Fitness center discussed at Winside

Approximately a dozen individuals attended a public meeting in Winside on April 29 to discuss the building of a facility adjacent to the high school gym that could be used for both student athlete training and a community fitness center.

Spokesman for the project was businessman John Thies who presented a rough sketch of a 45' x 85' steel building.

It would be attached to the north side of the high school gym and connected to already existing restrooms.

Several individuals stated the current weight training area the students use is in the elementary basement and is very inadequate. The equipment has been there for several generations.

Thies said, "The communities of Laurel-Concord, Coleridge, Hartington and Wakefield have all built such school/community fitness centers and they are working out quite well. The building and equipment will all be paid for from donations, fund-raisers such as a pledge system and we're searching for grants available. Once the building is complete, it will become the property of the school. The school would set up a schedule when athletes would be using the facility and the hours it would be open to the public. Insurance would be covered by the school's blanket policy.

"Memberships to use the facility would go to the school to pay for maintenance and utility expenses. There will be a key entry system for members and no one under 18 would be allowed

Bank robbers are sentenced

The two men charged with last November's robbery of the State National Bank drive-in location in Wayne were sentenced in Wayne County District Court Wednesday morning.

19-year-old Delante Delano of Omaha and 18-year-old Jasper Falkner of Lincoln will each serve eight to 12 years at the Nebraska Department of Corrections facility in Lincoln. Wayne County District Judge Robert Ensz ordered the men to also undergo drug and alcohol treatment at the Nebraska Department of Corrections Treatment Center. Delano received credit for 165 days already served while Falkner received credit for 173 days served.

The recommended sentence reached in a plea bargain in March by Special Prosecutor Verlyn Luebke of Pierce was six to 10 years. The two men are eligible for parole in four years.

Before sentencing, Delano, who also faces an arrest warrant in Washington County and has been jailed twice in Douglas County, told Ensz that he has offered apologies to the victims at the bank and knows he can't go back and change things. Delano's court-appointed attorney, Douglas Stratton of Norfolk, said "my client knows he screwed up big time."

Ensz also spoke of the bad timing of Andersons are leaving 'home'

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Stating that the family will always consider Wayne "home," Pastor Jeff Anderson and his family will be leaving Grace Lutheran Church and moving to Morton, Ill.

Pastor Anderson came to Wayne 15 years ago, just out of the seminary and said that he lived in Wayne longer than any other place.

Pastor Anderson begins his new duties as pastor of Bethel Lutheran Church in Morton on Saturday, May 17. Morton is a town of approximately 16,000 just outside of Peoria. The church has approximately 1,400 members.

When Pastor Anderson came to Wayne, he first served as an associate pastor and campus pastor for Wayne State College. He later became Administrative Pastor and has been the only pastor at Grace Lutheran three different times during his tenure.

"We leave here sad, but knowing that it is the right thing to do," Pastor Anderson said. "For the longevity of the church, it is wise to move."

"We will miss Chicken Days and the small town atmosphere. The Wayne community is our family," Pastor Anderson added.

"What makes Wayne unique is the friendly people. They are the best. I am proud to say my kids have grown up in Wayne," Pastor Anderson said.

Pastor Anderson and his wife Renata's three children were born while the couple was in Wayne. They are Amy, 14, Aleta, 12 and Mark, 9.

"We are leaving Grace Lutheran Church in good hands. Pastor John Pasche is a good man."

Protecting yourself from Internet fraud

By Jon Bruning
Attorney General

Buying an airline ticket, reserving a hotel room or even buying a car is now just a click. While shopping on the Internet may offer bargains and conveniences not found in a store, there are dangers.

Internet Auctions accounted for 87 percent of the Internet fraud reported by the National Consumers League. Other common complaints involve general merchandise sales, internet access services, sales of computer equipment and software, work-at-home offers, advance-fee loans magazine sales, travel offers and pyramid schemes.

There are several steps that you can take to protect yourself from internet fraud, including the following:

1. Use a secure browser. This software scrambles the purchase information you send over the Internet, ensuring a secure transaction.

2. Safeguard personal information. Many companies post privacy policies on their websites. Check the policy before giving any information.

3. Shop with know companies. Anyone can set up shop on the Internet. Ask unfamiliar companies to send you a catalog or brochure. Also, check refund and return policies before placing an order.

4. Keep your password private. Avoid using a phone number, birth date or part of your Social Security number for a password.

5. Pay by credit or charge card. Paying by credit card will protect your transactions under the Fair Credit Billing Act. This law gives you the right to dispute charges under certain circumstances and temporarily withhold payment.

6. Keep copies of transaction records. Keep printed records of all transactions including purchase order and confirmation numbers.

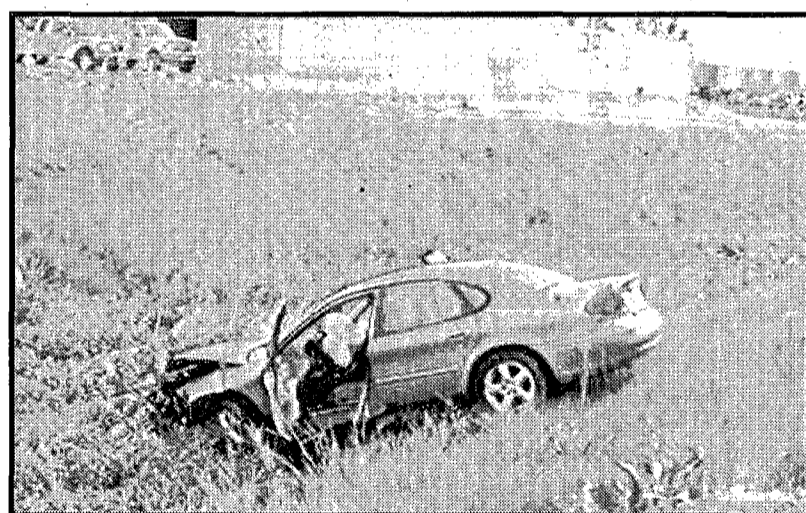

The best way to protect yourself from all types of internet fraud is to keep your personal information private. For more information, call the Consumer Protection Division of the Nebraska Attorney General's Office toll free at 1-800-727-6432 or visit www.ago.state.ne.us

Letters

Thanks to the volunteer firemen

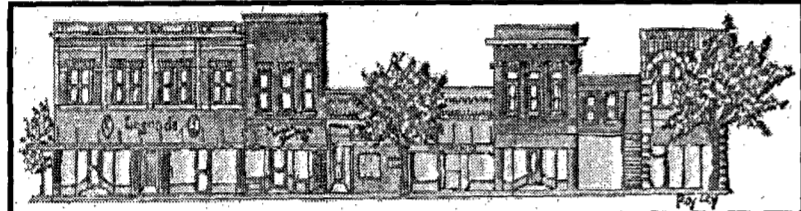

Dear Editor,
I would like to take this time to thank all volunteers in the community of Wayne for National Volunteer Week. I would especially like to thank the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. There are approximately 44 firemen that devote their time. I don't know how many times that our family has been sitting at a holiday dinner when the fire whistle calls or at 10 p.m. at night when everybody else is ready to crawl into bed. These firemen drop everything and are ready to help. Words cannot thank you enough for your efforts and dedication. Your enthusiasm in helping the Wayne community is greatly appreciated.

Main Street Focus

By Leo Ahmann

The Main Street Wayne Program would like to extend congratulations to all the graduates of Wayne High School and Wayne State College. We wish you the very best of success for the future.

We also hope that you will eventually become active citizens of Wayne America. We have a unique situation here in Wayne, a person may attend Day Care through a Master's Degree right here in Wayne. We are very fortunate.

Hats off from the Main Street Program to the City and the City Council Members for having the "Community Clean-up Days" last weekend. Vehicle after vehicle hauled their unwanted "stuff" to the transfer station and we were graciously assisted by city employees. Our Aspire "pick-up" made four trips and we thank the guys for their help.

We had the pleasure of attending a special reception for Lyn Wallin Ziegenbein, Executive Director of the Peter Kiewit Foundation, held at the Student Center at Wayne State College last Sunday. Lyn Wallin Ziegenbein was on campus as guest speaker at the Kiwanis Honors Banquet that followed the reception. It is incredible the amount of scholarships offered by the Kiewit Foundation to graduating high school seniors to help them further their education. I have been talking with the 'green thumbs' about plantings in the Main Street Park. We have all made comments about how we hate to make any cuts in the wonderful turf we have going there, but WE WILL!!! We are also in the process of procuring some white vinyl privacy fencing for the back of the park to add to its good looks. Hopefully we can get that ironed out soon. Just a reminder, if you would like to make a planting donation, or make a donation in memory of someone, please contact us at 375-5062.

THE CEMENT CHICKENS are on the way!! As soon as they arrive, I will get the word out and will make deliveries to the people who have requested them. I am truly excited about this year's edition. For those wondering, we purchase two dozen cement chickens (approximately 25 pounds per chicken). We then contact individuals and get the word out to the public concerning anyone who may be interested in painting one for us. There is no purchase necessary. The painted chickens are then returned to us. Between acts of entertainment on Henoween, we have a public auction. The money raised is then turned right around to pay for our Henoween expenses. We had a terrific response last year and hope we can have as much fun this year.

Our Main Street "Investment Drive 2003" is well underway. We have received a very gratifying response in the mail from our past "Friends of Main Street" and new investors as well. We will be making personal contacts soon. If you would like to make an investment in an organization you can be proud of, knowing they're working hard for Wayne, make an investment in the Main Street Wayne Program.

Questions or comments... call 375-5062 or stop in.

Until next time...

Dealing with the budget monster

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Sen. Kermit Brashear said it succinctly. "The Roaring 90's are gone, the Omaha lawmaker told his colleagues, and the state isn't likely to see their likes again."

Brashear's admonition is particularly appropriate as state senators are confronted by budget problems which have confounded them for a couple of years.

There are two bullets available for putting down the budget monster. One is powered by higher and some new taxes, the other by what many regard as draconian budget reductions aimed at education and a few other areas.

The size and scope of the budget mess has left lawmakers without any political cover worthy of the name. They can't argue, with straight faces, that the tax increases would be temporary. In the same light (provided by a dim economy) they cannot suggest that the cuts will be restored when times are better.

Gov. Mike Johanns has said more and deeper budget reductions ought to be pursued. Whether he will demand them via his veto, and by going extraordinarily public in criticizing the budget, remains to be seen.

Do you remember that quote from Shakespeare about dishonesty and plotting? The one that says something about "...what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive..."

State and local officials are con-founded by the way some businesses are using immigrant and other workers in Omaha.

The bottom line is that a lot of money can be saved when a laborer is classified as a "contractor" instead of an employee. It can also result, for a variety of reasons, in government being deprived of tax revenue and workers being deprived of appropriate benefits.

There are layers and layers of subcontractors separating the board room from the guys who actually carry boards and concrete around. And at every layer you hear the same thing: "I hired other people to handle this, and I assume that they are behaving the way they should. Don't look at me."

The question is: Have we reached the place where business can weave a web that the government can't penetrate?

Another question is: Is that scary?

tourism. Our office keeps on-hand many brochures, tourism catalogs, and state maps for travelers and potential newcomers to our community. We have become the "go-first" agency in the Wayne area for what is happening in Northeastern Nebraska in addition to the usual referrals for lists of daycare providers, preschools, doctors and contractors.

Also, your chamber works closely with the Wayne County Tourism Council that administers the lodging tax disbursements in support of tourism projects. We receive and forward to the council the applications from all groups and/or agencies looking for financial assistance from the funds collected by area motels, which is another way that the resources are fed back into the community to local organizations spearheading tourism economic development projects.

Each year several volunteers from within the chamber membership travel to Grand Island and participate in a statewide brochure swap. Brochures such as those that promote the Chicken Show are distributed to other chambers and convention and visitors bureaus in exchange for a supply of similar materials. At the same event, our brochures are given to the Nebraska state office that manages and re-stocks rest stops across the state. Any organization wishing to include their tourism brochures in this distribution activity may contact the chamber at 375-2240.

It is a fun role for your chamber office because it keeps us updated on all activities in our region as well as throughout Nebraska and allows for the Wayne area to participate in "Nebraska's Third Largest Industry."

Today is the 65th day until the Chicken Show. Here is a list of some of upcoming sponsored days on the Countdown Calendar and their corresponding incentives:

Legislature making progress on budget

By Senator Pat Engel
District 17

The Legislature made some progress on the state budget last week. The main budget bill, LB 407, was given first-round approval April 30 on a vote of 29-12.

The bill is a key part of the Appropriations Committee's plan to deal with a $756 million shortfall between existing spending levels and projected tax revenue over the next two fiscal years. The committee's plan leaves a $355 million gap that would have to be filled with tax increases or further spending cuts.

I voted to advance LB 407. As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I believe the committee's plan responsibly deals with the state's budget shortfall and protects vital state services.

The Appropriations Committee met the better part of four months in preliminary hearings, agency hearings and deliberations, and we could not come up with any more than $401 million of cuts without disrupting essential services.

I've always said that raising taxes would be the last resort, and that is where we are at the present time. Broadening the sales tax base as in adjoining states is the fairest option. K-12 schools and higher education are the only areas we can go to fill the gap unless revenues are increased.

One notable budget change dealt with funding for the state's advocacy agencies. Senators voted to restore funding for the Mexican American Commission and the Commission on Indian Affairs. However, they rejected an attempt to revive funding for the Commission on the Status of Women.

I never did advocate getting rid of these agencies, but I did not support funding them with state tax dollars. They are advocacy agencies, and I believe that they should be self funded as is Arc of Nebraska, which is a very strong advocate for the developmentally disabled.

On the revenue side, the Revenue Committee on April 30 advanced LB 285, which would extend last year's increases in income, sales and cigarette tax rates. It is estimated that the bill would generate $245 million over the two-year period.

Two potential roadblocks are: first, senators who voted against the bill say a big fight over taxes might still loom. Some senators are extremely reluctant to fill the entire $355 million gap with tax increases and would like to see further spending cuts.

Second, the Legislature would be headed for a budget showdown with Governor Mike Johanns. The governor is opposed to tax increases other than a hike in the cigarette tax. If the governor vetoes tax increases, senators would need 30 votes to override him.

On another matter, it appears that LB 265, which would allow citizens to carry concealed handguns, may not be considered again this session.

Second-round debate on the bill ended April 28 after it became apparent that supporters did not have the 33 votes to halt a filibuster. The bill will not come back on the legislative agenda unless the bill's sponsor can demonstrate that he has the votes to break the filibuster.

If the bill does not come up for another vote this year, it could be taken up in next year's session.

without parental supervision. The building would also be connected to the gym so anyone wanting to walk or play basketball could do so. Interest in a community fitness center was expressed from a recent town survey taken.

"We need projects like this and others to keep our school and community going," said school board member Jean Suehl.

Volunteer fireman Pete Kaiser discussed other community projects currently being worked on such as improving the village park and adding new toys. Also setting up a preschool in Winside has been discussed. "We need to make this community better and more attractive to new residents through these projects so they want to come here to live. If we have a preschool, many parents from the surrounding areas that now travel to Wayne, Hoskins or Norfolk would bring them. They would feel their kids already have friends here so we might as well send them to school here."

One individual pointed out that Winside is a perfect bedroom community so if we show we're making improvements and growing, people will build more homes here.

"The school will need to enter into an Inter-local agreement with the city so donated funds for this project can be generated without affecting state aid and will also make the project tax exempt," said school superintendent Arden Svoboda.

Estimated cost of the project is $100,000. All funds will come from donations and grants and not tax dollars. An account has been set up at Winside State Bank and currently has $3,000 towards the project. The committee of John Thies, Pete Kaiser and Michelle Evans are planning to have pledge sheets available soon throughout the community for individuals who would like to pledge a donation.

City-wide clean-up successful

A steady stream of vehicles lined up to unload unwanted items during the recent community clean up. Two hundred tires, 200 appliances, 100 sofas and chairs, 80 yards of wood, 50 batteries, 75 bicycles and 20 loads of miscellaneous steel were gathered. There were eight semi-trailer loads taken to the landfill in Jackson.

Construction begins on new school in Allen

Groundbreaking for a new school took place in Allen last Friday. The facility will hopefully be done by the time school begins for the 2003-04 school year in August.

Plans for the new facility began over a year ago when the state fire marshal told them something had to be done as the school building didn't meet code requirements.

After finding it would cost $1.5 million to remodel, a steering committee was formed to look into plans for a new building which will cost $2.3 million. Last November, a bond election passed to build the new school. The facility will be built directly south of the old school.

On Friday, Supt. Don Schmidt introduced several speakers before the ground breaking ceremony began. Rob Bock, board president when the project began, stated he had attended school in the present

Preparations for construction of a new school in Allen are underway. The facility will be built directly behind the present school building. Completion date is set for this August.

building and changes are needed. Sen. Pat Engel spoke and congratulated everyone on the upcoming new facility. He also reflected on the hard times state representatives are having in the legislature making needed cuts.

Paul Martin, InVision architect, said people in the community had the time, hearts and resources to bring the new facility to reality. Rex Holtze of Sioux Contractors noted tough decisions were made to keep the project under budget. He said they will have their work cut out for them to be finished by August.

Principal Monty Miller noted it is unique that the same contractor who built the gym in 1960 is now building the new school.

Looking ahead, there is a large group coming in for the fall Kindergarten class. Fifteen children were signed up during the recent round-up.

this incident, less than two months after the deadly bank robbery in Norfolk.

Ensz then told Delano that "you created a mess for yourself over $300," the amount of money that Delano and Falkner needed. They ended up taking around $3,800. It was also disclosed in court Wednesday morning that Delano entered the bank with a BB gun. Falkner's attorney, Douglas Stratton of Norfolk, told Ensz that his client was remorseful about the incident. Falkner told Ensz, "I take full responsibility for my action and I regret what I did."

It was learned in the courtroom that Falkner was masked during the robbery and jumped over the counter to steal the money.

Falkner has spent time at the Youth Rehab Center in Kearney faces drug charges in Dodge and Washington counties and awaits a bench warrant in Lancaster County.

The Wayne State softball team finished fourth in the Northern Sun Conference softball tournament held in Wayne on Friday and Saturday.

After dropping the first game to Southwest State 2-1 Friday morning, the Wildcats posted three consecutive wins in the elimination bracket to stay alive before falling to Concordia-St. Paul in nine innings on Saturday 5-4.

Wayne State would open the tournament with a 2-1 setback to Southwest State, scoring their only run of the game in the top of the seventh inning. A Wildcat rally in the final inning saw the tying run left on second base to end the game.

The Wildcats had just three hits in the game, all singles by Mackenzie Knoell, Mindy Guenin and Katie Johnson.

The next game saw sophomore lefthander Whitney Wilczynski toss a no-hitter in leading Wayne State to an 8-0 win over Minnesota-Morris.

WSC scored four runs in the first and second innings to set the tone early. Lisa Stewart and Katie Johnson had two hits each to lead the Wildcats.

A run in the bottom of the seventh inning helped the Wildcats stay alive in the next game, eliminating Minnesota State-Moorhead 2-1.

Wayne State had five hits in the game, including a double from senior catcher Jessica Hinde.

Knoell, Johnson, Jackie Harrison and Stefanie Brewster each added a single.

Mindy Guenin pitched the first four and two-thirds innings with Wilczynski tossing the final two and one-third to get the win.

Saturday morning, Wayne State used another seventh inning rally to knock off Bemidji State 4-3.

Amber Johnson and Lisa Stewart had two hits apiece for the Wildcats with Theresa Garlow adding a solo home run.

Guenin was the winning pitcher after two innings of relief in place of starter Whitney Wilczynski.

The next game saw Concordia-St. Paul use some late heroics to top the Wildcats 5-4 in nine innings.

The Golden Bears scored one run in the bottom of the seventh inning to tie the game at 4-4, then posted the game winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Guenin and Knoell produced two hits each for the Wildcats in the heart-breaking loss.

Top-seeded Winona State won the NSIC Tournament, beating Minnesota-Duluth twice on Saturday, 10-4 and 10-1.

Mackenzie Knoell of Wayne State was named to the NSIC All-Tournament Team. The junior second baseman from Elkhorn hit .375 in the tournament (6 for 16), scoring five runs and stealing six bases in six attempts.

Wildcat baseball team drops three games in Duluth

The Wayne State baseball team dropped three out of four games in their regular season-ending series at Minnesota-Duluth last Friday and Saturday.

With the three wins, the Bulldogs will host the NSIC Baseball Tournament, which runs today (Thursday) through Saturday in Duluth.

Wayne State's only win in the series came on Friday when the Wildcats topped UMD 4-2 in the opening game of the series.

Junior Travis McCarter (Overton) tossed a complete-game five hitter, improving to 8-0 on the season. McCarter allowed two runs, his first earned runs allowed in NSIC play this season. He struck out seven batters.

Both team had five hits in the game. Tim Richt produced two singles and Brian Foy added a double.

The Bulldogs outthrew WSC in the first game 13-4. Foy, Richt, Dan Bengt and Conley each singled for the Wildcats.

Starting pitcher Jared Hertzler (5-2) was tagged with the loss, receiving relief help from Jon Pitts and Mark Bignell.

The final game of the series saw the Bulldogs score a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to win 6-5. Both teams had seven hits in the game.

Brian Disch had three hits and two RBI to lead WSC at the plate. Damien Heckelsmiller (2-1) suffered the loss on the mound, allowing six runs on seven hits in five and one-third innings. Joe Wall recorded the final two outs in relief.

"Overall, I thought we played pretty well," stated head coach John Manganaro. "We got hurt with a couple of bad pitches at the wrong times, resulting in key home runs for them."

Manganaro added that his team has not been catching breaks lately.

"We won a lot of close games early and now we are on the short end of those one and two-run games."

Wayne State will be the number four seed entering the NSIC Tournament in Duluth this weekend. The Wildcats face top-seeded Minnesota-Duluth at 3 pm Thursday following a noon game between number three seed Southwest State and number two seed Concordia-St. Paul.

The Wildcats, 24-13 overall, will be looking for their second conference tournament championship in three years, after finishing runner-up last season to Southwest State.

Manganaro said the key to success in the NSIC Tournament will be good pitching and defense. "We know what we're up against. I believe if we play the same way we have the past two weeks with a little more intensity, we're going to get the breaks we've been looking for and win the close games."

More Options for an Irritable Bowel

Irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) occurs when the gastrointestinal (GI) tract becomes sensitized to stress, diet, drugs, or hormones. This sensitivity may cause the GI tract to contract abnormally, leading to abdominal pain, constipation, or diarrhea. The spastic colon type of IBS is usually triggered by eating and produces alternating diarrhea and constipation. Bloating, gas, nausea, headaches, and fatigue also may be present. The second is a painless type that can cause extreme and immediate urgency upon awakening that is so strong that control over bowel movement frequently may be lost.

Psyllium (Metamucil) seems to benefit some IBS sufferers. Medicines for diarrhea such as loperamide (Imodium) may be helpful. Tegaserod (Zelnorm; Zelnorm) helps normalize GI contractions. It was recently approved for use in women with constipation predominant IBS. However, tegaserod does not work in all women and is not approved for men. Alosetron (Lotronex) is a relatively new drug for women with diarrhea predominant IBS. It was pulled from the market because it sometimes caused severe constipation. It has been re-evaluated and has been released for use on a limited basis.

Sandy Patton speaks at RC& D meeting

President Bob Lingenfelter led the Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Council meeting April 28 with 21 people present.

Sandy Patton, AmeriCorps member presented information on direct marketing and buying local foods. She stated a number of excellent reasons to purchase foods grown locally - it tastes better and is better for you, it supports local families, farms contribute more in taxes than they require in services, and it helps ensure there will be farms in the community in the future.

She showed a video of Angelic Organics, Chicago, the largest community supported agricultural operation in the United States. They serve 1,000 people from this 25-acre farm.

Patton is arranging for community gardens in Verdigre and Plainview, but is looking for more opportunities with those and farmer's markets. The Council agreed to support a second year in this program.

The Beginning Farmer course concluded April 5th with six new or expanded agricultural ventures completing business plans. Two projects are being pursued with Husker Ag. Duane Bair reported on the Lewis & Clark Watershed Assessment project and the Council approved a $200 contribution as matching funds for a grant. A thorough inventory will be made of areas draining into Lewis & Clark Lake to help determine where the most results can be achieved.

State Association issues were discussed and a deposit was approved for annual meeting expenses. Bob Porter and Carmen Shaffer will attend the National Association Conference in San Antonio, Texas representing this Council. Council members will be delivering tourism-related information to 4th grade classes in recognition of Nebraska Tourism Week May 4-10.

Staff comments included project tracking issues and competitive sourcing. Volunteer appreciation tokens were given to all in attendance in recognition of their service to the RC&D. Cy Pinkelmann was welcomed as a new member to the board representing Cedar County.

The next meeting of the RC&D Council will be a week early due to the Memorial Day holiday. It is scheduled for Monday, May 19th, 7:30 p.m. at the office. All are welcome to attend.

Providing funds

Deb Dickey, treasurer for the Wayne Education Boosters (WEB), left, presents a check for $600 to Claudia Koeber, elementary school librarian. WEB, in conjunction to Pizza Hut coupon cards provided money to help the library, which has been unable to purchase any new books and materials this past year due to reduced funding. Cards will again be for sale at the concerts on May 8 and May 13.

Astronomy Day planned at Wayne State College

The public is invited to observe "Astronomy Day" by taking a look through a variety of telescopes set up west of the women's softball field on the Wayne State College campus and a special show at the planetarium at 8 p.m. on Saturday, May 10.

The Northeast Nebraska Astronomy Club will have telescopes available following the special planetarium show. Weather permitting, telescopes will be available from 9 to 10:30 p.m. with parking available at the north end of the Rec Center parking lot.

"With clear skies, visitors will be able to view the moon, a variety of planets, star clusters, nebulae and galaxies," said Carl Rump, WSC planetarium director.

The planetarium is located at the south entrance of the Carhart Science Building on the WSC campus.

For more information, please call (402) 375-7343.

Oil from Two Herbs Used in Aromatherapy

Research has shown that specific odors, when connected to past events, can affect behavior. For example, a burning smell or the smell of hospital disinfectants can cause feelings of anxiety in some persons. That is the concept behind a relatively new approach to healthcare called aromatherapy. Most often specific aromas are used to produce a calming effect. Aromatherapists use essential oils of different herbs to produce the desired outcome.

Three recent studies indicate that the scent from the oils of lemon balm and lavender when inhaled or applied to the skin, significantly benefited elderly persons with existing behavior problems such as dementia and agitation. The oils were either steamed into the room air or were applied as a hand lotion. In each study no side effects were noted and all participants were able to complete the designated treatment. The significance of these studies is that an improvement in agitation eventually could lead to decreased need for prescription-calming drugs, in some cases.

Commencement planned at Northeast

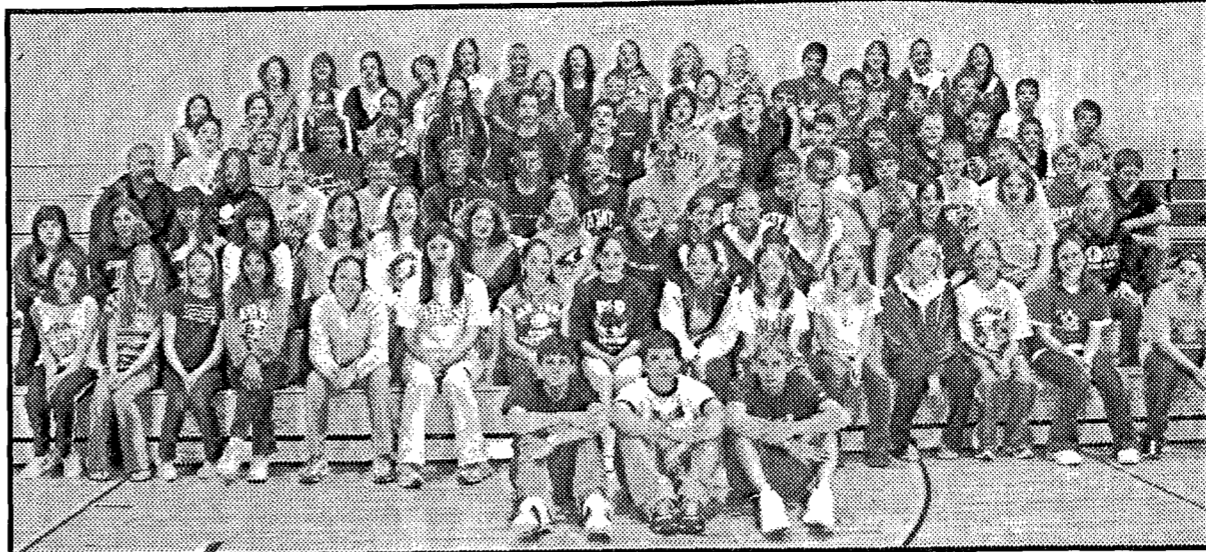

Battle Creek seedswoman Donna Herrick will be the commencement speaker at graduation ceremonies at Northeast Community College in Norfolk on Saturday, May 10, at 1:30 p.m., in the Cox Activities Center on the campus in Norfolk.

Some 681 students, the largest class in the history of Northeast Community College or any of its predecessor institutions, will receive degrees or diplomas at the ceremony. The program will include a Student Welcome by Student Senate secretary Marcy Reis and a Student Address by Beverly Green Henkel of Norfolk. NECC math instructor Don Moser will give the Faculty Address to the Class of 2003.

She earned a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Nebraska-Omaha in 1993. She has also taken agriculture classes at Northeast.

Her late husband, Roger, began Producers Hybrids, Inc., in 1985. Following his death in 1996, she became actively involved in the business and today the seedswoman is majority shareholder, president and general manager of Producers Hybrids, a regional retail seed company selling corn, soybeans, alfalfa, grain and forage sorghum. Under her direction, Producers Hybrids has grown to 65 employees year-round, up to 450 employees seasonally, and seed sales in six states.

She is also owner of Divot's Conference Center in Norfolk. She serves on the Foundation Board at Lutheran High Northeast, the Board of Directors of Behavioral Health Services, the Agricultural Advisory Committee at Northeast Community College and the ESU #8 Perkins Advisory Committee.

Feed kids nutrient-rich meals

Meals that meet the nutrient needs of school-aged kids are important to ensure proper growth and development.

When kids start school, they have new opportunities to make food choices both during and after class. They still need parental guidance for developing positive eating habits, but friends start having a greater influence on what they eat. The appropriate nutrient amounts for kids are determined by growth requirements and physical activity, but genetic background, gender and body size and shape are also factors.

Carbohydrates and fats provide energy for growing and physical activity. Through the school years kids hit periods of rapid growth. During these times, appetites expand. When growth slows, appetites diminish and kids will eat less food at meal times and require fewer snacks.

Protein builds, maintains and repairs body tissue and especially is important for growth. Most kids in the U.S. don't suffer from a lack of dietary protein, but it's important to encourage kids to eat two to three servings of meat, fish, poultry and other protein-rich foods each day. Milk and other dairy products also are good protein sources for kids.

A variety of vitamins and minerals support growth and development during childhood. Calcium, from milk and dairy products and some dark green, leafy vegetables, usually is sufficient in kids' diets. As kids approach their teen years, dietary calcium intakes don't always keep up with recommendations. Calcium is particularly important in building strong bones and teeth. Osteoporosis, a brittle bone disease that affects older adults, begins in childhood if diets don't provide calcium-rich foods.

Iron deficiency anemia can be a problem for some kids. Iron is an oxygen-carrying component of blood. Kids need iron because of rapidly expanding blood volume during growth.

For girls, the beginning of menstruation in late childhood adds an extra demand for iron due to the regular loss of iron in menstrual blood. Meats, fish, poultry and enriched breads and cereals are the best sources of dietary iron. Vitamins A and C come from many different fruits and vegetables. They are important for healthy skin, growth and fighting infections. The B vitamins such as thiamin, niacin and riboflavin help in growth-enhancing actions and come from foods including grain products, meat and meat substitutes and dairy products.

Parents need to provide a variety of foods and establish regular meal and snack times. In most cases, nutrient and energy needs will be adequately met. If parents are concerned about their kid's poor nutrient intakes, they need to consult with a physician or trained nutrition professional, such as a registered dietitian.

Worship with Mom' scheduled

"Worship with Mom" is this weekend's worship theme at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne. A Power Point presentation at the worship services at 6 p.m. Saturday evening and 8 and 10:30 a.m. Sunday morning will feature the children on the congregation's cradle roll (baptism through three year-olds) and their mothers. There are over 30 children on the cradle roll.

The sermon will focus on the parent's role of nurturing faith in their children. This role is very similar to Christ's ministry as the good shepherd. Grade school students in the third through sixth grades will provide special music at the 10:30 worship service. "We know that one of the greatest gifts children can give their mother is to attend worship services with her," said the Rev. Kevin Ruffcorn, Senior Pastor at Our Savior Lutheran Church. "We want to encourage families to give this gift and worship in celebration of the important role that mothers play in the development of faith in their children."

Not every mother will have her family with her this weekend and not all children will be able to be with their mother. Mothers without families are encouraged to temporarily adopt children and worship with them. In the same way, children without mothers are encouraged to adopt a "Mother for a Day."

"This is a wonderful time to celebrate the gifts of parents, children and family," observed Pastor Ruffcorn. Our Savior Lutheran Church is located at Fifth and Main Streets. For more information, contact the church office at 375-2899 or visit the congregation's website at www.oslwayne.org. Our Savior Lutheran Church is a congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Gum Disease
Gum disease is generally caused by plaque. Plaque is a thin, sticky, colorless film of bacteria that forms on your teeth daily. The bacteria in the plaque feed on the sugars in the foods you eat and produce acids and other byproducts that irritate your gums. Be sure to brush at least twice a day and floss to clean between teeth. See your dentist for a regular check up and professional cleaning. There are many toothpastes and mouthwashes that help fight plaque. Ask your pharmacist for help in choosing the right one for you.

Sixty-nine students were initiated into the campus chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta at their annual initiation banquet.

Students who have achieved a 3.5 or higher GPA are invited to join.

Parents were invited to the initiation banquet to share in their student's success. Dr. Sheila Stearns, WSC president, welcomed the students into membership. This year marks the 36th year of Alpha Lambda Delta at WSC.

Students compete in programming contest

A team of students from Wayne High School competed in the first annual NECC Computer Programming Contest on April 16.

Along with 10 other teams from Northeast Nebraska, the Wayne High team was presented with six problems. The challenge was to create a computer program to process the data according to the specifications resulting in a correct solution to the problem. The winner would be the team that solved the most problems, with the fewest amount of errors in the least amount of time.

Only two of the 11 teams were able to correctly solve all six of the problems, Wayne High School and Norfolk High School.

Based on time, Norfolk was declared the winner, with Wayne finishing second.

Trophies were awarded to the top two teams and prizes were given to all contestants.

Congratulations have been extended to the Wayne High Computer Programming Team, which consisted of seniors Nic Costa and Will Karr and junior Brady Garvin.

Fourth grade students in Mrs. Peg Lutt's class pose after completing their studies of Pizza and Agriculture.

Mrs. Sharon Olson's class of fourth grade students completed the Pizza and Agriculture program.

The students in Mrs. Lori Ruskamp's class at Wayne Elementary also completed the Pizza and Agriculture class recently.

Students participate in Pizza and Agriculture

Fifty-seven fourth grade students at Wayne Elementary School recently participated in Pizza and Agriculture.

On April 29-30, teachers Mrs. Peg Lutt, Mrs. Sharon Olson and Mrs. Lori Ruskamp invited Amy Topp, UNL Extension Educator from the Cooperative Extension Office in Wayne County to share with students the role that agriculture plays in producing the ingredients in pizza.

Students related information that they knew about agriculture, learned about various agriculture careers and also discussed the ingredients and nutritional values of those ingredients.

During the second visit, students were able to make their own mini pizza.

This project is sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Agriculture Taskforce in cooperation with the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension. These students are also working on their agriculture unit and learning a variety of things about agriculture.

On April 23 and 30, 32 students at Wakefield Elementary School also participated in Pizza and Agriculture.

Mrs. Jamie Manz and Mrs. Kathy Johnson are the fourth grade teachers at Wakefield Elementary.

Nurses are special people

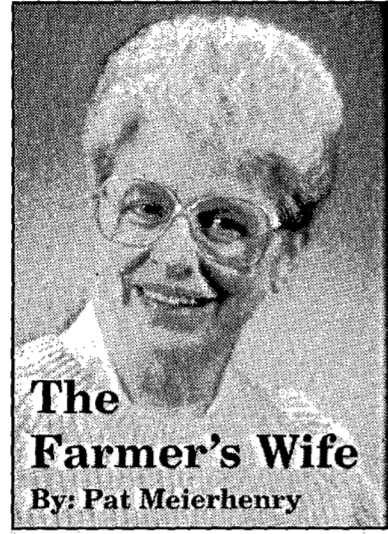

This week is Nurses Week; and May 12 is Florence Nightingale's birthday. Last month, on my calendar, it said April 23 was administrative professional's day. This was formerly secretary's day, but the name is now politically correct. There is no mention on my calendar of Nurses day.

That's okay, because I'll be celebrating anyway. This year, it will be with the school nurses. They will have to cover more territory, but I think the board recognizes that for many of the school children, these are the only health-care professionals they ever see.

I remember in school, a speaker told us, "when you are nurses, you always have a job. As long as you are warm and still breathing, they will hire you." I believe it! I get a lot of mail that is obviously going to every registered nurse in the state that says some agency is looking for nurses. The other day, I had a recorded telephone message saying I should call the 800 number for a "great opportunity, at a great salary, and a great sign-on bonus." Ah, if only I were younger, and physically fit, and able to move to another location!

In addition, the Nebraska Nurses Association has some great ads featuring men and women, all ages and ethnic backgrounds, smiling and saying, with enthusiasm: "I'm a nurse!" High school guidance counselors are telling graduates that the jobs are in health care. Every school of nursing, and radiology, and lab, has a waiting list. At Southeast

Community College School of Nursing, the problem is finding enough clinical experience for the students. There are five schools of nursing in Lincoln alone, all fighting for time with real patients.

Then, comes a letter from a pediatrician in Omaha; in the 25 years of practice, he has made it a point to ask the kindergarten kids what they want to be when they grow up. It's been 15 years since he's heard "nurse" or "teacher." The most common answer, and nothing else is close, is "cop!" "Doctor" is a clear second.

He says 30 years ago, his class in medical school was 5 percent women and now the classes are 50-50. His answer came a few days later; nurses don't make nearly the money that doctors do. I suppose that is a big part of it.

But I believe it takes a special type of person with a special type of heart to be a nurse. And, just because there are jobs to be had, and the salaries aren't bad either; doesn't really motivate one to become a nurse.

The Nebraska Nurse Association conducted a survey a few years ago with the renewal of nursing licenses. They asked, "If you had to do over, would you still become a nurse?" The overwhelming response was in the affirmative. The second question was, "Would you encourage your son or daughter to be a nurse?" Here, the answer was a resounding "no."

There are several reasons for the shortage. And as we age, it will continue to be a problem. I sometimes wonder who will care for all the octogenarians. Actually, I know a lot of 90 year olds anymore; I sat by two of them in church on Sunday.

I don't pretend to know the answer. I just know we have a major problem. And I don't think we are truly addressing it in the same way we are concerned about lack of health insurance and the high cost of medications. I do know we need to focus on the positive aspects of nursing, the variety of job opportunities, the genuine rewards found, and the encouragement of both young and middle aged to look into educational possibilities.

If you know a nurse, say "Thank You" on Wednesday. Who knows, we may even get on the calendar some day!

Grasshoppers - a problem or not?

By Kelly Feehan, Extension Educator

Will there be as many grasshoppers this year as last year? What can be done to reduce their numbers or the damage they cause?

Grasshopper populations fluctuate in cycles. High or very high populations may be present for two to four years followed by low to moderate populations for several years. Given this cycle, we could have another high population year.

Weather conditions during egg hatch will be the main factor affecting grasshopper numbers. Depending on the type of grasshopper, egg hatch begins about May and continues into summer.

If weather conditions are cool and wet during egg hatch, grasshopper populations will not be as high as last season. If conditions are warm and dry, we could have another serious infestation.

While grasshoppers cause the most damage to gardens and small trees and shrubs in mid-to-late-summer, control methods need to be implemented long before grasshoppers begin damaging yard and garden plants.

Most grasshoppers overwinter in the egg stage in weedy and grassy areas. These areas, not yards and gardens, need to be monitored for young grasshoppers during the egg hatching period.

If insecticides, or the biological Nosema locustae, are used for grasshopper control, these need to be applied to young grasshoppers in hatching areas to be effective. Sevin and diazinon are labeled for use on most ornamentals and vegetables. Orthene can only be used on ornamental plants.

Spores of the disease, Nosema locustae, are available as a bran bait formulation. This disease can be an effective control, but it acts slowly. It will have little or no impact on older nymphs or adult grasshoppers and must be applied against small grasshoppers in hatching areas.

Cultural practices that can reduce grasshopper damage range from leaving tall grass and weeds around gardens to planting a trap crop and using row covers.

Tall grass and weeds provide food and shelter for grasshoppers.

Gets scholarship

Jessica Warner was selected to receive the Animal Science Freshman Scholarship for 2003-04 academic school year at the Animal Science Awards Banquet. She is a freshman at the University of Nebraska majoring in Animal Science. Her parents are Jack and Rhonda Warner of Allen.

Leaving border areas around gardens unmowed will delay grasshopper movement into yards and gardens. If timely rains keep the vegetation in the border areas green, grasshoppers will not move into the garden as soon.

Also, a trap crop of attractive plants such as zinnias or some other lush flower or vegetation can be planted around the garden's edge. Trap crops will attract and hold grasshoppers, delaying their movement into gardens and trap crops can be sprayed to reduce populations.

Row covers draped over plants will protect some vegetables from grasshoppers; however, grasshoppers can chew through these as well as some window screens. Planting vegetables that are less attractive to grasshoppers, like tomato and squash, is another option to consider for reducing grasshopper damage in gardens.

Trees can be damaged

Use caution when using chemicals

By Del Hemsath Extension educator

Time is fast approaching when there will be many chemicals applied to the bluegrass for weed control.

One of the more popular weed control chemicals used in a ready-to-use form with fertilizers is dicamba. Recent research has confirmed that when the dicamba herbicide leaches into the soil and is taken up by the tree or shrub through the roots, it will harm the tree or shrub. Many years of such exposure will eventually kill the larger plant. Newly planted trees are harmed faster and show damage quicker than do the older trees.

Under normal conditions, the herbicide will stay close to the surface of the grass and decompose before leaching down to tree roots. In years of heavy rainfall or when you over-water, the herbicide will leach down to the tree roots and has the potential to kill the tree.

This is an innocent situation that occurs every year because homeowners want to control the dandelions and other broadleaf weeds in their grass. Unfortunately, we may also be killing our trees.

Switch to some other chemical to control the broadleaf weeds in your lawn. Use of post-emergent chemi-als in the fall would be a good alternative.

Another situation that can cause damage occurs when homeowners use a soil sterilant in the alleys to control weed growth and this is usually next to the back yard where trees are located. The tree can be far away from the alley and still be damaged by such herbicides. Tree roots grow out and away from the tree by as much as 100 feet.

Some trees are very sensitive to some of the soil sterilants and can be damaged easily. Be careful when using any type of herbicide around trees as the tree is most likely sensitive to the herbicide just like the weed you are attempting to control.
