Silver anniversary Chicken Show this weekend

Thousands will flock to Wayne this weekend as the 25th annual Chicken Show hatches forth.

Henoween activities are planned for downtown Wayne on Friday evening and Chicken Show activities will be staged at the Wayne State College Willow Bowl. Other locations throughout the community will host special events.

Weekend activities begin with the World's Largest Chicken Dance on Henoween, Friday, July 8, which is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

Throughout the evening, Henoween goers can take part in carnival games sponsored by the Wayne County Jaycees, the pie and ice cream social sponsored by the Order of Eastern Star, Chapter #194 and visit the food, craft and art vendors. The Wayne Boy Scouts will also have a paint ball area inside the Scouts paper trailer and the Sharpshooters 4-H Club will have a display.

The cement chicken auction will take place at 7:30 p.m., followed by entertainment by "Third Voice."

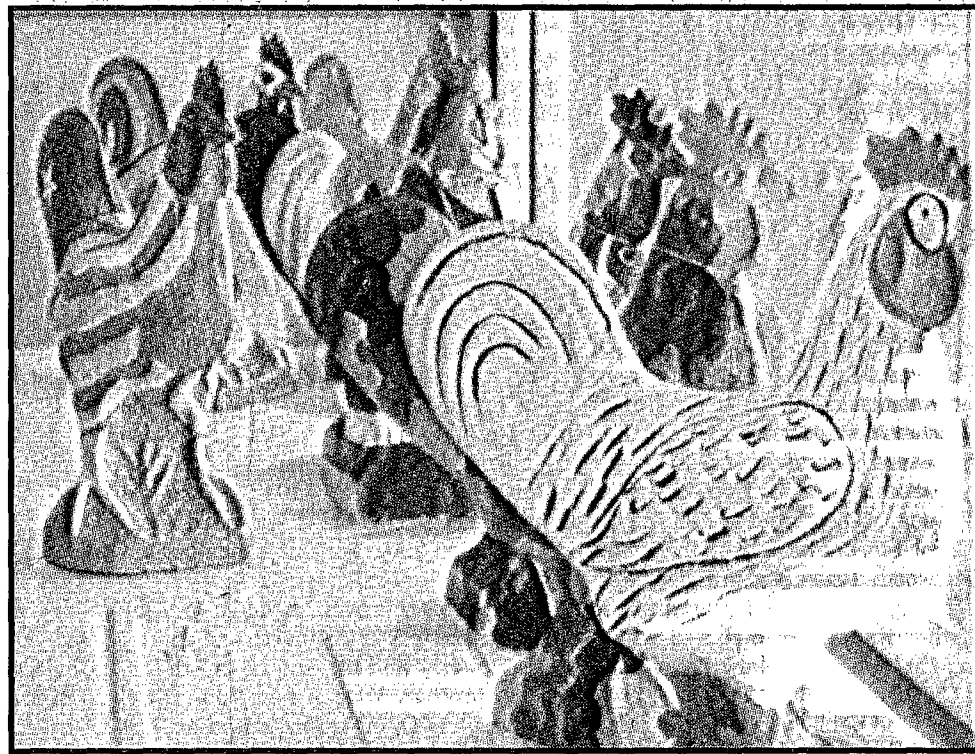

An art show will be held in the former Legends building, beginning on Thursday, July 7. The exhibit will open from 1 to 9 p.m. on Thursday; from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

A number of local artists will have work on display throughout the weekend.

New to this year's Henoween activities is the Jaycees Fireworks Display which will take place at Hank Overin Field.

Saturday's activities kick off with the annual Kiwanis Omelet Feed at the Wayne State College Willow Bowl. Serving is from 7:30 to 9 a.m.

A soap box derby will take place on Main Street near the main entrance to Wayne State College and a Quilt Show will be held at the Lutheran Center, just south of the Willow Bowl.

Other activities taking place Saturday include chicken bingo, the live rooster crowing contest, live chicken flying, a Ukrainian egg display, a chicken hat contest, biggest, littlest and oddest chicken egg, the most beautiful beak (on a human), best chicken legs (on a human) and best chicken song contest.

The annual Chicken Show Parade begins at 9:30 a.m. at First and Main Streets and will include over 100 entries.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m., "Taxi Driver" will perform at the Willow Bowl Stage as does the Chicken Feed. No advance tickets are being sold for this year's feed. Instead, they will be sold the day of the show near the site.

Great Dane Trailers will again be providing free ice cream bars at 12:30 p.m.

Pizza Hut will sponsor the Hard Boiled Egg Eating Contest with a total of $400 in

Wayne daylilies featured in statewide magazine

Nebraska Life magazine is featuring the annual Daylily Festival in its July/August 2005 issue. The festival will be at Garden Perennials, three miles south of town, on

July 30-31.

Owner Gail Korn started Garden Perennials 24 years ago with the hope of being the local supplier of perennials. The three-acre garden draws green thumbs from hundreds of miles, especially when the daylilies are blooming in July.

Nebraska Life publisher Chris Amundson visited and photographed last year's festival in preparation for this year's story.

"The goal of our magazine is to celebrate the people and places of Nebraska through a variety of stories and photography," Amundson said. "Our readers like to travel the state and learn about Nebraska's communities and events."

Daylily blooms last only a day (hence the name), but the stalks produce up to 75 flower buds that help keep color in the garden from late spring to early autumn. The national association of daylily growers goes so far as to call their plant "the perfect perennial."

This year's Daylily Festival event is 10 a.m. - 6 p.m., Saturday, July 30 and 2-6 p.m., Sunday, July 31.

Special visitors

Members of the Lied Main Street Board visited Wayne Wednesday for several hours. The group stopped at the Main Street Wayne office, toured the city, conducted a board meeting and had lunch with a number of Friends of Main Street and other residents of Wayne. The group meets in a Main Street community on a quarterly basis.

Special lady creates labor of love for Chicken Show

Egg-cited about the upcoming Chicken Show, Sue Kloesen of Sun City, Ariz. painted one of the cement chickens that will be sold on auction during Henoween, July 8.

The chicken is mainly navy blue with early American red flowers painted on it. The theme she used was Celebrate with Flower Power.

Kloesen and her husband, Ray, have been living on a farm near Wayne every summer for the past three years. Kloesen is legally blind but has always loved painting. She hadn't picked up a brush for awhile because her depth perception is gone due to 49 years of diabetes and seven different eye operations. Yet, when she heard about the Wayne Main Street promotion of painting cement chickens and selling them on auction, she wanted to help out.

"We were listening to the radio as we came into Nebraska and I heard about the Chicken Show and the cement chicken auction," Kloesen said. "I was excited and picked up my chicken as soon as we got to Wayne. I started painting as soon as I could."

Kloesen has no peripheral vision, only center vision. In order to finish her project she put her chicken on a bench, sat down and had to keep turning her head to see what she was doing.

Kloesen noted that her husband is originally from the Wayne area. She grew up in Manning, Iowa, until her junior year in high school when her family moved to Wheaton, Ill. Later, she moved to Arizona where she met Ray.

Kloesen has had many challenges in her life but looks on the positive side. She said a good experience for her was a program offered by Guide Dogs for the Blind. The dog she received was named Hoyle.

In time, things did not work out to keep the dog because she had just enough sight to keep the dog from performing his role as a guide dog correctly. Yet, she felt the program was wonderful because in the world of blind people, she can't see a whole lot but the experience opened her eyes and still helps her look at the world in a different way.

Science educators' workshop focuses on teaching methods

Dale Hochstein and Elizabeth Maryott, both of Wayne, were among 19 secondary school science teachers from 15 rural Nebraska school districts who participated in a weeklong workshop at Wayne State College, to learn about new science teaching methods. The workshop, made possible through a grant received from the Nebraska Department of Education Math Science Partnership, is a collaborative effort amongst several entities, Godfrey said. "The partnership between UNMC and teachers in rural Nebraska is a small but significant step in providing science experiences to teachers. The hope is to make science an enjoyable experience for their students -- our future scientists, physicians, teachers and citizens." The collaborating school districts were selected from the Central Nebraska and Northern Nebraska AHEC service areas through previous workshop participation and recommendations from ESU 10 and the AHECs.

Dale Hochstein, left, and Elizabeth Maryott were among those attending a workshop to learn new teaching methods.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Monica Marquardt and Linden Cushing were recipients of the Ezra Jochens Memorial Scholarships.

The Scholarships were awarded June 26 at Peace UCC Church of rural Norfolk.

Monica Marquardt will be attending Southeast Community College in Lincoln and Linden Cushing will be attending Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

Each award is valued at $500.

HOSKINS SENIORS

Hoskins Senior Citizens met June 28 at the Community Center. Those who won prizes at pitch playing were Ed Gmirk, Lucille Krause and Ramona Puls.

A no-host-lunch followed the card playing.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, July 12.

Those involved include the University of Nebraska Medical Center's Rural Health Education Network (RHEN) and Area Health Education Center (AHEC) programs; Educational Service Unit 10, based in Kearney; Wayne State College; and the collaborating school districts.

RHEN Director Roxanna Jokela, who directed the workshop project, said the goal of the workshop is to help science teachers improve their science inquiry skills and the science content for their classrooms. During the past five years, UNMC has provided a two-day summer workshop for science teachers. This year's weeklong workshop is part of a 20-month project, titled, "Rural Academic Secondary Schools Science Partnership (RASSSP)."

"This year, through partnering with the state Department of Education and ESU 10, we were able to receive funding to increase the workshop to a full week," Jokela said. "Next year's workshop will be a capstone program of 60 hours over a two-week period."

Maurice Godfrey, Ph.D., associate professor of pediatrics at UNMC and the director of the workshop's science curriculum, said the workshop's goal is to provide professional development for science teachers.

"One never knows from where a future scientist or physician will come. However, we can all be sure that a teacher, some place, will be an important influence," Dr.

Area students awarded Board of Governor scholarships

A number of Northeast Community College incoming freshmen have been awarded Board of Governors Scholarships.

Those students are: Josh Ruwe of Wayne High School; Tamarie Vogt of Winside High School; Erica Miller of Laurel-Concord High School; Taten Hingst of Wakefield High School.

Climbing to the top

The roof of the Wayne County Courthouse recently received new shingles. Workers from Guarantee Roofing and Siding Company of Sioux City, Iowa, had to climb to the peak of the tower in order to finish the job.

Schroeder awarded scholarship

Tyler Schroeder of Allen was awarded the Ernest L. Buckley Memorial Scholarship for the 2005-2006 school at South Dakota State University.

Schroeder is a manufacturing engineering major at SDSU. He is the son of Shiela Schroeder of Allen and a 1999 graduate of Allen High School. At SDSU he is involved in the Society of Manufacturing Engineering, which he has served as president.

Friends and family established this award in 1989 in memory of Dr. Ernest Buckley, a Lemmon, S.D. native who earned his bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1947 from SDSU, his master's degree in 1949 from Kansas State University and his doctorate in civil engineering in 1972 from the University of Texas-Arlington, where he was director of the Construction Research Center for 13 years.

Buckley returned to his home state of South Dakota in 1983, when he became the dean of the SDSU College of Engineering. For two and a half years he took a leave of absence to work in state government in Pierre.

He was acting executive director of the South Dakota Board of Regents and a special advisor on science, technology, and economic development to Gov. George S. Mickelson.

Recipients of Buckley scholarships are upper-class engineering majors, with preference given to students who have excelled in leadership roles in the Joint Engineering Council, the Engineering Phonathon and/or professional societies.

RC&D receives another grant

The Northeast Nebraska RC&D Council announced recently that it has been awarded a $2,842 grant from the Nebraska Arts Council. Spring Into Summer festival held Despite a rainy start to the day the first "Spring Into Summer Festival" sponsored by Northeast Nebraska RC&D in Plainview turned into a fun time. Children were able to play with animals provided by Zoo Nebraska.

The "Little Sprouts Gardening School" was successful with the younger crowd. Everyone wandered through the tents visiting the 22 plus vendors on hand. If you got tired of walking around, you could buy a book from the Plainview Library and a slice of pie from the Amish, and sit at a table and read while listening to the Plainview Klown Band perform.

Long distance rescue

Several members of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department took part in a Rope Rescue training session last week at Bowen Hall on the Wayne State College campus. The training was conducted by members of the Nebraska State Fire Marshall's Training Division. During the class, those in attendance rappelled off the side of the building to 'rescue' a person who was unable to get down from the building.

Extortionists using BBB name to scam online buyers

The Better Business Bureau system has issued an international alert to warn about individuals who are fraudulently using the BBB name to extort money from online shoppers seeking to purchase "big-ticket" items advertised at "low ball" prices.

The BBB serving Nebraska, South Dakota and Southwest Iowa joins Bureaus in Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas as having received queries from online shoppers who were directed to use bogus Better Business Bureau services or received bogus BBB invoices when pursuing jet skis, cars, motorcycles and similar items that were advertised on auction, classifieds and other Web sites. Sites where such items were allegedly listed include eBay, Craigslist, Carbuyer.com and Motorcycletrader.com.

Complainants reported that the merchandise was briefly posted on the online shopping site, and when the buyer attempted to purchase the item by communicating directly with the seller, they were advised that their financial payment would be "handled securely through the Better Business Bureau Company's insurance service." Buyers were told to e-mail the seller who would send their e-mail to "the BBB."

"The BBB" would let them know if they were preferred customers and could start the transaction.

Next, the approved buyers received electronic invoices instructing them to wire thousands of dollars to a Western Union in another country to one of "the BBB's" agents. Signed "Better Business Bureau Customer Support," the e-mail states "the Better Business Bureau will hold the transferred money until the merchandise is inspected and received by the buyer." To date, consumers have been instructed to wire money to Greece, Ireland or England.

There are other permutations of this scam. One purchaser was sent an invoice, signed by the "Better Business Bureau Finance Department" and featuring the BBB name and logo on "International Trading" letterhead. Another buyer received an e-mail purporting to be from the Better Business Bureau and containing a "verified BBB Seal Member Profile" for the online seller. One consumer in Florida reported being told to use a "BBB Auto Buyers Protection Program."

"These thieves are falsely using the BBB name to inspire trust and confidence on the part of the buyer," said Ken Hunter, president

Control weeds effectively in small gardens Engagements

The good news is: we have had lots of good rains to help the garden grow. The bad news is: the high temperatures and good rains make the garden grow, but also allow those pesky weeds to grow!

Jane Armstrong Cedar County

UNL Extension Specialist Laurie Hodges offers us some tips to deal with the problem.

Weed control in gardens can be particularly challenging when hot summer temperatures discourage outdoor work and the novelty of gardening wears off. But with proper preparations and maintenance, gardeners can raise a successful crop without spending the entire summer tending their plants.

The two main ways to control weeds are using herbicides and practicing organic methods such as cultivating and mulching. Generally, organic weed control provides good results, but in certain instances herbicides have distinct advantages. For example, if a garden plot is overgrown or is being established in a new location, chemicals help control large numbers of pre-existing weeds that might otherwise be difficult to eradicate. However, the two types of weed control don't have to be exclusive; they may be used in different combinations depending on the condition of the garden.

If applied correctly, herbicides decrease labor time and plant competition, often an appealing prospect when crab grass begins to overtake gardens in the heat of summer. Herbicides can be particularly labor-saving for those with large gardens. They help control deep-rooted perennial weeds such as bindweed effectively, something that is very difficult to do organically. After crops are established, applying pre-emergence herbicides to soil free of emerged weeds -- in this case, prior to the germination of warm-season weeds such as crabgrass and foxtails -- can reduce weeding during the summer.

However, herbicides cost money and must be used with caution. Always read and follow label directions, paying particular attention to the label's listing about crops with which the herbicide can be used. For example, a herbicide that might effectively control pre-emergent grasses might harm sweet corn. With herbicides come the added concern that the chemicals will drift onto susceptible crops or landscape plants. Few herbicides are safe to use where there are many different species planted in close proximity, as often is the case in small gardens.

Such concerns don't apply to organic weed control methods, which primarily involve hoeing, pulling weeds by hand and using mulches to smother weeds or prevent them from germinating. These methods offer specific control over each area of the garden. Timely hoeing and weeding, done when weeds are still small, can limit weed problems before they become overwhelming. If weeds are kept under control before warm-season grasses appear in late June and early July, and the warm-season weeds are manually controlled when they first sprout, additional weeding will be reduced significantly. This mid-summer weed growth often catches gardeners by surprise and gets out of hand, even for those who controlled early weeds well.

Not only do mulches control weeds, they also prevent the evaporation of moisture in the soil and keep the soil cool. This can help maintain uniform soil moisture, which results in better quality fruits and prevents some plant health problems, such as blossom end rot in tomatoes. Mulches often are composed of common items such as straw, alfalfa hay, untreated grass clippings, chopped leaves or newspaper, all of which have the added long-term benefit of contributing organic material to the soil. Plastic can be used as a non-organic mulch.

Blood Bank needs summer donors

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank is in full swing for their 2005 donor recruitment campaign, "Heroes Unite, It's About Life". The campaign is designed to recruit new donors in the summertime, retain current donors, and increase the frequency of volunteer blood donation. This is accomplished through a partnership with local Fire, Police and Rescue squads.

The "Heroes Unite, It's About Life" campaign helps recruitment efforts through education by the Siouxland Community Blood Bank staff and community participation. From May through September the blood bank will be conducting blood drives in over one hundred communities in the tri-state area. The top three communities with the highest percentage of blood donors registering to donate in comparison to the size of their Fire, Police and Rescue squads combined will win a sponsored donation towards community fire and rescue equipment. The top prize this year will be $1000.

If you are donating in a different community you can still give your home town credit for the "Heroes Unite, It's About Life" contest. When you register to donate blood just let the Siouxland Community Blood Bank employee know which community you would like to give credit to that day.

Nationwide 4 million lives were saved last year by volunteer blood donors. These heroes come from every walk of life but out of their kindness blood is available at our local hospitals when needed.

To be eligible to donate blood individuals must be at least 17 years of age (16 in Iowa with a Siouxland Community Blood Bank parent consent form); however there is no upper age limit as long as the donor is in good health. In addition donors need to weigh over 110 pounds and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days. A photo I.D. is required at the time of registration. For more information about "Heroes Unite, It's About Life", the Siouxland Community Blood Bank or blood drives in your area, call 712-252-4208, 1-800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org

Miniature of Pfeiffer house can be found at the Wayne County Museum in Wayne

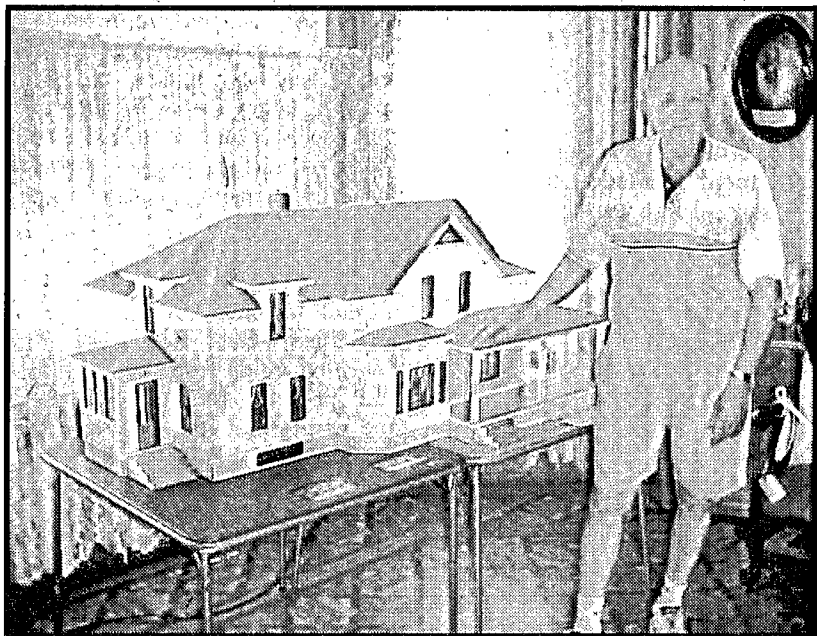

This house was built in 1917, the same year that Zion Lutheran Church was built. The church adjoins the Pfeiffer property. The house is still standing today and is owned by Wallace and Ruth West along with a small acreage. The house is located nine miles west and one half miles north of Winside. The house was built to miniature scale, 1 inch = 1 foot. You can see the miniature house at the Wayne County Museum in Wayne which is open on Sundays, 2 - 4 p.m.

Fred Pfeiffer bought the place in 1972 from John L. Denbeck and lived in it until 1975. While there, they raised two children, Fritz and Ervin (the builder of the miniature house).

The house has approximately 1,800 square feet on each floor with a full basement. Below the basement is a storm cellar of about 200 square feet. An underground 5,000-gallon cistern was used to capture runoff from the house roof. The water in turn was piped back to the basement for washing clothes.

The lighting in the house initially was carbon-arc. All downstairs rooms contained a fixture with its flint striker to begin the lighting process. Electricity came to the farm in about 1942 and not any too soon since carbon-arc was not a dependable system.

Erv Pfeiffer stands by a miniature of the Pfeiffer house.

Clarification

In an article in last week's Herald, regarding a July 10 concert at the Willow Bowl, it was incorrectly noted that the Our Savior Sunday Seven group would be performing. In actuality, the Sunday Seven Youth will be taking part in the concert. Members of the group include, front row, left to right Blake Lyon and Emily Bruflat. Back row, Abby Harder and Shannon Connolly. Not present were Chad Jensen and Nick Lipp.

WEEKLY HEALTH TIP

Restless Leg Syndrome

The FDA has recently approved the use of ropinirole (a Parkinson's Disease medication) for the treatment of restless leg syndrome. RLS is a neurological condition which is characterized by an irresistible urge to move your legs. It often occurs during the night interrupting sleep patterns. The sometimes painful sensations are described as a jittery, tingling, Phil Griess R.P. creeping, burning or aching feeling in calves, thighs or feet. Researchers believe the cause is an imbalance of the brain chemical dopamine or possibly iron deficient brain cells. If you think you have RLS, speak with your doctor. With treatment, calm legs and sleep should be restored.

Variety of projects keep teen busy

I'm Lisa Temme from the Combination Kids 4-H club. I'm 13 years old and have been in 4-H for 5 years. I've enrolled in a lot of projects like photography, dairy, flowers, but my favorite has always been sewing.

In sewing you can do tons of projects from beginner to advanced and learn how to do many things. Most kids start with Sewing for Fun where you learn the basics of sewing by making pillows, tote bags, pin cushions, and other simple things. In Clothing I you start sewing clothing, for example simple bottoms, tops, and other clothes that are easy to do. Clothing II is harder because you can make a dress, skirt or pants and top, or a jogging suit. Sewing for You is usually for experienced sewers that have sewn for a few years.

A dress, skirt or pants outfit, costume, sports wear, or a jacket are all possibilities. In Tailoring you learn how to fit a garment and special techniques for fabrics used in a blazer or suit jacket. Different kinds of fabrics are for different project levels. Prom dress, sheer, or silky fabric isn't usually used in Sewing for Fun, but maybe you can sew with it in Sewing for You or Tailoring. The bright cotton prints are used in pillows and simple skirts, pants, or dresses. Knits and denims are popular fabrics for Clothing II.

The sewing projects that I have done are Sewing for Fun and Clothing I and II. The hardest thing I have learned to do is insert zippers. They are tricky and require special parts for your machine. I have also learned how to cut and mark fabric using patterns, roll hems, insert elastic, topstitching, and sew and turn ties and straps. There are a hundred of things I have not learned yet.

The fifth annual PASE (Premier Animal Science Event) contests were held at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus June 27-28. The events tested 4-Hers knowledge with competitions in livestock, meat, poultry and dairy judging and a livestock quiz bowl. In the dairy judging contest, contestants placed classes of Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey calves, heifers and cows and gave oral reasons.

The Wayne County team consisting of John and Lisa Temme, children of Doug and Mary Temme of Wayne and Jarret and Jenny Warner, daughters of Jack and Rhonda Warner of Allen placed fifth overall in the team standings. The top four individuals earn the opportunity to represent Nebraska at the National 4-H Dairy Judging Contest, held in conjunction with the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis. in September.

Foreign landowners must report holdings

Top 10 individuals in the 4-H Dairy Judging contest were: Tessa Clein of Saunders County, first place; Brandon Schlautman of Saunders County, second place; Danielle Mowinkel of Dodge County, third place; John Temme of Wayne County, fourth place; Michelle Fairley of Jefferson County, fifth place; Wyatt Chapman of Saunders County, sixth place; Morgan Behle of Buffalo County, seventh place; Jamie Queen of Washington County, eighth; Britny Imag of Debra Pieper, county executive director of the Wayne County Farm Service Agency, has reminded foreign investors who buy, sell or hold a direct or indirect interest in agricultural lands in the United States that they are required under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act to report their holdings and transactions to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

PSC sets grain storage rates

Grain storage rates will remain the same in state-licensed elevators this year.

The Nebraska Public Service Commission approved maintaining the existing Schedule A and Schedule B rates at 33 hundredths of a cent per hundredweight in a late June decision. The Commission conducted a public hearing on the rates on June 1.

Schedule A rates include feed grains and oil seeds such as corn, milo, wheat, and soybeans. Schedule E rates apply to dry edible beans and popcorn. The Commission's decision fixes Schedule E rates from Sept. 1 through Aug. 1, 2006. Schedule A rates may be changed with a 30-day notice by the Commission.

The Secretary of Agriculture has delegated the responsibility for collecting this information to the Farm Service Agency.

Farm Service Agency form FSA form FSA-153 is used to report land holdings and transactions. The completed form must be returned to the FSA county office where the land is located.

According to Pieper, foreign investors buying or selling land must report such transaction within 90 days of the date of the sale.

Failure to file an accurate or timely report can result in a penalty with fines up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the agricultural land.

Pieper said the act requires reports to be filed by:

- individuals who are not U.S. citizens or citizens of the Northern Mariana Islands or the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands;
- individuals who are not lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or who are not paroled into the United States under the Immigration and Nationality Act;

Workshop was held

The Food, Land & People Workshop held recently at the RC&D office in Plainview was successful. At the meeting, attendees learned that the average worker honey bee only makes 1/12 teaspoon of honey in her lifetime and that each day one average-size tree produces enough oxygen to meet the daily breathing needs of a family of four.

"Buzzy, Buzzy Bee" and "Tree-mendous" don't sound like your normal lessons, but they helped introduce the Resources for Learning guide from the National FLP program to eleven teachers and non-formal educators on July 21. These hands-on activities made lessons about pollination and the benefits of trees come to life.

These activities were a sample of some of the 55 lessons contained in the Resource for Learning curriculum geared for PreK-12th grades. All of the lessons in the curriculum provide background information for educators, ready-to-use lesson plans, and are correlated to the Nebraska standards.

The Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation & Development (RC&D) Council took on leadership for the FLP program in Nebraska in 2003.

For further details on the project contact the RC&D at 402-582-4866 or Janet Eckmann, FLP Coordinator at jewriter@bloomnet.com.

Enjoying fireworks, fireflies, summer

I had a little trouble getting to sleep last night, as the whole city seemed to be "popping". We could see some neat fireworks from our deck. And, by the way, we have fireflies in the backyard here. I thought we might have left them in the country.

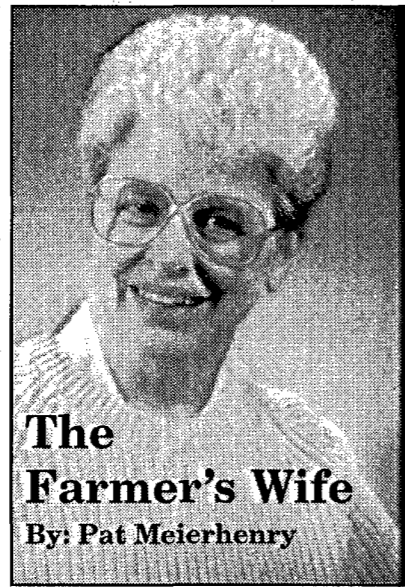

Three day weekends are wonderful. Especially if I'm not making breakfast for guests. And that seemed very strange; not to be having guests. But we took advantage of it.

We spent Friday and Saturday nights in Norfolk with Ann and Max and the kids. There, they had fireworks and we could see Big Bang Boom from their lawn.

On Saturday morning, we were in the CRP acres, chopping thistles. We really are winning that war because it only took us an hour to get the two patches. There always seems to be a stray one here and there; old "Eagle Eye" Meierhenry can still spot them from the pickup. With his arthritic hip and my arthritic knee, we looked like two crips out there, and both moved rather slowly.

That afternoon, we attended a renewal of wedding vows ceremony for old friends observing their 40th anniversary. I have been buying anniversary cards like crazy this past month; lots of folks have had a 40th, and a few celebrated a 50th. Our friend Virg Mulligan says it's a lot more fun going to these parties than it used to be because the celebrants are in such good shape. And that's true; we just got an invitation for a 60th later this month.

We missed Cyril and Bev Hansen's dance at the Carroll auditorium on Friday evening. I'm told the honoree danced every dance, which is some kind of record for a 55th!

Sadly, the other thing I've been doing all month is sending sympathy cards; it must be a sign of our age. Some of the deaths have been of young people, which makes us appreciate each day, arthritis or not.

We will be attending a funeral this week for a 97-year-old former neighbor from my growing up days. She's been in a nursing home for years, and has not recognized anyone for months. It's hard to understand God's timing sometimes.

On Monday, the actual holiday, I pulled weeds and did laundry. In the evening, while I ironed, I watched the Capitol Fourth, which takes place in DC, on the mall, and always seems to be a good time. Lots of great music included 1812 Overture with four cannons that made a great noise.

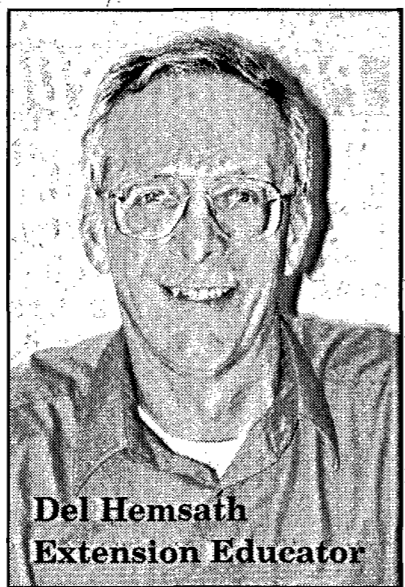

Today, it's back to work. I've been covering vacations for hospice and they are keeping me busy. Wasn't it a relief to have cooler temperatures and less humidity? The crops look wonderful! Here's hoping they stay that way.

Alfalfa markets could vary widely

Bruce Anderson, extension forage specialist at the University of Nebraska shares some important information about the potential alfalfa market in the future and how to best plan for the best price.

When he recently reviewed the hay situation in Nebraska and the rest of the country, he saw that the situations seem to be setting the stage for the largest spread in hay prices in history.

Dairy hay markets look very strong mainly because the hay growing areas in the Midwest, Northeast, and Pacific Northwest had rains that wiped out most dairy quality hay production during first cutting. Combine this

Youth participate in horse show

Four Wayne County 4-H'ers participated in the District Horse Shows held in Bloomfield on June 27 and in Columbus on June 28.

The sites were two of eight district shows that are held during a two-week period around the state. Those 4-H'ers who received a blue or purple ribbon in an event qualify for the State 4-H Horse Exposition which is held in Grand Island in July.

Wayne County results include:

hay picture, though, is just the opposite. A major influence is the increased use of alternative feeds in feedlots and by the cow-calf producers. Economical corn byproducts have enabled feedlots to cut their alfalfa use in about half and at the same time, cow-calf operations are finding the byproducts as a good use for good winter supplement as added energy and protein. Drought has taught many folks how to use other alternative roughages as well. So he expects prices for this kind of hay to have downward price pressure.

All these factors and change in how cattle producers approach feedstuffs, means that if you plan to have hay for sale, do all you can to make dairy hay. Make square bales even if you must hire it done, and store the hay under cover.

It wouldn't surprise Bruce to hear of $150 dairy hay and $30 roughage hay this winter. Which one do you want to have for sale?
