Public Power: It's all about you

"It's all about me" is a popular motto today; however, in public power, the opposite is true: "it's all about you."

'Public power (celebrated in October) is all about you because you own it. You vote for and are represented by an individual who serves on your utility's board of directors or city council and makes decisions on your behalf. This local control ensures reliable service and low rates. In fact, Nebraska has the ninth lowest electric rates in the nation. The linemen, customer service representatives, meter readers and other personnel who work for your utility are your friends and neighbors. We listen to your needs and work hard to fulfill them. We are Nebraskans serving other Nebraskans. Our community involvement goes beyond energy education with schools and consumer groups, to participation in civic groups, leadership roles in community organizations, and support for activities that enhance your quality of life.

Because we live here, too, we are committed to economic development. As public power utilities, we assist the state in attracting new companies and helping 'existing business grow with affordable energy costs and service of the highest quality. The results of these endeavors are economic strength, jobs and revenue, and community growth.

Complementary to this are the generational needs of the state. Nebraska's diverse mix of coal. nuclear, natural gas and renewable energy provide a stable and consistent supply of electricity. We collectively plan for the state's future generation needs and partner with one another in the construction of new facilities. The state's hydropower facilities that helped establish public power in the 1930s remain valuable resources, and the commitment of the Nebraskans who built, owned and operated those facilities is reflected in the spirit and service of those who work for your public power utility today.

Please join us this month in celebrating public power, because it truly is all about you.

> Perhaps the saddest thing about so-called attack ads in political campaigns is that there is every indication that they often work. Always have.

Cartoonist Paul Fell, among the best in the nation, gave a prime example recently when he depicted an attack ad aimed at 1st District congressional candidate Matt Coneally. It had a "scary" Halloween theme.

The political affiliations of those who use or are targeted by attack ads don't matter. The problem is almost always the same, especially for elected officials. It runs from city hall to statehouses to presidential campaigns.

Legislators, especially at the state and federal level, cast hundreds and thousands of votes. Many of them involve measures that include more than one goal. Thus, it is easy to put a spin on any

Consider this example:

A bill would increase taxes or fees in order to increase aid to local governments. The stated goal would be to help local governments avoid the need for higher, local property taxes.

What can any opponent do? Simple.

• If the incumbent voted for the bill, the attack can argue that the vote was to raise taxes.

• If the incumbent voted against the bill, the attack can argue that the vote was against property tax relief.

See?

Questions or comments If the challenger offers tax or pol-Phone Lowell D. Johnson, City icy proposals, the other side can Administrator at 375-1733 or euse the same tactic. mail cityadmin@cityofwayne.org That's just one example of how the deal works. The attack ads might very well contain accurate facts, but without context.

As said before, the saddest thing is that such attacks, whether in stump speeches, newspaper advertisements or those would-be dramatic ads that come over the airwaves, have consistently been shown to be effective.

Their effectiveness has been found to cross party lines and philosophical labels.

Even reporters and editors who understand that the legislative process is important - and should sometimes be explained to give context - couldn't possibly use enough words and space to regularly go into such stuff in depth.

Besides, there is every indication that y'all don't want to read stuff like that when it runs to any length.

The solution?

Hey, this is an election year! That means problems can be defined, but proposed solutions can be vague or nonexistent! Maybe something like this:

"In the coming year, this column will consistently provide, in 25 words or less, and using only simple, declarative sentences, the most efficient manifestations of unparalleled reportorial analysis and explanatory endeavor reflective of universal clarity, in regards to complex, compound issues that are integral to the vicissitudes of contemporary legislative exactitude, that have ever been afforded the literate, conscientiously and continuously concerned element of the American public! (Whenever possible, most of the time, more or less, sort of.)"

Dear Editor:

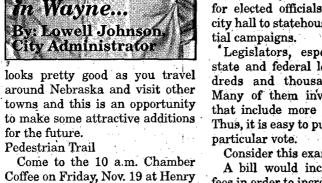

Four points relative to the hold furniture, as Goodwill cannot upcoming election:

Supreme Court Judges who want to make their own laws rather than Congressional level and represent interpret them. Who twist the constitution to their own agenda rather than the way our founding fathers wrote it. We have people who want to take God out of the Pledge of Allegiance, In God We Trust off of our money and the Ten Commandments off of public property. There is much at stake in this election. Gay activities are doing all that they can to change the institution of marriage. We must support candidates who will work to protect traditional marriage so that this institution is defined exclusively between one man and one woman. The battle for the unborn goes on. Pro-life people are beginning to see a flickering light at the end of the tunnel. If we hope to win this battle then we as Christians must take a stand. Since 9-11, everyone is saying God Bless America. You see it on posters in front yards, on bumper stickers and even on signs along the highways. But, why should God bless a nation that seems determined to turn their back on Him. Individuals and even some churches refuse to stand up for biblical truths and to hold to traditional family values, If we really are Christians, if Christ really does live within us then we must take a stand. Knowing the candidates and what they stand for and then voting according to the principles of God is one way to do that, even if it means that we might suffer personally, It is a Born Again believers spiritual responsibility. No candidate is perfect. But there are those who strive to govern according to God's truths and others who simply seek self-gratification. We must be wise enough to sort them out and vote knowing in our hearts that we have done our Christian duty.

think he is ready to leap to the Nebraska wisely and well? Connealy is a lifelong Nebraskan, has grown corn on his farm for 30 years, and has served wisely and well in the State Legislature for a number of years. He has also worked behind the scenes for the Nebraska Democratic Party for over two decades "recruiting and educating candidates" (his own words), and has given key advice to people like our former Governor and Senator Bob Kerry who endorsed him in the primary. Fortenberry says he will promote ethanol and the interests of Nebraska farmers. Who better to have in Washington promoting these things than Connealy, a corn farmer who worked in the Unicameral alongside ethanol lobbyists working towards the same goals? One such lobbyist, a farmer from near Wisner and West Point, came to the Connealy Forum recently at Wayne State College to commend Connealy's efforts. Connealy already has these sorts of relationships, which Fortenberry must build from scratch. Connealy is gifted at consensus building and did so when he led a taskforce in his home county in 1985. They solved a serious flooding, erosion, and bridge destruction problem along a local creek. He farmed on reservation lands for years in Thurston County, and thus knows how to get cooperat between the white community the Native Americans.

State College from having the disastrous budget cut forecast in the fall of 2001, causing some support next Congressman from the First staff layoffs, or the further budget cut forecast in winter 2002, which caused eight young untenured faculty to get "pink-slips" suggesting they might lose their jobs the coming year. Thankfully those faculty are still with us, and most of the laid off support staff were soon back at work. I do know that former WSC President Sheila Stearns and her staff worked hard to prevent these severe cuts. Bless you again, Matt, if your listening to them gave your opponent some ammo for his TV ads. (I should also add that the threat of drastic cuts caused the college to do some long-term streamlining that has worked out quite well, such as contracting with the local police department for security services). I am very pleased that we have had independent individuals like Doug Beureter and Chuck Hagel in Washington who are not afraid to think and speak for themselves, e.g. in their criticisms of the President's rash policies in Iraq. Do we really want the likes of Jeff Fortenberry to replace a congressional veteran like Doug Beureter? Is he worthy of the honor? I think not. Matt Connealy is a thoughtful moderate in the tradition of Bob Kerry and definitely should be our District.

1. According to Kerry and the democrats, ANYTHING and EVERYTHING bad that happens in this great country of ours, in fact the world over, is totally attributable to ONE person - our President Bush. This is ridiculous and absolutely not true!

2. We can't help but like John Edwards as a person. BUT, in the unlikely but possible scenario, that he would be suddenly thrust ' into the Presidency, how serious would World Leaders view the new jovial commander-in-chief? 3. Teresa Heinz Kerry is undoubtedly a very nice person, but in her own words and actions, she does not have the desire, personality or finesse to become the 1st Lady in our White House!

4. A very prominent National-International speaker and spiritual leader has just cited a new issue: If Kerry were elected, he could and possibly would appoint Hillary Clinton as a new U.S. Supreme Court Justice. (She would have to wait another 8 years for the presidency) What a scary thought!

In this "Crossroad for America" critical election, we urge everyone to follow the lead of Democratic Senator Zell Miller and vote for George W. Bush for President! Merle & Donna Ring Wayne

Dear Editor:

It is difficult to sit down and express my feelings on a Christian's duty to vote in just a few short lines. I believe that we are at a crossroads in America. There seems to be two philosophies. One denies God and faith in Him. They believe that obedience to His word has no place in the governing of this nation, while the other believes that God's ways are the very foundation of government.

Those of us who study God's word know from scripture that when a nation honors God with obedience. then God exalts that nation; it is a biblical truth. I believe it is also historically accurate.

We in this country have been rich in God's blessings. But there is a far left in this country who is working very hard to draw this nation away from the truth of God's word.Whether they want to admit it or not, this nation was founded and built by people who believe in Him.

I do not believe that this nation will ever be brought down by another nation, but it could be brought down by internal degradation. Brought down by ignorant and misguided people from within, who hate what God loves and love what God hates.

We in America are faced with

The Wayne Herald, Thursday, Oct. 21, 2004 Quality entertainment can be found at Twin Theatres/ Hollywood Video

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Twin Theatres, Hollywood Video at 310 Main Street in Wayne continues to bring great entertainment to the area with a two-screen theatre, concessions, and video store. Roy Swanson, manager, strives to offer new movies each week, as well as over 800 DVDs, 2000 VHS, and at least 300 game rentals to chose from. Games include X-Box, Game Cube, and Play Station II.

The video store is open from noon to 11 p.m. daily; later if there's a long movie showing.

New box office movies are shown each week. And, for the films not shown on the screens at the Twin Theatre, Swanson tries to get those on tape so people have an opportunity to see award winning films. In order to provide quality movies, Swanson uses Box Office magazine to get an idea of what is coming out each week.

Fridays and Saturdays are the busiest times for both rentals and theatre showings. Bargain night is on Tuesdays with cheaper tickets and concessions offered. A Thursday night special for Wayne State College students was started recently.

Every year, as a Christmas present to parents and children, a series of free movies are shown each weekend beginning around Thanksgiving. This year, those shows are Shrek 2, Elf, and Cheaper by the Dozen. By taking their children to the shows, parents can shop in Wayne and the children can see great movies.

Coloring contests are another fun activity that is offered to children. Swanson offered one recently with the showing of Shrek II and he is currently offering it again with the showing of Shark Tales.

For adults, movies are shown every third Tuesday to State National Bank Century Club members. Due to the number of people, the same movie is shown on both screens.

Looking back, Terry Johnson of Neligh bought the theatre in Wayne from Jack March, long-time owner. Johnson owns four theatres which are in Vermillion, Lemars, Neligh, and Wayne. Johnson worked in the Wayne theatre while he was attending Wayne State College during the 80s. Vermillion and LeMars offer three screens and a video store; Neligh has one screen, a drive-in theatre, and a video store.

Swanson notes it is no easy task to get movies to show at the theatres. They have to go through booking companies to acquire films and with small towns, it takes some doing to get good films in.

"We have to guarantee a print will be busy for five weeks," Swanson said. "Having four locations to rotate it in, we are able to secure box office prints."

He added that they have to report the film's earnings to the film companies who take a large share of the amount. The local theatre is lucky to get 25 percent. The longer a film is shown, the more money the theatre makes. If three or four months down the road a movie company feels they didn't get enough money from a movie that was shown, they can come back and ask the theatre for more. Either the theatre has to come up with the amount they request or they won't get the next release.

Working with the circuit is difficult so Johnson, as well as March, deal with the booking companies. Working with the booking companies is a weekly job and that's why the theatre doesn't know until Monday what's showing on Friday. Swanson is from Pierre, S.D. where he worked in a video store after college. He attended U.S.D. in Vermillion and worked at the theatre there during his senior year. He decided to stay in that line of work and was hired in May to manage the Wayne theatre. Swanson lives in Wayne and is single. He has seven part-time employees working at the theatre; three in college and four in high school. A couple of interesting facts about film is that an average movie comes in 5-9 sections which have to be spliced together on location before the film can be shown. On Thursday nights, film is changed and moved to another location, so that's why they don't give a second showing on Thursday nights.

If anyone has more questions, they can call Swanson at 402-375, 1280 or check online at www.jjtheatres.com. Movies for all four locátions are on the website so you can usually tell what is coming to Wayne Fear is the driving factor that keeps these women staying in their relationships. They see no way to protect themselves. If they report the abuse, their partners will take revenge. Also, their partners may lose their jobs which is often the only source of income. Plus, some women are afraid of the wrath of the extended family if they break up or report the men. Usually isolated because other friendships have been destroyed, women feel their husbands are their only support. Many don't realize there are services available to help them. Often, religious beliefs come into play on the decision to stay.

Sports Class C champions once more

Wayne High claims second title after dominating four games at state softball tourney; Dreams of undefeated season determined by final pitch in championship game

By David W. Carstens Of the Herald

Four shutout games realized a goal of winning another state title for a special group of athletes.

The final chapter of Wayne High's fairytale 34-0 softball season had a story line that was almost unimaginable. As it turned out, the epic tale of the Blue Devils second consecutive Class C state title run will be one for the history books, too.

Wayne 1, Ashland-Greenwood 0 Wayne took an early 1-0 lead against Ashland-Greenwood in Friday night's championship finals game and then played its defensive style of game management until the bottom of the seventh inning.

That's when the plot managed to thicken a bit.

Wayne pitcher Molly Hill faced a bases-loaded, full count with two outs scenario in a cold, windy game at Seymour Smith Park in Omaha.

A pair of consecutive Blue Devil errors allowed two Bluejay runners to reach base at the top of the inning.

Hill went to work and retired the next batter for the initial out, but a subsequent bunt by Ashland-Greenwood's Savannah Laughlin loaded up the bases for the Bluejays. The bunt was the only hit allowed by the Blue Devils in the game.

The next Ashland-Greenwood batter, Jenifer Sloboth, plopped a bunt in front of home plate and Hill led the Wayne defense to force the second out.

As the chilling winds whipped the dust around on Field No. 3, Wayne still found itself with bases loaded and the tension to get the third out grew with every pitch.

lot of times I ease up to get a strikeout, but that wasn't going to cut it. If she would have hit it, we probably would have lost." Hill said she thought it would be much easier to throw one strike than to lose and play another seven-inning game in the doubleelimination tournament.

The strike gave Hill the state's only perfect earned run average for the season and more than two dozen other individual Class C and all-class Nebraska records, with 32 shutouts posted this fall. Wayne's sole run in the championship game came when Jean Pieper fired off a single past third base and proceeded to steal second.

Hill got an RBI single that allowed a determined Pieper to keep rolling until she snuck in to home to score the sole run for the Blue Devils.

Three other shutout games, including a tight eight-inning semifinal contest against Fillmore Central highlighted Wayne's appearance at the tournament.

Wayne 2, Cozad 0

Wayne disposed of eighth-seed Cozad 2-0 in the opening game of the tourney.

Dawn Jensen was tapped for a special honor to catch the ceremonial opening pitch thrown by none other than former University of Nebraska All-American and Papillion-LaVista record-setter Peaches James.

James' name has been mentioned a number of times this season. as Molly Hill has eclipsed several of James' all-state pitching records,

"That was incredible," Jensen commented after being the only catcher to have caught for two of the state's most decorated pitchers within minutes of each other.

Hill extended her string to 500 career strikeouts with 18 alone

Wayne High and Winside will each have teams represented, while Laurel-Concord and Wayne High will have individual runners at this Friday's state cross country meet in Kearney.

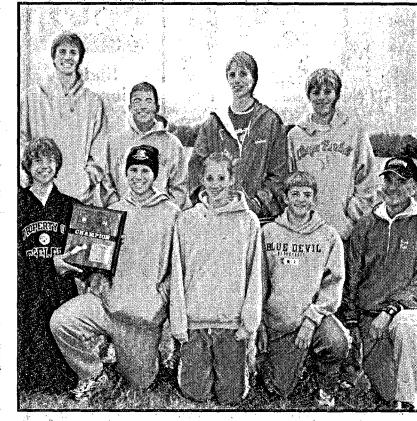

Wayne High's Bryan Fink and Joe Mrsny finished in first and third place, respectively, to clinch the District C-2 team title in the boys race at the Lutjeluche Course near Columbus last Thursday.

Wayne High coach Rocky Ruhl said Mrsny's finish, along with resolve by Fink has helped the team improve over the course of the season.

"We developed the depth as the season went on," Ruhl said. 'Joe has been focused on every race and he's really peaking right now."

Fink finished the hilly 5,000 meter course in a time of 16:20, while Mrsny's third place finish was ran in 16:52. "I was not doing as good at the start of the season but coming to the end, I've been picking it up and Rob Sweetland then called Carroll to her first trip to the plate in the past three weeks.

"I knew I had to get it on the ground and get her in," Carroll said. "I was very focused, but very nervous at the same time."

Carroll used her nervous energy and faced the 1-2 count with her winning RBI grounder to centerfield for the 1-0 victory.

"She's had some experience down here and fortunately she got a good pitch to hit and she hit it," Sweetland said. "That's the way we wanted it."

Wayne 1, Columbus Lakeview 0 The Filmore Central win set up a semifinal matchup with Columbus

Lakeview at noon on Friday. Second-seed Lakeview also had one of the Class C pitching stars as Jaime Moore only allowed six Blue Devils to reach base.

Sara Frerichs opened the fifth inning with a single for WHS and was able to advance to second after a sacrifice bunt by Danica Carroll. Frerichs kept running and first appeared to be out on her advance to third, which would have been the second out for the Blue Devils. Frerichs' pursuit was rewarded as the umpire ruled an interference call against the Viqueens to keep her at third. Jammer came up with a key RBI on a grounder to bring Frerichs home to seal the 1-0 Blue Devil win to send Wayne to the finals game late Friday afternoon.

"We talk so much about how this is a game of failure, so you have got to stay positive," Sweetland said. Ashley Carroll said that part of the equation has been the teamwork between the players.

WSC rugby flies by SDSU in two home contests

Rugby in Wayne is certainly on a steep vertical climb. That was the assessment of Wayne State rugby coach Darrin Barner after watching the WSC men's and women's rugby teams dispose of South Dakota State at the Wayne Rugby Complex in local action last Saturday. Sparked by a flyover by a Russian MIG jet, the WSC men downed SDSU in a 12-0 victory.

Freshman stand out Chris Smith from West Memphis, Ark., scored two touchdowns of 38 and 52 yards. Phillip Bartlett also added a three-point field goal. マンマンないないない Barner said the motivation for the tough win also came from someone who actually wasn't on the field for the game.

Former WSC player Shane O'Connor, who is stationed in a hostile area in Iraq, sent a letter of encouragement to the team.

Barner gave the letter to each member of the team five-minutes before kickoff.

Don't Make This A

Don't make this a familiar sight!

Most stores close because local people did too much shopping out of town. In fact, there are many cases where most of the retail businesses in a community have closed.

If that were to happen in Wayne, who would be left to pay this community's taxes? The empty store fronts wouldn't be able to pay their share.

Who would be contributing work and money toward local groups and projects that we all are interested in?

Keeping Wayne healthy is everyone's responsibility & the results benefit us all.

Blood Bank announces winners of their Heroes Unite campaign

Blood Bank announced winners of their third annual "Heroes Unite, It's About Life" summer donor recruitment campaign.

Cherokee, Iowa was awarded first place honors and received a check for $1,000 to be used towards the purchase of community safety equipment.

The $1,000 gift is courtesy of Iowa-Nebraska State Bank. Wells Dairy also contributed a $150 check for the second place community and a $50 check to the third place community to purchase safety equipment or needed supplies.

"Heroes Unite, It's About Life" is an annual campaign based upon fire and rescue squad membership and a percentage of blood donors registered at community blood drives. This percentage formula allows communities of all populations to compete on an even playing field.

"The Heroes Unite It's About Life campaign was a great success," states Janette Twait, CEO of the Siouxland Community Blood Bank. "The program was designed to encourage area fire,

The Siouxland Community rescue and police to help recruit their community members to become volunteer blood donors.

By donating in the name of their community, a donor would be giving credit to their community's squad. The community that registered the highest number of donors in relation to their squad size would win a sponsored donation of $1000. This money is to be used for fire and rescue equipment.

This year, the second and third place communities were also recognized with a check. All communities are winners and every community has worked hard to encourage residents to volunteer to donate blood during the summer months which are traditionally a challenge to maintain a ready and ample supply. Our area high schools and colleges are not in session during the summer months, so we must rely on our communities and businesses to help maintain the community blood supply."

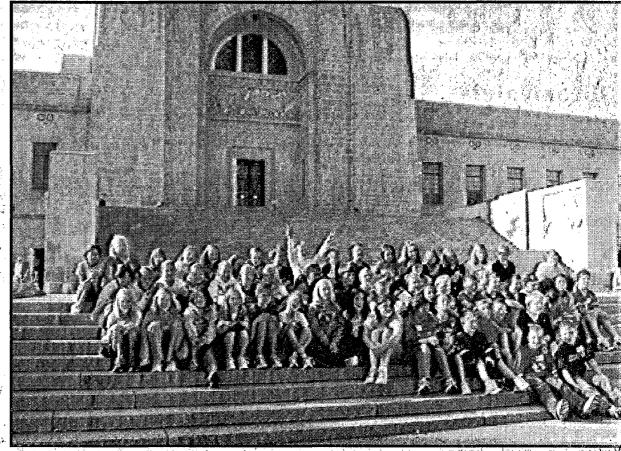

Rounding out the top ten winning communities are second place Le Mars, Iowa; third place Sutherland, Iowa; and in ascending order fourth through 10th place: Wayne, Yankton, S.D., Boyden, Iowa., South Sioux City, Sioux Center, Iowa., Hartington, and Orange City, Iowa. Being included in the top 10 list is a significant achievement considering that over 120 communities conducted blood drives during the program.

The campaign ran from May 1, 2004 to Sept. 30, 2004 and sparked some additional creative promotional ideas from the top communities. Sutherland, Iowa was last year's winner.

Currently, the Siouxland Community Blood Bank provides blood services to 32 hospitals in Iowa, Nebraska, and South Dakota. The blood bank conducts blood drives in over 120 communities from the tri-state region. More than 1000 units of blood need to be collected each week to meet patient requirements. New born babies, cancer patients and accident victims are a few among the many patients requiring life saving blood products each week.

know ways to save on fuel costs as much as possible.

Section C

No one person can stop fuel prices from rising. However, there are ways to mitigate the high price of gasoline through conservation. Extension Educator James Peterson has some helpful sugges-; tions for us. He says the most effective way to lower fuel costs is to drive less. For example, complete all errands in one trip around town. Do not make an extra trip if something is forgotten, but wait until there are a number of errands to be completed. When on vacation, travel to one location such as the seashore, lake or mountains rather than continually driving.

Car pooling also requires less driving. For example, when two people car pool, each person can save 50 percent of the fuel used to travel to work each week. When driving, do not press hard burns. For every five miles per higher almost daily, it is helpful to hard on vehicles and quickly waste

With oil and gas prices going on the gas pedal. Quick starts are hour beyond 55 miles per hour, about one mile per gallon is lost. Driving at 60 miles per hour on a two lane highway is more efficient. than driving 75 miles per hour down the Interstate. If more than one vehicle is owned, use the more energy conserving vehicle as often as possible.

We can also properly maintain vehicles to increase fuel-efficiency, Keep moving components properly lubricated, the ignition and emission systems operating and tires properly inflated. Under-inflated tires are a safety hazard and can cut fuel economy as much as two percent for each pound of pressure below the recommended level. Another helpful suggestion is to consider what you carry in your vehicle. Do not haul unnecessary loads as a heavier vehicle requires more fuel. Don't haul extra weight in the passenger compartment, trunk or cargo areas. Also, do not strap luggage to the top of the vehicle as it will increase wind resistance.

Fuel efficiency varies among vehicles. When buying a car, consider options that may affect fuel usage, such as vehicle size, engine size, cruise control and color. For example, a light exterior color, light interior cloth seats and tinted windows can reduce heat buildup and reduce the need for air conditioning. If more consumers consider fuel efficiency when purchasing a car, manufacturers would have more incentive to increase fuel efficiency.

Our animal nutricho this fall, you just aren't paying tionist is here again, from St. attention. Louis, so I have to get up early to make breakfast for her. We are having bread pudding this morning; it smells mighty good, thanks to the cinnamon.

I went to Nebraska City yesterday, the third time in a month. It's one of my favorite towns in Nebraska, and is so beautiful this time of year. Trees and more trees! And I visited the Book Clinic, which is my favorite book store. The wife of a physician opened it in her husband's former clinic; hence, the name. It's no Barnes and Noble, but I can usually find what I want there, and the gals who run it are so friendly. There's also a small lunch stand, but this time I tried the new coffee shop on Central Ave. I love cappuccino, but $3 per cup just isn't in my every day budget.

Of course, right now, in my own coffee pot, I have some Nebraska blend, which costs $10 a pound at the Mill in the Haymarket. But it is so good, and I only use it for guests. (I'm on my second cup.)

Sometime today, I'm going to get into the cedar chest upstairs and find a crocheted poncho I've had for years. For once, something I hung onto for sentimental

I read an article about it that said it goes along with the new trend in fashion that covers up. As one guru put it; "we had gone as far as we could go in the other direction." No kidding! There has been more skin displayed on the street the last few years than there used to be in the so-called "girlie shows" in the carnival. It was one thing if it was on the anorexic bodies of the film stars. But to see the low rise pants and midriff tops on these adolescent girls with their tummies sticking out was pathetic. It sounds like there has definitely been a backlash and I say, "it's about time."

I do think the originator of the revolt deserves a little credit, though. And you don't read about her in the mainstream press. Agape Press reports that Ella Gunderson, an 11-year-old from Redmond, Washington, wrote a letter to a Nordstrom department store, complaining of how few modest clothing choices were available for girls.

She says she had two very important reasons for objecting to the immodest styles she found on the racks. "They aren't comfortable, and you shouldn't sacrifice your human dignity for the sake of fashion." A clerk had suggested that "there is only one look"; advice she resisted.

The letter found its way up the corporate ladder to the executive vice president, Pete Nordstrom, and drew an overwhelming response. And he promised to offer a wider range of clothes. So far, Ella has been interviewed on the Today show and on CNN about her campaign for more modest clothing style choices. I say, "Hooray for Ella!" Now, to find that poncho.

Hoping for a warm fall

The cool crisp air of fall is a wonderful break from the humidity of summer. Producers may be so busy with the harvest they don't notice the cooler dryer air but when they turn on the fans in those bins the corn sure does.

Drying grain naturally in the bin is an efficient method and well suited to our Nebraska weather. High temperature drying can lead the speed of the drying zone is to stress cracks or heat, damage dependent on a couple of impornot to mention the cost of tant factors. One is the airflow propane. Natural drying can be an attractive alternative.

A major concern with this method is overloading the bin with corn too wet to be dried withthrough the corn as it dries. The corn below the zone is dried to a moisture dependant on the air temp and humidity, corn above the zone has a moisture content about the same as when the corn was added. This corn above the drying zone is in the most danger of spoiling if the drying zone movement is too slow.

rate or the rate at which air can be blown in using fans. At least 0.75 cfm/bu should be used, higher rates will move more air and dry corn faster or allow a higher startCooler dryer air can hold less moisture and thus takes more hours of fan operation to completely dry the grain.

For example this week looks to be in the 60s during the day and down to 40 at night so the average is closer to 50 degrees and the relative humidity with an average closer to 70 percent. With these conditions the moisture content of corn can be dried down to an equilibrit um moisture content of 15.4 percent. A warmer fall will help to pull more moisture out of the grain with less fan time, while a cooler fall will take longer to pull the moisture out of the grain.

Signs will welcome visitors

University of Nebraska and much more! Cooperative Extension 4-H in Wayne County is pleased to announce the placement of four new 4-H road signs.

The signs will welcome visitors to the County with the words "4-H Clubs Welcome You to Wayne County."

The road signs will be posted in all 93 counties and two of them for each county were paid for by funds the Nebraska 4-H from Foundation, which provides program support for the Nebraska 4-H Program. Kirk Jamison, executive director of the Nebraska 4-H Foundation, hopes the road signs will provide added visibility to the 4-H program as well as positive support for young people who are a part of the program. "4-H encourages young people to establish solid values and enhance unique abilities. I hope the road signs will help 4-Hers feel proud of their membership and help others in the community realize 4-H is positively impacting young people in their area."

All youth ages 8 - 18 can explore their interests and enhance their potential through 4-H. This University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension youth development program offers research-based projects for nearly every interest, ranging from web design to rockets, genealogy, animals both large and small, woodworking, fashion, photography

Skipping fall tillage reduces erosion and saves soil moisture, energy

Rising fuel prices aren't the only reason to keep the tractor in the shed this fall. Once the crops are fall tillage to conserve soil moisture, residue and energy, a University of Nebraska engineer said.

Fall tillage dries out soil to the depth of tillage and buries crop residue. With drought across the western half of the state, good soil conservation practices are even more important than normal, said Paul Jasa, Cooperative Extension engineer in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"Even without drought concerns, producers should still consider using no-till to improve profitabiliharvested, producers should skip ty," Jasa said. "Tillage costs include far more than just labor, equipment and fuel -- not a minor consideration with rising diesel prices - but other, less immediately visible to the operation."

Tillage can destroy soil structure and increase erosion and runoff, Jasa said. When dry soil is tilled, it flows easily through tillage equipment, breaking up and burying even more residue than in normal vears Jasa said even where yields were good this year, residue should still be left standing so that it doesn't drift into piles, creating problems with planting next year.

"With the soil moisture losses from tillage and reduced soil structure, yields are lower and produccosts are higher as tillage one cultivation. Switching to a notill system decreases fuel use to about 1.43 gallons per acre, including knifing in fertilizer, planting and two sprayings.

Also, producers who shred their stalks should consider skipping that step this fall, he said.

"Shredding or tilling stalks now will cut them loose and allow them to blow away, he said. "Standing residue, still attached is one of the most effective ways to protect soil from the erosive forces of wind and to capture snowfall." In addition, standing residue decreases the chances for blowing soil next spring. I mangord sines Some producers say that the soil needs to be tilled to open it up to let water in'," he said. "Unfortunately, this just dries the soil to the depth of tillage and the initial water that is let into the soil term use of no-till will allow the soil structure to build and increase its infiltration and decrease runoff."

For more information about using no-till, visit Crop Watch, Nebraska Cooperative Extension's crop production newsletter, on the Web at http://cropwatch.unl.edu/ main.htm#no-till.

increases," he said. "No-till tends to be the most profitable tillage system, especially when there are soil moisture and erosion concerns." The diesel fuel requirements for the typical chisel, disk and field cultivate tillage system is about 4.08 gallons per acre, including knifing in fertilizer, planting and is just replacing what was lost, not adding to the soil moisture reserve."

Also, tillage breaks up the soil surface and destroys residue, making the soil more prone to crusting from raindrop impact.

"Thus the tillage thought to open the soil up actually creates a condition that seals the soil, resulting in more runoff," he said. "The long-

Facts about Amendment 4:

What does Amendment 4 do? A Vote For Amendment 4 would allow 10% of the Nebraska Lottery money to be used by the Nebraska State Fair.

Where does lottery money go now? The majority of lottery dollars currently support the Educational Innovation Fund and the Environmental Trust Fund. These two groups currently receive 49% each. With Amendment 4 they will receive 44.5%. However, these groups will continue to receive the same amount of money even with the passage of Amendment 4. If the percentage goes down, how does it not decrease the amount of money that education and environment groups receive?

There is a new contract that has been awarded to an outside company that operates the Nebraska Lottery. The new company is offering their services for less which is providing new funding of the $2 Million annually to the lottery fund. The Education and Environmental groups are supportive of Amendment 4 because it also protects the lottery money that they are currently receiving.

Does the City of Lincoln have to match 10% of the $2 Million for the State Fair to receive any money?

Yes, the most populous city within the county in which the fair is located provides matching funds equivalent to ten percent of the amount available for distribution to the Board, but if the fair ceases operations, this share would be transferred to the state General Fund. Why have other fairs done better than Nebraska?

Most of the State Fairs in surrounding states are thriving because they have received state support. They have buildings that can be rented year-round to provide off-season revenue. The fairs are strong because their states fund programming and infrastructure. Nebraska has received less than $2 Million in support from the state in the last five years and most of that funding paid competitor prizes for 4-H, FFA and Open Class competitions. However, the Nebraska fair generates over $27 Million annually through direct and indirect economic impact for Nebraska. Lottery money is voluntary, it is not tax dollars. Most other states fund their state fair with general fund money.

makes annual recruiting mission

Nebraska Army National Guard

The Nebraska Army National Guard has met its strength goal for fiscal year 2004. The government fiscal year runs from October 1 -September 30. The Guard's strength is currently 3,402 - two above its 2004 goal of 3,400.

Nebraska recruiters signed up 523 Soldiers in 2004. That figure includes enlisted Soldiers, officers, interstate transfers and military personnel leaving active duty. The Nebraska Army Guard's current strength is the highest it has been since September 2000. Although recruiting numbers are down nationally, this has been an average year for Nebraska, ranking fifth of the last 10 years. Nebraska National Guard adjutant general Maj. Gen. Roger Lempke said meeting strength goals keeps the Nebraska Guard strong. "Although recruiting numbers have received national attention lately, end strength is our ultimate measure of readiness. Recruiting, retention and well-executed training are all important to achieving end strength. I'm proud of the recruiting team and the Army National Guard commanders for their accomplishments in 2004." State Recruiting and Retention commander Lt. Col. Dan Kenkel attributes the accomplishment to a number of factors, including the patriotic spirit of many young men and women in Nebraska, the benefits the Guard offers, and a focused recruiting force.

Guard benefits are better than they have been in years. Among the benefits offered are $8,000 bonuses for certain military occupational specialties, up to $20,000 in student loan repayment and up to 100 percent college tuition assistance.

The Guard is also making a concerted effort to ensure that its force is reflective of Nebraska demographics, in terms of gender and minority populations. The Nebraska Army Guard has increased its numbers of female Soldiers every year for the last 10 years.

That change is also evident in the recruiting force - Nebraska will soon have six female recruiters in its 37 - Soldier recruiting force. As recently as 2002 there was only one female assigned to recruiting.

> i ne state lottery could something like a trust fund for public education, the Environmenal Trust Fund and the State Fair. The Fair's continuing financial problems were central to legislative debate on this measure. It would guarantee the State Fair Board a percentage of lottery proceeds if the City of Lincoln provides matching funds equal to 10 percent of the amount the Fair Board would receive from the lot-

ELECTION PREVIEW

EDITOR'S NOTE Nebraskans will be voting on eight issues when they go to the General Election polis on November 2. So that voters can better understand these important proposed changes to the state Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared a series of reports on these issues. This report briefly defines the issues, explaining their purpose and finally stating the arguments for and against. This is the second report in the series.

ELECTION PREVIEW Perceiving that initiative petition campaigns would put the issue of casino gambling in the hands of voters, the Legislature acted first. The result was a proposed constitutional revision that would allow the Legislature to authorize up to two casinos in Nebraska, No casino could be built without approval from voters in the county where the casino would be located. The Legislature's plan will appear on the ballot with this lan-

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3 A vote FOR this proposal will define casino gaming and permit the Legislature to authorize, regulate, and tax casino gaming at no more than two casino locations. This Legislative authorization is subject to approval by the voters of the county in which a casino is to be located. A vote AGAINST this proposal will not add casino gaming language to the Nebraska Constitution.

A constitutional amendment to define casino gaming and to permit the Legislature to autho-rize up to two casino locations subject to approval by voters in the affected counties and provide for the authorization, op-eration, regulation, and taxation of casino gaming.

SUPPORT: The Venetian Casino of Las Vegas has been the most high-profile supporter of the amendment. Some lawmakers who voted to put it on the ballot saw it as preferable to proposals that would allow for even more expanded gambling. Proponents have maintained, in part, that this approach provides a measured approach to casino gambling without allowing expansion of other forms of gaming across the state.

OPPOSITION: Opposition has come from a coalition headed by Gambling With the Good Life. Notable among those speaking out against it are U.S. Rep. Tom Osborne, Omaha investment guru Warren Buffett, state Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha and Gov. Mike Johanns. Critics have argued that the social ills that may accompany more gambling aren't worth whatever revenues the state might realize. Some contend that federal law would also allow the native American tribes registered in Nebraska to build additional casinos.

tery. However, the plan also includes financial guarantees for public education and the Environmental Trust Fund. The Legislature would retain authority on whether and how much money should go to the Environmental Trust. With fans of the Fair, education interests and supporters of the environmental trust on board. the amendment has powerful allies.

9C

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4 A vote FOR this proposal would provide a conditional guarantee of 10% of state lottery proceeds to the Nebraska State Fair Board for operation of the Nebraska State Fair and specify the distribution of the remaining proceeds. Under this proposal, after payment of prizes and operating expenses and $500,000 to the Compulsive Gamblers Assistance Fund, the remaining state lottery proceeds would be distributed as follows: (1) 44-1/5% to the Nebraska Environmental Trust Fund to be used as provided in the Nebraska Environmental Trust Act, (2) 44-1/2% to be used for education as the Legislature may direct, (3) 10% to the Nebraska State Fair Board if the most populous city within the county in which the fair is located provides matching funds equivalent to ten percent of the amount available for distribution to the Board; but if the fair ceases operations, this share would be transferred to the state General Fund, and (4) 1% to the Compul-sive Gamblers Assistance Fund. A vote AGAINST this proposal will retain the Legislature's authority to distribute state lottery proceeds.

A constitutional amendment to require the proceeds of the lottery operated and regulated by the State of Nebraska to be appropriated by the Legislature for the costs of the lottery, the Nebraska Environmental Trust Fund, education, the Nebraska State Fair Board, and the Compulsive Gamblers Assistance Fund, subject to certain conditions.

SUPPORT: Next to having Nebraska football fans on your side, the coalition that favors Amend-ment No. 4 represents about as strong a base as could be as-sembled. The Nebraska State Education Association (the teachers' union), agriculture in-terests and the City of Lincoln, and all manner of those who trea sure the Environmental Trust Fund are solidly behind it. Throw in the funding it provides to help compulsive gamblers. Lottery revenues rise and fall, but it is still a comfort to supporters to know that they have a claim on whatever is there.
