Security presentations planned

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, as a public service, is coordinating two presentations by area experts in homeland security: Dr. Ken Liska, Wayne Veterinary Clinic and Stephen Hillis, Northeast Nebraska Public Health, both in Wayne. Both power-point presentations will be conducted at Wayne State College, Gardner Hall Auditorium, beginning promptly at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 16 and are open to the public.

Dr. Liska's presentation entitled "Bioterrorism Awareness/Safety of the Food and Water Supply" will focus on diseases that can be introduced into domestic and feed animals through tampered feed supplies and therefore expose our food chain and animal companionship to terrorist-based initiatives.

Dr. Liska was one of two Nebraska veterinarians selected by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture to participate in a national seminar last year on this topic and is trained to provide education to the public as part of nationwide homeland security precautionary plan.

Comprehensive "Nebraska Bioterrorism Preparedness Plan" will focus on the smallpox plan. Following his retirement after a highly successful 30-year career in the US Navy and earning a masters degree in elementary education from Old Dominion University, Hillis presently serves as the Health and Safety Coordinator with primary responsibility for bio-terrorism in Cedar, Dixon, Wayne and Thurston counties.

Certificates from the Public Health Department for those desiring Continuing Education Credit will be available following the presentations. Attendees should register their attendance at the table outside the auditorium starting at 6 p.m. Handouts will be available following the presentations.

This community service by the chamber is endorsed by the Wayne Chapter of the American Red Cross, Wayne County Farm Bureau, Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, Providence Medical Center, Wayne County Emergency Management and Sheriff's Office, Main Street Wayne.

Cardiac arrest to be held for American Heart Association

The American Heart Association will hold a Cardiac Arrest on Thursday, April 10 in Wayne at City Hall in the Council Chamber.

The Cardiac Arrest Parole Warden said a group of very important local citizens will go to jail to raise funds for the American Heart Association.

In order to be released, they will have to post bail. They will raise bail by asking their colleagues, friends or neighbors for donations. The arrestees will have two weeks prior to their "court appearances" to collect their bail.

The Cardiac Arrest is a mock courtroom where the presiding judge finds willing participants guilty of some very funny charges. In past years, Judge Heartless found several people guilty of being a tightwad, unwanted and a scumbucket just to name a few.

The main portion of donations made to the American Heart Association are used to fund research projects in our state. Since 1949, the American Heart Association has funded more than $2 billion in cardiovascular research leading to such advances as CPR, bypass surgery, the heart-lung machine, artificial heart valves, life-saving drugs and surgeries to repair heart defects. Students experience government

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Eleven Wayne High School students spent last week in the nation's capitol experiencing government through the Close-Up program.

Although this is not the first Wayne group to travel to Washington, D.C., these students will have the honor of being the group to be in the nation's capitol when war was declared.

Those taking part in this year's trip included seniors Brittany Burke and Laura Jones and juniors Mat Habrock, Jacob Kay, Mary Boehle, Allison Hansen, Bryan West, Heath Dickes, Ben Allemann, Sean Peterson and Ashley Hall.

The students were accompanied by Wayne High instructor Annette Rasmussen.

While in Washington, D.C., the students were paired with other students from Nebraska and from other states.

"There were 160 students in our hotel and there were three hotels with students for Close-Up. This was the second biggest group so far," said Bryan

Book Fair exhibit is held in Wayne

Several Library Media Specialists and teachers visited Wayne Middle School on March 24 to view new books, series of books, award winning books and titles for possible inclusion in their libraries.

The Munson Book Fair Exhibit was set up at the Middle school by Duane Munson, who has been in the education and book business for 43 years. His son, Tom, has been in the business for 13 years. The business is located in Columbus.

The Munsons do about 70-80 book exhibits each year. All the books and titles are the newest publications and have been reviewed for school and public libraries.

In addition to hosting the Book Exhibit, Wayne Middle School Media Specialist Jeaneen Kindschuh, is encouraging readers of all ages to celebrate National Library Week April 6-12.

Jeaneen Kindschuh, Wayne Middle School Media Specialist, left, Bev Wilcox of Wisner-Pilger, Nancy Powers of Winside Schools, Duane Munson, book exhibitor and Jolene Klein of Wakefield Public Schools look over books during this week's book fair.

She noted that many libraries in the area will be planning promotional ideas to help celebrate the importance of libraries in their schools and communities.

"Libraries play a vital role in our children's education. As adults we continue to learn and read books,"

Mrs. Kindschuh said. The theme for this year is National Library Week @ Wayne Middle School and Mrs. Kindschuh encourages parents to visit their children's library any time.

Veteran upset with protests

Dear Editor,
As a Korean War Veteran, I think I'm relating the thoughts of millions of Veterans and those currently in the Military: when we see pictures of ongoing war protesters, it makes us sick. They evidently have already forgotten the tragedy of 9-11, 2001!
It made me even "sicker" when I learned that several faculty from my Alma Mater, WAYNE STATE were part of that group locally. Some people even call them traitors! Maybe rightfully so!
Many, perhaps most of those protesters don't even realize who they are following - the hard core instigators in a world wide scheme.

For any of those protesters, who now cannot or will not join in support of our military and our Commanding General, our President, I have a suggestion: move to Iraq and live under their present living conditions - there are thousands, perhaps millions there who would love to trade places with you!

Main Street Focus

By Leo Ahmann

Spring has arrived in Wayne America and across the state and the folks on Main Street are stirring again.
From my perspective as the director of the statewide

Nebraska Lied Main Street Program; it is awe-inspiring to watch this annual process unfold.

Merchants are sweeping their sidewalks, flower planters are being cleaned out and new store window displays with short sleeves and flowers and sunglasses and beach umbrellas are blossoming.

The Main Street committees are planning summer activities, plans are in the works locally for celebrating National Hospital Week and some new events for Henoween. It's an evolution. Merchants and the folks who rely on their Main Street are shedding winter coats and winter attitudes and making plans. It is as much ritual as anything, a well-planned approach to keeping some semblance of normalcy in a down economy and a world struggling with war.

What is important right now is to keep that sense of place that can only be found downtown. The American flags and the yellow ribbons are proud reminders of who we are and what our forefathers fought to achieve and maintain.

Business as usual is incredibly important as we look to a season of sidewalk sales and fun events. Life can not be suspended. The economic cycle continues. People still need food and clothing and routine.

I am pleased to say that Nebraskans are coming through again.

While the numbers of reservists and National Guard members from Nebraska who have answered the call to duty has been great, the folks left behind have done their best to carry on life as normal.

Farmers are plowing their fields, contractors are building, manufacturers are producing and merchants are planning their sales events with the same energy as ever. The mood is a bit more serious, but the spirit is as strong as ever.

This is a great time to reflect on the progress we have made in both our local and statewide efforts. The presence of a new doctor and a new coffee shop on Main Street in Wayne are reflective of that very process. Work is being done on the Municipal Auditorium and folks are talking about preserving the old Fire Hall.

Statewide, businesses are cropping up in spaces that had previously been empty. In some cases, merchants have expanded their wares to make up for other businesses that have gone away. It is not unusual to find one merchant operating several businesses in separate buildings.

Service businesses are cropping up and changing the downtown mix as we have known it in the past. But they were there years ago, usually on second stories. The only difference is that the doctor or lawyer may be on the first floor now. The important thing, no matter what the service/retail mix, is that people are coming downtown.

Our statewide statistics indicate that they are still coming downtown. In my travels across the state it is hard to find a retailer willing to sing words of despair. There are incredible little stories about how people who may have traveled miles to the nearest super store are now willing to stay at home and buy from their local merchants.

They are buying keepsakes and memories... the things that people will cherish for years to come. In these trying times, that's important activity.

Thanks for listening, Wayne.

Nebraska Lied Main Street Program

Wolf on trial

A trial was held in the Wayne County Courthouse last week to determine the fate of Willy Wolf, who was accused of several crimes against the Three Little Pigs. The annual event is organized by Sheryl Connolly and includes speakers from several areas of law enforcement and government. Students in the fifth grade at Wayne Middle School took the roles of judge, jurors, attorneys, witnesses and defendant. The jury found the wolf guilty on all counts.

Paying business to do business

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It's not hard to understand how Nebraska taxpayers got into the business of underwriting private, corporate ventures.

Paying business to do business was a fad in the 1980s. It sailed through the nation's legislatures like cookie recipes going through a P.E.O. convention.

There was no stopping it. There was a recession. There was that "Morning in America" thing. There were all kinds of organizational shakeups (and holdups) going on in the business world. Deregulation was in. Making sure your state was "open for business" was in.

Do you remember the president who said: "The business of America is business?" Well, neither do most other people. But that slogan could have been dusted off and pinned on the lapels of most lawmakers in most states two decades ago.

In that atmosphere the Nebraska program known as LB775, which has since been praised and pilloried, was born.

It is a matter of fact, and not opinion, that LB775's provisions have created jobs in the Cornhusker State.

It is also true that the amount that has come out of the state treasury to fund those incentives exceeds the amount of tax revenue that has gone into the treasury as a result of those jobs and other investments.

Sen. David Landis of Lincoln is among those who have noted that this situation raises questions about the bottom line when it comes to LB775. Landis looks at the program the way a manufacturer might look at a product: If the thing doesn't generate a return on investment, you've got a problem.

Lawmakers have consistently rejected proposals that would allow the government to get a clearer picture of what the public actually gets for the tax dollars it spends via LB775.

Sen. Chris Beutler of Lincoln couldn't muster support for an amendment that would allow what amount to performance audits on taxpayer-funded corporate incentives. The business lobby argued (successfully) that even the thought of doing such audits might be disastrous. Why? Because the government types who examine the program might leak the information to the public - and the thought of public disclosure would be enough to convince businesses to look elsewhere for their freebies.

Beutler also offered (unsuccessfully) another amendment that some might think was 20 years overdue. It would have urged Nebraska's congressional delegation to back federal regulation of interstate competition for business.

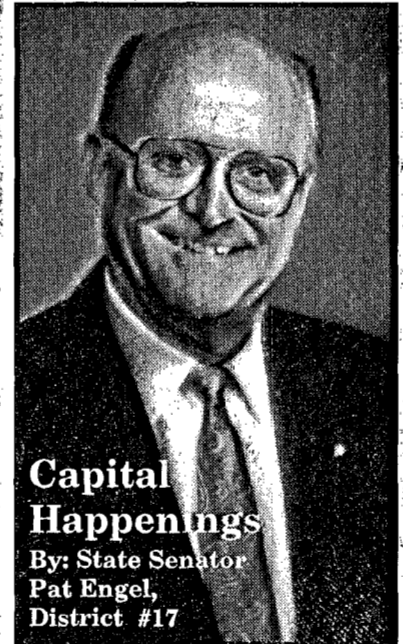

Proponents of federal regulation have said it might curb situations wherein some states effectively sell their own blood - in hopes of raising enough money to pay for a transfusion.

Legislature fine tuning budget

The Legislature last week exhibited caution when considering proposed changes to the state's largest business tax incentive program.

For four days we debated LB 608, a bill sponsored by Sen. David Landis of Lincoln that would make changes in the Employment and Investment Growth Act, commonly called the LB 775 program. The debate marked the first significant review of the program by the full Legislature since it was enacted in 1987.

Under the program, tax incentives are awarded to companies that produce a required level of financial investment and job growth.

Sen. Landis, who has been critical of aspects of the program, conceded the program has generated economic growth.

But too often, he said, the state awards generous tax incentives to business projects that probably would have occurred anyway. The result is that the state has awarded "business as usual," he said.

People are upset with the LB 775 program because they perceive it as resulting in a higher individual tax burden for themselves, he said.

The debate on LB 608 dealt with amendments proposed by the Revenue Committee, which is chaired by Sen. Landis. To facilitate debate, the committee's amendments were divided into five parts.

I was particularly interested in the Revenue Committee's proposal to make slaughterhouses ineligible to receive benefits under the LB 775 program.

Sen. Landis said the industry should not be eligible for tax incentives considering its history of hiring undocumented workers, paying low wages, violating workplace safety laws and causing environmental damage. I wholeheartedly agree with Sen. Landis. Packing houses are essential for Nebraska since the livestock industry is a very large part of our economy. However, I believe that they should pay higher wages than they do if they are going to receive tax incentives. I oppose giving tax benefits to companies that do not pay a living wage. They should not make their profits on the backs of labor.

Some senators were uncomfortable with the idea of singling out an entire industry, especially one so vital to the state's livestock interests. So we adopted a compromise amendment to require businesses to repay tax incentives if they habitually violate labor, environment, health or safety laws.

Also receiving lengthy debate were proposals to provide more disclosure of tax incentives received by businesses.

The Revenue Committee proposed to give legislative fiscal analysts access to confidential company-specific information on tax benefits to better determine the program's costs and benefits. Fiscal analysts would have been required to keep the information confidential.

Sen. Kermit Brashear of Omaha objected, saying it would be too easy for confidential information to leak out and the plan would discourage companies from locating in Nebraska. As an alternative, he proposed a business-friendly plan to disclose the numbers of jobs created and their wages levels (in $5,000 increments) by county.

We voted to adopt Sen. Brashear's disclosure proposal, which is backed by Gov. Mike Johanns.

As part of the debate on LB 608, we approved provisions that would bar casinos from receiving tax incentives; would make ethanol plants, which already qualify for other state and federal assistance, ineligible for a top tier of tax benefits; and would eliminate an incentive program for smaller business projects.

In the Appropriations Committee, we have completed hearings and will spend the next several weeks fine-tuning the budget that we will present to the Legislature for consideration.

If there is anything I can do for you, please do not hesitate to contact me at my Lincoln office: Sen. Pat Engel, District 17, State Capitol, P.O. Box 94604, Lincoln, NE 68509.

West. The Wayne students shared rooms with students from Michigan, Louisiana, Montana, Illinois and other parts of Nebraska.

Due to the threat of war and other incidents, the students noted that there was lots of security. There were x-ray machines and metal detectors at all the government buildings and museums.

"A tobacco farmer drove his tractor into a pond off the side of the Washington Monument and this also increased security and caused a huge traffic jam," said Jacob Kay.

In addition, the students saw a number war protesters during their visit.

Several of those attending shared views on their week. "Some of the things I will remember the most are the 9-11 Memorial in the Smithsonian Museum and being 10 blocks away from the President when he made the announcement of war," said Mary Boehle.

"Seeing history in action and meeting new people are two things that I will remember. It was a good week to be in Washington D.C.," Bryan said.

"The trip was so awesome. The Program Instructors taught us so much more than we could learn if we were to go there with our family or another group," Allison Hansen said.

Also high on the list of memorable events during the trip was the Changing of the Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier which was described as "very ceremonial. Everything was perfect."

The students noted the extreme-ness between the rich and poor people in the nation's capitol. They saw "lots of homeless people."

During Neighborhood Day each group was able to spend an hour and a half walking around different parts of the city, some of which were described as "more unsafe than others. There were lots of sirens and police."

The group all stated that the trip was well worth it and recommended it to all fellow students.

"The trip helped tie everything together. I made me realize that there are other people out there and I learned to listen to other people's views," Allison said.

Council votes to increase number of firemen

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

The maximum number of firemen on the Wayne Volunteer Fire department was raised from 40 to 46 following action at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Fire Chief Robert Woehler presented the request for the increase, stating that there are a number of people on a waiting list to join the department. He stated that the department had a number of older members who were involved mainly in fire prevention activities and that adding the new members would not require any additional equipment being purchased.

The council approved two zoning changes involving property near the Wayne Transfer Station.

Ordinance 2003-5 allows for a change in zoning from R-3 (Residential) to I-1 (Industrial) for Transfer Station property.

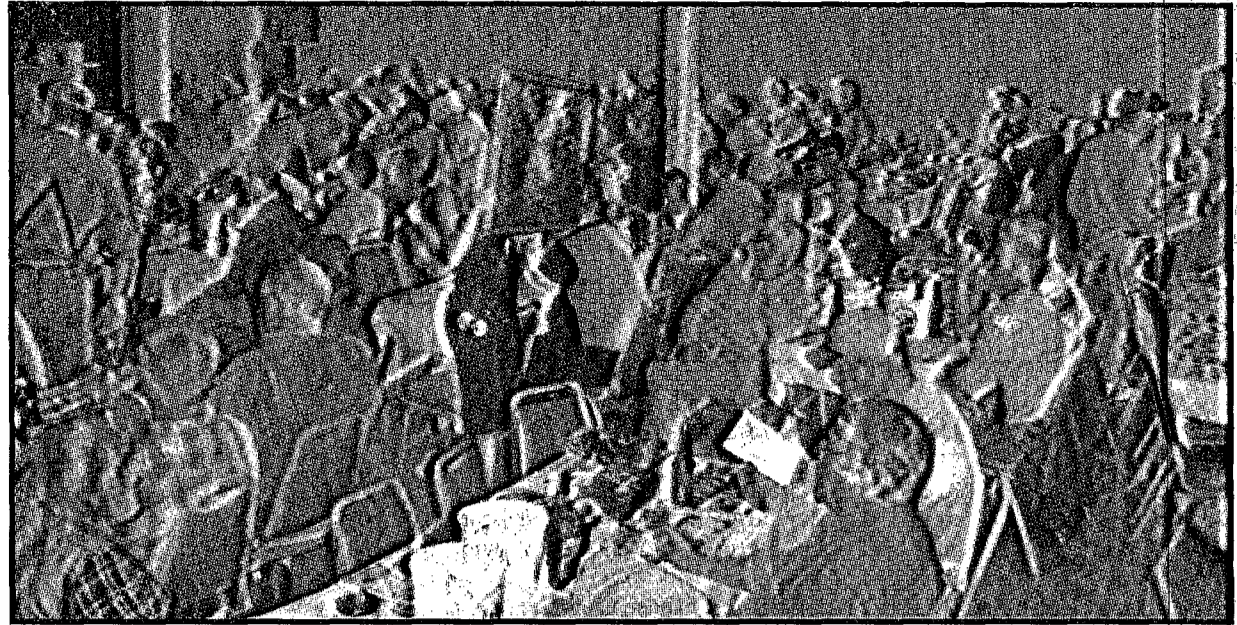

Ordinance 2003-6 will re-zone a portion of land north of the Transfer Station from R-3 to B-3 (Business). This will allow for a buffer between the residential zoned area and the industrial zoned area.

Both ordinances were passed and the three readings waived.

In other action, the council spent a considerable amount of time discussing a resolution which would allow for an agreement between the city of Wayne and the village of Carroll in regard to water and wastewater systems.

The city of Wayne's water/wastewater employees would be responsible for collecting samples and testing of water in Carroll.

City Administrator Lowell Johnson and representatives of the village of Carroll have met to dis-

Pheasant enthusiasts

The 13th annual Logan Creek Pheasants Forever Banquet was held in Wayne on Friday. Approximately 350 people were on hand for the meal, silent and live auction, games and other activities. During the banquet highlights of the chapters' accomplishments were noted with speeches by Scott Brummond, Duane Schroeder and Pete Berthelsen, Director of Conservation Programs for Pheasants Forever.

cuss the issue and have reached an agreement.

However, council members felt more information was needed on the amount of time the Wayne employees would actually spend working with Carroll's water and other difficulties might arise from the agreement.

The item was tabled until more information can be made available.

The council unanimously approved a lease purchase agreement with the Wayne Country Club for an aeration machine for the golf course greens.

Rusty Parker and Ken Dahl, representing the golf course, spoke on the benefits of having the machine. It is estimated that the greens could last an additional five to seven years by being aerated several times a year. The machine could also be used in other areas such as the ball park.

Fees for renting the Wayne City Auditorium will not be increased in the immediate future.

City Administrator Johnson said that he has had several requests for rental of the building. The council felt that they should wait until the end of the year and see how much the building is used and the purposes for which it is used before changing any of the rental fees.

The council also listened to a request from the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce for funding for Welcome flags for the city of Wayne.

Wayne State College has made a commitment to purchase a number of the flags and the Flag Committee of the Chamber has put in requests to Wayne Industries and the Wayne County Visitors' Bureau, as well as the city to fund additional flags.

The council directed City Administrator Johnson to seek sources of revenue for the project and report back at the council's next meeting.

Approval was given for the moving of a handicapped parking stall from the corner of Second and Main Streets to a location near Pediatric Choice in the 200 block of Main Street.

No action was taken on the passage of a resolution to establish a policy for processing standard buildings complaints, documenting work done and forwarding complaints to the council for abatement and assessment.

Several council members had questions on the time frame for the entire process and wanted clarification of these issues before the passage of the resolution.

The council's next meeting will be Tuesday, April 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers.

two come-from-behind wins," added Misfeldt. "The girls showed a never say die attitude in those games."

Saturday, the Wildcats edged Missouri Western 6-5 and Northwest Missouri State 3-2, then lost to Truman State 4-0. Herbs & Supplements
VITAMINS, MINERALS & HERBAL THERAPIES

The Health Benefits of Coenzyme Q-10
A supplement called Coenzyme Q-10 is described as a vitamin-like substance produced naturally in small amounts by the body. It also can be found in meats and seafood.
Several disease states have been described as having low levels of coenzyme Q-10. This has led to studies which could help us better understand this naturally occurring compound and the possible value of supplementation. For example, a recent study in persons with Parkinson's disease found that those who got coenzyme Q-10 fared better than did those on dummy (placebo) pills. It has been suggested that coenzyme Q-10 also may be effective in congestive heart disease, angina, and asthma. Finally, researchers have found that coenzyme Q-10 could be beneficial to persons who have high blood pressure. Future research may show that supplementation with coenzyme Q-10 might allow for a reduction in the number and/or size of doses of some high blood pressure medicine.

Residents of The Oaks participate in Shape Up Class led by Cynthia Rethwisch while Susan Epps and Christi Heims from Madonna Rehabilitation Hospital staff sit in on the class.

Wellness program is implemented

Madonna Rehabilitation Hospital is pleased to have the opportunity to work with The Oaks to offer a wellness program for the residents.

"Fit For Life" is a unique program designed to provide opportunities for information and improved health.

Wellness isn't just about increased physical activity. Information will be shared on improving nutrition and increasing opportunities to stimulate thinking and improved emotions. The staff from Madonna will be back monthly to work with The Oaks and provide additional information.

Since the implementation of "Fit For Life" program on March 19, several new activities with a focus on exercise and wellness have been added to The Oaks Activity schedule.

In addition to the daily "Walk & Talk" and "Shape Up" class already offered, a "Breakfast Stretch," "Health Tips and H2O," "Men on Machines" (exercise machines that is) and an evening "Walk & Talk" have been added to the schedule.

Several residents have also been instructed on how to access a web site for a daily "Health Tip of the Day."

"Our goal is to have something for everyone, have everyone participate in something," said Cynthia Rethwisch, who leads the exercise classes.

Collectors and artists to gather at Wayne State

Individuals interested in art and collectibles, board games, information on becoming a published author and more will mark their calendars for April 4-6 at Wayne State College.

The WSC Science Fiction and Fantasy Club is hosting WillyCon 5, an annual convention with many activities for everyone to enjoy on the Wayne State College campus. The art show and dealer's room are open to the public in the student center.

Guests of honor for the convention are Wil McCarthy, Lucy A. Synk, and John and Belinda Jamison.

Wil McCarthy is the author of eight science fiction novels, including the New York Times notable book Bloom, and The Collapsium, named Amazon.com "Best of Y2K." McCarthy also writes a monthly science column for SciFi.com, the online arm of USA Networks' SciFi channel.

Lucy Synk's work includes unusual approaches and involves unconventional themes such as expressed in her painting "Ruach when the creative Spirit of God is portrayed as female because the Hebrew word is feminine in gender."

John and Belinda Jamison have a small home-based book store specializing in used and rare science fiction, fantasy, horror and mystery books. They have been in the book business since 1985 and have been valued attendees of WillyCon at Wayne State College since its beginning in 1999.

Individuals do not need to be members of the convention to browse for books, art or collectibles. The art show will include art submitted by various artists with something for everyone. Along with the art show, individuals may take advantage of the "Yesterday's Tomorrows" exhibit on campus at the same time.

Anyone may register for WillyCon weekend for $15 until April 1 and $20 afterward and at the door. There is a discounted price for students - WSC students are free and $10 for any other student with a valid Student ID.

What To Do About Fatigue & Drowsiness

There are many reasons why people get drowsy and sometimes suffer from bouts of fatigue. Pushing a deadline or studying for an exam is just one of many potential causes. Anytime the body experiences an infection it draws on various energy stores to fuel itself. In such cases the immune system may require extra energy which can leave a person feeling fatigued. Some medicines cause drowsiness as a side effect. Poor nutrition and dehydration are common causes of weakness and tiredness. Other health problems could be the cause.

Self correction of known causes of fatigue, such as staying up late or working extra hours, is a suggested first step. moderate amounts of caffeine from coffee or tea or from over-the-counter products such as No-Doz or Vivarin may improve concentration and increase energy. However, when contemplating the use of nonprescription stimulants, consult with a physician first to make sure there are no underlying medical problems that need to be addressed.

Pastor Bill Koeber, Phyllis Rahn and Kandy Frerichs from Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne were among those attending the Northeast Conference of the Nebraska Synodical Women's Organization (NSWO) of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America on March 8 for the annual Spring Gathering.

This year the event was hosted by Grace Lutheran Church in West Point. The theme of the day was LISTEN, based on the text from Isaiah 30:21.

The day was spent in singing, business, Bible study, skits, music presented by the Glory Ringers of Grace Lutheran and closing communion, led by the Rev. Carl Kramer of Grace.

Workshops were presented by Marlys Meyer of Scribner on the importance of bandage rolling for needy countries; by Dr. Jon Cerny of Bancroft on his experience with the Tanzania Teacher exchange program of the Nebraska Synod; and by Ardith Hoins, president of the NSWO, for unit leaders in the conference.

The Rev. Norma Vander Meer of Lyons gave a program about the Matthew quilt that she designed and then made with another student while at seminary.

Special guests were the Rev. Harold Stromer of Hastings, assistant to the bishop of the Nebraska Synod, who presented the Bible Study; Ardith Hoins of Davenport, president of NSWO;

Arlene Johnson of Shelby, NSWO vice-president and R. LaDene Rutt of Chappell, NSWO treasurer.

Tangible gifts were collected for the New Haven House in South Sioux City and for the "Little Store" in West Point that is run from the St. Mary's convent by Sister Virginia.

Auxiliary members Dorothy Dendering of Hartington passed away recently.

The next bingo party at the Norfolk Veterans Home is scheduled for Thursday, April 10 at 2 p.m.

A Volunteer Day award program for the DAV and DAVA will be on Saturday, April 5 at 1:30 p.m. at the Norfolk Veterans' Home.

The state DAV and DAVA convention will be held May 30-31 and June 1 at the New World Inn in Columbus.

Eveline Thompson served lunch following the meeting.

Planetarium show scheduled

The public is invited to Wayne State's new planetarium show, "Surveying Spring and Summer Skies." Show dates are Sundays, March 30 through May 4 (except there is no show on April 20), in the Fred G. Dale Planetarium, located in the Carhart Science Building on campus at 3:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

"This is an intimate look at the evening skies of spring, dominated by the bright planets Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter, as well as numerous interesting star clusters and nebulae.

As spring changes to summer, Mars takes center stage, and by August it will be within 35 million miles of Earth, the closest approach in recorded history," said Carl Rump, WSC planetarium director.

The planetarium is located at the south entrance of the Carhart Science Building on the WSC campus.

Special showings may be arranged for school groups and other organizations by calling (402) 375-7343.

WSC invites public to share exhibit opening

The public is welcome to attend an opening ceremony on March 25 at 6 p.m. for the Smithsonian Exhibit, "Yesterday's Tomorrows: Past Visions of the American Future," available for viewing until April 13 in the lobby of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Building.

Dr. Sheila Stearns, Wayne State College president, will welcome the audience and will be joined by Doug Sturin, Wayne city councilman, and Jane Renner Hood, Nebraska Humanities Council director for the opening ceremony. Keynote speaker will be Jack McDevitt, science fiction author and futurist. He will speak on "Envisioning the Future: Hindsight," including an examination of assumptions about the 20th century, predictions by H.G. Wells and the difficulty of predictions due to technology and social conditions.

McDevitt and his family live in Brunswick, Ga. A Philadelphia native with a master's degree in literature from Wesleyan University, McDevitt has been a naval officer, an English teacher, a motivational trainer and a customs officer. McDevitt's first novel, The Hercules Text won the "Philip K. Dick Special Award" for distinguished science fiction books published for the first time in the United States as a paperback original.

In 1991, he won a $10,000 international prize for his novella "Ships in the Night" and has been repeatedly nominated for various science fiction writing awards. Developed by the Smithsonian Institution's Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES), the display includes ray guns, robots and plans for a nuclear-powered car. "Yesterday's Tomorrows" uses popular culture objects such as toys, books, movie stills, World's Fair memorabilia, car designs, advertisements and models of architectural designs to examine ways in which Americans of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries viewed the future.

The exhibit will include additional displays from the WSC School of Education; the School of Business; the School of Natural and Social Sciences, local schools, and an iron lung on loan from the Sioux City, Iowa museum. Many programs and presentations will be held during the exhibit. There will be a series of programs that run the entire period of the exhibit. The Wayne State exhibit will be the first of six showings in Nebraska.
