Of the Herald

July

July didn't start out too exciting but we all know that the biggest event in July in Wayne America is the Annual Wayne Chicken Show, the theme for 2004 was "Lewis and Cluck". Last year's 24th Annual Show consisted of many different activities for people to participate in. There were several contests held such as, the hard boiled egg eating contest, an egg tossing contest, biggest, littlest, and oddest egg competition, as well as contest to see who had the best rooster call and who was a better chicken-clucker?????????????????????. Attendees could also watch the annual Chicken Show parade.

NorthStar opened a new Central Office in Wayne on 1202 East 14th Street. They held an open house in July to show the new facilities. The new Central Office serves a 22 county region.

Eric Schoh, associate athletic director for development at California State University, Bakersfield, was named director of athletics at Wayne State College. He replaced Todd Barry, who resigned in the spring of 2004.

Randy Olson of Wayne attended last year's Cornhusker State Games and came away with four medals.

Several thousand people attended the annual Carroll Tractor Pull on Saturday, July 17th. Pullers and spectators from several states and across Nebraska attended the event.

The Wayne County Fair was also held in July, and also had many fun filled events such as a Tractor pull, live bands, Chainsaw artist, and a Demolition Derby.

August

Northeast Equipment Inc. of Wayne, Laurel, Hartington and Bloomfield held the annual Combine and Adjustment Clinic on Aug. 10. It was held at the WayCo building at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

Information from nearly 5,000 groundwater wells across Nebraska indicated that groundwater in the state declined by one to five feet from 2002 to 2003 in many heavily irrigated areas, information is from the University of Nebraska.

Don Pearson of Wayne led a field of 52 qualifiers in the annual Hole-In-One fundraiser conducted by the Wayne Optimist Club at the Wayne Country Club on August 11th.

WSC WEOPA (Wayne Educational Office Professionals Association) an all-women group, completed restoration on the fountain outside of Neihardt Hall at Wayne State College, the WEOPA contributed over $1,200 and around 320 hours of labor and moved 40 tons of rock and 10 ton of sand to complete the project.

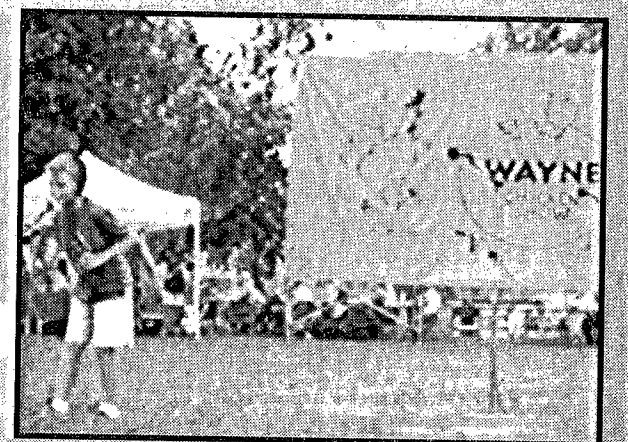

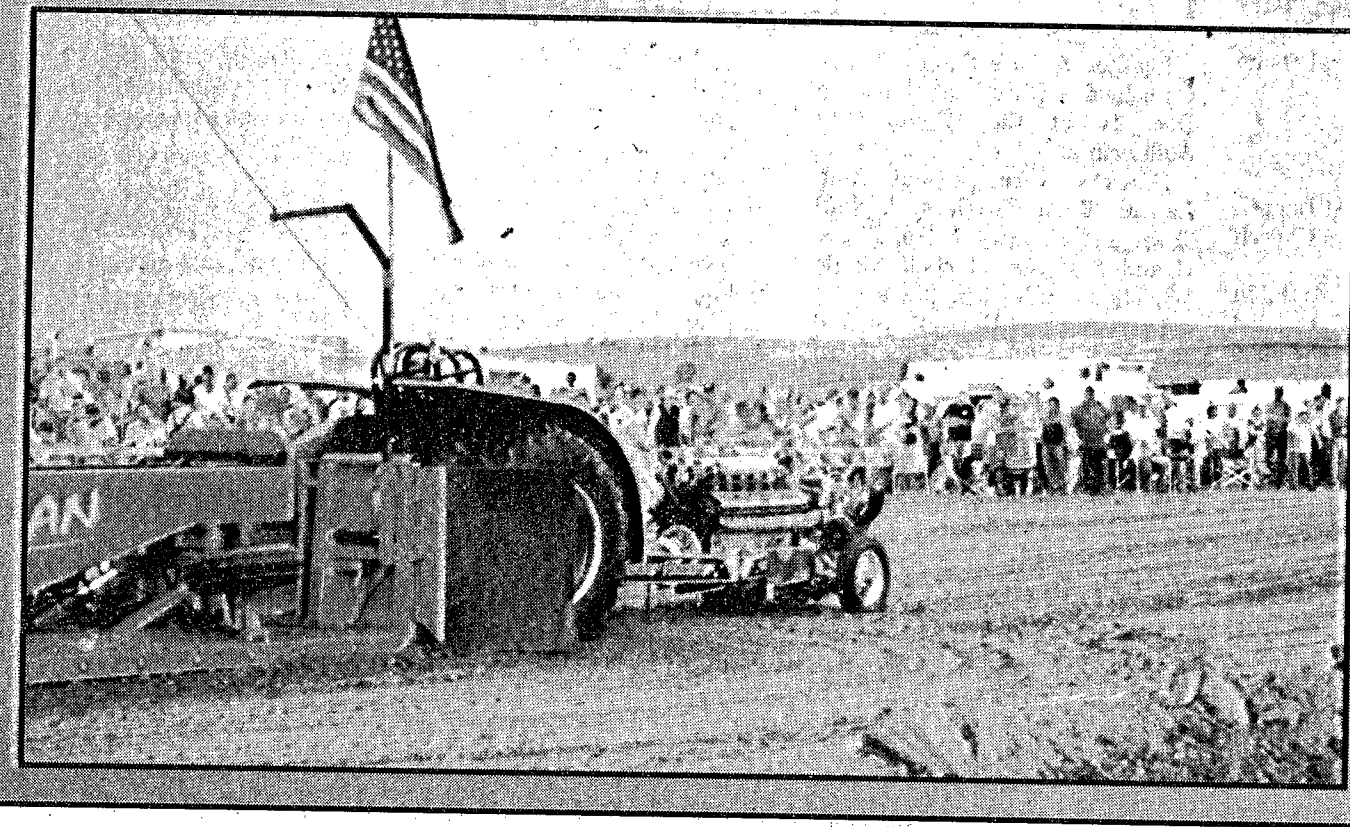

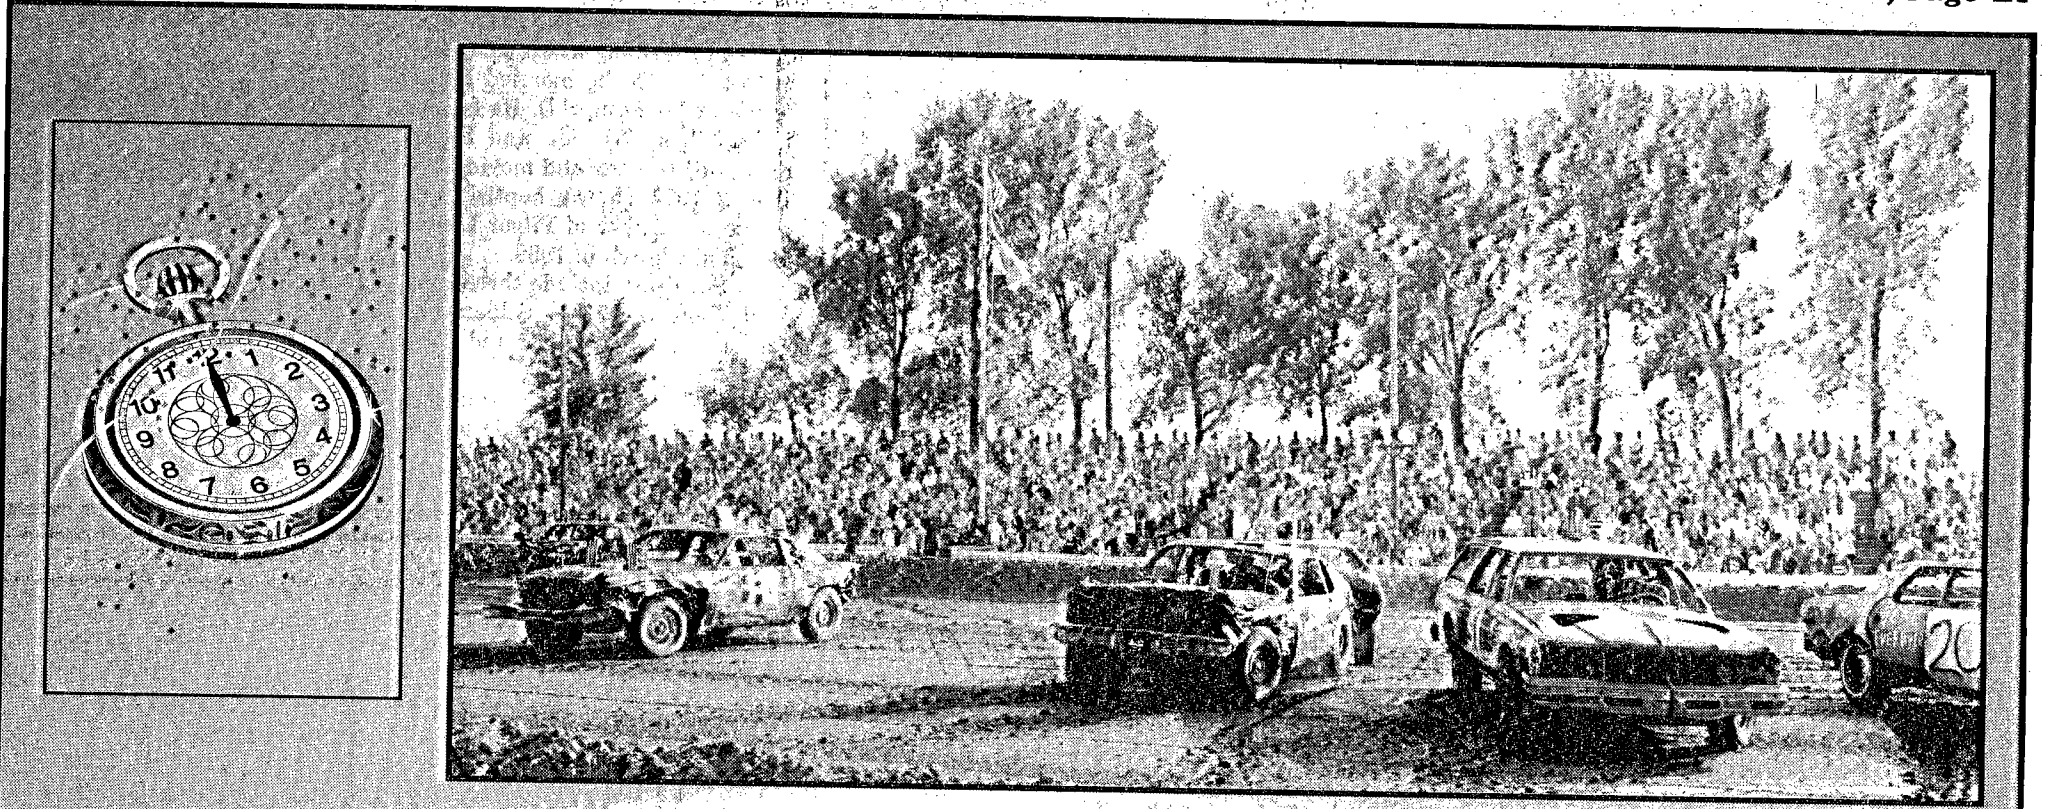

September

As of September a new service is being offered in Wayne. The Agape Pregnancy Care Center which has been operating in Norfolk since 1999 opened a satellite center in Wayne at the Crosspoint Ministry building at 1006 N. Main right across from Wayne State College.

The Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department received confirmation that two birds in the area tested positive for the West Nile Virus. A crow with the virus was found in Laurel and a Blue Jay was found in Wayne that tested positive for the virus.

Sam Singleton, the first Wayne State College football player to rush for 1,000 yards in one season was inducted into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame on Friday September 10th. He rushed for 1,111 yards in his 1970 senior season.

Big events were held

Among the activities held in the last half of 2004 were, counterclockwise, Wayne County Fair Demolition Derby, tractor pulls in the area and the Wayne Chicken Show.

Marine urges children to keep letters coming

By Dianne Jaeger

Winside correspondent

Winside Elementary students in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades have recently been studying about citizenship. As part of their lesson, they began writing letters to military persons whom they are related or they know in some other way. This included approximately 15 military individuals.

U. S. Marine Staff Sergeant Marcus Janssen was a recipient of some of those letters. Janssen, a former Winside High School graduate, has a nephew, Brady Wurdeman, in the fifth grade class of Mrs. Susan Mohr. While Janssen and his family were home for the holidays, he stopped by the fifth grade class for a visit with the students.

Janssen is currently stationed in North Carolina at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station at Havelock. He is a Road Master but has served as a Marine Recruiter and a Diesel Mechanic on other bases. He began his military career seven days after his high U.S. Marine Staff Sgt. Marcus Janssen visited the fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes at Winside Elementary recently. Janssen discussed military life with the students and thanked them for their letters. Above, the fifth graders posed for a photo with him.

Girl Scout Cookie sales to begin

For nearly 90 years, the Girl Scout Cookie Program has helped girls develop skills they will use throughout their lives.

Through this annual activity, girls ages 5-17 learn how to work together as a team, set goals and develop plans for reaching them. Additionally, they cultivate a sense of business ethics, public speaking and interpersonal communication skills and acquire knowledge in marketing, money management and customer service.

"Each and every year I know we are training girls to fill all sorts of roles in the future. They may become the manager of a local bank branch, owner of local business or the CEO of a major corporation," said Vicki Hanus, Director of Cookie Program for Girl Scouts, Prairie Hills Council of Nebraska, Inc.

Throughout the council's 19-county jurisdiction in northeast Nebraska, girls will start selling Girl Scout cookies on Friday, Jan. 7 and continue through Monday, Jan. 24. The cookies will be delivered in early March. All proceeds stay within the council's jurisdiction supporting local troop projects, trips and local community needs.

Now in its 92-year, Girl Scouting cultivates values, social conscience and self-esteem in girls while teaching them life skills to succeed as adults. In Girl Scouting, girls discover the fun, friendship and power of girls together.

Girl Scouts, Prairie Hills Council serves over 2,300 girls in northeast Nebraska and is one of five Girl Scout Councils in Nebraska.

Among these troops are the Allen Troops, #245 and #386. They are headed by Megan Kumm and Janet Noe.

Burial will be in the Concord Cemetery in Concord. Schumacher-Hasemann Funeral Home in Laurel is in charge of arrangements.

Jacobs recounts adventures

I am off again to explore and see what new experiences are waiting to be discovered. But this column begins with a quiet sadness, as the story of the earthquake and tsunami in Asia continues to unfold.

I am certain locations where I once slept or engaged with local people have disappeared. My mind drifts back to the bamboo shack where I spent five days, just yards from the Thailand beach in Phi Phi. Or to when the Thai fishing family who spoke not one word of English, insisted we come to their house to feed me and my traveling companion as part of the celebration for the ending of Ramadan.

I think of the young children we played volleyball with, who laughed at how poorly I played the game. I have no way of knowing about these innocent people whose names I've forgotten, but whose kindness lives on within me. I can only hope they are safe.

I received an email from an Australian friend who told me about her son who was on one of the islands in Indonesia. Apparently he was on the beach and saw the ocean receding. Fortunately, he was wise enough to understand what it meant and made his way to the highest ground as fast as he could run. Shortly afterwards the waves came to cause havoc.

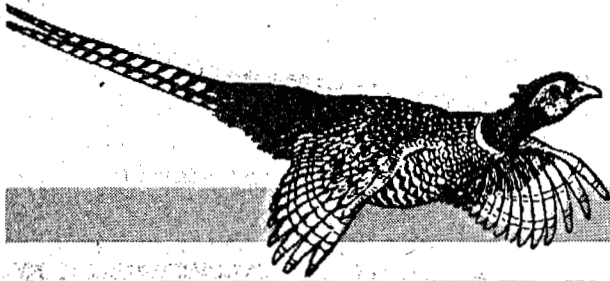

It seems more like a science fiction movie, then a reality of nature - and how I wish it was. A part of me wants to jump on a plane and go help. I know there is little I am able to do from here. But what little I can do, I do with full heart. Money will be donated to an organization I trust. And in Paris, France I made my way to the Church of Saint Mary Magdalen. A huge cathedral that looks from the outside more like a Greek temple than a church. With the stone angels looking down upon me, I lit a candle for those caught in the tragedy. Although I cannot help directly, I can help in spirit.

In a way it has brought back some of my memories of Sept. 11th, 2001. In Australia I felt very far from home and I felt the helplessness of wishing I could do something to help. I will never forget the kindness expressed to me by the Australians - the outpouring of concern and care for me and the country I call home.

It is in our darkest hours that our greatest qualities must shine and carry the day. We care. It is how we express our hope that along with the challenges of today, a better tomorrow will come. Caring unites us all as a common humanity.

For the next three weeks I will be in France and Denmark. Taking you along on a short journey. It is my hope that the future will be bringing brighter tales. DEAN JACOBS is a freelance writer and photographer who loves to travel. He can be reached at deanjacobs4u@yahoo.com, www.travel4life.org.

Looking for information

Dear Editor,

I am looking for a small, but significant, bit of history.

Your paper and its wide readership has been suggested as one of the best venues, considering the fact that I have searched as many sources as I could think of, including many, many pages of the Wayne Herald microfilm files in the city library.

In Greenwood Cemetery, just a short distance in from the front gate, is a small Chapel building. I, and others, consider the Chapel to be the centerpiece of the Cemetery. Although it is used very little, it is still the first thing folks see when entering the front gate.

In my many hours of research, I can find no history of that building. I would like to ask our readers to help if they can. Some folks have told me that it was probably built in the late 1930's. One person told me "it was there in 1940." Up to this point, that is as much as I can learn.

I would hope that someone reading this paper would know a little more about the Chapel. Any small bit of information will help. Anyone who might know when it was built, someone who helped build it, information about how it was paid for, who designed it and what were the first intentions of the building, please contact me. Photos would be a real plus.

Greenwood Cemetery is an interesting place. All of the residents are interesting, all are important and all are still loved by someone. All are a tribute to the community that they, individually, played a role in building.

Any information about the Chapel that anyone can forward to me will help complete a little more of the history in our community cemetery.

Steve Gross,
1028 Emerald Drive,
Wayne, Neb. 68787

Main Street Focus

From all of us involved with Main Street to all of you in our community and beyond, our wish for you is a healthy and happy 2005.

Main Street Wayne has held its annual meeting and our new officers are Sandra Gathje of Tacos & More, Chair; Diane Vovos of NE Nebraska Insurance is Vice-Chair; and continuing on as Treasurer is Craig Walling of Phelps, Rath, and Associates. Reggie Yates of Edward Jones and Kate Lutt of Children's Collection will be sharing the Secretary's job.

Other Board members include Marie Mohr of Swans, immediate past Chair; Irene Fletcher of Legends; Mark Ortmeier of the Magic Wok and Chuck Parker from Wayne State College's School of Business and Technology.

The main Street Manager's position remains open pending the completion of current collaboration meetings and possible merging with the Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries.

At the annual meeting and at this week's meeting, the four committees - Organization, Design, Promotion and Economic Restructuring - submitted their annual reports and reported on their goals for 2005. Much has been accomplished during the past year and the committee appear to have ambitious goals for the coming year that should help to make downtown and all of Wayne a better community. Doing these reports and setting goals are sound business practices that provide direction for each committee to work toward. But they are also done in preparation for the annual visitation and evaluation which is conducted by the Nebraska Lied Main Street Corporation to which we are affiliated.

Our Main Street Program is incorporated and is affiliated with the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program which is dedicated to providing Nebraska communities with the opportunities to strengthen local pride and downtown business districts and to revitalize historic downtown districts by utilizing the Main Street Four Point Approach. The Nebraska program has been active since 1994 and Wayne came aboard in late 1998.

Together with many other Main Street communities, we are learning that the future of Main Street will likely be determined by the community's ability to find a sustainable economic purpose. Without economic vitality, our goals of building a better and more attractive and busier downtown may not be achievable. Profound changes are occurring within America's retail and service sectors that are directly affecting the historical economic underpinnings of rural downtowns and we at Main Street Wayne have begun to meet these challenges head-on.

Our merchants, building owners and local government officials are learning how to promote our town and the downtown business district; how to make the buildings look more attractive and functional; how to market our wares and compete with box stores and malls 30, 40 and 100 miles in every direction; and how to attract new customers and better serve the ones we now have.

Restoring downtown Wayne to the glory days of old is a complex process and cannot be accomplished through a single project or in a single year. Small projects and simple activities over many years will lead to a more sophisticated understanding of the revitalization process and will help develop skills among our business people and volunteers that will help solve more complex problems and difficult projects that we face in Wayne.

We have many advantages in Wayne. We have very good people and volunteers, but we can always use more volunteers - if you want to volunteer your time and talent, talk to a Board member listed earlier in this article. We have outstanding city officials who have an interest in seeing the downtown revitalized and re-energized and who have supported us over the years. We have a very good rural college that can provide us technical expertise in almost every area that needs development.

Working together, the public and private sectors of this community, can marshal complementary resources that can maximize the impact of a downtown revitaliza-

Community First

Happy New Year to everyone. I hope everyone has a healthy and prosperous new year. It would be outstanding to have each and every business have a good year, plus welcome a new business or several businesses to Wayne.

January will be busy with the regular meetings of the Chamber boards and Wayne Industries boards' meetings. The Legislative Taskforce, the Special Events Taskforce (twice), the Retailers Taskforce and Chicken Show taskforce are all meeting in January. They are all important, so if you are on one (or more) of these groups, we'll see you there. Please check the website and the newsletter for schedules.

On Sunday, Jan. 30, the Annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet will be held at the Frey Conference Room at the Student Center on the campus of Wayne State College. The theme is "Teamwork... the Foundation of Our Success." The evening will get underway at 6 p.m. with a social hour, entertainment, and this year, a silent auction. The dinner will get underway at approximately 7 p.m. with the Citizen and Educator of the Year Awards being presented. It is a nice evening to be with friends and the business

Capitol View

Debating the definition of terms

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent

Undergraduates argue passionately about philosophy, politics, art and, that old standby, the meaning of life.

The most irritating phrase in such an argument is issued (as previously noted in this space) someone demands: "Define your terms!"

Another two hours will be lost. A current "define your terms" scuffle in the state capital could, however, prove quite revealing.

The issue of moment? Beer gardens and topless dancers.

Quick: Define beer garden. While you're at it, define outdoors.

Lincoln's new ban on cigarette smoking is aimed at dousing the burning of tobacco products in most places, including bars.

A guy who runs a strip joint on the edge of the downtown area figures he can get around the ban.

"I got plans," the fellow said recently.

He cites an exception in the anti-smoking ordinance for "beer gardens." He wants to build a beer garden with eight-foot walls around it for summer use. Strippers and smokers could legally do their respective things. No problem.

However, he also wants to sufficiently enclose and heat the beer garden to allow hot dancing when it is cold outside. That's when exotic dancers could be subject to chest colds. At least.

The local health department and city officials say the plan will be verboten. The department, they say, can promulgate regulations to prevent it.

The entrepreneur says details of the anti-smoking ordinance were approved by voters, and that bureaucrats ought not be able to tamper with it.

The temptation to close this first column of the New Year with a pun shall be avoided; even though that legitimate literary device has long had a place in the very bosom of American letters.

Meth Legislation a step in the right direction

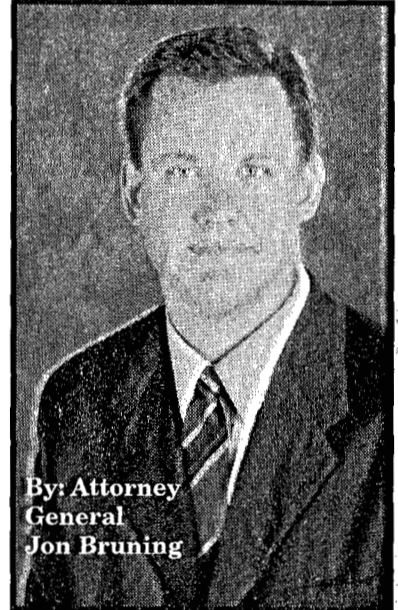

Meth use, production, trafficking and related crimes pose an enormous threat to Nebraskans, and we continue to work hard in the Attorney General's Office to combat the drug's spread.

Last year, the Legislature recognized the importance of fighting meth crimes by adding two prosecutors to our drug and violent crime unit to assist county attorneys and local law enforcement with prosecution efforts. While prosecution is critical, we must also devise new and innovative ways to stop these crimes before they start.

I joined Governor Johanns in announcing a four-point legislative proposal that is the logical and necessary next step in the war against meth. The bill specifically targets dealers and manufacturers, not the teenager who makes the terrible mistake of trying meth. It toughens penalties for drug crimes involving firearms, brings penalties for meth equal to those for cocaine, and adds meth to the list of exceptionally hazardous drugs. It also restricts the sale of products containing the tablet form of pseudoephedrine.

First, under current law, the use of a firearm during a violation of the state's drug laws is a separate Class IV felony with a sentence range of up to five years in prison. The penalty can run concurrent with the drug sentence, making it irrelevant. This change is essentially the same as the enhanced penalty for dealing drugs on school grounds - it bumps the penalty up by one classification.

By Attorney General Jon Bruning

Second, the bill aligns meth penalties with those already imposed for cocaine trafficking. The premise of this piece of the legislation is that a criminal can currently have more than a pound of meth and receive the same penalty as someone who possesses 28 grams of cocaine. It just doesn't make any sense.

Third, the legislation adds methamphetamine to the definition of an exceptionally hazardous drug, which means it poses a heightened risk of death or serious bodily injury. The chemicals used in the final meth product are more likely to lead to cancer and Alzheimer's disease.

Chemicals used to manufacture meth are also extremely volatile. They have been known to cause near instant death from inhalation and frequently lead to intense explosions that level entire buildings.

This change will bring Nebraska in line with the DEA and FDA, which already define meth as an exceptionally hazardous drug.

Finally, the bill requires any product containing the starch tablet form of pseudoephedrine to be sold by a pharmacy and stored behind the counter or in a locked display case. Anyone purchasing such a product would be required to show identification and sign a logbook as part of the purchase. Liquid and gelcap products containing pseudoephedrine are excluded from the restrictions and will be sold just as they are currently.

This initiative is an important step in the right direction in the fight against meth cooks and traffickers. Working together, we can eradicate this dangerous drug from our communities.

people in the community. We hope you'll make plans to attend.

Tickets will be on sale at the Chamber Office, beginning on the 10th of this month. The cost of a ticket is $18 per person.

The proceeds from the silent auction I mentioned will go toward funding a scholarship that we award to a student attending Wayne State College. In the past, many Chamber members have generously donated items as door prizes for the banquet. This year, we ask you to donate something for the silent auction instead. Please contact the Chamber Office for details... call 375-2240 or e-mail waynechamber@hotmail.com

$25,000... that is how many Chamber Buck dollars were purchased by businesses and individuals the past year. I know I sometimes belabor the point, but that is $25,000 spent right here in Wayne

... and that benefits everyone. The only change in 2005 regarding Chamber Bucks is that they will change color this year. It DOES NOT affect the Chamber Bucks you may have right now. The ones you have in your possession right now are good until June 30 of this year. The new color will go into effect in March. It is our hope that you will enthusiastically continue to use our Chamber Bucks program.

The Legislative Taskforce will have their first meeting of the new year next Tuesday, Jan. 11 at the Coffee Shoppe. The Nebraska State Chamber of Commerce 2005 Legislative Caucus will be held in Lincoln on Thursday, Feb. 3 at the Cornhusker Hotel beginning with registration at 9 a.m. There has always been a group of individuals from the community who have attended the one-day session.

For more information, call the Chamber Office. This week the state Chamber of Commerce Office will be releasing the legislative issues they feel are most important to the state's Chamber Offices, and in turn, for the business communities in each of those locations.

You should be receiving your Chamber newsletter soon. Please read and then share it with someone else. Thanks to all who have renewed their Chamber membership already.

Until next time...

Winside Elementary School fifth grade students listened as Staff Sgt. Marcus Janssen told them about the life of a Marine. He encouraged them to be thankful for veterans and their service to our country.

Marine

school graduation, going to California for basic training. He has also been stationed in Kansas, Mo., and spent time in Japan. He expects to be deployed to Iraq in August or September of 2005. He has been in the Marine 13 years.

He began by discussing with the class the importance of citizenship to our country and explained why the United States is currently fighting in Iraq to help liberate the people there. He then opened the discussion with questions from the students. One asked him if he was afraid to go to Iraq. He answered, "No, because I know what to expect there and that is what I've been trained for. It's our job to go to protect our country and its people so I'm somewhat anxious to go. I am a little afraid for my family while I'll be there."

They asked what he liked best about the Marines and what he disliked. "When I first joined the Marines, I enjoyed living in the barracks with all the guys. It was sort of like living in a college dorm. Now I enjoy seeing the new recruits learn how to do new things and develop into professional marines. When you go to boot camp they teach you how to do lots of physical things like climbing up walls and ropes. They teach you how to make your bed, clean your space, to shine your shoes, and wear your uniform properly. They also teach you how to run. That's now probably the part I dislike the most. We still run every week from 3-5 miles at a time. I'm now 31 years old and my knees aren't as good as they were when I was younger."

Janssen has an impressive display of medals on his uniform that the students wanted to know about. He explained some were for special achievements, for doing something above and beyond what was expected of you, some for good conduct, some were National Defense medals for time spent in other countries, and one was for being a recruiter for three years.

They wanted to know what his daily schedule was like. "We start about 8:30 a.m. with meetings until about 9:30 a.m.," Janssen said. "Then, we change into our exercise clothes and run and exercise till about 11:30. We go to lunch then about 1 p.m. when we go to our assigned jobs on the base until about 4 p.m."

Janssen answered many more questions from the students and gave them a lesson on telling military time. He encouraged the students to continue their letter writing to those serving our country because they really appreciate getting those letters, even if they don't know you personally. These letters help them take their minds off the stress of their daily jobs for a little while and it lets them know that people back here care and are thinking of them.

He also encouraged the students to remember to say "Thanks" to their grandpas, uncles, aunts, cousins and any other veterans they see for the time they gave serving our country to keep it safe and free so we can enjoy the many blessings we have daily.

Janssen is the son of Richard and Georgia Janssen of Winside. His wife, Debra (Sievers), was from Wayne and they have a three-month-old son, Tristen, whom he introduced to the class.

American Red Cross gives updates

The American Red Cross announced it is sending an initial $30 million in aid to the affected areas hit by the tsunami. Of this, $25 million will help pay for relief food supplies for the victims of this disaster and the remaining $5 million will be used for non-food relief items, such as hygiene kits.

Contributions continue to pour in for the relief effort, and as of 7 pm ET on Dec. 30, the American public had generously pledged $43.7 million to the American Red Cross International Response Fund. Contributions to a relief organization like the American Red Cross will allow the organization to provide immediate relief and long-term support through supplies, technical assistance and other support to those in need.

The International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, along with national societies like the American Red Cross, are working in partnership to provide relief and aid to those affected by this tragedy. With a disaster of this magnitude, many international humanitarian and non-government organizations are coordinating relief efforts.

On Dec. 29, three American Red Cross relief workers were deployed from the United States to the affected regions. In addition, a four-member Emergency Response Unit (ERU) team, specializing and trained in relief supply distribution, were deployed Dec. 31, 2004, from the American Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, DC

The focus of the work of the ERU and all the American Red Cross team members will be to distribute emergency aid supplies in a safe and dignified manner to those who need it most. The group of four left from Washington, DC, for Sri Lanka and brought one ton (2,000 lbs) of supplies with them to make it through a minimum of one month of operation.

The ERU team who left included: Matthew Parry from Springfield, Va., Ron Matthews from Ames, Iowa, Kathryn Courville from Longview, Texas, and Stacy Ragan from Washington, DC.

To make a donation: www.redcross.org or 1-800-HELP NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Or, contributions can be sent to your local American Red Cross chapter, 112 E. 2nd Street, Wayne, NE. 68787, 402-375-5209.

WSC men slip to 4-7 after St. Cloud loss

The Wayne State men's basketball team picked up back-to-back losses to Nebraska-Omaha on the road last week and against St. Cloud State at home on Sunday evening.

Nebraska-Omaha 77, Wayne State 59
The University of Nebraska-Omaha extended its current winning streak to ten games in a 77-59 win against Wayne State in the Burger King Holiday Classic at South Dakota State in Brookings, S.D. on Dec. 29.

The Mavericks jumped out to a 12-2 lead and extended the advantage to 29-8 before WSC started to chip away to trail 35-24 at intermission.

A three-point shot by WSC's Troy Malone started the second half and the Wildcats were able the close the gap to 39-30, before the Mavericks broke the game open with a 14-0 run.

Brett Cain led the Wildcats in scoring with 10 points and was 5-of-6 from the field. WSC was 42.1 percent in shooting for the game.

Nebraska-Omaha 35 42 - 77
Wayne State 24 35 - 59

Wayne State drops game in overtime

For the second time this season, Wayne State felt the pain of one-point loss to the Wildcat's northern neighbor.

The University of South Dakota snatched an 80-79 overtime win from WSC as Meghan Woster hit a free throw with 2.3 seconds remaining in the extra frame.

The victory by the 24th-ranked Coyotes dropped the Wildcats to 11-3 and snapped Wayne State's six-game win streak that started after the last time the team lost to USD by a point at the Dakota Dome on Dec. 3.

"One thing you can't beat sometimes is luck," Wayne State coach Ryun Williams said following the loss. "Tonight was one of those times."

The Wildcats posted a 12-2 advantage in the opening four minutes of the game, but a three-point scoring spree got the Coyotes back into the game with a 20-17 WSC lead with 11:05 in the first half.

The Wildcats held up with a 39-31 lead in the final minute of the first half, but a three-punter cut the advantage to 39-34 at intermission.

USD sank 15 of 28 treys on the night, including a stellar 6-for-6 outing by former South Sioux City Cardinal Jenni Flynn who nailed a three-pointer with one second left in regulation to knot the game at 68-all to send the contest to overtime.

Flynn ended the night with a game-high 25 points.

Wayne State held a 44-36 lead shortly after halftime, but USD nailed a flurry of shots from behind the arc to mount a 61-52 to lead.

WSC went to work and put together a 15-2 run to sneak back with a 67-63 lead in the last 90 seconds of regulation.

The Coyotes sliced into the lead when Woster hit a basket with :58 seconds to narrow the WSC lead to 67-65.

Wayne State's Kristen Humphries put the Wildcats up 68-65 with one of two shots from the foul line, but the Coyotes brought the ball down court and Flynn's trey tied the game at 68-all.

Both squads traded leads in overtime and WSC's Ashley Arndorfer made a layup in the last nine seconds of the period to tie the game at 79-79.

Woster drove down the floor and was fouled under the basket to earn a trip to the foul line.

Her first shot glanced off the rim, but she connected on the second attempt to earn USD the victory.

Wayne State was led by Erin McCormick who scored a season-high 22 points.

Nicole Gruntorad and Humphries both finished with double-doubles on the night. See OVERTIME, page 6

Practice steps to change eating behavior

Many people make New Year's resolutions to lose weight or eat healthier. It is one of those resolutions that almost always is on my list. Practicing healthy eating behavior is important, but it requires hard work and motivation to change long-term habits. Many eating behaviors have been practiced since early childhood, and, thus, are more difficult to change.

Be sure to consider trouble spots or barriers that hinder changes in eating behavior and develop a plan to overcome these obstacles. Remember, take one step at a time. Don't try to change too much at once since it can become overwhelming and lead to giving up. To be successful, the eating behavior change needs to be a long term change.

It might be helpful to think about the Stages of Change theory, which details five stages in changing eating behavior.

•Stage one: Pre-contemplation or resistance. During this stage, people are not ready to change eating habits or don't feel a need to. You might have been thinking about this while eating those "holiday goodies."

Sandy Preston
Dixon County

•Stage two: Contemplation or semi-ready stage. People think about changing habits, but aren't sure how. It is a stage to learn how and why you should be making a change.

•Stage three: Preparation or getting ready to change. During this time, people want to change and are ready to make it happen.

•Stage four: Action or ready stage. People take action to change eating behavior almost on a daily basis.

•Stage five: Maintenance or routine. At this point, the change has occurred and becomes part of daily life. Depending on how difficult the habit was to achieve, you may still find that there is a desire to "go back" to the old habit. This is especially true on long term behaviors such as eating. Keep reminding yourself of the benefits.

This theory can be applied in making long-term changes to eating behavior. Select a desired habit to be change and determine which stage is present. This serves as a starting point. Build a case for why the change is important.

What health benefits can you get for eating healthier? This can help you move to the "action" stage, and stay at that stage. It may be helpful to ask others for support. Supporters can aid in change and hold one accountable to their actions to achieve change.

Remember, don't give up. Progress is gradual and sometimes can move backward. Keep goals in mind to continue moving ahead.

RECEIVE SUPERIORS

Allen's One Act members have been busy through out November and December. Twenty three students participated in the Conference and District 1 Act play contests in November. The group is co-directed by Richard Lacy and Connie Roberts.

At Conference contest at Wayne State College, the group received a "Superior" rating and were ranked third. At District contest at Verdigris, the presentation received a "superior" rating from each of the three judges and were ranked fifth.

Eight Allen cast members were recognized for Outstanding Performances. These students were Diana Diediker, Alyssa Uldrich, Codi Hancock, Alicia Gregerson, Michael Bock, Samantha Bock, Carla Rastede and Luke Logue.

In December, the group held a public performance at the Allen gym.

Avoiding post-disaster scams

In the wake of the Tsunami that hit many parts of Asia this week, scam artists may appear trying to take advantage of Americans' eagerness to donate funds to the relief effort.

To assist with inquiries about Tsunami relief, the BBB Wise Giving Alliance has posted tips on disaster appeals at www.give.org, the Web site of the national charity watchdog affiliated with the Better Business Bureau system.

In addition to the referenced disaster giving tips, the BBB is also reminding donors that only donations to U.S. based charities that have charitable tax exempt status will be deductible as charitable gifts for tax purposes. Avoid foreign-based entities that may be difficult to check out. Donors should be wary of any charity that is inexperienced in carrying out relief activities but is suddenly announcing a new effort to address the Tsunami victims.

The Bureau advises that well-intentioned efforts can be misplaced. There are probably a number of local churches or other community organizations across the U.S. that may be organizing to help the Tsunami victims. As with all other disaster situations, relief charities prefer financial contributions rather than donated goods so they can purchase items and supplies that are needed. The collection and delivery of inappropriate items can clog airports and delivery channels and delay more vital items in getting through to disaster victims.

Reports on local charities are available through your Better Business Bureau. Always check out a charity before donating. Call 402-391-7612, 800-649-6814 or go to the Bureau's Web site at www.bbbnebraska.org or www.bbbwiowa.com.

Carlson, and Gloria Evans won prizes.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 11 at Esther Carlson.

BAPTISM

Our Savior Lutheran Church of Wayne was the setting for the Dec. 16 baptism of Tristen James Janssen, son of Marcus and Debra Janssen of New Bern, N.C. Pastor Bill Koeber officiated during the Sunday morning worship service. Tristen's sponsors are Wayne and Dana Purser of California. Surrogates for the Purseres were Tristen's aunts, Becky Wurdeman of Wayne and Mindy Connor of Arcadia.

A baptismal dinner was held afterwards at the church. Tristen was born Sept. 25, 2004. Grandparents are Richard and Georgia Janssen of Winside and David and Joyce Sievers of Wayne.

Plays holiday music

A few members of Austin Brown's band class from Pender traveled to Wayne Head Start to play some holiday music to bring in the new year.

January is National Volunteer Blood Donor Month

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank announces that January is "National Volunteer Blood Donor Month". This annual, month-long observance provides the Siouxland Community Blood Bank an opportunity to pay tribute to past and present blood donors, and to extend an invitation to donate blood.

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank counts on community members to help prepare for the blood needs of tomorrow by encouraging volunteer blood donations.

"The seasons continue to change, but one thing remains the same, the need for blood," said Janette Twait, CEO. "There's no better time to donate than National Volunteer Blood Donor Month. Donating blood saves lives and without the generosity and commitment of donors, there simply would not be enough blood for many patients," states Janette Twait.

Your next opportunity to donate in Wayne is Jan. 11 from 1 to 6 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church.

To be eligible to donate blood individuals must be at least 17 years of age; however there is no upper age limit as long as the donor is in good health. In addition donors need to weigh over 110 pounds and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days. A photo I.D. is required at the time of registration.

For more information about contact the Siouxland Community Blood Bank or blood drives in your area, call 712-252-4208, 1-800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org

Frey to judge art competition in Columbus

Carlos Frey of Wayne will judge entries in the Ernestine Quick Memorial Exhibit and Competition which is held annually at the Columbus Art Gallery. The exhibit opens Tuesday, Jan. 4 and runs through Feb. 5. The opening reception will take place on Sunday, Jan. 9 from 2 to 4 p.m.

The exhibit and reception are free and open to the public. The Columbus Art Gallery and the Columbus Area Arts Council are sponsored in part by a basic support grant from the Nebraska Arts Council, a state agency. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, noon to 5 p.m., and Saturdays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Frey will judge the competition prior to the reception, where he will give a final critique of the artwork. Frey has been assistant professor for 10 years and is now a professional portrait painter. He received a bachelor's and master's degree in fine art from the University of Kansas.

All of the work shows a wide range of artistic expression and everyone should find a piece in the show that they love.

The gallery has invited over 300 Nebraska and area artists to participate in this year's exhibit. New entries are coming in every day.

The work entered in the show exhibits an array of talent and artistic points of view. Included are two and three-dimensional pieces of artwork, many of the artists' work are available for sale.

The Columbus Art Gallery & Shop is located at 2504 14th Street in Columbus. The telephone number there is 402-563-1016.

The Wayne Herald

Winter has arrived!

ICE! Much more treacherous than snow. We have it on the ground here, with snow coming. And we drove in it last Saturday, with white knuckles and prayers. I think winter has arrived. After all that nice weather last week, it's been a rude awakening. I worked outside with just a sweat shirt on last Thursday. On New Year's Eve, we had guests from Ogallala and Wisconsin. They were celebrating a birthday at Mahoney.

We stayed up long enough to see the ball drop, which was only 11 p.m. here, and then hit the hay. I had all the presents loaded in the van after supper. Saturday morning, I served breakfast at 9 a.m., which gave me time to get our bags packed and loaded, too. We left at 10 a.m., which should have given us plenty of time to get to Norfolk. Mike kept an eye on the weather forecast.

They were saying ice around Blair, so we turned west from Fremont on 30 and headed for 81.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

I stopped at the McDonald's in Columbus and almost fell in the parking lot! It had been slick before then, but now it was hazardous.

Not knowing what lay ahead, we started for Norfolk. It was a very long trip, averaging 25 miles an hour. There were 18 wheelers stuck going up hills and all vehicles moving very slowly. I thought to myself, "if anyone has an accident, the rescue squads could not even get here."

Thank the Lord, we did arrive safely, and only about an hour later than planned. Ann and Max outdid themselves, as usual, and we feasted on certified Hereford steaks that were delicious. The house was totally decorated for the season. There was even a clock that played a carol every hour. We had a wonderful day.

Then we slid to the motel, as the Kant house was full to the seams. And we slid back there for breakfast, and left for home about 1:00. By then, the roads were clear, and we got back with no problem.

Yesterday, there was a glaze on everything here. And our friends from Winnipeg, who spent Monday night in Ogallala, ran into it on the interstate. They said they knew how bad it was because the trucks were even going slowly! And I guess from Lincoln on, there were all kinds of vehicles in the ditch, some even on their tops.

They are headed north this morning, so they should be ahead of what's coming. We cancelled two appointments, and will stay close to the Farm House. And, watching the devastation from the tsunami, we are not complaining one little bit. It does seem as if Mother Nature is disturbed.

As our old friend, Harvey, used to say, "we never should have walked on the moon!" Happy New Year!

Livestock Market Report

The dairy cattle sale was held Monday at the Norfolk Livestock Market. The market was steady on the four head sold.

Crossbred calves - $125 to $175.

Holstein calves - $100 to $150.

The sheep sale was held Monday at the Norfolk Livestock Market with 49 head sold.

The market was higher on fat lambs; untested on ewes and steady on feeder lambs.

Fat lambs - 110 to 150 lbs., $94 to $97.50.

Feeder lambs - 50 to 75 lbs., $125 to $140; 75 to 100 lbs., $100 to $110.

Ewes - Good - $80 to $100; medium - $50 to $75; slaughter - $35 to $50.

The feeder pig sale was held Monday at the Norfolk Livestock Market. The market was higher on the 256 head sold.

30 to 40 lbs., $40 to $45, higher;

50 to 60 lbs., $50 to $60, higher.

Butcher hog head count at the Norfolk Livestock Market on Tuesday totaled 463. Butchers were 50¢ higher.

U.S. 1's + 2's, 230 to 260 lbs., $47.75 to $48.40; 2's + 3's, 230 to 260 lbs., $47 to $47.75; 2's + 3's, 260 to 280 lbs., $47 to $48.40; 2's + 3's, 280 to 300 lbs., $44 to $47; 3's + 4's, 300 lbs. +, $40 to $43.

Sows - 350 to 500 lbs., $40 to $42; 500 to 650 lbs., $42 to $45.25. Boars - untested.

Soybean rust - another problem

This is the beginning of a new year with many new opportunities awaiting college graduates, new parents, new job transfers and yes, new problems for soybeans.

It doesn't seem to end. One problem is solved for weed control with options of RoundUp Ready soybeans and another new pest problem seems to replace it. The 2003-2004 new soybean problem was the soybean aphid as it hit many fields in northeast Nebraska.

In 2005, another new pest is going to be soybean rust, and, even though it has not been actually found in Nebraska, it is only a matter of time before it makes it to the area. Since it is new to this area, it is not known when the disease will get to the fields or how severe the damage will be. There are monitoring fields set up in Nebraska in order to know when, where and if soybean rust enters the state from the south.

Del Hemsath
Extension Educator

Soybean rust requires green tissue to survive so there is no overwintering of the disease spores this far north. It is suspected that the rust will move northward as the southerly winds carry the spores to the green fields and allow the rust to establish itself in the fields. The weather conditions are going to be the determining factor in how serious the disease affects yield.

Another problem is that there are several established diseases that look very similar to the Asian soybean rust, increasing the requirement for scouting and knowing what to look for in the fields.

The good news is that there are several fungicides approved to use on soybeans if 2005 brings the new Asian rust problem to soybean farmers, but it is best to wait for alerts to the progress of the soybean rust movement. Be sure to attend programs that will be held this spring in several locations. Those who attend private pesticide training will receive updates on soybean rust.

Call the extension office near you for the latest information on programs that offer information on soybean rust.

Northeast Arboretum to hold annual meeting

The Northeast Arboretum located at the University of Nebraska Haskell Ag Lab near Concord, will hold its annual meeting on Jan. 15 at 11 a.m.

Jim Locklear, Director of the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum will be the featured speaker beginning at 11. There will be a lunch at noon followed by a business meeting to discuss the future of the arboretum, elect board members, establish the plan of work for the year, and review the 2004 year.

The arboretum began 15 years ago as a dream of Steve Rasmussen and area residents, some of whom are still very active in the support of the arboretum. Many improvements have taken place through the years, this meeting will celebrate those years.

New members are welcome and encouraged to attend. For more information, call 584-2234 and ask for Del Hemsath.

Crop management winter programs to be offered

University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Crop Management Winter Programs in February and March will provide producers and agribusiness professionals the latest information on weed management, corn rootworm control and digital agronomy.

The training sessions include in-depth information from Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources faculty and staff, the agricultural industry and others.

For more information or to register visit the Web at <http://ardc.unl.edu/cmwp.htm>, call (402) 624-8000, fax (402) 624-8010, e-mail cdunbar2@unl.edu or contact the ARDC, CMDC Programs, 1071 County Road G, Ithaca, Neb. 68033.

Fees include lunch, refreshment breaks, workshop materials and instruction manuals. Early registration is recommended as some sessions have limited space and preregistration ensures adequate resource materials are available day of workshop.

Program dates, times, locations, titles, discount cost/regular costs and topics follow:

•Feb. 4 and Feb. 11, Corn Rootworm Distance Education Workshop. Day one is from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m.; day two is from 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Locations are at the Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead, Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk and at the Adams County Office Building in Hastings. Cost is $35 for the Norfolk and Hastings workshops and $45 at the Mead workshop. Lunch will be available at the Mead workshop.

CCA credits are pending. Participants must attend both days of this distance education workshop. Day one topics include: corn rootworm fundamentals, biology and weather; corn rootworm situations; 2004 corn rootworm control efficacy trials, and a question-and-answer session. Day two program includes: issues associated with corn rootworm management including soil insecticides and seed treatments, YieldGard Rootworm corn, adult corn rootworm suppression, variant western corn rootworm, extended diapause, management of corn rootworms in 2005, and a question-and-answer session.

•Feb. 17, Integrated Weed Management. 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead, $65 before Feb. 10, $75 after. Participants will learn the scientific principles of integrated weed management and applying them in practical field situations.

Five CCA credits or one graduate college credit will be granted. Workshop participants also will study weed science issues, such as weed management strategies to minimize weed resistance to Roundup.

•Feb. 25, Digital Agronomy for Increased Yields and Profits, West Central Research and Extension Center at North Platte; March 1, Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead; March 3, Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk, $65 before Feb. 15, $75 after. This one-day workshop at three locations begins at 8:45 a.m. and ends at 4:30 p.m. with concurrent, hands-on training sessions using the Hybrid-Maize corn production simulation and WeedSOFT weed management programs.

Seven CCA credits have been applied for. Maximum enrollment for this workshop is 30 at each location.
