Dispatch system enhanced

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Wayne County recently entered Wireless Phase I of a plan to provide greater efficiency when dealing with 9-1-1 calls from cellular phones.

The county is among approximately 50 counties in the state who have gotten funding through the Public Service Commission.

"The Public Service Commission has been collecting the 50 cent surcharge being collected each month on each cell phone. All bills incurred to keep this system operational are paid by the Public Service Commission," said Lee Wrede, Communications Supervisor for the Wayne Police Department.

Wrede said this change is part of an on-going process which began with traditional 9-1-1 calling and was replaced by enhanced 9-1-1 capabilities for land lines.

The enhanced 9-1-1 equipment allows us the capability to get the name of the subscriber and physical location of a call. This involves having on-site equipment here in Wayne, a special phone switch in Norfolk and computers in Minneapolis, Minn. and Denver, Colo. to process information," Wrede said.

The enhanced 9-1-1 capabilities for land lines has been operational in Wayne County since late 2003. The cost of this system is paid for by the surcharge on all land phones in Wayne, Winside and Carroll.

"Shortly after we became eligible, we began the process for our wireless 9-1-1 capabilities. At that time, we started filling out applications and gathering information from cell phone providers in Wayne County," Wrede said.

He noted that no new equipment was necessary for the new system, but changes have been made in the handling of data.

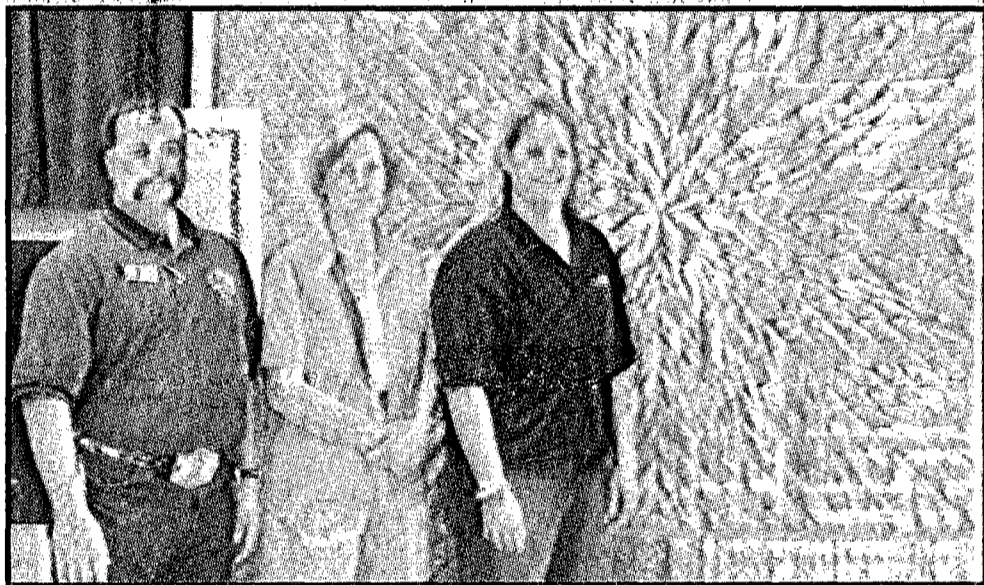

The Nebraska Legislature has mandated that all wireless 9-1-1 information would be handled by the Public Service Commission and service would be provided to all cell phones, whether or not they belonged to a Wayne County resident. Shortly after Wayne's application for grant funding was received, the legislature put on hold any new requests for funding and

This June, Paul Sok of Winside will depart for Tokyo as a participant in the Japan Fulbright Memorial Fund (JFMF) Teacher Program. Sok, from Winside

Paul Sok

Public, was selected from a national pool of over 2,500 applicants by a panel of educators to earn this honor. This program allows distinguished primary and secondary school educators in the U.S. to travel to Japan for three weeks in an effort to promote greater intercultural understanding between two nations.

Sok will be among 200 educators visiting Japan in June. They will begin their visit in Tokyo with a practical orientation on Japanese life and culture and meetings with Japanese government officials and educators. They then will travel in groups of 20 to selected host cities outside of Tokyo where they will have direct contact with Japanese teachers and students during visits to primary and secondary schools as well as a teachers' college. They also will visit cultural sites and local industries in addition to a brief homestay with a Japanese family.

The Japan Fulbright Memorial Fund, based in Tokyo, oversees all aspects of the Teacher Program. The program is sponsored by the Government of Japan and was launched in 1997 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the U.S. government Fulbright Program, which has enabled more than 6,000 Japanese citizens to study in the U.S. on Fulbright fellowships for graduate education and research. The Institute of International Education acts as the agency for the Japan Fulbright Memorial Fund to coordinate the recruitment and pre-departure activities of the Teacher Program in the United States.

Six hundred educators from all 50 states and the District of Columbia will be invited to visit Japan in June, October and November of 2005 (200 in each group). To date, more than 4,600 primary and secondary educators visited Japan through the JFMF Teacher Program. Upon their return, program participants share what they have learned about Japan with their students and communities through a variety of outreach projects.

Primary and secondary school educators throughout the United States can apply to take part in one of the three trips to Japan scheduled for 2006, as guests of the Japanese Government. Teachers of all disciplines, including art, physical education, English, ESL, history, geography, math, science, and special education, from every region of the United States, are encouraged to apply. Applicants are not required or expected to have previous knowledge of the Japanese or Japan. The application deadline for all 2006 trips is December 10, 2005. Students participate in Purple Hands project

Students at Wayne Middle School were given the opportunity to take a pledge not to use their hands to hurt anyone as part of the school's "Living Above the Line" character program.

An assembly was held last week at the school and students, faculty and members of the community were invited to sign their names to a banner and put a purple hand-print next to their name, indicating their pledge not to use their hands for violence.

Each grade level has a banner hanging in the school. In addition, a banner contains hand prints from staff and faculty members and one contains names and hand prints of members of the community, including Dr. Richard Collings of Wayne State College, members of the Wayne Police Department, community business leaders and members of the Wayne Community Activity Center.

During the assembly, the students were given purple bracelets to wear as a symbol of their turning away from violence and making the world a better place.

The Purple Hands project began at the Salem-Keizer Public Schools in Salem, Ore. in 1997 in an attempt to educate students about the need to stop abuse and violence. Since that time the project has become the Hands Are Not For Hurting Project and has been expanded to include government agencies, the business community, places of worship and several other agencies.

The color purple is the national color used to honor and remember victims and survivors of abuse and violence. The purple hand represents all people in every community around the world and is blind to the color of skin, age, gender, race, religion or nationality.

During the program Jill Pickinpaugh, a member of the Living Above the Line Committee, Joan Sudmann, Counselor and Kathy Fink with Haven House, talked to the students about the effects of bullying and noted that 81 percent of people are bystanders when bullying occurs.

"The idea of our program is that we can all make a difference. Our mission is to educate students on what they can do to prevent acts of violence from occurring," said Joan Sudmann, Middle School Counselor.

The Purple Hands project has been part of an on-going part of the school and was connected with the April word of the month, "Citizenship."

Steve Rasmussen, right and Jeff Zeiss were among those making a Purple Hands pledge last week at Wayne Middle School.

Main Street Focus

The past few weeks have been exciting weeks in Wayne and we are hopeful that the "upbeat attitude" displayed by most people will continue. Our special congratulations go out to the Wayne State College graduates—their energy and enthusiasm throughout the last week of school was very evident and they brought many visitors to town and the campus. Hats off to the college baseball team, we enjoyed four exciting games this past weekend and look forward to the college baseball playoffs which will take place in Wayne today, Friday, and Saturday and another championship drive for the baseball Wildcats.

This weekend many of the local high schools will be holding graduation ceremonies and we wish all the graduates the best as they pursue careers or further education. Best wishes to you for safe celebrations. There are topnotch schools in our area with outstanding teachers and administrators and we add our congratulations to them for all the things they do for our young people—we are proud of all of you.

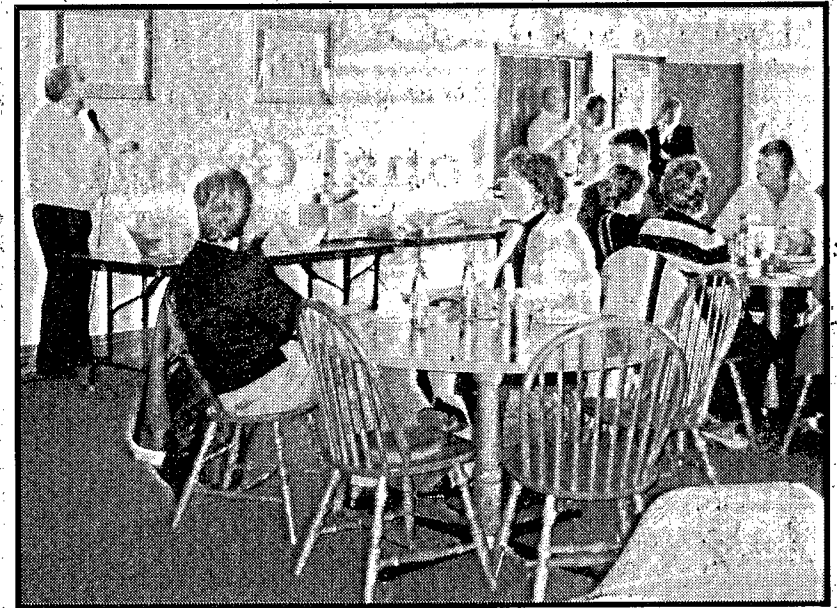

Mother's Day was a very busy day for our local restaurants and we had the pleasant experience of enjoying lunch at Main Street's own Coffee Shoppe. What a plus these young ladies are to our community as they put their efforts and energy into being among Wayne's youngest entrepreneurs. They served a beautiful breakfast and lunch and it was nice to see all the people that came out to support their efforts and get some awesome food.

This week someone shared with me an article with from the Haitian Tribune. There was no date given, but it was written by Terry L. Besser, an Assistant Professor and Extension Sociologist at Iowa State University. Dr. Besser says that vital, hospitable, and active downtowns provide communities with a source of pride and a location for congregating, socializing and dealing with community affairs. He goes on to say that towns without functioning downtowns become a collection of domiciles housing people who work, shop, socialize and seek entertainment elsewhere. He says that these places may continue to be recognized as towns by map makers, but they are not the same kind of community we commonly associate with small towns. They whole community is affect by the nature of the downtown. He further states that it is for these reasons that downtown revitalization should be a concern of the whole community and not just the local business owners. What Dr. Besser was saying in this article is what many of the citizens of Wayne felt when they got together to organize and establish the Wayne Main Street Program.

We want to see a more active and vibrant downtown. Much has been accomplished in five years, but more needs to be done. In the last few weeks several buildings on Main Street have sold and we will be seeing new businesses as soon as the new owners can make changes they feel they have to make. There are still some vacancies on Main Street that need to be filled. If you are thinking about starting a business and one of our vacant buildings look like something that you could use, we invite you to call the Main Street office. Your message will be given to our Economic Restructuring Committee and we will make every effort to help you establish your business on Main Street.

The Nebraska Lied Main Street program will be celebrating its 10th anniversary this coming weekend. They will be making a number of awards at a "Ten Year Main Street Honor Awards Luncheon" to be held Sunday at the Minden Opera House. Main Street Wayne will be receiving one of the awards for the "Consumer Survey" that was completed several years ago. Attending the luncheon from Wayne will be Doctors Chuck Parker and Anthony Koehenash, Co-Chairs of the Economic Restructuring Committee. The Economic Restructuring Committee initiated and undertook the survey. Several town-hall meetings were held to explain the survey's results to local businesses and interested people. We are proud to receive this award and will look forward to receiving many more awards at the next 10 year celebration of the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program.

Regent gets himself into hot water

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

University of Nebraska Regent David Hergert has himself in a jam with the Legislature.

The way this drama plays out could influence politicians for a long, long time to come.

The short of it is that Hergert admitted that he violated state campaign finance laws en route to defeating then-Regent Don Blank of McCook in last year's election.

Hergert, a successful Scottsbluff businessman, paid a record-setting fine in a deal with the Accountability and Disclosure Commission. The deal also allowed him to avoid facing criminal charges.

Twenty-nine members of the Legislature were sufficiently outraged to sign a resolution, demanding that Hergert resign. If the resolution is adopted in a floor vote, Hergert will have 60 days to resign. If he doesn't quit the Regent's post, the Legislature will look into whether it should impeach him.

That's the background. What might it mean for the future?

Quite a bit. Hergert did something that is not as uncommon as it should be in American politics. He did the crime and paid the fine, but he also got to keep the prize. At least, it looked like he would get to keep the prize.

Sen. Chris Beutler, of Lincoln said the fine of 30-something thousand dollars was something Hergert likely saw as a small price to pay since he won the job he wanted.

Hergert's gambit was one that has been played out by all manner of political organizations and individuals around the country.

On the national level an organization might knowingly toss money around without regard to all the federal rules. If it pays off - with the election of a candidate or candidates - the resulting fine is regarded as little more than the cost of doing business. That is because the fines levied at the federal and state level do not amount to anything more than the cost of doing business.

The improper use of money to win an election could suddenly become a less attractive risk if - in being caught - the winner who benefited from wrongdoing was deprived of office.

If Hergert's case arrives at the impeachment stage, there could be legal battles over whether he could be removed from office for crimes committed before he was elected. There could be arguments over whether payment of a civil fine settled the issue, putting him beyond the reach of Legislative action.

Whatever the outcome, it would mark a precedent.

As for what goes on at the national level - forget about it. The big political players - from interest groups to major parties - do not truly want strict financing rules. They like the "win big, pay a little" situation when it comes to fiscal fudging in campaigns.

Consider the last "big" campaign finance revisions by Congress. They were ballyhooed as a real change in political maneuvering. Interest groups had figured out ways to do business as usual, even before the overrated change in law was passed.

'A Calling to Care' is theme of National Hospital Week

National Hospital Week organizers put the focus on the face of health care this year, selecting the people-centered slogan "A Calling To Care" as the theme for their 2005 celebration, May 8-14.

"Helping others is a calling," Marcie Thomas, Administrator of Providence Medical Center said. "Health care provides a unique opportunity to bring help and hope to those in need. Our people answer that call and they're making a difference in our entire service area. National Hospital Week puts a well-deserved spotlight on their important contributions. These caregivers give of their time and talent, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, both inside and outside the walls of Providence Medical Center, to serve the people in their hometowns. The talented individuals who work and volunteer at Providence Medical Center spend every day meeting the needs of the young and old, men and women, of all economic backgrounds," she said.

"People in need of a 'helping hand' have long turned to Providence Medical Center in times of illness," said Thomas. "Today, PMC provides so much more. From preventive care to educational programs and more, Providence Medical Center and all of our nation's hospitals take an active role in helping the physical, mental, psychological and social health of all people in their communities."

National Hospital Week began in 1921 and has grown into the nation's largest annual health care event. The week-long celebration recognizes the work of hospitals and promotes greater awareness in the community.

As part of the week-long celebration, Providence Medical Center will host the weekly Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce morning coffee on Friday, May 13.

Thankful for support of community

Dear Editor,
With the purchase of a property at 317 East 10th by Archbishop Elden Francis Curtiss of Omaha, Catholic ministry has entered another chapter in its long history at Wayne State College.

As the Catholic minister hired through the Office of Religious Formation of the Omaha Archdiocese, I began my work in Wayne in July 2001. In the past four years I frequently heard the question: "Why do Catholics not have a house?" Now we do!

I want to thank some of the many who are making the transition possible.

For the wonderful "day of purchase" photo, thank you Angie Nordhues at Wayne State College Relations office and Clara Osten at the Wayne Herald.

For serving faithfully on an Advisory Committee, thank you Tim Garvin, Pat Gross and Dorothy Weber. For representing the WSC administration, thank you Dr. Collings. For representing our WSC Cooperative Campus Ministry, thank you Pastor John Pasche and Deaconal Minister Sandra Braasch.

For use of trucks for moving, thank you Carolyn Seier, Sophie Dubas, and Alan Finn. For "muscle power" over the past few weeks, thank you Catholic Newman officers Jim Walla and Sophie Dubas, WSC personnel Carolyn Seier and Dorothy Weber and Gene Kosch who organized members of the Knights of Columbus. For construction advice and help, thank you Gary French and Nick Hochstein.

For providing food, thank you Ellen Imdieke and Lois Nuernberger.

For the blue sofa and chair from the Welcome House Loft, thank you Sandra and ELCA Ministry Board.

To the Norfolk Benedictine Sisters for saving $16,000 pre-2001 and to Archbishop Curtiss for identifying "the rest of" the purchase price, thank you! To those who gave during the past three years to the Anniversary Fund (currently $12,116 to be used for improvements), thank you! To those who gave to general needs by purchasing kolache and hosts, thank you!

To donate to the ministry or for information on how you can help, contact me at 375-1155.

Wrede said, "we are lucky to be able to be a part of Phase I of this project."

"The new system allows for the tracking of the cell phone carrier that owns the tower from which which the call came and the cell phone number of the phone that is making the 9-1-1 call," Wrede said.

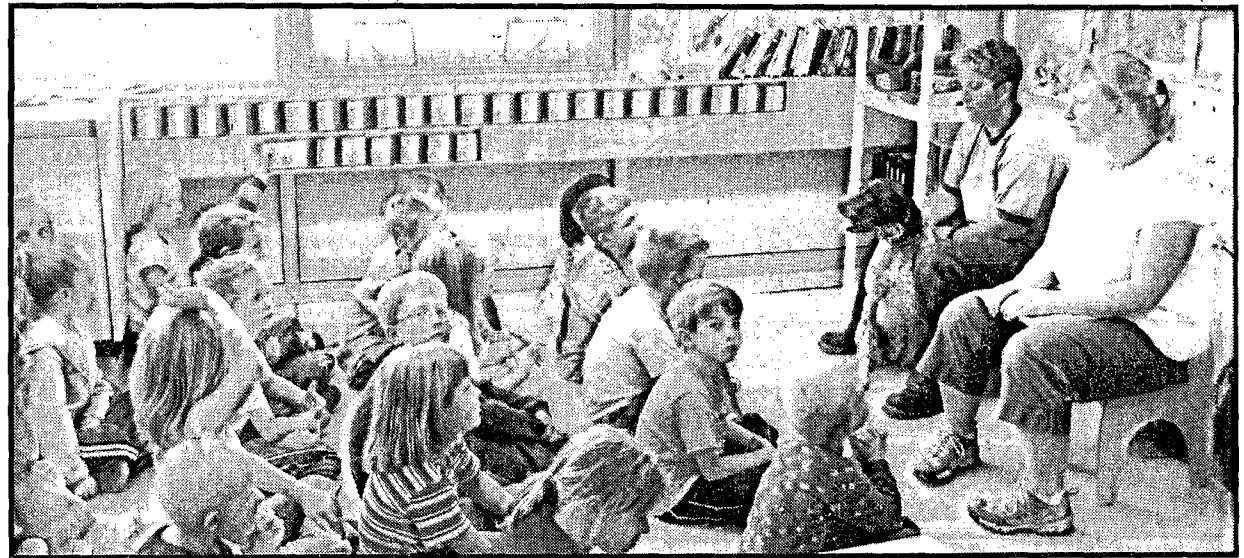

Because of these capabilities, dispatchers now have a phone number to work with and the ability to narrow down the area where the call is coming from.

He noted that the implementation of the new system would not have been possible without the cooperation of city, county and police department officials. He also praised the work of Sidney Saunders, County Highway Superintendent for his working in the 9-1-1 numbering system.

Refinancing of bonds to save city $200,000

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald
More than $200,000 can be saved by the city of Wayne following action at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Phil Lorenzen with Kirkpatrick, Pettis presented the council with a proposal to refinance sales tax revenue, public safety bonds and general obligation bonds. Due to favorable interest rates, refinancing at this time will save the city $138,408 on the sales tax revenue bond and result in it being paid off several years early; $48,845 in public safety bonds and $15,632 on the general obligation bonds.

Lorenzen praised the work of the city and said this amount of savings was "impressive."

The city also received a dividend check from Cap Peterson with Northeast Nebraska Insurance Agency. The $8,358 represents a premium refund. Peterson told the council that the city has received a check eight of the last 11 years.

During Tuesday's meeting the council viewed a demonstration on a new computer system to be installed at Wayne Public Library.

Library Director Lauren Lofgren said the library board has received a commitment from the Nebraska Library Commission to pay the $33,000 cost of changing the Wayne library software from the current Follet system to an improved SIRSI software.

The change will allow the library to be a part of a joint project with Norfolk, Northeast Community College, South Sioux City Schools and Central Community College libraries.

The switch will allow patrons access to materials at these libraries and the ability to renew books and complete other business on-line.

Change orders were approved for the Country Club Road Project.

The first involves the relocation of storm water inlet and will result in an increase of $120 for the project.

The second change approves the relocation of a sidewalk to the south side of Country Club Road.

Council members Doug Sturm and Verdell Lutt questioned why a sidewalk was necessary at the golf course and who would be responsible for maintenance of the sidewalk.

After considerable discussion, council members voted to accept the change orders.

Resolution 2005-54 received approval the meeting. It will allow for an engineering agreement with JEO Consulting Group to design run-off control structures for Sherman Street and Meadow Lane. JEO will calculate the amount of run-off and make recommendations to the council on what should be done.

Grants are received for equipment

Wayne County Commissioners met recently and among agenda items was an Emergency Management Grant Resolution which Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen informed them of. Wayne County was awarded $310,000 in emergency management funds to be used for equipment.

The amount received consists of two grants: Law Enforcement and Homeland Security. He said the fire departments, police, sheriff, ambulance crews, etc. need to get together to determine what equipment will be the best suited for the amount of funds that were allocated. Deadline to spend the grant money is 2007.

The Commissioners accepted both grant resolutions.

There was distribution of more than $23 million in federal funds to 75 counties as part of the 2005 Homeland Security grant allocations.

According to Gov. Daye Heineman, the statewide focus in recent years has been to upgrade communications networks for first responders and to improve local, regional and state interoperability. This funding makes a real difference in ensuring emergency personnel, and local law enforcement personnel, and local law enforcement have the ability to communicate with one another with one another on a day to day basis.

Gov. Heineman noted that he wants Nebraskans to know that these grants have a direct impact on public safety. The ability to communicate more effectively in an emergency translates into time, and those extra moments can make a life or death difference.

He added that few states understand better than Nebraska the diverse challenges of protecting rural, urban and suburban areas.

The amount the local counties receive is to begin building a communications system to unite this six-county region and allow for interoperability with other Nebraska and South Dakota first responders.

Gov. Heineman continued with the first priority in terms of Nebraska's homeland security needs has been to ensure that Wayne Community Schools Board of Education met in regular session Monday night. Catherine Rudin spoke to the Board about the request to have their son, Deniz, graduate early (2006 instead of 2007).

The Board approved several personnel matters. Hired were Tim Krupicka as Middle School principal, Courtney Flaherty as Title I teacher, and Larry Pierce for summer maintenance (20 hours a week). Also approved was the resignation of Anna Combs, Spanish teacher. Several agenda items were moved to executive session: reassignment of Peg Lutt to curriculum/standards & assessment director; Eileen Rodriguez, ELL teacher; full time contract for secretaries.

Middle School Principal John

McClarnen noted that the sixth grade was traveling to the Henry Doorley Zoo in Omaha from funds raised through the International Festival held recently.

He also said Relay for Life fundraisers have been held at the school recently and the garage sale brought in about $425.

Mark Hanson, high school principal, noted May is a busy month with Kiwanis Banquet, Honors Night, and graduation to name a few events. He noted around $661,000 was awarded in scholarships at Honors Night and that number will probably rise to close to $1 million by graduation. Hanson said Wayne High graduation is May 14 at WSC Willow Bowl (Rice Auditorium if inclement weather). There are 83 graduates scheduled to receive their diplomas.

Hanson also discussed Drivers Education. This year there are 120 students signed up so far (52 from Wayne, 18 from Winside, and 50 from Wisner).

David Lutt, elementary school principal, announced that Mike Jaixen, a teacher at the elementary, received Teacher of the Year award from Wal-Mart. Jaixen was nominated by one of his students.

Lutt also noted that WSC WSEAN donated 30 books to the elementary library.

Kelly Ballinger, SPED director, told the Board they are working on the last of evaluations and hope to be done by the end of the year. She noted they are finished with testing for ESL students.

Dr. Joe Reinert, superintendent, talked about prom/post prom and how successful it was. He commended the community in stepping up and helping with it.

Dr. Reinert addressed the early graduation request of Deniz Rudin. He noted they looked at policy 5001 and also talked to Terry Munson, counselor at the high school. Dr. Reinert said a formal letter of request needs to be to him six months before the desired graduation date. He noted the policy needs to be updated and it will say that the counselor and principal will monitor the student's progress toward graduation and keep the parents informed.

Dr. Reinert also discussed the upcoming board retreat which is set for May 16 in the Elkhorn Room at WSC. Goals will be discussed as well as a look at the budget compared to last year.

The Board approved Rocky Ruhl, athletic director at the high school, driving the van with students to a basketball camp in Indiana, June 19-23.

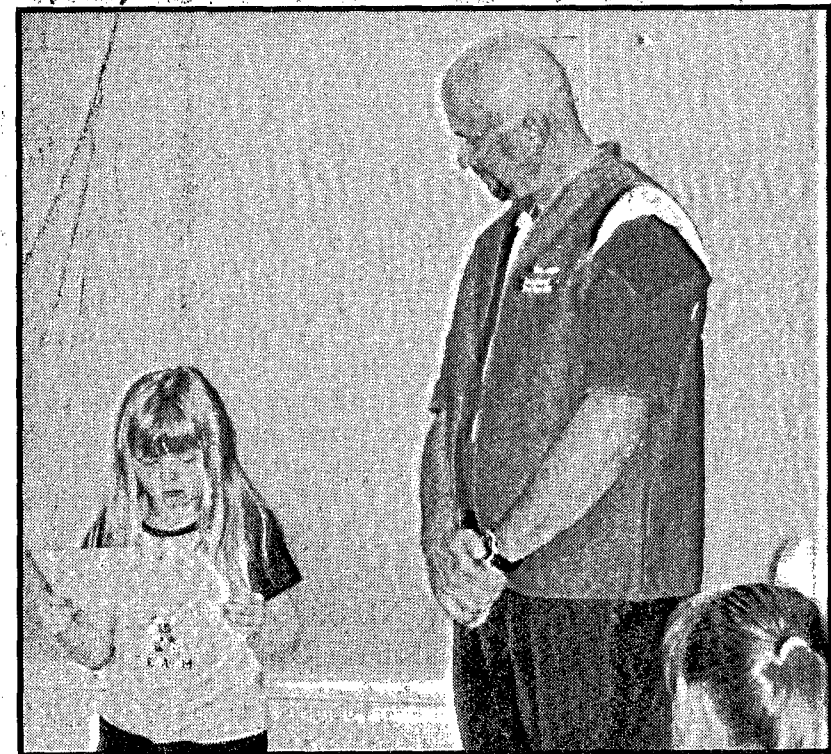

The Board also approved first reading of policy 5001 which deals with student promotion, retention, acceleration and early graduation.

A couple of school law seminars/meetings are planned: June 10 in Grand Island and June 30 in Norfolk.

The Board discussed the resignation of Dick Metteer from the school board. Metteer, who retired from being Middle School principal and instructor some time ago, sold their home in Wayne and are moving to Lincoln. Discussion will be held on the subject at the next meeting.

Future agenda items includes second reading of policy 5002.

The next meeting is set for Monday, June 13, 7 p.m., at the high school in Wayne.

Mike Jaixen looks on as second grader Annabelle Cole reads her letter of recommendation to Wal-Mart for Jaixen to become Teacher of the Year.

More than 3,800 outstanding teachers who are making a positive difference in the lives of young people were recognized through Wal-Mart's 10th annual Teacher of Year program.

In conjunction with Phi Delta Kappa International, a national professional education association, Wal-Mart and SAM'S CLUB associates at each of the company's approximately 3,800 locations have announced local teacher winners.

Jaixen now has the opportunity to apply for national Teacher of the Year honors, for which Wal-Mart donates an additional $10,000 to school of state winners. All state winners are automatically entered into the national competition. The national winner will receive an additional $25,000 educational grant for a total of $36,000 to his or her school.

Nebraska Army National Guard part of community for many years

The Nebraska National Guard has been in the community for over 50 years. They are currently Detachment 1, 189th Transportation Company. The unit began as an Artillery unit, then became an infantry unit. It was in 2001 that the unit was transformed into a transportation company. This transformation has been helpful to the unit in two ways: it is now possible to recruit women into the unit, and a transportation company provides excellent skills to its soldiers which are useful in the civilian world.

The mission of the unit is to provide assets for the movement of supplies and equipment for their higher headquarters. They also have civil disturbance mission, natural disaster relief missions, and Army directed missions. The unit works with the 189th out of Norfolk. The unit fulfills its missions with some of the best equipment in the Army, the M915A3 freightliner truck and LMTV cargo truck among others. Mainly the unit deals with flatbed trailers, but the hauling capacity of the unit's equipment is exceptional.

In recent years, the unit has helped clean up after the ice storm in Omaha and assisted with Security Duty at various airports after September 11th. The unit is also involved with color guards, funeral duties, and other local duties.

"This unit has worked and continues to work very hard to maintain its level of training," said SSG Jon Wren, Unit Training NCO. "We have truck drivers, maintenance, cooks, and supply personnel all striving to be their best to maintain our high standards. They not only have their job skills and also basic soldier skills to keep sharp. It is a demanding but very fulfilling job."

The armory is Wayne, originally constructed in 1963, has just gone through a renovation. The cost of this renovation was $431,132.40 and included 1900 square feet of additional or altered building improvements and 2800 square yards of concrete. A few items improved in the renovation were new classroom and meeting areas, new heating and air conditioning, a new handicap accessible restroom, data and phone links throughout the armory, a new parking area, and a new compound area.

The unit currently has 80+ soldiers, young men and women in the unit range in experience from less than a year to over 20.

"The support that we have received from the community has always been outstanding," said SFC Brad Wieland, National Guard Recruiter. "I feel we have one of the best units in the state and quite possibly the Nation. It is something our community can be very proud of."

The Wayne unit has two full time positions, and these soldiers work closely with the fulltime staff at the Norfolk unit.

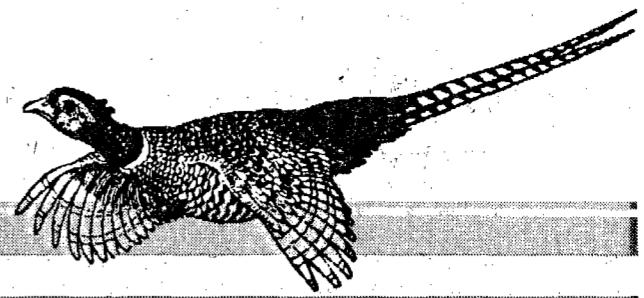

After 20 plus years of service in the Nebraska Army National Guard, SFC Layne Beza retired, and the new point of contact at the armory is SSG Jon J. Wren.

With a proud history behind them, the unit is looking toward a bright future.

The Chamber Coffee will be held at the Armory on Friday, June 3 at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

The Wildcats scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to break what had been a 6-all tie en route to the 9-6 victory.

Sorensen and Ovalles also had two hits apiece to lead the Wildcats in hitting.

The Wildcat women's team had two conference champions and eight conference runner-up finishes and the men's squad had one conference champion and four second-place finishes.

Three new school records were also set by WSC athletes.

The WSC women's team scored 142 points to take second place. Winona State won the team title with 177.

Thrower Lindsey Stockwell won the discus on Saturday with a new school record toss of 152-3, which is a national provisional qualifying mark.

Wayne State women's rugby player Karen Sharp carries the ball in recent WSC local rugby action.

WSC rugby teams wrap up seasons

The Wayne State rugby men and women ended the first-half of their respective seasons last Sunday.

The men's moved into first place over the second place team of the Great Plains Rugby Union with an 85-5 thumping of Creighton University.

The Wildcats scored three quick touchdowns in the first 15 minutes of play to jump out to a 21-0 lead. The men went into the halftime with a 36-0 lead at halftime adding 15 more points before the halftime whistle.

Midway through the second half, Creighton had the ball down to the WSC one-yard line for over four straight minutes.

Wayne State denied the Bluejays entry into the end zone with 13 offensive attempts to move the ball over the goal line.

A Creighton fumble led WSC to advance the ball out over 40 yards before regaining possession.

WSC jumped out late in the game 85-0 and in the closing minutes Creighton was able to get a touchdown in at the end.

The men closed the season with a 10-4 record with three of their losses to nationally ranked teams.

The game had a special meaning for the teams as the players learned before game time that last year's rugby fullback, Dave Fulkerts, who was deployed over to Iraq, was hit by a road side bomb, and has had two emergency surgeries to help him gain movement in his right arm.

The women's also ended the year on a winning note with a 26-12 victory over Sioux Falls.

Being a game with no national rankings implicated on the outcome several first year players were in the line up.

The WSC women ended up first place in the Great Plains Rugby Conference and ended the year with a 8-3 with three of their losses to nationally ranked Texas A and M, Air Force and Wisconsin.

High School event planned

This Saturday, Wayne will be the host site for the Great Plains High School Rugby Football Final Four.

High schools from Omaha, Lincoln and Sioux Falls play in an eight-week regular season and the top four teams will play a two game semi-final at 3:45 p.m. on Saturday, playing on two different fields at the same time.

The winners will advance to the championship game at 5:30 p.m. Admission is free and games will last one hour.

This year's final teams will be Millard North, Creighton Prep, Lincoln East and Sioux Falls High.

Omaha has been the host site of this event for the last few years, but committee members and coaches were impressed with the success of WSC's men and women's rugby program as it hosted the 43-team event in March and added the new rugby park in town.

Evaluators will also be at the event to pick the top 15 players off the four teams to form an All-Star Team.

The Great Plains All-Stars will travel to Denver in June to take on the Colorado All-Stars.

Plans of expanding High School rugby to Norfolk, Columbus and Grand Island are in the plans for 2007.

Seasonal Allergies
Symptoms of seasonal allergies usually include sneezing, runny nose, watery eyes and itchy skin. Spring is especially difficult for those with allergies to pollen. Limit time outdoors, particularly early in the day when pollen counts are highest. Shower and wash clothes after being outdoors to keep pollen on clothing from coming loose in the house. Using air conditioners in the home or car can also help. Antihistamines are effective at relieving symptoms and are available in non-drowsy formulas. Steroid nasal sprays reduce inflammation and help protect nasal passageways from pollen. For severe allergies, allergy shots may be an option.

Design and Decorating Inspiration
No worries...
Take the worry out of wallpaper... with a little planning and preparation. It's easy to get excited about a new look and skip ahead. The following steps will lead you to a successful wallcovering project.
Measuring... Many factors affect quantity including pattern repeat, room size, and unusual waste. These are important questions. Feel free to ask a showroom associate for advise prior to ordering.
Wall Prep... Paint ceilings and trim work first. Fill in cracks and nail holes with spackle, apply primer/sealer (especially over new drywall or stained surfaces). Don't cover fresh plaster - it needs one month to cure.
Wallpapering over old paper is not recommended. But if choosing to do so, make sure the existing is secure, especially along seams and edges.
Keep records... Always keep track of name, pattern number, and dye lot to match colors exact in case you need to reorder.
Ask questions... Our design staff is here to help. Whether helping choose a pattern, solve a wall prep question or verify measurements we are always glad to help your wallcovering project go smoothly.

Bonds receives award at University of South Dakota

Debi Bonds of Wayne was recently awarded the Outstanding Ph.D Student in the Division of Counseling and Psychology in Education Award at the University of South Dakota.

Criteria for the award includes having the highest level of academic performance at graduate degree level; commendable performance on the preliminary and final comprehensive examinations; significant level of involvement with faculty, students, and professional peers; high quality dissertation; evidence of leadership in the field.

Nebraska Bankers Association recognizes leaders

The Nebraska Bankers Association (NBA) honored several bankers for their leadership and contributions to the financial services industry during the association's Annual Convention held recently in Lincoln. The following awards were announced by NBA President George Beattie.

NBA Committee Chairmen: Committees play an important role in the strength and success of NBA. Cited for their leadership as 2004-05 local NBA Committee Chairmen were: Kent Franzen, First National Bank of Wayne, government Relations Committee Chairman; and Steve Anderson, Security National Bank, Laurel, Ag Committee Chairman.

The NBA also acknowledged outstanding leadership to the association by presenting plaques to several members who completed their terms on the NBA governing body. Keith Knudsen, executive vice president, Security National Bank, Laurel, was among those honored.

Debi Bonds of Wayne was presented her award by Dr. Frank Main, division chairman, at a ceremony recently at the University of South Dakota in Vermillion, SD.

ic performance at graduate degree level; commendable performance on the preliminary and final comprehensive examinations; significant level of involvement with faculty, students, and professional peers; high quality dissertation; evidence of leadership in the field.

while a student; expected future contributions to the field.

Bonds was born in Walla Walla, Wa. She received her undergraduate degree from the University of Idaho. She is married to Chris Bonds, professor at Wayne State College and has lived in Wayne since 1982. The couple has four children and two grandsons; a daughter in Omaha; a daughter in Seattle; a daughter in Henderson, Nev.; and a son in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bonds received her Master's Degree in counseling in 1994 from Wayne State College. She began the Ph.D program at USD in 1999 and graduated in August, 2004. She teaches in the counseling program at WSC.

She played in the Sioux City Symphony for 17 years, until beginning the Ph.D program in 1999. Bonds has recently returned to playing the violin.

Her dissertation focused on the midlife daughter and the experience of the death of her mother.

As a society and a culture we are both confused and troubled by the reality of death and the experience of bereavement. We commonly avoid talking about the end of life as "death" and instead use words such as "has passed away" or "has been laid to rest." Although millions of U.S. parent deaths occur annually, few individuals comfortably acknowledge the end of life.

As a result, the bereaved (those who have experienced the death of a loved one) are often confused by both the range and complexity of their own reactions to death and loss and by the awkward reactions of others to them. We tend to think of death and loss (which can include any type of loss such as a job, a relationship, or one's health) as a condition from which one recovers by moving through stages such as denial and anger. Although research does not support this linear approach to grieving, such expectations are common. Grief is a complex experience that differs dramatically from one individual to another.

Bonds notes that writing the dissertation was a five year project that consisted of three years gathering information, attending conferences and reading, interviewing for several months, and writing it took a good year. During this time, she lived at USD for two years so she could be more involved in the program.

"I am passionate about learning and education," Bonds said. "I love working with students. The experience of being in a college classroom is exhilarating to me. Being an instructor is not only about providing education for students; it's collaborative, I'm learning from them. I'm glad I made the commitment. The seed for me to attend graduate school was planted in early life."

Outstanding service

Dr. William Filter, right, was awarded a certificate of appreciation for outstanding service to the Delta Sigma Pi Fraternity and received a standing ovation from the audience at the School of Business and Technology Scholarship and Awards Reception, April 28. Fraternity president Jordan Bang of Fremont awarded the certificate.

Individuals attend Early Childhood Conference

Ninety-seven individuals attended an early childhood conference on April 16 at Central Community College-Columbus.

Sponsors were CCC, University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension, Nebraska Health and Human Services System, Platte Valley Early Childhood Training Coalition, and Columbus Area Association for Education for Young Children and Planning Region #7.

Wayne High School recognized for blood drive participation

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank recognized the Student Council at Wayne High School for outstanding participation in blood drives held during the 2004-2005 school year.

Donor Consultant, Heather Marree, of the Siouxland Community Blood Bank presented a 'Certificate of Appreciation' at Wayne High School on May 9.

Wayne High School has played an important role in helping the Siouxland Community Blood Bank achieve its mission of providing a safe and dependable blood supply to area hospitals. Whether blood transfusions are used to treat cancer, disease, surgery, or trauma incidents, community blood drives are critical to maintaining the blood supply.

The role of younger Americans in providing blood donations will play a more critical role as America's population becomes older. Our aging population will add to a decreasing donor base while blood demands will continue to rise. The students have demonstrated that our youth is ready to play a part in helping save lives in their community.

To be eligible to donate blood individuals must be at least 17 years of age (16 in Iowa with a signed Siouxland Community Blood Bank consent form); however there is no upper age limit as long as the donor is in good health.

In addition donors need to weigh over 110 pounds and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days. A photo I.D. is required at the time of registration.

For more information about the Siouxland Community Blood Bank or blood drives in your area, call 712-252-4208, 1-800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org

Save money on family vacations

With soaring gas prices predicted for this summer, many families maybe looking for ways to save money on their vacations this year. The key is to start early and use all available resources, including the Internet and frequent flier miles offers, to scout out the most affordable options. Flexibility often is a money-saver as well. Flying into a slightly less convenient airport instead of a major one in the same area can decrease ticket prices. If driving to a vacation locale, make sure the vehicle is in top condition so it gets optimal mileage. Consider camping, which decreases lodging costs but still offers a beautiful natural setting. Being open to vacationing in beautiful but less well-known places generally means cheaper admission prices and less tourist congestion. Package deals that combine hotel everyone know what options are available and make sure each family member gets to do one thing he or she really wants to do. Hiking, swimming at a beach, playing sports, visiting state parks and exploring different areas are good ways to save money. While it's important to relax while on vacation by eating out and indulging in other treats, occasionally buying groceries to make sandwiches or other simple foods cuts down significantly on eating costs.

Another option is to vacation at home. Take one or two weeks off from everything and turn off cell phones and answering machines. Recognize the time as an actual vacation, resisting the temptation to work on projects or go to the office. Use the money saved on lodging at home to have a good time. Eat out a little more, go to area attractions and enjoy family time together. Besides saving money, this option doesn't involve a major packing/unpacking project or after-vacation shock. For those who have a hard time getting back into work after time off, consider easing back into it by doing small things like checking e-mail a few days before returning to work full-time.

and entrance fees into certain attractions can sometimes save money as well. Also consider taking two or three closer, shorter trips instead of one long vacation. Many people haven't done much sightseeing in their home states.

Once on vacation, balance expensive and cheaper activities. Let Cataracts affect over 80% of our senior citizens. In fact over one million cataract surgeries are performed annually in the U.S. alone.

New technological developments in implants, ultrasonic equipment, lasers, diagnostic testing, and surgical techniques have made cataract surgery one of the most effective procedures today. Currently, over 98% of cataract patients experience significant improvements in vision, without major complications.

Until now, the high cost of this new technology for cataract surgery was only available in the larger surgical facilities. This meant that you would have to travel for a complete eye examination and surgery. Not any longer.

Complete eye care and cataract surgery is now available at Providence Medical Center in Wayne. You don't have to travel outside of your community to have your vision tested for cataracts. With Dr. Willcockson, Dr. Koerber and Dr. Magnuson offering comprehensive diagnostic and surgical services, you now have the most advanced eye care available right here in town.

Call Dr. Koerber or Dr. Magnuson for a complete eye examination and cataract vision screening today. If you would like more information on cataracts for yourself or someone you know who may be experiencing loss of vision, call today for a free informational brochure.

Home Health Physical, Occupational and Speech therapies are instrumental in helping patients with neurological disorders such as strokes or spinal cord injuries regain functional abilities. At times people who have had joint replacements are also rehabilitated at home until they are able to tolerate outpatient therapy. Home therapies use many of the same techniques and equipment in the home as in the outpatient setting and is completed by the professionals of the Providence Medical Center Therapy Department.

"Home Physical Therapy has been a God-send to Valerie in her rehabilitation since her return home from three months in hospitals after the car accident. Within 2 weeks of starting in-home physical therapy we could see a change in her mobility in her legs and feet; and she continues to progress. Agriculture

Memories of auction recalled

The auction is over, and we are still recovering. In fact, it feels a lot like getting hit by a truck! I was surprised by how the mental part got to both of us; but, especially, of course, to the Big Farmer.

The farm auction had been a lot of work, but it consisted of big things: tractors, equipment, cattle, etc. This one was made of a whole bunch of mostly little things; things that had been brought here from the farm and stored in the barn, and objects picked up at garage sales over the years with the intent of getting rid of them in the antique store. But there seemed to be a pattern: if we can sell one or two of these, maybe we should have a dozen! And, since Mike is such a creative packer, I had no idea how many things there really were.

The driveway was lined with beds, mostly the old cast iron type, and there were a dozen wooden sleds against a fence, along with half a dozen wooden ironing boards. The steel wheels were hauled out, and the cream cans, and the big barrels. It was a bargain hunter's paradise. And that is just who bought it all: bargain hunters.

The day started with sun and wind, but before they could get to the furniture, it rained, prompting a hasty moving of couches onto the porch. The buyers stood in the garage, and soon, the rain stopped and the sun came back out. But the wind was ferocious. I guess the rain at least cut down on the dust, but it also thinned the crowd.

By: Pat Meierhenry

Nobody wanted my oak pump organ, which makes me kind of sad because I really like it. In fact, even my mother, who isn't into keeping things for sentimental value, thought I should keep it. But I have to get rid of some things or there won't be room for it all. So if any of you have a yen to have an antique organ, let me know, and we'll see what we can do. At this point, it's scheduled to go to the booth at the antique mall.

Vic Mann came, and went home with some goodies for his shop. At one point, he came over and told Mike that we had "dumpster divers". Sure enough, some guys were pulling the aluminum out of the dumpster as the bystanders were distracted by the auction. So, the kids tell me, the Big Farmer shook his finger at them and said they could buy the stuff but they couldn't just haul it off. I guess they were a little surprised. The nerve!

One fellow goes to Texas to a flea market once a month, and he got several loads. Another couple bought a lot of the old lumber. We even got rid of stuff left by former owners. The barn looks a lot better now that that's all out of there.

The kids worked like Trojans, and the grandkids ran around, and the cat found comfort under the porch. I'm sure she is still wondering what hit. We are just glad it's over, and we can get on with filling the dumpster. What a relief!

Producers need to assess wheat, alfalfa damage now

Western Nebraska wheat and sugar beet producers and northeast Nebraska alfalfa growers should be checking their fields for potential freeze damage from the recent spate of frigid overnight lows, University of Nebraska specialists say.

Several days with overnight lows in the 20s and teens across western Nebraska and the 20s in northeast Nebraska may have damaged wheat, sugar beets and alfalfa.

With temperatures in the 20s across most of western Nebraska dipping into the low teens in parts of the Panhandle, wheat growers need to check their fields for freeze damage, said Bob Klein, cropping system specialist at the University's West Central Research and Extension Center at North Platte.

"Temperatures were 28 degrees and lower from about Central City, York, westward," said Al Dutcher, University state climatologist. "The coldest temperatures were in the Panhandle."

Eastern Nebraska was mainly at or around the freezing mark, except for the extreme northeast, where temperatures got down to 28 degrees, Dutcher said.

"These frigid temperatures (in northeast Nebraska) also may have damaged some alfalfa," said Bruce Anderson, university forage specialist.

As of May 1, 3 percent of the state's corn crop had emerged, said Roger Elmore, university crops specialist.

"The growing point of corn is below the soil surface until plants are at the sixth leaf stage," Elmore said. "Any leaves that are destroyed prior to the sixth leaf stage should not have a major effect on plant stand or yield."

Freeze-damaged wheat and alfalfa usually needs five to seven days to recover before true damage estimates can be made.

The freeze also could have damaged up to 60 percent of the sugar beet crop in western Nebraska, which is in the cotyledon stage, or first leaf.

However, as with the other crops, it will be another three or four days before the extent of damage can be determined, said Bob Harveson, plant pathologist at the university's Panhandle Research and Extension Center at Scottsbluff.

One thing that made these low temperatures so significant is that they lasted several days, Dutcher said.

"This is a pretty significant event as far as duration," he said. Temperatures dipped into the 20s and teens in western Nebraska April 29 through May 3, Dutcher said. Temperatures were the lowest May 1-2 when they also dipped into the 20s in northeast Nebraska.

This also is making it difficult to assess freeze damage.

"Fortunately, the cold temperatures were accompanied by rain and snow, which helped moderate temperatures within the wheat canopies," said Drew Lyon, dryland crops specialist at the university's Panhandle center.

There also is the possibility that low temperatures for about a week prior to the coldest temperatures May 1-2 hardened the wheat and made it more resistant to freeze injury than would normally have been the case at this time of year.

"Since it is difficult to know what the air temperatures were in the wheat canopies, it often is necessary to wait five days or so after the freeze event and then go assess plant damage," he said.

Spring freeze injury in wheat occurs whenever low temperatures coincide with sensitive plant growth stages, Klein said.

See PRODUCERS, page 6C

Cold soil temperatures can lead to problems

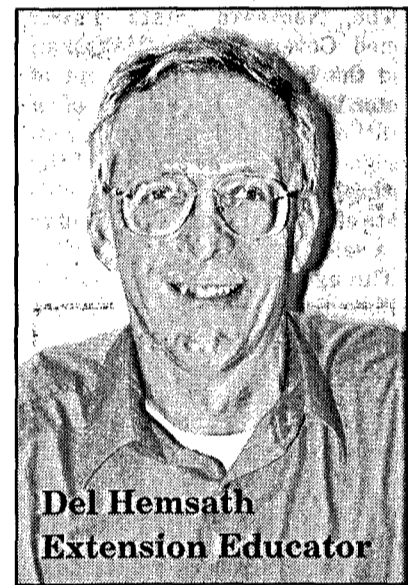

The weather has turned cooler the past few weeks, lowering the soil temperature to a cool 55 to 60 degrees.

The soil is warm enough for corn seed to germinate but not warm enough for the plant to grow very fast. Some early planted corn fields also sustained some frost damage serious enough that replanting would be suggested. Another possible problem that cool temperatures allow is the build up of cutworms or increased wireworm damage in the corn fields.

These two insects do well in cool conditions — at the same time the crop is struggling to grow. Wireworms will feed on the seed or the emerging roots or burrow into the cornstalk and can be serious enough to thin out the corn population.

Seed treatment will help reduce the damage from the wireworm feeding. Past history in a field is a good decision tool to use on whether or not to use treated seed for control. When the young corn plant comes up, it can also be affected by the cutworm that will "cut-off" the young plant as it emerges. It is best to scout a field to determine the amount of damage and treat only when thresholds have been reached. The threshold for cutworms is 5 percent damage. Weekly scouting is needed to monitor the problem and to be able to treat on a timely basis.

Past history in the field is also a good tool to use for scouting. It is best to treat when the cutworm is actually causing damage rather than applying a preventative control. The weather has a big impact on how serious insects will become for a crop in addition to regulating the growth rate of the crop.

Del Hemsath

Early maturing wheat is more likely to be injured by a freeze than late-maturing wheat. Susceptibility to freezing temperatures steadily increases as wheat maturity advances during spring, he said.

"Injury can cover large areas or only a few fields or parts of fields," Klein said. "It is more severe along river bottoms, valleys and depressions in fields where cold air set-gles." Wheat is most sensitive to freeze injury during reproductive growth, which begins with pollination during the late boot or heading stages. Temperatures that are only slightly below freezing can severely injure wheat at these stages and greatly reduce grain yields.

Wheat development varies across the state. In the Panhandle, it is in the tillering through jointing stages and in southeast Nebraska it is in the boot stage and is nearing head emergence. In west central Nebraska, it is in the pre-boot to booting stage.

Injury also is influenced by the duration and severity of low temperatures. Less injury can be expected from shorter exposure times, while injury might be expected even at somewhat high temperatures with longer exposure.

"The many factors influencing injury to wheat -- plant growth stage, plant moisture content and duration of exposure -- make it difficult to predict the extent of the injury," Klein said.

With wheat in the joint to boot stage, wheat growers must wait several days to determine injury. On wheat that is heading or before the flowering stage, the first visible freeze-damage symptoms to the anthers is that they become shriveled and twisted while retaining their lime-green color.

With current wheat grain and cattle prices, some growers with freeze-injured wheat may want to consider grazing or haying their wheat rather than taking it for grain yield, Lyon said.

There also are several considerations in assessing the management options freeze-damaged alfalfa, Anderson said. Plant nutrient reserves, growing point, general plant health, forage value and length and degree of freeze are all important.

"If there is freeze damage (decisions) particularly need to be based on the alfalfa," Anderson said.

Early harvest is one option if alfalfa is damaged. Early cutting allows the plant to regrow without damaged leaves. However, Anderson recommends early cuttings only for high value alfalfa, such as that used for dairies.

If it is a low quality alfalfa, such as that used for beef stock cows, the dollar value of that is low, he said, and it may be hard to justify an early cutting. An early cutting only gives alfalfa a seven to 10 day head start on regrowth.

For more information on how to assess freeze injury in winter wheat, consult Nebraska Extension Circular EC94-132, Freeze Injury to Wheat, available at local Cooperative Extension offices, on the Web at <http://ianpubs.unl.edu/fieldcrops/ec132.htm> or by visiting the Wheat Production Systems Web site at <http://wheatbook.unl.edu/>.

For more information about grazing freeze-damaged wheat, consult Nebraska Extension Circular, EC05-185, Grazing Winter Wheat in Nebraska, available at local Cooperative Extension offices.

For more information about freeze injury to other crops, visit Crop Watch, extension's crop production newsletter, at <http://cropwatch.unl.edu/>.

Experiment with new plants, but exercise caution

Every spring brings at least one new must-have plant with plenty of buzz surrounding it. This year, it's the new Echinaceas.

Known as Meadowbrite, Sunrise and Sunset, these coneflowers feature yellow and orange flowers and even fragrance. At least one Lincoln nursery sold out of its initial spring supply.

University of Nebraska horticulturists understand the excitement but urge caution.

"I'm not sure how well they will perform in western Nebraska because they have not been tested here yet," said Dale Lindgren, horticulturist at the university's West Central Research and Extension Center at North Platte. "Some of the parents of those cultivars haven't survived for us."

Kim Todd, a university horticulturist based in Lincoln, has similar reservations.

"We really don't know what their longevity in Nebraska is because they haven't been available here," she said. "For the true gardeners it doesn't matter, because they're going to try one."

Experimenting with new plants is one of the joys of gardening, but it's unwise to overdo it, or to plan an entire planting scheme around an untested plant, Lindgren and Todd said.

Get advice from local experts, including University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension offices.

Like other gardeners, Lindgren and Todd have an eye out for new plants and trends. Lindgren, a fan of the native prairie look, is always on the lookout for new ornamental grasses. He also encourages gardeners to consider planting some sedges. These grass-like plants -- known scientifically as Carex -- are available in increasing variety, including some that feature twisted leaves and others that stay red-dish year round.

Todd mentioned some new varieties of dwarf evergreens; a weeping redbud; and the "Cupressina" Norway spruce, a narrow-growing variety.

Todd cites the Jack Frost brunnera as a plant that, while not new, is beginning to take off. "It's a wonderful shade plant," she said. The foot-tall plant has silver leaves and sprays of tiny blue flowers in the spring.

Container gardening continues to be popular. Well-planned containers can add splashes of color throughout the landscape, Lindgren said. It's important, though, to match container and plants carefully and to realize container plants need more water than other plants.

Lindgren also notes that demographic changes in population affect gardening choices. A growing Hispanic population in central and western Nebraska, for example, has resulted in more peppers being grown.

Of course, it's helpful to remember that this year's must-have plant can turn into next year's regret. "People who bought the Limestone artemisia last year will be wanting to figure out how to control it this year," Todd said.

NSP participates in kick off of GrandDriver Program

The Nebraska State Patrol joined Governor Dave Heineman and the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles in the kick-off of a multi-educational program designed to raise awareness of the natural aging process and its ultimate effect on the skills required to be a safe driver.

Through educational materials, billboards, Public Service Announcements, brochures and an informational website, the GrandDriver program aims to encourage the public, especially drivers over age 65 and their adult children, to learn more about the effects of aging on the ability to drive.

"We can't turn back the hands of time, but we can make responsible choices when it comes to driving as we age," said Colonel Tom Nesbitt, Superintendent of the Nebraska State Patrol. "Mature drivers are some of our safest drivers. The GrandDriver program is a way for all of us to become aware of the effects of aging in order to drive to the best of our ability."

Records from the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles show there are currently 97 drivers with valid Nebraska Operators licenses who are over the age of 100. There are more than 6,500 drivers ages 90-99.

The GrandDriver program provides facts about mature drivers, offers tips on safety, from physical to cognitive changes, and provides suggestions on how to initiate conversation with family members on the process of aging and safe driving.

Nebraska State Patrol Officers (CSO's) have information about the GrandDriver program and are available to assist with educational seminars to groups wanting to learn more about the national effort.

Walk for good cause

The annual Cystic Fibrosis Walk at Wayne State College took place on April 27. Over $1,000 was raised. About 40 students took part in the service project. Deb Whitt, a professor at WSC, has been site director/chair of the walk on campus for around 5 years. She said it was "neat to see the enthusiasm the students have for helping others." She also noted Godfather's in Wayne donated pizza for the walkers, which they were thankful for.

Dr. Ralph Bovard recently presented "Aging and the Masters

Athlete: Raising the Bar" and "The Obesity, Epidemic: Why

Diets and Exercise Programs Fail." Both presentations were in the Gardner Hall auditorium on the Wayne State College campus.

Bovard is chairman of the Department of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, specializing in Orthopedics and Sports Medicine, at Regions Hospital, St. Paul, Minn.

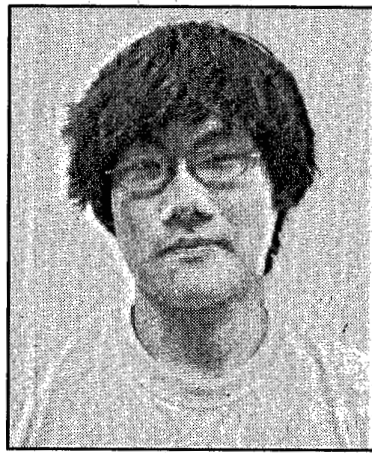

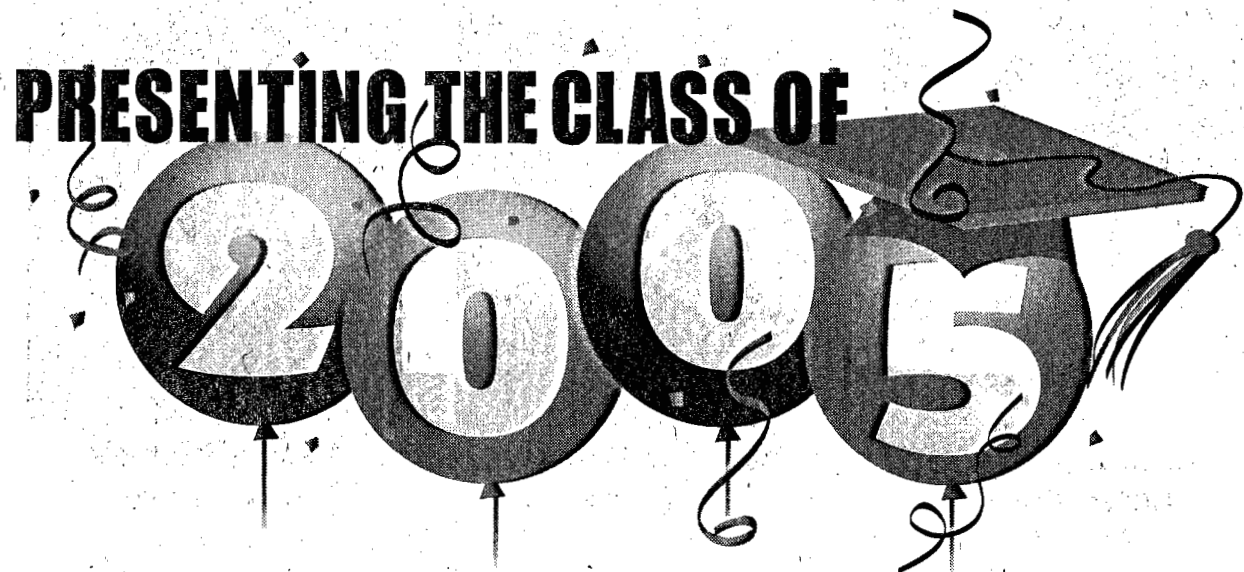

In addition to his medical practice, Bovard has served as the event physician for a variety of national and international sports, including the NCAA Men's Swimming Championships, US Open Swimming Championships and the US Synchronized Figure Skating Team Physician.

He served as the set physician for the movies "The River Wild" and "Cliffhanger," and expedition physician for the American Everest Expedition in 1989, the Denali High Altitude Research Study in 1983, and as a missionary physician in Papua, New Guinea.

Under new leadership

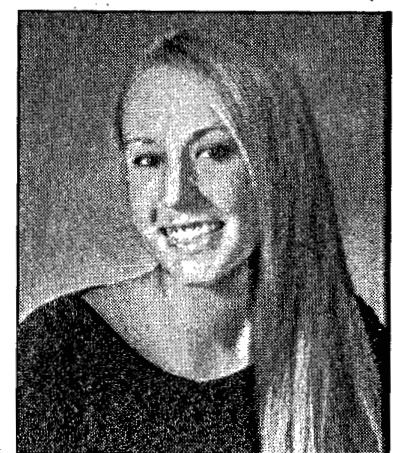

This year the Wayne Community Schools got a new consumer science teacher, Karen Schardt. She taught her classes a lot of important information. In the Sports and Nutrition class, students learned about body image and composition. The students have also learned how to cook nutritional foods and to keep a well-balanced diet. They traveled to Wayne State College to get their BMI (body mass index), which tells them how much body fat they have and if they are overweight, underweight or just right. "The students all appreciate the knowledge Mrs. Schardt has taught them and hope she will be in the Wayne Community Schools for a long time. She is a very nice lady who gets to the point in class and knows how to have fun," said Jeb Dunklau, a member of the class.

Census Bureau to update information on housing

A nationwide survey conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau in 2003 found that the country's households spent a median of $684 monthly on housing costs. The respective figures for homeowners and renters were $718 and $651.

The Census Bureau field representatives are now visiting 59,000 randomly selected housing units to update these figures as well as other important housing information. The questions are part of the biennial American Housing Survey (AHS), the most comprehensive survey of U.S. housing conducted between censuses. The Census Bureau has been conducting the AHS since 1973 for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The field representatives will gather information about the size, composition and condition of the nation's housing, as well as the financial and demographic characteristics of the residents. Specific questions will be about the lot size, year the structure was built, plumbing facilities, type of mortgage, source of water, frequency of equipment failures, neighborhood's condition and residents' overall opinion of their neighborhoods.

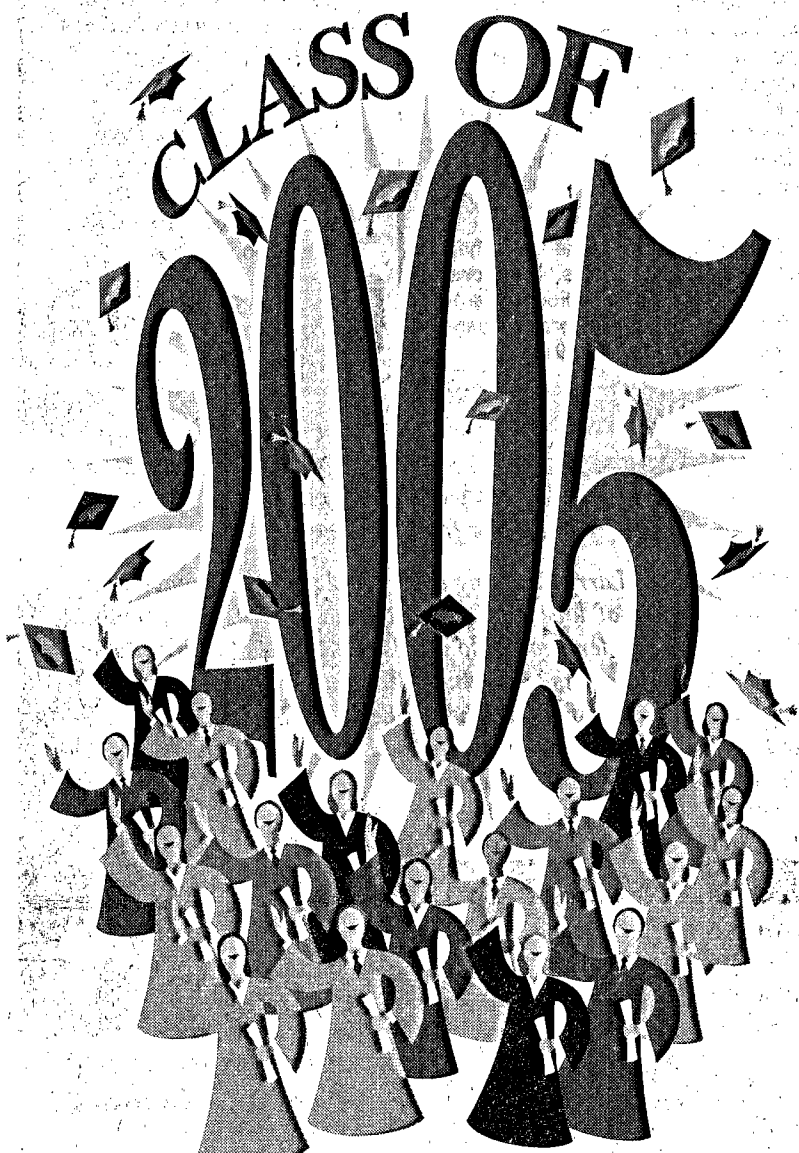

By law, the Census Bureau protects the confidentiality of all identifying information about survey respondents and their housing units. Prior to the survey, local households selected in the nationwide sample receive a letter from Census Bureau Director Louis Kincannon. In the letter, it states that residents will be interviewed by a field representative carrying a photo identification card.

Besides visiting occupied housing units, the field representatives obtain data on unoccupied units from landlords, rental agents or neighbors.

Joint HUD-Census Bureau reports on the survey's findings for the United States and regions are issued about 10 months after the interviews are completed.

The AHS provides analysts in government and business with up-to-date housing statistics - those vital for planning purposes, decision-making, market research and various kinds of program development.

THANK YOU

A special life has passed from our sight..... but never from our hearts.

The family of Larry Raveling deeply and sincerely appreciates the outpouring of love and support from family and friends since Larry's sudden death. No words can express the gratitude we feel for all the acts of kindness, the thoughts and prayers bestowed upon our family. The gentle words, helping hands, and warm thoughts offered in sympathy have brought us great comfort in knowing others care.

We can not thank you enough for everything that has been done to help us through this difficult time. We are blessed to live in such a caring community.

With our love,
