Men arrested in connection with robbery

At approximately 3:30 a.m. on Tuesday morning two men were arrested in a motel in Fremont in connection with last week's robbery of the State National Bank Drive-In in Wayne.

Lt. Phil Shear, an FBI agent and several Fremont Police officers took 18-year old Jasper Falkner and 18-year old Delante Delano into custody at the Super 8 Motel in Fremont early Tuesday without incident. Both men are from Lincoln.

There were two females with the men but they were released after being interviewed. They face no criminal charges.

The two men are currently being held in the Dodge County jail in Fremont. They will be brought to Wayne County for formal charges.

Falkner will be charged with Robbery, Conspiracy to Commit a Felony and Aiding and Abetting a

Falkner

Felony. Delano, also known as "Ghost," will be charged with Robbery, Conspiracy to Commit a Felony and Use of a Deadly Weapon to Commit a Felony.

In addition to the charges stemming from the bank robbery, Falkner was arrested by the Fremont Police Department for Possession of Controlled Substance with the Intent to Deliver.

At 5:55 p.m. on Friday, the two men allegedly entered the State National Bank Drive-In and took an undisclosed amount of cash. Delano apparently was carrying a chrome or stainless steel automatic handgun.

During a Tuesday morning press conference, Police Chief Lance Webster said that the handgun has since been destroyed. No shots were fired during the robbery.

Quilters are featured in magazine

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

On any weekday afternoon, a group of women can be found at the Wayne Senior Center, quilting, discussing current events and reminiscing about past quilting experiences.

The efforts of these women has been featured in the November issue of "Quilt World." An interview with the quilters was done several years ago by Maureen Battistella and includes a history of the group and several photos from as early as the 1970s.

The group has been quilting for more than 10 years and is now working on their 305th quilt. It takes approximately two weeks from start to finish to hand-quilt a double size quilt. Quilts have been done in every design, color and period, including a quilt that was pieced together by hand by a woman who would be 110 years old. The pieces were found in a closet by the woman's daughter and is now being quilted by the ladies at the Senior Center.

Several of the original quilters are still with the group while others come and go. There are approximately 40 women who assist with the various projects; however, not all are at the Senior Center at any one time.

One of the original quilters is Emma Eckert. She did quilting for others in her home but found that she could not keep up with community requests. She

Council approves request for revolving loan funds

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Following a public hearing and discussion among council members, a request for $150,000 in Wayne Revolving Loan Funds to Concord Components, Inc. to bring a new business to town was granted.

Concord Components, owned by Rob Surber, is planning to purchase the DVI building. This will be made possible with the city's assistance and a $350,000 bank loan.

The business currently employs nine persons and anticipates increasing that number to 42 within five years.

In discussing the issue, Councilman Will Wiseman said that in future projects, he would like the council to have access to financial data on those requesting loans so that a more informed decision could be made by the council.

Brian Gibson, representing the Wayne Jaycees, spoke to the council on a request to use the Wayne Softball Complex for Fourth of July activities.

Approval was given for the change in location. In addition to a fireworks display, a barbecue and hot air balloon rides are being planned.

No action was taken on a bid for a Floor Dry Mop for the Community Activity Center. Council members requested more information on the number of persons using the Activity Center and the number of times per day the floor needs to be mopped before making a decision on whether or not to purchase the $3,779 piece of equipment.

City Planner George Ellyson spoke to the council on his recent visit to the State Fire Marshall's office.

He indicated that a sprinkler system may not be necessary in the renovation of the City Auditorium. By rating the maximum occupancy of the building at less than 1,000 persons, a sprinkler system is not required, due to the number of exits in the building.

A sprinkler system would not be necessary for the stage area of the auditorium if it is less than 1,000 square feet.

Approval was given on adding a water softener system at the Community Activity Center at a cost of just over $5,400.

Also approved was an amendment to the city's health insurance plan which allows for permanent part-time employees to purchase insurance and have the cost deducted from each pay check.

"In working with Providence Home Health Care, Personal Care and Hospice Services, I have seen first hand the benefit the services have been to many individuals in the community. The goal of most elderly and/or cancer patients is to be able to stay at home. Providence Home Care Services helps them reach that goal. The one thing I have heard many times is "I don't know what we would do or would have done without the services of HHC or Hospice."
Sharolyn Cunningham, CNA

"I have been employed with Providence Home Health Care as a CNA for almost three years. I have enjoyed helping patients in their homes. Whether it be helping them with daily chores, running errands, or taking them to a doctor's appointment, they are always so appreciative of whatever I do for them. They welcome me into their homes as if I am family. Wayne and the surrounding communities are fortunate to have Providence Home Care Services so close to home. Patients are so relieved when they are told they will be able to be at home and receive health care. There is no place like home."
Phyllis J. Nelson, CNA

"I'm a Certified Nursing Assistant and Hospice caregiver for 15 years. I enjoy the people I have encountered. Home Health Care, Personal Care and Hospice services are good for the community. It helps the elderly and the handicapped stay in their own homes. It also gives the shut-ins a sense of independence. The people that work in this field have very open hearts and love their jobs and the people they are caring for."
Judy Boisen, CNA

"Providence Home Health Care is a wonderful service provided to our community and beyond! As a certified nursing assistant, I have always enjoyed one-on-one patient care and Providence Home Health has offered me this opportunity and so much more. Not only have I been blessed to be part of a team helping to keep people in their own homes for longer periods of time, but I've also received the added bonus of many cherished friendships. I am thrilled to be serving patients with their basic needs such as bathing, cleaning, preparing meals, running errands, etc. I am also blessed to be working with Home Health nurses who listen to and address any problems or concerns expressed by patients and/or their families. Thank you to Home Health, my patients and their families for this most rewarding venture of service! May God richly bless you all."
Madge Bruflat, CNA

"I feel Providence Home Health Care is the best way to go for care. There is more one on one with each patient. I am a homehealth care CNA-nurse and a hospice volunteer and I love both jobs. I feel very lucky that patients and their families welcome me into their homes."

Thank you to the community

Dear Editor,
As Thanksgiving approaches, family and friends gather to give thanks for their good fortune over the past year. The Wayne County Chapter of the American Red Cross would like to take this opportunity to thank its family and friends as well.

Many volunteers - members of our community - have given their time, talents, and financial generosity over the past year to help those in dire need. As a result, our Red Cross chapter was able to provide disaster relief to six families in Wayne County as a cost of $3,748. We also trained over 60 people to respond and assist during a disaster.

With donated dollars, we taught 380 members of our community life-saving skills such as CPR, first aid, and Automated External Defibrillator (AED) training. We also taught your children how to swim, educated people about the dangers of HIV/AIDS, had first aid stations at the Chicken Show and the Wayne County Fair.

Recently we have seen a big increase in our armed forces assistance that we provide. The Wayne

Red Cross will assist families in contacting loved ones serving in any branch of the military - both with the US and overseas. We have assisted seven families just within the last couple of months!

It is your continuous commitment to providing warmth and support to other members of our community who are in need for which we at the Wayne County Chapter of the American Red Cross are so thankful.

Have a safe and happy Thanksgiving and know that you have truly made a positive difference this year!

Sincerely,
Lori Carollo,
Chapter manager
Wayne County Chapter of The American Red Cross

P.S. To answer some questions that we have been asked recently, the "2002 Holiday Fund Drive" envelopes many residents have received in the last couple of weeks--those donations come back to our local office and stay right here in Wayne County to assist in disasters and help train life-saving skills.

Dealing with the flu season

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It's enough to put a damper on anyone's mood, and when the anyone in question is a curmudgeonly news type the results are predictably worse.

Nebraska's four seasons - too hot, too cold, football and flu - have lived down to one's worst expectations this year. At least, at our house they have.

Live through enough wrecks, in cars, on horses or at the country club punch bowl, and you will develop a capacity for rolling with the punches - so to speak.

But nothing has ever prepared me, or made it easier, to deal with the ignominious symptoms reflected in the onset of flu. I mean, it makes your skin hurt. Can't the science megalopolis that gave us bombs that are smarter than most people do something about that? They must know what sort of little germ, viral, bacterial whatzit that makes skin hurt. Shouldn't there be some sort of bath salt or pill or something to make it stop?

There are other elements of flu that are not suitable for discussion in family newspapers. Science doesn't seem to have done much in the way of miracles to deal with the symptomatic in those areas, either.

And another thing. Humankind has forced birds and fish to alter their migrating patterns. Why can't we reschedule the flu season? Why does it come during the holidays? Why is it that when you're trying to get over the river and through the woods, little Johnny screams that he isn't going to make it through the next wide spot in the road without spending some personal time in a rest room that looks like a prop from some 1950s film noir?

Can't we just do some more, appropriate damage to the environment and maybe force the flu bugs to do their gig in, say, April? That would be good.

If you're going to have the flu and its accompanying miseries, why not share them with the supercilious twit at the IRS?

The fact is, flu is really the most common form of bioterrorism that we deal with. What's worse than several people sitting around with the flu, eyeballing yams and cranberries and turkey fat; and wondering if all those things will unite into weapons of mass family-gathering destruction before the first turkey day touchdown?

Well, this hasn't been the usual sort of holiday-season column. The old "frost is on the pumpkin" spirit just isn't working for us this year. And, it's no wonder. By way of news from the Capitol, the chances are very, very good that the financial problems that lie ahead will make the ones of the recent two years look like Christmas pudding.

Think about higher taxes and how you want your government to spend them - because the chances are very good that we all will have to pay them. That's not because the crowd in Lincoln wants to spend your money, it's because this economy doesn't appear to be generating enough money to pay those basic bills like Medicaid and other social services.

ACRE Project completes first season

By Dan Pries
Farmers National Company

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce ACRE Project was harvested on the afternoon of Nov. 6. As expected the heat and dry weather of this past July reduced yields somewhat. The whole field average yield for the farm was 99.34 bushel per acre. The farm operators, Doug and Dale Spahr, harvested test strips on each side and two through the middle of the acre. Bob Liska with Pioneer Hi-Bred weighed and adjusted yields for moisture. Yield adjusted to 15 percent moisture ranged from 90.6 bu/ac to 108.6 bu/ac. Moisture at harvest varied from 18.3 to 19.8 percent water by weight.

This turns out to be fairly typical for non-irrigated corn production around the area this year. There were better and worse yields, and grain moistures were generally wetter this year than last. In most cases yields were not as good as hoped for when the corn was planted, but better than feared at the conclusion of summer.

Our single acre proved once again that it could be depended on. Just as this acre has contributed since first put into production in the 1870's it has contributed again this year, as it will in the future. Using federal target prices as a guide and our acre as average for Wayne County, an acre of Wayne County corn may generate $258.28. With generally 108,500 acres of corn in Wayne County this adds up to $27,506,820 of gross revenue from corn alone in Wayne County alone, not including soybeans, beef, pork, poultry, and milk.

Acre by acre it is this avalanche of productivity that supports our families and communities, funds our schools, paves our roads, and contributes to the defense of our nation. Recent USDA projections estimate 2002 U.S. corn production at just over 9 billion bushels, of which slightly more than 1.9 billion bushels are expected to be exported.

We have had sort of a tough year and the United States is still able to provide for ourselves in abundance and export 20 percent of what we produced for the use of others! The old hymn reminds a person to, "... count your many blessings, name them one by one. And it will surprise you what the Lord hath done..."

The acres of United States Agriculture are each just one of our many blessings.

Room to Grow
What's one of the hardest things about raising teens? Letting go. Every teenager wants and needs more freedom. Parents are sure teens aren't ready for it; teens are sure they are. The solution is to let them earn their independence one step at a time.
Talk about it. First, find out what kinds of freedom your high schooler wants. If his answer is vague ("I want to make my own choices!"), ask him to be specific. Maybe the real answer is, "I want to be able to stay out later at night."
Go step by step. If the request seems reasonable, let your teen try out his new freedom gradually. Have him prove he can handle each step before he's allowed to go on to the next. For example, let him stay out later one weekend night. If he acts responsibly, consider extended weekend curfews for a month.
Link freedom to responsibility. Make sure your high schooler understands that greater independence means greater responsibility. He must tell you where he is, stay out of trouble and consider the next day's responsibilities. Example: If he's too tired to meet his obligations in the morning because he stayed out late, he will probably have to give up his freedom for a while.

Celebrating

The first event of a year-long celebration was held Sunday at the Wayne Public Library. During the program Master of Ceremonies Pat Gross gave a brief history of the library and introduced several former librarians and current Library Board members. In addition, Darrel Fuelberth, Wayne City Council President and Rod Wagner, Executive Director of the Nebraska Library Commission extended congratulations to the library of 100 years of service to the community. At left, Lauren Lofgren unveils a book sculpture created for the occasion.

Robbery

Following the robbery, the two men left the Wayne area immediately in a white, 4-door Buick with in-transit stickers and reportedly had car problems east of Wayne. The car was later located in Fremont.

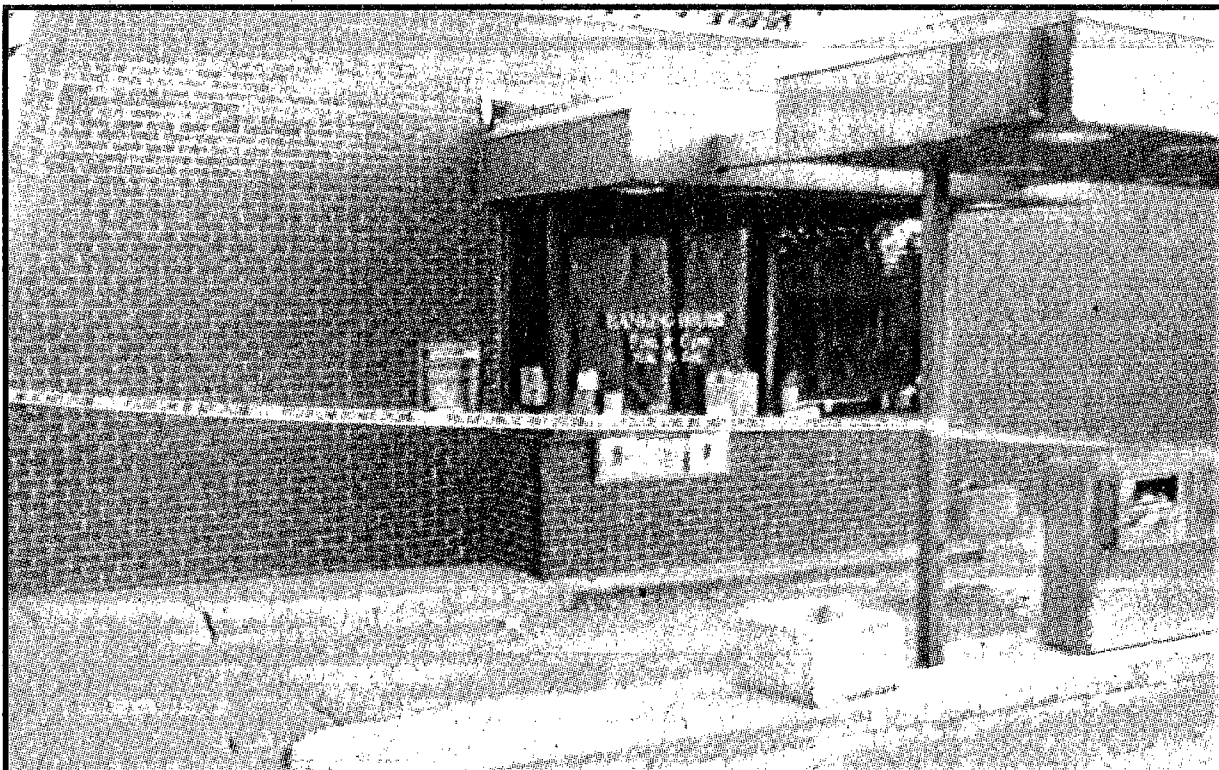

Chief Webster said members of his department developed Jasper Falkner as a suspect late on Friday night and began working numerous leads to confirm their information. It took longer to identify Delano because of his alias. On Monday, several people were interviewed who were able to place both Falkner and Delano in Wayne and at the bank.

Webster said that information obtained indicates that the two apparently were out of money after their arrival in Wayne on Thursday and began planning the robbery on Friday afternoon.

According to Webster, "the successful conclusion of this case was made possible by the very hard work of my staff, in cooperation with the Nebraska State Patrol, the Fremont Police Department, the Lincoln Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Webster said that no additional persons are being sought with the robbery and he does not anticipate any others will be charged in the incident.

The State National Bank Drive-In at 10th and Main Streets was closed on Saturday as law enforcement officials worked to find the two men who robbed the facility Friday evening.

School receives accreditation

The Wayne State College School of Education and Counseling has received notification that it has achieved continuing accreditation this fall by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), the organization responsible for professional accreditation of teacher education. The accreditation will be in effect until 2007.

NCATE accredits 540 institutions which produce 125,000, or two-thirds of the nation's new teacher graduates each year. NCATE-accredited schools must meet rigorous standards set by the profession and members of the public.

The U.S. Department of Education recognizes NCATE as the professional accrediting body for schools, departments, and colleges of education.

On-site visits, document review, and accreditation decisions are all carried out by professionals from the education community, including teachers, school specialists, and teacher educators, as well as members of the public and education policymakers.

"More than anything, achieving NCATE accreditation symbolizes Wayne State's commitment to producing the best teachers possible for Nebraska's youth," said Dr. Paul Theobald, Dean of the School of Education and Counseling. "This college has its priorities in the right place. Wayne State professors are here to serve students and to be of service to the state of Nebraska. This successful NCATE bid is further evidence of this fact."

Quilters—

suggested to Georgia Jansen, who was the Senior Center Director at the time, that the ladies at the Senior Center take over the job.

At that time, the Senior Center was located in the basement of City Hall and the quilting area so small that some of the ladies had to crawl under the quilt to get to the back side.

In 1997 the Library/ Senior Center was constructed and includes a room just for quilting. The new room, with new, comfortable chairs, makes quilting time more of a social event than a job for the women, many of who have been quilting since they were teenagers.

Some of the early quilts made by the group were raffled off and proceeds used to purchase items for the Senior Center. Currently, the money generated from quilting goes for miscellaneous items, such as parties at the Center and items needed and furnishings for different areas of the facility.

Since the magazine article was published, the Senior Center has gotten numerous requests from all over the country. However, the local requests for quilting will keep the women busy for some time to come.

Quilting generally begins at 10 a.m. and continues after lunch until 3 p.m. each day, when "it is coffee time."

According to Leona Hagemann, another of the original quilters, "quilting gives us something to get up for. Every quilt is beautiful in every respect."

Taking steps can help making staying active a lifelong commitment

Many people seem to tie staying physically fit to certain times of the year or events. Swimsuit season, New Year's or a trip to the islands have all given people a reason to lose a few extra pounds.

However, as growing research continues to show benefits of lifelong fitness, it becomes more and more evident that staying active needs to be a year-long, lifetime commitment.

The following are some ideas to help make and keep a lifelong commitment to be active:

- Don't start off too fast. Many people start an exercise program, go all out, then get frustrated when they are unable to keep it up. It is much better to start with something simple and practical and move toward more intensive workouts. Walking is a good exercise to start with, especially and ways to vary their routine. This will make an exercise regimen more fun and more likely to be maintained.

- Make weight training a part of the exercise routine. After the body gets used to some basic aerobic activity, it is important to include strength training using weights. Such training isn't just for models or body builders. It can help burn fat, improve posture, strengthen bones and decrease the chance for injury in men and women of all ages.

- Don't let lifestyle changes get in the way of staying active. Making a commitment to stay active means making exercise a priority and planning out exercise time in advance. This is especially important when a new job or new daily schedule threatens to take exercise time away. Look for ways to incorporate exercise into new schedules even if it means using different times or activities.

Crusaders to appear in Wakefield

America's Premiere Gospel group, The Crusaders, will be presenting a concert at Evangelical Covenant Church in Wakefield on Sunday, Dec. 1 at 3 p.m.

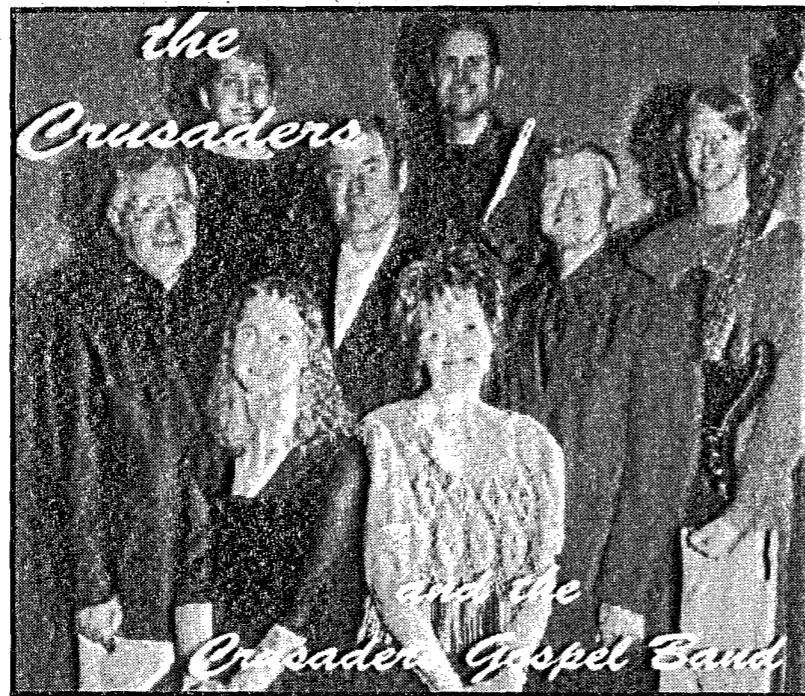

The group has a 38-year history of singing and provide a unique blend of modern praise and worship songs and southern gospel sound.

According to the group's press release, "as teenagers in the mid-60's, the Crusaders grew to be one of the Midwest's best-know gospel groups. In the 1970's they started traveling full-time sharing the stage with other nationally known southern gospel groups, like the Blackwood Brothers and the Stamps Quartet; and with more contemporary Christian artists like the Archers and Second Chapter of Acts. Today, because of their powerful presentation and the resurgence in popularity of gospel music, their music and message is in its greatest demand."

The group's unique blend of contemporary praise and worship songs and southern gospel music appeals to all ages. Their mostly teenage band - the Crusaders Gospel Band - with lead guitar, bass guitar, drums, synthesizer, piano and sax is one of the most talented bands in the nation. There is no charge to attend the concert, but a free will offering will be taken.

The Crusaders and the Crusader Gospel Band will be in Wakefield at the Evangelical Covenant Church Dec. 1 at 3 p.m.

Advent services planned

Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne will be holding special Advent worship services on Wednesday, Dec. 4 and Wednesday, Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Our Savior Youth will serve a soup supper prior to each Wednesday evening worship service from 6 to 7:15 p.m. with the proceeds helping to fund Our Savior Youth who will attend the National Youth Gathering in 2003.

"Of all the seasons of the church's liturgical year, Advent is probably the one least acknowledged by the world," said Pastor Kevin Ruffcorn, Senior Pastor of Our Savior. "Indeed, secular culture does not simply ignore Advent; it actively contradicts it. While the church tries to cling to a season of preparation and expectation, the world rushes on - prematurely, it seems, to Christmas - to a time of arrival and fulfillment. This determined avoidance of Advent is at least partly because the theme of the season is one with which our world is profoundly uncomfortable: waiting," Pastor Ruffcorn added.

"Break and Wake" is the theme for this year's Advent Services. On Dec. 4, Pastor Ruffcorn will focus on the "Breaking of Advent" - taking a break during the frantic schedule of the holidays. On Dec. 11, Pastor Bill Koeber will focus on "Waking to the Coming Savior."

"As we wait with hopeful anticipation for the celebration of the birth of Jesus, I hope that all people feel welcome to worship with us on Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. during Advent and share in the soup supper and fellowship prior to each service," Pastor Ruffcorn said.

Our Savior is located at the corner of Fifth and Main Streets in Wayne. For more information, contact the church office at (402) 375-2899.

Iron: Why Boys May "Outsmart" Girls

According to a recent report in the medical journal Pediatrics, iron deficiency may be responsible for girls not keeping up with boys in solving math problems by the time they reach high school. Iron is required for red blood cell production. Having too few red cells is termed Anemia.

Researchers at the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry studied more than 5 thousand children aged 6 to 16 years. They found that iron deficient children were twice as likely to have below average standardized math test scores as compared to children who had adequate amounts of iron in their blood.

In this study 3% of children overall were found to be iron deficient. However, 9% of teenage girls were iron deficient. Test scores were lower even if iron deficiency was not so serious as to cause anemia.

What are we thankful for?

I cleaned part of the pantry today. If any of you have one, you know how it is. Things tend to accumulate in these handy little rooms off the kitchen. Mine even has an old fashioned flour and sugar bin.

The cupboard has casserole dishes, baking goods, and all kinds of odds and ends. The shelves on the other side have coffee makers, baking pans, sauce pans and all kinds of items that only get used about once a year.

In between are the shelves with cookbooks, garbage cans and an island that tends to get loaded with things when I'm in a hurry. Anyway, the whole thing was in disarray and getting gross.

I tried to procrastinate. I did a load of laundry, baked cookies, read the paper. But, it had to be done. I'm having Thanksgiving dinner, and my Mom will be here. That inspires me a lot. I've washed a few windows this week, too; and there are some other corners that will get cleaned out.

I'm about to go into my annual tirade about the three fall holidays. Halloween has become a big one, and Christmas stuff comes out before it's even over. Thanksgiving gets overlooked. I tried to find some Thanksgiving cards in Omaha on Monday and had a heck of a time. I realize it's late this year, but that's no reason to skip it.

I keep hearing about folks getting laid off, and I can imagine it will make their holidays a little less fun. I suppose it's even hard to find things to be thankful about. But I think Christmas has gotten out of hand and we need to go back to the "real meaning." I've been preparing a couple of seasonal speeches, so it's on my mind.

What are the real priorities? Hearing from friends, near and far. Baking some goodies we don't eat the rest of the year. Decorating a tree (not the whole darned house). Listening to the music of the season, which we never seem to tire of. And planning for a worship service in which we remember the "reason for the season."

What are you thankful for this year? Not the drought, that's for sure. But we all still have roofs over our heads and food on our tables. Nebraska will still go to a bowl game, even if it's not an important one; and prospects for basketball look good. That volleyball team is still winning, as is the soccer team.

I heard a speaker on the radio this morning say that we need to lower our standards. The house doesn't have to be immaculate and beautifully decorated. The gifts can be smaller, and wrapped in plain paper. We could even buy the cookies from some worthwhile organization. And we could give some dollars to those charitable entities that depend on an annual appeal to survive...their costs have gone up this year, too.

So, relax and enjoy it. Observe Thanksgiving and give it its due. Then, take it easy on Christmas and enjoy the sights and sounds. It does just come once a year, even if it seems to be around about four months out of the year. Now, I have to get back to cleaning.

Sign up deadline approaches

Sign-up for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Livestock Compensation Program will end on Dec. 13, leaving eligible livestock producers who have not yet applied for payments three weeks to do so.

Brian Wolford, executive director for the Nebraska Farm Service Agency, said Farm Service Agency county offices have received applications from livestock producers and paid out almost $55 million in benefits.

"There may still be eligible producers who have not signed up," Wolford said. "They only have three weeks to do so. I encourage them to visit their county office and sign up as soon as possible."

Wolford said USDA carefully considered livestock numbers in areas suffering from drought and designed the program so livestock producers in these areas could have access to much-needed direct payments and avoid liquidation of livestock foundation herds.

Program sign-up began on Oct. 1 for producers with livestock headquarters operations physically located in counties that have received a secretarial primary disaster designation for drought between Jan. 1, 2001 and Sept. 19, 2002. Wolford said all 93 counties in the state are eligible for the program. Counties named as contiguous counties are not eligible for LCP.

Eligible livestock include beef and dairy cattle, buffalo and beefalo, sheep and goats. The producer must have owned the livestock on June 1 and for a period of 90 days.

"The June 1 date could have occurred any time during the 90-day period, at the beginning, in the middle or at the end," Wolford said.

Program payment rates are based on standard feed consumption data for each eligible type of livestock and are indexed against beef cattle. The payment rates are: beef cattle, $18 per head; dairy cattle, $31.50 per head; buffalo and beefalo, $18 per head; and sheep and goats, $4.50 per head.

Producers are subject to a $2.5 million gross income limit and payments are limited to $40,000 per person.

Tree Planting Program

The Lower Loup NRD maintains the state's largest NRD tree planting program. While windbreaks are probably the most popular use for trees on the Lower Loup's open prairie, trees also prevent erosion, improve air quality, moderate climate, provide wildlife habitat and improve the aesthetic value of property.

Each year the NRD provides residents the opportunity to order many different varieties of seedling trees. Residents of the NRD have responded with tremendous enthusiasm. The sheer number of trees planted in the Lower Loup program makes it stand out. 340,000 trees were planted as a result of the program in 2002 alone! Many different varieties are offered due to the NRD's variety of soils, from the Sandhills to the Loup River Valley.

In recent years, cost-share incentives offered by the NRD and other agencies as part of buffer strip and windbreak programs have increased awareness to the benefits trees have to offer and resulted in a great demand. Lower Loup NRD technicians, Ray Guggenmos and Daniel Ray have each planted well over a million trees in their careers.

Tips are given on how to jig your way to more fish

Recently, I had several people tell me that they didn't use jigs very much as they didn't walleye fish. My answer was, jigs will catch all species of fish, from panfish to pike. There isn't a more effective piece of equipment in the anglers arsenal than a jig!

I was surprised to see how many people felt that jigs were used for one species and that they were a one method bait!
Jigs can be fished in numerous ways for all species of fish! They'll work in cold weather as well as warm weather and they're one of the most effective baits when the water gets hard during the ice fishing season!

They can be cast and retrieved just below the surface, jigged vertically, drug along the bottom, cast up along the shore line, hopped, dropped and even plopped!

They can be tipped with plastic, night crawlers, leeches, minnows, wax worms, minnow head, meal worms, maggots or not tipped at all.

Jigs can be smaller than 1/64 of an ounce and bigger than 2 to 3 ounces. They can be bulked up with marabou, squirrel, buck tail or plastic or so small that they are

Bass fishermen know that a properly presented jig & pig will take bass during the toughest of conditions.

Lake trout anglers who fish the deeper water rely on heavy 2 or 3 ounce and larger jigs to entice the trout from the deep water haunts that they call home.

Another thing that can be confusing to anglers who don't use jigs much is color.

There are hundreds of colors of jigs out there and this can really be confusing.

Water clarity will have a lot to do with the color of jig you'll be using.

If you're fishing dirty water, you'll want to go to a brighter color, something that holds its color at deeper depths.

Fluorescents retain their color in low light situations and will appear brighter than your standard reds or yellows in water with very little light penetration or at deeper depths.

So when I'm fishing turbid water, I'll tie on a fluorescent colored jig, which will stay visible longer in deeper water than a standard colored jig.

In clearer water, I'll use a more natural color, a white for instance. I'll still use the brighter colors if I'm fishing deep, but I don't feel that I need to get to gaudy when fishing clear water situations.

The exception to this rule is when fishing through the ice when much water is crystal clear. I've caught just as many fish through the ice on brightly colored jigs as I gave on plain old lead head jigs. Go figure!

The species you're after will also dictate what color jig to use!

Walleye anglers know that a chartreuse and orange are preferred colors of the walleye and are more apt to throw these bright colors than a bass fishermen.

Bass anglers prefer the black, purple and less gaudy colored jigs.

Crappie fishermen are more likely to throw a white, pearl or pink colored jig.

Over the years, I've realized that there are days that fish will prefer a certain color, this is especially true with walleyes, so I offer them multiple colored jigs.

There are days when walleyes will only bite on chartreuse and the next day they won't touch any color but orange, so by giving them a jig painted several colors I'll have a better chance of having one of the colors that they're attracted to that day.

Chartreuse and orange, lime green and yellow are a couple of the combinations I've found that work well in combination for walleyes.

I use a combination colored jig heads because I feel that I've got a better chance of enticing a fish to bite on any given day by offering them several colors.

It also saves me time and helps me to get on the active fish more quickly.

If I were using a one colored jig and the fish don't like that color, I'd have to keep retying until I found the right color. With a multi-color jig, I'm cutting my searching time in half.

Jigs are a very versatile bait and can be used for all species of fish in so many ways that if you're not fishing with a jig, you're missing the boat.

as small as the lead on a sharp pencil.

The smaller jigs are used for crappies and other panfish and when jigged vertically, cast along the edge of the weeds or suspended under a slip bobber with a small minnow are one of the most effective ways to catch panfish.

Jigs tipped with minnows, leeches or crawlers in the 1/8-3/8 ounce account for a lot of walleyes.

Herbs for Health
St. John's Wort for Depression

St. John's wort (Hypericum perforatum) has been used to treat depression and has been popularized by the media - including coverage in Newsweek and 20/20. This herb has three main actions - antidepressant, antiviral and antibacterial. The mechanism of action has been shown to be through inhibition of the reuptake of serotonin - a chemical transmitter in the nervous system.

A review of 23 trials on 1,757 patients diagnosed with mild to moderate depression demonstrated that hypericum extracts were significantly superior to a placebo and just as effective as standard antidepressants. Side effects were reported by only 20% of patients on hypericum versus 53% of patients on standard antidepressant medications.

The recommended dose of St. John's wort for an adult is 300 mg of the standardized extract (0.3% hypericin extract) three times daily. Reported side effects include mild stomach disturbances, fatigue and itching. The herb should not be taken with prescribed antidepressants such as fluoxetine. Tryptamine-containing foods, alcoholic beverages, narcotics and amphetamines should be avoided. Safety in pregnancy and lactation has not been established.
