Drug initiative paying dividends

In early September the Wayne Police Department assigned one officer to full time drug investigation. This assignment began paying dividends very quickly. On Sept. 30, Nicholas Brandt, 19, of Norfolk was stopped by a Nebraska State Patrol Trooper and Wayne Police Department Officers. Brandt, formerly of Wayne, was arrested for Possession of Methamphetamine with Intent to Distribute and unrelated traffic offenses. Subsequent to his arrest, Brandt was also charged with two counts of Distribution of Methamphetamine based on a Wayne Police Department investigation. Last week Brandt pled guilty in Wayne County District Court to two counts of Delivery of Methamphetamine. He also pled guilty to one count of Possession of Methamphetamine based on a Stanton County arrest earlier this year. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered before sentencing in January of 2003.

Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster said, "I am very pleased with this case and the investigative efforts of his staff. It is very unusual for any criminal case to go from initial buy to conviction in less than two months."

Paying tribute

Veterans were honored at the Wayne Senior Center on Monday during the annual Veteran's Day program. Addresses were given by City Administrator Lowell Johnson and Vietnam Veteran Gerald Conway. Several patriotic songs were sung by all those in attendance, accompanied by Bonnadell Koch. Following the service, a balloon launch was held and lunch, provided by Pae 'N' Savq and the Wayne Senior Center was served.

Sisters-in-law share memories

By Clara Osten
 Of the Herald

In a small town, it isn't unusual for relatives to live near each other. However, for The Oaks Retirement Community, four sisters-in-law living in the same facility has created a unique experience.

Edna, Alta, Ruth and Irma Baier share more than just a last name. They were married to four of the eight Baier brothers, lived in the Wayne area all their married lives and now are among those who call The Oaks home.

Ruth was the first to move to The Oaks, arriving in May of 1998. A native of Innman, she had come to Wayne to attend Wayne Teachers College. She received her education and taught school in Wayne County and at Gordon before marrying Otto Baier on Sept. 7, 1935.

The couple lived on farms near Wayne until retiring to Wayne in 1977. Otto died in 1995. They were the parents of five children, LeAnn, who died when she was 15 months old; Randy, who died in 1994; Jerry, who lives in Wayne; Jim, who lives in Louisiana and Ruth Ann Kardell of St. Paul, Minn. She also has seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Ruth celebrated her 91st birthday in September. She came from a family of nine; however, she has only one living sister at this time.

Alta Baier, who celebrated her 93rd birthday on Nov. 12, came to The Oaks in December of 1999. She has lived in the Wayne area all her life.

After graduating from high school, she attended Wayne Teachers College and taught in rural schools for four years. Later, she did social work in the

Wayne police attend AMBER Alert training

Police Chief Lance Webster and Sgt. Marlen Chinn of the Wayne Police Department attended AMBER alert training at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center in Grand Island.

The AMBER Alert program is a cooperative effort between law enforcement and the news media to provide emergency coverage in the event that a child is kidnapped. The AMBER Alert program, which first began in Texas, recently gained national attention because of its use in finding two kidnapped girls in California.

The Nebraska Attorney General's office has spearheaded the implementation of the AMBER Alert program in Nebraska. Only law enforcement agencies whose personnel have had the AMBER Alert training can implement the plan.

The current requirements for implementation in Nebraska are: the child must be 15 years old or younger; there must be reason to believe the child is in imminent danger of serious bodily harm or death and there must be some description of an abductor or vehicle information for the police to watch for. If these criteria aren't met, then the AMBER Alert plan will not be implemented.

Chief Webster said if the report of a missing child doesn't meet the AMBER Alert criteria, his department will still issue a media broadcast request. Webster cited the recent search for a missing eight-year old. The description of the girl was given to KTCH Radio for immediate broadcast and the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department was called to help. The missing girl was found just before her photo was scanned for e-mail dissemination to television stations.

"This case wouldn't have qualified as an AMBER Alert but the new media was certainly involved," Webster said.

Webster said, "I hope we never have to issue an AMBER Alert in Wayne, but the ability to do so, because of the training, will help further Wayne's reputation as a 'child safe community.'"

Letters

Thank you for all the effort

Dear Editor,
With the opening of the Community Activity Center quickly approaching, I thought a letter of Thank You would be appropriate.
I'd like to thank everyone involved in this project that will benefit this community greatly. I know how much time was involved in making this happen. It was a huge commitment for a lot of people.
I especially want to thank two people that I feel put their heart and soul into this project. Those two people are Bob Keating and Doug Carroll. I feel these two people were very instrumental in getting this project to where it is now, even though there were days when they wanted to give up. To those two people, I want to give a special Thank You!

I hope everyone is as excited as I am for the opening of the Community Activity Center. I also hope the community will back this project 100 percent so that all the hard work of the people above does not go to waste.
Congratulations to the volunteers, the City Council, the Recreation Staff, the Mayor, the City Administrator, anyone else I've missed and especially, to the town of Wayne, for creating something great that will benefit all.
A new member of the Community Activity Center,
Laura Gamble, Wayne

Who is the gamblin winner?

Dear Editor,
We hear about the big winners in the Nebraska Lottery; however, the big winners ALL of the time are those of the Gambling Machine Operators.
The cost of rehabilitation for the addicted gamblers and the devastation of family life cannot be measured.

A recent caricature in the Wayne Herald tells it like it is, with the Nebraska economy going down with the boat while the little guy is futilely bailing out water with a bucket, as the expanded gambling fat lady sits high and dry at the top.
Sincerely,

Estimated completion time is next April. The auditorium is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Police
The Wayne Civil Service Commission has been working to examine and qualify candidates for a new police officer for Wayne. This is an additional position added to the Wayne force and is primarily funded for the first two years through the federal COPS program.
The addition of this officer will bring the total force size of the Wayne Police Department to nine full-time officers and four dispatchers.

We will also be interviewing qualified persons for a full-time dispatcher position and should fill that position soon.
New residential subdivision
The Planning Commission is reviewing preliminary plans for a new 30-lot subdivision called Vintage Hills III which will be located at the north end of the present Claycomb Road in northeast

Political traditions continue in Nebraska

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

In the wake of last week's election, Nebraska Republicans are sitting on top of the world.
Democrats are just sitting, with a "Someone get the number of that truck!" look about them. Always the minority party hereabouts, the Dems took a historic beating at the general election in which their candidates were marginal players, at best.
Nebraska has ever been a bastion of Republican strength, but the degree of that strength has varied. As a party activist, governor and U.S. Sen., J. James Exon was instrumental in building what became a viable Democratic party in the Cornhusker state. In the mid-70s, 80s and 90s, Democrats represented a genuine, loyal opposition that enjoyed victories in U.S. Senate, House and gubernatorial elections.
Those days are gone. If or when they will return will depend upon much-needed party leadership, and issues.

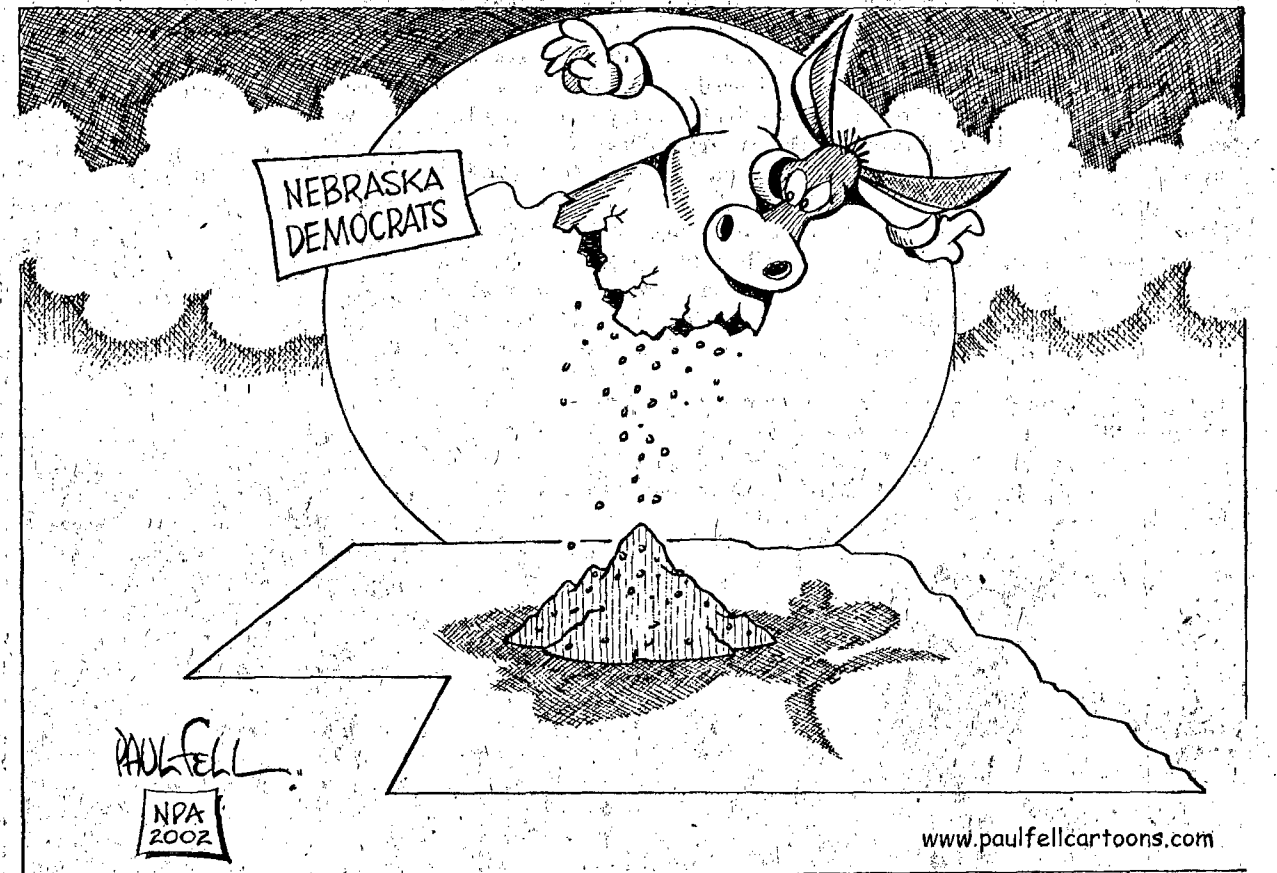

Republicans didn't even have Democratic opposition in some major races, including those for the 3rd District and 2nd District House seats. Even when the outcome of a race is virtually assured, it's nice to have a bit of "loyal opposition" for the sake of debating a variety of views. Besides, a debate in a town hall gives the folk a reason to turn out for a nice dinner, or something; and it sometimes gives reporters a good story!

During his two terms as governor, Exon was fond of referring to the Unicameral as Nebraska's "non-partisan, Republican Legislature." It was an accurate assessment.

Nebraska lawmakers are elected on a nonpartisan ballot, but registered Republicans outnumber registered Democrats in the nation's only one-house, officially nonpartisan Legislature. The Republican advantage in voter registration is, understandably, reflected in its makeup.

Republican Gov. Mike Johanns will enjoy an overwhelming majority in the Legislature when the 2003 session begins. And although it's nice to have numbers, they don't always equate with a working majority in the Legislature.
While differences in political philosophy and affiliation can sometimes influence debate, differences between Nebraska solons have historically centered more on urban/rural divisions. Things like formulas for sending state tax dollars to schools, for example, have made rural vs. urban far more important than R vs. D.

Tax policy is always a major issue in Nebraska, and it is likely to stay that way during Johanns' second term.
The governor has recently said he is willing to look at the use of state revenues, such as sales tax dollars, to further help reduce the burden on local property taxes.
Whether Johanns might ultimately agree to a higher state sales tax levy for such a purpose remains to be seen.

Nursing home supports initiative

Wakefield Health Care Center, a 49-bed nursing facility in Wakefield, is pleased to be a supporter of the new federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) Nursing Home Quality Initiative (NHQI).
The goal of this important effort is to improve the quality of patient care outcomes in America and provide consumers with relevant, comparative information for making decisions regarding long-term care. On Nov. 12, CMS launched a government web page (located at www.medicare.gov) that gives you the opportunity to see how the federal government measures care outcomes in our facility and others in our state.

There will be newspaper advertisements from CMS telling you about this information and how to access it.
This initiative signals a new era in quality assurance for nursing homes — are era that will be marked by caregivers, patients, family members and consumers working positively and cooperatively to continually improve the quality of care.
"As caregivers, our aim is for consumers to have reliable information regarding the quality of care provided by facilities," Administrator Terry Hoffman said. "Reliable, accurate information is an essential part of the decision making process in the selection of a nursing home," he emphasized.

"The data generated by the NHQI for the first time will allow us to reasonably compare our facility's care outcomes with statewide averages of all facilities. This information will help identify areas in need of improvement and will encourage providers to exchange information on new and innovative ways to improve the quality of care," he added.
Hoffman commented about statistical comparisons among facilities with respect to state averages.
"Researchers, studying the validity of quality indicators, found there are inter-facility differences in the types of patients admitted and that this is an important consideration when looking at scores that may be higher or lower than the average. In addition, the data only relates to a few selected conditions and does not cover all the clinical situations found in a facility. Furthermore, small rural facilities most likely will not have any comparison data listed in some of the areas because their base number or the denominator for the calculation is too small.
"The base for the post-acute indicators is at least 20 qualifying residents over a six month period with stays of between 14 and 30 days.

The base for the chronic care indicators is at least 30 residents with a full or quarterly MDS in the target quarter. The data being released this week targets the second quarter of 2002," Hoffman said.
Administrator Hoffman added, "Our dedicated caregivers work very hard to make Wakefield Health Care Center a quality facility, which is why we are very excited about another part of the federal initiative. Over the next several months, our state's quality improvement organization, the Sunderbruch Corporation - Nebraska, will begin working with nursing homes on a quality initiative to ensure that patients in our state get the possible care. We welcome this new initiative and look forward to adding it to the quality improvement efforts already existing in our nursing home."
"The NHQI is a significant step forward for the nation's system of long-term care because it engages all of the critical stakeholders in a collaborative manner that, we believe, will benefit patient and caregiver alike. However, there's no substitute for visits to nursing facilities and face-to-face discussion with caregivers," Hoffman said.

Pierce and Walthill areas.

On March 25, 1936 she married Paul Baier. The couple lived south east of Wayne and farmed until moving to Wayne in 1971. Paul died in March of 1976, after 40 years of marriage. The couple had no children.

Alta still drives and on occasion takes her sisters-in-law to events or out to eat in Wayne. She enjoys playing cards, especially bridge. All four women are members of Our Savior Lutheran Church.

Irma moved to The Oaks in December of 2000. A native of Pilger, she married Walter Baier on Nov. 28, 1952. The couple farmed south of Wayne until moving into Wayne. Walter was also a resident of The Oaks for a time. He died Oct. 19, 2001.

She celebrated her 78th birthday in September.

Irma and Walter have four children, David Baier of Wayne, Kenneth Baier of Ames, Karen Crawford of Denver, Colo. and Janet Kardell of Wayne. They also have 12 grandchildren.

The oldest of the sisters-in-law, Edna, moved to The Oaks in November of 2001. She celebrated her 96th birthday on Nov. 3 and is currently the oldest resident of The Oaks.

Edna was born at Carroll, but when she was six months old, her family moved to South Dakota to homestead land. The oldest (and only one still living) of six children, she was raised and educated in South Dakota. She received normal training following high school and taught grades one through eight for a total of eight years.

Through relatives, she met and married Chris Baier on Sept. 8, 1932. The couple lived on the same farm northwest of Wayne for 32 years. They moved into Wayne in 1971 and Chris died on Dec. 25, 1984.

The couple have three children, Stan of Wayne, Merrill of Carroll and Deanna Ehlers of Morningside, Iowa. They also have 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

The women remember spending birthdays and anniversaries together many times through the years.

"We took turns having dinners. Sometimes there were as many as 50 people. I remember moving furniture out of the living room and putting in tables. We sometimes had to eat in shifts," Alta said.

"When we lived on the farm, everybody had chickens, milked cows and had our pork and beef. We also had big gardens," Ruth said.

They also reminisced about that time period when they had no electricity, had to carry water and had only country phones.

At one time, Edna, Ruth and Alta lived within several blocks of each other in Wayne.

While health problems currently keep Irma from participating in many activities, the other three-sisters-in-law visit with other residents of The Oaks and participate in the activities provided there.

"They treat us really well here and are very nice," Edna said.

The women look forward to many more family celebrations together with their extended family at The Oaks.

Fatal accident is being investigated

The Nebraska State Patrol and the Wayne County Sheriff's Office are investigating a fatality accident that occurred about one mile west and one and one-half miles north of Wayne in Wayne County at approximately 4:15 p.m. on Tuesday.

A car driven by 15-year old Richard Kyle Straight of Wayne slid sideways on the county road and rolled into the field at that location. Straight was thrown from the vehicle and was killed. He was not wearing a seat belt.

Fourteen-year old Derek Carroll, also of Wayne, was a passenger in the same vehicle. He was wearing a seat belt and remained in the vehicle. He was treated and released from Providence Medical Center with cuts and bruises.

The Sheriff's Office and the State Patrol were assisted at the scene by the Providence Medical Center Ambulance crew and the rescue crews from the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

School board meeting held

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

The Wayne Community Schools Board of Education met in regular session Monday night. Dr. Joe Reinert, superintendent, noted a $2,000 grant was received for a portable AED (defibrillator). Dr. Don Zeiss, Wayne High principal, said the defibrillator will be located on the wall outside the main office at the high school. He mentioned training needs to be set up on how to use it.

On bids and contracts, the board amended the motion for the guarantee of the track loan.

Pre-scheduled communication from the public included Lori Owens and Shari Dunklau speaking for the Parent Ag group who would like to see Wayne High students join FFA with the Laurel-Concord School. Owens and Dunklau said this would be beneficial for the students in many ways and would also make W.H.S. students eligible for SAE grants and college scholarships available to FFA members only.

Through the interest of the parents, a "Ag Career Literacy" class is available through Distance Learning at Wayne High. There are 15 students taking this class. In 2003, the parents would like to see one or two more ag classes offered. The parents sent out letters to businesses and individuals and received both verbal and financial support.

Mary Temme, a member of the parents group, told the board the board is faced with tight budget concerns and encouraged them to contact the governor and legislature about the cuts being made in education. Board member Bill Dickey noted the board should meet with the Laurel-Concord Board of Education to discuss sharing options in ag-related subjects. David Lutt, elementary school principal, spoke on enrollment. He said numbers are up with 49 new children enrolled recently. With more children, there's more demand on teachers; some of which is in the special education area. Lutt said he would keep the board informed.

Kraig Lofquist, special education director, told the board funding has been received for testing for the federal program, "No Child Left Behind". One of the functions of the federal program is tracking migrant students.

The board approved policy 5300 which deals with student discipline. They also worked on board goals.

Future agenda items are discussing the energy bills from 2002 and '01, superintendent evaluations, FFA, and the possibility of a personal finance class.

No executive session was held. The next board meeting is set for Monday, Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. at Wayne High School.

District champs

Council approves request for funds

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Approval was given for an application to use Wayne Revolving Loan Funds at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Making the application was Kelly Meyer, Manager of Farm to Market Ag Center. The money (up to $19,500) will be used to purchase and renovate the building that formerly housed Dave's Body Shop on South Main Street.

The council passed Resolution 2002-63, which involved an agreement with Alley Poyner, concluding the firm's architectural services in regard to the auditorium renovation. The agreement indicates that the city will not change the plans for the project and represent the changes as those of Alley Poyner's.

The council also gave approval to the resolution which states that the Community Activity Center is substantially complete. The city took possession of the building last week and it will be open for public use beginning on Monday, Nov. 18.

Discussion was held on the amount to charge those who use the Community Activity Center in adult basketball leagues.

After several council members spoke, the group voted to set the fees at $25 for members of the CAC and $50 for those who are not members. This decision will be valid for one year and will be reviewed following the completion of the season. The money collected is used to help offset the cost of officials for games.

Approval was given for the specifications for City Auditorium curtains and authorizing them to be sent out for bids. This action was taken in an effort to gather information on what these curtains may cost. After bids are obtained, the council may accept or reject the bids received.

The council also set a public hearing date of Tuesday, Dec. 10 at or about 7:35 p.m. to consider the Planning Commission's recommendation regarding the allowance of boarding, rooming and lodging houses as a use by exception in the B-2 Central District.

The council's next meeting will be Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

Flying for freedom

Red, white and blue balloons were released during the Veterans' Day program at the Wayne Senior Center. The flying balloons represented the freedoms earned by those veterans who have served in the various wars and conflicts. Balloons and floral arrangements were provided by Wayne Greenhouse, Flowers & Wine and Schumacher-Hasemann Funeral Home.

Olympic champ gives advice

Olympic champion Billy Mills had this advice for Wayne State College students: set goals, keep focused, and work hard to achieve your dreams. Mills, the national spokesperson for Running Strong, a non-profit organization encouraging Native youth, was the featured speaker at day-long activities on Tuesday, Nov. 12 commemorating Native American Heritage Month at Wayne State College. His visit was coordinated by the WSC Multicultural Center.

An Oglala Lakota (Sioux) born and raised on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota, Mills became the first and only American to win a gold medal in the 10,000-meter race in the 1964 Tokyo Olympic Games, where he set an Olympic record of 28 minutes, 24.4 seconds.

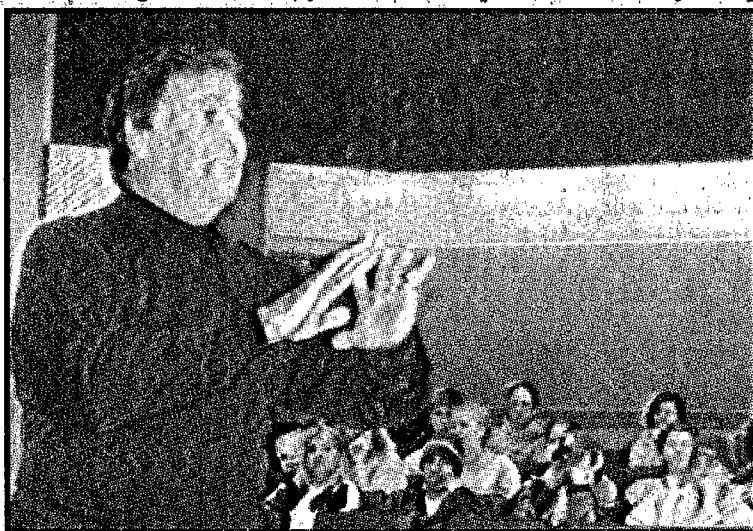

Mills recounted the final lap of the Olympic race, where he hadn't been expected to be a contender. "At 60 yards to go, they [Australia's Ron Clarke and Tunisia's Mohammad Gammoudji] were still ahead of me and I couldn't hear anything except my heart pounding," he said. "And I knew I had won. Concentrate on what counts without being distracted. Don't waste your energy on the negative focus. Keep the focus. I trained for 15 years and ran 45,000 miles to win my gold medal."

Orphaned at the age of 12, Mills said he lives his life through the teachings of his father. "I was constantly told and challenged to live my life as a warrior," he said. "As a warrior, you assume responsibility for yourself. The warrior humbles himself and learns the power of giving."

As a motivational spokesperson, Mills encourages Native youth with his message based on character, dignity and pride. He is also active in Christian Relief Services, a nonprofit organization that coordinates programs including Americans Helping Americans, American Indian Youth Running Strong, and Bread and Water for Africa. Mills, who lives in Sacramento, Calif., makes approximately 75 appearances each year across the nation.

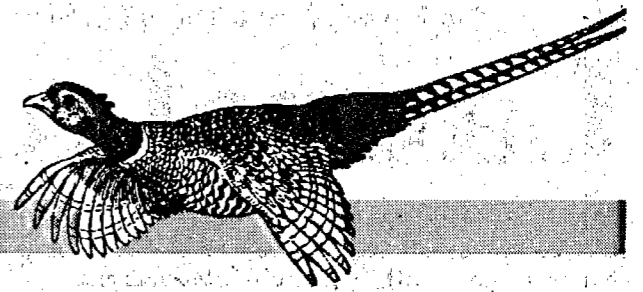

While on the Wayne State campus, Mills met with students, faculty and staff. A special showing of the 1984 movie, "Running Brave," based on his life, was presented. Mills was featured speaker at an evening program that also included a performance by "Many Moccasins," a Native American dance troop headed by Wayne State student Garan Coons.

Olympic champion Billy Mills delivered an encouraging message on achievement to WSC students on campus, Nov. 12.

Western State College the defending NCAA Division II

National Champions won the meet with a team score of 23 points. The University of Minnesota-Duluth was the top NSIC team in the region placing 11th with 307 points.

The women's teams competed on a 6,000 meter course (3.75 miles). Freshmen Erin Norenberg (Fremont, Nebr.) and Nicole McCoy (Lincoln, Nebr.) placed 145th (26:38) and 152nd (27:11), respectively. Wayne State College did not run a full squad. Adams State College won the team race with 23 points. Adams State was the runner-up team at the NCAA Division II National Meet last year. The University of Minnesota-Duluth was the top

NSIC team with 384 points.

Stated head coach Marlon Brink, "We were pleased with how our athletes ran. In comparing their performance to the NSIC meet two weeks ago, they all ran considerably better. It is hard sometimes in a meet of this caliber to gauge how well an athlete is running. We were running against six of the top twenty teams in NCAA Division II, so it was basically like a mini-national meet."

"We didn't run full squads due to injuries that some of our runners are dealing with. Rather than risk further injury we chose to hold them out of this competition."

Tips are given on hunting deer in the corn

Last week, I was bow hunting for deer in central South Dakota. We were in an area that we knew held lots of bucks.

Every shelterbelt was torn up with rubs and scrapes and where a tree wasn't available, the deer had tore up the wooden fence posts. These deer were in the rut!

Every where we looked, there was deer sign, it was a deer hunter's dream.

That evening as we sat in our tree stands, waiting patiently for the deer to walk into the trees, we realized that something was wrong.

The deer weren't staying in the trees, they were passing through after dark as they came out of their beds and again in the morning as they headed back to bed down.

Our deer were living in the unpicked corn, where they had all they needed to eat and a safe place to spend their day.

When the deer finally came out of the corn, it was a crap shoot as to where they would appear. One night it was next to the ground blind, unfortunately we were in the tree stand.

The next morning while we were in the ground blind, they ran all around our tree stands.

It was enough to make a nervous wreck out of an archery deer hunter.

What we needed was a good stiff wind and a little luck in order to get close enough to a deer to take them with archery equipment.

The next morning we got what we were looking for as the wind whipped up to around 25 M.P.H., making the corn a noisy place. The wind rattled the corn stalks and leaves and this would cover the noise we made as we slipped through the corn.

Of the Outdoors

We were going in, but before we did we needed to figure out a way to fool the deer's keen senses.

Deer are equipped very well for surviving in the wild. Their large ears help them to hear even the slightest sound. They have excellent vision and a sense of smell second to none.

I was hunting with Bob Knopf, an avid bow hunter and author who had learned the art of hunting the corn from Toad Smith while living in Iowa.

Since deer have never had to worry about hunters in the corn, they don't use all of their senses when they head into a corn field to bed down.

As Bob put it, "it's almost like the deer leave their brain outside the corn field when they go in as you can sneak up on them and they don't even know you're there."

It may sound like a tough hunt, but hunting the corn really isn't all that complicated! All you need is a good stiff wind to rattle the corn, which covers the noise you make as you go from row to row looking for the deer.

You'll want to spray yourself and your equipment down with Scent Killer, a product that covers or eliminates the human odor. Or wear a scent eliminating type clothing so that the deer won't wind you.

Start your hunt on the side of the field with the wind blowing into your face and then slowly work your way through the corn. Go back and forth down the rows until you cover the entire length and then move up into the next rows and repeat the process.

You'll need to peak through each row and then use your binoculars to check both ways looking for the bedded deer. When you find them, they'll be bedded into the wind, trying to take advantage of their sense of smell.

Once you've spotted the deer, back off around four rows and move down that row until you're directly across from the deer.

Since the deer is facing into the wind and you're working with the wind in your face, you'll come up behind the deer.

Most of your shots will be closer than 20 yards and the deer won't have any idea that you're there.

If you've seen the bucks that are in the area, you'll be able to pick and choose what deer you want to shoot because every deer in the area will probably be bedded in the corn.

On this trip, we ran out of time before covering the entire field and locating the big buck. Bob did locate several does with his Alpen Binoculars and was able to get within 5 feet of a mature doe. She was wide awake but because of the wind, Bob's patient stalk and the use of Scent Killer, the doe had no idea that he was there.

The key to hunting the corn is a good wind, working through the corn slowly, patience and good binoculars as the deer will be bedded in the thickest corn and can be hard to see.

Give archery deer hunting in the corn, as it is one of the most productive methods you'll find and the deer will be there all day, so unlike stand hunting, you can hunt them all day.

St. John's Wort for Depression

St. John's wort (Hypericum perforatum) has been used to treat depression and has been popularized by the media - including coverage in Newsweek and 20/20. This herb has three main actions - antidepressant, antiviral and antibacterial. The mechanism of action has been shown to be through inhibition of the reuptake of serotonin - a chemical transmitter in the nervous system.

A review of 23 trials on 1,757 patients diagnosed with mild to moderate depression demonstrated that hypericum extracts were significantly superior to a placebo and just as effective as standard antidepressants. Side effects were reported by only 20% of patients on hypericum versus 53% of patients on standard antidepressant medications.

The recommended dose of St. John's wort for an adult is 300 mg of the standardized extract (0.3% hypericin extract) three times daily. Reported side effects include mild stomach disturbances, fatigue and itching. The herb should not be taken with prescribed antidepressants such as fluoxetine. Tryamine-containing foods, alcoholic beverages, narcotics and amphetamines should be avoided. Safety in pregnancy and lactation has not been established.

Special sessions are planned for adult learners

In order to encourage the older learner that success as a college student is possible, Northeast Community College has scheduled two more, 90-minute programs entitled "Opportunities for Adult Learners."

The sessions are scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 21, noon-1:30 p.m., and Tuesday, Dec. 10, from 7-8:30 p.m.

All sessions, to be held in the Maclay Building, Room 100B, on the Northeast campus, are free.

The sessions are specially designed for adult students who want to learn new skills for a different job or a promotion at their present job. Those who have recently been laid off from a job or those returning to the workforce are encouraged to attend. Former students who wish to complete a degree or those just starting to work on a four-year degree are also welcome.

The presentations will include a panel discussion featuring non-traditional students (learners over the age of 25) and graduates who will discuss their college experience at Northeast. Learning options and career planning options available at Northeast will also be reviewed. Students will also be encouraged to start setting their future goals.

"Although the attendance at our first session was down a bit because of inclement weather," Chris Lahm, dean of enrollment management, said, "we were extremely pleased that fully 75 per cent who came indicated a strong interest in returning to college. And that's exactly what we're hoping these sessions will do...get the adult students back to class."

For more information, call Rose Ann Rogers at (402)844-7263.

Tips given for year-end giving

'Tis the season to begin thinking about charitable gifts that can reduce your tax burden and benefit your favorite charities at the same time.

For those who itemize their tax returns, charitable gifts can result in tax savings for 2002. The higher your tax rate, the more you save on each dollar given.

According to Ken Sutherland, director of planned giving for the American Heart Association's Heartland Affiliate, giving appreciated assets such as stocks, bonds, and mutual funds that you've owned for at least one year and a day generally allows you to bypass capital gains tax that would be due if you sold the asset. He gives the following tips to help you when selecting charities.

Sutherland also recommends: Be on guard for "sound-alike" names that are similar to a major charity but are not the same. Be wary of solicitations that you don't initiate. Be certain that an organization and a solicitor are legitimate; ask for the full name and address of the charity.

Investigate your charities. Consult with the Better Business Bureau or check out the BBB Wise Giving Alliance's charity report at www.give.org/reports/index.asp. Another potential information source is Worth Magazine, which has posted its 2002 list of America's 100 best charities at www.worth.com.

Just because an organization is tax-exempt, doesn't guarantee that your gift is deductible. If the tax savings is important to you, make sure your gift is deductible. Consult a tax advisor if you are unsure.

Make your contributions by check and payable to the charity. Never pay in cash.

Consider the benefits of deferred giving such as through a will, trust or split-interest agreement that provides an income flow back to you.

For more information on deferred giving opportunities with the American Heart Association in Nebraska, contact Ken Sutherland at (800) 642-8400.

About 96,000 Americans are killed annually from heart disease and stroke, the nation's number one and three killers.

The American Heart Association spent about $382 million during the fiscal year 2000-2001 on research support, public and professional education, and community programs. Nationwide, the organization has grown to include more than 22.5 million volunteers and supporters who carry out its mission in communities across the country. The association is the largest nonprofit voluntary health organization fighting heart disease, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases.

SPACE FOR RENT

Black & Gold series continues at Wayne State

The Wayne State College Black and Gold Series will feature sitar virtuoso Partha Bose and tabla performer Gourisankar in a performance entitled "From Dusk to Dawn," in Ley Theatre, Brandenburg Education Building on campus, Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 8 p.m.

The performers are on tour in Europe and will begin the U.S. portion of their tour at Wayne State College. Hailed for their uncanny ability to communicate with listeners anywhere in the world, their appearance at WSC will provide an unusual opportunity to experience an enchanting evening of music from another culture.

Among American audiences, the sitar and tabla are the most-familiar instruments in the classical music of northern India. Played by plucking its strings, the sitar is an instrument distantly related the lute and guitar. The tabla is a pair of drums played with the hands. Both are vital to the classical music of India.

Partha Bose

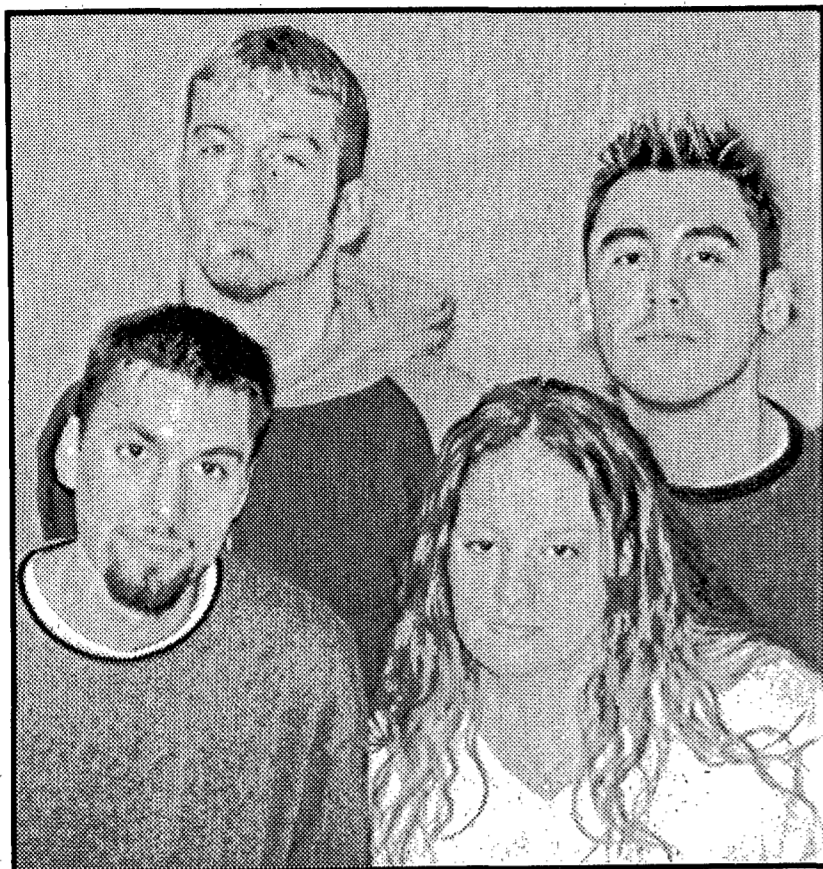

The performance will include a brief verbal introduction to Indian classical music, and will feature ragas, which are melodies characterized by a unique scale or note-structure. Indian classical music thrives on improvisation within the framework of the raga and the tala (beat-cycle). Ragas are associated with moods, seasons, and also with time of the day or night. The choice of a raga for a concert depends on the mood of the musician at that moment, which illustrates the peaceful co-existence of tradition and creativity in a performance.

Celebrated sitar performer Partha Bose began musical studies at 6 and began making his mark in Calcutta as a teenager. Bose has performed throughout the U.S. as well as in Canada, Europe, Madagascar and Bangladesh. The government of India honored him when he was selected to lead a cultural delegation to African countries on the historic occasion of the Golden Jubilee Celebrations of India's Independence. Tabla performer Gourisankar was initially trained by his father, and subsequently by renowned tabla teachers in India. Seating is limited. General admission tickets cost $5 and can be purchased in advance or at the door one hour before each performance.

Advance tickets are available in the Wayne State business office in the Hahn Administration Building or by calling 402-375-7517.

'Directors' Showcase' to be presented at Wayne State

Four Wayne State College theatre major students have selected four plays and cast members to direct their own plays during the Wayne State College Directors' Showcase.

The curtain will rise for performances at 8 p.m., Nov. 20, 21 and 22 in Ley Theatre, located in the Brandenburg Education Building on campus. Each performance is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Directors are Kerri Couron of Sioux City, Iowa; Joel Hurtado of South Sioux City; Mike Nissen of Norfolk and Ryan Tweedy of Lincoln. Couron will direct the first story, "Rain." Her cast includes Eric Green of Omaha; Amy Nielsen of Omaha; Courtney Millage of Sioux City, Iowa; Heather Kushner of Omaha and Shaun McCabe of Norfolk. The second play, "For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls," will be directed by Hurtado. His cast includes Jaclyn McGill of O'Neill, Adam Nathan of Pierce, Troy Gillmore of Arlington and Jill Pullen of Fremont.

Nissen will direct the third production, "Who Made Robert DeNiro King of the America." His cast includes Heath Hash of Inman, Sheila Vinson of Foster, Erica Clay of Sioux City, Iowa and Angela Hartman of Doniphan.

"Spoon River Anthology," the finale production, will be directed by Tweedy. His cast members include Patrick Janssen of Auburn; Kristen Anderson of Lake Park, Iowa; Dylan Rhode of Hooper and Ashley Braun of O'Neill.

Stage manager Pete Dowty of O'Neill and set designer Adam Nathan of Pierce will also be involved in the production of the Directors' Showcase.

Students chosen to be part of All-State Band

Two Wayne High School students have been selected to participate in the 2002 All-State Band. They include Emily Brady and Megan Jensen.

Each year over 2,000 of the best high school musicians in the state audition for the Nebraska All-State Band, Chorus, Jazz Band and Orchestra sponsored by the Nebraska Music Educators Association.

Selection as a member of one of these groups is one of the highest musical honors attainable in Nebraska. Emily and Megan will be among the 450 students who will be a part of the 2002 All-State Band.

The band will rehearse Thursday, Nov. 21 through Saturday, Nov. 23 on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus, the host site of the 2002 NMEA Conference/Clinic. A final public concert will be held on Saturday, Nov. 23 at the Lied Center for the Performing Arts on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus.

Library receives grant

Through a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, in conjunction with the Nebraska Library Commission, the Carroll Public Library will be increasing its on-line and computer services for its patrons.

The Carroll Public Library will be receiving one new computer as part of a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. The computer will be installed in the library and will provide free computer and internet access to the public.

Rod Wagner, Director for the Nebraska Library Commission, commented that the addition of new technology has been very beneficial to rural libraries.

"New technologies have helped all libraries but have been especially important in our many rural communities," Wagner commented. "Public libraries are the most commonly used place, outside of the home, for accessing the Internet."

The computer installation team will start in northeast Nebraska and will travel around the state installing computers. Installation is expected to occur the first week of December.

Yearbook earns award

A Cornhusker Award has been earned by Wayne High School's 2002 Devil Daze Yearbook.

In judging announced at the Nebraska High School Press Association's fall convention in Lincoln, Wayne received the association's highest ranking, earned by very few schools in the state.

The book was reviewed on theme, coverage, writing, design and photography.

Last year's editor was Faith Kroeker. She was assisted by Jessica Murtaugh and Ann Temme. Staff members were Brittany Burke, Alise Bethune, Ashley Stowater, Jared Yates, Brianna Theobald and Carrie Walton. Lauren Walton is the Advisor.

This marks the fifth such award in a six-year period for the school. Wayne was one of four Class B schools to reach this level of recognition.

Staff members also received a Performance Award this fall from Walsworth Publishing, placing them in the top 10 percent of all Walsworth schools nationwide for meeting deadlines.

Copies of this yearbook are available for $45 from the high school office or Advisor Lauren Walton.

Boy Scouts to collect food

During their monthly paper drive on Saturday, Nov. 16 the Wayne Boy Scouts will also be collecting donations of food for the Wayne Food Pantry.

As always, newspapers, magazines and aluminum beverage cans should be bagged and placed at the curb by 8:45 a.m.

In addition, the Scouts will pick up all food donations left at the curb. The Wayne Food Pantry is most in need of boxed macaroni & cheese, spaghetti, peanut butter, jelly, juice in cans, boxes, pouches and cereal. Also needed are any meal in can such as beef stew, ravioli, ready to eat pastas and ready to eat soups.

Other items needed include diapers and diaper wipes, tooth brushes and toothpaste, detergent, paper towels and toilet paper.

The Scouts request donations from all Wayne residents. When many give a little, great things can happen.

"The First Time I Can See Television In Over 20 Years..."

"Dr. Herbert Feidler found cataracts on both my eyes. After the surgery, I found for the first time in over 20 years, I can see television without glasses!
You have to have faith in your doctor, and I have faith in Dr. Feidler! He fixed my wife's eyes about 2 or 3 yrs ago and they turned out perfect!
We've had everything from cataracts to a detached retina. Dr. Feidler has taken care of everything real well.
Everytime I walk in the door the whole staff greets me, they take very good care of me. I would recommend Feidler Eye Clinic to everyone."

'Character Train' program offered in Wayne

A new Program, Character Train, has begun at Wayne Elementary School this year. Using the train theme, a different character trait is selected each month. All of the homeroom teachers emphasize this trait in different ways so the entire building focuses on the trait of the month. Perseverance was the character trait for September, and October was Courtesy. November will feature activities of Respect and Cooperation.

good character qualities in the students, a "Student of the Month" is selected from each homeroom for special recognition. These students receive a certificate and a pin and are honored at an assembly. Coach John Murtaugh was the speaker at the first assembly. He picked up on September theme of Perseverance and taught the students that overcoming adversity is an important skill.

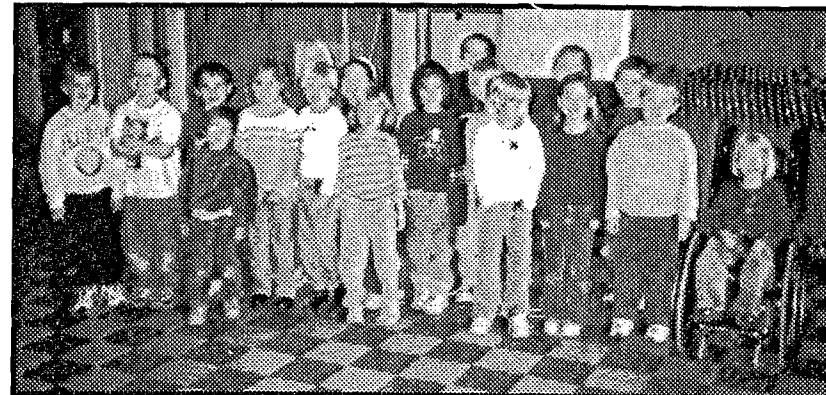

Homerooms earn "train tickets" for good behavior in Music, Library, P.E., and Guidance classes and in the lunchroom. The train tickets earn the homeroom extra privileges. A Homeroom of the month is selected based on the number of tickets earned. The winning homeroom for September was Mrs. Suehl's and October Winner was Mrs. Heikes'

The September Students of the Month were: Madison Frevert, Abby Wilson, Reed Trenhaile, McKenna Bartos, Sam Torres, Haley Mitchell, Dalton Dunklau, Ryan Grosz, Hannah Gamble, Laura Anderson, Tia Jech, Kelsey Puls, Ryan Burbach, Jessica Henderson and Derek Jareske. October Students of the Month

Quilts now on display

Sylvia Hansen of Creighton has a variety of her quilts on display during November and December at the Northeast Nebraska RC&D office in Plainview.

The quilts include Windmill, Sampler, Tulip, Morning Star, Dresden Dinner Plate, Log Cabin, Scrap, Trip Around the World and Baby quilt, Missouri Wall Hanging and Chenille Throw.

Of special interest is the Pioneer Sampler quilt because it depicts some of the patterns that the old settlers used. The Morning Star quilt was her biggest challenge because it is cut on the diagonal and goes thru or stitches six layers of cloth at the same time.

Hansen and her late husband Roy are the parents of three grown children Delila Hansen, Sharon Stanek and Richard Hansen. They also have three grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Roy did some quilting too and made six quilts himself. Sylvia says he could sew a straighter seam than she could, and that she never threaded a needle. Roy would have anywhere from 15 to 20 needles threaded waiting for her to use. Quilting is a hobby of Sylvia's, that began over 30 years ago. Many of her quilts have been given as gifts to relatives and friends. She spends many hours quilting and was recently asked to help quilt some of the Shannon Trail wall hangings.

The public is invited to stop by to see the quilt display in the conference room at the Northeast RC&D office in Plainview, which is located on east Highway 20, 702 East Park Ave. Office hours are 8:00 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A special open house is planned for Sunday afternoon December 8th from 2-4 p.m. in conjunction with Plainview's Hometown Holidays. Loren Lorenz of Meadow Grove will be here that day also with his Intarisia display.

Decisions

Persephone (Katie Straight), at left, tries to decide whether to stay in Hades or return to Earth during the performance "Persephone" at Wayne High School during a Dinner Theatre last week. The One Act/ Drama crew continues to prepare for Conference and District competition, which will be held later this month and into early December.

Students train in area communities

University of Nebraska Medical Center students are working with health professionals across Nebraska as part of their health care education requirements at UNMC.

Local students include Nicholas Hagmann of Wayne. His rotation site is Laurel at The Drug Store working in the pharmacy from Oct. 28 to Nov. 22 with Kimberly Benjen RPH as his preceptor.

Rotation site for Maribeth Bobeldyke of Carroll is in Norfolk at Midwest OB/GYN from Aug. 26 and ending Nov. 4. Her discipline is in Nursing-Grad, Maternal Womens/Child Health with Julie Schlomar ARNP and Barry Teigen PA as Preceptors.

Rotation site for Joseph Lutt of Wayne is in Plattsmouth at UMA Plattsmouth from Oct. 21 to Dec. 13. His discipline is in the 3rd year medical student, pediatric rotation. His preceptors are Laura Wilwerding MD and Tina Scott-Mordhorst MD.

Rotation site for Michaela Schramm of Fairbury is in Wayne at Wayne Mercy Medical Clinic from Aug. 26 to Nov. 17. Her discipline is physician assistant and her preceptor is Gary West, PA.

The student rotations are part of the UNMC Rural Health Education Network (RHEN), an innovative program developed to help address the shortage of health professionals in rural Nebraska.

Students training across Nebraska represent the colleges of dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy and the School of Allied Health Professions.

The purpose of RHEN is to change how and where primary care students at UNMC are educated. RHEN was developed to expose students to a rural health setting with the idea that if students receive their training in a rural area, the chances are much greater that they will return to a rural area once they complete their training.

Lifestyle

The Wayne Herald

Suggestions offered for achieving healthy lifestyle for children

About Childhood Obesity
Obesity is the number one health problem of Americans, including children ages six to 11 and adolescents ages 12 to 17 years of age. The National Institute of Health reports 25 percent of children and adolescents are overweight or obese.

Obesity is a chronic disease that is characterized by too much fat in the body. People who are obese are at an increased risk later in life for coronary heart disease, stroke, some cancers, sleep apnea and low self-esteem.

Body mass index is one measure to identify obesity. BMI is calculated by dividing a person's weight by the square of their height. In children and adolescents, obesity is defined as a BMI for age and gender at or above the 95th percentile.

Causes of Obesity
Several factors can lead to obesity in children: These factors include:

- Lack of Physical Activity
Physical activity is a key part of a healthy lifestyle. It is now less common to see children involved in active play. Instead, they are spending more time in sedentary activities. Children who spend more time viewing television, videos and video/computer games have a higher BMI than active children.
- Little activity plus poor diet choices have led to obesity in more than 25 percent of American children. Children are establishing patterns of low activity and poor diet choices that may be difficult to change if not addressed in childhood, as it is hard to change habits after they are formed. Exercise is extremely important for those individuals who are genetically predisposed to obesity.
- Too much fat

Amy Topp
Extension Educator
4-H & Youth

Today's children receive high percentages of energy from fat. This high fat intake has led to excess calories. Coupled with insufficient physical activity, the over the consumption of calories creates the energy imbalance that leads to obesity.

- Watching Television
Watching television reduces the opportunity for children to be outdoors and to be physically active. Being a "couch potato" will contribute to increased rates of obesity. Commonly, obese children do not participate in active play or many extracurricular activities. Leisure time for these children is often spent with the television. The pattern of inactivity needs to be changed.

The positive association between television and weight may not only be due to physical inactivity but also to the effects of poor food choices.

Television, the largest media source of food advertising, can shape people's ideas about food. Inactive children already at risk for obesity may be at additional risk due to television advertising that pushes energy-dense and nutrient-poor foods. Children often want to eat these foods which could lead to a high calorie intake.

Television viewing during mealtime is also a problem. It has been linked to low intakes of grains, fruits and vegetables and higher intakes of high fat meat choices. A high intake of pizza, salty snacks and pop were common in homes where television is combined with mealtimes. Children in homes with high television usage get a greater proportion of their energy from fat rather than carbohydrates.

- Portion Size
"Super-sized" and "value sized" food items available in grocery stores and restaurants are associated with child obesity. Generally, the larger sized portions are two or three servings, but it has become common to eat this large portion as one serving in one meal.
- Lack of Nutritional Education
In some cases parents do not have adequate nutrition education. In other situations, parents forget to share nutrition information with their children.

Often parents tell their children about nutrition in a very general way such as "drink you milk, it's good for you." However, it is also important to explain the benefits of vitamins and nutrients that are gained from eating a variety of foods. This information will help children understand how diet can contribute to a healthy lifestyle.

November... National Home Care Month

"We have had many patients that are able to stay in their homes with the assistance and care given by Providence Home Health Care and Hospice. I have had a family member who benefited greatly from these services. They brightened his day, and made it possible for someone to stay with him so family members could sleep and renew themselves. The Providence Hospice volunteers are so loving and attentive, and make the program a very supportive part of the patients' care."

*Kelly Brown, LPN
Mercy Medical Clinic
Wayne and Wakefield*

"Providence Home Health, Personal Care and Hospice are all important services provided to our community. We have excellent communication with the staff, and the continued care of our patients is an asset to this area. We have many patients who benefit from Providence Home Health visits to check on medications, patient condition and the extra care they receive with their personal needs. Our patients are fortunate to be able to come to the clinic for follow-up visits when they have no way of getting here except when the home aid is able to bring them. Providence Hospice makes it possible for patients to remain at home, and still receive the care they need."

*Cindy Billerbeck, LPN
Randolph Family Practice*

"Wayne's Home Health Care, Personal Care and Hospice services is a community of compassionate health care providers who strive to give quality medical care to individuals in their home. The care they provide to the elderly allows that patient to remain independent in his/her own home, while giving the family the reassurance of knowing their loved one is receiving quality medical care by a compassionate, caring and competent caregiver. I have personally seen the joy and anticipation in a patient's face who knows that not just their caregiver, but a friend is scheduled to see them."

FIND THE BEST CELL PHONE PLAN FOR YOU!
Ask yourself these questions so you don't overspend!

When will I use the phone?	Estimate how often and when you'll make calls. If you'll make most of your calls during the day, you'll need more "anytime minutes." If you'll be calling mostly at night and on weekends, you can choose a less expensive plan with fewer daytime minutes.
Where will I use the phone?	Choose between Local, Regional, or National plans. If you're on the go check out plans with national coverage. If you're a homebody choose a local or regional plan and benefit by having more minutes available at the same or less cost.
Who will use the phone?	If several members of your family use cell phones, check out family or shared minute plans. It's cheaper to share minutes from one bucket than to pay for separate plans.
What's in the fine print?	Ask about penalties for early contract cancellation, roaming charges and overtime charges. Be honest about your anticipated usage with a representative you work with and they will be very helpful in electing the most efficient plan for your needs.

SEWING TALENTS

Barb Brazie, Donna Roeber and Quilt Shop owner Janet Sievers have combined their talents to produce a quilt to benefit the Library Building project.

The Quilt Shop donated the fabric which Barb and Donna cut and stitched into a queen size Stack and Whack quilt. Once the 18 kaleidoscope swirls were all in place, Janet machine quilted the work of art.

The quilt has a soft green background. The focal fabric is from Natures Collection by Kaufman and features green, rose, and burgundy leaves and pine cones. The quilt is bordered by two narrow burgundy strips that are centered with the same large leaf print used in the blocks.

The quilt is on display at the Quilt Shop at Third and Main Streets. Tickets are available at The Quilt Shop or at Graves Public Library.

TURKEY DINNER

Members of the Wakefield Christian Church will embark on two special projects this month. One is to launch a community campaign to "Pray for Wakefield," and secondly later this month they will be sharing their fifth annual traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

"Our church family will be around town delivering informal flyers and more importantly getting prayer requests," said Pastor Bill Chase. "We want the community to know that this is not a campaign to draw people away from other churches in town," said Christian Church officials.

"We will be appreciative of any comments and of course prayer requests which we will take back to the church and bring before God. We will appreciate people of the community for understanding and cooperating with us as we Pray for Wakefield."

For the past five years, the Christian Church has encouraged people in the community to not spend Thanksgiving Day alone, but rather join them for a complimentary dinner.

A traditional meal of turkey and all the trimmings will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the church at 3rd and Johnson Streets.

In a recent study at Duke University insomniacs reduced their nighttime wakefulness by over 50%. The participants improved their sleep habits by following this advice: wake up at the same time every day, avoid daytime napping, if you find yourself awake for more than twenty minutes-get out of bed, and use your bedroom only for sleep. Avoid caffeine six hours before bedtime is also helpful.

Thinks New York is a friendly place to visit

I just read an interesting article in the Nebraska Farmer about some of our cattle producers who went to the New York State Fair to promote beef. They commented that they sometimes had 100 people lined up for samples and questions. They wore cowboy hats and shirts, discussed calving, feeding and processing, and just generally had a good time. They also commented that they found New Yorkers friendly and interested.

I think New York's image has changed. Maybe it has something to do with the outpouring of love and concern after 9/11. Maybe Mayor Giuliani had something to do with it, when he got tough on crime and promoted it as a safe city to visit. Whatever, I like it.

The only other time I've been there was after the National Student Nurses Convention in Atlantic City. We flew in and out of the Big Apple, so talked our school director into letting us do the city and stay one day longer. We took in a Broadway play, walking to and back from the theater and did the Grey Line tour all one day. The friendliest person we met was our Black waiter in the hotel, and he was from Omaha.

When we began making plans for our Irish wedding, I came up with the idea of a layover in New York so that the Big Farmer could do the tour. Besides, it would break up the trip and just make it seven hours to London. Jon got on Priceline.com and found a Marriott for a bargain price and reserved it for two nights. We flew into Newark and had to leave from JFK, so the hotel was near that airport.

The van from one airport to the other was not especially expensive, but the drive was an experience. Traffic! People who complain in Omaha have not really seen traffic. There was a lady from Italy going from Houston back home and she had a flight to catch. I don't know if she made it or not. It was nerve-racking.

The next day, we inquired about a cab downtown to catch the bus tour. They told us it would be $30 for the two of us...that sounded like a bargain, especially after they showed us the possible subway route, complete with transfers. So we had the concierge call a cab. A Lincoln town car with a driver from Iran showed up. He said they contracted with the hotels in the area. Of course, we paid for the time we were tied up in traffic, and the bill was $48.50.

It was raining and we grabbed the first bus that had empty seats under cover. Some brave souls sat on the upper deck, but we didn't even have an umbrella. The guide was very knowledgeable, and totally entertaining. And friendly. But we never got off to get a closer look because it kept on raining and we were afraid the next bus wouldn't have any dry place to sit.

Back at the starting point, we inquired about subways. They told us there was one directly to JFK, and we could call for a shuttle to our hotel from there. Our informants were very helpful. We walked a few blocks to the nearest entrance, bought our tokens for $1.50 each and found the right car with a little help from another friendly New Yorker. No wonder they take subways; no traffic, no rain to contend with, and the price is definitely right!

We visited with another friendly native, and he knew where Omaha was because a friend had just taken a job with First Data and had moved to Gretna. Our original helper pointed out the right spot for us to disembark; here we followed signs to buses that shuttled to terminals. It soon filled up with all kinds of folks, some friendly and smiling (probably getting out of town!) and some looking very withdrawn.

Anyway, we were eventually greeted by our friendly shuttle bus driver (from Samoa or someplace like that) and found our way back to our hotel. It was an adventure; and we have concluded that New Yorkers, for the most part, are helpful and pleasant. A nice surprise.

Options available to ease tax planning after drought

Farmers and ranchers who received insurance or disaster payments or who were forced to sell livestock due to this year's drought have options for income tax planning this fall, a University of Nebraska farm business associate said.

Farmers are allowed to postpone reporting insurance and disaster payments on crop losses by one year under the U.S. Internal Revenue Service tax code Section 451(d), said Tina Barrett, interim director of the Nebraska Farm Business Association at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Likewise, producers who had to sell their livestock due to lack of pasture or water can postpone reporting that income for as long as two years.

The drought wiped out many dryland crops and forced growers to irrigate more than normal, which sent irrigation costs skyrocketing, Barrett said. With these factors reducing incomes, it may be beneficial for farmers and ranchers to defer paying taxes on a portion of their income.

"The major thing most farmers and ranchers will be dealing with this year is the income they received from having to sell their livestock," she said. "To qualify, the producer's county must be declared as a disaster area, which won't be a problem this year because the entire state was declared."

There are two tax options farmers and ranchers can apply to weather-related livestock sales, Barrett said.

One is to defer the income to the next year and not recognize the gain until then. This allows the taxpayer to postpone reporting the income for one year if the tax-

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) prohibits discrimination in its programs on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs and marital or familial status.

This second option only applies to livestock other than poultry held for any length of time for draft, breeding or dairy. The new livestock must be used for the same purposes as the livestock that was sold. For example, dairy cows must be replaced with dairy cows, she said.

Also, the taxpayer must show that the weather caused the sale of more livestock than would have been sold without the weather-related conditions.

For example, if the farmer normally sells one-fifth of the herd each year, only the sales in excess of one-fifth will qualify for the provision, Barrett said.

Crop insurance payments also can be deferred on crop losses by one year, Barrett said. Generally this rule applies when crops can't be planted or are damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster, such as a drought or flood. Farmers must be able to show that, under normal business practice, the crop would have been sold in the following year. Also, losses due to revenue coverage may not be deferred.

Every farm and ranch operation is different and has varied needs at tax time, Barrett said. For more information on how to make these tax elections and for the best advice, farmers and ranchers need to see their tax practitioner or contact the Nebraska Farm Business Association at (402) 472-1399.

The Nebraska Farm Business Association is part of Cooperative Extension in NU's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Legal Notices

The Wayne Herald

PUBLIC NOTICE
Important Information About Your Drinking Water

In accordance with the National Primary Drinking Water Regulations, the City of Wayne, NE3118104, public water supply system in WAYNE County, is hereby making public notice of the violation of drinking water microbiological standards. The violation consists of four (4) total coliform samples testing positive during the month of October 2002. The standard is that no more than one (1) sample per month may be positive for total coliforms for systems that collect fewer than 40 samples per month.

What should I do?
You do not need to boil your water or take other corrective actions. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor. People with severely compromised immune systems, infants and some elderly may be at increased risk. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

What does this mean?
This is not an emergency. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. Coliform bacteria are generally not harmful themselves. Coliforms are bacterial which are naturally present in the environment and are used as an indicator that other potentially harmful bacteria may be present. Coliforms were found in more samples than allowed and this was a warning of potential problems.

What happened? What is being done?
Usually, coliforms are a sign that their could be a problem with our treatment or distribution system pipes. Whenever we detect coliform bacteria in an sample, we do follow-up testing to see if other bacteria of greater concern, such as fecal coliform or E. coli are present. We did not find fecal coliform or E. coli present.

The City of Wayne public water supply system is continuing to test and is working with the Drinking Water Program to identify the source of the problem and to return the water supply system to compliance. For additional information regarding this notice interested persons may contact: Harold Reynolds, Water and Wastewater Superintendent at 402-375-5250.
(Publ. Nov. 14, 2002)

Meeting adjourned at 9:40 P.M.

The Board of Trustees of the Village of Winside, Nebraska will meet in regular session on December 2, 2002 at 7:30 P.M. in the fire-hall. The meeting will be open to the public and an agenda for such meeting kept continuously current, is available for inspection at the office of the Village Clerk of said Village.

FIND THE BEST CELL PHONE PLAN FOR YOU!
Ask yourself these questions so you don't overspend!

When will I use the phone?	Estimate how often and when you'll make calls. If you'll make most of your calls during the day, you'll need more "anytime minutes." If you'll be calling mostly at night and on weekends, you can choose a less expensive plan with fewer daytime minutes.
Where will I use the phone?	Choose between Local, Regional, or National plans. If you're on the go check out plans with national coverage. If you're a homebody choose a local or regional plan and benefit by having more minutes available at the same or less cost.
Who will use the phone?	If several members of your family use cell phones, check out family or shared minute plans. It's cheaper to share minutes from one bucket than to pay for separate plans.
What's in the fine print?	Ask about penalties for early contract cancellation, roaming charges and overtime charges. Be honest about your anticipated usage with a representative you work with and they will be very helpful in electing the most efficient plan for your needs.
