Laurel receives mortgage funds

The Nebraska Investment Finance Authority (NIFA) has committed $140,000 to the City of Laurel and Security National Bank - Laurel from its Super Target Mortgage Program (STMP) for new construction and housing rehabilitation activities.

The STMP provides NIFA financed mortgages to communities at a low fixed rate that must follow the rules of the STMP and NIFA's underlying mortgage program. In the current round, mortgages are being offered at 2.99 percent.

"The 2.99 percent Super-Target Mortgage is a powerful tool for communities," NIFA Executive Director Tim Kenny said. "At this rarely seen rate, people who could not qualify to purchase a home before are able to realize the dream of home ownership."

The Federal Home Loan Bank's Rural

First-time Homebuyer Program will provide subordinate financing, while homebuyer education classes will be provided by the Allen Development Group, the Elkhorn Valley Community Development Corporation or the Wayne Community Housing Development Corporation.

Certain limitations apply to qualify under the Super-Targeted Mortgage Program including:

- Borrowers and occupants of the property must meet NIFA's definition of a first-time homebuyer with the exception of properties located within federally designated targeted areas.

- Loans must benefit households with incomes at or below 80 percent of the area median income, adjusted for family size.

- All borrowers are required to complete homebuyer education training.

NIFA has committed $4 million in STMP funds for communities across the state in the second half of 2002. Since 1998, NIFA has loaned $21.6 million in STMP funds to 46 communities for both housing rehab and new construction. Of that total, Laurel has received $283,100.

NIFA, established in 1983, provides decent, safe and affordable housing for low and moderate-income persons. NIFA's mission is to serve the people of Nebraska, to provide a broad range of financial resources for residential, manufacturing, agricultural, medical and community development endeavors and provide technical assistance. These efforts are to be accomplished while preserving and growing the asset base used to provide these resources.

Lifetime resident to celebrate milestone

By Clara Osten
 Of the Herald

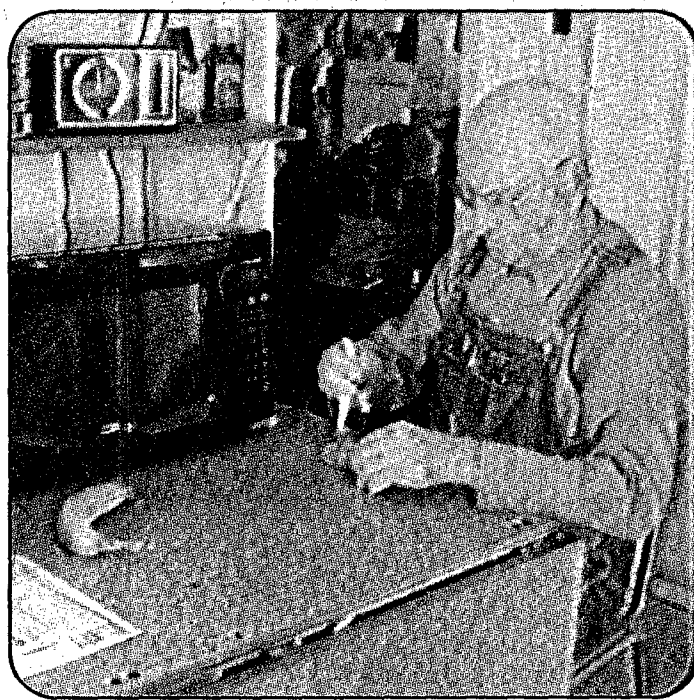

For anyone, living to be 100 years old is quite an accomplishment.

But, for Willie C. Kay, who will observe his 100th birthday on Sept. 19, this is even more impressive because he lives alone in his own house southeast of Wayne and for the most part, takes care of himself without a lot of help.

Willie was oldest of four sons born to August and Martha Kay. He is the only one left, as one of his brothers died of polio when he was 2 1/2 years old and his brothers John and Rudolph have also died.

"When I was two years old, my parents bought this farm from my grandparents and I have lived on the same place for the past 97 years," Willie said.

Kay remembers attending District 47 for schooling. Although he attended school until he was 17 years old, he never got through the seventh grade because after he was 12 years old, Willie only went to school in the winter months and stayed home to help on the farm during the rest of the school year.

"When I was young, we spoke only German at home. I couldn't talk or understand English when I first started school. Henry Lutt could speak German, so he interpreted for us until we learned English."

"At first, we farmed 160 acres of land. Then, when my brother got married, my parents bought another 120 acres for him to farm at $140 an acre. When my other brother got married, they bought another 160 acres for $170 per acre," Willie said.

In his early years of farming, Kay and his family raised only corn and oats. Later they began raising soybeans.

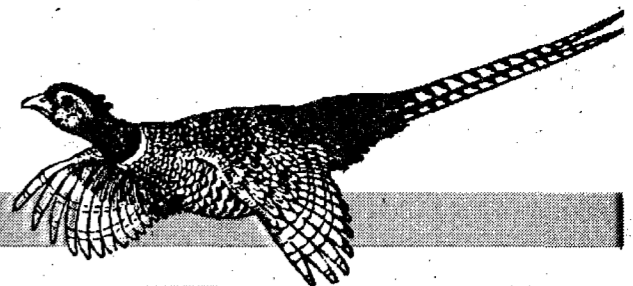

"In the late 1920's and early 1930's oats were 17 cents per bushel and corn 32 cents per bushel. Then in 1934 we had no crop so oats went to 47 cents a bushel and corn $1 a bushel. I was raising hogs at that time and had to buy feed to get them ready for market. I took them to Sioux City and got 2 1/2 cents a pound. If I had not had some money saved before then, I

Winside craft show is approaching

With the Winside Museum Craft Show approaching in Winside on Saturday, Sept. 28 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Winside Auditorium, one can reflect on the importance of museums in our lives. Museums are places where we can take a trip back in time and items preserved there help navigate the journey.

One person who has long-time ties to Winside is Irene Ditman. Irene's grandfathers, William Hoffman, settled near Winside in 1878. And, Frank Weible who came to Wayne County in 1883 farmed a place south of Winside.

William Hoffman came to this area from west Prussia (Germany) and worked on the railroad at Wisner for 2 years before taking a homestead 4 miles south and one mile west of Winside in 1878. He married Pauline Glaser (daughter of Frederick and Caroline Glaser) in 1879; the couple had five children: Emma (Mrs. Fred Witt), Helen (Mrs. Fred Weible - Irene's mother), Gus, Bill, and Walter.

Irene's great grandparents, Frederick Glaser and Caroline (Koplin) Glaser, came to Winside from Germany. Frederick put in his application for homestead in Wayne County (NE 1/4 Section 27, Township 25, Range 2 E) on Nov. 24, 1883 but had resided on the land since 1877. Glasers had seven children. When Caroline died on March 3, 1923, she was the oldest inhabitant in Winside.

Irene's grandfather Frank Weible was born in Germany in 1863. He came to America in 1879, first settling in Iowa. In 1883, he came to Wayne County and for 3 years farmed a place south of Winside.

In 1887, he married Katie Damme of Berger, Mo., she was the daughter of August and Charlotte (Schacht) Damme. Frank and Katie moved into Winside in 1890. Their first home was on the corner where Oberle's Market is now. He purchased the McClusky and Needham General Store across from the east side of the park.

Weible operated the General Store for 24 years, selling to Weyerts and Schultz in 1914. In Educational program is planned at Wayne State

"On the Road to Fairness: Nebraska's Journey from Anti-Gay Basis" will be the topic of a public educational program to be presented on Tuesday, Sept. 24 at Wayne State College.

The program, which begins at 7 p.m., will be held in the Student Center Niobrara Room on the Wayne State Campus.

The event is being sponsored by Nebraskans for Peace, Citizens for Equal Protection, Gay, Lesbian and Straight Educational Network (GLSEN) and Parents, Family and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG).

The program is designed as an evening of education on issues related to the civil rights of gays and lesbians in Nebraska, or, according to organizers of the event, "the lack of civil rights for gay, lesbian, bi-sexual and transgender people in Nebraska."

Speaker for the evening will be Ms. D. Moritz, retired Secondary Guidance Counselor for the Omaha Public Schools. She is the winner of the 2002 National Education Association Uribe Award for Creative Leadership in Human rights.

Those organizing this program indicate that "most Nebraskans are quite aware of anti-gay bias in our communities, but they are seldom offered dependable information which might dispel that bias. They need to be well informed in order to participate constructively in the ongoing public dialogue about legislation proposed to protect this Nebraska minority from discrimination."

The event is free and open to the public. Lists of print and video resources will be available.

Teens — You Gotta Love 'Em!

We hear a lot about how difficult raising teens can be. But teenagers can also be wonderful — fun, smart, sensitive and definitely unique. Try giving yourself a lift on tough days by remembering everything you love about your teen

Did you know?

Kids whose fathers — or other close adult males — talk to them about school tend to score higher on academic achievement tests. Just showing a sincere interest in what children are learning is enough to boost their reading and math scores!

Building Generosity

Want to teach your teen generosity? Try starting small. Keep a change jar at home. Ask everyone in the family to give a little each week, even if it's only a nickel. Then, once a month, donate what you've collected to a charity.

Will Bush suffer for policies?

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It's not a new story for Nebraska farmers and ranchers of the devoted, Republican variety.

Every so many years they face a crisis in economics that runs counter to a policy preferred by an incumbent Republican president.

There are no more loyal Republicans, when it comes to presidential politics, than those of rural Nebraska. Questioning their credentials as GOP loyalists would be like doubting the 3rd District's loyalty to Rep. Tom Osborne. There just ain't no room for doubt!

And it is unlikely that any chief executive in recent times has enjoyed more overall support from Great Plains Republicans than does President Bush. No Democratic presidential candidate has carried Nebraska since Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964. And that streak isn't likely to break under GWB's watch.

That's why there is something of an irony in the occasional differences found in the needs of ag producers and the policies of Republican presidents.

Every indication from Washington is that President Bush and his advisers are not kindly disposed to much extraordinary spending on behalf of drought-plagued farmers. That is an area, the president has said, where he would like to see the feds hold the line on spending.

Even some of the most loyal of GOP loyalists in farm country have to feel an "Ow-eel" over that one.

Nebraska Sen. Ben Nelson has been arguing that the government should respond to the drought as though it were any other natural-disaster. If the current drought damage had been caused by a tornado or a flood, aid would already be on the way, Nelson noted. That's not the way it works for agriculture.

President Gerald Ford suffered at the polls of Nebraska for his ag policies. After adopting his "plant fence row to fence row" policy, he slapped a grain embargo on the then-Soviet Union. He lost the GOP primary here to Ronald Reagan.

And Reagan, whose popularity was unrivaled in Nebraska, made tough decisions in his early efforts to bring down inflation. They included economic policies, most especially involving the feds' attitude toward loans, that meant trouble for countless farmers. Unlike Ford, Reagan never personally felt any backlash at the rural polls.

Unlike some presidential hopefuls of both major parties, President Bush put the reality of his farm policy views up front during his campaign. It doesn't seem he can be accused of saying one thing and doing another.

At one point in the campaign, he went so far as to say that he hoped his administration could set aside some funds for emergencies. If that could be done, he said, Nebraska might be eligible in tough agricultural times, for some of that money.

Well. There you have it. No such fund yet exists and the imaginary federal surplus is now a real, looming deficit. Whether Congress will brush aside the president's philosophy on agricultural aid remains (at this writing) to be seen.

But regardless of anyone's view of economic/agricultural policy, the fact remains that GWB deserves credit - he can't be accused of saying one thing on the banks of the Missouri, and another on the Potomac.

Project provides education

By Dan Pries,
Farmers National Company

Many of you have noticed the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Acre Project already. If you haven't, it is located just north of Wayne along the west side of Highway 15.

There is a large colorful sign identifying the project. Take note the next time you drive by, or take advantage of these nice September evenings to go for a little ride in the country and see the project.

So, what is an acre and what lessons can be learned from just one of them? Well, of course in simple terms an acre is 160 square rods. Or, in other words, 43,560 square feet. Or another way of thinking of an acre is 10 square chains. Does that help you visualize an acre? Probably not. Let me put it in more familiar terms. One rod is about the distance between fence posts. One chain is the width of a county road right-of-way, including ditches. One square acre is about 209 feet on a side.

I have marked off the front of our Acre Project with bright orange stakes that are 209 feet apart. Did you know that the World Trade Towers were 209 feet square. Each of the 110 stories of the Towers was one acre. So, if you visit the Acre Project, imagine a building the width of the Acre Project and over 1,360 feet tall. That is slightly taller than most center pivots are long.

Our nation is measured off in rods and chains and acres. These acres of productive soil are the unique foundation upon which the success of our communities and country is built. Few Americans are farmers any longer specifically because we do not have to be. The abundant productivity of acres like the one marked off north of town have allowed businesses and individuals all across the United States to pursue other ambitions without having to worry about producing their daily bread.

In future articles, we'll visit about how our acre may have contributed in years past, how it helps support our community today, and what our acre might have in store for us in the future.

Marching with pride

The Wayne Pride of the Blue Devils Marching Band received a trophy on Saturday following the Wayne State Band Day Parade. The band will participate in three competitions during October. They are under the direction of Brad Weber.

Community landscape funds available

Public spaces are eligible for landscape-improvement funding, through two programs coordinated by the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum. Justin Evertson, NSA assistant director for community programs, said the funding will be particularly useful in encouraging drought-tolerant landscaping.

Tree planting and landscape projects that improve the state's transportation corridors such as public streets, highways and trails are eligible for the Community Enhancement Program.

Parks, schoolyards, fairgrounds, college campuses and grounds of libraries, courthouses and other public properties can apply for funds from the Nebraska Green Space Stewardship Initiative to help renew and develop community green spaces based on environmentally sound design and management practices.

The deadline for both programs is Nov. 15, with funding awards announced in December and planting beginning in spring of 2003.

Since 1978, these and other arboretum programs have had a significant impact on the viability and livability of Nebraska communities:

- More than 500 different landscape projects have been implemented.
- More than 180 communities across the state have been assisted.
- More than $5 million has been allocated to these projects.
- The total value of all projects has now surpassed $10 million.
- More than 40,000 trees and shrubs have been planted, along with thousands of perennials and grasses.

CEP funds are available through the Nebraska Department of Roads and are administered by the Nebraska Forest Service in partnership with NSA.

The Green Space Stewardship Initiative Program is funded by the Nebraska Environmental Trust, a beneficiary of the Nebraska Lottery.

ther information about Green Space funding, contact Evertson at (402)472-5045 or e-mail jevertson@unl.edu.

The annual Wake Up With Wayne activities included free coffee, a bake sale, egg in a basket (made by Chef George Holm) and a farmer's market. The event is held in conjunction with the Wayne State Band Day festivities. The cool, fall-like temperatures did not deter spectators from enjoying the day's events.

Head Coach Sharon Vanis sees the team developing some momentum right now. "I'm seeing alot of good things from our team right now. We came away from the Crossover Tournament with a good feeling despite going 1-2. I told the players we were 6-6 at this time last year and look how our season ended up. We have made huge strides in the last week or so."

Wayne State, now 8-7, hosts Morningside tonight (Thursday) at 7 pm. The Wildcats begin NSIC play at Southwest State Tuesday at 7pm in a rematch of last year's regular season champions.

Rugby memorial award

"Nicole had a good first meet for a freshman," said third-year head coach Marlon Brink. "She was just edged out by another freshman, otherwise she would have been the top freshman in the race. She should continue to improve as the season progresses."

Freshman Betsy Gahan of Oakland and Erin Norenberg of Fremont placed 13th and 14th respectively.

For the men's team, junior Nick

Hansen of Osmond was the top finisher, placing eighth. His time on the 8,000-meter course was 29:02.

WSC did not field enough runners to qualify for a team score.

"I thought our kids ran well for their first meet," said Brink. "We are extremely young, so this was a nice sized meet to start the season with."

The contestant must show in a timed obstacle course, and a reinsmanship class which shows how well the horse and driver communicate. Also included in the competition is a working class which shows the horse's performance, manners and movement. The Turnout class of the competition shows how the horse's harness, the cart or wagon and the people match. For example, a doctor's buggy, the horse's type of harness and the outfits of the driver must all be from the same era. Scores are kept in all these areas and the driver with the highest score receives the traveling trophy. In case of a tie, the highest score in the reinsmanship class wins.

Livestock Market Report

Monday evening: It has been an absolutely gorgeous day! Cool and still, just what the doctor ordered after all that heat.

cousins was here that night. She lives in Las Vegas, and has been in Wayne County looking up things like naturalization papers.

The Farmer's Wife By: Pat Meierhenry

One of the partners in the antique shop called a week ago and invited me to come get green beans.

One of my mother's traditions is to give my sis and me each a dozen jars of canned peaches for our anniversaries in September.

She's happily into genealogy. I wish I had more time for it; it's fascinating. When she introduced us to her friend, Ron, he shook my hand and said, "I've read lots of your columns."

We also received email from Duane in North Carolina regarding that horrible football game. He maintains we have to recruit a 6'5" quarterback with a shotgun arm.

The Farm House was full that night, so we slept on the hide-a-bed. Haven't had to do that yet this year.

Another one of the Big Farmer's

They will be using the hide-a-bed and an air mattress, which is what the counted cross-stitchers did in August.

We also had cousin Paul and his wife from Topeka here Thursday. Mike finally got to experience ArtChicks in Louisville.

Then, today, Marlyce from Orlando and her husband stopped for lunch on their way to York. They actually had one of those good days I wrote about a couple of weeks ago.

So, it looks as if our tourist season isn't over yet. Next weekend, a family from Denver will be here to watch the World of Outlaws at the Eagle raceway.

Tomorrow, I help make hospice visits in the morning, and help show a group from Omaha through the Aldrich House in the afternoon.

Cataracts affect over 80% of our senior citizens. In fact over one million cataract surgeries are performed annually in the U.S. alone.

New technological developments in implants, ultrasonic equipment, lasers, diagnostic testing, and surgical techniques have made cataract surgery one of the most effective procedures today. Currently, over 98% of cataract patients experience significant improvements in vision, without major complications.

Until now, the high cost of this new technology for cataract surgery was only available in the larger surgical facilities. This meant that you would have to travel for a complete eye examination and surgery. Not any longer.

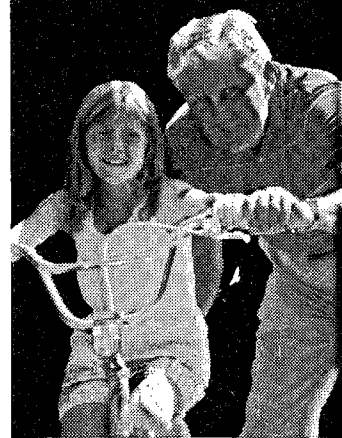

Complete eye care and cataract surgery is now available at Providence Medical Center in Wayne. You don't have to travel outside of your community to have your vision tested for cataracts. With Dr. Willcockson, Dr. Koeber and Dr. Magnuson offering comprehensive diagnostic and surgical services, you now have the most advanced eye care available right here in town.

Call Dr. Koeber or Dr. Magnuson for a complete eye examination and cataract vision screening today. If you would like more information on cataracts for yourself or someone you know who may be experiencing loss of vision, call today for a free informational brochure.
