Leafy Spurge Band reunites for performance

The Leafy Spurge Band returns to the stage for a rare performance on Saturday, April 3, at Riley's Ballroom in Wayne. They will be joined again by old friends and fellow musicians, Cactus Flats. Both bands have members with long history in the area.

Dick and Dave Broders formed the Leafy Spurge Band in 1975-76. The Spurge (as they are known by fans) stopped playing gigs regularly a few years ago. Warren Frerichs of Cactus Flats was the founding member of the Shiloh Band, which was popular for many years.

Looking back, the Broders brothers got their start in the music bizz in Belden when an old honky tonk musician by the name of "Wild Bill" Ueding came to the small town and became owner of the bar. "Wild Bill taught us to play guitar and helped us get started.", Dave said. "Bill knew how to make a young man want to be on stage; want to be a country picker. He taught us to play by ear (most of the band members have had no formal music training.)"

At first the brothers, who were in their late teens; had local kids from Belden playing in the band and played mostly basements and backyards. "The unusual name of the band came about when county workers trying to control the noxious weed "leafy

Smoke detectors need to be examined each spring

Editor's note: the following information was provided by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

Statistics show that every two hours someone in the United States dies in a fire.

Most of these deaths occur in homes, usually at night after people have gone to bed. The majority of these deaths are caused from smoke inhalation. Smoke detectors can give you the time to get out of a burning house.

Place at least one working detector on every level of your home and in every sleeping area.

Detectors can only save lives if working properly. Test the batteries monthly and replace the batteries every six months when you change your clocks.

Regularly vacuum smoke detectors to keep dust and cobwebs out of them.

Replace the entire detector when it is 10 years old.

Another bill dealing with public education was discussed this week, but not advanced anywhere. LB 1048 would implement a moneysaving program requiring Class I schools to affiliate with other larger districts.

The impetus for this bill is the fact that 50 percent of Nebraska's school districts are Class I districts, and they serve only 3% of the school children in the state. The bill would assimilate all Class I school districts into K-12 districts beginning with the 2005-06 school

The bill would not require any attendance centers to close that had at least 15 resident students until 2009, and not without voter approval at an election that would include the patrons of the former Class I district.

A pending amendment would protect Class I attendance centers from closing if at least 2.5 students per grade were in attendance and there is at least 10 miles to the next closes elementary school, or if it is located in an incorporated city or village. The bill is still up for discussion on the first round of

Dean Jacobs continues tour of Guatemala City

As you get closer to Guatemala City the quality of the roads' improve. This is both good and I have been on many bus rides in my travels, but few have scared me as much as the five-hour ride from Coban to Guatemala City. My other interesting rides occurred in places like India, Nepal and Indonesia, but in those places the traffic moved much slower. They had a rhythm to the chaos of the road. But this ride was different; it was like a big race with everyone on the road, and the biggest truck wins the right of way. We would pass people going uphill close to the top, around curves, and with oncoming traffic if the driver felt three vehicles could squeeze together.

I finally came to a point where I couldn't watch anymore, said a prayer, and buried myself in my guidebook. Afterwards, I checked my hair for signs of graying. A glance through the local paper confirmed my fear; every other page had a story and a photo of some type of accident.

Smog-bound and crowded, Guatemala City is the heart of the country with its commercial and administration centers. We spent just enough time to get from one bus station to the next, a 15minute walk, with little desire to explore the city of two million inhabitants.

An hour later, a crowded bus brought us to Antigua, one of Guatemala's most popular destinations. Packed with colonial architecture and fine churches, Antigua makes a very interesting place to hang out for a while. Additionally, it is home to many language schools and accordingly is crowded with foreigners learning Spanish. So along with the other hundreds, maybe thousands of visitors, we signed up for a week long, and in my case, much needed Spanish course. A fivelates to a huge festival during Easter week, peaking on Easter Day or what they call "Semana Santa." With the intoxicating smell of the incense, I followed the hour a day course for five days, including a home stay with a local family costs $150, a real bargain when compared to what it would cost back home. I'm convinced after a week of Spanish that I'm missing the necessary genes to learn another language. But all the same, I remain committed to learning Spanish and place it as a priority with my desire to chat with the everyday people. Progress is being made, albeit painfully slowly. Easter is approaching and Guatemala is a fascinating place to observe the religious rituals associated with this event. Each Sunday in Antigua during Lent, purple-robed men accompanied by music and clouds of incense carry processions of floats. They march through the people-lined streets of Antigua for hours. This accumufloat topped by the colonial sculpture of the cross-carrying Christ. As they heaved and swayed the float from side to side through the street, it was soothing to blend into everyday life and participate in a ritual that has been practiced for hundreds of years. Well, as much as I could blend in, given that generally those around me were 6-12 inches shorter than me. After 45 minutes, I paid my respect, bowed my head and ended my participation in the procession. The procession would go on for another five hours, a grand and moving expression of faith.

One afternoon, I had the opportunity to visit with the director of the Spanish school. Her name was Cathy, and she has been in charge of the language school for the past 22 years. It all began one day as she was working for the Peace Core as an office secretary. One morning the instructor teaching Spanish to the Peace Core volunteers quit, leaving only Cathy as a possible replacement. After a little fine-tuning to acquire some teaching skills in Spain, she returned to Guatemala and has been involved in the language field ever since.

We talked about the friendliness of the Guatemalan people despite the heaviness of its past. Recently, a new president has been elected in Guatemala, and hope abounds as they begin to pursue the outgoing officials on charges of corruption. It appears to be a pivotal point in history for Guatemala. If they do address the corruption and pursue justice to have individuals become accountable, it could be the start of a strong foundation and brighter future. Or possibly, the cycle of cynicism will continue, leaving people feeling powerless, sapping the desires of potential.

For me it serves as a reminder of the importance that those responsible for the Enrons and Worldcoms of the U.S. are brought to justice or we risk the same consequences.

Cathy's message was this: "Here in Guatemala, we have so many different levels of society and an amazing mix of cultures. The Mayans with their colors and rituals combined with the Latinos and their passions offer many interesting experiences. The new government understands the need for safety. Please come visit. When you do, you help all levels of society by just being here." I responded by saying it would be good for all levels of society in the U.S. if they came to learn about and visit

Another well-publicized issue came up for debate again this week, and was advanced to the second round of debate. LB 1083 was introduced to provide community-based services for the mentally ill, and provided for closure of the Hastings and Norfolk Regional Centers by the end of next year.

A compromise has been reached between the proponent and opponent senators, and has been adopted by the legislature as an amendment to LB 1083. The amendment provides that a regional center will not close unless two things happen.

First, the center's occupancy must reach 20 percent or less. Then, the regional center is to notify the Legislature. At that point, it would require a majority of the Executive Board, of which I am chairman, to provide for the transfer of those patients and direct the cessation of the regional center's operation.

I have always supported a change in the behavioral health system. What I don't support is the closure of centers that house mentally ill patients without a satisfactory alternative to take care of them. I have always strongly supported taking care of those who are most vulnerable, and I believe this amendment provides a sufficient compromise.

On the last day of debate this week, we passed 6 bills for the Governor's signature. One was LB 172, the bill to eliminate the requirement of schools to provide information on how to obtain an abortion without a parent's con-

I have been in full support of the bill from the beginning. I believe if this information is to be provided and discussed, it should be done so in the students' homes, with parents or guardians.

Another notable bill passed this week was LB 906. This bill deals with the regulation and licensure of body artists, including extensive training requirements; currently, none of this regulation is administered. I think the safety important issue, and this is an area where regulation is needed.

On Thursday of this week, a majority of the Executive Board, of which I am chairman, voted to put three major proposals, authorized by the Speaker, on the agenda. Major proposals allow the speaker to determine the scheduling of the proposal and the order of amendments and motions to be considered.

The first is LB 962, the bill that incorporates the recommendations from the Water Policy Task Force. This bill is extremely important to prevent over-usage of our water resources, especially in the western part of the state.

The second proposal authorized for the agenda is LB 1065. It would provide a funding mechanism for ethanol plants that qualify for credit incentives pursuant to legislation passed three years ago. It proposes tax increases on corn and sorghum check-offs, and $.003 on gasoline.

The third bill designated as a major proposal was LR 11CA. -This is a constitutional amendment to authorize gambling in Nebraska. It is currently on the second stage of debate as a carryover bill from last year. As amended, the bill will allow up to two casino locations as authorized by the Legislature. Plus, if it passes, the amendment specifies that if a location is authorized by the Legislature, voters in that county would have to approve the casino before it could be put there. In addition, the amendment provides for legislative regulation of any gambling amendment, whether of legislative origination or an initia-

As I have stated numerous times before, I am opposed to widespread gambling across Nebraska. However, because of the appearance of several petitions that will likely appear on the ballot in November, I find the bill, as will be amended, more palatable, because it allows for the Legislature to retain control over where the revenues are directed.

Legislature dealing with shortage

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The Legislature is getting more sophisticated.

Okay. Maybe "sophisticated" is the wrong word.

The fact is, it's getting to be more like Congress.

I know what you're thinking. You're thinking: "That's an ugly thing to say in a family-oriented newspaper, isn't it?"

Nebraska's homegrown handwringers have recently acted like they would pass kidney stones before they would pass a tax bill to handle the state's ongoing money

Such an attitude, or fear, is altogether Congress-like. As in: "When the going gets tough, go into recess!

Constituents want to know what an elected representative has done for them. They don't like it when they perceive their elected agent has done something to them. Raising taxes, especially during lousy economic times, will always fall into the "done something to them" category.

Last week the Legislature simply would not come together on any sort of plan to shore up the financially battered ship of state.

The unrelenting truth: The state has financial obligations. The state operations budget has been cut down to the virtual bone. The choices are few:

• Make further reductions in higher education - NU, the state colleges and the community colleges. Cut aid to local school districts even more, with the knowledge that higher local property taxes will result.

 Reduce services to the needy. • Raise taxes.

It's like trying to pick a winner in an ugly baby contest. It's like telling a patient: "This is really gonna' hurt!"

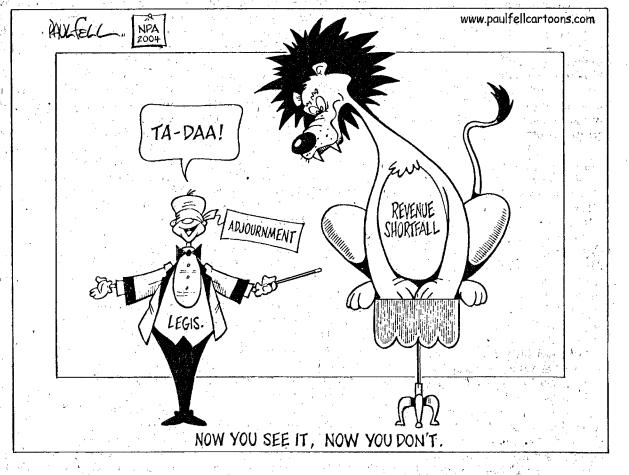

Congress has the ultimate advantage in horrific fiscal situations. It changes the rules. Or ignores them. It piles up debt. It uses accounting tricks that would get the owner of a lemonade stand thrown in jail.

The Nebraska Legislature can delay its unpleasant fiscal duty pretend that it is Congress - for only a short while.

Gov. Mike Johanns said last week that he thought lawmakers would exercise the foxhole option for now. Let the session end and go home, knowing that the responsibility for tending to the state's business, no matter how unpleasant, has been neglected.

A higher income tax rate? The sales tax? Bonded indebtedness? Shifting more costs to local government, and calling it "a return to local control"? Reducing educational opportunities down the road, in a big way?

It's a tough thing. It calls for a leadership thing.

a chance to win back the full (up to 1 $50) amount of your purchase. This week we feature restaurants that are sponsors of the program.

Eating out used to be a luxury. Today, with the more affordable cost of dining out and the convenience of getting excellent food and snacks with little wait, eating out has become a frequent and sensible ' alternative to meals at home. Eating out has for some become a necessity for business people and shoppers plus fitting in a meal between daytime work and pre- or after-work appointments and activities.

So when you consider how much you spend for eating out on a regular basis, and when you consider that you have the chance to get some of this back, why not make it a point to make your purchases at the participating Wayne (instead of Norfolk and Sioux City) merchants in the BUCKS BACK! program?

Dairy Queen, Godfather's, Magic Wok, McDonalds, Pizza Hut, Quality Foods, Runza, Subway, and Santa Fe Grill are all participating merchants in the chamber's BUCKS BACK! program where the more you purchase the better your chances are of getting back the full amount of your purchase (up to $50) at the first special drawing on June 14. Later in September there will another drawing. The amounts received will be in the form of Chamber Bucks ("the check that doesn't bounce") that can be used at any chamber retailer in the Wayne area.

Customers have become accustomed to having many of their eating needs met at these fine merchants, so ask any clerk the next time you eat out how you can enter the contest.

Wayne State College campus where Senators Engel and Cunningham were present to answer the questions from over 100 regional high school government class students

This real life exercise in democracy was an opportunity to bring government one-step closer to the people. We trust the audience appreciated this chance to query their legislators, and we certainly thank Senators Engel and Cunningham for taking their "day off" to visit with our students, faculty, and administrators.

Let me take the time to welcome the newest members of the chamber, Wireless Solutions and Northeast Nebraska Humane Society. Wireless Solutions is located at 117 Main Street and is available to initiate and upgrade Cellular One service. They can handle customer renewals as well as activations and is an authorized Western Union agent. Their office hours currently are noon to 6 pm. Northeast Nebraska Humane Society's shelter is located at 85482 Highway 15. Nancy Wherley is the president and Laurie Hartlett is the treasurer.

Until next time, remember, if there is anything that the chamber can do for you, please call us.

No action was taken on the ordinance but plans are being developed and it will be brought to the council at a future meeting.

In other action, the council approved the applications of Justin Hegg. Scott Brogren, Andrew Sanburg and Anthony Mestl to the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. Fire Chief Robert Woehler told the council that the new members bring to 40 the number of volunteers on the department. This is six less than that allowed by the council and Woehler noted that the department is continuing to recruit new members.

The council approved a proposal to purchase a new Handi-Van for the Wayne Senior Center.

Through the Nebraska

Department of Roads (NDOR), bids were accepted from across the state to replace 30 such vehicles in the state. The NDOR will pay for at least 80 percent of the purchase cost, leaving the city's share of the purchase at $6,000. The city can either keep the current van or sell

During the past several years, money totaling $12,000 has been set aside for this purchase.

The council also gave its approval to proceed with an application for a grant to complete a study of street conditions within the city.

City Administrator Johnson told the council that the city has talked about the possibility of doing such a study for several years but the process is somewhat costly without grant funding. The grant will come from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and will not require any match by the city.

Authorization was also given to proceed with an application for Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District Funds to purchase and plant trees and improve storm water drainage is several locations

The third of four Lewis and tion. In 2002, Jones was awarded Clark scholar-presentations, "Otoe and Missouria Meet Big Knives," will be held in Gardner Hall Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus on Thursday, April 1, at 7 p.m.

Presenter Matthew "Sitting Bear" Jones, a member of the Otoe-Missouria nation, will examine the first and second meetings that Lewis and Clark held with the Otoe-Missouria nation in 1804, from the Otoe-Missouria point of view. They were the first Native peoples to be contacted by Lewis and Clark west of the Mississippi River.

Jones will also look at the historical repercussions that the Otoe-Missouria experienced after this first contact which took place in July 1804 at Council Bluff, located at Fort Atkinson State Historical Park in Fort Calhoun, and what the tribe thinks about this historical meeting today.

Jones has developed many programs as a lecturer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and has been a television script consultant. He also served as a consultant for the movie, Dances with Wolves. His teaching concentration is in multicultural educaspurge" teased us that we would not go away; just like the weed," Dave laughed. "We thought the name was unusual and people would remember it."

In the early years, the band played mostly in bars and at wedding dances, They hauled their equipment on a car top carrier and then a horse trailer. Dave said they were always dreaming of riding into town in a big Silver Eagle bus one day!

Dick, the oldest of the brothers, played bass guitar while Dave was rhythm man and singer. Around 1980 Steve Lange of Emerson came on board as their drummer. Later, Terry Butterfield of Norfolk joined them as lead guitarist.

Dave noted that the "outlaw music movement" brought on by Willie, Waylon and the boys really fit well with the band's sound and now young people were starting to listen to country music and the band's popularity began to grow.

Next, David Sherry of Sioux City joined the band, playing harmonica (something not often heard in this part of the country). This added a new dimension to the band's sound. Shortly after, Jason Clark of Mason City, IA came on as fiddler. Dave remembered things were really rollin' for the band. The youngest of the Broders brothers, Jim, played guitar and sang with the band off and on for a number of years but passed away in the summer of 2003 at the age of

Lastly, the addition of veteran piano man, Merle Pithand, of Sioux City and ace sound engineer, Rick Ohm, also of Sioux City, several roadies and lighting personnel, the band was moving to the next level of show business.

Leaving the bars and wedding dances behind, the band progressed to bigger venues and traveling further away to ballrooms, convention centers, fairs, the Sioux City Rivercade celebration and other events in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Kansas and Minnesota.

The band was never all that concerned with making money (though the price was going up) as they were with making great music so the group kept putting their earnings into better sound equipment, lighting, and the Silver Eagle bus they dreamed about so long ago.

The band began to open shows for national touring acts around the area, Omaha, Sioux Falls, Okoboji and so on.

Dave remembered that he would call the auditorium or fair board that was hosting the concerts to try to find out the promoters name and phone number. This was information not always easy to come by so he had to be creative sometimes.

"We would call and offer to send a tape of our band and try to get the opening act spot on the ticket," Dave said. "I was always proud when we nailed the spot. It helped boost the career a notch and gave us some exposure to the big leagues of this business. You find out that most musicians started out the same way we did." As for favorite songs, Dave notes a couple come to mind "We Had It All" was recorded by the band and released by Star Gem Records of Nashville, TN to over 400 radio stations nationwide. It climbed to #21 on the independent charts and received a lot of air play so it became somewhat of a trademark song along with tunes like "Fire on the Mountain," another signature

Around six years ago they decided to take a break to spend more time with their families. The men were busy with full time jobs as well as the band but pressure from their many fans brought the Spurge along with Cactus Flats together about a year ago at Riley's for a sold out, attendance setting show. "We saw people we had not seen in 15-20 years," Dave said. "We were all surprised at the turnout. It really felt good."

Dave remembered that performing in the band was fun but sometimes it wasn't easy. He said they once had seven outdoor gigs in a row, setting up and tearing down always took two or three hours, and they were rained out at all of them!

"It's good to get the band together because we missed the fans and the camaraderie," Dave said. "We may not be performing regularly but we are all lifetime members of the Leafy Spurge Band."

For more than a quarter of a century the band has entertained audiences though out the Midwest. Dave said that with their roots (no pun intended) planted firmly in traditional country music, they grew through the "country rock" movement of the late 1970's and early 1980's and developed a high energy mix that ranged from Hank Williams, Sr. to the Rolling Stones.

"We never sold out to the "pop" goes the country" sounds of the late '80's," Dave said, " for those of you, who remember the Urban Cowboy thing."

Dave added that by the time the "new traditionalist" movement as it was called by Nashville began in the 1990's, the Spurge had outlasted three major changes in the country music industry and was still wooing crowds with it's undeniably unique style, The band has worked on venues with an impressive list of entertainers that included Brooks and Dunn, Toby Keith, Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Pam Tillis, Merle Haggard, Charlie Daniels and many more.

The band will perform for one night only, April 3, at Riley's Ballroom in Wayne.

Taking it to the top

This crane was used to lift elevator equipment to the roof of Bowen Hall which is undergoing an eight-month improvement project to replace the elevators, install a fire safety sprinkler system throughout the building, and to upgrade the fire alarm system.

The elevator equipment is located on the roof and is the only way to remove the existing equipment and install new equipment is to lift it to the roof.

The top four floors of the hall are currently closed while the sprinkler and fire alarm systems are installed on these floors and while one elevator is replaced. The lower four floors are occupied. The hall will close in the summer while work on the lower four floors and replacement of the second elevator is completed.

The project is scheduled for completion in early August.

Some plant!!!

Gertrude Vahlkamp of Winside has been growing Voodoo plants for a number of years at her home. However, last fall when she dug up the bulbs, she found a huge bulb and put it in a bucket in her basement. The plants usually grow to a height of 18-24 inches but this one grew to nearly five feet. The flowers on the plant, which originated in India, last about one month and have a bad odor.

Rats are teaching science at Wayne Middle School

They're not exactly a welcome sight in your home but kids at Wayne Middle School are excited about the rats that are helping teach science in their classroom. The two albino lab rats will help students gain hands-on experience with the scientific method while they explore nutrition.

Ellen Imdieke class will discover just how much milk does a body good by studying two bodies those of two lab rats. Students weigh, measure and observe two rats as they grow up on exactly the same number of calories, with the exception: Milk.

Both rats eat meat, fruit, vegetables and grains. But the control rat drinks milk and the test rat drinks sugar water. The hypothesis: Rats drinking milk will be healthier, stronger and grow bigger. Students weigh their rats and measure their tails once per week. Then they figure out the growth and plot their findings and observations on a graph. The results: Milk does make a difference. The milk-drinking control rat benefits from the bone-building calcium and eight other essential vitamins and minerals milk and dairy foods provide. Never fear, at the end of the project, milk is added to the test rat's diet and he soon catches up to the control rat's size. The students take turns caring for the animals, cleaning their cages, feeding them and weighing and measuring them. The project not only teaches students about nutrition and the scientific method but it also teaches them proper care for ani-

Together, we can prepare for emergencies In today's climate, it's more anywhere. but there are five important than ever that all of us be prepared for possible emergencies. Natural or other disasters can strike suddenly, at any time and

Flash floods can happen within minutes

Several factors contribute to flash flooding. The two key elements are rainfall intensity and duration. Flash floods occur within a few minutes or hours of excessive rainfall. Flash floods can tear out trees as well as destroy buildings and bridges. Furthermore, flash flood-producing rains can also trigger catastrophic mud slides. You will not always have a warning that these deadly, sudden floods are coming. Flash flooding occurs within six hours of the rain event; flooding is a longer term event and may last a week or more.

Most flash flooding is caused by slow-moving thunderstorms or thunderstorms repeatedly moving over the same area. (On June 9, 1972, the Black Hills in Rapid City, SD received 15 inches of rain in five hours, causing 238 fatalities and $164 million in damages!) Did you know that six inches of fastmoving flood water can knock you off your feet, and a depth of two feet will float your car? NEVER try to walk, swim, or drive though swift moving water. Try and plan ahead to get to higher ground or a safer place to stay.

Clues to listen for are distant thunder, runoff from a faraway thunderstorm could be headed your way. You should look for water that is rising rapidly and remember that nearly HALF of all flood and occur at night.

After a flood, any fresh food that has come in contact with flood water MUST be thrown out. You should also boil drinking water. before using it and wells should be pumped out and the water tested for purity before drinking. Check electrical equipment and make sure it is dry before using.

Facts are given on tornadoes

Although tornadoes occur in many parts of the world, these destructive forces of nature are found most frequently in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains during the spring and summer months. In an average year, 800 tornadoes are reported nationwide, resulting in 80 deaths and over 1,500 injuries. A tornado is defined as a violently rotating column of air extending from a thunderstorm to the ground. The most violent tornadoes are capable of tremendous destruction with wind speeds of 250 mph or more. Damage paths can be in excess of one mile wide and 50 miles long.

In Nebraska, most tornadoes occur in May-July. Tornadoes are mostly likely to occur between 3 and 9 p.m., but have been known to occur at all hours of the day or night. The average tornado moves from southwest to northeast, and the average forward speed is 30

Remember, food label dates determine peak quality

April 1 but it's April 3. Is it safe to "Use by" or "sell by" dates are. really only indicators of safety, not a date for when a product goes bad. In general, dating is to determine how long a product is going to remain at peak quality in terms of its taste and nutrient retention.

Consumers should be aware of these dates on perishable and other items. A food shouldn't be bought after its date has passed because that's a guarantee of bringing home a food that is no longer at peak quality. Also the date shouldn't be used as an indicator of freshness in home refrigerators.

The "use- by" date guarantees quality or freshness only at the supermarket. The date is used to determine a safe length of storage time in a store refrigerator case, which is set at a lower temperature, around 30 degrees, than a home refrigerator which is set around 40 degrees. The date loses meaning at home when stored in the warmer refrigerator. However, this doesn't mean one should ignore dates either.

For example, a package of ham-

Jane Armstrong Cedar County the meat will be at peak freshness after four days at home. It needs within one to two days of purchase to ensure the best taste. For most other perishable foods, such as milk and juice, quality begins to deteriorate about a week after purchase. Eggs are an exception to the three to five weeks after purchase.

Deteriorating freshness is not about bacteria that cause illness but about bacteria that can produce an "off" smell or flavor. An effective method for determining if food is fresh enough to eat is to simply sniff the food to determine if it has a strange odor. The one exception is the "use by" date for processed meat like deli meat. Luncheon meats run a small chance of being tainted with listeria bacteria, which can cause illness. These products generally don't get heated. so the bacteria remain alive. If the meat is stored for a long period in a home refrigerator with a temperature that is right at 40 degrees, the listeria can multiply to dangerous

The only other items that need to have "use by" dates are baby food and formula, but even these dates are essentially for meeting nutritional and quality standards rather than for safety.

Northeast instructor honored by Physical Therapy Association

Association recently honored Northeast Community College instructor Tere Karella with its Clinical Excellence Award.

The award was presented at the Nebraska PTA Spring State Meeting in Grand Island. The award was based on multiple criteria, including Karella's contributions to patients and students.

Karella is the academic coordinator of clinical education and instructor in Northeast's physical therapist assistant program. She has worked at Northeast since 1994 and assisted the PTA program with its initial accreditation.

Karella is a graduate of the physical therapist assistant program at Colby Community College in Colby, Kan. She received a bachelor of science degree in business management from Bellevue University in 2002. She worked at the former Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital, now Faith Regional Health Services, for four years and at the Providence Medical Center in Wayne. She has worked in acute care, outpatient care, nursing homes and home health care.

She and her husband, Jeff, live in Hoskins. They have two daughters, Tegan and Rylee.

Karella is currently working with her 10th class of physical therapist assistant students at

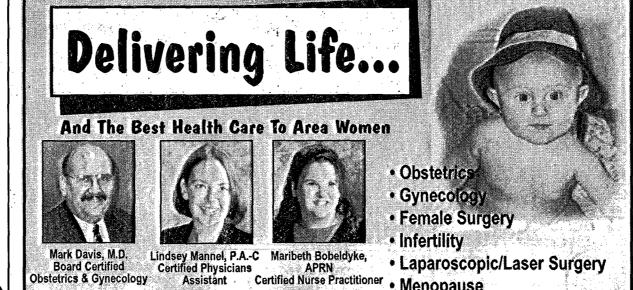

The Nebraska Physical Therapy Northeast. According to the American Physical Therapy Association, a physical therapist assistant (PTA) is a paraprofessional health worker who works under the direction and supervision of a licensed physical therapist. Successful completion of the national PTA examination is required by law before beginning employment as a physical therapist assistant.

Tere Karella

Northeast's course of study includes two years of general education and physical therapy courses as well as the study of physical therapy procedures and clinical experiences. Graduates earn an associate of applied science degree. For more information about the program, call Karella at (402)844-

Checking sprayer pressure before calibrating saves time and money

Delroy Hemsath Extension Educator

Many farmers begin spring preparations by calibrating their sprayers, but in doing so they may skip the crucial step of assuring that the sprayer is providing even pressure to each nozzle throughout the spray boom.

Though farmers could detect pressure problems by calibrating the sprayer, it may take longer and lead to faulty conclusions. Often, by first checking the pressure, flaws in design, partially plugged lines or plugged nozzle screens can be found easily, things that might be more difficult to detect through calibration procedures.

If sprayers function properly, farmers can save potentially hundreds of dollars by improving performance and decreasing the amount of chemicals wasted.

To check the pressure, it is easier if the sprayer has quick-attach nozzle bodies. With quick-attach nozzle bodies, the nozzle cap and tip can be snapped onto the sprayer instead of having to be screwed on. Quick-attach nozzle bodies also are pre-aligned so nozzles spray in the right direction. The spray pattern from the nozzle tips is offset so the patterns do not hit each other.

Pressure can most accurately be measured using two glycerinefilled pressure gauges with quickattach fittings. The sprayer should be rinsed and contain only water during testing. After attaching each gauge to the same nozzle fit-pressure gauge each time. If the gauges do not read the same pressure throughout the spray boom, check into the problem and correct it before calibrating the sprayer.
