'Campus Showcase' to feature president

The public is invited to meet Dr. Richard Collings, Wayne State College president, and his wife, Marilyn, who will be special guests at the opening 'Campus Showcase' program on Friday, Sept. 3, in the Elkhorn Room, Wayne State College student center, beginning at 9 a.m.

Collings, who assumed the presidency in June, came to Wayne State from Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, N.C., where he was vice chancellor for academic affairs and professor of political science and public affairs since 1996. He earned a doctorate in political science from Tulane University in 1977. Collings and his wife are natives of Louisville, Ky.

"This will be a great opportunity to meet Dr. and Mrs. Collings, to learn about his vision for Wayne State College, and to welcome them to the region," said Judy Johnson, WSC director of college relations. During the hour-long program, refreshments will be served. Although designed for senior citizen appeal, all ages are welcome to attend. There is no admission charge. During each 'Campus Showcase,' birthdays are acknowledged and special guests are recognized.

Because parking on campus is limited, free transportation from the Wayne Senior Citizens Center/Public Library at 410 Pearl Street will be provided by the college before and after the 'Campus Showcase' event. The shuttle will depart from the Senior Citizens Center/Public Library at approximately 8:45 a.m. and will return immediately following the program. Those wishing to ride are asked to park near the south end of the Senior Citizens Center.

'Campus Showcase' is sponsored by Wayne State as part of the school's mission of community and regional outreach. It is co-hosted by Dr. James O'Donnell, dean of the WSC School of Arts and Humanities, and Johnson.

For more information, please call Johnson at 402-375-7325.

WSC organization completes fountain restoration

By Lynn Stevers
Of the Herald

Adding to the beauty of Wayne State College campus, WEOPA (Wayne Educational Office Professionals Association) and Pat Meehan, WSC landscape manager, worked together recently to restore the fountain that was given to the school by the WSC Class of 1920.

Around five years ago, Deb Harm, former WEOPA member, approached the group with the idea of restoring the fountain. The project didn't begin until recently when Meehan drew up plans for the project. With the help of the 18-member, all-women group, work was started in May. WEOPA contributed over $1,200, around 320 hours of labor, and moved at least 40 tons of rock and 10 tons of sand to complete the project.

Dirt was excavated 12 inches deep around the fountain and then the women hauled rock and tamped it to pack it. Then, they put sand and re-bar (which they had to cut) on the top layer. After re-bar was in place, they leveled and tamped the sand and were ready for the bricks. A brick saw was rented to cut and finish the edge of the brick area. Peat, fertilizer and mulch were spread and berms were in place around the fountain. Adorning the top of the fountain is a statue of a Greek goddess, Adrienne. The women are in charge of maintaining the area.

Besides the hard work of moving dirt, rock and sand, as well as cutting and laying brick, reconstruction of the fountain was no easy task as it had been demolished around 1965. All that was left was the original pedestal with the 1920 plaque on it and the original bowl which had been vandalized recently.

Appeal arguments to be heard by Nebraska Supreme Court

Former Wayne flower shop owner Roger Van, who was convicted of sexually assaulting, torturing and holding a Texas man captive, has appealed his conviction.

Van was sentenced to up to 30 years in prison on several counts, including sexual assault and false imprisonment.

The Nebraska Attorney General's office is in charge of the appeal procedures.

Chris Connolly, who served as the prosecutor during the trial in 2002, said the Wayne County

Attorney's office is not involved with the appeal of the case.

In the appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court, Melissa Wentling, who is serving as Van's court appointed attorney, said the conviction was unconstitutional because the victim agreed to such treatment when he came to Wayne.

Assistant Attorney General Kevin Stimp said the argument is "absurd."

The high court is set to hear oral arguments in Van's case on Friday, Sept. 10.

Thanking Wayne for hospitality

Dear Editor,
To the Community of Wayne, thank you so much for the warm hospitality you extended to me, my family, and campaign during the Wayne Chicken Days Parade. It was one of the most enjoyable of the summer parades, and I truly appreciated all the kind words of encouragement you shared while I was there.
I would also like to congratulate

Mr. Del Hampton on winning the 2004 National Cluck-Off and successfully defending his championship!

Congratulations on another successful parade, and I am looking forward to visiting your community again.

Sincerely,
Jeff Fortenberry
Candidate for US Congress

Main Street Focus

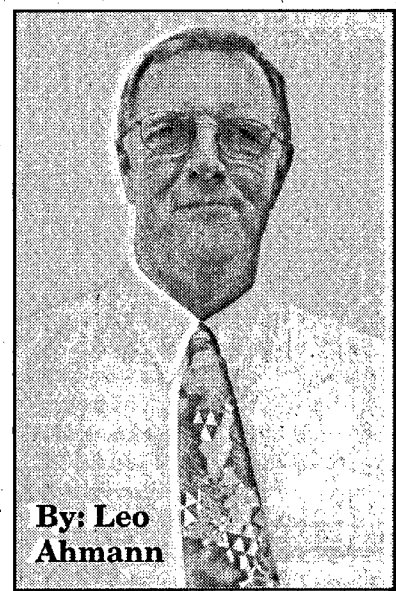

The Main Street Wayne Program would like to welcome all the new students, faculty and staff to Wayne State College and the community of Wayne. We invite you to visit all the businesses in Wayne and shop here first.

Many businesses, groups, clubs and organizations should have received a mailing and in many cases, two, from the Main Street Office. One of them contained information on the Wayne State College Band Day and our Fifth Annual WAKE UP WITH WAYNE promotion on Saturday, Sept. 11. Please consider being a vendor that morning and also think about having an entry in the parade. The parade entries are so critical because the bands are competing and we need entries in-between the competing bands so the judges are not distracted about the music of one band carrying over to another.

The other mailing contained information about our WSC new student promotion, to familiarize new students to the business community of Wayne. It is called "Welcome to Our Neighborhood." We hope you'll look over the information and participate in all the events. If you have questions, please call us at 375-5062.

As you have probably heard by now, we will NOT be running the "Shuttle" this year. In the past, the shuttle has operated on an 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. route, Monday through Friday, throughout the community. Due to financial considerations, and ridership not meeting our expectations, we have decided not to route the routine schedule. HOWEVER, the Shuttle is still available for rental. Again, if you're interested in renting the Shuttle, please call the Main Street Office, and we'll get everything taken care of for you. Just a quick comment - we are very proud of the effort and commitment we made to serve the college and community and absolutely have no regrets about providing the service. The Main Street Wayne Program would like to thank the sponsors who placed advertising on the bus. Your commitment was greatly appreciated. Have you purchased your Nebraska Husker football book yet? For a $10 donation, you have the opportunity to win $25 per week. I've always said the best part was that the Huskers don't even have to win for you to be a winner.

Don't forget the Town Hall Meeting on Monday, Sept. 13 regarding the T.E.A.M. 15 (Highway 15 community taskforce committee) in the City Auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m.

A special thank you to Duane Jacobsen for cleaning our carpet.

The young lady's voice you hear answering the Main Street Office phone is Makala Dostal. Makala is a student at WSC and will be working as the program assistant/office manager on a part-time basis.

A thank you to the WSC Dean of Students Office, Curt Frye and Jeff Carstens for giving me the opportunity to speak to the new students and parents at orientation last Friday. It was a great opportunity to welcome them to Wayne on behalf of the business community and Main Street Wayne.

Until next time...

Pondering the important issues

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

There are issues of great social and political import facing Nebraska and the nation in this election year - and they have begun to wear out their welcome.

It is that time of year when some of us in the keyboard-banging trade realize that we have heard enough about important stuff. For awhile, anyway.

There are things to contemplate besides government and politics.

For example:
Why is there a thing on a bag of croutons that says to keep the bag sealed? What's gonna happen? Are the croutons going to get stale?

How does a dog always know when there is a tiny, tiny pill in a big chunk of braunschweiger?

A fellow regarded as "mature" might notice that a passing young woman's skirt really is too short. Two seconds after making that observation, why does the mature guy get a gnawing sense of mortality - as if someone had just walked across his grave?

In a current TV commercial, a little kid in the backseat of a station wagon keeps kicking the back of the driver's seat. The mommie/driver gets out, smiles, and moves the little jerk's seat further back. Question: Why didn't mommie dump a quart of discipline on that kid? Instead, he'll grow up thinking the world is supposed to adjust to his bad manners!

It's fine that Wal-Mart runs ads that boast about how much money the company gives to one charity and another. So, how come it has a pay scale that can leave employees eligible for social services, ranging from subsidized housing to hospital care?

Why do virtually all Americans say "healthy" when they mean "healthful"? As in: "Eat healthy food." If the food weren't healthy, you would be sick for sure, as well as fat! The idea is to stay healthy by eating healthful food.

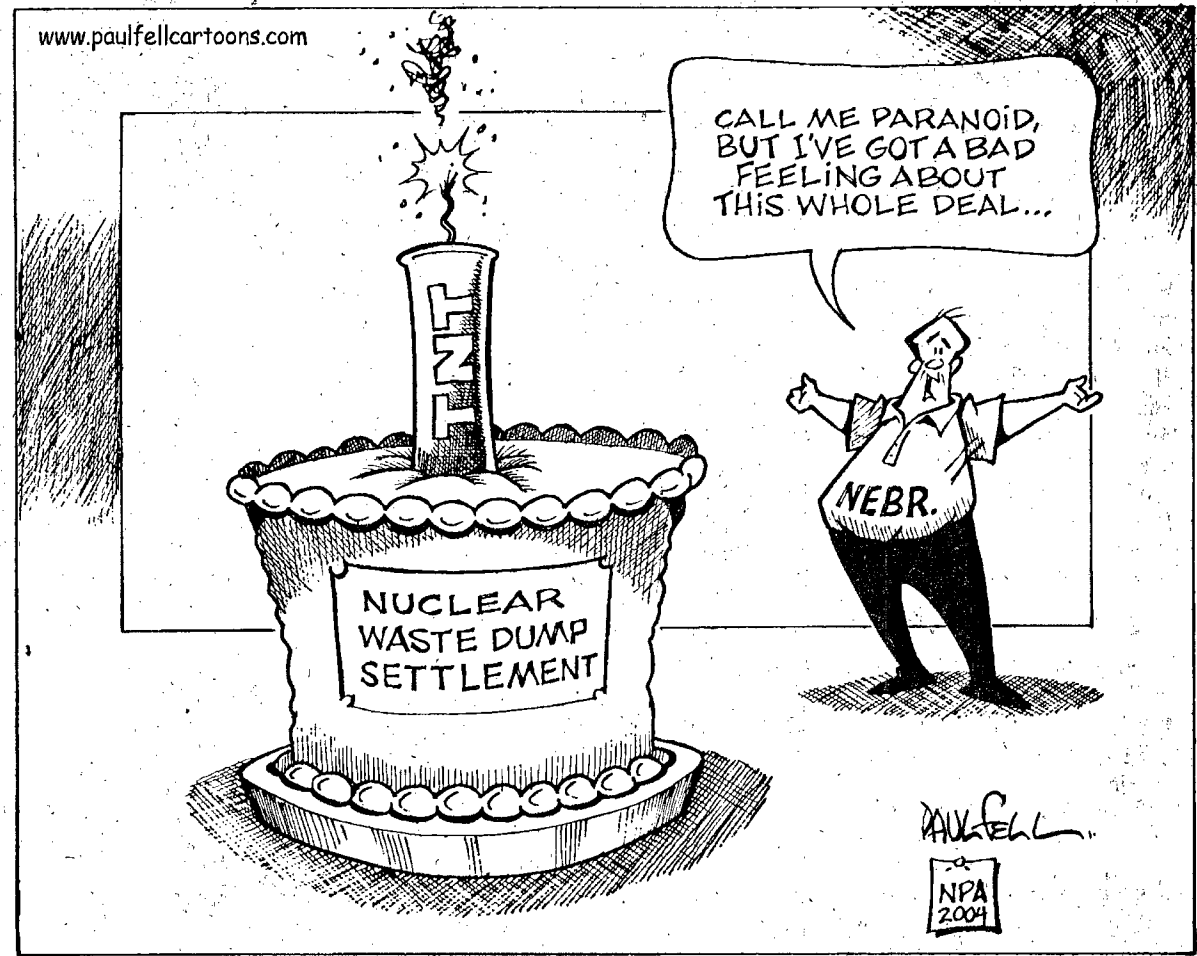

Why is there not one sportscaster in America who knows that "new record" is redundant?

Why are people comfortable with an air-conditioned room temperature in the summer - when the same temperature would have them turning up the thermostat in February?

Why do so many people "Hoo-rah!" when politicians say saccharine sweet things about soldiers, cops, firefighters and teachers - but gag at the prospect of higher taxes to provide them higher salaries?

You spend ridiculous amounts of time sitting at red lights. When you're dead, however, your entire funeral procession is permitted to go through miles of red lights, just so you won't be late to ... do what?

State Officers tout new law that cracks down on improper legal services

Attorney General Jon Bruning and Secretary of State John Gale are cracking down on individuals who improperly offer legal services to Spanish-speaking Nebraskans as a result of LB 315, which took effect July 16.

The legislation targets the use of the Spanish term "notario publico" by a notary public who is not an attorney. Notario publico is the literal translation from English to Spanish of notary public. However, in Mexico and other Spanish-speaking countries, a notario publico must be an attorney or have other specialized training that allows the person to practice law. A notario's legal authority in those countries goes well beyond that of a Nebraska notary.

Under LB 315, representing oneself as a notario publico is now a Class III misdemeanor punishable by up to three months in prison and/or a $500 fine. Offenders also risk the revocation of their notary license by the Secretary of State.

Notary Publics are licensed by the Secretary of State and enforcement of the law is carried out by the Attorney General.

"The unauthorized practice of law by some notaries is not only unacceptable, it is now a criminal act," Attorney General Bruning said. "The new legislation affords us the opportunity to hold accountable criminals who prey on Spanish-speaking Nebraskans. This is an important part of a much larger effort by the Attorney General's Office to protect Nebraskans from fraud."

Secretary Gale said, "We asked the Legislature for this prohibition after hearing of cases of fraud from the public. I will revoke notary licenses that are being abused. We hope that by educating Nebraska's Spanish-speaking population on the difference between a notary public and a notario publico, we can curb the unauthorized practice of law by some notaries."

Attorney General Bruning advises those Spanish-speaking

Nebraskans who have been victimized by a notario posing as a notario publico to contact the Secretary of State's Notary Public Office, the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division and/or Latino Outreach Coordinator Renee Martinez-Junck, who holds office hours in Omaha and South Sioux City, at 402-471-2682 or 1-800-727-6432.

Seat belt use climbs

Fred Zwonechek, Nebraska Highway Safety Administrator, has announced that, according to a recent observation survey, the state's seat belt use rate has reached an all time high of just over 79 percent.

This compares to the 76 percent reported in 2003. The annual scientific statewide observation survey measures use by vehicle drivers and front seat passengers.

"The increase this year, combined with the increase the previous year, means that we have climbed nine percent in just two years. Over 150,000 more Nebraskans are buckling up than did in 2002," Zwonechek said. "The credit for this rests with the many law enforcement agencies across the state and the activities of the Nebraska 'Click It, Don't Risk It' coalition members."

The annual observation survey is conducted in accordance with federal guidelines using 208 pre-selected locations with a mix of both urban and rural roadways. The observations for this year's survey took place between June 7 and July 11, 2004.

"During the same period that seat belt use rates have increased by nine percent, our fatal and serious injury crash rate has declined by 11 percent, demonstrating the importance of continuing to get those remaining non-users to buckle up," Zwonechek added.

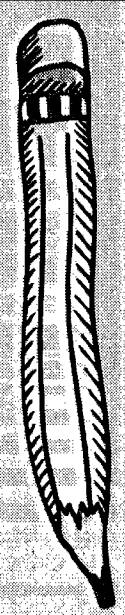

Prior to Nebraska's current seat belt law, enacted in 1993, the use rate was 33 percent. Compared to the surrounding states, Nebraska's 79 percent use ties it for second with Colorado and behind only Iowa with an 87 percent reported use.

Recapping some of the history of the fountain, a WSC bulletin dated November, 1934, shows photographs of the campus and one is of the Formal Garden where West Hall once stood (which is the east addition to Connell Hall in 1938).

The fountain is also shown in pictures in WSC yearbooks in 1959, 1960, and a clear photo of it in the 1964 Spizz.

Through the years, the fountain was moved on campus at least a couple of times. At one time, it was located between Connell Hall and Conn Library and, more recently west of Neihardt Hall (where it stands today).

WEOPA members landscaped around the fountain and lights, provided by the city, were put in to show off the area at night.

Business After Hours is held at the Wayne Country Club

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours was everything that the committee said it was going to be... fun, food and prizes.

Hoots and hollers were heard from the sponsors and guests when Let's Make a Deal on the Hill's "Diamond" Monte Pedersen, aka Randy Pedersen, was introduced to the crowd. Mick Kemp of KTCH added to the crowd's amusement when he provided a special touch to each of the sponsors' commercials.

Randy Pedersen, who was dressed in his best '70s disco garb, stayed true to the Let's Make a Deal format when he pulled a fist full of Chamber Bucks out of his pocket and asked the crowd for items such as a driver's license, tape measure, nicotine patches and Depends. Individuals were then asked to select a wrapped box with prizes behind them. Prizes included: a DVD, coffee pot, blenders, cash, a sandwich toaster, 21-inch TV and humorous "Zonk" prizes.

The Business After Hours committee would like to thank the sponsors who helped make this event a success. They include Jammer's Photography, Medicap Pharmacy, KTCH, Carhart Lumber, Arnie's Ford, State National Insurance, Phelps, Rath & Associates, Dr. Rob Burrows, Tacos & More, Gill Hauling and Quality One Graphics/Trio Travel.

The committee has also extended a special thanks to the Wayne Country Club, Mick Kemp of KTCH and Randy Pedersen.

Jessica Olson, a member of the Business After Hours Committee announced that the November Chili Cook-Off would be the next Business After Hours event and noted that cash prizes would be awarded to the winners.

WEOPA membership includes Virginia Backstrom, Deb Daehnke, Sharon Fleer, Amanda Hank, Jeanne Ann Kardell, Jenn Keller, Lynette Lentz, Carol Marsh, Sherrie Meehan, Ann Milliken, Denise Mostek, Lois Nuernberger, Lucille Peterson, Delphia Riley, Kyle Rose, Linda Teach, Kaye Young, and Lacey Webster.

The group invites everyone to take a moment to enjoy the serenity of the fountain which complements the college campus.

(About WEOPA, it is a professional association organized in 1977 with state NEOPA and national NAEOPA affiliations. WEOPA was organized to benefit educational office personnel in the public and private school system, college system, educational service units, and other educational organizations in the Wayne area. Any office personnel employed by an educational unit is eligible for membership and welcome to join. Anyone interested can contact one of the members and ask to be a guest at a meeting).

Lewis & Clark presenter

William Kloeffkorn, Nebraska State Poet, signs copies of his book, "Sergeant Patrick Gass, Chief Carpenter; on the trail with Lewis and Clark," following his presentation Monday at Wayne State College. He read excerpts from his book dealing with events recorded by Patrick Gas, a member of the Lewis & Clark expedition, including the death of Sgt. Charles Floyd and the celebration of Christmas while camped with the Mandan tribe. Kloeffkorn's visit was one in a series of programs sponsored by the Wayne Libraries, the Wayne United Way, the Nebraska Humanities Council, the City of Wayne, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, the Pamida Foundation, Runza Corporation, Wayne Kiwanis Club, Wayne Lions Club, Wayne Library Foundation, Wayne Optimists, Wayne Public Schools, Wayne Super 8 and Wayne State College.

Celebration planned for 20 years of being in business

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Noting 20 years of business, Euni Diediker, owner of Euni's Palace in Dixon, is planning a celebration on Saturday, Sept. 11.

The day will begin with a Poker Run sponsored by Dixon Fire & town. They told her if it didn't work, they'd join it to their business and open something there.

Numerous people helped build the present bar, many volunteered their time and their talents, wanting Euni to open again, which she did on Aug. 26, 1987.

After the fire, a gentleman told her she could take the insurance money and go elsewhere. "I nearly fell over," Euni said. "I couldn't believe he'd suggest that. I wouldn't leave here; this is my home. The people around here are caring and supportive."

Euni's Palace is a community

Diana, who will graduate from Allen Consolidated next spring, and Drew, who is a freshman there.

In her 20 years in business, she's met people from all walks of life from all over the U.S.A. For example, there are numerous motorcycle clubs that come through. One Omaha group comes the first Saturday in June and has been for seven years.

There are also hunters from all over who stop each season and some eventually bring family members. One group from Michigan calls her every month to Rescue. Registration will be from 9-11 a.m. with the starting and finishing point at the fire hall in Dixon. St. Anne's Catholic Church will serve lunch at the auditorium starting at 10 a.m. This will be a fundraiser for the church.

Main Street will be closed for a number of activities. Euni is hosting a free barbecue beginning at 5:30 p.m. A memorial for 9-11 is set for around 8 or 8:30 p.m. Laurel VFW will be assisting in the program.

Following, a street dance is planned with Cactus Flat's performing. When the band is done, a free-will donation breakfast will be served by the fire department. On Sunday, they will serve again beginning at 8 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Euni is encouraging people to bring tents or campers and help celebrate.

Looking back, Euni signed papers on 9-11-'84 to buy the original bar, which was in the old bank in Dixon, from John and Ann Meyer. She remembers fixing up the building. Ten layers of paint were stripped from the old cooler bringing it down to the original wood and solid brass hinges which really added to the looks of the place. Opening the end of November, she only served food at first as she had to wait until she received her liquor license in January. The building burned down May 2, 1987.

She then worked at the Village Inn in Allen for awhile. Dixon seemed too quiet and Jeff and Julie Hartung, owners of the elevator, wanted to help so they approached Euni with the idea that they would buy the property, build the building and she could pay them back. Having the business there was also good for their business and it was good for the dwelling besides a business," Euni said. "It's a directory, as people stop and ask where people live. It's a grocery store when people get in a bind making a recipe and need sugar, milk, eggs, or there's something going on at the auditorium and they need something. Or, someone needs a loaf of bread to get by until they get to the store. Plus, it's also a phone booth when someone needs to make a local call."

Euni likes to help people out. She has been chairperson for many benefits through the years, many held in Dixon. The biggest one she remembers was in 1988 for the Dempster family who had a 16-year-old battling cancer. Almost $14,000 was raised.

She also helps with Meals on Wheels in Dixon and Concord.

"I wish there were 10 of me so I could spread out to help all of the people who are sick or in need," Euni said. "I feel confined when I'm at work as I have to wait until Mondays, when we are closed, to help. There's just not enough hours in the day to do everything and take care of my family."

Euni's family consists of her three children, Dawn and Curtis Oswald and their three children;

see how everything is going.

"You really get to be close friends with people; those near and far away."

Euni's Palace is a busy place. Homemade pizza is served on Sundays and steaks are served on Wednesday evenings.

Her mom, Betty, has helped out from the very beginning. She fixes and serves food, opens in the morning and takes care of the morning coffee crowds until Euni comes in.

"I've had a lot of good helpers through the years," Euni said. "which includes my dad, who ran errands, etc. He passed away two years ago."

Two helped her for a long time; Nettie Hammer and KimBerly (Blohm) Hansen. Hammer helped her for 14 to 15 years and Hansen for 9 years.

As for the celebration, "I've been planning this since hunting season last year," Euni said. "I've lost some good friends and I decided not to wait."

Euni's slogan is Where real people meet. She said one customer told her that all roads lead to Dixon and she liked that. "Not too many can say they love their job," Euni said. "but I can." Euni thanks everyone for their patronage through the years.

It's time to move on, so let's get on with it

When the reporters gathered at the recent Wayne State media day, we were told to keep our questions concerning football to stick with the present and future of Wayne State football.

I totally agreed with our instructions. It was a smart call by Coach Scott Hoffman and Wayne State officials.

After all, we were there to talk about the 2004 football season, and there's a lot of Wildcat pride heading into this new season.

I can't say the same rule was true for some members of the television media that day.

Get real, guys. If one thinks a 30-second clip on a sports segment is going to solve anything, someone's sitting too close to the TV.

In days leading up to media day, it was obvious media outlets outside this community were interested in the juicy details of this matter, that according to last reports, the college is ready to put it behind them and move forward.

Some of these media hounds were downright rude in their quest to obtain information, causing headaches for people that shouldn't have had to deal with that situation.

In talking with my local media cohorts, we, too, are ready to move on, knowing the situation is behind us and things are working out just fine.

After talking to our publisher, I'm happy to report that we're going to take Coach Hoffman's lead and concentrate on the task at hand and not worrying about what's in the rear view mirror.

That's not to say if there's more that comes from this situation that we won't be there, we certainly are monitoring it.

It's my hope that all this sideshow activity becomes a rallying cry on the field this fall.

I had a player and Coach Hoffman say the phrase, "We're due," during the course of interviews at media day.

I certainly buy into that. This year's seniors represent the first recruits Hoffman brought to Wayne State.

I remember the first time I watched Josh Hopwood play in a state football play-off game at Shelby against the state runnerup, Randolph.

It's funny how some things come full circle, and now it's time to watch Hopwood play some games at the next level.

The ride is just beginning as the 'Cats open their campaign tonight (Thursday) at home against St. Cloud State.

Sweetland, Sutton named club champs

Rob Sweetland and Sandra Sutton were all smiles Sunday as they won the men's and women's championship flights in the annual Club Tournament held at the Wayne Country Club.

Sweetland avenged last year's two-stroke loss to Doug Rose when he posted a two-under par score of 104 over 27 holes to edge out Andy Martin by a stroke. It was Sweetland's second club title as he took the honor in 2000.

Defending champion Rose placed fifth with a 115, while Mike Varley carded a 113 for fourth and 2002 champion Jim Shanks finished third with a 112 on the day.

In the women's championship flight, Sutton claimed her ninth club title, and added to her string of six consecutive titles as she golfed an 80, two strokes better than last year's finish. Her other club title wins came in 1990, 1994, 1995 and 2000-2003.

Sutton's finish was three strokes better than Monica Novak and Amy Harder who each finished with an 83. Novak finished second overall, as her low net score in the championship flight was based on handicap and finished with 72.9 and Harder's net was 75.9.

The women's flight play included Vicki Pick taking the first flight with an 89. She topped second-place finisher Teri Bowers who ended the day with 101.

The women's second flight winner was Amy Schweers who shot a 112, while Jean Loberg took second at 119.

In men's flight play, Jim Nelson captured the first flight with a 77. Ryn Williams was second at 79 and third-place went to John Fuelberth who shot an 81.

Tim Sutton won the second flight with an 81, one stroke better than Tim Fertig. Phil Griess, who also shot an 82, placed third based on net scoring.

The top golfer in the third flight was Adam Person, who golfed an 83. Second place went to Terry Luit (84) and the flight's third-place finisher was Val Kienast (87).

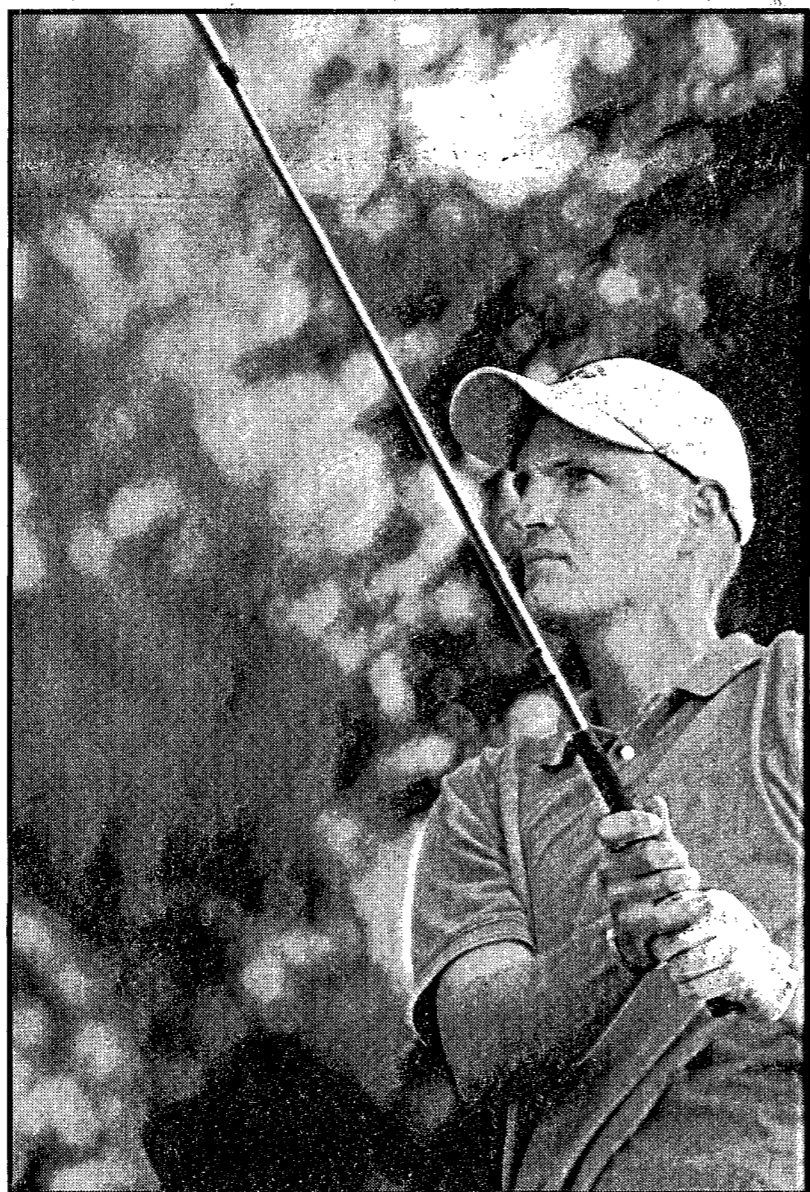

Ralph Etter's net score broke the tie for the fourth flight championship. Etter and Brooks Blohm each fired an 82, however Etter's net score and his handicap finished his game with a net of 67.3 compared to Blohm's 68.3. Third place in the flight went to Mic Daehne who carded an 86.

Taking the fifth flight was Rusty Parker who finished the afternoon with an 88. Parker was followed by Paul Roberts (90) and Steve Meyer (91).

Steve Muir's 91 was the best score in the sixth flight. Dick Hitchcock and Max Kathol each shot a 93, but Hitchcock's net score allowed him to finish second.

Taking the seventh flight was Tyler Frevert with 93, while Casey Schroeder and Bill Kinney finished second and third with 96 and 97, respectively.

Rounding out flight play, Joel Jorgensen finished atop the eighth flight with 101 to defeat second-place finisher Pat Melena by a stroke. Third place went to Swede Fredrickson who golfed a 111.

Olson places at Nebraska State Games

Randy Olson of Wayne continues to bring home the hardware.

Olson, 56, earned three gold medals and set a new state record in the softball throw at the recent Nebraska State Games in Kearney.

He took the gold in the long jump with a jump of 14-foot, 7-inches, the high jump with a 4-foot, 6-inch jump and a softball throw of 225 feet, 8 inches which set the new state record.

He also placed second in the 100-meter dash with 13.6 seconds, and third in the 200 with a 29.9.

Olson earned a national championship at the State Games of America meet in 1999 for a 32 feet, 2 3/4 inch outing in the triple jump.

Earlier this summer at the Cornhusker State Games, he won a gold medal for his long jump, a silver medal in high jump, and a bronze in the 400. He also won a gold in the 110-meter high hurdles and set a new record of 19.3 seconds.

He now qualifies for the National Championship to be held in August 2005 in Colorado Springs and another national meet to be held next summer in Orlando, Fla.

Others finishing among the top qualifiers were Ken Dahl of Wayne, who placed second and Austin Lueth, also of Wayne, in third place.

Qualifiers competed for various prizes offered during the event.

Sponsors for the event were: Arnie's Ford, BankFirst, State National Bank, First National Bank, Stadium Sports, Northeast Nebraska Insurance, Quality Foods, Pac-N-Save, KTCH Radio, Quality One Graphics, Thrivent Financial for Lutherans-Lynette Krie, Wayne Country Club and Wayne Herald/Morning Shopper.

Golf course adds trees with NRD assistance

This summer's projects will have lasting effects for years to come.

The Wayne Country Club recently planted about 30 new trees, thanks in part to a special incentive offered by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District.

The NRD, based in Norfolk, has developed a program to offer technical and cost-share assistance to communities within its district for tree planting projects.

The program offers assistance for up to a 65-percent cost share on tree-planting projects.

The local project included the planting of about 30 hardwood trees at various locations of the city-owned northern portion of the golf course, Ken Dahl, course superintendent said.

Dahl, along with the course's board of director president, Rusty Parker, were presented with a special designation sign and a check for $637.49 payable to the City of Wayne from local NRD representative Merlin Frevert.

The trees will replace some of the course's original, aging hardwoods that were planted when the course location was first established in the 1930s.

Dr. Barbara Black is named Interim Dean at Wayne State

Dr. Barbara Black has been named interim dean of the School of Education and Counseling at Wayne State College for the 2004-05 academic year. She replaces Dr. Paul Theobald, who has accepted a position with Buffalo State University in New York. Black, who has been a faculty member at Wayne State since 1984, has an Ed.D. in curriculum and instruction from the University of South Dakota, a master of arts degree in English from Wayne State College, and a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Throughout 30 years of teaching, Black has taught every level of education, including K-12; community colleges; private institutions of higher education; four-year undergraduate institutions; and at the master's degree level.

Dr. Barbara Black

At Wayne State, she has been instrumental in the design and implementation of the MSE in Curriculum and Instruction, a successful graduate program for teachers who plan to stay in the classroom.

"I am honored to serve as interim dean for this academic year," said Black. "The School of Education and Counseling faculty are committed to serving our students, as well as the people and communities of our service region. I believe deeply in the development of partnerships and connections with K-12 schools, other institutions of higher education, and surrounding communities for the benefit of our students, Wayne State College, and the people of Nebraska."

Black has presented at national conferences on migrant education, at-risk education, and professional development schools. She was a co-presenter at the Symposium for the Education of Hispanic Students in the United States. Her articles have appeared in national professional publications.

The WSC School of Education and Counseling offers both undergraduate and graduate programs with more than 30 endorsement options at the undergraduate level in elementary, secondary, special education, and early childhood education. Four major programs at the master's level are offered, including curriculum and instruction, educational administration (including the educational specialist program); counseling for both school and agency counseling; and special education.

Political and global uncertainties don't impact long-term investments

While the tight U.S. presidential race is a leading factor influencing today's market, a study by the financial-services firm Edward Jones shows the market does well over the long term regardless of who occupies the White House.

In fact, the study by Edward Jones Chief Market Strategist Alan Skrainka shows that in terms of historical market performance, it doesn't matter who is elected president in November or what his party affiliation. Dating back to Harry S. Truman in 1948, the market, based on the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) has increased between 10.5 and 14.5 percent (for periods longer than four years) between the day each U.S. president was elected and the end of 2003. (Past performance does not assure future results and the DJIA is an unmanaged index that cannot be invested into directly.)

"This narrow range illustrates one thing: it's time in the market, not timing the market, that counts," said Skrainka.

"Investors with a long-term investment strategy are urged to look beyond the issues being debated this election year -- the overall short-term uncertainties of oil prices, Iraq, the war on terrorism and the potential for rising interest rates. That's because underlying business conditions are strong," Skrainka said.

"Short-term uncertainties and market volatility are a normal part of investing," said Reggie Yates and Ken Marra, the local Edward Jones investment representatives. "We believe it's a mistake to focus only on the bad news. There is plenty of good news for long-term investors."

Low interest rates, low inflation and low unemployment have contributed to 11 consecutive quarters of economic growth where consumers confidence is higher than it's been in more than two years.

Even more importantly, corporate profits - which drive the market - have continued to expand well above expert forecasts.

"In fact, corporate profits have grown more than 20 percent for four consecutive quarters, something that has only occurred four times in the past 50 years," Skrainka said.

Corporate profits are up while the market is down, making this a great time to buy good-quality investments at attractive prices. "We believe investors who can find the courage to invest during these uncertain times will be well-rewarded in the long run," Skrainka said.

For a copy of the study, please call Reggie Yates or Ken Marra at 375-4172 or 1-800-829-0860.

4-H Youth-Adult partnerships develop new leaders for Nebraska's rural communities

Keeping young people in small communities is critical to the future of rural Nebraska, and early results of a new 4-H youth-adult partnership program offer promising signs for that future. The 4-H Building Nebraska's Future With Youth-Adult Partnerships program encourages young people to become leaders through partnerships and participation in community organizations and local government. "We want to create a tie between youth and communities," said Sandra Stockall, University of Nebraska 4-H specialist in North Platte. "Through this program young people are learning that they can have an impact on their communities, and adults in turn are seeing youth as a community resource." Stockall said youth-adult participation teams were set up in four Nebraska communities — Stromsburg, Hayes Center, Hartington and Wakefield. Funding was provided by the Land O' Lakes Foundation and the National 4-H Council.

"These projects required young people to work with government entities and engage their support for a community effort, including requests for funding," she said. The youth-adult partnerships in Hartington, for example, involved a dozen students from grades 8 to 12 who worked with the city council to refurbish a small, neglected park and negotiated for the purchase of new playground equipment.

Jane Armstrong, Nebraska Cooperative Extension educator in Hartington, said the youths were excited about the opportunity to make a difference in their community, and most have applied for a board membership with either the city council, the chamber of commerce, the city library or economic development.

"They've made their applications, and if accepted they will be board members in every sense,"

Armstrong said.

Brittany Sturek, a sophomore at Hartington Cedar Catholic School and an applicant to the chamber of commerce board, said her group has changed attitudes in the community.

"We showed to ourselves and others just how much we can accomplish," she said. "We didn't know what to expect, and we were surprised that we were able to do something like this for our community."

Sturek said young people are sometimes overlooked in communities, but the park project gave them a new voice and a new community identity.

"Now the adults are looking to the youth for ideas," she said. "We hope that continues."

Wakefield's public library also is benefiting from youth involvement. Amy Topp, extension educator at Wayne, worked with five Wakefield High School student volunteers on the library's summer reading program. The students, however, did more than just read to youngsters.

"They really promoted the program," Topp said. "They were also in charge of facilitating the program, including the selection of books and the preparation of lesson plans and activities."

The Wakefield students and adult volunteers worked for six weeks with 75 children ranging from pre-schoolers to sixth graders. Each student volunteer was in charge of a classroom.

"This was a substantial commitment," Topp said. "In the past, the library always had an adult coordinator. What I saw from these students was a willingness to do things for their community. They've already asked about the theme for next year's reading program and want to get more involvement from their peers."

The Nebraska program was so successful that it prompted a visit to Hartington by Bonnie Bassett, executive director of the Land O' Lakes Foundation. During her visit she toured the Hartington park project and heard presentations from youth participants in all four program communities. She also visited the final summer story hour session in Wakefield.

"It is important for rural communities to take a broader view that young people are tremendous assets, that they have some investment and ownership in these communities," Bassett said. "If you give youth the responsibility to make a community what they want it to be, then they will stay around and help take care of it."

She said the student presentations showed pride in their communities. "A lot of times we see young people as a problem to be handled, or that we need to do something to use up their time," Bassett said. "These young people, made their communities better places, and it gave them confidence. But more importantly, it showed the adults that young people are assets."

Stockall said such efforts will bring long-term benefits. "If we break down barriers and show young people how to get involved, youth and adults together can address community issues while creating future leaders," she said. A training session is planned for January for cooperative extension staff and community leaders that showcases best practices in working with youth-adult partnerships.

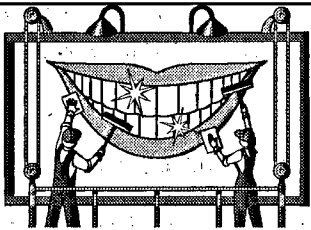

Armstrong said the Hartington program will expand this fall to include all of Cedar County, and Topp predicts there will be community involvement by Wakefield students who have improved their planning and leadership skills.

"Barriers to community leadership are mostly mental," Topp said. "Taking responsibility for what was previously an adult leadership role has demonstrated to these students how one can actively contribute to a community."

4-H is a University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension program.

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Andrew Snead of Wayne has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in academic disciplines.

The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or higher, grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are now eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

school. His name will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

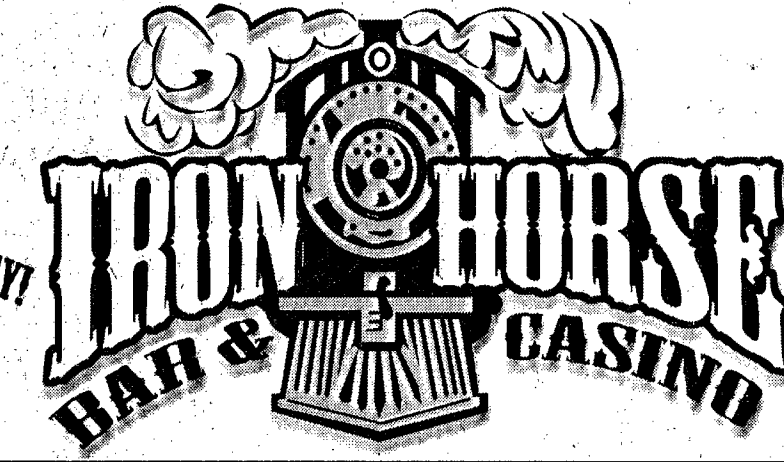

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects All-American Scholars upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the USAA for other honors.

Week was spent being busy

It's 7:30 am on Tuesday, and I leave for work in two hours. Yes, I'm working. This time, it's in our adult day care building, while the regular gal is on maternity leave.

We were kind of been in a whirlwind since arriving home from the Ozarks. We had a couple here on that Saturday evening, and again on Monday. The Murdock Lions had taken orders for Colorado peaches, and I signed up for some. Thankfully, they were ready on Monday, so I could take care of them.

On Tuesday morning, our county End of Life Coalition met at the county extension office. This is an ad hoc group dedicated to getting more advance directives signed and making end of life options more available.

Our animal nutritionist arrived that evening for her monthly visit with Oxbow Pet Products. And the next day, I picked up friend Marilyn from Phoenix at the airport and we had lunch at Rick's Café on the riverfront in Omaha.

We went to the melodrama at Mahoney that night and had fun boozing the villain. In the meantime, the other local B&B owner called to say her washer was broke down and she had reservations for the weekend. Would I take them? I had already turned someone down because we had a lot going on. She sounded desperate, so I said, "okay". Then, she told me they wanted breakfast at 6:30!

On Thursday, we went to Lincoln in the morning and to Plattsmouth in the afternoon, where I did an inservice at the assisted living facility there. Friday morning was devoted to cleaning, especially the room the nutritionist vacated, where the couple from Colorado would go.

Friday at 1:00, we did our thing at Art Chicks for lunch; then on to Omaha for the Women of Faith conference. I won't attempt to describe that, you have to experience it. We were home by 11:00; of course, I was up early on Saturday to prepare breakfast. Then, back to the conference all day.

On Sunday, breakfast again at 6:30, then bake a chocolate zucchini cake for the bridal shower that was taking place here that afternoon. To church at 9:30, home to finish last minute stuff like making the table larger and hiding the stack of magazines on the coffee table!

Our nephew's fiancé was feted by our family and her mother came to meet everyone. Then, it was on to the Lofte theater for the current play. Three of Marilyn's friends came over to finish the cake after the play. They were here from Chicago for the conference.

The next morning, we actually had breakfast at 7:30. We left at noon for the return to the airport, with a stop at the Runza Hut. I have made a convert of my friend, so we always have to have runzas when she is here.

I dropped her off at 1:00, and headed to Methodist hospital to see friend Carolyn from Houston, whose mother is getting PT after a stroke. She is making great progress, and I was home shortly after 5:00. It was BLTs for supper, some laundry done, and in bed by 9:00. I haven't even got to see much of the Olympics. But what I have caught has been wonderful. I think the day care will be a peaceful change! Until next week.

Now is the time to clean up winter weeds

F. John Hay Extension Educator

As the fall approaches and you begin to think more about harvest and Nebraska Football, don't forget about fall weed control. Fall control of winter annual weeds can make a very big difference come spring.

The winter annual weed will emerge in the fall between September and November, overwinter, then quickly come back in the spring to produce seeds and suck needed moisture from crop fields.

Control of these weeds can be done in the spring, but unpredictable weather and soil conditions can delay spring treatment allowing weeds to produce seed or become large and hard to control. All of these spring treatment problems can be solved with fall application, when weeds are smaller and weather tends to be more cooperative.

When to spray in the fall is also a positive. Weeds can be sprayed from late September until early December depending on weather. If there is snow on the ground don't expect good weed control. Many fall seasons in Nebraska have good weather into December which makes it possible for late fall applications to control winter annuals.

One great positive for fall control over that of spring control is the rate of herbicide application. Smaller weeds require less herbicide and thus incur less expense. Common winter annuals like henbit, horseweed and penny-cress can be controlled with just 1-1.5 pints of 2,4-D, or 1 pint of 2,4-D plus 4 oz of dicamba, 24 oz of glyphosate, or 1 pint of 2,4-D plus 16 oz of glyphosate. Before spraying any herbicide check the label for fall application requirements. Atrazine for example is not labeled for fall application in Nebraska. Fall application of herbicides can save you money by requiring lower rates and provide good control of troublesome winter annuals that rob moisture and nutrients in the fall and spring.

Post Spray/ Post Season Cleanup After each use it is important to clean sprayers. Some guidelines to follow should include

- a. Always end the day with an empty spray tank. b. Wash spray tanks with recommended detergents, finish wash with clean water rinse. c. Pick a proper location to clean sprayer. d. Rinse body of sprayer and hoses to prevent corrosion from chemicals. e. Replace all nozzles at once instead of one at a time.

Proper cleanup of your sprayer will prolong the life of the equipment and protect you and your family from chronic exposure to pesticide residues.

Have a great fall season and remember what you do in the field this fall will effect what you do in the field next spring.
