'Move Your Business to the Next Level of Success' topic of class

Successful business strategies are made easy with proper planning. Participating in the interactive, action-oriented Nebraska EDGE (Enhancing, Developing and Growing Entrepreneurs) classes held throughout the State of Nebraska for potential, new and existing small business owners allows business owners to develop a comprehensive, effective business plan giving them the tools to be more successful in a timely manner.

Classes are scheduled to start in December.

Many times business plans are developed to qualify for funding a business whether it is a start up business or an existing business. The ultimate goal for completing a business plan is to systematically understand the business internally giving business owners the knowledge to recognize opportunities that otherwise may not be a possibility or more importantly be profitable. Completing a business plan allows business owners the opportunity to maximize resources available, understand financial aspects, pricing, and the break-even point in the business. The business plan will give them the competitive edge through market research, the evaluation of the competition and learning the company's strengths and weaknesses providing you insight to a healthier economic business position.

This 12-week course will help individuals achieve their goals, save time and money as well as improve the bottom line giving them more control of finances, marketing and daily operations.

As explained by Rick Adkins, President of Security National Bank in Laurel, "In today's fast moving financial environment, businesses should be proactive in the decision making process and many technological tools are readily available to facilitate the process. However, the EDGE Program provides the decision makers with a method to formulate their own business plan and to use the other entities as a supporting role toward achieving good financial and workable conclusions. The EDGE Program provides opportunities to assist managers in developing sound business plan decisions, for the future of their company or business."

NebraskaEDGE courses are structured to fit the nationally recognized NxLevel training curriculum. Certified, experienced instructors will help participants critically evaluate their business ideas and guide them step by step in improving management and marketing skills.

"Northeast Community College" is pleased to work in partnership with area communities and organizations to coordinate and deliver EDGE Entrepreneurship training. We believe this is an investment that will help grow businesses and attract

Burglary occurs at Pacific Coast Feather Company

Sometime during the early morning hours of Nov. 6, unknown persons entered a shop and the processing plant at Pacific Coast Feather Company located on the east edge of Wayne. An office was entered and some personal employee items were taken.

The door of the shop located on the east side of the factory site was pried open and several tools were taken. About $2000 in tools were removed from the shop and taken from the factory.

This incident continues to be investigated by the Wayne County Sheriff's Office. Anyone having any information leading to the arrest and detection of the suspects in this case would certainly be appreciated.

Comprehensive plan receives approval

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

After listening to the results of several months of fact-gathering, the Wayne City Council voted to approve a revised Wayne Comprehensive Plan.

Amy Haase with RDG Consulting, presented a power point of the areas covered in the plan. She noted areas for development, the need for a park in the northeast section of the city and a re-designed downtown area during the presentation.

No one from the public spoke during the public hearing connected with the issue and the plan was approved on a 5-0 vote. Council members Will Wiseman, Darrell Fuelberth and Don Buryanek were unable to be present at Tuesday's meeting.

The council also approved a $100,000

Revolving Loan Fund application from Ken Jorgensen for working capital for the construction of a restaurant and package liquor store.

Dr. Joë Reinert, Superintendent of Wayne Public Schools and Daryl Schrunck, Wayne Elementary School Principal, were at Tuesday's meeting to request permission to apply for grant funds through the state's Safe Routes to School program. The money would be used to make changes in the traffic flow on Fourth and Fifth Streets and Schoolview Drive.

Both men noted that the area around the

Honoring Vets

Veteran's Day programs were held in the area to remember and honor Veterans. Above, Staff Sgt. Jon Wren, a member of the 189th Transportation Company and back from serving in Iraq, was speaker at the Wayne Senior Center program held on Nov. 10. Staff Sgt. Wren said their unit was proud to be from Nebraska and showed it every chance they could while in Iraq. He thanked everyone for their support while the unit was overseas. He said the 189th received a lot of mail and they appreciated it.

Ande Schulz is 'Miracle Story'

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Ande Schulz is a lot like all of her nine-year old friends.

She likes to giggle and play on the playground, she likes makeup and sometimes she is a picky eater.

However, Ande is a special nine-year old. She was born with spina bifida.

In her nine years she and her parents, Terry and Leslie Schulz, have made numerous trips to Children's Hospital in Omaha for check ups and more than a dozen surgeries. Through it all, Ande has retained her wide grin and positive outlook.

Ande's story was recently the subject of a fundraiser for Children's Hospital and allowed Ande and her parents to attend the Children's Hospital Gala on Oct. 28 at the Qwest Center in Omaha.

"Ande utilizes the hospital and Children's Developmental Clinic. At this clinic, all of Ande's physicians come to a central location to see her. It is much more of a team concept, where all of the physicians work together to determine what is best for Ande," Leslie said.

"In March of this year, they asked me if I would write a story about Ande and why we like the Developmental Clinic. The goal was to have the Clinic chosen as the fundraising event for this year's Gala. They also asked Ande to be their Miracle Story," Leslie added.

In September, a large production crew arrived in Wayne to film the Schulz family in a number of locations.

"First they did my makeup and my hair. Then I was filmed at school, playing the piano at the hospital, on the playground, at home and at Ike's Lake when I caught a

Mock Trial teams win competitions

The Wayne High School Mock Trial team has recently been involved in a number of competitions and will continue to move toward regional and state competition in upcoming weeks.

Mock Trial is a competition that puts schools against each other in the attempt to win a case. This year's case is about an attempted murder at a school. A bullied/troubled youth finally got fed up with his tormentor and snapped one day shooting him with a shotgun.

Mock Trial teams either compete as the State of Nebraska prosecuting the youth or as Defense counsel for the youth. Teams must have both sides prepared but will only give one side at a time. Wayne has been in mock trial for many years.

Josh Johnson is in his third year of working with the program. He is assisted by Kristin Hochstein.

"We are greatly benefited by the wisdom of awesome lawyer coaches from the county attorney's office, Mike Pieper and Amy Wiebelhaus. They help us with the 'lawyer stuff.' Last year we got third in regionals and hope to go further this year," Johnson said.

Results so far in 2006 include: The Wayne High Mock Trial teams competed last week in first round matches. Wayne captured three of the five spots in the second round competitions to be held Friday, Nov. 17 at Madison. The winner of the second round matches will then compete in the Regional finals to be held Wednesday, Nov. 22 in Madison. The winner of regionals advance to state in December.

Wayne High School students participating in Mock Trial this year include Jon Pieper, Sadey Bessmer, Maddie Jager, Liz Baier, Megan Powell, Luke Gentrup, Nate Summerfield, Sheree Kathol, Staci Daum, Regan Ruhl, Shannon Connolly, Matthew Poehlman, Jenny Hoelt, Jesse Hill, Reggie Ruhl, Caitlyn Gustafson, Ally Miller, Phil Anderson, Josh Fink, Kendall Jones, Bren Vander Weil, Jacob Nissen, Kel Gahagan, Joe Whitt, Brett Dorsey, Andi Diediker, Ryan Pieper, Megan Loberg, Owen Rickner, Andrea Pieper, Kaylie Sprouls, Cory Harm, Michelle Jarvi and Samantha Dunklau. Lauryn Braun serves as manager.

Fight continues for Class I schools

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

What can you say about the endless fight over Nebraska's former Class I school districts?

For one thing, you can say it might be one of the stickiest wickets to face the 2007 Legislature, with its 22 new lawmakers.

The Legislature did away with the 200 or so Class I districts, which offered mostly elementary education, in mostly rural areas. The hope by proponents of the move was that the fight would thus be concluded.

On election day, the voters repealed that law. Hostilities thus resumed.

through high school.

What does it all mean?

At this writing, it means the Legislature and state government bureaucrats, teachers, school administrators and parents await a ruling by a federal judge on what it means.

As a commercial for a credit card company once intoned: "Consider the possibilities." They range from virtually nothing, to revisiting the entire issue.

reduced, but an equal amount of spending isn't cut, the cost of the tax cut is simply being shifted; it is coming out of another pocket, but the overall tax burden is not reduced.

A thoughtful reader recently asked why this column mentions the above fact several times a year. "We get it," said the reader.

The view from here: That's great! And at the first sign that the Legislature and governor get it, it will be reported with Hosannas, Huzzahs and perhaps a brass band playing Who'd a thought it!

A recommendation: Did your newly elected legislator promise to fight, fight, fight for measures that would reduce - or greatly stem the

Scholarship opportunity for local high school students to study abroad

Qualified high school students are offered a unique opportunity to spend an academic year, three-month program or summer holiday in Europe, Asia, North and South America, New Zealand, Australia or South Africa as part of the ASSE International Student Exchange Program," announced Terri Joski-Lang, Midwestern Director of ASSE.

"Until a few years ago only a fortunate few could afford to spend a school year or summer abroad. ASSE has changed all that," continued Joski-Lang.

Students, 15 to 18 years of age, qualify on the basis of academic performance, character references and a genuine desire to experience abroad with a volunteer host family in one of the many ASSE host countries.

"ASSE host families are carefully screened to provide a caring environment in which students can learn the language and culture of their host country," explained Ms. Joski-Lang.

Students need not have learned a foreign language prior to program participation as they receive language and cultural instruction as part of the ASSE program. ASSE students attend regular high school classes along with their new teenage friends. "ASSE exchange students learn by living the language and culture of their new host country," added Joski-Lang.

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs were founded by the Swedish National Dept. of Education and cooperates with the Canadian Provincial Ministries of Education and the New Zealand Ministry of Education.

ASSE also provide international opportunities for American families to host students from Europe, the Republics of the former Soviet Union, South America, Asia, Canada, Mexico, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. These select students are 15 to 18 years old and will attend the local high school for a semester or an academic year.

Students and family's interested in receiving more information about the ASSE programs should call 1-800-736-1760 or visit ASSE's website at www.asse.com.

Ask for a specific answer to the when question, and get insistent about how it can be accomplished part. More state dollars to local government, including schools? Reduction in the cost of state and/or federal mandates? An increase in some other tax or taxes?

Nebraska's unique Unicameral has often been referred to as the "officially nonpartisan, Republican Legislature."

Legislators are elected on a non-partisan ballot, although registered Republicans always outnumber Democrats. The breakdown for 2007:

Republicans, 30; Democrats 14; Independents 3.

Blue Devil teams improve this fall

The Wayne JV and freshmen football teams recently wrapped up their fall seasons.

The JV squad finished 3-3 on the campaign, while the freshmen went 2-3.

After dropping the first three games of the season to Pierce, Norfolk Catholic and Hartington Cedar Catholic, the JV squad rattled off three wins over Schuyler, West Point-Beemer and Laurel-Concord to close out the season.

"Starting with the Schuyler game, the linemen starting dominating the trenches, running backs were hitting the gaps hard and our junior quarterback Shawn Kardell started gaining some confidence in himself and his wide receivers," Wayne coach Ben Wiehn said.

The freshmen team got to taste victory for the first time as the squad hadn't posted a victory as a junior high squad in previous years.

Wayne downed Battle Creek on Sept. 28 and added another win in the 21-10 season finale victory over O'Neill on Oct. 12. The team dropped contests to Cedar Catholic, Pierce and Columbus Lakeview.

Junior high concludes football season

The Wayne Middle School football teams recently concluded their respective seasons and presented post-season honors.

The eighth grade squad finished 2-2 on the campaign, while the seventh grade went 0-4.

Results for the eighth grade squad included a 24-0 loss to Norfolk Catholic (Sept. 12), a 37-0 shutout to Schuyler (Sept. 28) a 20-12 victory against Pierce (Oct. 3) and a 36-0 blanking of Hartington Cedar Catholic (Oct. 12).

"We look forward to watching this team compete through the next four years of their high school careers," Wayne coach Lonnie Ehrhardt said about his eighth grade squad.

The seventh grade team played four close contests this fall, but unfortunately came up short in all four outings.

The squad lost to Norfolk Catholic 8-6 (Sept. 12), fell to Schuyler 14-6 (Sept. 28), lost to Pierce 40-20 (Oct. 3) and were downed by Cedar Catholic 14-8 (Oct. 12).

"The team gave a very good effort overall," Coach Ehrhardt said. "The prospects look good as we look forward to next year."

Post-season awards were presented to the team last week and were led by Dominic Reinke who was presented with the annual Dennis Otte Most Improved Player award.

Other honors presented for the season included most valuable player recognition to Zach Thomsen (eighth grade) and Luke Trenhaile (seventh grade).

Most improved player awards were presented to Chris Rogers (seventh grade) and Joel Allemann (eighth grade).

The University of Nebraska Medical Center and co-sponsors in 20 communities across Nebraska invite the public to participate in the UNMC Mini-Medical School, a free health educational forum titled, "Stem Cells: The Promise of 21st Century Research."

The forum will be held on Nov. 28 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. (central time). It will be broadcast live from the UNMC Durham Research Center Auditorium in Omaha via satellite to: Atkinson, Broken Bow, Chadron, Columbus, Grand Island, Harrison, Hastings, Holdrege, Kearney, Lincoln, Lynch, Norfolk, North Platte, Osmond, Red Cloud, Rushville, Scottsbluff, Sidney, Valentine and Wayne. It will also be available at Clarkson West Medical Center, 144th & Center, Suite 200, Omaha.

Anyone with the satellite downlink capability can tune in to the system on Nebraska Satellite System 2, Channel 102.

UNMC's experts in stem cell research will outline the history behind the research and explain the difference between embryonic and adult stem cells, their function and potential.

Presenters will be Thomas Rosenquist, Ph.D., UNMC vice chancellor for research and professor of genetics, cell biology and anatomy, who will give an overview of stem cells titled, "A Primer," and David Crouse, Ph.D., UNMC associate vice chancellor for academic affairs and professor of genetics, cell biology and anatomy, whose talk is titled, "Separating Fact from Fiction."

The final presentation for the evening will be a panel discussion titled, "Your Questions Answered," and will be moderated by Dr. Rosenquist.

There are two major sources of stem cells: embryonic stem cells and adult stem cells.

"There's enormous hope that embryonic stem cells can be used in the future to treat terrible diseases such as emphysema, spinal cord injuries, heart disease, diabetes, liver and kidney disease, Parkinson's disease and several other neurodegenerative diseases," Dr. Crouse said. "Studies in animal models have shown pretty remarkable properties for embryonic stem cells in terms of potential therapeutic use," said Dr. Crouse.

"We're very early in the process of understanding these cells and knowing how they may be used most effectively. There may also be new potential therapeutic uses for adult stem cells. There is still much to learn," he said.

The source of embryonic stem cells, which were first isolated in 1998, is human eggs that have been fertilized in a laboratory for in vitro reproductive procedures. Unused embryos often are discarded, or donated for research with informed consent. Embryonic stem cells, in the pre-implantation embryos, are the foundation for cells for organs and tissues, Dr. Crouse said. They program themselves and can develop to perform any number of specialized tasks, and because of this may have potential therapeutic value.

Adult stem cells are found in tissues that have already developed. The primary roles of adult stem cells in a living organism are to maintain and repair the tissue in which they are found. Blood stem cells now are routinely used as replacements for bone marrow and stem cell transplants to successfully treat such cancers as leukemia and lymphoma. Scientists have worked with adult stem cells for the past 40 years to achieve this level of understanding and application, Dr. Crouse said.

Construct sand volleyball pit

Students proudly show off the sand volleyball pit that they and other members of the NCTA Horticulture Club constructed this month. The site is an old parking lot between the two residence halls which has been mostly an eyesore. The club will also add a horse shoe pit in the newly sodded area on one end of the court. Trees, shrubs and perennials will be planted on a mound created from the excavated soil. The students not only learned hands on how to prepare and construct the court, they learned to install underground irrigation to the new grass area, machinery skills with various pieces of equipment used during the project, and turf grass installation and handling. It is anticipated that this addition to the campus will fill many hours of wholesome leisure time for present and future students. Present, left to right, Nolan Troupe of Guernsey, Wyo., Tom Hagmann of Wayne, Tim Aden of Sutherland, Jonathan Graham of Lander, Wyo., Kendra Pierce of Oconto, Matt Wiest of Moorefield and Coleman Outhet of Deshler.

Community encouraged to learn the latest information on diabetes

Yes, we have come a long way since we first began working in the field of diabetes education. We now know that the complications associated with diabetes can be prevented or delayed. Our growing knowledge of various foods and their effect on blood sugar levels enables people with diabetes to eat food they like, choose when and how much to eat and still control blood sugar levels.

It is the best time in history to have diabetes, especially in light of the difficulties our parents and grandparents would have encountered had they been diagnosed decades ago. Today people with diabetes can choose from a wide variety of non-nutritive sweeteners and can even figure out how to fit sugar-containing foods into their meal plan. With carbohydrate information now readily available for most foods, diabetics can easily learn to count carbohydrates at each meal. This allows diabetics to fit virtually any food into a meal plan.

Fitting diabetes into a person's life style is the key message today. Diabetes does not have to dictate how a person lives.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension invites you and your family members to participate in a new and exciting diabetes education program. The program is being offered via satellite and telephone. Participants will learn about current issues related to diabetes from educators with over 18 years of team-teaching experience with the in-depth Living with Diabetes series.

The Wednesday, Nov. 29 "Control Diabetes for Life" topics that will be addressed during the two-hour program include Eating Out/Managing Holiday Celebrations; Keys to Preventing Night Time Lows; Holiday Stress Stoppers; Steps to Holiday Fitness; Adapting Holiday Favorites and other helpful hints.

Participants will sample a new recipe for a diabetic appropriate food. Team-teaching the program will be Phyllis Heimann, R.N. & Certified Diabetic Educator; Stacie Petersen, R.N. & Certified Diabetic Educator; Mary Clare Stalp, R.D., of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra E. Schroeder, Extension Educator in Cuming County.

The program will be offered on Nov. 29, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, 117 W Third Street in Wayne.

"Control Diabetes for Life" is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension, Franciscan Care Services of West Point and the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department. The program is offered free-of-charge. "Control Diabetes for Life" will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease.

Participants are asked to pre-register for "Control Your Diabetes for Life" by calling (402) 375-3310.

Register by Monday, Nov. 27, so the proper number of handouts may be prepared. Nebraska School Food Service Association has approved this session for two hours of continuing education credits for food service staff for attending.

Governor Heineman recognizes first-ever Nebraska Joint Admissions Program

Gov. Dave Heineman formally recognized the first-ever Nebraska Joint Admissions Program recently. During a press conference, the Governor encouraged all prospective students to visit Wayne State, Chadron and Peru Colleges and to take advantage of the flexible and seamless joint admissions program.

The Nebraska Joint Admissions Program was created by the member institutions in the Nebraska State College System: Chadron, Peru and Wayne State Colleges and the six Nebraska Community Colleges: Northeast, Central, Metro, Mid-Plains, Southeast and Western Nebraska Community Colleges. The program promotes seamless access and transfer opportunities for students attending all nine colleges.

NSCS Chancellor Stan Carpenter said the overall goal of this new program is to allow students to earn their degrees in a flexible, timely manner by taking courses from any Nebraska State College or Community College jointly. A student who is accepted at a Nebraska Community College or a member institution of the Nebraska State College System is also accepted at all the other colleges involved in this agreement. There won't be an additional application fee. It's a win-win proposition for the students, the colleges and the state.

The nine colleges spent more than a year working on questions related to the agreement. These included financial aid questions. A student needs to declare a host college where the majority of courses are taken. Another question was about acceptance into a specific program. Since some programs may have a waiting list, students in this joint admissions program would need to meet the same qualifications as other students and would be put on a waiting list if necessary for a program.

Community College Association Executive Director Dennis Baack noted they simply want to make access to higher education as easy and hassle-free as possible for students. This joint program makes transferring seamless and is just one more example of the many partnerships with Wayne State, Chadron and Peru Colleges.

Helping package the cookies were Jim Atkins, Sandy Atkins, Bud Neel and Don Story.

Area works together in Support Our Troops Cookie Project

Recently, the Wayne Veterans Organizations received several addresses of troops from Wayne County serving in the War on Terror. Some of the addresses were of troops stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan. Some of the addresses were of service personnel from Wayne County serving statewide. It was brought up at the Vet's meeting about doing something for all the troops from Wayne County with Veteran's Day coming soon. The vote was to support them with a shipment of cookies after attempting to acquire any other addresses of troops they did not have.

After newspaper articles, radio announcements and verbal responses, names were received of 18 service personnel serving state-side and eight in Iraq and Afghanistan, all from the Wayne County area. The COOKIE PROJECT-SUPPORT OUR TROOPS was underway.

The Winside High School donated use of the kitchen and head cook, Carolyn Backstrom. A date was set to mix and bake the cookies on Oct. 20, as school was dismissed that day. Plans were to make 1,200 cookies and ingredients were needed. Donations were solicited through citizens and businesses. Rose Janke of Winside volunteered to assist in gathering volunteers and ingredients.

Donations by businesses included: Pac-N-Save: sugar; Quality Foods: sugar, baking soda, oatmeal, oil and salt; Winside High School: kitchen and miscellaneous ingredients; Winside Methodist Church: cash and volunteers; Winside Trinity Church: cash and volunteers; Thies Locker: use of freezer.

Donations by families: Mr. and Mrs. Den Dannelly: oatmeal, vanilla, powdered sugar, oil, shortening; Jessica Olsen: brown sugar; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Nieman: eggs; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Beiermann: brown sugar; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Magnuson: brown sugar and flour; Mr. and Mrs. Tim Hansen: raisins, brown sugar, chocolate chips; Bev Neel: ziplock bags, chocolate chips; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Junck: cookies. Monetary donations: Mr. and Mrs. Bob Berns, Mr. and Mrs. John Rebensdorf, Dee Falleon, Bonnie Frevert, Evelyn Jaeger, Rose Janke, Joyce Reeg, Mr. and Mrs. John Haase.

Bakers included: Rose Janke, Greta Grubbs, Lori Finn, Adeline Anderson, BJ Cushing, Amanda Backstrom, Laura Neel, Bud Neel. Five batches were mixed (chocolate chip, peanut butter, oatmeal, raisin, oatmeal butterscotch and sugar) and a total of 1,552 cookies (129.33 dozen, minus the samples that were taste tested) were baked in three hours. Clean up was done while some of the helpers packed the cooled cookies in bags. After the cookies were packed, they were taken to Thies Locker freezer for storage until shipment on Nov. 3.

On Nov. 3, Rose Janke, Bud Neel, Bev Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Atkins and Don Story met at the Winside Legion Hall to pack the cookies in boxes for shipment. In all, 24 boxes were packed with at least five dozen cookies for each box for troops from Wayne County.

Thank-you is extended to everyone who donated or volunteered with this project to honor our service personnel on Veteran's Day. An apology is also extended if anyone wanted to help with the project and were not contacted.

The Wayne Veteran's Organization has been mailing packages weekly to our troops since March, 2004. Packages are still being mailed to seven troops stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan on a weekly basis and help would be appreciated in keeping this project going. It is news worthy to find there are 24 service personnel from Wayne County serving their country. Maybe some of them are your neighbors. If you can help, please contact Bud Neel at 402-529-3593.

Festival of Culture hosted Nov. 14

The International Club of Wayne State College celebrated "International Education Week" with an International Festival of Cultures on Nov. 14 in the Student Center atrium. Eliza Bachman of Lincoln (left) is served a dish of cultural food samples by Noorie Kiyeyu of Tanzania and Ron Vick Sr. of Wayne. The event was an opportunity to meet some of WSC's international students and learn about their cultures. Cultural music, information and food samples were included. For more information, please call Ron Vick, Sr. at 375-7321.

NSP receives donation of rescue phone kit

On Nov. 1, Corporate Partner Affiliated Foods Midwest, presented the Nebraska State Patrol Troop B Headquarters in Norfolk with a newly purchased Hostage Negotiator Rescue Phone Kit. The $5,600 phone kit was presented to Nebraska State Patrol Supt. Col. Bryan Tuma during a news conference at the Norfolk Headquarters of Affiliated Foods Midwest.

"I'd like to thank Affiliated Foods Midwest for its generous donation," said Col. Bryan Tuma, Superintendent of the Nebraska

State Patrol. "The management and employees of Affiliated Foods are long standing supporters of law enforcement in northeast Nebraska and we are grateful for everything they have done."

"Northeast Nebraska has always been a great place to live and raise a family," said Tim Becker, Inventory Control Manager, Affiliated Foods Midwest. "To keep our communities vibrant, healthy, and safe we need to make sure the officers from law enforcement agencies across a 23 county area have the latest communications system to stay in touch."

The Hostage Negotiator Rescue Phone Kit replaces a nearly 25-year-old phone kit currently being used by the agency's Troop B Special Weapons And Tactics (SWAT) team. The new phone encompasses the latest in technology and is much more user friendly. The equipment consists of a console, negotiator headsets, command speaker, tape recorder, 2 phones, zipper pouch, hard shell throw case, 1000 feet of cord and spool, plus 50 feet of armored cable. The phone is primarily used by negotiators during SWAT calls involving barricaded suspects.

Tim Becker said, "Affiliated Foods Midwest takes great pride in being a community leader that is not afraid to get involved. It is the responsibility of every community, business and individual to do their part in keeping our state a great place to live."

Col. Tuma added, "It is through public-private partnerships like the one between the Nebraska State Patrol and Affiliated Foods that we are able to continue to provide the best service possible to the citizens of our great state."

Bullying discussed

As part of Red Ribbon Week at the Wayne Middle School, Mrs. Schardt's seventh grade FACS class discussed bullying. Students watched the video, "Stop the Violence" and then participated in various activities and role plays. Students practiced how to handle a bully, but more importantly, they worked to build community in their classroom. The conclusion of the unit was a play presentation, "Jed and the Kid." Puppet performers were Katelyn Matthes as the Mentor; Nick Monahan as Jed and Kristin Carroll as the Kid.

Area consumers targeted in advance fee loan schemes

A woman in Logan, Iowa paid $1,500 in advance for a $10,000 loan from a firm she thought was in South Dakota. She did not get the loan - and her $1,500 is history.

She has been the victim of an "advance fee loan scheme" perpetrated, not by a South Dakota company, but a Canadian based operation that stole the identity of a South Dakota firm to make their deal seem local and legitimate.

She received no loan and cannot find a trace of the company that contacted her by phone to wire the $1,500 to them in Canada to cover the insurance they said she had to pay in advance of receiving the loan deal she found on the Internet.

The information she had on the location of the company has left a murky Internet and phone number trail, with no established Canadian business address. The BBB is working with enforcement authorities in Canada who have reports of many victims, but with little hope of finding the scam artists and her $1,500.

Consumers, throughout the regional BBB service area of Nebraska, South Dakota and Southwest Iowa, have reported being targeted by this scam for loans which is initiated on the Internet and in classified print ads. All of the victims have agreed to take the loans by phone.

Jim Hegarty, BBB president said, "Reports of advance fee loan scams are increasing in this region. The names of these companies change daily. The best protection is to know how the scam is conducted.

Here, in the words of the Logan Iowa victim is how the advance fee loan deal went down:

"I called this company about a loan they had advertised on the Internet. I told them that I would take the loan and would send $1,000 for the insurance they needed me to have in order to get the loan. After I had sent the money by Money Gram, like they requested, I was informed that they would wire the funds to my bank account within the hour, but it could take up to 24 hours.

The next day I had still not received my funds and again I was told that the money would be there by the end of the day. Day three came and went and still I had received no money. After waiting over the weekend, I called the company again. I was informed that the insurance company would not release the funds without another $500."

The Logan, Iowa victim added that she wired another $500 through a Money Gram and was informed again that she would have the funds in an hour. By the end of the day, still no money! She was then told that a check had been sent out on Saturday. It has now been over a week, with no sight of the money that was guaranteed her.

Jim Hegarty said, "Consumers are blinded by the convincing promises of the loan and they do not see the sting coming. One single point of information is the ounce of prevention needed - No legitimate lender will ever ask you to pay a fee in advance to obtain a loan. If someone does, just say no - and contact the BBB at 402-391-7612, 1-800-649-6814, or at www.bbbnebraksa.org."

Teaching safety

Wayne Chief of Police Lance Webster traveled to Head Start recently to talk about safety around cars, stranger danger and wearing reflectors when going trick-or-treating or anytime.

Wakefield vets present arms and bury time capsule

The 11th day the 11th hour the 11th month was very special at the Graves Library Museum Saturday. The American Legion Post 81 and Veterans of Foreign Wars met at the museum at 11 a.m. and "Presented Arms". An outstanding gun salute by the Veterans was given. One of the Veterans, Ray Paulsen is 98 years old and stood tall and proud with the others.

During the Q125 Celebration on July 4th, the time capsule was removed from the brick stand it had been in for 25 years.

Saturday morning on Nov. 11, the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 81 buried the capsule again to be opened in 2031. Ryan and Rhonda Lorenzen purchased the two plastic boxes and sealed them with the seal that came with the containers. The purpose was to be sure no moisture would get into the items for the next 25 years.

Over 31 items were put in two plastic boxes from CD's to photographs in acid free scrapbooks. They were placed in "seal a meal" plastic container bags. Coins, programs from events from Wakefield sports, school handbook and many many other items. We hope that their families will be present when the capsule is opened again in 2031. A group of about 30 people came to watch this event. Coffee and fresh hot rolls were served. All of the Veterans toured the museum and looked at the display of Russ Marshall Wrench Collection in the basement. The museum recently put up a sign at their museum and appreciates visitors anytime to come to visit.

The October Character Students of the month at Wayne Elementary School display the certificates they were presented at the recent assembly.

Character Shines at Wayne Elementary School

A new program at Wayne Elementary School recognizes students for "letting their good character shine."

Students who are noticed exhibiting a good character trait by using good manners, being honest, sharing, being responsible, etc. can be awarded a laminated paper lighthouse, with the student's name and what they did, by any teacher or staff person in the building. The student is given a penny and brings the penny and the lighthouse to the office. The lighthouse is placed in a "Character Shines" bucket and the student places the penny in a four foot high lighthouse bank, which lights up and makes foghorn noises when a penny is deposited.

The "Character Shines" word for October and November is Citizenship. One of the citizenship activities was a discussion in each home room about the Wayne United Way agencies and what they do for people in the community.

The students then voted on Election Day for one agency which will receive the money from the lighthouse bank at the end of the year. The Wayne Red Cross received the highest number of votes.

Wayne Elementary School would appreciate donations of rolls of pennies from businesses, civic groups and individuals, for the Character Shines Lighthouse program. It is the intent of this program that the students be able to make a connection between their individual acts of good character and the larger mission of participating in the community and helping those in need.

The Character Shines assembly for October celebrated Red Ribbon Week with a Pep Rally led by members of the Wayne Middle School Drug Free Youth Group. October

Colton Spahr stands beside the lighthouse where pennies are deposited for outstanding deeds.

50th anniversary noted for WSC Conn Library

Conn Library on the Wayne State College campus is celebrating a golden anniversary this fall. In observance of the 50th anniversary, activities, including prize giveaways, are ongoing at the library. Also, the Chamber Coffee was hosted by the library on Friday.

The first permanent library on campus was constructed in 1912 under the direction of President U.S. Conn. The building was so well constructed that it has survived and is now the home of the Humanities Division, still complete with the carving over the door, "Library and Science." The library occupied the first floor with classrooms and laboratories utilizing the rest of the building. As the college grew, additional space was needed and planning for a new library began in the early 1950s.

The present Conn Library was constructed on the site of what had been the president's house. Plans had been finalized in 1954 and the president at that time, Dr. John Rice and his wife, vacated the house and it was demolished. Conn Library was finished in 1956 and was named in honor of U.S. Conn, president from 1910-1935.

Library needs outgrew the building and an addition was constructed and ready to open in the fall of 1970.

A list of Wayne State College Head Librarians and Library Directors follows: Anna B. Bright: 1912-1917, Jesse Jenks: 1917-1925, Nellie E. Behm: 1925-1931, Josephine Silvers: 1931-1934; 1937-1939, Mildred Snyder: (Interim?) 1934-1937, Lois Crouch: 1939-1961, Yale Kessler: 1961-1970, Beulah G. Neprud:

1970-1972, Charles W. Stelling: 1972-1978, Jack L. Middendorf: 1978-1994, Maureen Battistella: 1994-1995, Jan Brumm (Interim): 1995-1996, Stanley Gardner: 1996-2006, David Graber (Interim): 2006-present.

In the fall of 2002, the library acquired 30 laptop computers to be checked out and used in the library by students. Since then, 60 more laptops have been added.

In January 2006, a permanent coffee shop/convenience store opened in the library. Sponsored by Chartwells Food Services, the "Jitters at the Library" shop is located in the middle of the main floor of the library and caters to students, faculty members and college staff with Starbucks Brand coffee, sandwiches, salads, smoothies and all kinds of treats.

A number of changes have taken place to bring the library to what it is today.

Local farmers to be featured in The History Channel's Modern Marvels

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

A crew from Actuality Productions in Woodland Hills, Calif. was in the area this fall to film corn harvesting for The History Channel's Modern Marvels, which is scheduled for Wednesday evening, Nov. 29. It is listed to run at 9 p.m. that night on Jensen of Wakefield demonstrating corn harvesting during the '50s using his John Deere No. 237 corn picker and 1950s and '60s vintage tractors, wagons, elevator and wire crib. Plus, Ron Lange of Hoskins demonstrating early 20th century harvesting with his horse drawn corn binder.

Included in the segment will be Ted Martin of Arlington on hand-

Hobby noted the new John Deere combines can be equipped with "Harvest Smart" with feed rate control, keeping the machine full at all times. Capabilities of the combines include harvesting 4,000 or so bushels an hour (60-70 pounds of clean, unbroken kernels each second), moving at 5-6 miles an hour taking in 12 rows at a time. If a farmer works 10-14 hour days,

The camera man walks along with Ron Lange as he guides his horses while binding corn recently on his farm by Hoskins.

The History Channel website but check your local listings for the exact time.

Three local farmers filmed were John Sandahl of Wakefield with his modern equipment including a 9860 STS John Deere combine that has auto steering and GPS (Global Positioning System Mapping) and a new tractor with the same technology. Other modern equipment Sandahl has includes large grain carts that run on tracks, semis and a grain bin set-up.

Also featured were Randy

Jensen of Wakefield held corn harvesting using hand tools and a horse and wagon and Dean Henke of Columbus, providing color commentary on the history of corn harvesting. The Nebraska Historical Society will provide black and white photographs of corn harvesting from before 1950.

Mitch Hobby, a representative from the John Deere Harvester Works factory in Illinois, was filmed at Sandahl's farm giving the latest updates on John Deere equipment.

40,000 to 50,000 bushels of grain can be harvested per day.

The newest J.D. GreenStar component, Star Fire GPS, helps guide the combine. (Tractors can also be equipped with GPS which can link up with equipment, such as a planter to guide it).

Farmers have to be multi-tasking, watching outside and inside the cab. Inside, there are several monitors to watch. One monitor reads moisture content. The GreenStar system maps yields to see how fields are doing and if possible changes are needed.

Sandahl's combine with a 1293 cornhead are the largest that John Deere offers. This combine can hold 300 bushels at a time. Sandahl farms over 10,000 acres and has five employees working for him. They usually start harvesting around Sept. 21, 19 hours a day, seven days a week and if the weather allows, finish around the first week of December. Sandahl started farming in 1975.

Jensen started farming in 1980. For filming, he used a 1973 J.D. 237 corn picker mounted on a J.D. 3010 tractor. He last used that tractor and picker in 1992 and it has been in storage since then. The corn picker is driven down two rows of corn at a time. A farmer could harvest approximately 15 acres of corn a day using this equipment. Most farmers in the 1950s would have farmed around 160 to 200 acres of land. Corn that was harvested with this set-up was ground and used for cattle feed.

Jensen stored his corn in a wooden corn crib on their place until 2001, when it was torn down.

He still picks corn in the ear but with a John Deere 300 Husker pull-type corn picker and grinds the corn for cattle feed. He uses a J.D. 350 elevator and stores the ear corn in round wire corn cribs. Jensen anticipates his corn will yield 125 bushels per acre this year. The corn picked in the ear is testing around 18 percent moisture. Jensen notes that in the '50s, farmers tested the moisture of corn by dropping the ears into a cow tank and if the ears floated, it was dry enough to harvest. The corn and soybeans he combines are stored in aeration bins.

Lange started farming in 1950. He bought his International corn binder several years ago from a dealer. Binders were sold during the 1930s and were used to bind corn and other grain into bundles. Back then, a farmer could bind eight to 10 acres a day if the going was good. An average farm then was around 160 acres.

Lange raises, breaks and sells Belgian horses over the Internet around the United States and overseas. His website is www.ronlangesbelgians.com. He uses his binder to cut a few patches for feed for his horses. Lange is retired and lives on a 40 acre farm on which he raises hay and pasture.

Corn harvesting has evolved through the years from hand picking to electronic and global positioning systems which allow better efficiency and greater yields.

For the Nov. 29 segment of Modern Marvels, the production crew traveled across the U.S. filming fruit packing in California, harvesting corn in Nebraska and harvesting cranberries in the marshes of central Wisconsin. Be sure to tune in to see harvesting that's different from what's done in Nebraska and see harvesting and a few faces that are familiar.

Randy Jensen of Wakefield explains the process of harvesting corn with a picker to the film crew for the Nov. 29 segment of Modern Marvels.

Design class completes project

Did you know that 10 percent of the jobs in the world involve the fashion industry?

Wayne High School offers Fashion Apparel and Design as a semester course offering. This class helps students see the various career options in the fashion and textile industries.

In addition to class studies in fashion history, marketing, fashion designers, textiles, clothing selection and design elements and principles, students do a wide variety of research and design projects.

A recent project involved students selecting a famous fashion designer to research. They were required to do a written report on the designer. Next, they made an authentic re-creation of the designer's fashion to fit a doll.

Other projects have been creating weaves, identifying color schemes, historical designs to fit a paper doll and their own personal fashion portfolio.

"The fashion portfolio is a semester long project. We keep coming back to it as the students gain knowledge in the use of color, line texture and shape when selecting apparel. The students will have a portfolio that includes all the styles of garments, along with the colors, lines and shapes that best complement their personal skin, hair and eye color, along with their body build," said Karen Schardt, instructor of the class.

Dr. Tammy Evetovich of Wayne State College demonstrates equipment in the WSC Human Performance Lab with students from Wayne and Laurel during the American Physiological Society PhUn (Physiology Understanding) Week open house on Nov. 10 on campus.

Students explore WSC for Physiology Understanding Week

The Departments of Health, Human Performance and Sport and Life Sciences at Wayne State College hosted American Physiological Society PhUn (Physiology Understanding) Week, Nov. 6-10, with an open house on Nov. 10 for select 7-12th grade Wayne and Laurel science teachers and students.

The theme this year was the Physiology of Exercise. The PhUn Week program was developed by research physiologists and science teachers to engage K-12 students in concepts of physiology as well as introduce them to potential career opportunities.

The PhUn Week Explore Physiology Open House at Wayne State College included lunch and a brief presentation followed by tours and demonstrations of WSC Human Performance and Molecular Genetics laboratories.

Dr. Kevin Hill, dean of the School of Natural and Social Sciences, and Dr. Barbara Engebretsen, associate professor and organizer, addressed students.

Other presentations included: Dr. Tammy Evetovich - Physiology of Muscle Fatigue and Biofeedback - Electromyography, Dr. Donovan Conley - Indirect Calorimetry - Using the Metabolic Cart to Analyze Ventilation, VO2 and VCO2 Responses to Exercise, Dr. Shawn Peary - Molecular Tools for Physiologists: Cell Culture, Protein, RNA and DNA following a tour of the Carhart Science Molecular Biology and Genetics Lab.

Turkey grilling tips are offered

Engagements

Think about choosing turkey as an ideal grilling food. Outdoor cooking of turkey is a popular cooking method. From ground turkey burgers and turkey franks, turkey tenderloins, and other cuts for the grill, turkey provides you with a wide range of tasty, healthy, and convenient meal solutions.

Keep food safety in mind before preparing any turkey, and remember to wash hands thoroughly, with soap and hot water, then rinse before beginning any food preparation. Hands should be washed again, and rinsed along with all utensils, equipment, and countertops that have been in contact with any raw food (especially raw turkey) before preparing foods. It's 20 seconds of prevention that can eliminate 90 percent of foodborne illness.

During grilling, the turkey cooks by indirect heat in an outdoor covered gas or charcoal grill. A pan of water is placed beneath the grilling surface to catch the dripping turkey juices. Cooking is done by hot, smoky, steamy air.

Turkey breasts, drumsticks, wings, and whole turkeys are all long for the temperature of the stuffing to reach the required temperature of 165°F. Also, smoked stuffing has an undesirable flavor.

Grilling time depends on many factors, including the size and shape of the turkey, the distance from the heat, temperature of the coals, and the outside air temperature. Estimate 15 to 18 minutes per pound if using a covered grill. Always use a food thermometer. The turkey is done when the food thermometer, placed in the inner thigh, reaches 180°F.

Gas Grilling

Always start with a clean grill rack, bottom tray and catch pan. Gas grills must be preheated. All preheating and cooking should be done with the lid in the closed position. When preheating, turn the burners to high and close the lid. Preheating usually takes 10 to 15 minutes and the grill temperature should be about 500°F. The temperature is then lowered for most grilling.

Direct Method

The direct method of grilling is used for searing foods. To sear foods, place the food on the preheated cooking grates directly above the hot flame. Most grilling is completed by the indirect method at a lower temperature.

Indirect Method

The indirect method of grilling is achieved by turning off the burners directly beneath the food, while the burners on either side of the food are turned to the same heat setting (medium to low). The circulating heat cooks the food.

When grilling a whole turkey or turkey breast, use a disposal drip pan to catch the drippings.

Charcoal Grilling

Begin with clean equipment and good quality charcoal. Be sure all vents are open. Build a pyramid of charcoal. As a guideline, for a 22-inch diameter grill, ignite about 50 charcoal briquettes. Allow the coals to glow red hot. Place an appliance thermometer on the food rack to monitor the inside grill air temperature. Allow the charcoal to develop a light coating of gray ash, about 25 to 30 minutes, with the temperature reaching 350°F (medium heat) before distributing the coals.

To enhance the flavors, add chunks or chips of water-soaked hardwood or fruitwood. Do not use softwood (pine fir, cedar, or spruce) as it gives the food a turpentine flavor.

If an outdoor grill is not available, consider using a stove top grill for grilling different cuts of turkey.

Volunteers from throughout the community helped organize a successful Super Concert on Halloween Night. Above, the group of approximately 30 pose following the highly successful event.

Super Concert features SuperChick

Halloween night offered up more than just the usual bag of tricks and treats for a number of area residents.

The trick was pulling off a huge Christian concert with four bands at the Johnny Carson Theater in Norfolk. The treat was hearing the rocking sounds of opening act Last Tuesday followed by the wild antics of Rapper John Rueben. But the treats did not stop there, Sanctus Real followed with their edgy rock sound and SuperChick finished the night off with some of their Christian ballads.

"The music was loud, the artists were at the top of their game and the signing session after the concert enabled fans to meet up close and personal with their favorite bands. Originally, this concert was a way to outreach into the communities of northeast Nebraska, to let them know that Campus Ministry is alive and well at Wayne State College. Then to get bands of this caliber, WOW, it is just such a gift" said Julia Shear, Campus Minister at Wayne State College.

"We had so many parents show up with their kids, and several adults who came alone without kids! It was a great opportunity to hear uplifting words of praise and worship with a definite Rockin sound!" Shear said.

Area businesses pitched in and provided sponsorships and over 30 volunteers helped run everything from ticket sales to merchandise sales. Members of the Christian Motorcycle Association, several Wayne State College students and the "7" Praise and Worship team from Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne were on hand to help things run smoothly.

"It was one of those times when you could feel the Holy Spirit at work. It was a very grace-filled night, people stepped up, even at the last minute, and working with these incredibly talented artists was a lesson in living a graceful existence," Shear said.

Proceeds from the concert benefited Campus Ministry at Wayne State College. Campus Ministry is located behind the Student Center in the Welcome House and Chapel.

For more information on ministry events call 375-1234.

The group SuperChick was among those performing on Halloween at the Johnny Carson Theater in Norfolk.

Plans underway for annual Thanksgiving dinner

Thanksgiving is a time to give thanks, share in fellowship and friendship and enjoy the bounty of a fall harvest in the form of a turkey dinner and all its trimmings.

Holidays are more joyful when they are spent in the company of others.

Representatives from six local churches and many volunteers are working together to plan, prepare and serve this meal.

Anyone who wants fellowship, friendship or good food is asked to plan to share in a community-wide Thanksgiving Feast. There will be no charge for this meal - it is a gift to those who come from those who participate in the preparation, serving and enjoyment of this meal.

Organizers have indicated that now is the time to make plans to attend.

"We will be delighted to share in your company at noon on Thanksgiving Day at Our Savior Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall, Fifth and Main Streets in Wayne."

Reservations may be made by calling (402) 375-2899 by Friday, Nov. 17. Transportation will be provided for those who need a ride.

The group operates under this premise: "If a person comes, they have a need. We really don't care what the need happens to be. Some have a need to serve others; some have a need for food and others have a need for fellowship; some want to have fun.

Right at Home

Design and Decorating Inspiration

a growing tradition...

The family Christmas tree is a holiday tradition that brings back great memories for all of us. Finding just the right tree... getting out the boxes of decorations... and checking it daily to see if the number of presents had grown. This tree became the focal point of the home during the holidays. A wonderful tradition that should continue to be a part of every family.

Over the past few years the size, shape and quality of artificial trees has grown and provides us with the opportunity for many new decorating options and the ability to expand this timeless tradition.

Narrow and tall Alpine style trees can be added to several areas of the home. They take up little floor space and make a great addition to entry ways or maybe at the end of the hallway. You could put 2 or 3 different heights behind the couch to create your own indoor forest. These additional trees also give you more places to hang those ornaments that just won't all fit on one tree.

How about giving a child their own tree for their room. Use the shorter 2-3' trees and decorate with a theme to fit the child... from Barbie to Legos. Or let them make their own ornaments on those "home from school, nothing to do days".

These personal trees can even follow a child to college or to their first apartment. You can even package these smaller trees up and send them off to children or family who are away now. Include a few ornaments off the family tree to bring home a little closer during the holidays.

Don't forget the elderly family members. These small trees might be just the right size for where they are living now. Add several photo ornaments of your family. Or with a little research you can literally create a family tree with photos of past generations.

Our showroom is "dressed for the holidays"... full of beautifully decorated trees, wreaths and more. Stop and browse... you'll find great ideas and products to spark your holiday imagination.

Thanksgiving service scheduled

The Wayne Association of Congregations and Ministers (WACAM) is sponsoring the annual Community Thanksgiving Service on Sunday, Nov. 19.

The service begins at 5 p.m. at Journey Christian Church at 1110 East Seventh Street.

Those attending will be led in worship by a praise team consisting of members of Journey Christian Church and Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church. Pastor Kim Stover, new minister at Our Savior Lutheran Church, will be giving the message.

A soup and pie supper will follow the service.

The public is invited to attend.

Randy Fler to present recital

Randy Fler will be presenting an organ and piano recital at Our Savior Lutheran Church on Friday, Nov. 24. It will begin at 2 p.m.

It will feature classical and contemporary works and is an early Christmas present for Fler's grandparents, Alyce and Al Konold of South Sioux City.

Everyone is invited to attend the performance. Refreshments will be served following the recital.

Randy is the son of Harold and Sharon Fler of Wayne. He graduated from Wayne High School in 1980 and is a former member of Our Savior Lutheran Church (St. Paul's), where he first learned to play the organ.

He now lives in Chicago, Ill. and is the organist and Praise Director at North Shore Baptist Church.

Piano students attend festival

Three piano students of Mrs. Marcile Uken of Wayne, took part in the Nebraska Music Teachers' State Festival held at Hastings College in Hastings on Oct. 29.

Students taking part in the festival were Ben Bruflat, son of Alan and Madge Bruflat, Sawyer Jäger, son of Huck and Chris Jäger and Elisabeth Torres, daughter of Sam and Holly Torres.

Students are required to play two memorized pieces from different periods of music, play scales and take a written and aural theory test.

Elisabeth Torres played in Division 1A and received a rating of I.

Sawyer Jäger played in Division 2A and received a rating of I.

Ben Bruflat played in Division 2B and received a rating of I.

These were ratings for memorized solos from two different eras of music and scales.

All three were awarded trophies for their superior ratings.

All students passed their written and aural theory test. Ben Bruflat was awarded a special recognition certificate for an outstanding theory score.

The following is an explanation of ratings:

I - rating indicates an outstanding performance in nearly every detail.

II - rating indicates a few minor technical defects.

III - rating indicates a performance with technical and musical defects.

IV - rating indicates a lack of preparation of the musical performance.
