Seeing red

Students at St. Mary's Elementary School are celebrating Red Ribbon Week with a number of activities. The week is designed to educate students about the harmful effects of drugs and alcohol. Several assemblies were held on various topics, including smoking and alcohol use. On Tuesday, the students and staff gathered outside the school to release red balloons as a symbol of their being drug-free.

Speakers for the program included Corey O'Brien, assistant attorney from the Nebraska Attorney General's office; Lance Webster, Wayne chief of police; Jon Brandow, WSC college student; Sen. Mike Flood of Norfolk; Marilyn Fox and Sue Brown, extension educators working on the Building Nebraska Families program out of the University of Nebraska.

Risk and protective factors were also discussed. The educators answered questions from attendees. The women have been traveling around Nebraska for the past two years giving over 200 presentations to spread the word about Meth and its impact on people.

> The women have developed a special program about the dangers of Meth that is appropriate for the age group (grades 4-12) which was presented at Wayne High School on Tuesday.

Webster introduced the speakers and noted Meth is a widespread problem, > Brandow noted drugs have a long history. Meth was first created in Germany in 1887. In the United States, drug problems used to be on the coasts and not in Nebraska much but that isn't the case anymore. This area is a prime location for manufacturing Meth. Meth is also manufactured in Mexico and brought up here.

Fox and Brown emphasized it is going to take each person working together in Nebraska to fight Meth and rid our state of

Citgo burglary investigated

On Oct. 21, shortly after 6 a.m., the Wayne Police Department received a report of a burglary at the Citgo/Daylight Donut store at 6th & Main.

Officers discovered that a suspect(s) used force to gain entry into the rear of the business. Once inside the suspect(s) tried to remove the ATM machine; however, they were unsuccessful. Nothing else was disturbed in the store. Forensic evidence recovered at the scene indicates at least two suspects were involved in this burglary. The suspect(s) were captured on the video surveillance system inside the store. The security company is sending the police department software that will allow officers to open and view these digital files. Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster said there is obviously speculation that the people responsible for this burglary were also involved in the recent ATM theft from Pac 'N' Save. While this certainly seems to be the case, Webster said until there is conclusive evidence to prove the connection, the police will treat these cases as separate investigations.

Webster said the Wayne Police Department is also working with the F.B.I. in an attempt to develop suspects. There have been similar types of thefts in Omaha and Council Bluffs and one of these suspects may have ties to northeast Nebraska.

Webster said one of the concerns he is hearing relates to personal information in the ATM. He said people should not worry about that, as ATM machines don't store any bank account or P.I.N. information.

Community preparing for return of troops

Editor's note: The following information on welcoming the troops home was compiled by a group of those who have been working with the soldiers and families since the unit left Nebraska 14 months ago. It is designed to make the transition for both the soldiers and community run more smoothly.

Some of the soldiers and their families of the 189th Transportation Company have had many discussions what would be worse; serving our country in Iraq or maintaining life on the other side of the world, waiting, worrying and wondering?

According to the therapists working with the families of the 189th, no one can ever understand what the other is going through until they have experienced it for themselves. Just as the soldiers have been. the families should be commended for their bravery and their courage. They have strived for 14 months to keep their families together, pray for their children and maintain a sense of sanity when watching the news, listening to rumors and not having their questions answered.

Today, they are filled with excitement and joy that their soldiers are coming home. Simultaneously, there are feelings of great sadness, sorrow and guilt that Josh Ford will not be coming home with his troop and that more of our soldiers will return or enter Iraq for the first time, leavening more worry for families.

The emotional roller coaster begins, as one wonders if how they feel is appropriate. Knowing that 70 percent of soldiers returning from Iraq are having difficulties adjusting to their home, the families worry about alcohol use, parenting and marital issues and if their soldier can find his/her way back to life here in our communities.

We hope they can resolve their sorrow. sadness and the unexpected feelings they may encounter upon their return. So many things have changed that may cause discomfort and awkwardness for both the families and soldiers. Knowing that people change every day based on their experiences, one wonders how the soldiers have changed and will I be the same?

It is overwhelming to think of the many big and small things that are different since our soldiers left 14 months ago. Relationships have changed, kids have grown and we have continued our life without them.

Many have asked, "What can I do to help our soldiers adjust to their home and community?" In collaboration, with those who have experienced war, the families and the therapists, a list of helpful hints are being made available to the community to give our soldiers the welcome home that they

1) Say Thank-you. Remember, it does not matter when or how; say thank-you to the soldiers and their families. Let us not forget that the soldiers returning home have experienced war and have seen things they would like to forget. A small token of appreciation can make a soldier and his/her family feel like it was worth it and it can make difficult day better.

2) Give the Family time. We, friends, employers, neighbors, co-workers are so

Such a statute might not seem particularly noteworthy these days - but only to people unfamiliar with the way Montanans have long been perceived by millions of their fellow Americans.

For approximately forever, Montanans had the image of folk who practiced what might be called an aggressive "live and let live" view of life. The "You be you, I'll be me," thing.

Ask a Montanan to stop smoking a cigar and you might be okay. Tell a Montana to put out his or her cigar and you might get an earful of ashes. If Forrest Gump were there, you might hear him say: "Stupid is and stupid does."

On Friday night, stand-alone bars, like Maloney's in downtown Butte, are so packed that if a few locals get to doing the fisticuff shuffle it is viewed through what could be called the original Fog of War. Even in places like Trixi's Antler Saloon (and fine dining, by the

Without four-wheel drive, it's best to skip the trip.

The view from here, after a reasonable study of the view from Trixi's older-than-the-argumentover property-tax bar:

Work on community response plan

Community leaders, businesses and citizens gathered on Oct. 11 at the Wayne Fire Hall to participate in a "Table Top Exercise" for evaluation of a Community Pandemic Response Plan. Community members have been meeting over the summer and a draft community response plan has been developed. It is very important that everyone be informed and prepared for a pandemic response in both an individual capacity and as a member of the community. #### Dear Editor,

I (insert your name) believe we should be forced to raise property taxes because I don't pay enough already. We should cut funds for local police, fire departments and emergency response teams because how many times do we really need. them? We should strangle economic development by crippling the infrastructure and services businesses need because everything is overpriced anyway. We should harm agriculture by reducing funding and increasing fees because farmers and ranchers are paid too much for their crops and livestock. We should cut money paid to our schools, our health care, our roads and our quality of life in Nebraska because we all have it way too good as it is. Please excuse the sarcasm.

This letter is not biased political rhetoric intended to deceivingly sway your vote. It is with deepest sincerity that I ask you to think about your reasons for voting either way for Initiative 423. We must all stand by our convictions, but those convictions should be formed through extensive thought, reflection, and facts, not deception or vindictiveness.

In 1992, the citizens of Colorado voted to change their state constitution by passing an amendment called the "Taxpayer Bill of Rights" or TABOR. It promised to cut government waste, make politicians accountable, and provide taxpayer refunds. In the years that citizens received refunds, which was not every year, it was as low as $150 for married couple filing jointly. That is about $12 a month. Since TABOR was added to the state constitution, Colorado has become one of the nation's poorest funded and poorest performing states. TABOR forced huge cuts in funding at all levels of education, infrastructure, public safety, agriculture, and healthcare. The people of Colorado recently voted to suspend TABOR in hopes of regaining all they lost. Nebraska's version of TABOR is Initiative 423. It has been labeled SOS for Stop Over Spending. It should stand for Save Our State from outside interest groups. We need to learn from the mistake in Colorado's past and vow to not let that happen to Nebraska.

Supporters of 423 play on our emotions to make us believe that government is bad and the people WE elected to the Legislature are incompetent. Our elected officials make difficult financial decisions every day with the money they have been given. The rigid formula outlined in Initiative 423 does not allow the state to keep up with the real cost of providing basic public services. If you take the time to read how 423 works, you will see for yourself that these same officials will be forced to make these same decisions with money that by state constitution will not be there. Being an "overtaxed" taxpayer like you, I would rather do my civic duty and pay a few more dollars in taxes to meet rising costs than to be FORCED lose that which makes Nebraska "The Good Life."

423 WILL do what it designed to do, streamline government spending. The devastating result is that the financial burden will simply be shifted and FORCE local governments to raise your property taxes. If the money doesn't come from the state, then it has to come from somewhere else or not come at all. It's up to you. Which do you chose? See the FACTS about 423 and watch the video at www.notinnebraska.com and then make your choice. The reality of the video will scare you more than any Halloween ghost or goblin, Don't let supporters of 423 scare you into Dear Editor, voting against common sense.

There are over 60 organizations across the state that are in opposition to 423, including the Nebraska Farm Bureau, Farmers Union, AARP, State Troopers Association, Nebraska Chamber of Commerce & Industry, Nebraska Cattlemen, Nebraska Hospital Association, Governor Dave Heineman (R), and nominee for governor David Hahn (D). These are people like you and me who have a vested interest in keeping our economy and way of life the Nebraska Way.

Our Legislature is doing its best to tread through the waters of running the state government. Don't tie their hands and force them to tread with just their feet. Don't let supporters of 423 scare you into voting against the common sense learned from Colorado's past. I'm not opposed to an efficient and accountable government, but please join me in trusting THEIR judgment and voting NO to Initiative 423.

Sincerely, Wayne, Nebraska taxpayer

Be a part of the solution

One bit of advice I have relied on over the years is that if you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem.

Today our government is run by Republican controlled executive Fraternal Order of Police, and legislative branches. This has cut off any healthy debate within the government over policy, domestic or foreign. It has resulted in dysfunctional politics, controlled by a powerful few who have effectively eliminated the constitutional duty of Congress to provide checks and balances over the executive branch. No one can deny that what is going on in Washington, D.C. today needs to be fixed.

The good news is that on Nov. 7 voters of Nebraska's first district can voice their opinion at the polls and help fix what's wrong with Washington, D.C. We can replace Jeff Fortenberry, a transplanted Louisiana sales representative. with Maxine Moul, a lifelong Nebraskan who has worked for this state and lived in this district her entire life.

Congressman Fortenberry has Mike Jaixen rubber stamped this administration his entire tenure. He has never disagreed with any major policy issues, effectively becoming part of the problem.

> If we want to have a healthy debate in Washington, we have an excellent candidate in Maxine Moul. She will help to both check and balance the government as the constitution demands. Moul's fresh ideas rather than a rubber stamp are exactly what we need in government today. We can be part of the solution.

Baptist church to note milestone in church history

In anticipation and preparation of celebrating its 125th anniversary, First Baptist Church of Wayne has taken a look back on the history of the Baptist Church in America, Nebraska and Wayne.

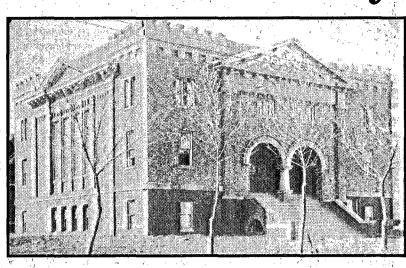

The anniversary celebration will be held on Sunday, Nov. 5, beginning with fellowship at 8:30 to be followed by a communion service, catered dinner and program. The community is invited to attend.

The first Baptist church in America was organized in Providence, R.I. in 1639 under the leadership of Roger Williams. Williams was an intensely religious man and advocated complete religious freedom as a right of the people. Almost 50 years passed before the adoption of the United States Constitution brought complete religious freedom and Baptist congregations began to flourish.

In Nebraska, it was a Boston mission board in 1833 that sent Rev. Moses Merrill, his wife Eliza and two friends to the territory along the Missouri river at Bellevue. The Merrills knew that if this far western country to which they had come as young Baptist missionaries were to survive and prosper, it must be upon the Christian religion they were bringing. The Sunday after their arrival, Rev. Merrill delivered what was to become the first Protestant sermon in Nebraska. His congregation included two Americans, two Frenchmen, and five Indians, none of whom except the Americans could understand the American language. Mrs. Merrill was also busy establishing the first Sabbath school in the state.

Like many other first settlers to this unknown land, the Merrills endured many hardships and heartaches. Through all the seven years in the state, Rev. Merrill suffered from tuberculosis. Following his death and burial by the Missouri river in 1840 at the age of 37, his wife and young son returned to the East.

In Wayne, 48 years had elapsed since Rev. Moses Merrill and his wife established the first Mission house in the state. During this time Nebraska was organized into a territory and later admitted to statehood in 1867.

First Baptist Church at the corner of Fourth and Main Streets will celebrate its 125th anniversary on Nov. 5.

Many home missionaries followed the moving lines of wagons along the trails west from the river. Church histories relate stories of joy and sorrow for these pioneering people were spiritual by nature and believers in a social order upon theCommandments.

The first Protestant minister to work this new territory was Rev. Isaac McCoy, a Baptist home missionary. These mission workers gathered their members around them, meeting in homes and country school houses until churches could be built. These meetings were social gatherings as well as for worship and people drove miles by horse and buggy to meetings which satisfied their religious and social needs.

History tells that the Methodists and Baptists entered a new territory with "evangelistic fervor" and, while differing on doctrinal points, nevertheless carried on their evangelistic work much the same. Singing was a great part of their early meetings and they were nicknames "The song birds of the prairies".

Though the population of Wayne only numbered 100 at this time, sufficient interest was shown toward organizing a Baptist congregation. Early in 1881, Rev. J. F. Heilner and his wife arrived from Battle Creek and with the help of a few other dedicated Baptists, began organizing their people. On Dec. 17, 1881, they met to organize under the entire structure."

the Missionary Baptist church and a record of this first meeting is filed with the county and state clerks. Wayne at this time had no town hall in which to meet and few places for worship so the newly formed congregation took steps at once to erect a church building.

On June 25, 1882, the church was dedicated debt free. This frame house of worship was located near Third and Logan at the approximate location of Arnie's Ford-Mercury today. J. R. Manning, J. W. Bartlett and M. N. Conover comprised this first building committee.

It is also noted from this frame church near Third and Logan was later moved in 1891 to lots purchased at Fourth and Main where the present church is located. There were now almost 200 members and they felt the need for a larger structure in which to worship and conduct church business so a 20 x 30 foot addition was added.

Two lots were added to the church property in 1902 and the present parsonage was built for $2600. As the church continued to grow through baptisms and by letter, the small frame building at Fourth and Main was no longer adequate for the needs of the congregation. A committee recommended that the style of building be the Grecian or Temple style, that the material be Hydrolic pressed brick, with full basement

Jacob's Room designed to make children happy

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

Wayne's newest business is designed for its youngest residents.

Jacob's Room recently opened at 202 Main Street and carries a large supply of toys, baby and infant items and children's clothing.

The idea for the store, which is owned by Amy and Mike Woerdemann, Gary and Molly Redden and Terri Test, began as a memorial to Jacob Carl Woerdemann, the Woerdemann's infant son, who died Aug. 28, 2004.

"After Jacob died, my focus changed," Amy said. She found she wanted to find "good in something bad and make other children happy. We carry all the things Jacob would have had."

Jacob's Room started as a web business over the internet. A corporation was set up in April of this year, but the owners found they needed a retail outlet to work with some of the companies they deal with in making purchases.

Earlier this year, the location at 202 Main Street was secured and stocked with merchandise.

All toy decorations throughout the store came from Amy and Molly's grandmother's basement. Among the toy brands available are Playskool, Hasbro, Fisher Price, Mattel, Lego, Melissa and Doug, Little Tikes, Playdoh, Leap Frog, Thomas the Train and a number of other smaller toy companies. Baby and infant items consist of brands such as Evenflo, Graco, Cosco, Safety 1st, Sassy, Avent. Medela, Playtex, First Years and Gerber.

In addition, Jacob's Room carries Abigail's Hope, locally hand-crafted, one-of-a-kind furniture.

"If there is something a customer wants or needs, we will do our best to get it for them or find a place where they can go to get it," Amy said.

Jacob's Room is currently open Wednesdays and Thursdays from 5 to 9 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or by appointment.

It is the hope of the owners to have the entire inventory on the company's website by Thanksgiving. A grand opening for the store is being planned for the near future. Orders may be placed online at www.jacobsroom.com

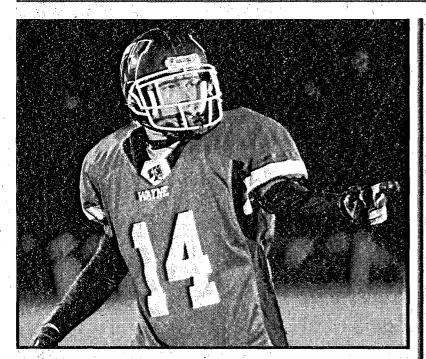

For more information, call (402) 833-5332 or visit sales@jwcorporation.com

A 60-yard touchdown was scored midway through the first half with the ball being spun wide left to running back Beau Boryca who broke the scrumage line for 15 yards and noticed that scrum half Brent Newland looped all the way outside the play, and creating an overload and a 2-1 situation 20 yards down

Boryca then was able to get the ball to Newland who rambled the next 40 yards and crossed the goal line for the score and Ashland Johnson added the conversion to give the 'Cats the 7-0 lead.

On the final play of the first half, WSC had the ball on the Creighton 15-yard line. The backline was spread wide left, and the call was to run to the right off of the base of the scrum.

Defensively Creighton shifted and awaited the WSC offensive play, Beau Benson noticed this, and audibled the same play but going the other way, and simply picked up the ball, and ran over four Creighton defenders and crossed the goal line as time expired in the first half. Ashland Johnson added the conversion for the 14-0 lead.

In the second half, WSC's defense kept Creighton outside the red zone the entire half, however it was a pesky defense that also kept the Wildcats from scoring in the second half.

WSC had several opportunities to score again, with several plays inside the 15-yard line, but were unable to cross the goal line for seven more points.

With the national playoff structure set up in April, teams such as Florida State, Texas Tech, UCLA, USC and Alabama all play their conference championships in early March to advance to the playoffs, with the snow still being on the fields in Great Plains. #### 'Caught in the Middle' to be presented at Wayne Middle School

Peer pressure. At times peer pressure can be a good thing. When friends encourage others to do well in school and make healthy choices, peer pressure can be a positive dynamic. However, often students are faced with peer pressure to engage in harmful, risky and unhealthy behavior.

Wayne Middle School is working to teach students how to discriminate between healthy and unhealthy forms of peer pressure and how to make good decisions when faced with these situations.

The Wayne Middle School FRIENDs Drug Free Youth Group has invited R.E.S.P.E.C.T.2 Relationship Empowerment for Students, Parents, Educators & Community Through Theatre, a not for profit organization from Omaha to present an educational theatre production called "Caught in the Middle (School)" for the seventh and eighth grade students.

The program will be presented at the Middle School on Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 8:15 a.m.

R.E.S.P.E.C.T.2 has presented to over 75,000 students across Nebraska and Iowa since 2001. Caught in the Middle (School) is accompanied by a professionally facilitated large group discussion between students and actor-educators. Students will learn about the dynamics of peer pressure, behavioral strategies and choices to help themselves and their friends, and resources that are available to help when confronted with peer pressure. Discussions will center on peer pressure to use drugs and alcohol, peer pressure to date and peer pressure to cheat in school.

Peer pressure as a kind of bullying technique and ways to build a positive school environment for self and others will be reinforced by classroom discussions.

"Theatre is a great way to help students learn about how their choices can lead to helpful - or harmful - consequences for themselves and their peers. It provides a uniquely motivating learning environment. Students identify with

All banks have green money. All banks offer savings, loans and services like checking accounts. So, does it matter where you bank? Yes, you bet it does. Why? Because it's how we offer financial services that make us different. Take for example, the length of time you have to wait to get a straight up or down, yes or no, answer on your loan request. We don't have to consult an out of town loan committee. We make our decisions right here.

UNL Extension employees receive annual awards

Extension assistants, educators and specialists were recognized this month for their achievements and contributions with 2006 UNL Extension awards.

Barbara Ogg, extension educator in Lancaster County, received the Distinguished Educator award: Ogg's primary duties involve coordinating Lincoln's biosolids program. Since 1992, this program has saved more than $4 million in landfill tipping fees with more than 250,000 tons of biosolids safely applied to farm land. With a doctorate degree in entomology, Ogg also has taken the extra initiative to fulfill an increasing demand for urban pest management extension education, such as an award-winning head lice video and termite education.

"Market Journal" was honored with the Excellence in Team Programming award. A weekly 30minute TV program on the NET and DISH networks, "Market Journal" provides useful, hands-on information to farmers and ranchers to supplement their educational activities in the ever-changing business and technology environment. Creators Doug Jose, farm management specialist, and Jim Randall, communications specialist-electronic media coordinator, are the nucleus of "Market Journal" as the regular host and producer. Also on the team are Jim Smith, electronic media engineer; Cheryl Griffith, project coordinator; Al Dutcher, state climatologist; Betty Castan, project assistant and Mike Kamm, communications specialist/electronic media: Regular analysts include Darrell Mark, livestock marketing specialist; Al Prosch, Pork Central educator; Paul Burgener, ag economics eve Aiken, ducers Roy Smith and Mike Briggs.

Keith Glewen, UNL extension educator, received the Chester I. Walters Extra Mile award. Glewen is an innovator of numerous educational programs, including the Nebraska Soybean and Feed Grains Profitability Project, UNL Extension Crop Management Clinics, Diagnostic Management Winter Programs, Soybean Management Field Days, Solutions Days, Nebraska No-Till Conference and the Nebraska Soybean and Machinery Expo. In addition to these statewide programs, Glewen also targets the needs of Saunders County residents, providing programming at both the state and county level.

Mary Loftis, extension assistant, 4-H youth development in Burt County, received the Extension Assistant award. In addition to outstanding general leadership and support of a successful and growing youth development program, Loftis also has built an effective school enrichment program in all school districts in Burt County, annually reaching 300 to 400 students. She has effectively delivered a Medicare educational program and has been particularly active in radon educational programming.

Mader has focused his extension program around his research interests. Recently, Mader has focused on stress response of feedlot cattle to environmental conditions. As a result of his heat stress in feedlot cattle research and extension efforts, it has been estimated that Mader prevented between $10 and $27 million in losses during the 2005 heat wave.

Community comes together to conduct benefit for family in need

It has always seemed to me that some families have more than their fair share of troubles. I know the promise that says the Lord does not allow more than we can bear, but I'm with Mother Teresa who said, "I wish he didn't trust me so

There is a family in Cass County that has had more than their share of illness. One young member has colon cancer and there was a huge benefit for him several years ago that netted $30,000!

It was a supper held in a huge back room of a local restaurant that included a silent auction of stacks of donated goodies. I decided that night that the folks in Cass County know how to do a benefit.

Last Sunday's was a pancake feed at the school gym for the young man's uncle. My assignment was to pick up pancake batter at the local Village Inn and have it in Murdock by 9 a.m.

When I got there, there was a bunch of worker bees already scurrying around. On Saturday, they had set up tables and baked 700 cinnamon rolls.

Now, they were warming roasters and starting coffee pots. The big round griddle was fired up and a fellow who does barbecue was grilling 200 pounds of donated sausage.

One roaster had a yellow liquid in it I couldn't identify. I learned it was 100 eggs, ready to be scrambled. I have never scrambled that many eggs before and I had never dreamed it could be done in a roaster. They were ready by the time we Weed resistance usually results from repeated use of the same herbicide. The widespread use of glyphosate-tolerant crops and repeated use of glyphosate herbicide resulted in selection pressure on weed populations.

There were only a few weed species (eg. ryegrass and goosegrass) known to have developed resistance to glyphosate worldwide. prior to introduction of glyphosatetolerant crops. However, the number of glyphosate resistant weeds tripled in just over 8 years of repeated glyphosate use over a large land area (>100 million acres) due to introduction of Roundup-Ready crops. For example, 90 percent control of a susceptible population was achieved with 32 oz. of glyphosate (3lbs/gal acid equivalent, as 1X rate), while the resistant populations needed about 100 oz/acre (3X rate) and 200 oz (6X rate) in order to achieve the same level of control.

We believe that glyphosate and herbicide tolerant crops, including those ones based on glyphosate herbicide, can remain useful component of the crop production system only with proper management. It is easy to fall into a trap of overusing glyphosate, versus combinations of pre-emergence herbicides or tank mix partners, when one Roundup-Ready crop is grown after another.

Therefore, proper use of herbicide tolerant technology, as a com-Marestail (horseweed) is the first ponent of an integrated weed manweed species exhibiting resistance agement program, is the key to preto glyphosate in our state. The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) Directors and staff toured parts of the Willow Creek State Recreation Area in August.

Phase II of the Willow Creek Trial is approximately 2.8 miles long and extends from the picnic shelter on the north side of the lake to the crossing on the west end of the lake. The trial is 8 ft, wide and will have a crushed limestone surface when completed. The 2nd phase of the trail will be completed this fall. Phase III will eventually continue the trail from the crossing all the way to the beach on the south side of the lake, and will complete the trail, a total of 9 miles.

Funding for this project came from the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission Recreational Trails Program and the LENRD. Assistant Manager Ken Berney said, "The concept of the Willow Creek Trial was brought to the LENRD by Pierce residents, in 1997, mainly out of safety concerns for bikers and walkers on the road out to the lake," He continued, Phase I of the Willow Creek Trail spans approximately 4.5 miles, connecting the beach and campground on the south side of the lake, over the dam, and connects to the picnic shelter on the north side of the lake. The trail splits coming into Pierce with one branch ending near "Buckey's" and the other near the high school.

The contractor for Phase II is Brower Construction of Sioux City.

This fall, the LENRD will be applying for funding to complete Phase III of the trail. This will complete the project and will take the trail all the way around

The Willow Creek State Recreation Area is owned by the LENRD and is managed by the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission as a State Recreation Area. State park permits are required on vehicles using the Recreation Area.

Berney added, "Bringing your bikes and walking shoes to Willow Creek and > Health-related: Elderly Hoosiers are receiving phone calls from the "National Medical Office" and other official-sounding "agencies," The caller warns their Medicare cards are about to expire. To prevent this, seniors must provide their bank account number so the "agency" can quickly deduct a onetime fee (ranging from $200-$400).

Home repairs: In Houston, elderly minorities are responding to mailbox flyers offering loans for home repairs. They don't realize the loans have a 19-21 percent interest rate. The contractor later convinces them to sign a "work has been completed" form and disappears without performing the repairs. On the West Coast, an elderly woman reports that she was charged $900 to have her circuit breakers "cleaned."

Why are seniors at risk?

"Seniors can be vulnerable due to their age and their living conditions," said one BBB executive.

ELECTION PREVIEW

EDITOR'S NOTE

Nebraskans will be voting on nine issues when they go to the General Election polls on November 7. So that voters can better understand these important proposed changes to the state Constitution or state statutes, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared this report. This report briefly defines the issues, explaining the purpose and finally stating the arguments for and against. This is the second in a series of three previews.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT 1

The Legislature proposed this change in the constitution to help nonprofit organizations qualify for a better tax break from the federal government. Voters rejected a similar plan in 2002 amid suggestions that the authority granted to the Legislature wasn't sufficiently specific. If enacted, the amendment would give the Legislature the option of allowing cities, towns and villages to acquire property and lease it to a qualified nonprofit. Those communities could issue bonds in connection with the property, although the bonds would not represent a general obligation of the government. The amendment, passed on a 40-0 vote, makes clear that the new authority specifically excludes property that would be used for religious purposes. It also prohibits local governments from using the power of eminent domain to obtain a property for use by a nonprofit

Local governments could have more options for investing public endowment funds if voters make proposed Amendment 2 part of the state constitution. It would allow the Legislature to authorize local governments to put endowment funds into stocks and other securities. Those funds are now limited to investment in the bond market, which yields less interest. Endowment funds are those which are set aside as an investment, with the proceeds from investments earmarked for a specific purpose. The broadened investment option would include cities, villages, school districts, public power districts and other subdivisions of government.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT 3 More of the state's lottery revenues

would be used to help problem gamblers if voters adopt Proposed Amendment 3. After prizes and operating costs are paid for, the state would set aside the first $1 million in proceeds for the Compulsive Gamblers Assistance Fund. The constitution currently requires that the first $500,000 in proceeds - after prizes and operating costs - be placed into the fund. The division of lottery profits would otherwise remain unchanged: 44 1/2 percent to the Nebraska Environmental Trust Fund; 44 1/2 percent to education as directed by the Legislature; 10 percent to the Nebraska State Fair Board; and 1 percent to the Compulsive Gamblers Assistance Fund.
