Governor awards $1.4 million in grants to assist 16 Nebraska communities. Five communities will receive grants to repair or update existing water and waste water systems. Eleven planning grants are being awarded to assist other communities in planning for future local development.

Among those receiving these grants was the city of Wayne. The city was awarded $21,000 to develop a comprehensive plan.

"Investment in the infrastructure of our rural communities is important not only to the vitality of these communities, but to the overall economic health of our state," Gov. Heineman said. "These grant's will help to remove barriers to growth and serve as a springboard for expansion."

Gov. Dave Heineman has announced those things have come to fruition, and is a collaborative effort involving: DED, a lot of new property ownership around, and its time to make our plans for the next 10 years and this will really help us out," said Wayne City Administrator Lowell Johnson.

> The funding will assist communities with repairs to streets and sidewalks, provide more reliable water/sewer service and assist with future planning efforts, paving the way for future economic and community growth and development.

These grants are part of Nebraska's annual allocation of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. NECC-WSC announce partnership

History was made in higher education in Nebraska Friday with the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding between the two-year Northeast Community College (NECC) of Norfolk and four-year Wayne State College (WSC) of Wayne to build a commuter campus in South Sioux City.

Northeast president Dr. Bill Path of Norfolk announced the history-making agreement before the document was signed by Dr. Path, Dr. Richard Collings, president of WSC, and Stan Carpenter, executive director of the Nebraska State College System (NSCS). Dr. Path said the memorandum details the proposed construction of a campus where students can take their freshmanand sophomore-level courses from Northeast and then take junior and seniorlevel or graduate-level courses from Wayne State College, all in the same location in South Sioux City.

The Board of Trustees for the NSCS and the NECC Board of Governors signed a similar resolution Thursday supporting the partnership. The proposed NECC-WSC campus will be located on a 55-acre site along Highway 77 next to the planned Wal-Mart SuperCenter in South Sioux City.

"This is an incredibly exciting day for us," Dr. Path said. "February seems to be the month for exciting announcements by Northeast Community College. It is almost one year to the day that we signed the Memorandum of Understanding with South Sioux City officials to acquire land for a Northeast Community College campus here in South Sioux City.

"At that signing ceremony, I promised to bring more partners to this endeavor," he said. "And I couldn't be more proud or feel we've made a better choice than to partner with Wayne State College. Because we share the South Sioux City service area, we will make an incredibly strong team that can only lead to success for our graduates."

"We at Wayne State College look forward to this exciting collaboration with Northeast Community College," said Dr. Richard Collings, WSC president. "This partnership will enable us to better serve the residents of the region by

We, and all the Main Street programs in Nebraska, appreciate their efforts in attempting to explain the merits and economic impact that Main Street brings to the various communities participating in the program. We are hopeful that the legislators are just as keenly aware of the need for Main Street programs as an economic development tool in our street and downtown in top physistate and we would like to see Main cal shape, capitalizing on its best Street grow and prosper.

Leo Anmann, provides an overview of the Wayne Main Street Program and also gives cumulative statistics, since the program started in Wayne. It provides proof of the success of the Wayne program. More than 7,000 hours were volunteered, fourteen building facades were improved or rehabbed with a cost of over $450,000. There was a net gain of 16 new businesses with a net gain of 72 new jobs. A total of $638,069 was invested to make downtown a better place in the last six years. And there is much more to come in the future.

In our last two articles we attempted to explain the work to the Promotion and Organization Committees in our Wayne Main Street's "Four-Point Approach." Today we will look at the work of the Design Committee. The Design Committee is headed by co-chairs Jeff Morlok of Otte Construction and Gary Van Meter of Mines Jewelers. Other members include Sandra Bartling, Providence Medical Center; and Ann Nolte, First Realty. Much of the Design Committee's work has been assimilated into the city's TEAM 15 Committee. Jeff Morlok is the overall chair of TEAM 15.

When Wayne Main Street was first organized, the Design Committee held community meetings to get the input and feelings of our citizenry on how downtown Wayne should look. Attending these meetings were representatives from a Minneapolis architectural and community design firm. They took these ideas back home with them and drew up streetscapes that they brought back with them at a follow-up meeting. During this time, community citizens had an opportunity to view the streetscapes and to give further input. The drawings were then updated and are still available in the Main Street Office. Many of the ideas are being incorporated by the TEAM 15 Committee.

The neat thing about all this work is that at the time it didn't cost us a penny for the consultants. But with the state budget cuts of recent years, these services now cost money. Some of these services include Facade Renderings, Streetscapes, Design Guidelines to promote the proper historic look of our community and its buildings,

So, if you are a business in need of these services, please contact Jeff or Gary to get the ball rolling. Capitol View

Will Nelson jump the fence?

By Ed Howard

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

Do you suppose there might be another move afoot among Republicans in D.C. to persuade Nebraska Sen. Ben Nelson to come over to the GOP side of the aisle? The notion isn't far fetched when you consider that President Bush did everything but cut a TV commercial for Democrat Nelson during a recent visit to Omaha.

Bush praised Nelson in terms that could (and probably will) be cited and quoted and published and broadcast in Nelson's expected 2006 re-election campaign.

"I'm proud that Sen. Ben Nelson is here," Bush told the audience of more than 10,500 in Omaha. "He is a man with whom I can work, a person who is willing to put partisanship aside to focus on what's right for America!"

A Republican thinking about running against Nelson might read that darn-near endorsement and say: "With friends like the president, who needs political enemies?"

Bush wants Nelson to support the administration's plan for revising Social Security. The president has looked to Nelson for support on any number of issues, and received it on lots of occasions.

Bush and Nelson - and everyone else in Washington - know that enactment of those Social Security revisions is about as likely as the president backing off his effort to cut subsidies that provide disaster relief to farmers. Bush also knows Nelson isn't going to back off his own support for those disaster payments and some other agricultural programs.

So, what's the deal?

Earlier this year it was obvious that the administration wanted Nelson to take the post of U.S.

partly because Nelson's departure from the Senate would certainly have put another Republican there, strengthening the GOP majority. Nelson declined consideration for the job.

The president and other GOP leaders still want and need more Republicans in the Senate. If Nelson were to switch, they would get one. If Nelson wins re-election next year, what's so bad about that for the president? Nelson isn't the doctrinaire conservative Bush might want, but as Bush himself told the world, Nelson "is a man told a cheering crowd that he safe.

who is willing to put partisanship aside to focus on what's right for America!" And, if Nebraska should decide to send a doctrinaire conservative to Washington, the president still wins.

Question: What happened to that "contingency fund" Bush talked of creating while in Omaha, campaigning for his first term as president?"

Bush has long made clear his desire to whack all manner of fed-

Secretary of Agriculture. That's with whom I can work, a person would propose setting aside a "contingency fund" for one sort of statelevel disaster and another. At the time, Bush said 'Nebraska might well be eligible for some of those funds.' The crowd cheered some more.

> Farm subsidies are dear to the hearts of many lawmakers, including substantial numbers from the Republican South.

The president proposes legislation and the Congress disposes. That means the billions of dollars in farm aid that Bush would cut eral farm subsidies. In Omaha, he from the budget are, most likely

Chamber to host an area business expo

It's good to be busy and busy we

Our mailing of the entry form for the Area Business Expo, has gone out. The Expo will be held April 1-2 at the City Auditorium. The entry forms were mailed just locally (Chamber and non-Chamber members) and to the few area Chamber members we have.

Reservations for the event are done on a "first come, first serve"

I do need to explain, however, we are obviously having this Expo to showcase, to highlight, the Wayne businesses. However, if we do not get the positive response we fully anticipate, it will be necessary for us to solicit businesses outside of Wayne to meet our costs. This Business Expo is for YOU and we hope you'll appreciate our efforts. We are renting drape book dividers, table skirts . . . the whole nine yards to make it look as professional and inviting as we can. We want the local consumers as well as our fine area shoppers to be made well aware of what Wayne has to offer.

With the major construction of the highway next year, there couldn't be a better time to "show our stuff" to northeast Nebraska.

There are 33, 8 ft. x 10 ft. floor booths available, a one charge spot on the stage (8×40) and nine 8×10 spots available outside in front of the auditorium as well (great for vehicles or machinery!).

There will also be a spot available for demonstration of your products . . . three spots on Friday and five time slots available on Saturday . . . again on a first come, first serve basis.

The cost to display your goods and services will cover our costs . . . it is not a major fundraiser. There will be no admission charge to the public to come in and browse. The Red Cross will be serving a free-will donation spaghetti meal on Friday, with another local organization serving on Saturday.

The Chicken Show Taskforce continues to work on the 25th Anniversary event. We're working hard for this community event to draw in people from, literally, around the world. It, to the chagrin perhaps of some, is a community showcase event and we hope in this anniversary year, the community will embrace it and make it one of the biggest and best ever. Many of your friends and business comrades donate dollars and "sweatequity" to this event and a nice way to say thank you, would be your attendance and participation.

The theme, "Cheers for 25 Years" is a pat on the back to the commu-Commemorative nity. Anniversary limited edition, hand painted eggs (shells) from Romania will be on sale, along with some new collectibles and the great 25th edition t-shirt.

Gear it up and be prepared to read more about this fun event in future columns. If anyone has a special idea for the Chicken Show (no. Mark . . . not the running of the chickens up Main Street . . . a takeoff on the running of the bulls in Spain), please contact the Chamber Office or Chairperson Della Pries at 375-5266 or attend a Chicken Show Taskforce meeting.

Wayne Industries and the city are working hard for the community business environment. That work is interesting, competitive and can be extremely rewarding.

The reorganization team continues to meet and discuss. The process may be a bit slower than some people anticipated, but it is moving forward. I commend those people for their diligent work for the community's best interests.

If you haven't renewed your Chamber membership, please do so as soon as possible so we may enter your business in our new directory. Until next time . . .

Wayne, Winside wrestlers head for state

Winside ran away with the District D-2 Wrestling Championship trophy in Pender Saturday as the Wildcats qualified 9 of their 12 wrestlers for the trip to the Devaney Center in Lincoln later this week.

Schuett, who will be making his third consecutive appearance at state, said he feels relaxed heading into Thursday's opening round in

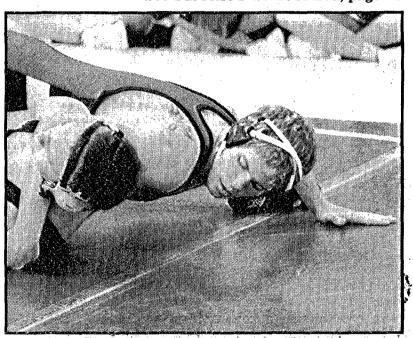

"I just went out there and stayed relaxed and that's how I plan to do down at Lincoln," Schuett said. "It's our senior year and it's time to go out there and leave it all on the mat."

Winside enters the tourney as one of several teams considered to have a chance at winning championship hardware. Other teams considered in the running for the team title include Howells, North Platte St Patrick, East Butler and Morrill.

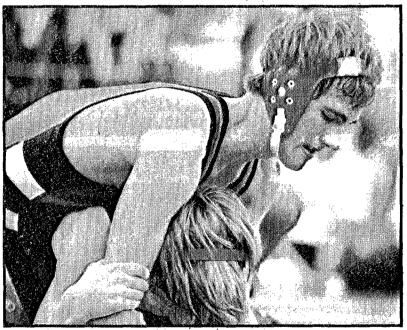

The Wildcat performance at districts was among the best of the year, coach Paul Sok said,

The Wayne State pitching staff is led by the return of 2003 All-American Travis McCarter. The senior captain from Overton is recovering from an elbow injury in 2004 and received a medical redshirt. He is expected to be a major contributor to the team as the season goes on after going 9-0 with a 1.91 ERA in 2003.

Sophomore righthander Nick Schumacher had a stellar freshman season, going 6-3 with a 5.18 ERA and will be looked on early as the team's number one starter. Joining McCar-ter and Schumacher in the starting rotation are will solidify the third base position . righthanders B.J. Wierzbicki (4-3, 5.96 ERA in 2004) and junior college transfer Steve Walsh. Lefthanders in the rotation will include senior captain Russ Emerick, junior JD Whitmarsh and sophomore Josh Anderson.

> Shoring up relief duties from the left side will be junior Jon Pitts and freshman Chris Williams.

> From the right side, the Wildcats will look to senior Dustin Nilius (3-2 with 4.26 ERA in 17 appearances in 2004) and sophomores Nathan Gettler and Adam McGuire. Freshman Mitch Herrick is also expected to contribute.

With an abundance of depth, Coach Manganaro feels the 2005 pitching staff has the potential to be very good.

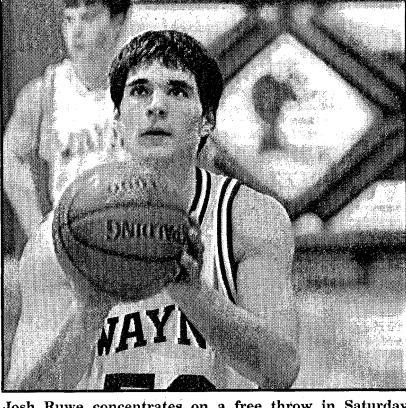

"These pitchers have worked extremely hard preparing for the 2005 season and I have no doubt they will give our team an opportunity to win," stated Manganaro.

A weekend road trip was unkind to the Wayne State from the foul line to cut the lead to 69-68, however the men's basketball team as the Wildcats dropped conference games to Bemidji State and Minnesota-Crookston.

Bemidji State 70, Wayne State 68

Heartbreaking losses have happened several times for WSC this season and last Friday's 70-68 defeat at Bemidii State was vet another oh-so-close contest for the Wildcats.

Wayne State's last four defeats have been by a combined total of seven points.

The last meeting with Bemidji, a home contest on Jan. 23, saw the Beavers edge WSC 73-72.

Friday's outcome was very similar.

The Wildcats were able to maintain control against the Northern Sun's co-leader until a 15-3 Bemidji State run in the second half got things rolling for the Beavers.

WSC held a 36-29 lead at the break before Bemidji's run with 11:53 in the game that allowed the Beavers to take a 58-49 advantage over the Wildcats heading into the game's final five minutes.

With about two minutes left in regulation, Wayne State's Dusty Smith scored four points and Brett Cain added a basket to narrow BSU's lead to 67-65.

Bemidji State made a pair of free throws to go up 69-65 with 29 seconds left in the contest, before Cain nailed another shot to cut the lead to two.

Bemidji State's Derrick Beechum missed the front end of a one-and-one with 15 seconds left in the game to allow the Wildcats to set up a potential tie.

WSC's Todd Klostermann was fouled with eight seconds left in the game and made his first of two shots second shot was missed and Bemidji State got the rebound and was again at the charity stripe.

The Beavers made the first shot, but missed the second to take a 70-68 lead with six seconds left in the contest and WSC's final shot attempt was blocked as time expired.

Brett Watson scored 20 points to lead Wayne State, followed by Cain with 17 and Smith with 13.

The Wildcats shot 44.9 percent from the field, but were 15-of-24 from the charity stripe for 62.5 percent, well below the team's Division II fifth-place ranking of 77.9 percent this season.

Protect credit ratings with proper debt management

Whether a sudden crisis, losing a job or just an income shortfall, many people reach a point where they don't have the resources to pens. knowing how to negotiate with creditors is crucial to surviving the financial pinch. Bad credit can stay on record for seven years, decreasing chances of getting loans, employment or housing.

extra cash for necessities and extra payments on debts; look for more income by having someone take on a part-time job or selling something; use only cash -- no credit cards -- until current debts are

To be able to negotiate a repayment plan with creditors, communicate the situation to them early. Portraying cooperation and reliability makes creditors more willing to work out a feasible plan. If bills receive no response, creditors will worry they won't be repaid and often turn the matter over to a collection agency, which is less likely to strike a deal.

Try negotiating with a creditor first through letters, followed by phone conversations and then personal meetings. In writing, it is easier to organize thoughts, keep records, choose effective words and make sure all important points are included. Also, it eliminates having the moment or face intimidating personalities.

In dealing with creditors, be polite no matter how the creditor is behaving. Some creditors use rude behavior to trap customers into saying something foolish. Always have a specific payment amount ready to tell the creditor. Many would rather have a guaranteed small amount than a promised larger one that never arrives.

Only promise affordable payments. If after negotiation the payment still cannot be made, the creditor will be less likely to cooperate a second time. It is best to arrange monthly payments, which require less paperwork than weekly ones but are still on a regular schedule. A formal contract composed by a lawyer is not needed, just an action plan both parties agree to, but put that action plan in writing and send it directly to the person you negotiated with.

Another option is arranging for payments to be automatically deducted from each paycheck at a regular job.

When creditors are leery of cooppenalty clause might help make the arrangement more acceptable of some sort of repayment, most won't take a debtor to court because of the expense involved. If debtors don't own a home, are unemployed, don't have money in the bank and have possessions of low worth, they can't be forced to pay. Certain laws also limit the amount of property and wages a creditor can take. See a lawyer to determine how specific situations would be treated under the law.

Should debt collectors become abusive or oppressive, lie, threaten or commit other unfair practices. the 1978 Fair Debt Collection Practices Act allows those being harassed to sue collectors for up to $1,000 as well as actual damages court costs and attorney fees. This law applies to any personal, family to consider matters on the spur of or household debt and covers debt collectors who regularly collect debts for others, not the creditors themselves or their lawyers.

> Debt consolidation loans may seem convenient, but they often end up costing more than paying off the smaller debts. HEALTH FACTS

From your Local Homecare Nurses

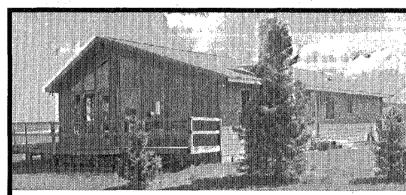

Congestive Heart Failure affects millions of people everyday. A healthy heart can pump blood and oxygen to all parts of the body in a matter of seconds. The heart pumps oxygen and nutrients to the tissues and organs. When the heart can no longer pump forcefully enough to do this, a person has heart failure. Therefore not enough blood is circulating to your tissues and organs which can cause damage or failure. The blood may back up in the lungs and other parts of the body. Heart failure is a chronic condition which can progress.

With treatment the symptoms can be reduced and controlled. The ultimate goal is to maintain an adapted life-style without distress or complications.

Collecting junk is a vice vices, Really! He doesn't drink, he doesn't smoke, he doesn't gamble: he says he got that out of his system by feeding cattle for years! He doesn't even drink too much coffee, which is one of my addictions. (The other, of course, is reading and I make no apologies for that.)

But he does have one thing going on that is a problem. It's junk collecting, which he fondly calls antique dealing. I think what attracted him to the Farm House when he first saw it was the huge metal building with two garage door openers and lots of extra room. As it stands now, we can only get one car in it.

When we added the family room to the back of the house, we built another garage under it. We don't even have to go outside to get into the car. But we have to drive very carefully to get the van in it.

He used to go to garage sales to retrieve his treasures. Garage sales and auctions. But I think he overestimated how long he is going to live. He has a large booth at a mall nearby, and several feet of space in a shop in Louisville. The shop is a cooperative, and five different people with the same addiction share the space and the clerking. I've come to realize that there really should be a support group for these folks.

Last summer, the charter member of the coop died of myeloma. Dixie was the mentor for all of us. Antiques were her passion, and as her husband Murray says, "I propartners is getting ready to retire with the other couple: they have have purchased a townhouse in Lincoln. So, it was time to have a "going out of business sale."

They sold a lot of stuff; the list in the book on the counter was long. But for several weeks, I couldn't see any less merchandise. They kept bringing things from home! Finally, one partner loaded what she had left in six van loads and a pickup and took it to their acreage. I asked where it all went, knowing full well that their house is FULL. But they have two really nice barns, and now the garage is stuffed, too. I asked if they could get the car in: the answer was no.

At that, the widower chimed it to say he hadn't had a car in their garage for 20 years! And I think vided the muscle." One of the other the really classic story has to do can obtain up to half their nitrogen needs from the air when nitrogenfixing rhizobia bacteria are present in the soil.

One can check on the presence of the nitrogen fixing bacteria in the soil by looking at the soybean roots during the growing season. Nodules will form on the roots where the bacteria actually live on the roots of the soybean allowing the bacteria to convert the nitrogen in the air and make it usable for the plant.

Is inoculation always needed? No. The only time one needs to inoculate soybeans is if the crop has never been grown in the field previously or if it has been 3 - 5 years since the last soybeans were present in the field. The bacteria are able to survive in the soil when soybeans are not being grown. It does not increase the yield to have more bacteria in the soil than can normally survive. The only exception to this general rule of not adding inoculates each year are the sandy soils. Because of the low organic matter, bacteria have a difficult time surviving and in those special condi-

This is meant to include properties voluntarily offered for inspection prior to that date even if the property has not been inspected by that date.
