Summer fun

More than 50 youth participated in this year's Park Rec activities at the Wayne Community Activity Center. A number of craft projects, including picture frames were completed during the two-week event. In the photos above, two groups of children work on their picture frames with the assistance of older volunteers. In addition to crafts, the children were able to enjoy a number of outdoor activities. Sarah and Rachel Jensen coordinated this year's program.

One year ago, there were 641 county patrons and a low estimate of another 45 have been added. The $5,000 contribution from the county works out to be about $7.30 per capita. The majority of the contribution was spent for large print and audio books, magazines and a children's set. The remaining amount will be spent on audio books prior to Sept. 30, 2006.

Seventy-nine of 283 (28 percent) of the children who registered for the summer reading program are from Wayne County outside the city limits of Wayne.

Our group of students from Wayne State College arrived in San Jose, Costa Rica at 8:30 p.m. on June 4. We were welcomed by a heavy rain and the friendly staff of the Costa Rican Spanish Institute (COSI). After taking the evening to unpack and unwind, Monday morning brought an ori-The following is some information that we learned about Costa Rica, the place we will be calling home for the next month.

The population of Costa Rica is four million people; one million of those people reside in the capital city of San Jose. Costa Rica is 51,000 square miles, roughly the size of West Virginia. A major difference between Costa Rica and the US is that Costa Rica only experiences two seasons. Winter, which occurs from mid-April through the first few weeks of December, is known as the rainy season. It's not the cold and snowy winter that many Americans would picture. Instead, there are mild temperatures and a couple of hours of rain every day. The other season, summer, goes from mid-December through the beginning of April and features a warm and sunny climate. The Caribbean coast is accustomed to very humid conditions with the other hand, experiences very little some way involved in tourism.

Editor's note: The information was written humidity and is very sunny. The sun by Travis Coufal, a Wayne State College comes up at 5 a.m. and goes down at 6 p.m. year around. Costa Rica is located in the Central time zone but does not practice daylight savings time. There are seven provinces in Costa Rica, San Jose being one of them. The majority of Costa Ricans, known as Ticos, are mestiso. Mestisos are a combination of Native American and Spanish ancestry. Along the Caribbean coast, people of Jamaican and entation and a very insightful city tour. Asian descent can be found. Only two percent of the population is Native American. There are three languages common to Costa Rica. Spanish is the primary language and there are seven dialects of Native language still used. In addition, certain areas of the country speak in a combination of French, English, and Spanish that is said to be very difficult to understand.

The class system in Costa Rica is very unique, because there is no lower class. Costa Ricans are divided into middle class. upper middle class, and high class citizens. Costa Rica enjoys a low 6 percent unemployment rate and a very low cost of living. The average annual income in Costa Rica is $10,000. While touring San Jose, expensive houses were pointed out that ranged in price from $90,000 to $200,000.

Initially, the exporting of coffee was the industry that Costa Rica was founded on. Today, however, it ranks seventh in income producing industries. The number one industry today is tourism. Eighty-five perlittle direct sunlight. The Pacific coast, on cent of the businesses in Costa Rica are in

The people of Costa Rica take a very environmentally friendly stance. The price of gasoline is highly taxed and the licensing of cars is also very expensive. These measures were taken to support public modes of transportation. In addition, electricity is produced from volcanoes, wind, water and landfills. We were told that paying $25 a month for an electric bill is extremely high.

Costa Rica is one of a few countries around the world that has no military. At one time an army was in place, but because Costa Rica has no oil and nothing to protect, it was done away with. The additional money available because there is no military allows Costa Rica to provide virtually free healthcare and free education.

Costa Ricans go to school for 11 years and there is no junior high school. Private and public educations are both offered in Costa Rica, and students of both types are required to wear uniforms. The only difference between the two is the type of uniform worn and the types of foreign languages offered to students.

Costa Rica celebrates its independence on Sept. 16. The country never had to fight for its independence. It was merely granted to them upon a request involving numerous other Central American countries. Costa Rica did, however, have to fight to keep its independence on two separate occasions.

Hi, how's everything back home each other and enjoy hanging out in Nebraska? Here it is hot, everyday, the thermometer usually is between 115 and 125. Every now and then we get a break and it is only 100, I know it doesn't sound like much but it is a nice change. We are over our six month mark now so it is all downhill from here.

We have been pretty busy, last month we topped two million miles over the road. Most companies don't get half of that in an entire year. My routine changes from day to day so I never have an actual schedule to sleep and eat and all that good stuff so most of it is grab what you can whenever you can.

Everyone seems to be getting whenever we talk to people from other companies around that we are the only ones that actually like

Ted and Hillary. Say those two words to any Nebraskan with even a passing interest in politics and they will know of whom you speak. To say that most Nebraskans have their admiration for Democratic Senators Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hillary Clinton of New York would be to say the least.

That is no doubt why Republican Senate candidate Pete Ricketts made them the center of his first statewide television ad. Ricketts suggested that if Nebraska Democrat Ben Nelson is elected to a second term, the Senate might somehow be taken over by Kennedy and Clinton. He said such would be the risk if Democrats gained control of the upper house. Actually, neither east coast lawmaker would be in line for leader-

Nelson's camp was quick to point to his voting record, conjuring reminders that he has supported President Bush more than any other Senate Democrat. Bush has publicly thanked Nelson on several occasions for what the president has called Nelson's willingness to put policy ahead of political party.

The Bush-Nelson connection made the Kennedy-Clinton goblin an easy and obvious target. If it would be tough in many respects to challenge Nelson's voting record, perhaps the next best thing would be to suggest that his party affiliation could be dangerous, because his re-election might empower Kennedy and Clinton.

Get it? Meanwhile, the Nelson camp information

Republican Senator Chuck Hagel's voting record. It showed that on some crucial issues, including illegal immigration, it was Hagel who voted at least twice with Kennedy and Clinton, while Nelson opposed them. Those issues involved what critics call an "amnesty program," and failure to put tighter border security at the top of the immigration debate. Nelson also voted to continue debate on a constitutional amendment to bar gay marriage. Hagel didn't vote on that decision.

Vice President Dick Cheney, whose ability to pull in cash at fundraisers is legendary, was scheduled to appear in Grand Island next week to support Republican Adrian Smith, the GOP's candidate for the House in the 3rd District.

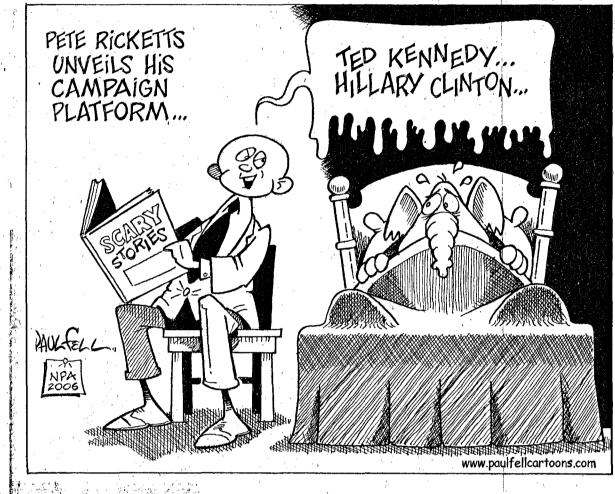

Smith, a member of the Legislature, is opposed by Democrat Scott Kleeb.

If elected, Kleeb would be the first Democrat ever sent to the House from the huge 3rd District, which covers most of the state west of Lincoln and Omaha.

Nebraska's smallest school districts were merged last week with offering kindergarten through high school. Voters will decide in November whether to repeal the law approved by the 2005 Legislature.

An initiative petition for a constitutional amendment also has begun. It would bar mandatory school mergers unless first approved by voters within a school

Costa Rica's Independence. San Jose, where we will be spending the majority of our time in Costa Rica, is a very unique city. One thing that came as a surprise to many of us is that there are no street names or house numbers in San Jose. All directions, including those given to mail carriers, are given using landmarks. All of the churches in San Jose are built facing the west to serve as a frame of reference. In addition, all city blocks, regardless of their length, are referred to as being 100 meters.

One aspect of the city that had many of us nervous in the beginning is that all the houses have barred windows and gates around the perimeters. The crime rate in Costa Rica is not overly high. The bars are used for two reasons, one being that there are very few policemen in the city. The second reason for the bars is a way to show status. Elaborate and expensive steel gates are a way to show how rich a family is.

There are a few major differences in Costa Rican society that we are all taking some time to get used to. There is no hot water from the tap here. When taking a shower, a small heater is used that is controlled by the water pressure. The more the knob is turned, the colder the water gets. In addition, the sewage system here does not allow for toilet paper to be flushed down.

Finally, soda is not nearly as popular here as it is in the US. Many Costa Ricans drink what is known as fresca natural. It is made from fruit juices, water, and sugar.

Another societal difference is Costa Rica's obsession with futbol, known by Americans as soccer. Costa Rica was to face Germany in the World Cup on June 9.

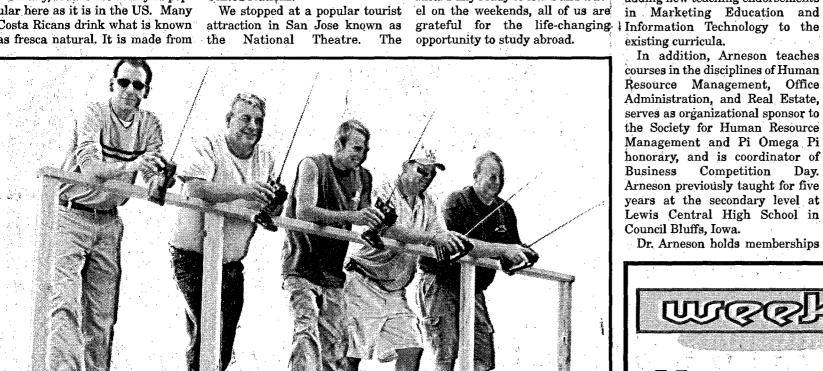

One major concern for many Costa Ricans is earthquakes. This is so much a concern that there is no railroad system in place here. Many of the bridges and tracks that had once allowed for train service from coast to coast were destroyed in a 1991 earthquake. Since then, many of the cars have been turned into children's museum, Costa Rica can experience as many as 100 earthquakes a day, although most of them cannot be felt. Because of the earthquakes, the tallest building in Costa Rica is a mere 19 stories high. In order to be considered earthquake-proof, a building must be anchored at least five meters underground. The US Embassy, for example, is seven stories in total, but only three of them are visible from the ground.

The United States Embassy On our tour of San Jose, we were taken past the President of Costa Rica's house. It was by no means an elaborate dwelling. The house is small and the government provides the President with no security. He is responsible for hiring his own body guards. Although it may seem that he is of little importance to the country, he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1987 and currently acts as the Secretary for the United Nations.

any number of freshly squeezed National Theatre was built in 1897 using money from taxes that the coffee barons charged during export. Much of the theatre is decorated with Italian marble and furniture. The National Theatre is home to the first seven electrical lamps in America. San Jose was the second city in the world to receive electricity, behind France. Another important technological feature of the National Theatre is that the theatre floor can be raised to the level of the stage to serve as a banquet room. It is still used today every four years for the president's inaugural dinner; however, only cold foods can be served because the steam from hot food may damage some of the artwork.

> Another attraction that we visitwas the Pre-Columbian Museum. This highly guarded museum houses the largest collection of gold in the western hemisphere. All of the pieces in the collection were hand crafted by Natives of Costa Rica. In fact, the name Costa Rica means "rich" coast" because of the abundance of gold found here. In addition, all of the gold was sifted and not mined. Many are confident that the earth holds more gold, but Costa Ricans are not interested in tearing up the earth in search of more gold.

Racers look to establish club

Jeff Schaffer and several other Wayne residents have been racing Remote Control (RC) cars for the past five to six years.

"We decided to make the most of the hobby, we needed an RC club. The first step was to build a track. We began to blade the track this spring and continue to make improvements," Schaffer said.

A six foot high drivers' stand has been added, which gives a clear view of the track.

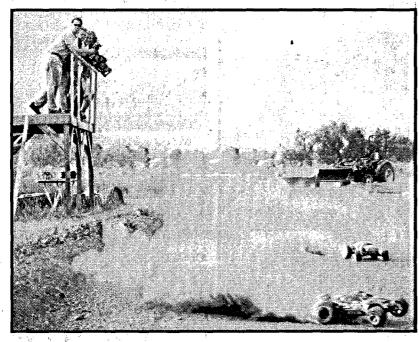

Those involved are now adding dirt to bank the corners of the track.

"For the most part people race Traxxas products. The most popular model is the JATO. The REVO model is also used. All RC vehicles raced are nitro powered allowing the cars to reach speeds of 60 mph.," Schaffer said.

He noted that the cars being raced are smaller versions of a lifesize race car with transmissions, differentials, shocks, brakes, etc.

The RC club hopes with the addition of the track they can increase membership and form their own race league.

"We anticipate the racing league will race on Friday nights. On

Arneson named Collegiate Business Educator of the Year

Dr. Patricia Arneson, professor of business at Wayne State College, was named the "2006 Collegiate Business Teacher of the Year" at the annual Mountain-Plains Business Education Association conference held June 14-17 in Denver, Colo. This award is presented annually to a college/university business educator who has made significant contributions to the field of business education through teaching, service and research.

The Mountain-Plains Business Education Association represents business educators from a ninestate region (North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming) as well as the Canadian provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. M-PBEA is one of five regional professional associations affiliated with the National Business Education Association.

Dr. Arneson has been promoted through the ranks from instructor to tenured full professor at Wayne State College. Within the School of Business and Technology, she coordinates undergraduate and graduate programs of study in Business Teacher Education and is responsible for teaching Business Methods and supervising student teachers. She has been instrumental in adding new teaching endorsements in Marketing Education and existing curricula.

In addition, Arneson teaches courses in the disciplines of Human Resource Management, Office Administration, and Real Estate, serves as organizational sponsor to the Society for Human Resource Management and Pi Omega Pi honorary, and is coordinator of Business Competition Day. Arneson previously taught for five years at the secondary level at Lewis Central High School in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Many services and products are provided at Bailey's Hair & Nails

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Many services and products for men, women and children are offered at Bailey's Hair & Nails, 305 Pearl Street in Wayne. The phone number is 402-375-2700.

Some of the services provided include haircuts, shampoo sets, coloring, highlighting, foils, permanent waving, waxing (eyebrow), manicures, artificial nails, and straightening. Also, there is a tanning bed. "I change the bulbs frequently so they are hot," Barb said. "I think that is the secret to good tanning." Product lines offered include Matrix, Claypack, T.G., Nioxin (products to help thinning hair grow thicker), Redken, Artego, American Crew, Back to Basics, Kadus and OPI (nail polish). Tanning products include Supre', Fiesta Sun, Mediterranean, Australian Gold and California Tan. Gift items that can be purchased include Sugar Shack Candles, which are sold by Sharon Jenkins of Wayne. Besides jar candles in many scents, there are wickless candle "tarts" for melt

This month marks 10 years since Barb Bailey, owner, opened her business. Looking back, the Baileys are third generation beauty shop owners and hairdressers. Barb's mother, Wilva Jenkins, had a beauty shop in Winside for close to 40 years. Barb graduated from high school in 1968 and from Norfolk Beauty College in 1969, married and left with her husband, Lynn Bailey, who was in the service in Honor Guard from 1969-1971 in Washington, D.C. During that time, Barb worked in a shop in Oxenhill, Md. In 1971, the couple returned to Nebraska and she worked with her mother in Winside until their first child, Sara, was born. Barb didn't return to work until their second daughter, Stephanie, started kindergarten.

Barb took a break from hairdressing and worked as a paraprofessional in the Wayne School System from 1985-1996 when she bought Pat's Beauty Shop at her present location. Working with Barb is her daughter, Sara Bailey and Rae Stewart. They also attended beauty school in Norfolk.

Barb noted through the years, hair styles have changed. In 1968, bouffant hairdos were popular with plenty of backcombing. "There are a few who still like a little backcombing," Barb said. "But, for the most part the styles are wash, wear and go. Mainly, we use blow dryers and curling irons for styles

Even the coloring has changed. More true to color, natural looks are in but Barb said they can mix any color that is wanted.

"Color products now are better, they process faster and are easier on your hair," Barb said.

Barb sums up her business by saying, "We are family oriented and we really enjoy serving Wayne and the surrounding community.

Anyone with questions or who would like an appointment can call Bailey's Hair & Nails at 375-2700 or stop in and visit.

New WSC softball coach, athletic business assistant named

Krista Unger

Wayne State College athletic director Eric Schoh announced two new appointments to the Wildcat athletic department.

Last week, Krista Unger was named as the head softball coach at WSC, while Mitch DeBoer will join the department as assistant athletic director for business

Unger, who will begin her duties on July 1, comes to Wayne State after the past two seasons as an assistant coach at St. Cloud State University in Minnesota and becomes the 12th head coach in the 35 year history of the Wildcat softball program.

"We are excited to have Krista join our staff," Schoh said. "She was a winner as a player and I'm confident those same results will follow her as a head coach."

Unger recently completed her second season at St. Cloud State University. In her two seasons at the school, the Huskies notched records of 34-25 (2005) and 33-24 (2006), finishing second and third respectively in the North Central Conference.

Unger is a native of Missouri Valley, Iowa, and a 2004 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Omaha, where she was a standout pitcher helping the Mavericks to the NCAA Division II national championship in 2001.

Unger was a four-year starter and a three-time All-NCC performer at UNO.

She is the all-time winningest pitcher in UNO history with 106 wins and 530 strikeouts and ranks second in career shutouts with 43. Unger also excelled in the classroom at Nebraska-Omaha, earning three All-NCC

"I'm excited to be part of the Wayne State College athletic family," Unger said. "I hope that my playing and coaching experiences will help turnaround the Wildcat softball program. My goal is to turn Wayne State into a winning program and contend for a conference championship, which will lead to competing for a spot in the regional tournament,"

While attending UNO, Unger also served as the JVvarsity pitching coach at Omaha Gross High School in 2003 and at state tournament qualifying Omaha Westside High School in 2004.

She received her Bachelor's of Science in physical education K-12 with an endorsement in coaching from UNO in 2004 and earned her Master's degree in sports management from St. Cloud State in May, 2006.

Unger replaces Jon Misfeldt, who was dismissed on April 28 after serving as head coach for seven seasons at Wayne State College with a 140-197 record. The Wildcats finished the 2006 season with a 10-34 mark, including a 6-8 record in the Northern Sun Conference.

DeBoer accepted the position of assistant athletic director for business management in the department.

DeBoer, who currently serves as director of business services at Wayne State College, will also begin his new duties on July 1.

"While we will greatly miss having Mitch in his current position as director of business services, we look forward to working closely with him in his new role in the athletic department," commented Carolyn Murphy, Vice President for Administration and Finance. "Mitch has provided excellent service to students and the cam-

Eric Schoh added that, "We are excited to add someone of Mitch's caliber to our staff. He will have an immediate impact on our department as he coordinates and manages our finances."

DeBoer has served in his current post for the past six years and has worked at Wayne State since 1996.

I apologize for taking the time away because there's been a good mixture of topics to rant about, both good and bad.

I am hoping to rededicate myself to this weekly space on a more regular basis, but only time will tell us all if that's possible.

Coming up on my second anniversary here at the Herald, it's time to feel a bit reflective.

One thing that's made this job easier over the course of the past year is the cooperation from the folks here in Wayne and the surrounding towns we cover.

Coaches, players, school officials, parents and fans have all contributed and I still find it amazing how it all comes together — but it does!

This summer has been interesting to me as I finally get to put my camera and notepad away for a few brief moments and watch my son play base-

Sure it's only 9-10 year olds, but it's certainly a thrill.

Last night, he got his first two runs of the season and I'm sure you as seasoned parents know the kind of excitement that generated.

So here's my apology and hope that the ol' Press Box will be open a little more as I embark on year number three.

Stay cool.

Legion teams tackle busy slate

It was certainly a win that the team could rally around.

The Wayne Senior Legion team earned its fifth win of the season to improve after downing West Point 5-4 at home on June 14.

The Wayne Juniors Legion baseball team now is 12-3 on the season after playing games this past week with West Point, Dodge-Scribner-Snyder and Pender.

Nathan Summerfield scored the winning run in the bottom seventh inning on an infield hit by Jesse Hill to escape with a 2-0 victory over West Point in Wayne on June 14.

In a game of balanced pitching from both teams, Hill earned the complete game with and struck out seven batters.

Sam Kurpgeweit scored Wayne's other run on the night.

The squad notched another win in a 5-1 road victory on June 19 at Dodge-Scribner Snyder.

A deep left field two-run homer by Kurpgeweit in the sixth inning broke open the contest for Wayne.

Hill picked up the pitching win with 10 strikeouts and three scattered hits.

Jacob Triggs added a pair of

The squad was scheduled to host Norfolk Golden Girls and Tekamah-Herman on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, travel to Norfolk on Monday, June 26, host West Point the following evening and travel to Wisner on Thursday, June 29.

The girls also added another win on the season with a dominating 15-2 road win against Tekamah-Herman on June 15.

The Wayne 18-under squad opened strong with two wins to start district play at Arlington last weekend. The team tallied early wins over Schuyler (8-0) and Arlington Dillon Brothers (11-4), but dropped the third contest to West Point Wimmers (14-3).

The 18s worked out of the loser's bracket to eliminated Dillion Brothers (5-2) in the fourth matchup of the tourney, but fell to a second time to Wimmers (5-2) to finish in second place.

Their district finish will advance the team to the Class C state tournament in Auburn on Friday-Sunday, July

The girls split a pair of regular season road games in other recent action. The team lost 6-4 to Logan View on June 15, but rebound with a victory earlier this week with a 12-4 win a North Bend on June 20.

Prior to the state tourney, the team will host Tekamah-Herman on June 22 and West Point on June 27 and travel to Wisner on June 29.

Wayne Community Schools and First National Bank of Wayne

Partners in Education

We at First National Bank of Wayne care about the future of Wayne Community Schools. To do our part, we are going to donate $1.00 each quarter for every student in Grades 7-12 who make the Honor Roll during the 2005-2006 school year. At the end of the year, the money earned will be used toward the purchase of materials to enrich the academic program at their schools. Below are the names of the students making the Fourth quarter Honor Roll!!

Allen Legion Auxiliary met June 12 with Phyllis O'Brien presiding. Roll call was answered by 12 members with a 4th of July you remember. The pledge to the flag, followed by the preamble, and then a moment of silence to honor the departed members.

Secretary and treasurer's reports accepted as given.

Many auxiliary and Legion members helped put up the flag and poppy crosses for Memorial Day and also took them down. Most of our flags will again have to be repaired because of the windy days we had while they were up.

Lunch was served by the Junior Leaders with a free will donation given by the Legion and Auxiliary.

Phyllis O'Brien resigned as president and Megan Kumm is the new president. Gail Hill resigned as secretary and Sgt. At Arms. New Sgt at Arms will be Julie Kumm and Megan Kumm, Marcia Rastede. Color Guards will be Sharon Puckett and Marilyn Webb. Color guards of the Legion and Auxiliary are to be in the parades in Ponca June 24 and in Wakefield on July 1.

Legion and Auxiliary do not meet in July and August. September is the family potluck at the center at 6:30 pm. Drinks and table service will be provided. June servers were Gail Hill and Delores Koch. VFW POST 5435

VFW Post 5435 will host a Breakfast on Sunday, June 25 from 7 until 11:30 a.m. at Martinsburg. They will be serving pancakes, eggs to order, French toast, hashbrowns, bacon, sausage, coffee, orange drink and fruit cup for a free will donation of $4 or more per serving. Egg artistry contest is underway

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) Poultry and Egg Division invites all Nebraska amateur and professional artists to participate in the 2007 state egg artistry contest. The winning entry will represent Nebraska in the 2007 White House Easter Egg Display.

Poultry and Egg Division Director Susan Joy said she encourages anyone with an artistic flair to consider entering the con-

"In the past we've seen some extremely creative ideas transformed into beautiful egg artwork. The variety is amazing," Joy said. "The public gets the opportunity to view and judge the entries and that adds to the excitement."

Decorated eggs must depict one or more special feature(s) of Nebraska. Past entries have been decorated with landscapes, state symbols, beads, feathers and various other designs representing Nebraska. Entries are due Aug. 21.

Entries will be on display for public viewing and judging at the University of Nebraska State Museum (Morrill Hall), located at 14th and U Streets in Lincoln from Aug. 22 to Oct. 2 Nebraska residents, including previous winning artists are eligible for the competition.

To request contest criteria, contact Mary Torell by phone at 402-472-0752 or by email at mtorell2@unl.edu or www.nebraskapoultry.org.

Ingeo fiber fill is the world's first and only man-made fiber coming from corn, a 100 percent annually renewable resources, and not oil. This revolutionary corn-based polymer replaces petroleum based polyester, the higher costs of which are currently being seen by the textile industry at large. Ingeo fiber offers the best of both worlds: the appeal and aesthetic of a natural based fiber with the cost and the performance benefits needed to compete with conventional synthetic fibers.

The cover fabric is made from natural bamboo. Natural bamboo is both environmentally friendly "This collection is our newest and high performance. It is a highly renewable resource as it is one of the earth's fastest growing plants ents that deliver superior comfort and is biodegradable. Attorney General Bruning warns petition circulators against using illegal practices

Attorney General Jon Bruning cautioned that as Nebraska's July 7 deadline for petition signatures approaches, circulators may become more aggressive in where and how they gather signatures. Circulators are often paid per signature collected.

"In no way are business owners obligated to allow petition circulators to collect signatures on their private property. It's up to the business owner, but if they want, they can kick any or all circulators off their property," Bruning said. The Attorney General's Office has received several calls regarding petition circulators. One of the most recent complaints involved two circulators who were gathering signatures near Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha on Saturday, June 17. One witness says the circulators were using a Wheel-of-Fortune-type game to either entice or reward people who signed the petition(s). The Attorney General's Office is investigating the complaint.

Show appreciation

Wayne Eagles Club Auxiliary and Aerie members recently helped show appreciation to the Wayne Herald staff for all they do by treating them to a steak fry. The local Eagles Club raises funds for many charities. Some of them are cancer, Alzheimer's, spinal cord injury research, The Boys Ranch, Boys and Girls Home of Nebraska. The combined efforts across the state of Nebraska raised over $87,000. For the State Charity, Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF), over $37,000 was raised. Add to that several grants of $5,000 and one for $30,000 and they were able to donate well over $80,000 to JDRF. Present for the photo, front row, left to right, Wayne Herald staff members Clara Osten, Kevin Peterson and Lynn Sievers. Back row, Eagle members Kent Talbot, Jessica Olson, Kathy Varley (who also works at the Wayne Herald) and Mary Wert.

Integrating Finances into a Second Marriage

As difficult as it can be to get yourself on solid financial footing in a first marriage, a marriage can be even more financially complicated the second time around. According to smartmoney.com, money is one of the leading causes of divorce and overcoming the obstacles can be challenging. A person entering into a second marriage may have a more complicated financial situation: preexisting debt, established spending or budgeting habits, and possibly financial obligations to their ex-spouse and/or children. For these reasons, it is crucial to take steps to help secure your financial future before you say, "I do" to your new spouse. Consider employing the strategies listed below to help ease your financial transition into a second marriage.

Be clear about your financial plans and goals. Communicate openly and honestly with your partner about your financial situation. Maybe you didn't have many assets at the time of your first marriage, but chances are you now have a house, retirement savings, and investment earnings. You should approach this union with an attitude of full disclosure - of your assets as well as your debt. You and your spouse should be knowledgeable of the others' salary, debts, financial obligations, loans, savings and credit status. You'll also want to be aware of your future mate's spending habits and savings goals. Some small conversations with your spouse before the wedding can lead to a significantly healthier financial picture for your future years together.

Set yourself up to succeed. An element of financial freedom is important in any marriage, but can be critical for people who may be used to some financial independence. For couples entering into a second marriage, especially if one or both people have spousal and/or child support payments, it may make sense to establish three different checking accounts: yours, mine, and ours. Each person contributes a set amount into the joint account to pay for common bills like the mortgage, utilities, etc. Individual expenses including child support, alimony, loan payments would come out of the separate accounts. Financial struggles are often more about power and insecurity than they are about money. Allowing each person financial freedom and control over his/her money may prove to minimize conflict and resentment within the marriage. You also may want to investigate filing your taxes as "married, filing separately," especially if one partner is still connected financially with a former spouse. Since filing as "married, filing separately" may increase your tax bill, be sure to consult with a tax professional to determine the most appropriate choice for your personal situation. Get your papers in order before the wedding. Before you hire the band or interview the photographer, it is essential that you review your legal and estate plans. Discuss such things as beneficiaries, wills, life insurance policies, and retirement accounts, make a checklist, and complete them as quickly as possible after the legal event has been completed, Consider discussing your wishes with your children. They may be more accepting of your new mar riage if they know you have made provisions for how your prior assets will be distributed in the event of your death.

What about a prenuptial greement? The act of creating a prenuptial agreement forces a couple to engage in honest communication and conduct a thorough inventory of all assets and financial responsibilities. The greatest benefit of this type of document is that it can prevent arguments over debts, assets and financial contributions to the marriage. A well thought out agreement can save a significant amount of money and heartache in the future. Laws pertaining to prenuptial agreements vary from state to state, so contact a family law attorney in your area to develop a customized plan.

If you need help integrating your finances with your future spouse, consider consulting a professional financial advisor. A qualified advisor can ask the tough questions and help you develop a financial plan that helps meets your goals for the future. The good news is that with careful planning and open communication, a couple can work thorough their money issues and financial disagreements.

It is always a good idea to display the flag, but even more so now with so many of our young people deployed overseas. As you show your patriotism and pride, be sure to do so properly. Lorene Bartos, UNL Extension Educator in Lancaster County, shares information about the proper way to handle the United States flag. When being displayed, the flag should always be allowed to fall free. It should not be drawn back or up in folds. Also, it should never the ground, floor, water or other items. If it does touch anything beneath it, correct the mistake quickly. If the flag is soiled from touching the ground or dirt, the flag should be cleaned with a mild soap solution and dried before being displayed again.

The flag should never be used as clothing, bedding or drapery. It should never have any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture or drawing of any nature placed upon it. Also, the flag a tacted for help. should never be used for advertising purposes in any manner.

zontally or at an angle from a window sill, balcony or front of a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half-staff.

When the flag is not flown from a staff, it can be displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall. The union or blue field should be uppermost and to the flag's own right or the observer's left. When displayed in a window of a home or a place of business, the flag should be displayed in the same way -with the union to the left of the observer in the street. The flag should never be displayed with the union down, except as a signal of distress, such as extreme danger to life or property.

The usual custom is to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flag staffs in the open. However, when a patriotic effect is being desired, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day, if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness. A light needs to specifically illuminate the flag so it is recognizable by a casual observer.

The American flag can be flown every day of the year, but should especially be flown on New Year's Day, Inauguration Day, Martin Luther King Jr.'s Birthday, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day, Flag Day, touch anything beneath it, such as Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veteran's Day, Thanksgiving, Day, Christmas Day, during state holidays and any other days proclaimed by the U.S. President.

The U.S. flag should never be flown if it is faded or frayed. Give frayed or faded flags to organizations such as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars or Boy Scouts, in order to be ceremonially burned. Local posts and chapters of these organizations can be con-

Winside Trinity holds monthly meeting

Trinity Lutheran of Winside held Lord's Prayer. its monthly WELCA meeting on June 14 in the church basement.

President Kathy Jensen led the Bible study from I John 4:1-6, titled "Discerning the Spirits."

The meeting opened with eight members answering roll call. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

It was noted that the group does not have the crosses that they had discussed getting to be used when serving funerals. These would be used noting the tables reserved for family. They were used for LeRoy Wittler's funeral and seemed to help.

The church's spring cleaning was completed the week after Bible School was finished.

A thank you and donation was received from the family of Leroy Wittler for serving the funeral.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, July 12. Members plan to take the meeting to Norfolk to visit Joy Maas who has recently moved to the Madison House. Mary Ann Soden will call to see if the plans will work. Arlene Bargholz will serve there.

The meeting closed with The

Many of us have a snapshot or memory of our children peering out the window at the world outside.

When talking window coverings we tend to focus on style, color, and function. But if you have children or children that come to visit, safety is a serious consideration. Cords on window coverings can contribute to fatal acadents. Each year about 50 children in the U.S. are injured or killed by strangulation involving window overing ords. Virtually all of the Hunter Douglas products we offer have standard or optional safety features. These include...

PowerRise...a battery- operated remote control system that allows you to lower shades at the touch of a button, thus eliminating the need for cords.

LiteRise ... a touch system which allows you to raise or lower blinds with a single touch.

PermAssure ... a safety wand which eliminates looped cords completely, replacing them with a wand that remains safely out of a toddler's reach.

UltraGlide... a single retractable cord that remains at the same length whether the shade is raised or lowered. This system makes cords less available to young children.

Break-Thru.. a safety tassle designed to break open under pressure should a child or pet become entangled in the cord loop. This is a standard feature on all Hunter Douglas horizontal blinds.

Tanzania guest to be at Our Savior

John Mkenda of Marangu, Tanzania will be speaking at Our Savior Lutheran Church on June 24-25 at the weekend worship ser-

John will bring the message at the Saturday evening worship service beginning at 6 p.m., as well as at the Contemporary Worship Service at 8:45 a.m. on Sunday and the Traditional Worship Service at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

John is a member of the Kotela Lutheran Church in the Northern diocese of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Tanzania. Since 1999 Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne has shared a relationship with Kotela Lutheran Parish on the lower slopes of Mount Kilimanjaro in the Eastern African country of Tanzania.

The relationship with the Kotela Parish began in 1999 with a pastoral exchange. Since that time several members have participated in Synod Vision Trips to Tanzania and have had the opportunity to worship with the congregation at Kotela.

John Mkenda is a 1965 Midland College graduate. After graduating from Midland, John returned to his native land and has worked to give hope to people in an impoverished nation. After returning to his native Tanzania, John realized he was one of less than 100 college graduates in the whole country. He realized he had been given a big gift in the form of education and he knew he wanted to use that gift to do "something" for God.

Before the "something" came into focus, he worked as the chief accountant for a large Danish sugar manufacturing concern until 1978. At that time he quit his job and started a small trade school, taking two boys off the street as his first students. He used his own limited financial resources along with gifts from others to provide tuition-free education to students who had no ability to pay. Presently, John oversees a cooperative which seeks to match a need to have something made with a person having the needed skill to make it. He also makes constant repairs to the play equipment in neighborhood kindergartens. Within the past year, a handcraft club for unmarried mothers, widows and youth was founded as The Pathfinder Carvers-Kotela, where "pathfinder" means "finding a way of survival."

John is proud of Tanzania and has a deep concern for the environment and his nation, but especially for the youth.

Don't blame drought for poor alfalfa, check for leafhoppers and weevils not recognize another factor behind poor alfalfa growth -- potato leafhoppers and alfalfa weevils, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln forage specialist said.

"The severity of their impact is just greater during dry years," said Bruce Anderson, forage specialist in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Potato leafhoppers are tiny, yellowish-green, wedge-shaped insects that turn alfalfa yellow and stunt plant growth. Early symptoms appear as discoloration on the tip of alfalfa leaves, but as leafhoppers continue to feed the entire plant may stop growing, Anderson

"Right now, we don't know how severe the damage is going to be," he said.

Because leafhoppers are migratory, their arrival is dependent on winds from the southeast, Anderson said. Some have already arrived, but early summer is a typical time of year for producers to begin seeing leafhopper damage, he said.

Alfalfa weevils also are prevent-

Producers across the state might ing regrowth in a number of fields, said Keith Jarvi, integrated pest management specialist at UNL's Northeast Research and Extension Center at Norfolk. Not only has the lack of rainfall stressed alfalfa, but so has the reduced presence of a fungal disease that reduces weevil populations, he said.

> 'We've already seen some damage on regrowth from the adults," Anderson added. "Growers just aren't recognizing it because conditions have been so dry."

After the first alfalfa harvest, adult weevils feed on emerging shoots preventing fields from becoming green shortly thereafter, Anderson said.

If fields begin to look poor, producers should scout fields for individual insects, Jarvi said. Adult weevils are approximately threeeighths of an inch long and light brown with a dark brown stripe halfway down the back. If fields don't green up three to five days following harvest, there is a good chance insects are involved, he

"It takes close examination because weevils are so small. Adult weevils like to hide under plant litter and dead material, especially during the heat of the day, Anderson said.

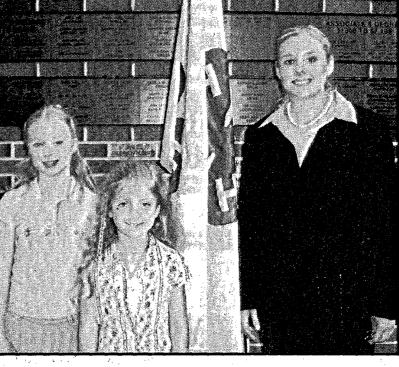

Both leafhoppers and weevils can be controlled with insecticides if the situation permits, Anderson said. The key is to scout fields regularly to detect pests early and spray while they are still present and before irreversible damage has been done, he said.

If leafhoppers have stunted growth, first remove poisoned plant tissue that can ultimately reduce yields to stimulate new growth before applying insecticide, Anderson said. Mow new seedlings and then spray insecticide if necessary, he said.

As with any chemical, be sure to follow instructions, restrictions and precautions, Jarvi added. Remember to examine new growth following treatment because factors including weather, non-uniform or inadequate chemical application and poor choice of insecticide may adversely affect chemical control, he said.

Besides insects, the big problem facing alfalfa producers this season is lack of moisture, Anderson said.

"Producers have to realize there isn't a whole lot they can do. If yields aren't going to reach expected levels, they should begin thinking about other sources for hay,"

Regional 4-Hers have a lot to talk about

Several area 4-Hers received recognition for their speech or PSA, awards at the Regional 4-H Public Speaking Contest that was held on June 12 at the Lifelong Learning Center, in Norfolk.

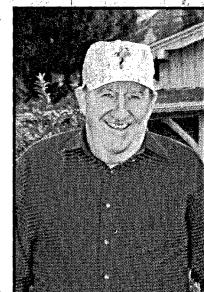

Seventy-two youth from 22-counties competed in their respective age division in the 2006 Regional 4-H Speech competition and thirtysix contestants from 13 counties competed in their respective age division in the 2006 Regional 4-H Public Service Announcement (PSA) category.

Contestants earn the opportunity to participate in regional competition by winning their age division at the county level. Contestants may compete in one or both categories. A relatively new division for Novice speakers, ages 8-10 were able to read a poem or tell a story. In the Junior (11 years of age and younger), and Intermediate (12 to 13 years of age) and Senior division, speakers were required to prepare an original speech about 4-H. The second category included 4-Hers from those age groups doing a 60-second PSA promoting 4-H.

Contestants were awarded purple, blue, red or white awards in Speech Division.

in addition the top four individuals received medals in all divisions. Novice, Junior and Intermediate champions also received radios. The four winners of the senior division speech and PSA competition are given the opportunity to compete for awards at the State 4-H Public Speaking Contest to be held in Lincoln on Sept. 2, during the Nebraska State Fair. All youth competing in state competition will receive a $50 savings bond. The top two speech and PSA winners in State 4-H Public Speaking Contest receive $500 scholarships.

Wayne County results include: Karissa Meyer, daughter of Mark and Karlene Meyer of Wakefield earned a purple ribbon in the Senior Speech Division and was selected to advance to state competition. Emma Loberg, daughter of Ken and Jean Loberg of Wayne competed in the Junior Speech Division and received a purple ribbon. Country churches are near and dear to many hearts small country church in his backinstance, when I showed Mary Ann Winside museum, she commented that it reminded her of her grandmother's church. Just like country schools, they are becoming an endangered species.

For 13 years, we lived between two old country churches on a county road called, appropriately, Church Road. At one time, there had been five churches on this road. The two that are left often appear in local papers and calendars because they are so typical; and so picturesque. Trinity, north of Murdock, is the white A-frame structure like we see on Christmas cards. Immanuel, south of Louisville, is all brick, with a very tall spire. Both have adjacent cemeteries.

When folks had to attend services in horse and buggy, a distance of three or four miles was significant. And, often in the history of any given community, there is the record of a few spiritual leaders who organized churches, first holding their services in each other's homes and eventually, building a real edifice dedicated to the glory of God.

Some had picturesque place names; I know of one called Logan Center, north of Laurel; and some became known by the names of shepherds who stayed for years, as Zion at Hoskins, was always Bohling's church when we lived

Nebraska Grazing Conference Offered in Kearney This August

An in-depth look at grazing will take place at the 2006 Nebraska Grazing Conference Aug. 7-8 at the Holiday Inn at Kearney.

The conference will give farmers, ranchers, wildlife managers and advisers the opportunity to learn more about obtaining economic success through grazing, enhancing wildlife habitat, conservation, animal behavior and management.

Sessions begin Aug. 7 at 10 a.m. following 9 a.m. registration and will conclude at approximately 3 p.m. the following day.

Key speakers include: Barry Dunn, King Ranch Institute for Ranch Management, Texas A&M University, Measuring Success in Grazing Management: A Balanced Approach; Terry Klopfenstein, professor of animal science, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Making Cents with Grazing Yearlings; Ken Vogel, USDA Agricultural Research Service, Lincoln, Breeding Grasses for Improved Beef Cattle Income Per Acre; Fred Provenza, Utah State University, Using Animal Behavior to Manage Grazing; Byron Shelton, Holistic Management International Certified Educator, Buena Vista, Colo., Holistic Grazing Planning -- From the Grass Roots Up; Dave Sands, The Nebraska Land Trust, Lincoln, Conservation Easements: A Private Path to Permanent Protection; and John Sellers, program coordinator and producer, Grasslands Systems for the Leopold Center, Corydon, Iowa, Integrating Pasture with Row Crop Production.

Other sessions cover topics including the grazing livestock systems major at UNL, promoting grassland biodiversity, irrigated pastures, setting up grazing systems, birds and grazing and winter and summer grazing options.

An animal behavioral management workshop also will be led by Provenza Aug. 7 following a 6 p.m. banquet. Time will be permitted throughout the conference for participants to browse through exhibits from various companies and organizations within the grazing industry.

Registration is $70 if postmarked by Aug. 1 and $90 after. Fees include two lunches, evening banquet and materials. One-day registration is $35 before Aug. 1 and $45 after and does not include the evening banquet. Walk-ins are welcome.

Hotel reservations can be made by contacting the Holiday Inn at (800) 248-4460 and specifying the Nebraska Grazing Conference for appropriate rates.

For more information or to register contact the Center for Grassland Studies at (402) 472-1401, e-mail grassland@unl.edu or visit the Web at http://www.grassland.unl.edu.

The conference is sponsored by the UNL Center for Grassland Studies, Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and Nebraska Grazing Lands Coalition.

stuff people have, especially in the kitchen, the more hiding places for roaches. Food is certainly a key item and attractant for the cockroach, but, clean, neat, and tidy kitchens can still have roaches.

Occasionally, outdoor wood cockroaches will enter a home but are not considered an indoor pest. They are generally just roaming around and come into the house under door cracks or window cracks. Just toss the little creature outside and allow him to continue traveling.

The biggest problem in U.S. kitchens is the German cockroach. It is a small cockroach, with two distinctive longitudinal stripes just behind its head. It is a small insect that can live in cracks and crevices.

Infestations are often at their worst in the late summer months. Control includes sanitation, use of sticky traps (glue boards) to see where roaches are hiding and the use of bait stations. A multiple control approach works the best with roaches. It will take a long time to rid an area of roaches and perhaps one never will. It is important to maintain a constant and vigilant approach to control the numbers of roaches. A good resource for information about cockroaches is found at the website: http://lancaster.unl.edu/ pest/resources/

A Farmer's Farewell To The Fields

I leave the fields and as I go it is with slowing tread. I've lived to see the stubble fields, the grain made into bread. Life has been good, I've loved the land, each clod and bit of sod, Beneath the heavens I have walked in oneness with my God. Now other plows will plow my fields and other hands will sow, And other suns will rise and set, and other winds will blow. And spring will come with leaf and flower with wings of bird and song,

And I shall rest 'neath prairie grass and sleep the summer long.

We, the family of Harlin Anderson wish to express our gratitude and thanks to all who touched his life with efforts of healing and comfort. Thanks to the staff at Providence Medical Center, the June E. Nylen Cancer Center, Mercy Oncology Unit and Drs. Dave Felber and Steven Kahanic. Many thanks to our Concordia Lutheran Church family and many neighbors and relatives who came to visit Harlin helping to lift his spirits and pass time throughout this past year. Thanks to everyone who brought his favorite foods, gifts, flowers and kept him in their prayers.

And now in his final days we were extremely grateful for the guidance and care provided by Hospice with Terri Munter and Sister Cecelia. Thanks to Pastor Koeber for being there for us and for 2 beautiful services. The prayer service at Our Savior Lutheran Church and the funeral service at Concordia Lutheran Church. We thank the, Laurel VFW members for their part in fulfilling Harlins wish for military rights at his funeral and for the use of the VFW Club to serve the masses attending.

We also thank the Concordia Lutheran Ladies for so graciously organizing and serving the lunch following the funeral services. And we thank everyone for the cards, memorials, flowers and food brought to the house.

Verlyn Anderson Steve & Peg Anderson and family Kay & Todd Anderson and family Dana & Aleks Stajkovic and family

Wayne Herald Staff thanks the Wayne Eagles Auxiliary and Aerie for the nice steak super they provided on June 16. It was great and very much appreciated! Also appreciated is all the fundraising they do for local charities each year.

Thank you for all the birthday cards I received for my 90th birthday. I appreicated each one of them. Thanks for making my 80th birthday special. Sincerely,

Julius Rechtermann
