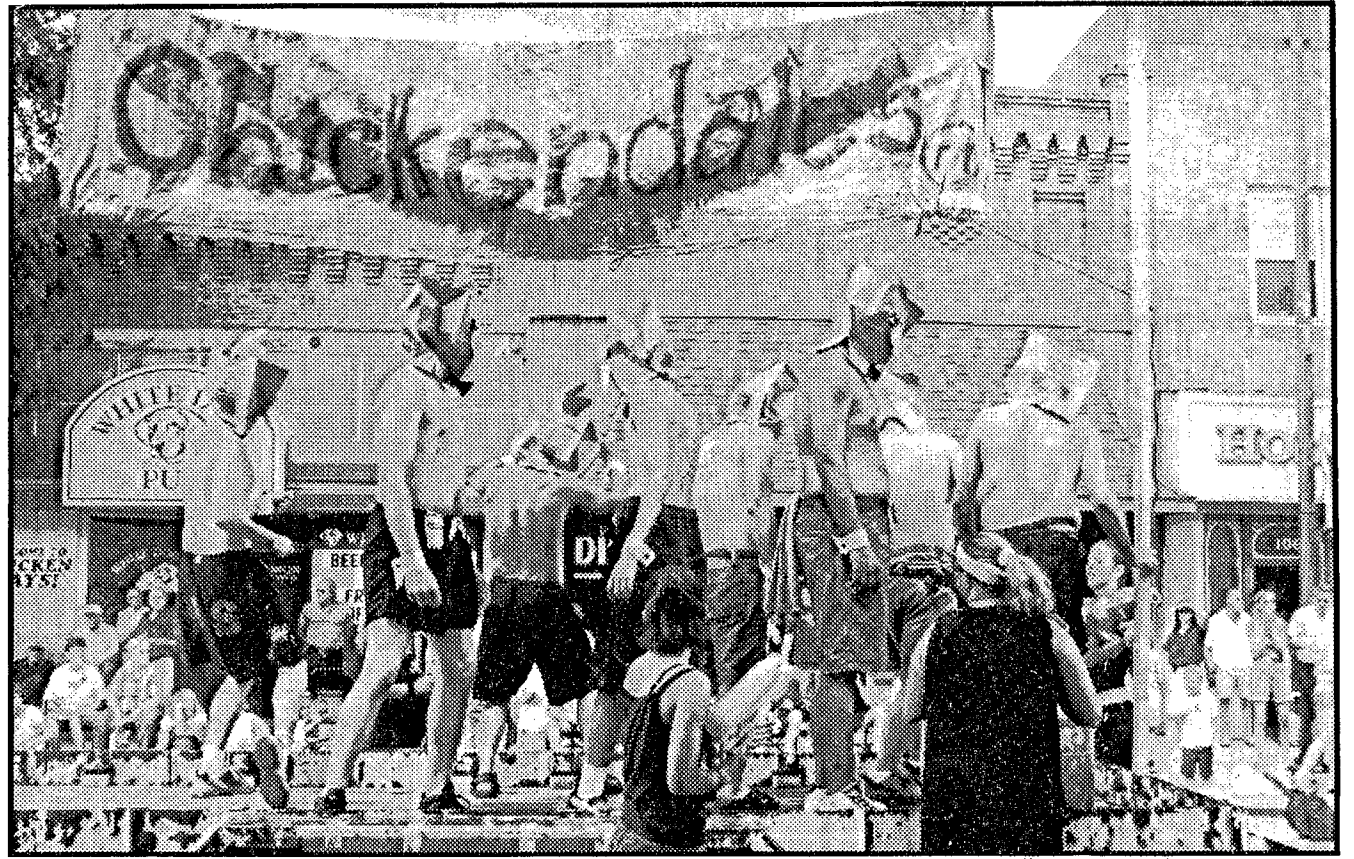

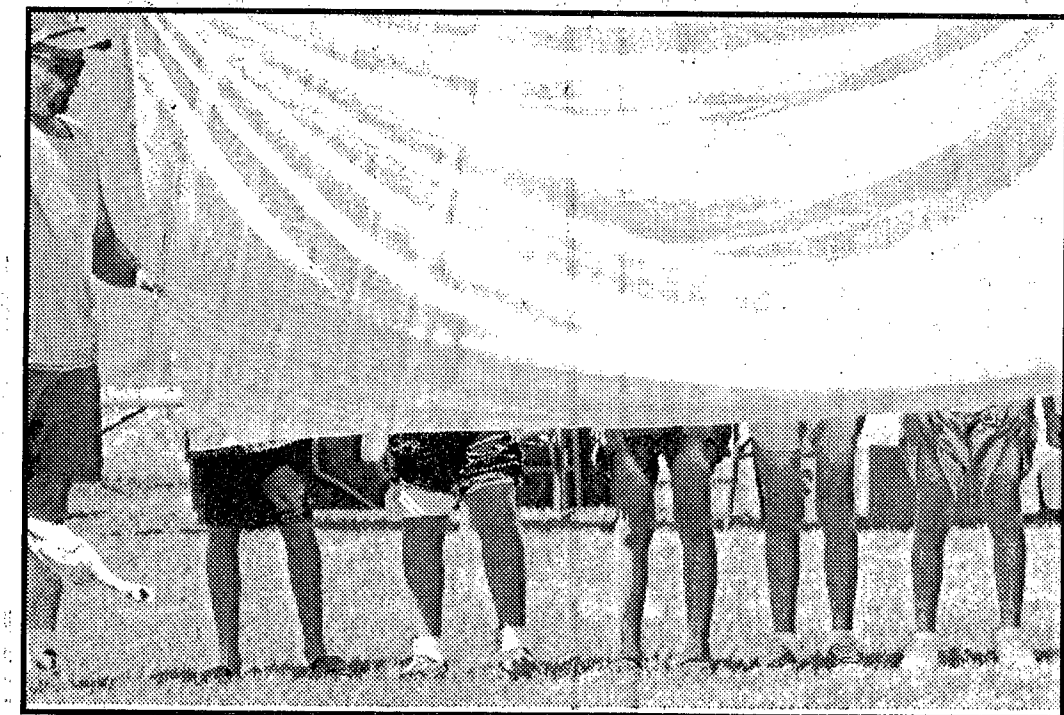

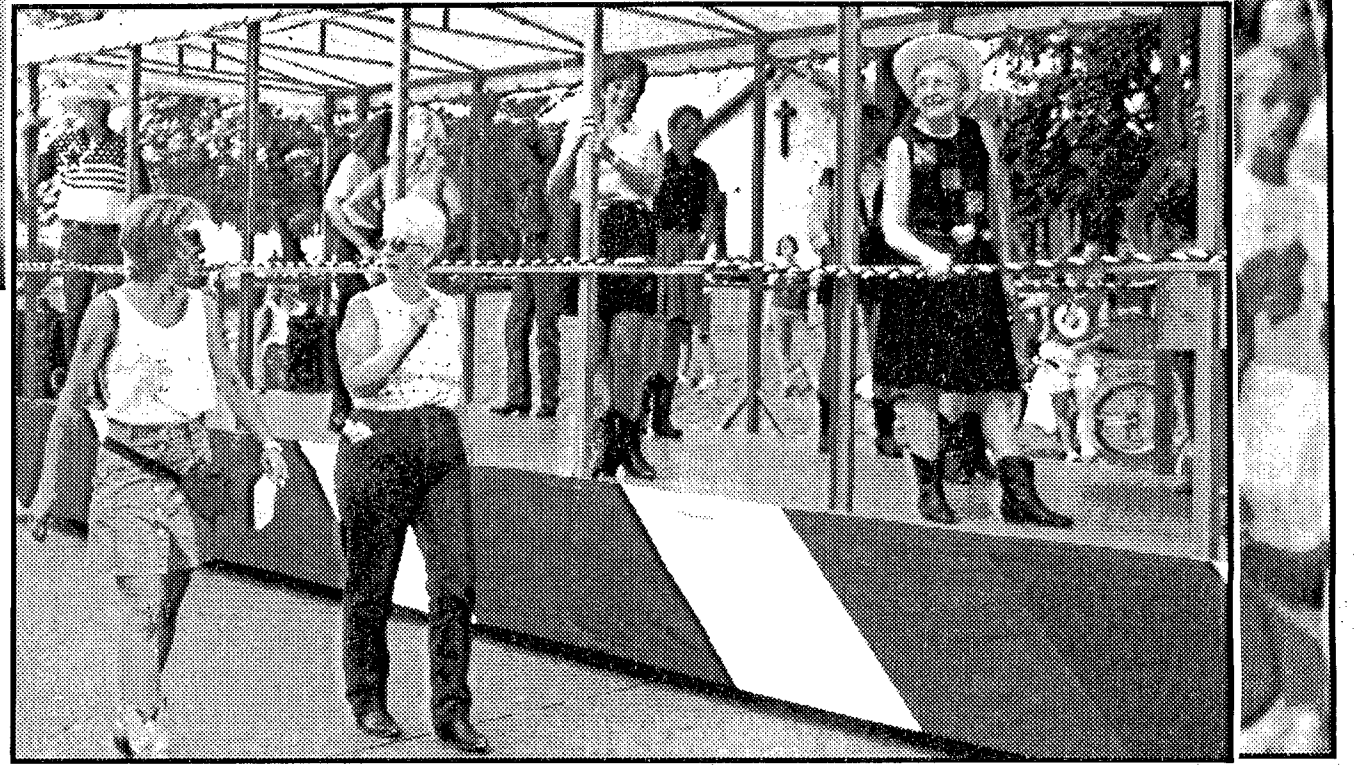

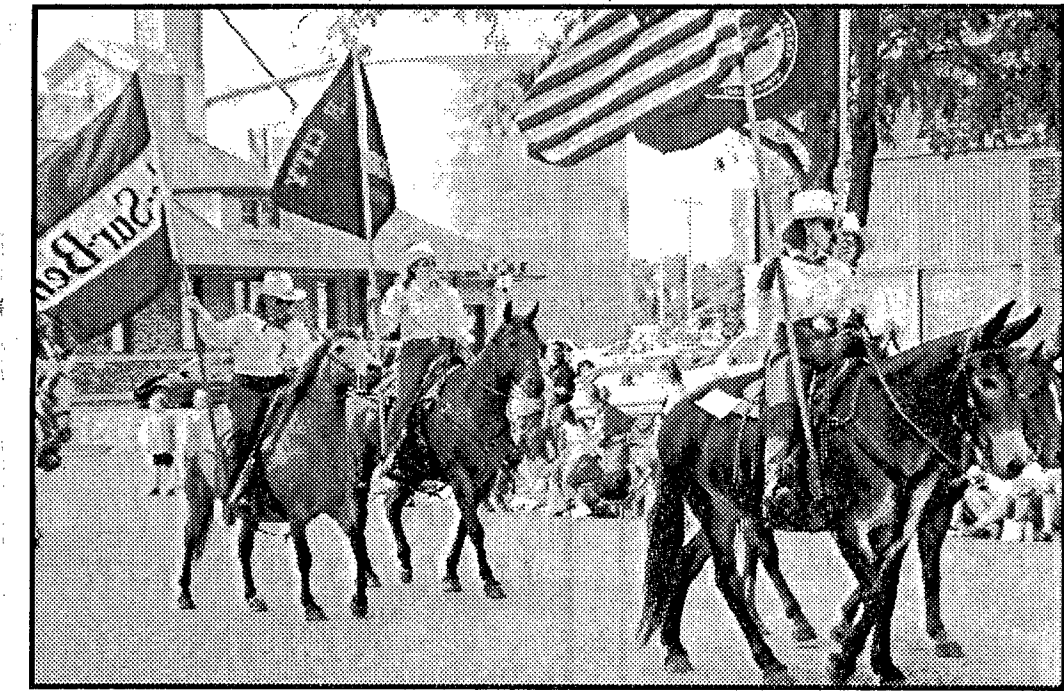

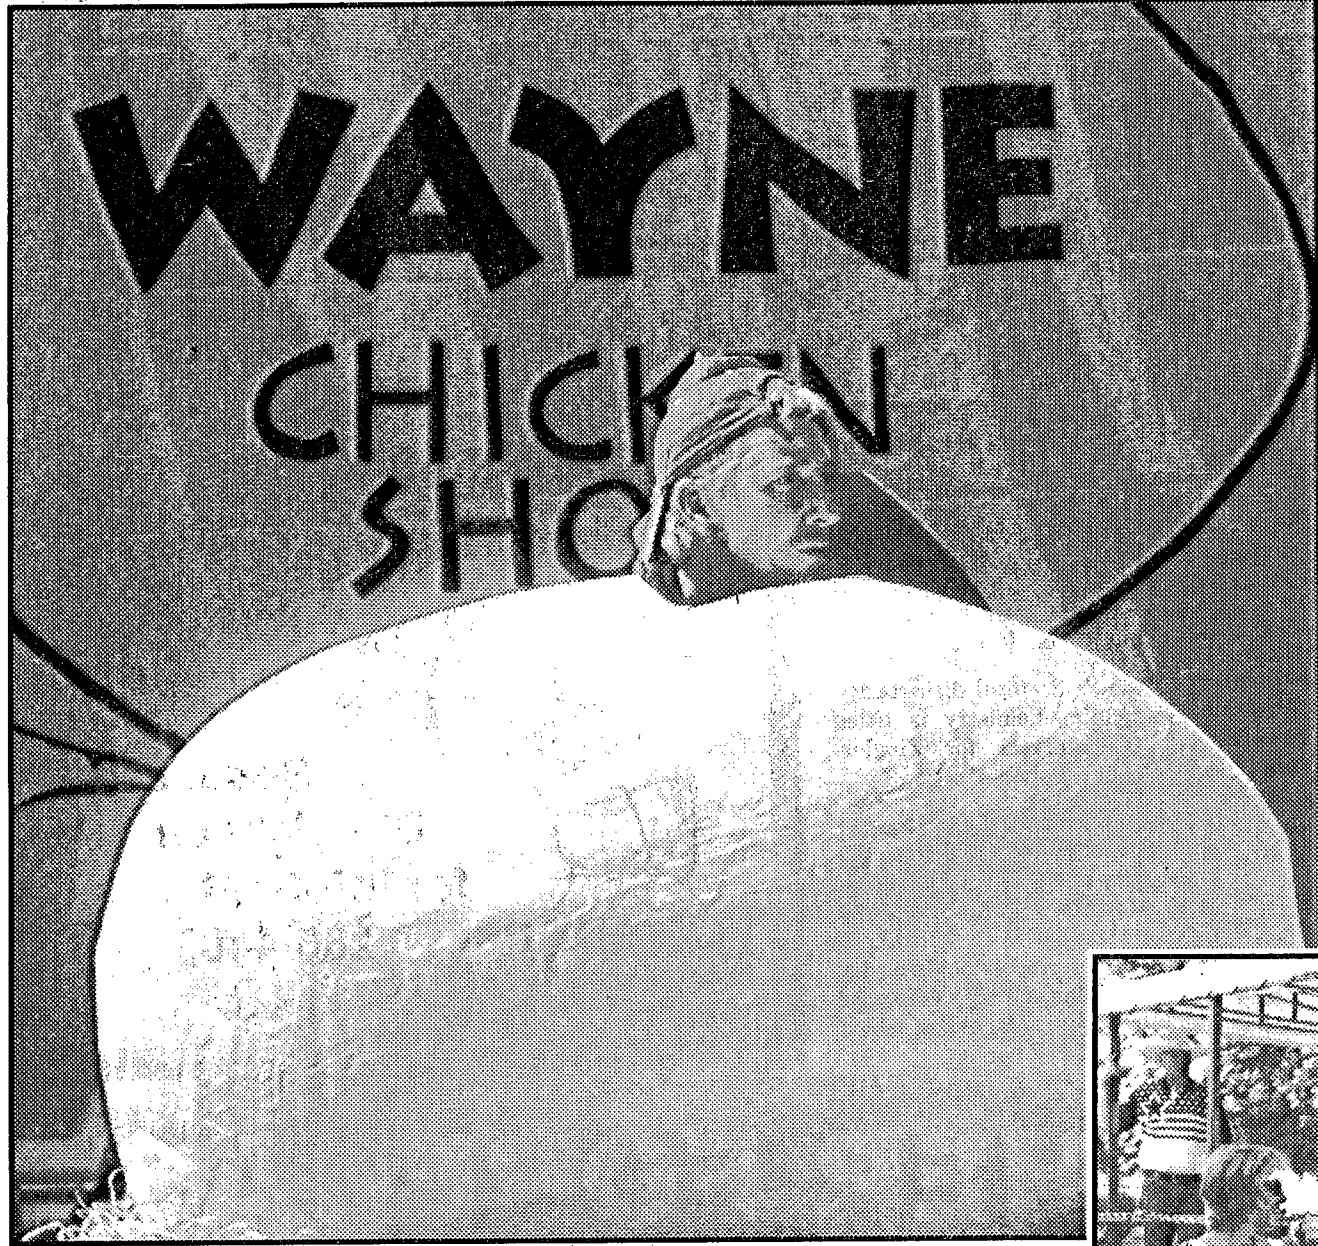

Some physicians recommend wine for their patients who drink alcoholic beverages because of the many studies that have shown this ancient beverage to be good for the heart and blood vessels. Much wine is made from purple grape juice. And there is preliminary research showing that purple grape juice also may be "heart-healthy."

A report in the medical journal Circulation, an American Heart Association publication, describes 15 heart disease patients (12 men and 3 women) who consumed 2 large glasses of purple grape juice daily for 2 weeks. The average age of the volunteers was 63; 10 were being treated for high blood pressure, and 11 were being treated for high cholesterol. These patients experienced increased vasodilation, which could be expected to provide more blood to the heart. They also showed less harmful oxidation of LDL cholesterol in the brief study.

Grape juice is very high in sugars and calories. Therefore, drinking large quantities may be undesirable in individuals with diabetes or in person with weight concerns. Extracts of grape seeds are a calorie-free alternative. Some experts suspect that extracts may provide similar benefits.

Lindau is elected chair of NSC Board of Trustees

Sheryl Lindau of Wayne was elected chair of the Nebraska State Colleges' Board of Trustees in June. Having joined the board in 1997 to fill the unexpired term of Jerry Conway of Wayne, she was reappointed to a six-year term by Gov. Mike Johanns in 1999.

"The Nebraska State Colleges serve a very unique purpose in Nebraska. They not only provide high quality education at an affordable price to students and their families, but they are also economic engines in their rural communities and regions," she said.

Lindau has served as mayor of Wayne since 1994. Prior to that, she was a city council representative for eight years and owned and operated Four In Hand clothing store.

She has also been involved with the Statewide Health Coordinating Council and former Governor Nelson's Task Force on Information Technology. She was a representative on the Nebraska League of Municipalities Legislative Committee and is currently the vice president of the Nebraska League of Municipalities.

A graduate of Wahoo High School and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Lindau has a degree in political science.

Steve Lewis of Lexington was elected as vice chair of the board. The director of administrative services for Tri-County Hospital, Lewis was appointed to the board in 1999.

Lewis holds degrees from Peru State College and the University of Nebraska-Kearney. A native of Superior, he says the colleges provide a valuable service to Nebraska and must remain viable.

"My main goal is to make all three colleges the best they can be," he said. "Since more than 70 percent of our graduates stay in Nebraska to work and lead their communities, our colleges are very important to the state."

Both will serve for the 2002-03 academic year. The next board meeting will be held in Chadron, Sept. 9-10.

Child passenger safety law changing July 20

Effective July 20, 2002, Nebraska's will need to buckle their five-year-old children in child restraint systems before traveling.

"Children up to age six will be required to ride secured in a child restraint system," according to Fred Zwonechek, Administrator of the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety.

The law eliminates the current weight requirement of 40 lbs. and the proof of purchase waiver for first time offenders. The changes are the result of LB 1073, passed this spring by the Nebraska Legislature.

Most of the law remains intact including the requirements that the child restraint system must meet Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 213 (FMVSS 213) and it must be installed correctly. The law will apply to Nebraska and out-of-state residents transporting children on Nebraska roadways.

According to Zwonechek, "Parents and caregivers should always transport their children in size, age, and weight appropriate seats. Older children will most likely need to ride in a booster seat. Booster seats are a step between "toddler" seats and adult safety belts." Booster seats raise a child so that the lap belt crosses the strong hipbones and it allows the shoulder belt to cross the center of the chest. Placing children in adult safety belts too early puts them at risk of serious injury or death in the event of a crash.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends that children age 12 and under ride in the back seat, the safest place in a vehicle. To determine if an older child is ready to graduate to a safety belt, take this simple five-step test developed by SafetyBeltSafe U.S.A.:

- Does the child sit all the way back against the auto seat?
- Do the child's knees bend comfortably at the edge of the auto seat?
- Does the belt cross the shoulder between the neck and the arm?
- Is the lap belt as low as possible, touching the thighs?
- Can the child stay seated like this for the whole trip?

If you answered "no" to any of these questions, your child needs a booster seat to ride safely.

Child Passenger Safety Technicians have been trained to determine whether a system is appropriate for a child and installed correctly. Parents can access a list of upcoming check-up events staffed by Technicians at www.nsp.state.ne.us/, by selecting "Child Safety Seat Info". To locate a technician in your area visit www.nhtsa.dot.gov/ and select "Child Passenger Safety".

Zwonechek noted that the law will also affect people riding with inexperienced drivers. If the driver of a vehicle holds a provisional operator's permit (POP) or a school permit, all persons being transported will be required to use an occupant protection system.

For example, an adult sitting in the back seat of a vehicle driven by a POP holder will now be required to ride buckled up. This law still requires anyone under age 16 to be buckled up at all times regardless of seating position.

"By increasing the usage of child safety seats and safety belts, this law should help decrease the number of deaths and injuries occurring on Nebraska roadways," Zwonechek added.

Blood bank partners with hospital in O'Neill

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank in Sioux City has announced a new partnership with the Avera St. Anthony Hospital in O'Neill, Nebraska effective July 1, 2002.

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank is now the sole provider of all blood and blood products to the hospital and to the patients, replacing the previous supplier, the American Red Cross.

Avera St. Anthony's Hospital has provided quality healthcare to north central Nebraska since 1952. The hospital is licensed for 15 acute care and 10 skilled care beds. It is accredited by Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services operate as a Critical Access Hospital.

With this new affiliation the Siouxland Community Blood Bank now services twenty-six hospitals. The Sioux City-based blood bank's service area includes a one hundred twenty-five mile radius in northwest Iowa, southeast South Dakota, and northeast Nebraska.

As a result of the partnership, the Sioux City-based blood bank will begin mobile blood drives in the O'Neill area. It is important that communities support blood drives because it helps to provide an adequate blood supply to the local hospital. A blood drive has been scheduled at Avera St. Anthony Hospital on August 12th and 13th from noon until 6 p.m. Blood donors who have previously given with the Red Cross will be credited their donations by the Siouxland Community Blood Bank.

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank is licensed by the Food and Drug Administration, and accredited by the American Association of Blood Banks. They are also a participant member of a national blood system called America's Blood Centers (ABC) that collects approximately half of the nation's blood supply. It is a network of locally controlled, not-for-profit community blood banks that support not only their local communities healthcare needs, but they also network together to share blood where the greatest need is. This interdependency is needed not only for disasters but also for ongoing community needs of healthcare throughout the year.

On a daily basis more than 32,000 Americans will receive blood or blood products, often in a life-saving situation. Annually, 4.5 million people would die without blood transfusions in the United States. The support of volunteer blood donors throughout the Siouxland Community Blood Bank's service area is necessary to provide an adequate and safe blood supply for our region.

For more information about the blood bank or blood drives in your area, call 712-252-4208, 1-800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org.

Await end of special session to see if more cuts are needed

The Board of Governors and administrators at Northeast Community College in Norfolk are awaiting the conclusion of the special session of the Nebraska Legislature to see if additional budget cuts are needed for the 2002-2003 school year.

Called by Governor Mike Johanns, the special session of the Legislature will address additional state revenue shortfalls of $150 million. The special session will begin July 30.

At a meeting of Northeast's Board of Governors recently, Dennis Baack, executive director of the Nebraska Community College Association, advised that additional budget cuts are probable for all community colleges. "We will need to explore many different options when the final numbers are in," he said. "It will be difficult," he warned.

Larry Poessnecker, Atkinson, Board of Governors chairman, issued the following statement at the conclusion of the recent Northeast Board of Governors' meeting:

"The 2002-2003 tentative budgets for Northeast Community College reflect substantial reductions in departmental operating funds. These cuts were necessary because of reduced state-aid appropriations approved by the Legislature during the past few months. Northeast is also being negatively impacted by the community college funding formula and a study is underway by the CEO's to address this issue."

"In response to these shortfalls in state aid, Northeast has cut operating expense budgets by 5.7 percent in 2001-2002 and by an additional four percent in 2002-2003. The administration has also eliminated four service programs for next year. We are fully aware that the tentative 2002-2003 budgets may need to be further reduced as a result of the upcoming special Legislative session."

"In anticipation of further loss of state aid dollars, Northeast has frozen 2002-2003 general fund equipment purchases and professional development travel. Plans are being developed to review other areas that may need to be reduced or eliminated to ensure a balanced budget for this next year."

"The Northeast Community College administration will present its final budgets for 2002-2003 to the Board of Governors during our regular September meeting. By this time, the College should know its state aid appropriations and can adjust its budgets accordingly."

"We have every confidence that Northeast Community College will be able to respond appropriately and effectively to the financial uncertainties of this next year," Poessnecker's statement concluded.

During adverse times:

Include all family members in discussions

During tough times it's often a challenge to communicate effectively, especially with those who prove to be disagreeable or difficult. But during tough times it is essential that communication is successful, because so much is at stake.

Families who farm together have extra concerns and responsibilities; they must live and work together and must help provide for each other's livelihood. It's no wonder that a few problems arise over the years with multi-generational farming operations!

In order to 'weather the storm,' a lot of work and commitment is involved as well as developing effective communication skills.

Unfortunately, many families are not resilient families. Many hurt each other with words and actions when expressing angry feelings. Many in-laws mistreat their adult children's spouses or partners to a point where isolation or unfair blaming is a concern. Adult children are often caught between their elder parents and their partner in having to make decisions related to the farm or business.

Adult children may not be patient enough to work cooperatively with elder parents and may not respect their experience and advice. There are issues of control over decisions, money, personal time and many other aspects relating to the operation. Personal lives spill over into work lives. The two are so closely intertwined that there is little separation, even when it would be advantageous, such as in record keeping and time management.

Sandy Preston, Director of Cooperative Extension, Dixon County

Strong families, however, find a way to deal with the unexpected as well as things beyond their control, such as severe drought and water shortages. They refuse to play blaming games and are not purposefully hurtful or judgmental. In many cases they have a spiritual faith that draws them closer together.

Although it may not be appropriate to include all family members in all decisions, each person should be included in discussion. Every one has the right to express opinions and feelings and resilient families respect each other's opinions. This does not necessarily mean that everyone will agree with each other. What it does mean is that they care about each other. They care about working together. They care about the farm or business. They care about their family. They care about preserving family time and their relationships.

Resilient families look beyond their immediate family for input and advice. Although they appear to be tight-knit, they open their relationships to extended family, friends and neighbors and value these connections. They also know when to ask for help. They show love and accept love even during tough times. They forgive each other and move forward with hope for the future.

Part of the parade

Our Savior Lutheran Church (above) and First United Methodist Church (below) were among the 101 entries in the Chicken Show Parade. Our Savior's float included music provided by those involved with the church's Sunday evening contemporary worship service. Throughout the parade route, a variety of worship music was sung for the enjoyment of the spectators who lined the streets. The students who were involved in this summer's Vacation Bible School made up the float for the Methodist Church. The young people were part of "God's Great Gallery," the theme for this year's bible school.

Altona ladies gather July 3

First Trinity LWML of Altona met July 3 for a no-host brunch. Pastor Kihne led the Bible Study, "Facing Giants," the historical account of David and Goliath and how we apply this understanding to our daily lives. The meeting began with the LWML Pledge, roll call and the mite box collection. The minutes were approved as read. The group was reminded to pray for Pastor Mauer as he prepares to leave for Africa in September for a three-year missionary trip.

Potato bake is planned

A Potato Bake will be held Sunday, July 21 at Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne.

The event begins at 11:30 a.m. and will feature potatoes, toppings and desserts.

The event is part of the "Committed to Kids" program and will benefit the Wayne Headstart.

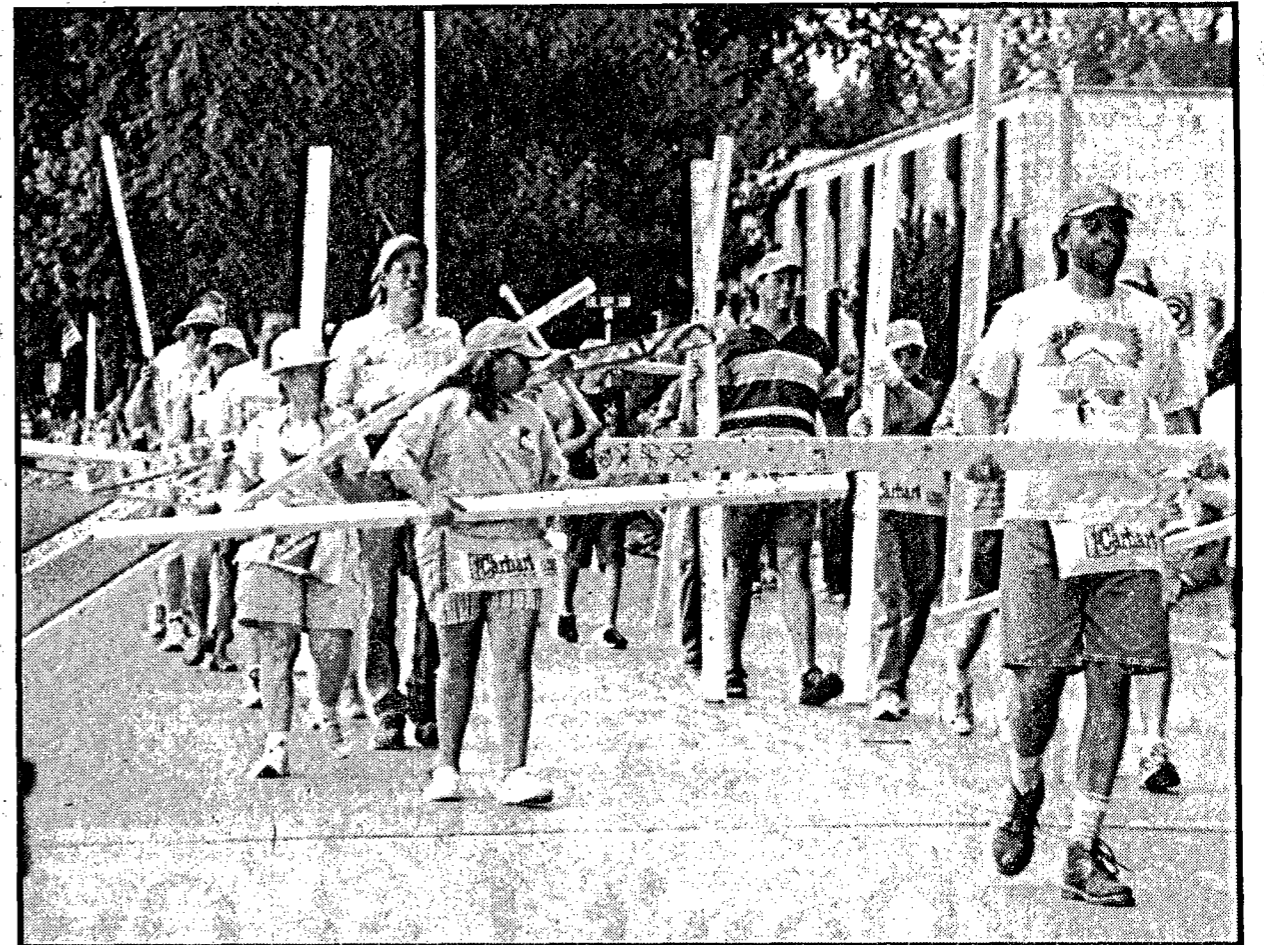

Also during the day, a speaker from the Headstart will be talking about the activities Headstart is involved with.

The potato bake is being sponsored by AAL/LB Branch #1470 which will provide matching funds. A free-will offering will be taken.

The Fall Retreat will be held at Grace Lutheran Church on Sept. 28. The Altona group will be in charge of breakfast rolls and coffee. The fair booth will be set up on Wednesday, July 31 at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is encouraged to help with its project.

The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

There will be no meeting in August. The next meeting will be on Thursday, Sept. 5.

Promoting the project

Members of the Wayne Chapter of Habitat for Humanity were among the entries in this year's Chicken Show Parade. The group carried planks through the parade and stopped periodically for a building routine. The group has obtained a lot in Wayne to build a house on and are currently in the process of raising funds and obtaining volunteers to help with the project, both financially and with areas of construction. It is hoped that a large portion of the work on the house can be completed yet this year.

Walnuts are Heart Healthy
A recent study showed that walnuts help lower blood cholesterol, especially the LDL "bad" cholesterol. Walnuts contain alpha-linolenic acid, a heart healthy omega 3 fatty acid. Omega 3 fatty acids are found in canola, flaxseed and soybean oils and fish as well as walnuts. Consuming 1.5 ounces of walnuts per day produced encouraging results in study participants, regardless of whether their diet was low-fat or not.

If only it would rain!

RAIN! If only it would rain. On July 3rd, I drove to Louisville for groceries. A downpour started one mile from the Farm House. It was wonderful! Kids were running around in it, getting soaked. Grown-ups were grinning. We did not get a drop.

On that Saturday, Seward got two inches. We saw thunder and lightning from the front porch, but nothing got wet. The following Saturday, we drove through Elmwood in rain; and Lincoln got a shower. Nothing here.

It's turned into the long, hot, dry summer; and it isn't pretty. Corn is curling, beans aren't growing. At least the hay growers have taken two good cuttings.

And, we aren't the only ones. The fires continue to burn in Arizona and Colorado. California has set records for heat. My friend in Houston says it's 100 degrees and 90 percent humidity. The flooding is north of them, and it is devastating too. I guess we will just keep watering.

I bought a whole chicken the other day, and as I was cutting it up, I reflected on how long it had been since I had done that. I typically buy legs and thighs because we like dark meat.

A couple days later, I was visiting with a group of old friends from Hoskins and the subject of butchering chickens came up.

Each of us had our favorite method for beheading the thing. I stepped on the head and pulled. Someone else used an axe. One person, who has cleaned numerous birds, admitted that she had never killed one. Friend husband took that job.

There is a young farmer near us who sells dressed chickens. He raises them and takes them somewhere in Iowa to be dressed.

Apparently, there is a chicken-raising venture at Hoskins. Three or four guys are raising them and dressing them. I wish them all kinds of luck. And, I'm glad it's them, and not me.

I will probably continue to pick up a rotisserie chicken now and then. We can usually get three or four meals from one; and not only did I not feed it, kill it, or pick it, I didn't even cook it! Now, that's convenience. Or laziness, I don't know which.

CRP emergency haying, grazing has been approved for Nebraska

The Nebraska Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Committee had granted statewide authority for haying and grazing in all areas.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved Nebraska for Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) emergency haying and grazing, making all CRP participants in the state basically eligible for this emergency measure, according to the head of the Nebraska Farm Service Agency.

"The emergency measure came about because drought and severe weather conditions have depleted hay stocks and grazing lands across the state," Wolford said. The approval provides immediate relief to livestock producers and encourages donations of hay to producers who need immediate assistance.

USDA previously authorized counties in states most severely stricken by weather conditions to be considered for haying and grazing, but approval was on a county-by-county basis. Forty-one Nebraska counties were previously released for CRP haying and grazing with additional county requests pending. Today's announcement make CRP participants statewide eligible without waiting for county and Washington, D.C. approval.

CRP participants must submit applications for individual approval to their local FSA offices. Haying and grazing is authorized until Aug. 31, 2002, or until disaster conditions no longer exist, whichever comes first. Land devoted to certain special practices will not be eligible for haying and grazing because of environmental considerations.

CRP participants who are unaffected by disasters or do not own or lease livestock can make their CRP acreage available for grazing or can donate hay to those in need. USDA is developing a web site (www.fsa.usda.gov/haynet) for producers to list information concerning the need for available hay. In addition, the State of Nebraska Department of Agriculture has developed a Hay Hotline at 800-422-6692 or <http://www.agr.state.ne.us>

CRP annual rental payments will be reduced 25 percent to account for the areas hayed or grazed unless the hay is donated. At least 50 percent of the CRP acreage must be left unhayed and 25 percent left ungrazed. Hay harvested from CRP acreage may not be sold.

Date set for scrap tire collection

Recently a Scrap Tire Grant was received by the Northeast Nebraska RC&D, with the Lower Elkhorn NRD as applicant, from the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality (NDEQ) in the amount of $6282.50 to collect 45 tons of scrap tires.

Tires will be accepted from within the RC&D's six counties of Antelope, Cedar, Dixon, Knox, Pierce and Wayne.

The collection date has been set for Monday, August 5 and will be held at the Pierce County Shop yard located three miles east of Osmond on Highway 20. Champlin Tire Recycling, Inc. will transport the tires from Osmond to their facility in Concordia, Kan. for processing into various recycled products.

When 45 tons has been reached, the collection will stop. Tires will be accepted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on that day. No tires are to be brought in prior to 10 that morning and none will be accepted after 3 that afternoon. There will be a 10 tire limit per vehicle, per person. No rims will be accepted. No retailers are eligible to bring in tires.

Some communities within the six counties may be hosting smaller collections the week prior to the August 5 main collection date. Individuals will be able to drop off from one to four tires at these collections and volunteers from the communities will haul them to Osmond on Aug. 5. There will be more information on this part of the project as the details are worked out.

Anyone with questions or with a large quantity of tires to dispose of is asked to please call the RC&D office prior to Aug. 5 at 402-582-4866.

Medicine-Resistant Venereal Disease Now Present in US

According to Morbidity and Mortality Weekly, a publication of the US government, gonorrhea infection that does not respond to fluoroquinolone antibiotics is now present in Hawaii. Researchers believe that the problem will soon become a problem in the mainland US.

At one time the bacteria that caused gonorrhea infection could be eradicated from the body with simple and inexpensive penicillin type medicines. However, the gonorrhea organisms have the ability to acquire resistance to antibiotics. One of the newest classes of antibiotics - the fluoroquinolones - has been effective against the infection in the recent past. However, in Hawaii, almost 10% of gonorrhea tested were resistant to ciprofloxin (Cipro) - up from little over 1% in 1997. The widespread use of fluoroquinolone antibiotics to treat other infections may be part of this problem.

Cataracts affect over 80% of our senior citizens. In fact over one million cataract surgeries are performed annually in the U.S. alone.

New technological developments in implants, ultrasonic equipment, lasers, diagnostic testing and surgical techniques have made cataract surgery one of the most effective procedures today. Currently, over 98% of cataract patients experience significant improvements in vision, without major complications.

Until now, the high cost of this new technology for cataract surgery was only available in the larger surgical facilities. This meant that you would have to travel for a complete eye examination and surgery. Not any longer.

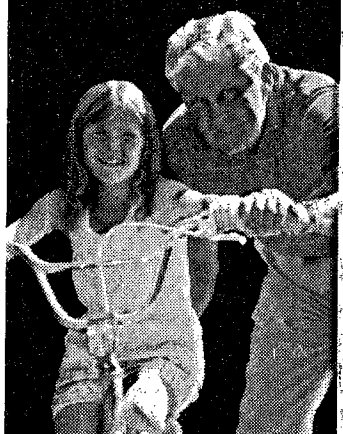

Complete eye care and cataract surgery is now available at Providence Medical Center, in Wayne. You don't have to travel outside of your community to have your vision tested for cataracts. With Dr. Willcockson, Dr. Koerber and Dr. Magnuson offering comprehensive diagnostic and surgical services, you now have the most advanced eye care available right here in town.

Call Dr. Koerber or Dr. Magnuson for a complete eye examination and cataract vision screening today. If you would like more information on cataracts for yourself or someone you know who may be experiencing loss of vision, call today for a free informational brochure.
