The Wayne

Budget and property tax request approved

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Wayne County Board of Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday at the courthouse in Wayne. A budget hearing was held at 1:45 p.m. to discuss the 2006-07 fiscal budget and the need to increase base restricted funds by an additional one percent. The beginning cash balance is $207,535.68 less than last year.

There are several major road/bridge projects under construction or are scheduled including federal-aid projects and softmatch projects. Fifty-two thousand in tax dollars will be applied to the courthouse tuck pointing and roof bond payment.

To balance the budget, a $150,000 transfer will be made from the Snow Removal and Equipment fund to the County Road fund. The current amounts in the Snow Removal and Equipment fund for each district is: District 1 (Wurdeman): $215,671.33, District 2 (Miller): $548,352.41 and District 3 (Nissen): $700,332.54. Each district is budgeted to contribute $50,000 toward the total transfer of $150,000.

The total tax dollar request reflects an increase of $232,525.96 over 2005-06. The unused budget authority created for next year is $75,131.56. The Wayne County 2006-07 tax levy will be .389929.

Discussion was held on the Snow Removal and Equipment fund. Commissioners noted that basically everything that is for road purposes, (except salaries), can be paid from the fund.

Also, discussed were property valuations. Ag land values increased 22 percent, which those in attendance felt was high. Commissioner Chairman Bob Nissen noted Wayne County Assessor Joyce Reeg is regulated by the state on what can be charged. Roger Brandt of Carroll noted that if someone pays $3,000 an acre, that person should be taxed accordingly. Don Liedman of Carroll said they lose year after year unless valuation can be changed. Reeg said there is one market level in Wayne County ($690 an acre). Few counties have one market level but Wayne County is one of them.

At 2:15 p.m., a tax request hearing was held. Questions were asked about the reappraisal fund of $42,506.92 for 2006-07. The reappraisal fund is for replacement of the Cadastral maps, which are detailed maps of Wayne County that were made in the 1960s and are in the assessor's office. The Mike will also discuss how builders can calculate and apply for TIF incentives for projects in Wayne they are considering.

Local residents looking into bringing community-owned department store to Wayne residents have been looking into the idea of having a community-owned clothing store in Wayne.

There are several community-owned clothing stores in Wyoming, Northwest Nebraska and Northeast Utah. The idea for community-owned stores took off from Powell, Wyo. where there was lost retail base; a situation similar to Wayne.

Lois Shelton, Wayne mayor, Lowell Johnson, Wayne city administrator; and Kaki Ley, Wayne council member were at the League of Nebraska Municipalities this spring where the idea of communityowned businesses were discussed. The group brought the idea back to Dave Simonsen, executive director of Wayne Area Economic Development Inc.

Several business owners were contacted and one of the first things done was to have a teleconference with staff at the Powell

"This business plan is a tried and tested model," Simonsen said. "It is better to base from something successful. We've brought in different people with clothing store backgrounds such as Irene Fletcher (former owner of Legends) and Marie Mohr (owner of Swan's), as well as Sheryl Summerfield and Nancy Heithold who both have clothing and retail experience, We want to bring in more people for committees. We also need to find a location for the business." An initial amount of $500,000 needs to be raised to bring the idea to reality.

The local group has been communicating with the Powell store staff since this spring. In the Powell model, a board was elected by shareowners and a manager hired.

As for the store in Torrington, the economic development group there owned the building downtown and leased it to the clothing store. A trip to the Torrington store was planned this month but has been postponed.

"With a community-owned business, you can guarantee customers will shop there if they have ownership," Simonsen said. "Also, in the community-owned base manager has final say. The department stores have clothing, shoes and accessories for men, women and children.

Simonsen notes the goal of WAEDI is to facilitate the process and allow the committee to determine the feasibility of opening a department store in Wayne. They would like to see that the business locates

Seniors and investment fraud

Submitted by Jack E. Herstein, Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance Securities Bureau Assistant Director.

From the "Greatest Generation" to the "Baby Boomers," seniors have worked hard to build both our nation's economic prosperity and a lifetime's worth of savings. The Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance's Securities Bureau currently has more than a dozen ongoing investigations concerning senior citizens and the investment of their hard earned money.

As Nebraska's securities regulators, we are committed to using every resource available to ensure that the golden years of our State's seniors are not tarnished by investment fraud.

With the first 'Baby Boomers' turning 60 this year, we have a deep concern that investment fraud among seniors will grow significantly—our case load is already on the rise with more than onethird of our complaints targeted on senior issues. That's why we're pleased that federal and state regulators, including the Department, have joined together in ongoing efforts to fight senior investment fraud through aggressive enforcement combined with financial education to protect investors from unscrupulous individuals.

Con artists have emerged from the side streets and back alleys to Main Street where older investors live. They know that retirees are living longer and are facing greater responsibility for their financial security. As a result, seniors are being flooded with pitches for investment seminars; many of them promising a free meal along with "little or no risk and high returns." Unfortunately, in many of the cases that we see, it's just the opposite: high risk, no returns, and disastrous losses. The most common complaints involve unregistered securities, variable annuities and fixed or equity-indexed annu-

While my colleagues and I at the Department see a proliferation of troubling schemes involving unlicensed individuals promoting and selling unregistered securities to seniors, we continue to be concerned about the way in which variable and fixed or equityindexed annuities are marketed and sold to seniors.

Let me be clear, our concerns with variable and fixed or equity index annuities are not about the products. These are legitimate investments suitable for some people, but they are not suitable for many retirees. And yet they are being pitched aggressively to seniors through investment seminars, where participants aren't always told about high surrender charges or high fees for early withdrawals, the potential of exposure to market risk, and the steep sales commissions agents often earn when they move investors into these products.

To learn more about how you can protect yourself or a loved one from senior investment fraud, please contact our office by calling tollfree (877) 471-3445.

Online course teaches couples to communicate, remain intimate

Showing couples how to make time for each other and make their relationship a priority is the main focus of Couple Talk, an Internet course that begins in September.

Registration for the course, taught by Kathy Bosch, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension family life specialist, begins Sept. 1 and continues through Sept. 18. Registration is free and available http://www.panhandle. unl,edu/coupletalk.

Couples who do not have access to a personal computer usually can access Couple Talk at a public library at little or no cost. Program materials are also available at local UNL Extension offices.

Although beneficial for couples to take the course together, it is not essential, Bosch said. One partner may read the lessons and interact with classmates and then share information with the other partner.

"Time often is a great barrier in taking courses, but this course may be accessed at any time convenient to a person's schedule," Bosch said.

Participants should plan on allowing at least two hours per week to read course content, participate in discussion with the instructor and other class participants and complete some activities with their partner.

"Intimacy is an important part of relationships," Bosch said. "When couples do not have sufficient time together or are very tired, it is difficult for one or both to give the attention and affection needed to sustain a healthy love relationship."

Self-help lessons are not intended to replace marriage counseling but will help in creating some behavior change, she said.

Law enforcement has tremendous responsibility

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The authority vested in certified law enforcement officers is awe-

Think about what a gun and a badge mean.

Those who face the world every day with one each are wearing society's authority on their chests, and the power of life and death in their holsters.

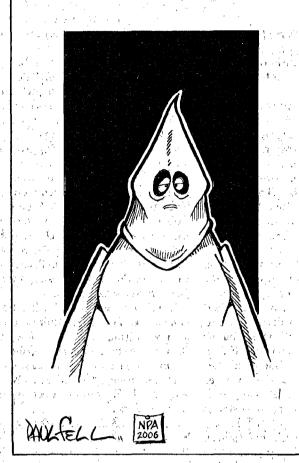

The possibility of making splitsecond decisions - that can change the course of numerous lives - surround them every day.

Respect for law enforcement agents is a foundational element of our social contract.

What if crowds of people at NU football games regularly decided that the cops should just be ignored? What if motorists in general decided it was in their best interest to keep on truckin' when that bubblegum machine is whirling in their review mirror?

Law enforcement authority depends on the people recognizing and accepting that authority. That recognition and acceptance is based on trust - that the people, taking one with another - accept that cops of all kinds are our collective friends. They will mostly be raises lots of troubling questions politically and socially and relifor the government and the people it is supposed to serve.

There is no question in this corner about whether any individual is free to associate as they please, giously and otherwise. In general, this includes each and every government employee, including those in law enforcement.

The First Amendment applies to everyone and, as you might imagine, the First Amendment has a lot of support in the keyboard community that makes up all manner of journalistic efforts.

We all know there are exceptions

to freedom of speech. Most of us learn "You can't yell 'fire' in a crowded theater" at a tender age.

The view from here: The question raised by the state trooper's case is not a matter of First Amendment rights.

The issue is the appropriate authority of the state to take action when there is a compelling interest involving the greater public good.

Ask yourself: What would happen if a state trooper with a record of racist affiliations shot and killed a person of color? What if that trooper had hooked up with a couple of white supremacist outfits after, and admittedly because, a nonwhite man had run off with his

If you were on a jury in a civil case brought by the dead man's family, do you think you would be influenced by the aforementioned facts? It's a possibility, and one that could cost taxpayers enormous amounts of money.

There is another thing about this case which ought to be a non-

Lots of folk have said: "What if it were a black trooper or a Hispanic trooper who had done the same thing?"

Again, the view from here: The same common sense should apply. People who affiliate themselves with hate groups ought not walk among us with badges and guns. As for the argument that any number of people in law enforcement might be racists in their hearts: Well, that's just how that is!

Law enforcement officers have always been called upon to handle assignments they might personally find repulsive. How about a cop who has to protect marchers whose ultimate cause would be to see those of the cop's color or religion or political beliefs dead? How about a law enforcement officer who has to not just watch - but protect - those who burn the American flag? Or hang members of his/her race in effigy? Or espouse harm to the republic?

Those law enforcement people are entitled to their feelings and their thoughts. However, it is imperative for the public to believe that those feelings will not put them in danger of being abused in any context.

Once a cop actively demonstrates feelings which can legitimately be seen as racist - no matter what law enforcement agency is involved their credibility is gone. The state, the officer and the officer's comrades could easily be jeopardized. Financially, physically and professionally.

That's the view from here. It is altogether understandable that some see this case differently, and will say so. The First Amendment is a wonderful thing - but it is not, and never has been, an absolute.

Foundation conducting fundraiser

Wayne Public Schools Foundation recently received Nebraska Football tickets through a program set up by Nebraska Regent for District 3, Chuck Hassebrook.

Earlier this year the group found out about this program and contacted Mr. Hassebrook and applied for the tickets. Word was received recently that tickets would be available for fundraising efforts for scholarships for Wayne High seniors going on to college.

The foundation currently gives scholarships yearly for this purpose and these funds would be added to this fund to ensure that the Foundation can continue to offer these scholarships.

Fundraising has begun for this project. There are five pairs of tick-games, starting with the game on Saturday, Sept. 23.

The group will be selling 100 raffle tickets at $25 a piece. When you buy a ticket, you are eligible for all five drawings. Drawings will take place the Thursday before that

WSC volleyball records impressive season start

The Wayne State College women's volleyball team continues to dominate on the road as evidenced in a four-game sweep last weekend in Denver.

The team returned to Wayne on Tuesday night earlier this week and dropped a tough battle to undefeated Nebraska-Omaha.

Last weekend, the Wildcats notched a 4-0 record at the Colorado School of Mines/Days Inn Denver West Volleyball Tournament in Golden, Colo., on Saturday and Sunday.

The team won both matches Friday as they handed Western State of Colorado their first loss of the season in the opening match 30-17, 30-19 and 30-23, then defeated host Colorado School of Mines, coached by Wayne native and former WSC assistant coach Shelly Lueders Johnson, 30-22, 30-10, 24-30 and 30-22.

"It was a good opening day," WSC head coach Scott Kneifl said. "We beat a very good Colorado Mines team on their home floor tonight. I thought we did some good things, especially with our serving. Emily Schroeder had two very good matches for us, but it was a total team effort."

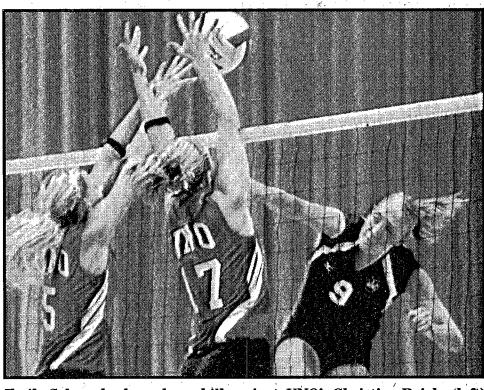

Laurel-Concord graduate Emily Schroeder's 16 kills and 13 blocks (2 solo, 11 assisted) propelled Wayne State to the first match win over Western State of Colorado. Michelle Eckhardt added 12 kills to lead Wavne State in the win, while Brittany Coleman accounted for 23 set assists and libero Laura Dolezal produced 21 digs to lead WSC State.

In the evening match against the host Orediggers, four players notched 10 or more kills to lead Wayne State in a balanced hitting attack as the Wildcats won in four games. Eckhardt had 18 kills and hit .438 for the match to lead WSC, followed by Schroeder with 16 kills and 17 digs/

Trojans prevail against Wayne

It was a football matchup that was absent from schedules

However, the renewed meeting of Wayne High and its eastern neighbor, Wakefield, proved to be as exciting as the pregame

Wakefield picked up the win in a 21-13 victory, thanks to a solid ground game and inspired line performance.

After trading opening possessions, Wayne was able to drive down the field and reach paydirt when Nate Finkey scrambled for a touchdown from five yards out. Taylor Racely's extra point kick gave Wayne a 7-0 lead with 4:23 left in the first quarter.

Wakefield responded with a drive of its own and the Trojan's leading rusher, Paul Moody carried the ball in for a score on three-yard touchdown jaunt.

The Trojans scored 15 unanswered points following intermission, including a 75-yard punt return for a score by Joel Nixon and another Moody touchdown later in the third

Wayne was able to close the gap in the fourth quarter when Cory Harm caught a 7-yard touchdown strike from Finkey, but Wakefield's defense thwarted the Blue Devils' comeback attempt.

Finkey finished 5-of-29 passing with 170 yards through the air and had seven carries for 45

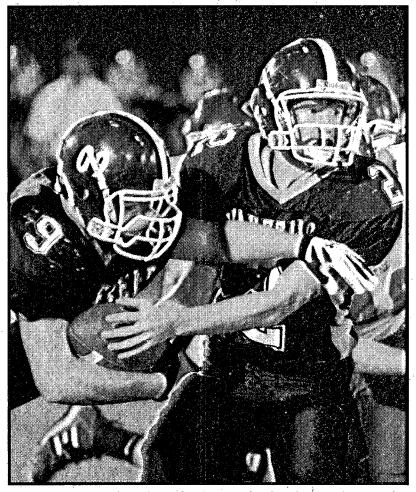

Harm and Ransen Broders finished the evening 63 and 47 yards off pass receptions, respectively. Wakefield was paced by a big night from Moody who racked up 89 yards on 24 carries. Ryan Klein finished with 56 yards on his eight carries.

Wayne will host Tekamah-Herman for its first home game of the season this Friday, while Wakefield hits the road for a contest with Lyon-Decatur Northeast.

Turnovers spell doom in Wildcats' season opener

Costly turnovers set the table for State and then sealed the win on a Upper Iowa's conference debut.

The Wayne State football team dropped its tenth-straight season opener last Thursday night as the Upper Iowa Peacocks took full advantage of five WSC turnovers to take a 24-14 win over the Wildcats.

"We told our players that early in the season, special teams and turnovers can be a big factor, that's exactly what happened "on Thursday," Wayne State coach Dan McLaughlin said.

Upper Iowa used a balanced offensive attack with 209 passing and 167 rushing yards, while the Peacock defense kept WSC in check with only 253 yards.

WSC's offensive woes started early as Upper Iowa - playing in its first game as a member of the Northern Sun conference - limited the Wildcats to only 20 yards off 15 plays in the opening quarter.

Upper Iowa opened the scoring on a 62-yard punt return by Ryan Hudgins with 14:33 left in the first half to grab a 7-0 lead.

The Wildcats responded with a 12-play, 91-yard drive to knot the score at 7-7 at 5:53 in the second quarter as Zach Molacek capped the scoring drive on a one-yard

Upper Iowa responded in similar fashion and closed the half with a time-consuming drive as the Peacocks marched 77 yards on 12 plays, capped by an Andrew Jones two-yard plunge with 23 seconds left in the half, to take a 14-7 halftime lead.

The game remained 14-7 until late in the fourth quarter when Upper Iowa's Derek Van Horn converted on a 22-yard field goal to give Upper Iowa a 17-7 lead.

WSC countered with a threeplay, 62 yard drive as Josh Peterson hauled in a 21-yard pass from Travis Dietz with 1:30 left in the game, cutting the Peacock's lead to 17-14.

Upper Iowa recovered the subseman receiver Logan Masters 43-yard run by D.J. Speed with 57 second left in the contest en route for 52 yards. to the 24-14 final score.

WSC sophomore quarterback Travis Dietz completed 15-of-30 passes with five interceptions and one touchdown for a total of 164

Molacek gained 77 yards on the ground on 22 carries, while freshcaught a team-high five receptions Wayne State's top tackler was senior safety Adam Peterson with 11 tackles and Omari Green chipped in with nine stops.

Yellowing maple trees may need iron treatment

By Steve Rasmussen, District Forester

There are an unusually large number of yellowing silver maples, birch and pin oak trees in northeast Nebraska this summer due to a condition called "iron chlorosis."

The symptoms most noticed on affected trees include yellow leaves with green veins, a "thin" or stressed crown appearance and stunted growth. In severe cases, the leaf edges become burnt or scorched and the leaves are aborted from the tree. This will cause branch dieback and a general decline in the tree.

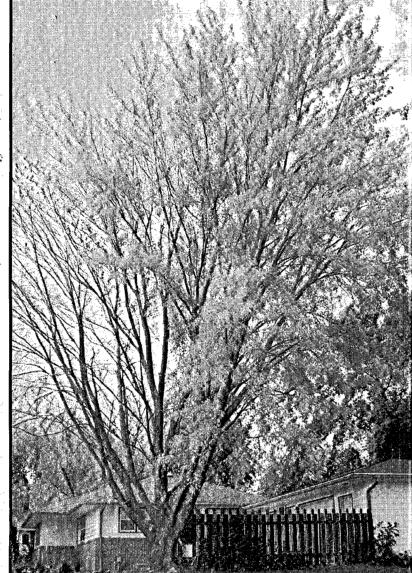

Silver maples are the most noticed due to their large size and more common planting, but birch trees and pin oaks are two other species of trees most likely to express this problem.

Iron chlorosis is caused from an iron deficiency induced by poorly drained or compacted soils or by soils with a high calcium content. These soils are characterized by pH levels above 7.5. The unavailability or non-utilization of iron commonly causes an abiotic disease that is reflected by the yellowing leaves and branch dieback.

The failure of a plant to be able to use iron results in the leaves not producing the normal amount of green pigment. This pigment, known as chlorophyll, is necessary for growth and development of all higher plants. Under alkaline conditions (pH above 7.0), iron changes to insoluble forms that are less available to growing plants. Iron is more soluble and most readily absorbed from the soil at a pH range of 5.0 to 6.5. Lack of available iron is aggravated by: 1) low temperature and high soil moisture, 2) relatively large amounts of copper, manganese or zinc, and 3) excessive phosphorus applications.

Chlorosis is often serious in urban trees because lawn soils frequently come from basement excavations. The lime (calcium) content of many of these subsoils is high. Irrigating over several years with hard water also provides additional lime, intensifying the problem.

The last several summers have had hot, dry weather which resulted in more watering of lawns by sprinkler systems rather than having the better natural rainfall and this has caused a compounding situation. Without treatment, trees that have over 50 percent dead or thin crowns will probably have a very difficult time overcoming the stress of being chlorotic and could eventually die.

The most common treatment for iron chlorosis in larger trees is either by trunk injections of iron salts into the base of the tree or applying a mixture of dry ferrous sulfate (iron sulfate) and sulfur to the soil to reduce the pH. The most common trunk injections require the drilling of small holes one inch deep spaced around the circumference as low on the trunk as possible. These treatments should be effective for two or more years and may be effective for up to five years before re-treatment is necessary.

The disadvantage to this treatment is that small wounds are made where the injections are made. Hence, trees should not be treated annually with a trunk application method.

The other method of correcting the chlorosis is by applying ferrous sulfate and sulfur to the soil under the tree to help modify the high pH. The sulfur acidifies the soil which increases the availability and uptake of the iron. This is usually done by drilling small holes and filling them with the mixture.

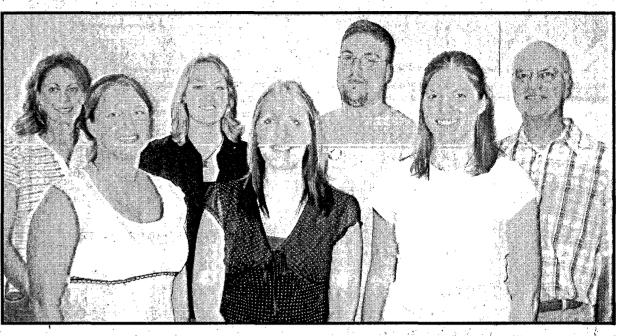

Both treatments and iron chlorosis are discussed in detail in a UN-L NebGuide titled Iron Chlorosis of Trees and Shrubs available from the local Extension office or on-line www.ianr. unl.edu/pubs/plantdisease/g1218.h

If your neighbor or yard has the iron chlorosis symptoms in the local trees, then planting trees less likely to have the problem is the best approach. Trees such as bur and northern red oaks, lindens, Kentucky coffee tree, honeylocust, sycamore and hackberry trees will be able to handle the high pH soils.

breezes, no humidity, sun: I just took a walk around the neighborhood and was actually invigorated instead of tired out when I finished. Incidentally, you don't realize how good it feels to walk when you've gone a year without being able to. I am so grateful for the new knee.

I'm also more sympathetic when I hear about athletes who tear anterior cruciates during games. It makes me hurt for them. And it happens far too often. Dr. Henkel used to say the knee was not made for the twists and sudden turns that are expected of it in sports. And I believe it.

When I saw Matt Herian catch that first touchdown pass on Saturday, I cheered. A friend who was at the game said she actually had tears! I worked with his grandmother at the hospital for years; she was the evening nursery aide. She would have been so proud. I am amazed at what he has overcome to get back on the field.

We root for whoever is playing the Hurricanes. And we aren't feeling too sorry for the Colorado Buffaloes; are you? Thank goodness the season is finally here; Mike was almost in withdrawal, with only tennis and golf to watch.

And speaking of tennis, we found Agassi's speech reminiscent of one by Lou Gehrig. I guess, when it comes right down to it, the fans make the event. It wouldn't be much fun without fans.

Our State Fair made the national news; here's hoping the new director can breathe some life into it. I'm guessing that Husker Harvest Days is drawing more and more people away. At least, people in agriculture. And I can understand that. Agriculture is still the number one business in Nebraska.

One of the small town entrepreneurs featured at the fair is the Village Pie Baker from Eustis. Her web site says she sold 50,000 pies as of last year! That makes me very tired to think about. And it makes me realize how few people make pies anymore. It's so much easier to pick them up frozen and take them home to bake. That way, you can still say you baked it! What a deal.

Hay quality and poison hemlock discussed

Poison hemlock and its cousin, water hemlock, are two of the most ing the grazing season by clipping poisonous of all flowering plants to or spraying. This alters the plant livestock. The plants are found throughout eastern Nebraska, especially in wet or moist soils along streams, roadsides and grasslands. These tall weeds with umbrella-like white flowers seem to be abundant and especially vigorous this year.

Fortunately, hemlock usually is not palatable to livestock. Animals won't eat it unless they're very hungry or the plant has been altered in some way.

To prevent livestock from eating hemlock, avoid overgrazing pastures that contain it. When adequate forage is available to graze, animals select healthy, palatable plants to eat and avoid the hemlock. But if grass gets short, even unpalatable poisonous plants might be eaten.

Similarly, don't turn hungry animals into fresh pasture containing hemlock. When very hungry, some animals will eat the first green plant they reach, palatable or not. Also make sure plenty of water, salt and mineral always are available. Animals deprived of water or minerals may eat abnormally, increasing the risk of hemlock consumption.

Don't try to control hemlock durand can increase its palatability, making it more likely that animals will eat enough of it to cause poisoning. Quality Hay

All haymakers want their hav to dry quickly. Obviously, drying hay quickly helps avoid rain damage to the hay, but there are other reasons fast drying is important. Good timing and proper equipment operations go a long way toward achieving this goal.

Sunny, hot, dry and breezy weather helps dry hay most quickly, so it is best to cut hay during those conditions. Immediately after hay has been cut, plant cells continue to respire, converting valuable carbohydrates into carbon dioxide gas. Under the best conditions, about five percent of the potential weight of the hay will be lost this way. When hay dries slowly, though, as much as 10 or 15 percent of hay disappears into the air as carbon dioxide.

When hay dries quickly, it also helps the next cutting. Getting hay off the field quickly aids regrowth because it allows new growth to begin without cut hay lying on top of it or machinery driving over it.

A couple of management practices in addition to good weather also help hay dry faster. First, mechanically condition and then spread recently cut hay out in as wide a swath as possible. The more hay that is exposed to sunlight, the faster it dries. Don't drive on it. Wheels compress the hay and reduce drying rates. Turn hay gently after the top gets dry by adjusting the angles, speed, or position of the rake to expose moister hay under the swath and fluff the swath for better air movement

The class of '56 from Dixon mates, Doris Robley, in Nebraska LeRoy Penlerick of Dixon, Darrel City. She hosted the group in her home on Aug. 18.

There were seven classmates who graduated from Dixon High School in 1956. All of the classmates are living. They are Marion Hansen Ellyson of Laurel, Delores Doescher Schulz of Wayne, Marietta Kraemer Lynn of Laurel, Rodney Johnson of Portales, NM, Rahn of Wayne and Doris Noe Robley of Nebraska City.

On the 19th, the group reunited at Valentino's for brunch and then toured the Arbor Lodge State Historical Park, Lied Conference Center and other sites. They concluded the day with a dinner cruise aboard "The Spirit of Brownville," going down the Missouri River.

Back-to-School, a good time to master your marketplace ABCs

As the school year begins, Better Business Bureaus are encouraging parents to join with their kids and boost their learning skills.

"An informed consumer is a happy consumer. With the start of the school year, the Better Business Bureau is encouraging adults to master their Marketplace ABCs to ensure satisfactory shopping experiences year-round," said Jim Hegarty, president and CEO of the Better Business Bureau serving Nebraska, South Dakota and Southwest Iowa.

The BBB's "Marketplace ABCs" include the following tips: •Ask for All Details Relevant to the Sale. This is particularly important when shopping online. Before agreeing to purchase a product or service, you should know the physical location and phone number of the merchant, read the refund and return policy, have in writing any warranty or guaranty details, be familiar with delivery/shipping costs and time schedules, feel comable and not the subject of consumer complaints, and be able to trust that any information you submit to complete the sale transaction (credit card number, etc.) will be treated with the proper care.

•Be your own best protector. Be leery of high pressure "too good to be true" sales claims. Say "no" if you do not believe you have received satisfactory answers to your questions. Legitimate businesses will not insist on immediate sales and are happy to provide you with the information you need to make a wise purchasing decision. Read before you sign anything to make sure you understand it, and to make sure it matches what the salesperson told you. Get every sales promise in writing.

·Carefully check out businesses and deals before signing anything, before paying any money up front, and before releasing any personal or financial information (this includes your Social Security number, mother's maiden name, credit card, banking account number and other personal data). The Better Business Bureau has reports on more than two million businesses and charities.

To access the BBB's database of business reports, go to www.bbb.org or contact your local www.bbbnebraksa.org, www.bbbsouthdakota.org or www.bbbswiowa.org.

"When in doubt, always check it out. And, trust your gut instincts. If you have unanswered questions before the sale, you're likely to end up with an unanswered complaint after the sale," Jim Hegarty said. Consumers who need assistance resolving disputes with businesses can file a complaint with the Better Business Bureau. If the complaint cannot be resolved through telephone conciliation, the BBB can offer mediation and arbitration services.

Commissioner objects to plan before commission

Public Service Commissioner Missoula Plan. Anne Boyle of Omaha objected to a before the Federal Commission Communications (FCC) that she said would be unfair to Nebraska.

Boyle's comments were directed at an FCC intercarrier compensation reform plan which was developed through a series of workshops involving telecommunication carriers in an attempt develop a fair compensation plan in a changing environment.

The FCC's comment period on the proposal, named the Missoula Plan after the Montana city where one of the workshop meetings was held, ends Sept. 25. "It is deeply troubling," Boyle said at the meeting of the Public Nebraska Service Commission. "The plan has been in the works for two and one half years and it has glaring problems."

While Boyle did not criticize the effort to develop the plan, she stated that her initial review of the plan discovered "seriously flawed" on a number of fronts. She stated, "The most egregious problem, in my opinion, is the failure to address an estimated $2 billion shortfall to compensate Nebraska and 25 other states that have established intrastate funds. We helped take the load off the federal fund. This proposal is sorely lack-

The Missoula Plan proposes a $200 million package to compensate those states that addressed the access charge disparity and rebalanced local rates. Early estimates are that the fund may need at least $2 billion to be fair and equitable to the states that have already implemented many of the proposed reforms embodied in the

Boyle continued, "Qwest rural customers, in simple terms, are discriminated against. They are charged a higher subscriber line charge with no cap while a customer served by rural carriers has a lower rate with a cap."

"Twenty-six states generate some type of intrastate funding in lieu of federal funding," Boyle said. Since its inception in Nebraska, the state universal service fund has drastically reduced long distance charges, which formerly were among the highest in the nation, and balanced local rates throughout the state. This plan fails to capture the enormity of those contributions," Boyle said.

Boyle said the Missoula Plan also would hasten the national exhausting of existing area code numbers, a problem which the Nebraska Commission has fought to avoid. The FCC could mitigate this problem by requiring all carriers to implement 1000 block pooling. "Without FCC action, we are on a track to 10-digit dialing throughout the nation," she said. "It is truly regrettable that with so much effort, there is so much left to be done; however, we must object,"

WAYNE CITY COUNCIL SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS

August 15, 2006 The Wayne City Council met in special session on August 15, 2006, at 5:30 P.M. In Attendance: Mayor Shelton; Councilmembers Frevert, Lutt, Buryanek, Sturm, Ley, Fuelberth, and Wiseman; City Attorney Pieper; Administrator Johnson; City Clerk McGuire; and Treasurer Braden. Absent:

Councilmember Reeg.

Council reviewed the General Fund Revenue Sources for the upcoming FY2006-

2007 Budget. Administrator Johnson noted that of the First Class Cities, Wayne ranks seventh in regard to the consolidated tax levy. He prepared a 10-year projection of what the revenues and expenses could look like. Discussion was had on assessing an occupation tax on cell phones, similar to what Norfolk and South Sioux City are doing. It was noted that the amount the City receives from Wayne State College for an officer ($40,750) pays for that officer for 9 months. The County allocates $5,000 to the Library. This is the third year of this allocation.

If the valuation increases by 2% and the tax levy stays the same, the property tax could be

The assumptions of this budget, as printed, for the General Fund are:

➤ 5% salary increase > 20% group health plan cost increase

> 5% city insurance cost increase

> No changes in staffing levels > All department capital requests are included. These would have to be reviewed later for elim-

> $150,000 is available for capital purchases (this is approximate spread between the operating costs in the general fund and the projected $2.4 million in revenue)

The meeting was recessed at 9:25 p.m. Mayor Shelton reconvened the meeting at 5:30 p.m. on August 17, 2006. In attendance: Councilmembers Frevert, Lutt, Buryanek, Sturm, Ley, Fuelberth, and Wiseman; City Attorney Connolly; City Administrator Johnson; City Clerk McGuire; and City Treasurer Braden. Absent: Councilmember Reeg.

Administrator Johnson requested Council consensus on the aggregate needed on the sidewalks for the Main Street Project. Consensus was to approve the 9" of aggregate for under the sidewalks.

Budget review continued on the operating and capital expenditures for the general fund and proprietary departments.

Staff recommendation was to implement a 1% franchise fee which is out of the lid and will be recaptured through the utility rates, reallocate some of the personnel wages to different departments, and to leave the size of the Police Department as is with these changes. This would capture the money needed to accommodate the changes in State Law regarding the motor vehicle taxes and fees that need to be used by the Street Department.

A list of the fees charged by the City was given to the Councilmembers to review. Suggestion was to increase the fees across the board by whatever cost of living increase the city employees receive. Recommendation was also to get the fees for the Activity Center closer to what Providence Medical Center is and to eliminate the 1-5 employee corporate rate dis-

Changes to the recommended capital purchases were: >Reduce Police Department Car Replacement from $28,000 to $14,000

>Reduce Fire Department Pumper from $265,000 to $225,000 >Reduce Fire Department Aerial Truck from $50,000 to $25,000

>Reduce CAC equipment new/replacement from $25,000 to $5,000 >Eliminate Upgrade CAC Temp Control

System of $15,530

➤ Eliminate Pool Improvements of $10,000 ➤ Reduce Street Equipment New/Replacement from $291,000 to $191,000 Recommendation was for Council to set a goal to hire a Recreation Head to oversee the Recreation Department, which includes the Library/Senior Center.

Recommendation was to increase walk-ins at the Transfer Station from $3.50 per bag to $5.00 per bag.

The electric, water, and sewer funds were Executive session was entered into at 8:27 p.m. to discuss litigation regarding Lots 10, 11, and 12, Block 8, College Hill Addition and to allow Administrator Johnson, City Clerk McGuire, and Attorney Connolly to be in attendance.

Open session resumed at 8:40 p.m. Meeting adjourned at 8:40 p.m. The City of Wayne, Nebraska
