Eagle Scout project benefits Relay For Life

By Bren Vander Weil
Special to the Herald

What does one do with 1,600 blocks of wood, 800 paper sacks, 800 candles, and 800 cups? The answer is very simple, my Eagle Scout project.

All of these materials will be used to assemble luminaries for this year's Relay For Life ceremony.

The project started when my father, Greg Vander Weil, received a request from Denise Mostek to make reusable inserts for the luminaries. In the past, the Boy Scouts have filled gallon jugs with sand to hold the luminaries.

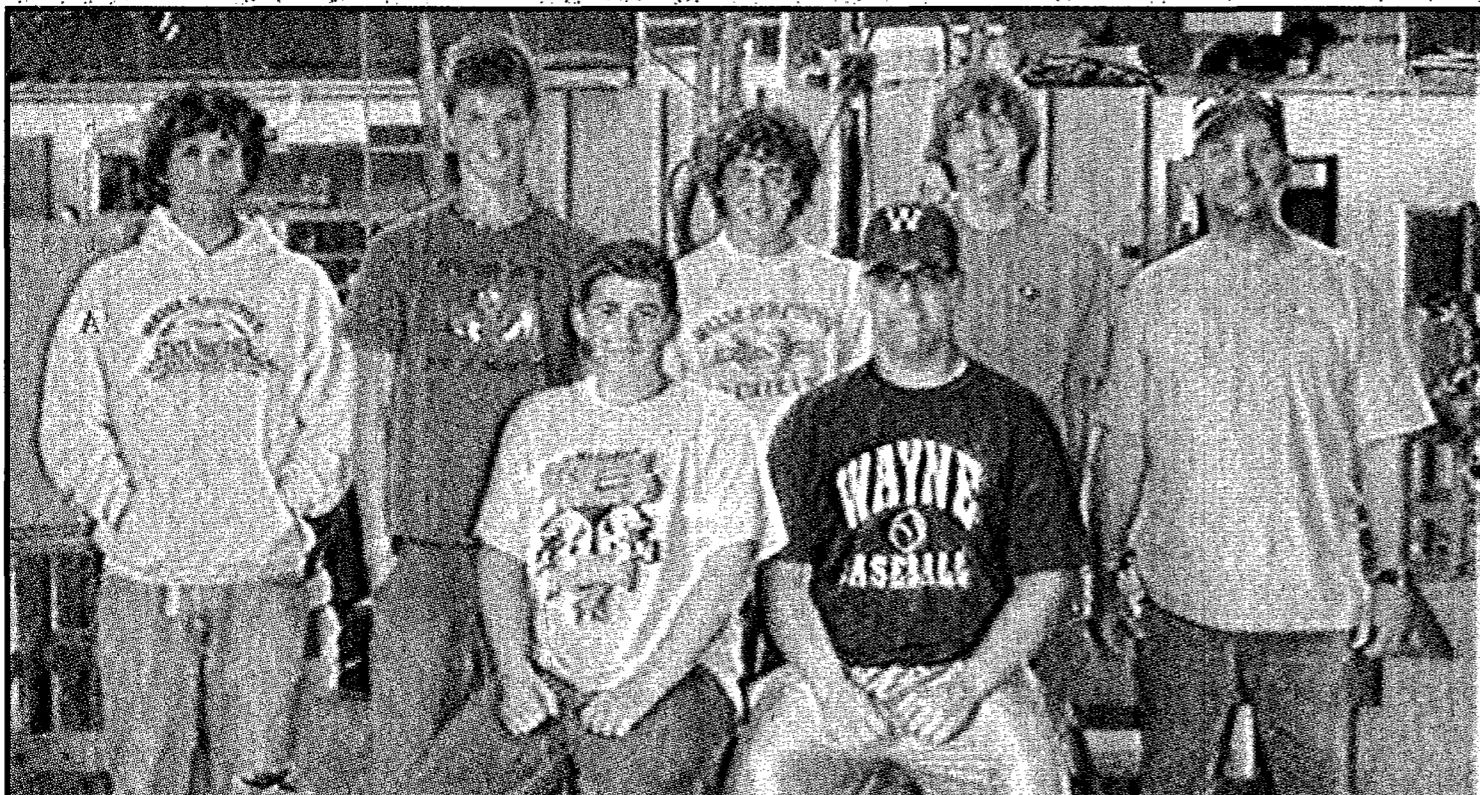

As my father pondered Denise's request, he realized that it would make a great Eagle Scout project for me, Bren Vander Weil. Thus it began.

My dad and I started by setting up appointments with Mike Kaup of Carhart Lumber Company and Daryl Miller of Heritage Homes for scrap lumber donations, and Curt and Coleen Jeffries of Copy Write for boxes. After collecting the mate-

Proposed subdivision discussed at recent Commissioners meeting

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Wayne County Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday at the courthouse in Wayne. Among agenda items was discussion on Jerry Dorcey's proposed subdivision west of Wayne and general policy on subdivision roads.

George Ellyson, City Planner/ Building Inspector for the city of Wayne told commissioners the city and county should work closely together to make sure subdivisions are properly planned.

Sid Saunders, Wayne County Highway Superintendent, added he feels there should be a revision of the county's standards on how roads are built before the county accepts them.

Ellyson said there are city regulations and quite a bit the city can mandate depending on lot size, configuration, and access to public streets within a two mile radius of Wayne. He noted two things can happen in a subdivision: 1) The right of way can be dedicated to the public, or 2)

Private roads can be created and cost of maintenance, repairs, etc. falls on lot owners in the subdivision (such as a Homeowners Association).

Ellyson noted jurisdiction needs to be in place so enforcement, if needed, can be made if snow, for example, needs to be removed so emergency equipment can get in if needed.

Mike Pieper, Wayne County Attorney, noted standards need to be upgraded. It was the consensus of the group that a dedication should only be accepted if everything is up to the standards. The county's right of way is 66 feet, most of the city's right of way is 60 feet. The group noted there should be 60 to 80 feet right of way so there's room in case there are problems.

Saunders noted the time to build roads is before houses are built.

Saunders added he has a draft resolution but feels it doesn't fulfill what is needed so he wants to revise it to incorporate city, county and state standards and bring it before the commissioners at their next meeting in two weeks.

Teacher's career spans half century

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

After more than 50 years, Darlene Roberts of Allen is giving up her classroom.

The former Darlene Magnuson grew up in the Emerson/Allen area and graduated from Allen High School in 1951.

"In March of my senior year, board members of Rosehill School District #51 in Dixon County came to me and asked if I was interested in teaching. I said 'yes' and then took 12 hours of classes at Wayne State College that summer and began teaching in the fall," Mrs. Roberts said.

During her first year of teaching, Roberts had 11 students in a one room school, in first through sixth grade.

"At that time, the kindergartners came to school only for the last month of the school year," Roberts noted.

After one year at Rosehill School, Darlene married Courtland Roberts and stayed home for a year.

Her next teaching assignment was O'Neill Country School (Waterbury District #38). Here she had 11 students in first through eighth grades.

After a move to a farm west of Allen, Roberts began teaching at Clark Center School and stayed two years.

Her students at Clark Center School, District #72 near Dixon included Jacqueline and Bernice Demke, Verdel, Paul, Lynette and Joelyn Noe, Eldon and Aldon Johnson, Rodney and Mary Jewl, Sylvia Lembecke, Myron and Nancy Noe, George, Sandra, Constance and Gary Sullivan, Karen, Linda and Carole Peterson, Duane Wiig and Ronald Peterson.

After again taking time off to have a baby, Roberts was asked to finish out a school year at Thurston County School.

Another family move put her close to Beacon School District #52 east of Allen where Mrs. Roberts taught seven years. During that time, she had a total of 31 students.

She then took another break from full-time teaching and did substitute teaching and was a substitute bus driver for the Allen Schools.

"In 1967 I started teaching full time at the Allen Consolidated Schools. For four years I taught kindergarten and started the elementary music program," Darlene said.

She then started the Title I Reading and Math program at the school and was involved with that program for 11 years.

"Glenn Kumm and I then started the Special Education program at Allen and for the last 23 years, I have been the full-time Special Education teacher. This past year, there were 12 students in the program," Mrs. Roberts said.

Darlene earned her bachelor's degree from Wayne State College in 1970 by taking summer school, night and correspondence classes. She then went on to earn a Master of Science in Education degree from WSC in 1978 and a number of endorsements that allowed her to teach students in kindergarten through 12th grade. She also earned a Professional Teaching Certificate.

"The biggest change through my career has been discipline. When I taught in the country schools, we were all like a family," Darlene said.

"I will definitely miss working with the children. Because my great-granddaughter was in the Allen Schools with me, she, and lots of other students called me 'Grandma.' I will miss that, but plan to do some subbing in the fall," she said.

Providence Medical Center receives ACR accreditation

Providence Medical Center in Wayne has been awarded a three-year term of accreditation in Mammography as the result of a recent survey by the American College of Radiology.

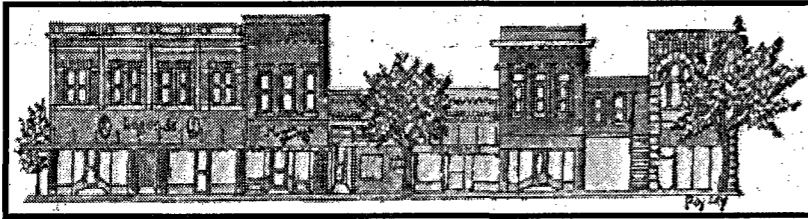

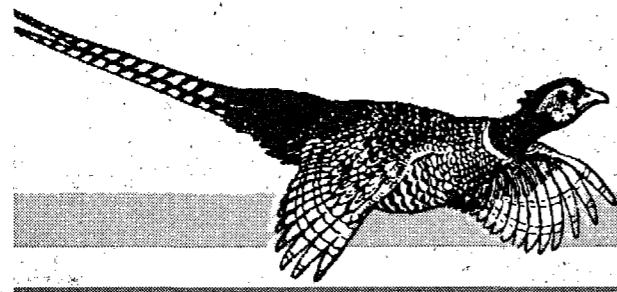

The ACR, headquartered in Reston, Va., awards accreditation to facilities for the achievement of high practice standards after a peer-review evaluation of its practice.

Evaluations are conducted by board-certified physicians and medical physicists who are experts in the field. They assess the qualifications of the personnel and the adequacy of facility equipment. The surveyors report their findings to the ACR's Committee on accreditation, which subsequently provides the practice with a comprehensive report.

The ACR is a national organization serving more than 32,000 diagnostic/ interventional radiologists, radiation oncologists and medical physicists with programs for focusing on comprehensive health care services.

Staffed by certified professionals, the Radiology Department at PMC is composed of Terry McCraney, Supervisor and Sandy Knobbe and Debby Gross.

Main Street Focus

Main Street Wayne sends its "congratulations" to Herb and Kathy Albers and all the fine people who made this year's Cattleman's Ball a huge success. Many Wayne business people and citizens attended the gala and made various contributions to the cause.

The "Ball", which is more than a Ball, appears to be more like a gigantic traveling tent show. There were so many things to see and do, but the most fun was visiting with people from all over the world. I was surprised to visit with so many people from Omaha and Lincoln, our two major metro areas in Nebraska.

The buzz words among the people I got to meet were, "You're not a real cattleman until you can approach a complete stranger and start a conversation and enjoy a visit with this stranger." We met many fine cattlemen and women at the Alber's property.

In our last column we asked people to contribute to purchasing flags for the poles on Main and Seventh Streets. You can drop off your contributions at the Main Street office or the Chamber office. Thirty dollars will replace one flag, but we will take whatever you feel you can afford—this is an important project for many veterans in our community.

Flag Day is Tuesday, June 14 and we are hopeful that some service group in the community takes some time to honor the flag and invites the public to join them. In many of the communities that I have lived, this was always a special day to honor the flag.

Main Street's Organization Committee under the direction of Sandy Bartling is putting together a quarterly newsletter which should be reaching the mailboxes of "Main Street Friends" prior to Henoween and Chicken Days. The front page article is about Henoween which is coming together well under the direction of the Promotions Committee. It looks like it will be another fabulous night of fun and entertainment for children of all ages. Mel Meyer has volunteered to help the ladies on the Promotion Committee with the heavy work and the coaches and players from various athletic teams at Wayne State College will be helping. But there is always room for more volunteers to help. If you have the time and wish to help, call Mel so he can work you in the schedule.

Two chickens still need a person to help them dress up with a new paint job. One chicken has been returned and can be seen at the Main Street office. Main Street appreciates all the help we get from those who paint the chickens. During the Henoween festivities the chickens are auctioned and the money from the auction helps defray the expenses of the entertainers and the total evening. In the meantime, keep an eye on the Main Street Park. Our larger-than-life concrete chicken will soon roost there.

Fourth of July week will be a big week for the Main Street Program. We have just received notification that the joint Management Team and Governing Board of the Lied Main Street Program would like to meet in Wayne on Wednesday, July 6. They expect to arrive in Wayne at about 10 a.m. Plan to take a walking tour of the Wayne business district including the Municipal Auditorium, the city hall and the courthouse. At 11 a.m. they will hold a joint meeting with Main Street Wayne.

The Governing Board chairman is Dean Wayne Drummond of the UNL College of Architecture and he will head up a group of 10 visitors to Wayne. This will be the first time this group had met in Wayne and we feel honored that they have selected us for their quarterly meeting. We will talk more about this in future articles as we receive more detailed information and plans are completed by our Organizational Committee.

The Main Street Promotions Committee, in conjunction with TEAM 15, is planning an "Alley Party" for Monday, June 27. The purpose of the party is to share ideas about "Back Door Entry Plans" during the 2006 Main Street construction. Business owners on both sides of Main Street will be invited to attend the party which starts at 5 p.m. The promotion Committee has some interesting thoughts that they would like to share with business owners that should help traffic during the critical construction times of that project. And it really will be a party with food and fun. When you receive your invitation, don't hesitate to RSVP as soon as possible.

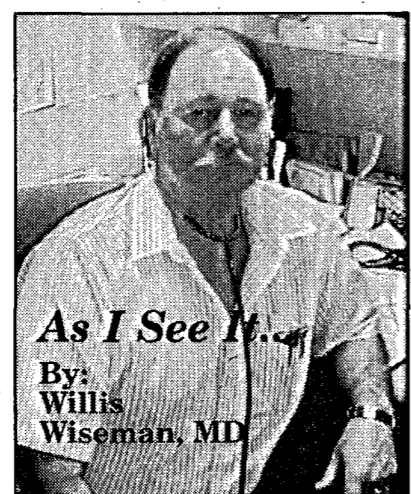

As I See It . . .

The city council narrowly passed the first reading of an ordinance to change the times of day that fireworks may be discharged.

The existing ordinance allows for fireworks to be set off from June 25 thru July 1 from 8 a.m. till 11 p.m. and from July 2 thru July 4 from 8 a.m. till midnight.

The new ordinance would allow for firework discharge June 25 thru July 1 from noon till 9 p.m. and from July 2 thru July 4 from 8 a.m. till midnight.

This ordinance must pass two more readings to become law. If you agree that this is ok, then nothing is required but if you disagree that cutting back the hours of permitted firework display is not what you like, then you need to talk to your council representative. The list of

Capitol View
Speculating on school consolidation

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
What do farmers and columnists have in common?

Regardless of conditions, when a deadline for planting or writing comes along, it is ignored only at great risk.

Problems may arise because no one wants to plant, or write, when they figure that just another day or so will present a better opportunity.

Farmers have the advantage. If they decide to delay things, Mother Nature will wait.

Newspaper deadlines do not wait.

With that in mind, we hereby offer some advance speculation. The subject: possibilities arising from whatever decision Gov. Dave Heineman makes on a bill that would ultimately consolidate all of the state's smallest school districts (the Class I group) with those providing kindergarten through 12th grade.

At this writing, Heineman had not made known his decision. By the time you read this column, however, the decision will have been made and, no doubt, reported in some detail.

So, let us consider the political possibilities that could result from a Heineman veto that stands, a Heineman veto that is overridden by the Legislature, and a Heineman decision to sign the bill. First off, the issue of Class I school districts is as hot a political potato as ever bloomed in corn and wheat country. It has been that way for decades and decades.

Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine summed it up for a World-Herald reporter thusly: "I don't believe he can ever come and campaign in the 3rd (Congressional) District unless he vetoes it."

Of course, Heineman will campaign in the 3rd District because he faces Rep. Tom Osborne of the 3rd District in the 2006 GOP primary. Osborne wants the gubernatorial nomination. So does Heineman.

If Heineman vetoes the school consolidation measure and the Legislature overrides his decision and enacts the measure, Heineman might be able to fashion a soft landing. How about:

"I vetoed the bill, in part, because I believed the issue to be sooooo important that the Legislature should have a second chance to rethink its decision!" Not bad. Not altogether unreasonable.

If a veto is knocked down? "Our representative form of government has worked."

If it stands: "Our representative form of government has worked!"

If Heineman signs the law?

"This is the best policy for the state and, more importantly, for the future educational opportunities of all Nebraska school kids."

Then, of course, there is the subject of Osborne's position(s) on school consolidation.

The former NU coach, who has clobbered the opposition in every election to date, has himself indicated that efficiency in the organization of public schools is devoutly to be wished.

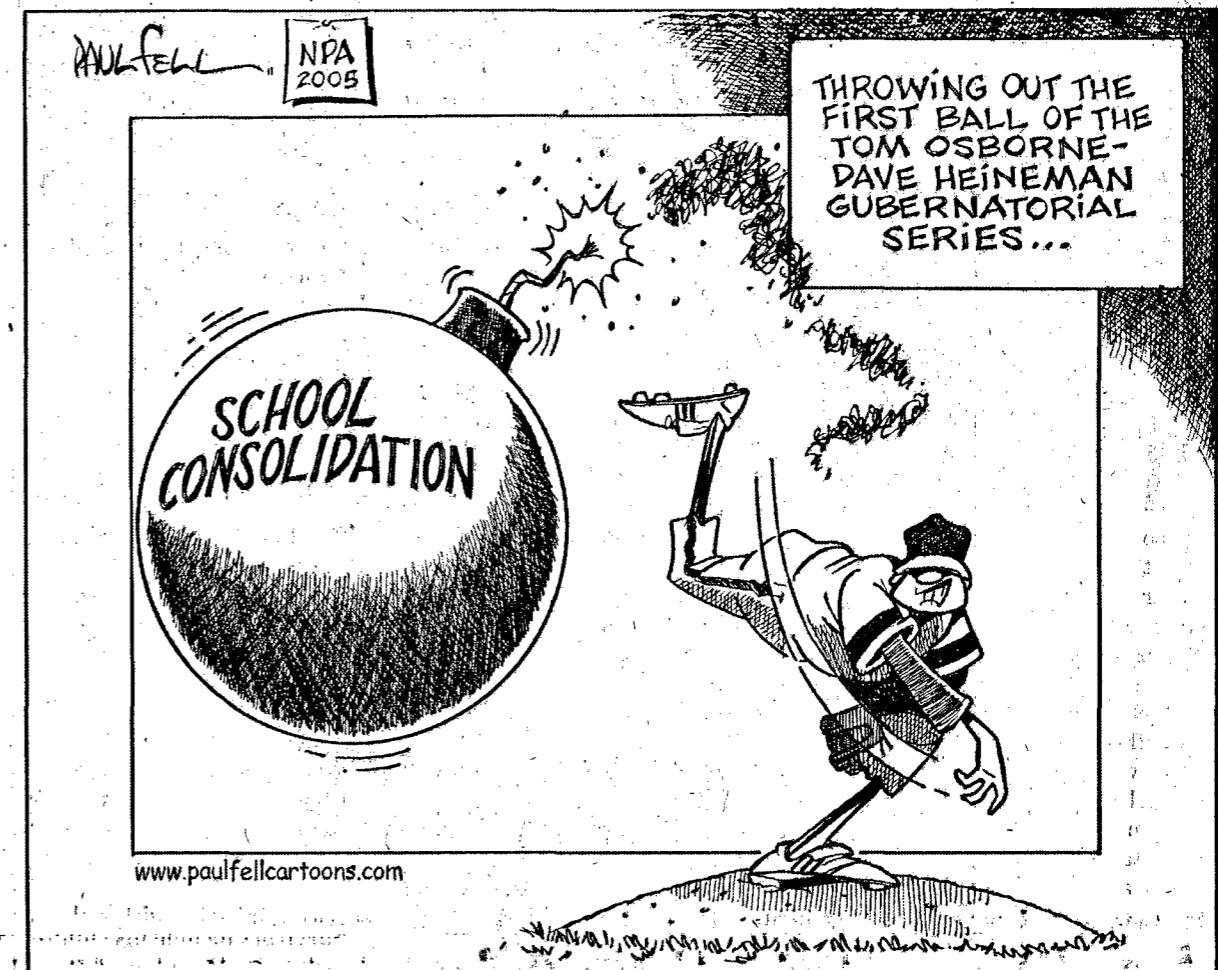

It is virtually certain that Osborne will be asked what he would have done if he were governor when the consolidation bill was passed. His answer to that question could prove important.

Osborne has pledged that he will not say an unkind word about Heineman; that means the traditional political ploy of "I'd done it different and he done it wrong," ought not come up.

The obvious question here: Is there such a thing as a political liability for Osborne, regardless of his position?

One issue can prove dominant in a political campaign. But a handful of national football championships and a river of statewide popularity can do the same.

Legislative session comes to an end

By Senator Pat Engel
17th Legislative District

The Ninety-Ninth Legislature, First Session, wrapped up Friday, June 3.

Of the 763 bills introduced, 270 were passed. The budget, economic development, and education held the spotlight during the 90 day session, and many other bills of importance also passed.

The $6.1 billion two year budget allows more money for K-12 schools, the University, and state colleges. It also pays off the $146 million low level waste court judgment, puts aside $15 million over two years to train workers for new jobs in Nebraska, and did not raise taxes or cut programs.

Jobs and businesses will have a chance to apply for new incentives under LB 312. New tiers to qualify will let more businesses apply for and receive tax incentives to invest and create jobs. Manufacturing equipment will be exempted from sales tax and companies will be required to report their benefits in a lump sum every two years.

LB 90, the rural economic incentive plan, sets aside $43.5 million a year for ag related business development and incentives for ethanol production plants.

Class I schools will have to be assimilated into K-12 districts under LB 126, a hard won compromise that took nearly the whole Session to reach. However, there are several criteria that will protect the smaller districts under the bill. Schools with entering students in year 2005-06 year will not have to close until the youngest child completed his or her education in the Class I school. Schools 10 miles from the closest K-12 district and with at least 10 resident students cannot be closed by any vote of a K-12 board. K-12 boards could not close elementary only schools until Class I supporters have a chance to be elected to the board of the larger districts. The Legislature overrode the Governor's veto of LB 126.

Another important bill passed was LB 117, to slow down the amount of methamphetamine manufactured in Nebraska. Up until now, we have been a haven for the makers of the highly addictive, homemade drug due to more stringent laws in neighboring states. The bill will discourage production by making it more difficult to obtain the ingredients and increasing penalties for possession.

Under LB 117, cold and cough medications containing pseudoephedrine can only be purchased by customers at least 18 years old from behind the counter or from locked cabinets. Children's liquid products will generally be exempt from the law unless it becomes apparent they are being used to produce meth.

Other notable bills passed last week included LB 538, the Community Corrections Bill. The measure will put many drug offenders currently behind bars into community treatment and supervision. A Community Corrections Council will be charged with studying and recommending substance abuse treatment plans. This bill is the product of many years effort to stem our prison population explosion and let the offenders help in their treatment.

LB 114, which passed on a vote of 46-0, will require children entering kindergarten in the fall of 2006 to have their eyes checked before they go to school. This test would be in addition to a physical exam. The bill also requires schools to provide information to parents about free or low cost exams.

A bill to reform the state Medicaid program, LB 709, also passed last week. The bill establishes a Medicaid advisory council consisting of five members appointed by the Governor and five members appointed by the legislature. The members will be drawn from healthcare providers, consumers, consumer advocates, business representatives, insurers, and elected officials. A plan is due by Dec. 1, 2005, and legislation is required to be introduced during the 2006 legislative session. Medicaid consumes more state dollars than any other budget item.

LR12CA to raise legislative salaries from $12,000 to $21,000 a year will be on the 2006 primary ballot. As I have told you before, I believe this raise is necessary to guarantee a continued source of qualified candidates for our citizen legislature. The raise, if approved, will take effect in 2007. Lawmakers have not received a raise since 1988.

This is just a bird's eye view of the 2005 Legislative Session. Space does not allow me to summarize many more bills that may be of interest to you. Please do not hesitate to contact my Lincoln office at 471-2716, or write to me at District 17, PO Box 94604, Lincoln, Neb. 68506-4604, or email to lengel@uncam.state.ne.us

Wicked wind

High winds hit the region again early Tuesday morning. This open front machine shed was anchored by posts buried three feet in the ground. Tornado force winds pulled them straight out of the ground and sent the roof sailing over the grove and landing in the cornfield. It also totally demolished the 8,000 bushel grain bin next to it. These buildings were located on the Monty Granfield farm near Randolph and Sholes.

Relay For Life set for this week

After several months of planning and creative efforts to raise funds by those involved, the time is here for the Wayne Relay For Life.

The sixth annual Relay For Life for the American Cancer Society will be held Friday and Saturday, June 10-11 at Cunningham Field at Wayne State College.

Organizers are again encouraging members of the community to take part in any or all of the events.

Teams have put together 19 Silent Auction Baskets which can be viewed at State National Bank through Friday, when they will be moved to the Wayne State track. Bids on the baskets can be made at this time or the night of the Relay.

Luminarias can be purchased from any team member for $5 and can be in memory of someone who lost the fight to cancer or in honor of someone who is a cancer survivor. Those wishing to purchase one may contact Diane Roeber at State National Bank. Luminarias will be sold at the Relay until the time of the Luminaria Ceremony.

Each year the Relay is designed to symbolize the fight of a cancer patient and always begins at dusk and ends in the morning hours of the following day. The light and darkness parallel the physical effects, emotions and mental state of a cancer patient while undergoing treatment.

A schedule of events is as follows:

- Friday
- 10 a.m. — Chamber Coffee.
- 6:30 to 8 p.m. — Music by the

Winside students travel to the Black Hills

Nine Winside High School seniors-to-be recently participated in a five day field trip to the Blackhills and western Nebraska.

The group was sponsored by Biology teacher Paul Sok and fellow instructor, Mark Koch. This is the 10th year that Sok has taken a group to the Blackhills region.

Participating students included Jarad Thies, Chris Thies, Jessica Janke, Blaire Hokamp, Sonya Paulsen, Mark Hawkins, Cody Lange, Cassie Prince and Korrine Stubbs.

The group left Winside at 5 a.m. on May 26 and returned May 30.

The first stop for the group was at an original sod house just north of the Badlands. This was followed with a hike and drive through tour of the Badlands. Afternoon activities for the group included a tour of the Journey Center in Rapid City, a guided tour to view the modern architecture of the Lady of Perpetual Help Cathedral and a visit to Reptile Gardens.

The group then took in some swimming time at the Bavarian Inn, north of Custer, S.D. They also hiked to the base of Mt. Rushmore and viewed a film in the amphitheater and the night lighting of the Memorial.

Friday was a full day of activities for the group and started with a guided tour of the historic Wade

Gold Mine in Hill City. Owner Bob Wade finished the tour with gold panning lessons and a chance to do a little 'panning' on their own.

The group then had the opportunity to listen to world-famous paleontologist Neal Larsen, who was instrumental in the historic $8.3 million T. Rex "Sue" discovery. He granted the class an audience since he was originally from Stanton and is related to the Marotz families in this area.

After the visit to the Blackhills Institute of Geology, the students went to the Crazy Horse Memorial and had a guided tour down to the base of the Memorial. They also had the opportunity to view the first-ever laser light show at the Memorial that evening.

Other activities included a guided scenic tour of Jewel Cave, hiking in the Needles area of Custer State Park and a hike around Sylvan Lake. Four of students took a brief swim in the 55 degree water.

Saturday began with a trip to the Coolidge Fire Tower in Custer State Park. The students then had a chance to see a variety of wildlife in the park and had the opportunity to go into the historic Blue Bell Lodge and see the wildlife mountings. The group hiked to Rankin Ridge Fire Tower and climbed a viewing platform near the top of the tower. They participated in a tour of Wind Cave State Park after the hike and finished off the afternoon and evening swimming at Evan's Plunge in Hot Springs and getting a view of the old 1800's Brownstone Veterans Home.

Sunday started out with a guided tour of Mammoth Site on the south end of Hot Springs. This was followed by a visit to Cascade Falls, where the students had an early morning swim. Then the group traveled to Fort Robinson. At "Fort Rob," the entire group was entertained with a guided, horse-drawn hayrack ride and tour through the park grounds. They then took off for Chadron and a drive through Chadron State College.

After that the group was engaged in a scavenger hunt activity at the North American Museum of Fur Trade east of Chadron.

Evening activities included a guided tour of the Bowring Ranch at Merrimann and a barbecue by the ranch hands.

The next stop on the tour was at Valentine.

The group conducted a drive-through tour of Ft. Niobrara Wildlife Loop and had a hike down to Fort Falls and the Niobrara River.

The final stop of the trip was at Ashfall. There, Park Ranger Rick Otto led the group on a guided tour of the site where they had a chance to see their second world-famous paleontologist, Dr. Vorhies of the University of Nebraska, busy at work on one of the fossil sites.

"All in all, the group had 30 stops on the tour. Partial funding for the trip was provided by the Gardner Foundation and Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District. The group is very thankful for their support and also to Winside Public School District for providing the school van used on the trip," Sok said.

Theater offers variety of services for local customers

By Frank Conley For the Herald

As the only theater in town, Hollywood Video and Twin Theater has enchanted Wayne residents with far off galaxies and on to the streets of Gotham city, and many other places in their movies.

Owner Terry Johnson began his career in the video and theater business by working at the local theatre while attending Wayne State College. Johnson graduated from WSC and eventually bought the theater, along with several other theaters. He now owns four different theaters and one drive-in to command a total of 10 screens in the mid-west, which he operates out of Vermillion.

To run and maintain his theaters, Johnson must balance what movies to show and where. Johnson first must book movies in advance and then must sign a contract to show the movie for so many weeks.

Depending on circumstances, he may show a movie at certain theaters longer or first before he takes them to his smaller markets. Certain film companies are more reluctant to show bigger movies in smaller markets such as Warner Bros. with Harry Potter.

Once he has established the contract and where the movie is going, the theater will usually receive the film rolls on Thursday from one of the two distributors, Techni-color or ASAP Express.

When the movie has reached the theater, it then must be put together and installed onto the projector. Each movie comes on several reels with each one containing about 20 minutes of footage. The longer the movie the more reels they will contain. For example Star Wars: Episode III was a little over two hours and came on six reels.

The previews, that are seen before the movie, are mailed separate and must be attached to the movie separately. Once this is completed, the film is put on to large horizontal reels called tables and run into the projector and onto the screen for the audience.

Theaters do not make a great deal from their ticket sales. When a movie is released right away in a theater, "The lion's share of the ticket sales goes to the film companies" said manager Roy Swanson, "we receive maybe 25 percent of the tickets sold." But if a movie is released later, the theater receives more profit from ticket sales.

"The owner must decide whether to get a movie now for less of the share or later for more of the share," Swanson said. Each theater can hold up to 180 people and contains a combined five hand-capped seats. The theater is currently being renovated with a new ceiling being installed and will eventually receive new sound curtains, a new screen and new carpet.

Hollywood Video receives a great deal of its revenue not through tickets but by concessions and video rentals.

They rent DVD's and VHS along with video game rentals for X-Box, Playstation 2 and the Game Cube. The video store also sells used DVD's and VHS with the occasional video game on Chicken days and after Thanksgiving. They also have one or two random sales throughout the year depending on how many movies they have.

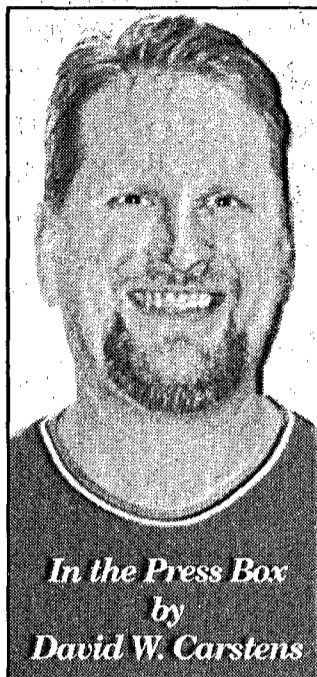

With the addition of a digital projector, Hollywood video can now show DVD's and games on the big screen. Recently "Wayne High seniors rented the screens and watched movies on one and played X-Box games on the other" Swanson said.

The theater can accommodate customers by renting the theater for various occasions. There is also the possibility in the near future for gaming tournaments on the big screens and renting out the theater for birthday parties and other such related events.

A chance to catch our breath

In the Press Box by David W. Carstens

It seems a bit quiet around the sports office as the school year seemed to slow to a crawl over the past few weeks.

All of a sudden I'm busy working my schedule around my son's little league baseball games and introducing my two-year old to joys of swimming.

Ah yes, I love summer. There have been quite a few things to reflect upon as of late.

A recent trip to Atlanta for a freelance photo project I was involved with offered a chance or two to contemplate the happenings of the past sports seasons.

The short plane trip down south was a bookend to another freelance project I was involved with in Oregon last fall.

The buzz over the success of some of the teams and individuals in the Wayne Herald coverage area made this school year one I will remember for years to come.

I've had a hard time putting together a Top Five favorite sports moments this year because there were so many.

Watching the Wayne High softball team claim its state championship last fall was just as emotional as watching Allen's Erin Keitges win the 1600-meter run at the wire at the state track meet a few weeks ago.

Wayne wrestler Dana Schuett's semifinal win at state wrestling was another highlight for me, also. (I found out at Dana's graduation party it was one of his favorite wrestling memories as well).

Winside's state wrestling championship, and watching the talented athletes on that squad, was yet another moment I will treasure for years to come.

Wakefield's incredible finish in boys basketball also ranks right up there.

Wayne State's baseball season was an incredible ride to cap off an exciting school year.

Just think, in a couple more months, we will be ready to start the cycle once more.

Those of you who made this school year a dream season know who you are and my sincere thanks goes out to all of you who made the dream a reality.

Have a happy summer, sports fans.

The Sweet 16s Wayne 16u team is 12-1 on season

Kayla Hochstein led the way with three runs, while all but Sadey Bessmer (1 run) from the batting order were able to tally two runs each.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

SILLY SEASON
Slang for the period that begins during the latter part of the current season, wherein some teams announce driver, crew and/or sponsor changes.

SPOILER
(Also referred to as a "blade.") The spoiler is a strip of aluminum that stretches across the width of a race vehicle's rear decklid. It is designed to create downforce on the rear of the vehicle, thereby increasing traction. However, the tradeoff, again, is that more downforce equals more aerodynamic drag, so teams attempt, particularly on qualifying runs, to lay the spoiler at as low an angle as possible to "free up" their vehicles for more straightaway speed.

STICK
Slang term used for tire traction.

STICKERS
Slang term for new tires. The name is derived from the manufacturer's stickers that are affixed to each new tire's contact surface.

Schwanke participates in training in Mojave Desert

Army National Guard Specialist, Tonya S. Schwanke is a member of the 48th Brigade Combat Team who recently participated in one of the most realistic scenarios offered by the U.S. Army at the National Training Center (NTC), Fort Irwin, Calif. The Nebraska National Guard soldier is a member of the 105th Personnel Services Detachment based in Lincoln.

The NTC, located in southern California in the Mojave Desert, is the premier combat training center for desert warfare. Its rugged terrain and environment provide a realistic and grueling test for troops of the 48th Brigade Combat Team in preparation for deployments to Iraq. Soldiers honed their warfighting skills through force-on-force simulated combat scenarios in the tactical environment.

The 48th Brigade Combat Team, headquartered in Macon, Ga., is comprised of 31 units in Georgia and six units from other states with a combined total strength of more than 4,000 soldiers.

Schwanke, a personnel service specialist, is the daughter of Maxine J. and Roger D. Schwanke of Wayne. She graduated in the year 2000 from Wayne High School.

Society is proud to support these young men and women during their time in Washington. I'm sure that Faith will have a great learning experience while she is here."

Kroeker is a junior at Bethel University in St. Paul, Minn. She has earned a 3.86 GPA and is majoring in Third World studies. She has spent several summers working on the Northern Cheyenne Reservation in Montana. Kroeker has also studied abroad, visiting Uganda, Honduras, Venezuela, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Tanzania, Kenya, and the Galapagos Islands. She has accepted an internship with Senator Chuck Hagel's office.

The Society has offered scholarships to Nebraskans, or those with close ties to Nebraska, who intern in Washington since 1987. This summer the awards range from $750 to $2,000.

According to Shapiro, "The scholarship program has always had a number of generous contributors, and I thank them for their support. The Society wants to put that money to good use supporting students who will be interning around town in the public sector. This is a great opportunity for each of the winners. A Washington internship can give them valuable experience and open a number of doors for them as they start their professional careers."

Students who plan to participate in a public sector internship in Washington, D.C. between December 2005 and May 2006 should apply for a scholarship by Oct. 20, 2005. Application materials are available on the Society's web site, www.nebraskasociety.org.

The Nebraska Society of Washington, D.C. was formed in 1908 to strengthen the cultural and patriotic ties that bind together Nebraskans living in the Washington, D.C. area, and to promote the welfare of Nebraska, its citizens, traditions, and institutions. Today, the Society is one of the strongest and most vibrant state organizations in the nation's capital.

Walking and Alzheimer's
Regular walking may help prevent Alzheimer's disease. A recent study looked at men ages 71-93. Those who walked less than a quarter-mile per day were two times more likely to develop alzheimer's than men who walked more than 2 miles per day. Another study involving women ages 70-81 found that women who walked 90 minutes per week performed better on cognitive function tests than those who were less active. Exercise may reduce levels of a sticky protein (amyloid) that clogs the brain. It may also increase blood flow and raise levels of hormones necessary for nerve cell production.

Blood Bank raises funds

Siouxland Community Blood Bank hosted the fifth annual "Drive for Life" golf fundraiser on June 6 at Whispering Creek Golf Course. Tee off was at noon and registration included 18 holes of golf and dinner afterwards. Outback Steak House sponsored the steak and chicken dinner.

There were first, second and third place prizes for two tiers of teams and contests at individual holes. Four hole in ones are sponsored by LeMars Ford Mercury and Heartland Motors on a two year lease on a Ford F150 pickup, Dell computer system, a Bose wave radio/cd and a set of Hogan Edge CFT irons as well as a sports print from Slumberland for the putting contest.

"We appreciate the support of our major sponsors: AC&R Specialists, Square Tire Total Car Care, L & L Builders, Security National Bank, Haemonetics Corp., Outback Steakhouse, KPTH Fox 44 and Avery Brothers. They are an integral part to the success of this fundraiser," said Janette Twait, CEO of the Siouxland Community Blood Bank. "The support from our sponsors, golfers, hole sponsors and the businesses who donated raffle prizes is much appreciated."

This fundraiser will assist the blood center in purchasing a double red cell machine. By donating through the automated double red cell technology the Siouxland Community Blood Bank can better match the donation collected to the needs of the 34 area hospitals they service. Donations collected by this procedure allow doctors and medical staff to treat patients more effectively and allows the Siouxland Community Blood Bank to maintain a safe and adequate blood supply.

For more information on the Siouxland Community Blood Bank, please call 712-252-4208, 1-800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org.

Vines: the 'Incredibles' of the garden

By Christina Hoyt
Nebraska Statewide Arboretum

Vines are both loved and loathed by gardeners. We hate them for their uncontrolled behavior, yet love them for their ability to hide aesthetic evils in our gardens. They go where no shrub goes, shimmying up walls and defying harsh elements, protecting slopes from erosion and softening structures.

There are a few vines that should be unleashed with caution -- Virginia creeper, trumpet vine, Boston ivy -- and other vines, such as the Kudzu of the south, that are outright noxious and shouldn't be planted under any circumstances.

How do we know what vine to plant? As with any plant, do your research. No one should expect clematis to scale a wall without support or Virginia creeper to stay in a nice tidy corner. Vines have specific characteristics that make them work for different tasks.

Only clinging vines, vines that grow with the assistance of adhesive disks or adventitious roots, can scale walls or smooth surfaces. They have small sticky pads that hold the vine to the surface and allow it to climb. Clinging vines tend to be aggressive. For example, Boston Ivy (Parthenocissus tricuspidata) can scale three stories, growing out of compacted soil, and continue to grow about three feet a year. English Ivy (Hedera helix), an evergreen, and the native Virginia creeper (Parthenocissus quinquefolia) are other examples. On rough surfaces plants like the elegant but slow-growing climbing hydrangea (Hydrangea petiolaris) sprout roots from the stem and hold the plant to the surface.

Vines that do best on poles, arbors or trellises climb by one of two methods: either twining (the plant twists itself around the object), or by tendrils, little finger-like appendages that attach to the surface. Most vines fall into one of these categories, giving an array of options to the gardener. Twining climbers like American bittersweet (Celastrus scandens), wisteria (Wisteria spp.) and trumpet honeysuckle (Lonicera sempervirens) work well on poles or arbors. For arbors and trellises, the best choices are vines that climb mostly by the means of tendrils like the more aggressive grape vine (Vitis spp), lemon lace vine (Fallopia aubertii), chocolate vine (Akebia quinata) or the less aggressive clematis.

With all of the possibilities, it is important to check the vine's credentials to make sure it will work for the site: how it climbs, how aggressive it is, how much support it needs and what it needs in terms of sun, moisture and type of soil. Any reputable nursery will be able to help you choose. So next time you have aesthetic evils lurking in your garden, don't forget to call in the vines.

Enjoy summer picnics, barbecues without the bacteria

It's summer! Hot weather has arrived and we are heading to the park or patio for picnics and barbecues.

It is a great time to gather with friends and family members, but we also need to be careful to keep our foods safe. Dr. Julie Albrecht, Specialist with the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, has shared some tips with us: She says when attending summer picnics or barbecues, safety precautions such as correct food storage and cleanliness are easy to ignore. Even so, observing food safety measures is important in warm summer months, as more foodborne illness outbreaks are reported then, usually stemming from the increase in outside cooking and eating.

In the casual atmospheres of picnics and barbecues, it's easy to mishandle, undercook or cross-contaminate foods. Another common mistake is leaving perishable foods out in warm weather too long, thus allowing bacteria to infest the food.

Jane Armstrong
Cedar County

Though it can be inconvenient to keep perishable food cold, meaning 40 degrees or lower, especially when traveling significant distances, it is necessary to do so for foods to remain safe to eat. Food should be stored after two hours.

When temperatures exceed 90 degrees, it should be stored after one hour. Correctly store items that need to be kept cool by putting them in shaded coolers with plenty of ice or ice packs.

Foods such as potato chips, whole fruits, carrots and cookies can safely be left out as snacks. They make good replacements for sliced fruits or picnic options that contain dairy products or meats, including chip dips, potato salads, sandwiches and deviled eggs.

Finally, keep cleanliness in mind when enjoying the outdoors. Most picnic places have restrooms where picnickers can wash their hands, but for remote locations pack a container for boiling water. This ensures clean water for drinking and for washing dishes, foods and hands. Moist towelettes and paper towels are good for washing hands and tables, and as a last resort, water-free hand sanitizers may help to kill some germs.

So, have a great summer with your friends and families and make the day a positive one by also remembering all the guidelines for safe food in hot weather. As always, if you have questions about this information, or other information relating to family management, please contact your county office of the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

Confirmation students

Confirmation services were held on Palm Sunday at Immanuel Lutheran Church, northeast of Wayne. Confirming the students was Pastor William Bertrand. Those confirmed were, left to right, Kayla Rewinkel, Amber Nelson and James Roeber.

St. Paul women hold meeting

The Carroll St. Paul Lutheran Ladies Aid and LWML met June 1 for a regular Aid meeting.

Pastor and Mrs. Kihne, four members and one guest, Janet Fuoss, were in attendance. The Bible Lesson, "Shine Like Stars," was led by the Pastor. Mites were collected.

President Nancy Junck called the meeting to order. Roll call and minutes were given by the secretary.

Bellevue University celebrates spring commencement

Bellevue University conferred 1,697 undergraduate and graduate degrees on June 4, during spring commencement. The graduation ceremony was held in the Omaha Civic Auditorium.

Jeremy Meyer of Wayne received his Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration, Technical Studies.

Sheena Jelinek of Laurel received a Bachelor of Science degree in Marketing Management.

Commencement Speaker was Kenneth E. Stinson, chairman of the board for Peter Kiewit Sons', Inc. Stinson was named chairman and CEO of Kiewit Construction and Mining Group in 1993 and Chairman and CEO of the parent company in 1998. In January 2005, he stepped down as CEO but continues to serve the company as chairman of the board.

Since 1993, the company has completed $36 billion in construction work. Of that, about $12 billion has been design-build projects, including numerous power plants. Revenues and net income have doubled, and the company's OSHA incidence rate is less than one-seventh what it was when Stinson assumed leadership of Kiewit's tary. The treasurer's report was also read.

It was reported that Lucille Schnoor had recently had carpal tunnel surgery. A Thinking of You card will be sent to her.

Nancy Junck gave a report of the Spring Workshop which she had attended on April 19 at Hope Lutheran Church in South Sioux City. The Fall Rally will be hosted by First Trinity Lutheran Church of Altona and will be held in October.

The cleaning schedule for the ladies will be posted in the church narthex. The tasks can be completed at a time to best suit each individual.

The meeting closed with The Lord's Prayer and the common table prayer.

Ivy Junck was the hostess. Viola Junck will be the July hostess.

Stinson first joined Kiewit in the summer of 1969, when he had an internship at the company's Glenpark Subway Station in San Francisco. After graduating from Stanford University in 1970 with his Master of Science in Civil Engineering, Stinson re-joined Kiewit on a full-time basis.

Stinson earned his Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering from Notre Dame University in 1964. Prior to attending Stanford for graduate school, he served two and a half tours of duty in Vietnam as a member of the U.S. Navy Seabees. Stinson is active in Omaha civic activities, and in 2003 was inducted into the Omaha Business Hall of Fame.

Stinson received an honorary Doctor of Commerce degree from Bellevue University at the June 4 commencement.

Of the 1,697 graduates conferred, 1,024 were students of Bellevue University Online. Of those, 419 students took classes online and on campus, while 605 students completed their degree programs entirely online.

GARDEN CLUB

Five members of the Hoskins Garden Club met June 1 to go to Norfolk to tour the garden belonging to Neal and Darlene Pohlman.

Neal also explained the process of hybridizing irises. He prefers working with the Siberian irises, but they have other types in their garden. They also have many daylilies.

The couple dead-head nothing and start nearly everything from seed in their "nursery."

The ladies then had lunch at Quinzos, before returning home.

ZION LUTHERAN LADIES

Zion Lutheran Ladies Aid/LWML met June 2 with eight members present.

Christian Life Chairman Joyce Saegebarth gave the devotion entiled "I Prayed for Faith" and led the topic, "Learn of Me," from "50 Days Ablaze."

President Diane Koepke opened the meeting. Members answered roll call by telling their middle names and giving an explanation of how they received their name.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read, approved and filed.

The card committee reported sending six visitors' cards and one cheer card.

Diane Koepke read the secretary's report from the LWML Spring Event and noted that the Fall event will be held on Saturday, Oct. 8 at Mt. Olive in Norfolk.

The twin bed sheets that members are donating to the in-gathering will be taken to Well-Link in Norfolk.

A discussion was held regarding serving at funerals.

The Altar Guild for June will be made up of the following members: Inez Freeman, Delma Vyhldal, Diane Koepke and Sue Waterman.

Joyce Saegebarth will be in charge of flowers in June.

The June hostess was Elaine Ehlers.

The meeting closed with The Lord's Prayer and table prayer. Diane and Delma won the plate prizes.

Three more quilts were tied after the meeting.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, July 7.

HEALTH FACTS
From your Local Homecare Nurses

Coronary Artery Disease (CAD) occurs when arteries that supply blood to the heart muscle become hardened and narrowed due to the build-up of plaque on the inner walls or linings of the arteries. This causes decreased oxygen and blood flow to the heart muscle. When blood flow and oxygen are cut off you can experience angina, which is chest pain or discomfort and/or a heart attack. Over time, CAD can weaken your heart muscle and contribute to heart failure and/or changes in the normal rhythm of your heart beat. CAD is the most common type of heart disease. It is the leading cause of death in the US in both men and women.

"I am limited in what I can do because of my heart and other medical problems. I have had Personal Care Services for a long time and with the help of the nurses to fill my pill boxes and the nurses aide to help me with my bathing, making meals, housework and laundry, I am able to stay and enjoy my own home."

Staying healthy, controlling diabetes

With all things considered, the best way to manage diabetes and avoid problems is to stay healthy. Take care of your body as carefully as you would a prized possession. Get help in developing a meal plan and exercise plan. Check your blood glucose regularly, write your numbers down and learn how to use the information to adjust your food, physical activity and medication. Most important, educator yourself.

The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension invites you and your family members to participate in a new and exciting diabetes education program. The series of programs is being offered via the two-way interactive distance education facilities. Participants will learn about current issues related to diabetes from educators with over 15 years of team-teaching experience with the in-depth "Living with Diabetes" series.

Topics that will be covered during the two-hour program will include: "Treasure Trove of New Diabetic Products," "New Diabetic Foods," "Carbohydrate Counting" and "Cut the Fat" along with a questions and answer period. Participants will sample a new recipe for a diabetic appropriate food. Team teaching the program will be Phyllis Heimann, R.N. and Certified Diabetic Educator, Mary Clare Stalp, R.D., Stacie Petersen, R.N. and Debra Schroeder, Extension Educator.

Participants have the opportunity to attend the first program on Monday, June 13 from 3-5 PM at Wisner/ Pilger, Pierce, Laurel/Concord and Logan View high schools. The same program will be repeated from 7-9 PM that evening at Scribner/Snyder, Howells, Pender, and Wahoo Public high schools. Thanks to funding from the Rural Health Opportunity Grant this program will be repeated on Tuesday, June 14 from 3-5 PM at Battle Creek, Lyons/Decatur and Stanton high-schools and ESU #8 in Neligh.

The final offering of the program will be from 7-9 PM that evening at Norfolk Public, Tekamah/Herman, Schuyler and Ainsworth high-schools.

Participants are asked to pre-register for "Control Your Diabetes for Life" by calling one of the following Extension Offices: Antelope County 402/887-5414; Brown-Rock-Keya Paha County 402/387-2213 or 800/634-8951; Burt County 402/374-2929; Cedar County 402/254-6821; Colfax County 402/352-3821; Cuming County 402/372-6006; Dodge County 402/727-2775; Holt County 402/336-2760; Madison County 402/370-4040 or 800/217-4310; Pierce County 402/329-4821; Saunders County 402/624-8030 or 800/529-8030; Stanton County 402/439-2231; Thurston County 402/846-5656; or Washington

Thinking about the anniversary of D-Day, collections and more

As one of my faithful e-mail correspondents has reminded us, today is the anniversary of D-Day, the landing on Omaha beach that was the start of the end of the war. I realize it was necessary, but I have often wondered how General Eisenhower could sleep the rest of his life, knowing the terrible loss of life that took place on that day and the days following.

But I want to visit with faithful readers today about collections. I want to warn them about collecting things. My cousin's book about obsessive-compulsive disorders says it is a symptom of this problem. I don't know about that, but I do know it is a problem when it comes to dusting and moving!

Years ago, I decided to collect angels. That was before there were angels everywhere, and before all of the current interest in these spirit beings. When you decide to collect something, it's easy to find a souvenir as you travel; and it's even easier for friends and family to find something to give for birthdays, Christmas, etc. Needless to say, the angels are taking over my house. There is a cabinet full, and a window-shelf full, and many are hanging on the walls. There is a whole boxful that only come out to be hung on the Christmas tree.

Then there are the towels with angels, the pillow cases, the tote bag, and the jewelry. And I don't wear much jewelry. One friend even gifted me with angel earrings, for pierced ears, which I don't have. Growing up, my grandmother always had a print of the famous

By: Pat Meierhenry

Guardian Angel hanging on a wall. One of the first Christmases in the Farm House, "Santa" brought us one of these. Then, antique-collector husband began looking for them in shops. It seems there are many versions of this painting; some modern, some rather old; some feature the children with shoes, some do not. I have them all. As an old nurse who remembers the enamel and stainless steel bedpans, it was fun to acquire a couple of these. Then, we got into chamber pots. Eventually, we had to add a shelf in the bathroom for the collection, because it grew and grew.

One collection that has not grown, thank goodness, is the Big Farmer's group of steins. There are a half dozen on a shelf, and a couple of others scattered around. Needless to say, they all need dusting.

And when it came time to move, they all had to be packed up. Guess what? They are all not going to be displayed. Some are even going to be sold, or given away, whichever is necessary. My new mantra is "less is more." I'm out of the collecting mode.

And in case you think folks all over the world aren't collecting things, one of the lovely residents of rural Murdock collects Rosedale pottery. Check out the prices on that stuff when you have time. Some of the customers in the shop were looking for butter churns; where would you put them all? Lots of folks collect dishes; one of the partners in the store has a Jewel Tea set and many others.

I think the strangest collection I've heard about was in the Sunday paper. Neal Armstrong, the astronaut, is suing his barber because he sold some of his hair...to a collector. Supposedly, this fellow has hair from Abraham Lincoln, Marilyn Monroe, and Napoleon! How did he get those? At least he doesn't have to dust his collection.

Weed control is critical

The early season rains are great to get the corn and soybean crop off to a good start, but the weeds are not far behind.

One of the problems to work around in weed control is the weather conditions. If the weather creates fields that are too wet for spraying, the weeds tend to get the upper hand in growth and can compete with the crop for nutrients, water and light.

The longer the weeds compete with the corn, the greater the potential yield loss. There are several variables involved in how much yield loss is caused by weeds including the weed species composition, weed density and time of

Del Hemsath
Extension Educator

weed emergence relative to crop growth stage.

Research at Concord and Mead by Dr. Stevan Knezevic, and others, of the University of Nebraska, have examined the influence of the weed and crop variables and how that impacts potential yield. Researchers, as a result of the research, have established the concept of Critical Period of Weed Control (CPWC).

Each crop has a CPWC during which weeds must be controlled in order to maintain yields based upon the cultural practices of the crop. Nitrogen influences how a crop will compete with weeds and how soon the weeds should be controlled to prevent an economic loss of yield.

For example, if you applied 110 pounds of Nitrogen, the time to control weeds is during the 4th to 9th leaf stage. At the 9th leaf stage, the crop should have canopy closure. Each crop will have different stages of growth that weed control will need to occur based upon all of the variables mentioned earlier.

A good reference for more information is the "Guide for Weed Management in Nebraska" EC-130, available from extension offices.

Nine State Senators are invited

Please attend this public information meeting designed to answer your questions and concerns about LB 962.

LB962 was passed by the Legislature in 2004 and extended the state's authority to regulate not only surface water, but groundwater. Specifically, the law grants the state final authority in determining if a river basin is fully appropriated. If a river basin is deemed fully appropriated, the state has the authority to require local NRDs to adopt rules and regulations that prohibit the drilling of new wells. Does this affect you?
