Tourism brochures distributed

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce participated at the statewide sharing of Wayne area tourism brochures at the Annual Brochure Swap on May 20 in Hastings. Nancy Heithold and Janet Heithold, representing the Chamber and Wayne, made the trip to Hastings armed with the 2004 Wayne Chicken Show brochures and the Historic Buildings Driving Tour Guides. The brochures are being distributed statewide prior to the 24th annual Chicken Show and Henoween activities, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, July 9-10. The two women attended the annual Unity Dinner on May 19 in Minden to get an update on statewide tourism activities. Included in the activities was a chance to personally visit with representatives of other chambers and convention and visitors bureaus and the staffs for all the I-80 rest stops. Tourism is the third largest industry in Nebraska. The state department of tourism is a high profile arm of the state that organizes promotional events throughout the North Central Region of the U.S. consistently selling the benefits of traveling to and enjoying Nebraska. Being included by the state in this effort the Wayne Area Chamber of

Remembering

Several events were held throughout the community to honor those who have served our country throughout its history. Above, Eddie Bales served as master of ceremonies at Veterans Memorial Park on Monday. Steve Gross presented this year's message. Above right, several Girl Scouts were on hand to distribute flowers to the veterans' graves. At right, plaques and trees were dedicated last week at the Wayne County Courthouse in honor of the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II and the 50th anniversary of the end of the Korean Conflict. A large number of veterans were on hand for the event.

A day in the city ... Baghdad

(Editor's note: the following story was written by LTC Rick Simmons, Division Chemical Officer, 1st Cavalry Division, son of Don and Judy Simmons of Wayne. It describes a typical day in Iraq)

The day begins like all other days, as a division staff officer of the 1st Cavalry Division. I am up by 5 a.m. and either go running around our 3-4 mile track (loop road around the inside of the camp), or go to the makeshift fitness center where there are all the weights you could lift in a tent.

I then would, of course, shower, change, dress, and load my "battle rattle" (helmet, flack vest, etc.) into my vehicle and drive to the dining facility for breakfast.

My breakfast is always the same - toast with butter and strawberry jelly, oatmeal, coffee and milk. Sundays is the day that I change my breakfast. It is a way to break the monotony of re-living Groundhog Day, day after day. On Sundays, I will eat an omelet or eggs to order, sausage or bacon, and pancakes.

After breakfast, it is off to the tactical operations center to participate in the morning briefings and battle updates. By the time these are complete, it is literally almost lunchtime. This day was different, though. At 11 a.m., I drove with the Division's Commanding General and his entourage, heading for the helicopter landing area. There waiting for us were two Blackhawk helicopters, configured to carry soldiers (with seats).

Our party boarded, strapped in, and within a few minutes was airborne. Flying over the city of Baghdad gives one a false impression of peace and tranquility. You only hear the constant "whop, whop" of the rotors and the whine of the engines. Looking out the window down onto the city you see cars driving to wherever they are going, some people walking along avenues and in market places, making you wonder if there really is a war going on down there. One could easily forget the true danger that lies below.

The helicopters landed in the forward operating base (FOB) Ferrin-Huggins (the name of one of the many soldiers who have died in this conflict) where we were met by the 5th Brigade Combat Team (BCT) Commander. He escorted us to his headquarters in order to provide the

Lutherans to attend 2004 Assembly

Nearly 1,000 Nebraska Lutherans - voters and visitors - will gather to conduct the business of their synod in Kearney at the Tri-City Arena on Friday-Saturday, June 4-5.

Alan Bruffat, Bryon Heier, Jewell Schock, Lila Splittgerber, Dorothy Wert and Pastor Bill Koerber will represent Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne as voting delegates, discussing and voting on issues before the church.

Dual key-note presenters will be the Rev. Claire Burkat, Mission Director for the New Jersey and Southeastern Pennsylvania Synods of the ELCA and the Rev. Ernie Hinojosa, founding pastor of Camino Real Christian Fellowship in San Antonio, Texas, each with considerable skills in outreach and evangelism. They will be sharing insights and visions for congregational outreach ministries.

A Friday night banquet will honor ministry anniversaries and retirements. Two offerings will be taken to support the Lakota Lutheran Chapel and Center in Scottsbluff and to undergird the Nebraska Rural Response Hotline, a free crisis phone line, which answers thousands of calls from farm and rural people in need each year.

On Friday and Saturday, along with the usual Assembly business, musician Ken Medema will enhance worship.

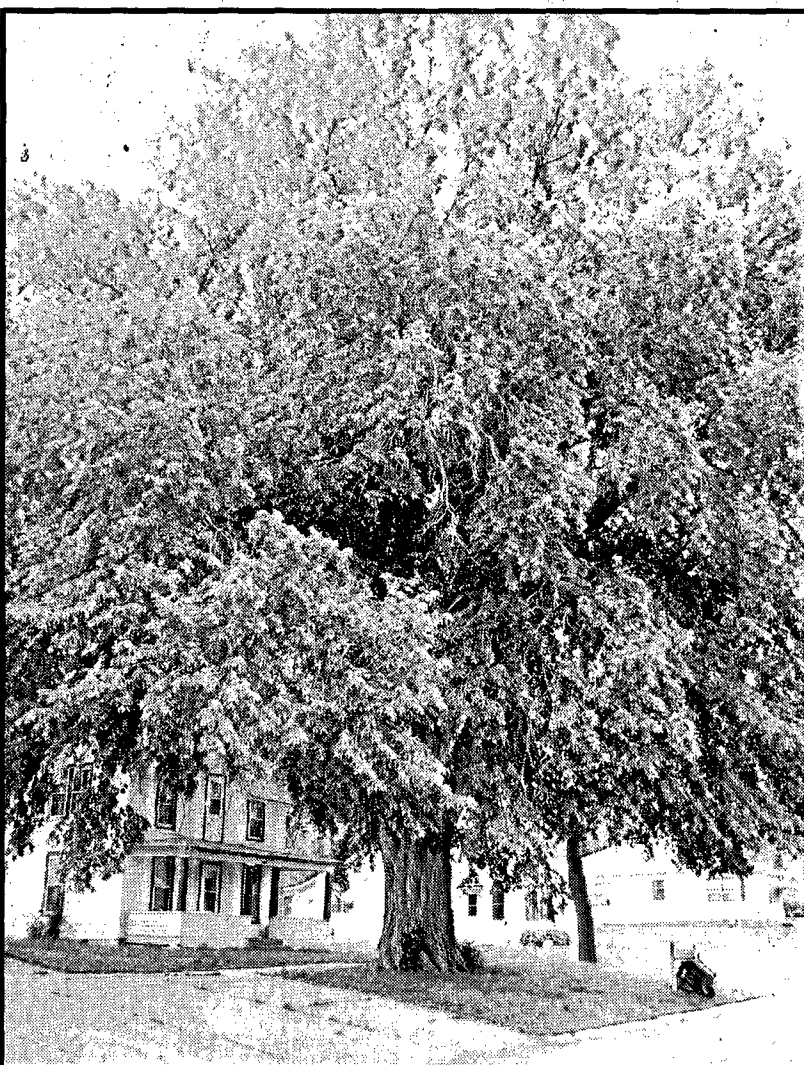

Planners will model a variety of worship styles for leaders to experience. Business matters before the Assembly include elections of synod council and synod committee leaders, voting members to the 2005 ELCA Churchwide Assembly, budget matters and a variety of resolutions. In addition to doing the work of the synod in assembly, there will be special focus on growing deeper spiritually through varied worship experiences, prayer and community building.

Assembly participants will be offered the opportunity to spill out into the community as joy-filled servants of Christ by participating in local servant ministries on Thursday afternoon preceding the actual convening of the Assembly on Friday.

Those gathering on Thursday will have an opportunity to go into Kearney neighborhoods and extend an invitation to the free evening concert by internationally renowned blind Christian musician Ken Medema. They will leave door hangers with an invitation to the concert and an invitation to visit the ELCA area congregations. Food, fellowship and entertainment precede the free Medema concert.

The Tree City USA award is an excellent indication that there is a solid foundation for the process of improvement."

A ceremony was held in Lincoln. The City of Wayne was honored for its commitment to management and enhancement of the community tree resource.

Correction

In last week's Letter to the Editor written by Kim Sperry, two words were inadvertently left out.
The paragraph discussing the euthanization of the dogs should read as follows:
"I spoke with this veterinarian. The property's owner, seeking help, called him. The veterinarian drove to the place and the dogs were euthanized, at the property owner's expense. The veterinarian told me that he did not make the decision to euthanize the dogs. At that time, the health of the dogs was not the deciding factor in their fate. These dogs were abandoned, they were unwanted and they needed humane help. He also stated that at no time did he have a conversation with her or NNHS about these dogs."
The Herald apologizes for the omission.

Water use is big issue in Nebraska

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lake McConaughy has a place in Nebraska history.
Unfortunately, the current chapter isn't a happy one.
With unrelenting drought pulling down water levels, those who depend on the lake - to irrigate crops or entertain tourists - find themselves at odds.
Where there isn't enough water to go around, what's to be done?
Well, not much. Humankind can try some manner of rationing. Such steps are always guaranteed to truly anger some, and to truly please none.
In the Old West, water disputes were usually settled via political power or at the business end of a gun. Today they wind up in court, usually for decades' long battles.
McConaughy's importance to Nebraska agriculture is more than substantial.
For decades the state constitution was read, by various state Supreme Court majorities, to absolutely prohibit the transfer of water from one river basin to another. (This was known in legalistic terms as transbasin water diversion.)
With an eye toward the security that McConaughy eventually provided, the Supreme Court found a way to put aside the precedents established by its predecessors.
McConaughy is more than a lake in western Nebraska. It represents the life blood of several elements of the economy.

The word at this writing is that Nebraska-born Vice President Dick Cheney will campaign for Republican congressional candidate Jeff Fortenberry in the 1st District.
No Democrat has held the eastern Nebraska seat since the mid-1960s, but the GOP doesn't want to take any chances when it comes to holding on to what has been a "safe seat" for Republicans.

Veteran Rep. Doug Bereuter is retiring. His re-election by landslide margins had been predictable for more than a decade.
Fortenberry faces Democrat Matt Connealy, a farmer and member of the Legislature.
The 1st District covers eastern Nebraska outside of Omaha.

Lincoln is the district's biggest population base, and the rest of the district is heavy on agriculture.
Connealy can't look to his party's presidential hopeful for worthwhile support. No Democratic presidential candidate has carried Nebraska since Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964. And, before that, Franklin D. Roosevelt - but only in his first campaign.

Letters from readers are welcome. They should be timely, brief (no longer than one type-written page, double spaced) and must contain no libelous statements. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter.

Main Street Focus

The week of June 14 through June 19 (Monday-Saturday) has been designated Customer Appreciation Week.

In the past, Customer Appreciation Night was a Thursday evening downtown when food and other sundry items were given out to those in attendance.

Following the wishes of those participating businesses, that format has been changed. Each participating business has the option of doing what they want in their store. Some will have just one day, some will have multiple days, some may have something just on Thursday night, while others may do something the entire week to honor their customers. As you know, some businesses do special promotions throughout the year to honor their special customers.

Be sure to check the Wayne Herald/Morning Shopper and listen to KTCH for the names of participating businesses.

Here a chick, there a chick, everywhere a chick-chick, old Main Street Wayne has them now, eei-eei-o. Come and pick up and sign out a cement chicken, paint and decorate and return by July 7 for our chicken auction at Henoween. We invite you to participate... let your creative juices flow. There are no restrictions. Just do them in good taste is all we ask. Again, stop in or call (375-5062) to have one delivered.

Speaking of Henoween... it's getting closer and closer.

We are very pleased to announce that the "Sunday Seven" will be performing at Henoween. They are our opening entertainment segment at 6:30 p.m. The "Sunday Seven" is a local group that sings contemporary Christian, praise and worship music. Although they have performed publicly before, this performance will be in front of approximately 3,500 people who attend Henoween. They are very excited, as are we. They will perform until about 7:30 p.m. at Henoween.

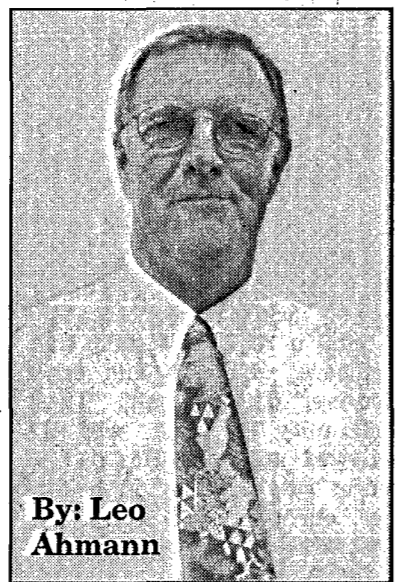

Following the "Sunday Seven," at approximately 7:30 p.m., we will have our growing in popularity cement chicken auction. At approximately 8 p.m. you'll be treated to the entertaining music of "The Benders." Put some great big chicken tracks on your calendar for Henoween on July 9, once again kicking off the Chicken Show weekend.

Henoween will have something for the entire family to enjoy, from the young to not-so-young.

Our fund raising letters should have arrived to the addressees earlier this week. We ask that you read the letter, look over our new brochure and decide if the Main Street Program is worthy of your continued support. Without your support and the support of our volunteers, we wouldn't survive. Personal calls will be made in the very near future.

For those of you wondering, we are discussing "The Shuttle." Our original commitment was for three years and we continue to evaluate its effectiveness. Important meetings will be held shortly and we will keep you informed of those discussions. No final decisions have been made since those meetings are still ongoing.

By: Leo Ahmann

Don't forget to stop in and pick up or call about a cement chicken... eei-eei-o!!!
Until next time...

NEW BEGINNINGS!

TOURISM Nancy Heithold and Janet Heithold traveled to Minden and Hastings two weeks ago, representing the chamber and the Wayne area businesses, to participate in the statewide swap of tourism brochures. The primary purpose was to distribute the 2004 Wayne Chicken Show brochure to other chambers and convention and visitors' bureaus in addition to the 180 rest stop staffs. In this way, we promote our Chicken Days festival throughout the state.

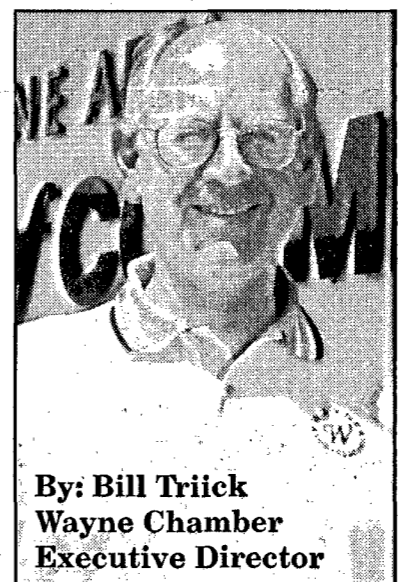

Nancy and Janet also brought back with them two boxes of brochures from other communities. These materials can be picked up at the chamber office by anyone planning trips around the state this year. Thank you Nancy and Janet for your help with this project.

BUCKS BACK! - the unique Wayne area chamber-sponsored program that gives you a chance to win back the full (up to $50) amount of your purchase made at participating Wayne area merchants. The next drawing will be June 14. Over 30 Wayne area retailers participate in this program. The next time you are shopping in Wayne, ask the sales clerk how you can sign up for the BUCKS BACK! program.

Today marks 37 days and counting until the 24th Wayne Chicken Show on July 10. When you consult your copy of the Countdown Calendar, you will see the below listed Wayne area merchants offering specials for the next two weeks:

copy of the Countdown Calendar, contact the chamber office at 375-2240 or any of the participating merchants. They are free and are loaded with discounts.

If you have in your family a golfing teenager, don't forget to register them in the 36-hole junior golf tournament at the Wayne Country Club during Chicken Days on Thursday and Friday, July 8 and 9 (18 holes each day). Any player 10 through 18 years of age is eligible to participate. Entry forms are available at the Chamber office, or from any member of Wayne Optimists (contact Bob Wriedt 402-375-2569 or 7819).

WALKERS WANTED! I'm hopeful that most readers noticed in last week's Wayne Herald the announcement of the 5K (3.1 mile) Fun Walk that will be held as part of the Chicken Days festivities on July 7. Co-sponsored by PMC Wellness Center and Wayne Mercy Medical Center, this event will challenge the walker to match their time with their estimated time without the use of a watch, stop watch, or outside coaching. It will be lots of fun and will make your casual walking experience a little competitive. Winners in each age category will be vying for $20 chamber bucks certificates. Teams of 3-5 participants may enter for their organizations. Contact the chamber, or the Wellness Center, or the medical clinic for more information and entry forms. Each of these offices has a course map for those wishing to practice.

REMINDER The 12th Annual Steer and Heifer show at the Wayne County Fairgrounds, organized by the Ag Taskforce of the chamber is fast approaching. This event, sanctioned by the Nebraska Junior Cattleman, gives young men and women engaged in raising steers and heifers the opportunity to show their animals for prizes and earn points for statewide recognition. Bill Claybaugh of TWJ Farms, who is chairing this event, cordially invites all chamber members who have a personal and/or professional interest in agri-related businesses to participate.

Until next time, remember, if there is anything that the chamber can do for you, please call us; and I hope to see you at the shows!

Remembering our soldiers

American Legion Post #165 of Carroll hosted a free breakfast at Traditions Restaurant on May 29. More than 100 people attended the event which was designed to honor the World War II Memorial dedication and the 60th anniversary of D-Day. Mark Ahmann spoke to the group with facts and figures on both the memorial and D-Day.

Commerce considers a real compliment.

"I never knew just how important tourism is to the Wayne area community and what role the Chamber of Commerce performs in this activity until I participated in this Brochure Swap," Nancy said.

Bringing back current brochures from around the state and distributing them at the Wayne Chamber Office, Nancy said, "This is one important way for our residents to get some good travel ideas on their own."

Anyone may stop by the Chamber Office and collect whatever brochures they need.

"We have a designated space in the office," said Vicki Meyer, Administrative Assistant at the Chamber. "The brochures are displayed for easy selection."

Local businesses and organizations that would like the Chamber to distribute their materials in future brochure swaps should contact the office of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce at (402) 375-2240

Day

Commander General a briefing of his area of operation prior to our departure into the area.

As I was only a "straphanger" in the General's entourage, I was able to break free and search for the Division's chemical company, attached to the 5th BCT for this tour in Iraq.

While searching for the company, I met with the BCT chemical officer. It was our first meeting because he had only just recently joined the Division. He was just getting off shift (night shift) but was gracious enough to show me around. We finally ran into the chemical company commander. We all talked shop for a few minutes, took several pictures and then the BCT Chemical Officer left to get some sleep. The company commander had just recently taken command and was really just getting to know his company when they came to Baghdad.

It was the first week in April when the company received its baptism of fire. They were given a section of road to patrol which had been previously rife with improvised bombs (or IEDs - improvised explosive devices) and rocket propelled grenade (RPG) and small arms ambushes. Their first week of patrolling came with bad luck. RPG teams had ambushed two of their vehicles. Fortunately, two soldiers were only wounded, one slightly by fragments, and the other by flash fire from the explosion of the grenade.

Later, another vehicle had been attacked by small arms fire (assault rifles and machine guns) where one of their interpreters was killed. The company commander showed me the damaged vehicles as he told me the story.

After eating lunch with the commander, I had to leave him so that he could move to one of his platoon's sector and await the Commanding General's entourage, of which I was a straphanger/member. I met up with the Commanding General and settled into the back seat of a Hummer in preparation for the drive into the city.

The first stop was at an intersection where we met one of the BCT's other company commanders. He escorted us into the one of the many districts (or suburbs) of Baghdad, where we stopped, dismounted the Hummers and walked into the market. To picture this, think of the President walking in downtown Washington, D.C. We all had our weapons drawn, "locked and loaded" and ready for anything in order to protect the General. By this time, our entourage had grown to about 30 soldiers (both officers and enlisted) with the primary mission of protecting the Commander of the 1st Cavalry Division. Thank God we had no incidents.

As I walked through the open-air market, I was absolutely amazed at the condition of the products being sold. First, everywhere you look in the streets, on the sidewalks, in the alleys, everywhere, there was trash. Garbage which had been there for days and weeks, rotting in the streets, providing that newcomer a pungent odor which made one want to be sick.

The fruits and vegetables, on the open stands, were completely covered with flies. The vendors had palm fronds from nearby palm trees and made only half-hearted attempts to shoo the flies away. The fish stand smelled of fish, which had been out of water for several days. How can one describe the smell of an almost rotten fish? The people living in these conditions looked dirty. Some of the kids ran through the market barefoot. I passed by a butcher. He had "fresh" chicken on his stands, goat, and some other meats, of which I could not identify.

Again, accompanying the butcher were the standard quota of flies covering the meat. When you look around, you can see that this is normal in this particular neighborhood. People are looking at us, talking about us, and then going on with their business. Some make faces at us, but most seem to look at us with curiosity, as we with them.

The Commanding General, undaunted by the smells and all ongoing around him, marched right into the center of the market and then up an alley. He stopped by a teapot shop, where, I believe, he felt safe to purchase something. Well, he actually haggled with the vendor and wound up paying one dollar (U.S.) for a tin teapot (I am pretty sure had we found a brass oil lamp, we could have rubbed and a Genie would have appeared). After the purchase, we worked our way back out to the Hummers. I did not feel threatened at all during the walk; however, I did feel a lot safer back in the Hummer.

The next stop for us was at the district's waste treatment facility. The only people we found there were American soldiers. They secured the facility, which had not been operating for at least a year or more. I don't think I need to discuss any further as to where particular stuff goes, with the Tigris River only a few miles away. The contractors hired to refurbish and restart the treatment facility had not been working since the beginning of April, during the "unrest" in Baghdad. And it does not look like the facility will be functional until mid-October 2004. Unbelievable. We moved from there to the district's power plant. Same story. No workers, no power being generated. Unbelievable.

We moved on finally to the Division's chemical company's sector. There I met one of the platoon's leaders I hadn't seen in almost three months. It was good to see him.

Out here, there is an unspoken understanding between soldiers, in that when you meet, after not seeing each other, even for a couple of days, your greetings are always with a handshake. This is because you are genuinely glad to see that person, as he or she is with you.

I saw the company commander, again, shook his hand, and felt helpless, being a staff officer, on a division staff, a straphanger in the Commanding General's entourage. The frustration felt is because they are out there risking their lives on a daily basis, and on a daily basis are helping the local civilian population the best they can, whereas I am safe and sound either working in the division headquarters or in my trailer at night when I go to sleep. I get a little respite in that I know that I am working to support those soldiers in the field, who daily risk their lives to bring stability and support to the Iraqi people.

The company commander took us to an elementary school which has been under construction for months. As we walked around we were inundated with the local children, again, most were barefoot. There were at least 100 people who gathered around us, mostly children, they seemed happy to see us; they knew we were repairing the school.

As the children ran from soldier to soldier attempting to entice a free gift, I met one of the platoon sergeants I had not seen, again in three or four months. She showed me her Hummer which was attacked by an RPG team that first week of April. The impact point of the RPG was just behind the rear door on the right side of the vehicle.

The vehicle's armor did not allow the RPG to enter the vehicle so the blast was directed into the rear door. The flash caused second-degree burns on the soldier in that seat. The soldier had eventually been evacuated to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to have the burns treated. The flash also traveled forward and burned the helmet cover and goggles band of the platoon sergeant. She continues to wear them as a reminder of what can happen.

Then, around the corner of the back of the Hummer came a young female soldier, probably not much older than my own daughter, who is in her sophomore year in college. She received shrapnel wounds from the RPG. Fortunately she was not seriously injured. She still has a piece of shrapnel in her left arm that the doctor said would work its way out in its own time. She and the platoon sergeant were in great spirits and were very motivated. They thoroughly enjoyed working in this particular sector because of all of the children. I believe it made the platoon sergeant miss her own children she had left behind in Texas.

Our final stop was at a civilian (neighborhood) medical clinic, which was still under construction. It looked as if it were about 80 percent complete. This was a legacy project, which the first Armored Division had begun, of which we have taken over and will complete. All the construction workers were local civilians. The only question was how the clinic would be furnished with not only required drugs but also equipment and furniture. That is a project high on the Division Surgeon's priority list.

This was one of my longest afternoons spent in Iraq. Not only have I seen that our soldiers are accomplishing their assigned missions, protecting themselves, and helping the local civilians, but I have seen the projects set up by the Army, but contracted to local workers to complete. I have also seen areas in which we can improve as a force not only in occupation but as providers of stability and support.

Also, I have a better understanding as to the lifestyle of most of the civilians, at least in this district. It is hard to see at this point, but I believe that by the time the 1st Cavalry Division is prepared to deploy back to Fort Hood, Texas, we'll have made a positive difference in the lifestyle of the average Iraqi civilian.

Lewis and Clark performance given

The libraries of Wayne recently hosted Dale Clark and his dog, Sailor, in the fourth program of "A Meeting of Two Cultures: The Lewis & Clark Expedition" series. "Corps of Discovery Through the Eyes of a Crew Member" was held in the evening on May 26 at Ramsey Theatre on the Wayne State College campus.

In the afternoon of the 26th, Clark was the kick-off speaker for the Summer Reading Program at the Wayne Public Library.

Clark began the program at the college by reviewing history with the audience prior to the time of Lewis and Clark's almost 8,000 mile expedition through the interior of the continent of North America, which was between May 14, 1804, and Sept. 23, 1806.

Later, Clark gave insight to the audience as to how the expedition was from a crew member's perspective. He showed the audience equipment and mementos similar to what would have been used during the expedition.

Dale Clark is a member of the Nebraska Humanities Speakers' Bureau and his background includes independent research, participation in educational con-

Hospital provides $434,000 in unpaid services

Unpaid or "uncompensated services" are services rendered that do not relate directly to inpatient or outpatient care and are therefore not reimbursable by Medicare and other insurers, according to Marcie Thomas, Administrator at Providence Medical Center in Wayne.

Providence Medical Center had $434,000 in uncompensated care services during the year 2003.

Some of the services that fell into this category included: Meals on Wheels - $121,000; Standby Ambulance - $35,000; Community Health Education - $47,000; Bereavement Consultation - $11,000; Medical Bill Write-offs (based on family size and income) - $35,000; Weekday Physician Emergency Room On-Call (Medicare/ Medicaid) - $20,000;

Ambulance Fee Schedule Limitations - $25,000; Home Health Fee Schedule Limitations (Medicare/ Medicaid) - $55,000; Miscellaneous Services - $25,000.

"At this time, Providence Medical Center will continue to provide these services, even though limited, if any, reimbursement is available. None of these fees are recoverable through normal patient charges. This amount does not include discounts that the hospital is required to take from Medicare/ Medicaid and other insurers," Thomas said. "These community services will be reviewed annually. However, if budget cuts continue in health-care, our philosophy concerning these services may very well be altered." Currently, Providence Medical Center and the City of Wayne are in negotiations regarding the City's contribution toward the operating expenses incurred by Providence Medical Center concerning ambulance service.

To date, ambulances have been replaced on an average of every seven years. The current estimated cost of an ambulance is in excess of $120,000.

Recently, the members of the Wayne City Council proposed a reduction in the City's annual $12,500 ambulance contribution to Providence Medical Center. The new proposal, which has not been accepted by the members of the hospital Governing Board, calls for a $10,000 per year contribution, according to Thomas.

The fifth grade students at Wayne Middle School and their teachers recently spent an afternoon planting various plants as part of an outdoor classroom at the school. The project is an on-going one and will be funded by a grant from the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

Outdoor classroom begins at Middle School

Fifth grade students at Wayne Middle School recently planted a number of plants in the first installment of an outdoor classroom.

The classroom is being funded by a grant from the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

The money will be used over a two to three year period to construct the outdoor classroom. The beginning stage, which included work done this spring, will involve landscaping around the Middle School marquee on the northeast corner of the school grounds. The fifth grade students and parent volunteers will provide care for the plants throughout the summer to give them a good start. Steve Rasmussen, District Forester, has also been instrumental in organizing and supporting the project.

Plants used this spring included Eastern Redbud, clove currant and Indian grass.

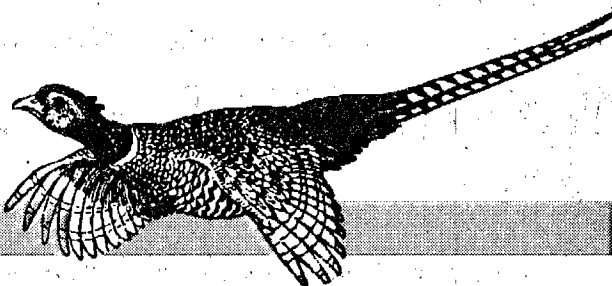

The fifth grade class, under the leadership of Ellen Imdieke, fifth grade science teacher, has also been instrumental in planting trees on the west side of the school. Earlier this spring fifth grader Taylor Stowater was named a finalist in the 2004 Arbor Day National Poster Contest.

The honor earned her a $50 savings bond and $200 for her teacher and the school.

With the money from Taylor's award, the fifth grade class planted an Autumn Blaze Maple tree alongside the Northern Red Oak which was earned by Gayle Lawton, last year's finalist in the Arbor Day Poster Contest.

The Poster Contest is sponsored by the Nebraska Power Association, the National Arbor Day Foundation and the Nebraska Forest Service.

Blue Devil golfers finish sixth at state

by Mike Grosz
Of the Herald

The Wayne High boys golf team finished the 2004 season in a three-way tie for sixth place at the Class B Boys State Golf Tournament held last Tuesday and Wednesday at Holmes Golf Course in Lincoln.

The Blue Devils finished the two-day tournament with a score of 652, shooting 324 on Tuesday and 328 on Wednesday. Crete and Omaha Skutt also finished with team scores of 652. McCook won their third state title in four years with a two-day total of 620, seven shots better than Gering.

Veteran Wayne coach Terry Munson said this year's Class B field was one of the strongest ever.

"The top four teams from last year all qualified and were returning nearly all of their players. Add previously Class A Scottsbluff to the field and it even got tougher. So to finish in a tie for sixth was a good effort on the players part," stated Munson.

Trevor Krugman, the lone senior on the team, posted the top score for Wayne with rounds of 77 on Tuesday and 79 Wednesday for a 156 to finish tied for 10th place with five other players.

"Trevor had an outstanding tournament," remarked Coach Munson. "He remained focused and composed on each individual shot over the course of the two days."

Juniors Ben and Brian Mohl finished with two-day scores of 164 and 168 respectively. Ben shot 82 each day while Brian ended up with 84 each day.

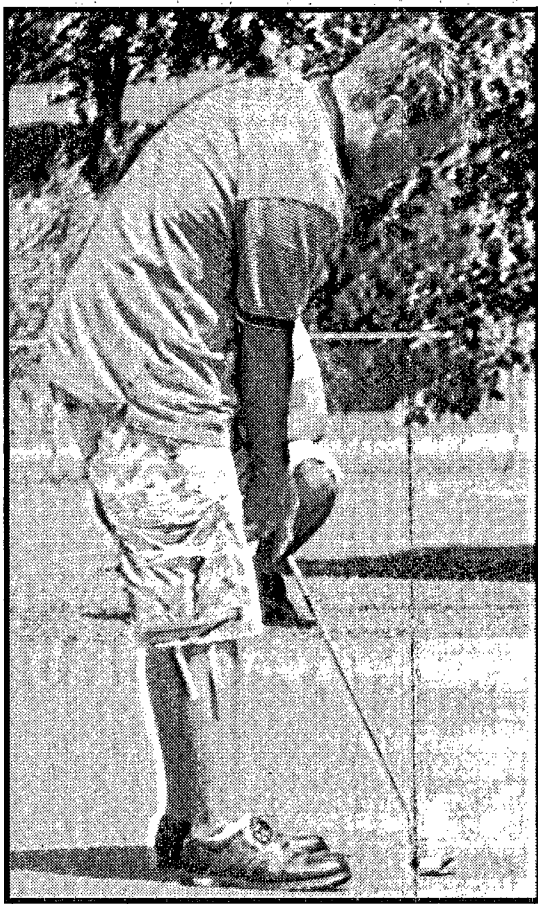

"Ben and Brian Mohl both had solid scores on one nine-hole side each day," commented Munson. "It was frustrating for them to not be able to put a matching score with it from the other nine holes." John Whitt, a sophomore, shot 81 on Tuesday and 90 Wednesday for a 171 while Tyler Johnson, a junior, fired rounds of 90 and 83 for a 173.

"John put his best score of the season on the board Tuesday with an 81 and Wednesday saw Tyler do the same with an 83," said Munson. "Their best scores helped our team total each day."

It was the 18th time in 19 years that Wayne has competed as a team at the Class B Boys State Golf Tournament.

Brian Mohl of Wayne watches a putt fall into the cup during the first day of the Class B Boys State Golf Tournament in Lincoln at Holmes Golf Course. Mohl posted the second best score for Wayne at the state tournament, shooting 82 each day for a score of 164.

Stockwell competes at NCAA National Track Meet

Wayne State College sophomore Lindsey Stockwell competed in the NCAA Division II National Outdoor Track and Field Championships held in Pomona, Calif. May 27-29.

Stockwell, a graduate of Geneva, competed in the discus last Friday and placed 15th with a top mark of 120-0. She qualified for the national meet with a season-best throw of 148-7 at the Concordia Last Chance Meet on May 14.

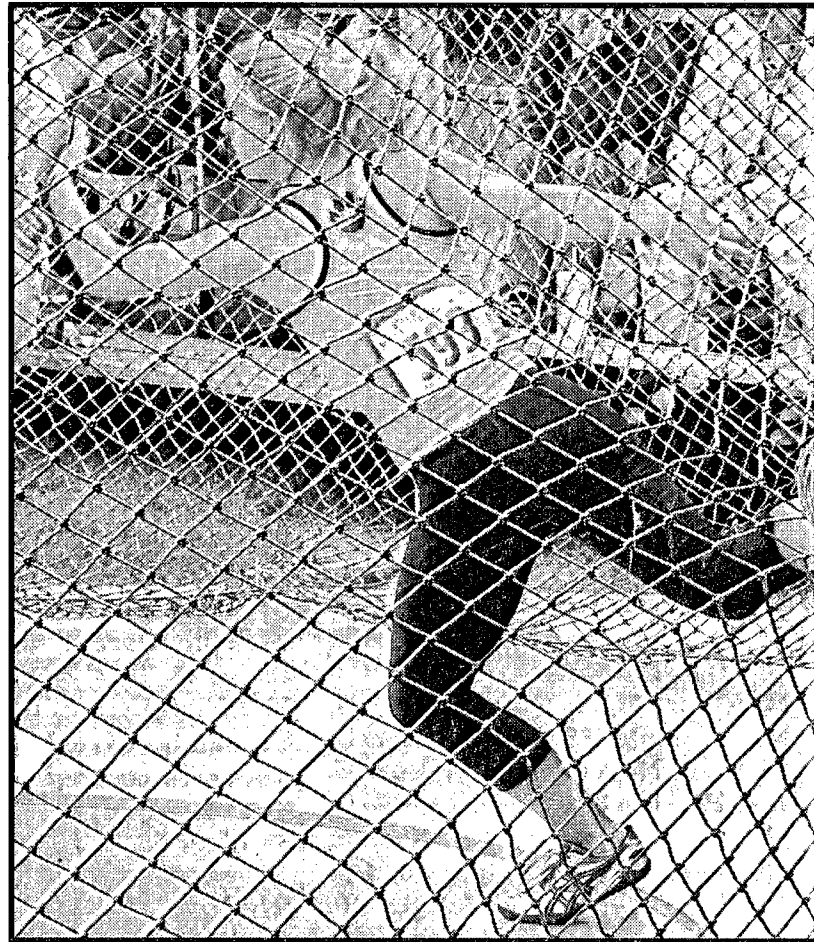

WSC Head Track Coach Marlon Brink said it was a great honor for Stockwell to make it to the national meet.

"Lindsey is the first female athlete to qualify for Outdoor National Meet since Wayne State has been in the NCAA," stated Brink. "Although she did not throw as well as she would have liked, the experience will be very valuable for her in the future and I think it is very likely she will be back there again."

Stockwell also earned Academic All-American honors based on her cumulative grade point average being above 3.20 and her national qualifying mark in the discus.

Two other Wildcat track athletes earned Academic All-American honors, but were not ranked high enough to qualify for the national meet. They were Brian Dixon, a senior from Raymond, who earned a national qualifying mark in the 110 meter high hurdles and Tanna Walford, a freshman from York, who earned a national qualifying mark in the high jump.

"Our student-athletes that earned Academic All-American honors are a great representation of what Wayne State College athletics are all about," commented Brink. "We have good quality students who are also outstanding athletes. I think this honor is every bit as prestigious an honor as being named an All-American in their respective events."

Wayne State's Lindsey Stockwell makes one of her throws in the discus at the NCAA Division II National Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Pomona, Calif.

Nebraska-Kearney guard transfers to Wayne State

Wayne State women's basketball coach Ryun Williams has announced the signing of guard Nicole Gruntorad, a transfer from Nebraska-Kearney.

averaged 8.6 points, 3.0 assists, 1.7 steals and 1.4 rebounds per game, shooting 45 percent from the field (80-176) and 92 percent from the free throw line (37-40).

"Nicole is a very skilled guard who can shoot the basketball," said Coach Williams. "She is a great addition to our team, giving us depth in our back court and on the perimeter."

Wayne Seniors start season with 1-3 mark

The Wayne Senior American Legion baseball team finished the Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament with a 1-2 record last weekend in games played at Eaton Field in Wakefield.

Wayne opened the tournament with a 9-5 loss to Wakefield. Wakefield scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to snap a 5-5 tie to get the win.

"We're struggling to throw strikes," said Wayne coach Chad Metzler. "We walked nine batters and seven of them scored."

Chris Nissen laced a triple and single to lead Wayne's six-hit attack. Wade Jarvi and Blake Lyons each doubled while Matt Roeber and Nathan Milander had one single apiece.

Milander was tagged with the loss on the mound, working five innings. He gave up seven runs, four hits and five walks while striking out nine. Nissen and Josh Sharer both pitched in relief. The next game saw Wayne down Madison 11-2 in five innings.

Jarvi was the winning pitcher, allowing three hits and two runs over four innings of work. He struck out four and walked four. Nissen pitched the final inning.

Roeber and Sharer each went 2 for 3 at the plate with a double and single. Milander doubled with Nissen and Jarvi each contributing a single. Dan Reinhardt scored a team-high three runs.

Wayne's final game in the Chuck Ellis Tournament was a 4-1 setback to Pierce on Saturday despite a solid pitching effort from Josh Sharer.

Sharer pitched all six innings and allowed four runs on seven hits with four walks and eight strikeouts. Wayne had three hits in the game. Kris Roberts had a triple with Roeber and Aaron Jorgensen each adding singles.

"We competed very well behind a good outing by Josh," stated Coach

Metzler. "We had our chances, but left six runners in scoring position."

Wayne opened the season on May 24 with a 19-0 loss at Norfolk. Five Wayne pitchers combined to walk 14 batters and 13 of them scored for Norfolk. Wayne's only hit in the game was a double by Nissen.

The Wayne Seniors, now 1-3, face a busy schedule with eight games in the next week. After hosting Wakefield Wednesday evening, Wayne visits Wisner on Friday. "Matt gave a tremendous effort in relief after throwing five innings just two days earlier," said Wayne coach Jeff Zeiss.

Wayne had just one hit in the game, a single by Cory Harm, but took advantage of 10 walks by Pierce pitching to score eight runs. Harm crossed the plate three times while Matt Davis walked three times and scored two runs.

The Wayne Juniors finished the Chuck Ellis Tournament with a 2-0 record. A third game with Crofton scheduled for last Friday was cancelled due to a scheduling conflict.

Baier receives recognition

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Scott Baier of Wayne has been named a United States Award Winner in Foreign Language.
 This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. The Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students.
 Scott, who attends Wayne High School, was nominated for the award by Traci Coover, a teacher at the school.
 His name will now appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

Scott Baier
 "Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.
 The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership, qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher or director.
 Scott is the son of David and Joan Baier of Wayne. His grandparents include LaVerle and Delores Schnoor of Norfolk and Irma Baier of Wayne.

Local students selected as FIRST participants

Trevor Krugman and Brett Morlok, both of Wayne, were among the 101 students selected to participate in a new South Dakota Tech program designed to help freshmen succeed. South Dakota Tech is an engineering and science university in Rapid City, S.D.
 The program, called FIRST, Freshman Introduction to Real Success at Tech, will help students develop connections with each other and the university during each student's first year on campus.
 "These connections provide the students with a foundation of support both academically and socially during their first year at Tech," Reeny Wilson, Tech's director of Residence Life, said. "Also, participants will be able to take advantage of in-hall tutoring and coordinated study groups. Various other features of the program will give participants opportunities to live, learn and succeed."
 FIRST evolved during a year of planning after Tech staff and faculty saw a need for students to have a more integrated first year.
 "First-year students spend a majority of their time in the residence halls, so making a stronger connection between academics and life in the dorms just makes sense," Wilson said. "We also want to help students develop strong, healthy relationships in their peer groups and with the university. These types of relationships have a positive impact on a student's success."

Glad May is finally over

You know what? I'm very glad the month of May is over. And I'm hoping the winds and tornado warnings are over, too. My Jewish mother was complaining to me on the phone last night that I was neglecting her. I sat down and itemized for her the activities of the past 31 days, and it made me tired to read it! Of course, when I show it to her, she will say, "Why do you allow yourself to get that booked up?" And the answer is, "I don't know."

As usual, Memorial Day guests are here for alumni banquets and family reunions. The couple from Colorado just left and a couple from New Jersey will arrive later today. You've heard me go on before about the number of unmarried guests we have. Well, I made an observation this weekend. The unmarried ones sleep together; the married prefer the twin beds. I don't know what this proves, but I do know from my home health and hospice work that an awful lot of married folks sleep in separate beds; even separate rooms. It has a lot to do with things like snoring and tossing and turning and all that good stuff.

But the unmarried ones; that's a different story. The middle-aged couple here on Friday night both live in Minneapolis, in separate houses. But they were here to visit his mother, and she had made arrangements for them to stay here two nights.

On Saturday, at breakfast, he announced that they wanted his son to experience the bed and breakfast, so they would move back into town with his mother and the son and his girlfriend would be here that night! And that's what took place. No one seemed embarrassed or uncomfortable about the sleeping arrangements; certainly, it did not occur to them that I might not care for it. Besides, it meant I had to change the sheets and clean the room again, which I had not planned to do because we had a lot of other activities around here that day. Oh, well, this is the world we live in.

Anyway, there is a reason I took a long nap yesterday and still feel tired today. It has to do with several road trips and a couple of professional obligations and a total of 34 guests for the month. Some were family: the cousin from Las Vegas was petrified by the lightning and tornado warnings on the 22nd. She would have been even more astounded to learn that an acreage one mile south of us sustained a lot of damage. We also hosted a niece and her family from Colorado Springs last week. They have two daughters whom we had never seen, so we were pleased they could stop on their way to Grand Rapids.

Another group last week included a teacher friend from my school nurse days and three of her co-workers. They, of course, were celebrating the end of the school year. When we went to the local restaurant for supper, there were

Governor proclaims June as Noxious Weed Awareness Month

Gov. Mike Johanns signed a proclamation recognizing the potential noxious weeds have for reducing Nebraska crop yields. June will be recognized as Noxious Weed Awareness Month.

"Noxious weed control is a fundamental component to protecting Nebraska's number one industry - agriculture," said Nebraska Dept. of Agriculture (NDA) Director Merlyn Carlson. "Controlling noxious weeds helps protect agriculture and our natural resources from profit robbing pest weeds."

Spring signifies the beginning of the growing season for noxious weeds, which compete with pastures and crops, considerably reducing yields. Some noxious weeds have the potential to be poisonous or injurious to humans, livestock and wildlife.

NDA encourages Nebraskans to report any noxious weed infestations to their county weed control authority. County weed superintendents are available to help identify noxious weeds and assist with proper control recommendations.

By law, effective noxious weed control is the responsibility of each person who owns or controls land. If infestations go uncontrolled, legal action is set in motion by the county weed control authority.

There are seven weeds that are designated noxious in Nebraska including: musk thistle, Canada thistle, plumeless thistle, spotted knapweed, diffuse knapweed, leafy spurge, and purple loosestrife.

For more information on Nebraska's noxious weed program, contact your county weed superintendent or Mitch Coffin with NDA Bureau of Plant Industry at (402) 471-2394.

Student is admitted into RHOP Program

Leah Pickinpaugh of Wayne has been accepted into the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College.

Pickinpaugh, the daughter of Tim and Jill Pickinpaugh, plans to become a dental hygienist through studies at WSC prior to transferring to the University of Nebraska Dental College in Lincoln.

Under the RHOP program, Pickinpaugh receives a full tuition scholarship at Wayne State and is guaranteed pre-admission to the Dental College upon successful completion of the prescribed course work at WSC. RHOP, a cooperative effort between Wayne State and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC), encourages students from rural areas of Nebraska to return to rural settings after graduation to pursue their career.

Special consideration is given for admission to the RHOP program to students from communities of populations less than 10,000. Areas of study under the program include: medicine; pharmacy; dentistry; dental hygiene; and medical technology.

A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted the educational institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989.

Pickinpaugh's high school activities included dance squad and jazz band.

a dozen Elmwood-Murdock faculty there, and they had been there for a couple of hours; that was evident!

We ended that evening at the Lofte Theater's opening play for the season, "You Can't Take It With You." The next production is "Oklahoma," in July. If you haven't yet visited this theater in a barn, make plans to see this. They do one musical every year, and it is always great. And, hopefully, this is their last season in the old barn. They are building a new one that will be air conditioned and handicapped-accessible.

As Garrison Keillor would say: "That's all the news from Lake Wobegone." That's all the news in a nutshell from Murdock. Hope all you farmers get your beans in this week!

Some weeds are just BAD

Weeds compete with crop plants for water, nutrients and sunlight and this results in less available resources for crop growth and yield. University of Nebraska scientists have done work here in eastern Nebraska to determine the competitiveness of 12 weed species.

Field studies show that common sunflower was the most competitive weed, producing twice as much dry matter than any other species. Sunflower is followed by common cocklebur, morning glory, giant ragweed, velvetleaf, waterhemp, and redroot pigweed.

Species higher on the list are generally more competitive than weeds lower on the list. Grass species can also be quite competitive with shattercane and giant foxtail high on the list.

Management decisions do make a difference in weed competition. Planting soybeans in narrower rows will reduce the competitiveness of most weed species, thus providing a competitive advantage for the crop. Emergence date of the weed compared to the crop is also an important consideration. Weeds that emerge before or at the same time as the crop tend to be more competitive than weeds that emerge a week or two later.

Crops also differ in competitiveness, corn is more competitive than soybeans or sorghum and thus can better compete with weeds.

Beyond competition, the number of weeds in a field affects how much they can harm yield. For example a weed like sunflower only needs 4 plants per 100 square feet to effectively reduce corn yields, yet it takes closer to 15 redroot pigweed per 100 sq feet to have the same competitiveness. Soybeans would have reduced yields with 1 sunflower or 4 redroot pigweed.

Correct identification of a weed is important so that you can determine the threshold level at which yield reduction will occur and when it is economical to spray. Scout your fields regularly to identify weed pressures and refrain from costly herbicide application if economic thresholds of weeds are not met.

Know your weeds, some you may be able to live with other may need control now!

ARBOR DAY & EARTH DAY
 Arbor Day activities and Earth Day were combined this year as students under the supervision of science instructor Scott Krominga and Tree Board Chairman Marcia Rastede worked on several tree-related projects. The biology class split into groups and supervised kindergarten through sixth graders. The younger children pickup up trash, watched a movie of coral reefs, made a terrarium, and made and hung pinecone bird seed feeders. The older students put wood chips around the deciduous trees at the Nature Grove.

On May 4, freshman and sophomore students continued this project by pulling the grass around the evergreen trees and putting wood chips around those trees in the Nature Grove, the historical trees planted around town on public property, and all the trees in the town park.

This group also planted seven Colorado Blue Spruce trees on the south side of the new school building. Plans are made and will be carried out to move several trees from the Nature Grove to the north side of the school when the ground becomes drier.

Properly cool, reheat leftovers to prevent foodborne illness

Foodborne illnesses are commonly caused by leaving cooked foods at room temperature too long, improperly refrigerating foods and failing to adequately reheat leftovers. Take caution to ensure leftover food is safe to eat.

Food should not be left at room temperature for longer than two hours, including preparation and serving time. When packaging food for refrigeration, use small, shallow containers. It may be necessary to divide large amounts of food into several smaller portions to ensure the leftovers will cool properly and be safe to eat. Remove stuffing from poultry or other stuffed meats and refrigerate in separate containers. Do not mix leftovers with fresh food portions.

Use caution when placing foods in refrigerators. Adding too much hot food to a refrigerator can raise the unit's temperature and hinder proper cooling. To avoid this, cool large amounts of food in an ice water bath before refrigerating.

In addition, overpacked refrigerators do not cool foods well. Foods pressed together and stacked on top of each other keep air from properly circulating. Refrigerators also should be kept clean and organized. To ease storage problems, it may be helpful to place some food directly in the freezer when space is limited.

Reheating leftovers may not destroy all the microorganisms in food left at room temperature or improperly stored. Some bacteria produce dangerous heat-resistant toxins. In addition, avoid tasting old leftovers to determine safety.

When in doubt, throw it out. Discard outdated, unsafe or possibly unsafe leftovers in a garbage disposal or in tightly wrapped packages that cannot be consumed by other people or animals.

Reheated foods must reach 165 degrees to destroy microorganisms that grew during storage. Food should steam throughout the portion, not just around the edges. When microwaving leftovers, the center bottom of the plate or bowl should be very hot.

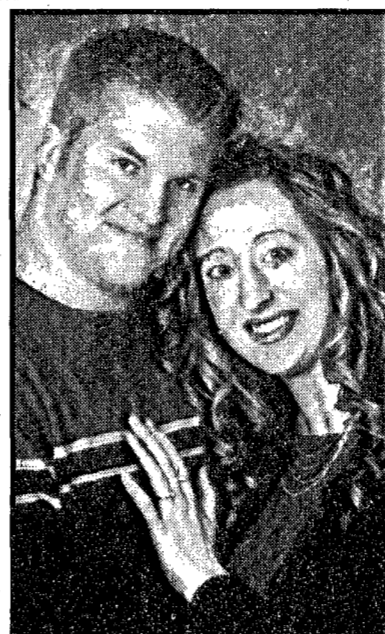

When reheating soup, liquids, and foods in sauces or gravy, always stir before, during and after microwaving or reheating on a conventional range. Allow microwaved foods to cool briefly before eating.

When foodborne illness strikes, see a medical professional if symptoms are severe or if the victim is a child, elderly person or suffers from a chronic illness. Do not destroy suspect foods, but make certain no one else will consume them. These foods can be tested to identify the cause of a foodborne illness.

Foodborne illness is characterized by nausea, diarrhea, vomiting and abdominal cramps, but symptoms vary according to the microbe that caused the illness and how much of it was consumed. Symptoms often appear six to 48 hours after consumption, but can show up much sooner, even within half an hour. For mild food poisoning cases, maintain liquid intake to replace lost fluids.

Laughter is the Best Medicine
Gelotology, the study of laughter, has uncovered some amazing facts. A good laugh reduces tension, clears the mind and lifts the spirits. Heart rate increases, more hormones are produced, circulation improves and even muscle tone is better. At Stanford University, neurologists have discovered that laughter triggers the brain's reward centers. These are the same areas effected by amphetamines and cocaine. That probably explains why it feels to good while being good for you!
