Residency policy for city employees debated

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Full-time city employees for the city of Wayne will be required to live within 15 minutes of Wayne following a vote at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

The vote came after considerable discussion and re-affirms the current wording in the city manual.

Several council members and city employees spoke during the meeting, both for and against the requirement.

Council member Doug Sturm said that by allowing employees to live outside of the city, "it puts more pressure on those who live in town."

Council member Verdel Lutt said he felt it was not fair to make all employees, especially those hired for seasonal activities, to live in Wayne. He suggested that if the restriction of residency were included, it should pertain to full-time employees only.

Council member Ken Chamberlain questioned whether a mile restriction rather than time restriction be included.

City employees Garry Poutre, Joel Hansen and Todd Hoeman told the council that they felt the current policy "is workable and has been so for many years. The departments help each other when needed."

Several resolutions were approved following public hearings at Tuesday's meeting.

The first approves a zoning use by exception permit for a tattoo and body piercing parlor at 215 Main Street in downtown Wayne.

Paul Lindner, owner of the building, spoke to the council and said he had contacted the cities of Sioux City, Iowa and Columbus about the location of similar businesses in those cities.

The owners of the business told council members they "run a clean business that is licensed."

Resolution 2007-49 will approve the replat of the Kardell Industrial Park.

City Planner/Inspector George Ellyson told the council that the configuration of the lots was changed after the location of monitoring wells was determined.

Campus safety and traffic flow drive summer street projects

Wayne State College is getting a facelift this summer during phase two of the three-phase Campus Streets and Commons Plan approved in 2005. Many of the campus' streets will be resurfaced and augmented with additional parking for students, staff and faculty. The work, which began May 21, will also take out several campus trees, many of which are diseased or in advanced stages of deterioration that make them a danger to members of the campus community.

The streets project will improve traffic flow on campus, increase pedestrian safety and provide more parking spaces around the campus. Increased parking is needed to accommodate a loss of parking spaces under phase three of the project in which a Commons area will be established along J.G. Lewis Drive through the center of campus, eliminating motor traffic through the area.

Pedestrians will benefit from new sidewalks that will be installed around campus this summer, including much-needed sidewalks along the south end of the soccer practice fields adjacent to Lindahl Drive. New walkways on the south side of campus will improve access to residence halls and eliminate many of the "cow paths" around campus.

Street projects include the rerouting of Gulliver Avenue to intersect with Main Street and end up directly in line with 11th Street. The new configuration of Gulliver will increase the green space around the Willow Bowl.

The repaving of Lindahl Drive from Main Street to Providence Medical Center will serve as a national test area for innovative paving materials suited to colder climates. The traffic flow on Anderson Drive will be reversed, increasing safety where Anderson intersects with Lindahl Drive across from Rice Auditorium. Parking will be added adjacent to the Hahn Building as well as along L. Wendt Drive, Anderson Drive and Lindahl Drive.

The removal of several trees on campus arises from the need to eliminate diseased and over-matured species and clear the way for expansion of parking and road work. In each of these cases, more trees are being planted than are being removed from campus.

"There are a couple of benefits to removing over-mature trees from campus and replacing them," said Kim Schramm, arboretum and landscape manager at Wayne State. "They are sustainability and diversity. We do not want to get to the point on campus where all of the trees are the same age. If we gradually remove and replace over-mature trees, then we can even out the age of trees on campus. The benefits to the arboretum will be the increased diversity of species, making the arboretum a more valuable resource for the entire area for generations to come."

Relay team honors memory of Denise Thomsen

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Among the teams taking part in this year's Relay For Life event in Wayne on June 8-9 will be Denise's Angels.

The family of Denise Thomsen will wear buttons with her picture on them and "honor her memory" as they walk around the track at Wayne State College.

Denise's battle with cancer began in 1986, when at the age of 39 a tumor was found on her kidney.

"The doctors removed her kidney and she received 33 radiation treatments. After that, she was cancer-free for 33 years," said Kenneth (Kenny) Thomsen, Denise's husband.

In March of 2004 Denise had a check-up which revealed a high hemoglobin level. The tumor had returned where the kidney had once been attached.

"With the type of cancer Denise had (renal cell cancer), chemotherapy doesn't work, so the doctors started her on an experimental drug. She took three shots a week here in Wayne. This gave her flu-like symptoms, but she continued working at her job at Vakoc Construction," Kenny said.

The treatments continued until December when Denise decided to discontinue them. By this time the cancer had spread to her bones.

Early in 2005 Denise was hospitalized at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha, where she received radiation treatments.

Following her stay at the hospital in Omaha, Denise spent time in a rehabilitation center in Omaha and the Wakefield Health Care Center.

Kenny said that although the doctors gave her only a short time to live, "she never gave up."

The Thomsen's son, Vahn, who was planning to get married in August of 2005, moved his wedding date up so his mother could attend.

The Thomsen family includes Vahn and Alissa Thomsen of Wakefield, Vickie and Brian Wagner of Omaha and grandchildren Chayse, Karissa, Brianna and Kaitlyn.

Kenny brought his wife home to be with her family and on July 8, 2005, at the age of 58, she lost her battle with cancer.

In 2006, after being approached by his niece, Linda Gilliland, Kenny decided to form a Relay For Life team.

"Denise had been on Relay teams for two years and had gone to it (Relay For Life) other years as a survivor," so after Linda asked about starting a team, it just snowballed," Kenny said.

"Last year we raised $4,557 and my goal is to raise $5,000 this year," Kenny said.

Fund raising efforts have included a bake sale at Salem Lutheran Church in

Bruning applauds passage of cyberstalking bill

Attorney General Jon Bruning recently applauded the passage of LB 142 in the Nebraska Legislature. The bill makes it a crime to send sexually explicit material to minors using electronic communication devices, such as computers, e-mails and text messages.

State Senator Mike Friend introduced the bill in January as part of the Attorney General's legislative package. Sen. Pete Pirsch designated LB 142 his personal priority bill.

"Child predators have gone high-tech," Bruning said. "Updating our laws for the 21st Century was necessary to protect our families. Sen. Friend saw this, and I appreciate his leadership."

Under the cyberstalking bill, adults over 18 who knowingly send sexually explicit language and material to victims under 16 could be charged with a class IV felony, punishable by up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Previously, no specific crime for sending sexually explicit material to minors existed. At best, the action could have been charged as a class I misdemeanor, punishable by up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

"Online sexual predators need to understand their behavior is completely intolerable and will be severely punished in Nebraska," Friend said. "This legislation gives prosecutors another tool for protecting our children."

Bus trip through Ethiopia is eventful

Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of articles written by Dean Jacobs about his travel excursions through Ethiopia.

The early morning darkness was buzzing with chatter of conductors announcing the destinations of their respective buses.

"Nazret, Nazret, Nazret," a man yells.

"Gambella?" I ask in a questioning tone, he points in a direction.

People dash here and there with their loads of goods wrapped and bound with blue plastic and rope. Some I suspect were heading home, others seeking new opportunities.

Thoughts floated through my head of warnings given to me about the bus station.

"Beware, there are many thieves at the station," I was told by several people. I walk with a purpose in my step to create a sense that I know what I'm doing.

I approach the bus to hear "Mr. Dean" from the conductor. I had purchased my ticket the night before and made an acquaintance

New bus ticket. The bus conductor quickly writes new passenger tickets. Everyone had to get new bus tickets for the bus sent to rescue us.

I squeezed into my tiny space, with my knees banging against the metal backing of the seat in front of me and peaked out the curtain to see the faces of those left behind.

The journey to Gambella had not a big surprise. A young child shyly smiles back before her eyes turn towards the floor.

"Where you from?" The person sitting next to me asks. I'm from America, I respond. "Which state?" he asks again. "Nebraska." "Alaska?" he replies in a questioning tone. "No," I said, "Neeeebraska." "I don't know where that is," he says. "That's OK," I say with a smile. "Most people don't, it's in the middle." "Oh." This is the same conversation I have everywhere I go, with almost everyone I meet.

For several hours we weave down the road winding through food. "It is our way, said Freedom, to watch over you."

"Thank you," I replied, "You're very kind."

Problems begin to occur with the bus; several times through the day we stopped to fix something until eventually it would go no further.

After an hour a new bus appeared. But now the real circus begins. Apparently there is a dispute between the two drivers or money.

The next four hours are filled with shouting, hand waving, gestures and facial expressions. In the middle of it all a woman passenger is taken to the hospital with labor pains. A man passes a hat to collect money for her.

A policeman shows up and everyone departs the bus and insists on telling their version of the situation. This is conducted with more arm waving and expressions. This whole scene is repeated two more times as more police show up.

On the bus, off the bus, on, off, on, off.

Finally one of the police waves his hands, and it's over, everyone boards the bus one last time. Away we go, four hours late, with dim headlights down the dark dirt road. Eventually we end up in a small remote town that is quiet and locked up.

Where are we I ask? "Agaro," replies Freedom. I look at the map, and say to myself, yes, it's on the way to Gambella.

Checking it out

Racing car enthusiasts were at Pamida in Wayne over the Memorial Day weekend to look at a racing car that Dale Earnhardt Jr. used to drive in NASCAR races. Budweiser company organized the tour of the car and Norfolk Beverage Co. helped arrange bringing the car to Wayne.

Spring mosquito season returns

The skeeters are back! The 2007 spring mosquito surveillance season begins soon with a caution to Northeast Nebraskans that West Nile Virus is a serious threat. Historically, Nebraska has been a prolific area for this mosquito-transmitted disease. Workshops are planned in O'Neill on July 6 relative to mosquito control. Additional workshops will be in Kearney, Lincoln and Gering the week of June 5. More information is available from Northeast Nebraska Public Health.

Hospice Memorial service planned

Providence Medical Center of Wayne will be sponsoring the annual Hospice Memorial Service on Sunday, June 24 at 2 p.m. at First United Methodist Church in Wayne.

The church is located at 516 North Main Street in Wayne.

This service is being held in memory of past patients of Providence Medical Center, Home Health Care, Palliative Care and Providence Hospice who have died between May of 2006 and May of 2007.

After the service, cake and ice cream will be served in the fellowship hall.

The public is invited to attend this event. For more information, contact Sister Cecilia at 375-3800.

Nebraska State Colleges Board of Trustees meeting planned

A regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges will convene at Hillcrest Country Club, 8901 E "O" Street, in Lincoln on June 7-8, 2007.

The executive session will begin at 9 a.m., committee meetings will be at 10:30 a.m. and the business meeting will start at 1 p.m.

The Board of Trustees Reception/Dinner will be at 7 p.m. The Board of Trustees have scheduled a retreat on June 8 beginning at 8 a.m.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges will be held Sept. 13-14 at Chadron.

Loading the bus. Passengers load the bus after one of several breakdowns on the first day of our journey to Gambella.

with him. "We saved you a seat up front," he explains.

This is a real bonus, because in the back of the bus you tend to spend more time in mid air than in your seat, as the bus bounces over potholes.

I watched my backpack being hoisted to the roof of the red bus and made a mental note of its location.

It's 6 a.m. and now we wait for an hour, as people jockey for seats on a bus that has more passengers than space. Eventually the driver honks the horn to announce it is time to leave. How, I'm not sure, people and other buses surround our bus.

My purpose in taking the bus to Gambella was to learn about a small part of the journey many Sudanese refugees in Ethiopia endured as they moved from the camps in Gambella to Nebraska. This is one segment of a long journey for them, but it is one that I am personally able to do in my quest to understand.

I glance to look at the back of the bus and smile. I am going to share this tin box with this group for the next two full days. Gambella is not a major tourist destination and generally "faranji" or foreigners fly or take a private car, so the curiosity looks I receive from people is Sugarcane. A local woman measures the amount of sugarcane a bus passenger wishes to buy with her knife. Where ever the bus stops, people swarm it with goods to sell.

We find a room for 12 Birr or $1.50.

"Time for sleep," says Freedom, the bus will leave in 4 hours. "I'll knock on your door," he says. Good idea.

Relocation of business to Laurel is dream come true for California man

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

A taste of the "good life" is what Lynn Madsen had each summer he came to Laurel to visit relatives. His roots were planted in Laurel years ago so when he found out recently that he could move his business, Giant A & M, there, he jumped at the chance. As it turned out, he ended up moving his family there too.

Madsen never planned to live there, but did anticipate it would get him back here to see his family more often. He planned to use video conference equipment to talk to his manager here, his Uncle Carl's grandson, Chris.

But when the expansion was finished and he came back to see it for the first time he realized how this little town would be much easier and safer for him to raise his three retail public. They put auto dealer logos on them and sell them to auto dealers nationwide. The business is located on Highway 20 in Laurel. Prior to that, it was located in Vista, Calif.

Looking back, Madsen made the trip back each year to see his grandmother, Ellen Christensen, Uncle Carl Christensen and cousins Mark and Dennis Christensen.

After his high school graduation in California, Madsen played professional football for five years, which he said was hard to do. During that time, he was also an entrepreneur and he married his wife, Krista.

In 1990, he lost money in California real estate and it was when he was wrapping up his real estate business, throwing wood into his pickup truck which scratched it, that he wondered how buy it.

"I started my business to meet a need," Madsen said. "Mud flaps with dealer names on were one of the first things I sold."

Madsen made up some brochures and when the word got around, the business took off. He had plans to get started in other avenues but his wife got sick with cancer so he took seven years off and took care of her and their family.

"I'm not mechanical but it worked and I needed to make money to pay bills," Madsen said.

As a manufacturer with a sports background, he knew he needed a good team so he added people to his company.

Throughout his marriage, Madsen, Krista and their family made trips back to Laurel. "Krista liked it here and my family liked here. We used to go to farm sales, look in old buildings and check out antiques with my cousin, Dennis. She really liked my grandmother Ellen."

Madsen continued that he loved Nebraska so he figured that when he had children, he would name them Laurel and Blair. His wife had the same names picked out years before they ever met, so it was no problem naming their first two daughters. When the third daughter came along, they came up with the name of Logan because Krista's dad was born in Logan, Utah.

"We took photos of our kids by signs of towns with their names but for Logan, we had to go to Logan, Iowa to take the photo," Madsen said.

Laurel was always their second home. When road trips were planned, they always came here with their family. Their roots were here.

When Madsen's uncle Carl died in 2005, Carl's grandson, Chris Merkel, talked to Madsen and the two began to dream and plan. Merkel told him the cost of living was less here than in California and Madsen loved Laurel.

"I never thought I'd live here," Madsen said. "I'm the spiritual type and believe God directs our steps. I've been raising our daughters alone for three and a half years and when we were in California, I was traveling so far to work and had gone through so much that things were falling through the cracks," Madsen said. "When I saw the facility in February, my cousin, Bev, asked if we could live here and a week later I pulled the kids out of school and here we are. This is a cute little town, my wife's fingerprints are all over it; I feel she gave us the OK to come here."

"It's like the whole town is family," Annette Junk, Laurel Economic Development director said.

Madsen added that people here care, which makes it a special place. Even though he's lived here a short time, he feels he has a different way of looking at things. He hadn't been here in the winter before. He couldn't quite put his finger on what was missing, but his senses told him when spring came. The smells here, such as the ground turning over in the spring and the sounds of the birds complete the song. The humidity and thunderstorms add another dimension. He can close his eyes and smell the town and he didn't realize how powerful smell is. So now he thinks of the senses like instruments in the song of life.

"I remember how excited I was when Joe Ferguson from Northeast Community College called and told me that a business from California wanted to locate in Laurel," Junk said. "Our initial meeting was with Chris Merkel, Lynn's cousin. After a few conversations, representatives from DED, NPPD, Keith Knudsen and myself flew to California to meet Lynn, present our proposal and tour his plant in California."

"This all never would have happened without Chris, he was a big part of it," Madsen said.

Junk added that we are very fortunate to have the Nebraska Advantage in place, CDBG funding available and that Laurel has a city council and mayor who are active in community and economic development.

Madsen ended by saying that other states may have had more to offer but he wanted to come here. The move was a good fit all the way around.

A Retail Class CK Liquor License was granted to Ken Jorgensen, doing business as The Max Again.

Also approved was Resolution 2007-51, which accepts a bid and awards a contract for the purchase of a fire truck for the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

A bid of $289,057 from Danko in Snyder was accepted, with a discount of approximately $4,500 of the chassis of the truck is paid now. The estimated delivery date is 390 days from notice of bid acceptance. The purchase price will require an additional appropriation of funds from the fiscal year 2007-08 budget.

An ordinance to change the meeting dates of the council received first reading approval. The ordinance states that beginning July 1, the council will meet the first and third Tuesday of each month. The ordinance will be read again at the council's next meeting.

The council gave unanimous approval to allocating $17,000 in cash reserves from the sale of land to the golf course to be used for lease payments for equipment at the golf course.

In a related item, the council took no action on a request from the Country Club Board to pay interest on land sale cash reserves from the establishment of the account until the present time. Council members requested the item being tabled until the next meeting when numbers could be obtained on the amount of money involved.

Council members voted to request that the light poles on Main Street be re-painted, on site, to more closely match what was originally requested.

Mayor Lois Shelton passed around samples of what the poles will look like and discussion was held on whether the re-painting would result in a better finish than what is currently on the poles.

A public hearing was also held during the meeting to consider a Planning Commission request for a variance for property in Muhs Acres.

Although the area is outside the city limits of Wayne, it is located within city jurisdiction.

Following the public hearing, the council voted to approve the variance and for to the Wayne County Commissioners the request to vacate an undeveloped portion of Highview Drive. The change will allow for the establishment of a cul-de-sac in the subdivision.

Approval was given to close several streets for Henoween and Chicken Show activities.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, June 12 at 5:30 p.m.

JoAnn McKenzie of Wayne, a registered eBay trading assistant, was a recent speaker at a Wayne Rotary Club meeting. She talked about her business, Sell It 4 U and also checked prices of items Rotarians brought to the meeting.

Registered eBay trading assistant shares story with local Rotarians

JoAnn McKenzie, owner of Sell It 4 U Internet Auction Service, spoke at a recent Wayne Rotary Club meeting. McKenzie gave a little information about herself and her business and checked prices on eBay of items Rotarians brought to the meeting.

Looking back, McKenzie noted she had been a nurse/business manager for a chiropractic clinic and was driving to her job for around 10 years. She has been a collector of Wizard of Oz items for many years, first selling a free checkbook holder on eBay and getting $25 for it. Selling went so well on eBay that she turned her hobby into a business and has been making a good living since then by being a registered eBay trading assistant.

In determining what to sell on eBay, McKenzie said, "Sometimes the uglier and stranger it is, the better it sells."

When she started her business, her first customer was Irene Fletcher of Wayne, who owned Legends clothing store. McKenzie thought it was clothing that Fletcher wanted her to sell but found it was items stored in the basement such as mannequins, old displays and more. It turned out that Fletcher made more money on the things they thought no one wanted than expected.

McKenzie said many antique and collectible trade journals state eBay many times sets the market for collectibles, which McKenzie feels is accurate. With eBay, sellers and buyers in the Wayne area are on the same playing field as everyone else. All you have to do is be an honest and forthright seller and you can compete with the larger businesses. "No one knows I'm one person in rural America."

McKenzie attended the annual eBay convention in Las Vegas, Nev. where she found there are 220 million users on eBay and 70 percent are making a full or part-time living using eBay. She noted eBay charges approximately 10 percent of the final transaction.

"Selling on eBay is easy but very time consuming," McKenzie said. "Sellers need to check their emails and answer questions a minimum of five to 10 times a day."

Items that sell (old and new) are antiques, cast iron toys, jewelry, china, silverware, art, auto parts and tools, books, business and medical items, cameras and old photos, designer handbags, purses and wallets, coins and stamps, collectibles, items with advertising, Hallmark, Department 56, Precious Moments, trading cards, computers, electronics, crafts, dolls, bears, DVDs, movies, music, video games, health and beauty items, home and garden items, jewelry and watches, memorabilia, musical instruments, pottery and glass, sporting goods, tickets, toys and hobbies.

McKenzie mentioned eBay has rules that must be followed. Rotarian Fauneil Bennett noted she found out about eBay rules the hard way by starting one of her cookie jars from her collection for $1. She thought the bidding would go up and had to end up selling it for a dollar when it was worth $25. McKenzie stated, this would have been an auction to use a Reserve Price or "safety net" to prevent this item from selling for less than it was worth to her.

"You can end an auction early for certain reasons, but this should not be something one does on a routine basis because eBay tracks auctions that have been ended early by every seller," McKenzie said.

Anyone with questions or who has something they would like McKenzie to sell on eBay can contact her at 369-3662 or toll free 877-270-1244. More information can also be found on her website at www.joanmckenzie.net.

The Wayne west water tower is again operational after being drained, sandblasted, airbrushed, cleaned, primed and painted. LFW Sandblasting & Painting, Inc. of Plattsmouth was the contractor of the project and JEO provided engineering services. The 100+ foot tower was last painted over 15 years ago. After the painting was completed, the tower was filled, treated with chlorine and samples taken to ensure a safe water supply. The west water tower holds approximately 750,000 gallons of water. It now sports the Wayne State College logo.

Beautification project

Crews from Country Nursery spent a portion of last week planting trees on the corners along Main Street. The tree-planting is among the last parts of the Main Street renovation project to be completed. Additionally, planters for flowers and benches will adorn the downtown area in the near future.

ASK THE TRAINER
 This week I have received a question asking what a person can do, for lifting, when they cannot make it to a gym. As we move into summer and more people are taking vacations, there is the chance the hotel you stay in will not have a fully equipped gym. In this situation, it is nice to know you do not have to put off a workout, because there are many challenging exercises to do on the road.
 When designing a travel workout, the main emphasis will be to create a full-body routine that will work your muscles until you are able to return to a gym. To do this, use body weight exercises to challenge the legs, chest, upper and lower back, abdominals, and shoulders. Examples of these could be lunges for the legs and piked presses off the hotel bed for the shoulders. When away from the gym, it will be more difficult to gauge intensity, but figure 2-3 sets of around 15-20 repetitions with 30 seconds or less rest in-between sets. Remember the main focus of a program like this is to maintain the progress gained in the gym. The intensity and volume are probably not high enough for muscle gain, but maintenance and a good calorie burn can be achieved.
 For most, vacation is a time to get away from everything, including the gym, but a routine like this will only take a short amount of time and will help keep your body healthy until you come home. If you have more questions or would like a vacation plan written for your personal needs, give me a call at the Providence Wellness Center. Always check with your doctor before beginning any exercise program.
Make 2007 the year you take the time to improve your overall health!

The offensive effort was led by a pair of runs from Melena and three singles by Carroll.

Wayne bounced back to place third in the tournament thanks to a 3-2 win over Norfolk on May 27.

Two-out RBI hits by Longe and Robinson gave Wayne the lead in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Brady Soden earned his first win of the new season with 12 strikeouts to earn the win for Wayne.

14-under Pony League

The Wayne Pony 14-under baseball team remained undefeated improving its overall record to 4-0 (2-0 in Ralph Bishop League) by sweeping a double from Hartington on May 2 at the Wayne Summer

Sports Complex.

In the first game, Wayne overcame a one-run fifth inning deficit by scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth to capture a 6-3 win.

Starting pitcher Alex Onnen, pitched three no-hit innings before giving way to eventual winner Mason Wren who tossed three innings of relief.

Offensive leaders included: Zach Wacker (triple), Onnen (double), Taylor Carroll (double).

In the second game, Wayne scored seven runs in the first two innings and never looked back winning 14-5.

Four pitchers combined for a 1 hitter (Keegan Dorsey, Tony Sinniger, Jake Paustian, & Carroll), tallying 11 total strikeouts in the win.

Offensive leaders: Sinniger (2 hits) and Paustian (triple).

Softball

12-under Dirt Devils

The Wayne 12-under Dirt Devils girls' softball team improved to nine wins on the season following a rain-shortened tournament in Columbus last weekend.

Rainy weather forced a cancellation at the Columbus Lakeview Tournament that ran May 26-27.

The cancellation of the tourney forced Wayne to take a 2-2 tie after three innings of play in the fifth and final game against the Fire and Ice 12s.

In the first game, Kristin Carroll earned her fourth win of the season in an 8-2 victory over the Bullets 12s team.

Megan Hoffart's triple, plus doubles from Cassidy Miller and Hannah Gamble led Wayne in the victory.

Miller pitched a no-hitter and threw eight strikeouts in the second game when the team posted a 4-1 win against the Seward Jazz.

Cassie Harm and Caitlin Fehringer each recorded singles for Wayne.

Carroll added a no-hitter of her own in the third game that saw the squad tally a 4-2 win against the Fire and Ice 12s.

Tia Jech and Harm finished with a single and double, respectively.

Wayne's bats came to life in the fourth game as Carroll finished with a triple and a single and Miranda Denklau recorded a single in an 18-3 win over Columbus Lakeview.

Miller and Carroll each plated three runs for the contest.

Carroll also earned the win on the mound with four strikeouts in her three innings of work.

The fifth game of the tournament was called early due to rain, however, the first run of the game proved to be exciting as Hannah Gamble stole second, third and home plate to put Wayne's first run on the scoreboard.

Harm added Wayne's other run in the first inning.

Miller pitched a no-hitter to earn the win, which was her fifth of the season.

10-under

The Wayne 10s softball team picked up its first win of the season with a home win over Dodge on May 26.

Skyler Gamble, Abbie Hix and McKenzie Rusk each had doubles and Kendall Gamble earned the win on the mound.

Additional game information, including the final score, was unavailable.

11-under

The Wayne 11-under softball team slipped to 0-3 after the opening week of play that saw the squad play in the West Point Tournament on May 26-27.

The girls dropped an 8-0 decision to Tekamah on May 26. McKenna Gibson was dealt the loss on the mound for Wayne.

Jaci Alexander tallied two runs and Rachel Waddington had a double as Wayne dropped a close 8-7 contest to West Point 2 on May 26.

The girls closed out the tourney on May 27 with an 11-2 defeat by West Point 1. Gibson and Emily Leeper led the offense with a single each.

Nebraska Ag Lab honored for weather observation contribution

Recognizing a half a century of dedication, NOAA's National Weather Service has awarded the University of Nebraska Haskell Agriculture Laboratory with the Honored Institution Award for 50 years of outstanding service in the Cooperative Weather Observer Program. The length of service award is given to institutional observation sites every 25 years.

"Cooperative observers are the bedrock of weather data collection and analysis," said U.S. Air Force Brig. Gen. David L. Johnson, director of NOAA's National Weather Service. "Satellites, high speed computers, mathematical models and other technological breakthroughs have brought great benefits to the nation in terms of better forecasts and warnings. But without the century-long accumulation of accurate weather observations taken by volunteer observers, scientists could not begin to adequately describe the climate of the United States. We cannot thank the people at the Haskell Agriculture Lab enough for their years of service to America."

Greg Harmon, meteorologist in charge of NOAA's Sioux Falls weather forecast office presented the award to lab leaders during a ceremony held during a May 24 monthly staff meeting. Observers, Bob Frerichs and Pat Bathke accepted the award.

Network Specialist, John Anderson established the Haskell Lab's observing station with then Superintendent Albert D. Flowerday on June 1, 1957, reporting daily temperatures, precipitation, soil temperature, and evaporation readings to the Weather Service.

The National Weather Service's Cooperative Weather Observer Program has given scientists and researchers continuous observational data since its inception more than a century ago. Today, more than 11,700 volunteer observers participate in the nationwide program to provide daily reports on temperature, precipitation and other weather factors such as snow depth, river levels, and soil temperature.

Weather records retain their importance as time goes by. Long and continuous records provide an accurate picture of a locale's normal weather, and give climatologists and others a basis for predicting future trends. This data is invaluable for scientists studying floods, droughts and heat and cold waves. At the end of each month, observers mail their records to the National Climatic Data Center (NCDC) for publication in "Climatological Data" or "Hourly Precipitation Data."

The first extensive network of cooperative stations set up in the 1890's as a result of an 1890 act of Congress that established the U.S. Weather Bureau. Many of the stations have even longer histories.

John Campanius Holm's weather records, taken without benefit of weather instruments in what is now Wilmington, Del. in 1644 and 1645, where the earliest known recorded observations in the United States. Many other historic figures also maintained weather records, including Benjamin Franklin, George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

Jefferson maintained an almost unbroken record of weather observations between 1776 and 1816 and Washington took weather observations just a few days before he died. Several awards for accomplishments and length of service in the cooperative observer program are named for such pioneers of weather observations.

In 2007 NOAA celebrates 200 years of science and service to the nation. From establishment of the Survey of the Coast by Thomas Jefferson in 1807, much of America's scientific heritage is rooted in NOAA. The agency is dedicated to enhancing economic security and national safety through the prediction and research of weather- and climate-related events and information service delivery for transportation, and by providing environmental stewardship of our nation's coastal and marine resources. Through emerging Global Earth Observation System of Systems (GEOSS), NOAA is working with its federal partners, more than 60 countries and the European Commission to develop a global monitoring network that is as integrated as the planet it observes, predicts and protects.

Local participants take part in race

The second race in the 2007 Monumental Memorial Cycling Weekend, The Old West Time Trial was held in downtown Odell.

Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster fielded a seven man team for the event and put four of them on the podium. In Men's Cat 5, Allan Walton of Wayne was last to go but threw down the fastest time of all the Cat 5's, earning him bragging rights and a first place medal for Cat 5 (45+). Richard Hake of Madison went two for two in two weeks with his second win in his age division, Cat 5 (55+).

Category 4 held the bulk of EVCpM riders. Scott Blair of Pierce had his race salvaged when the On Support neutral support vehicle came by to fix a flatted rear tire. Scott still managed to turn in a competitive time, even having time to visit with the corner marshals while waiting for his wheel change. John Spray finished eleventh while Joe Savoie of Omaha soldiered on to take seventh.

But, the podium spots in Cat 4 would be dominated by Elkhorn Valley: Duane Blair of Norfolk powered to third with Devin Bethune of Carroll getting by Don Raskey to take the win. Blair commented that the course was enjoyable and the wind played very little into his finish.

Going into the Industrial Row Crit on Monday, EVCpM looks to have plenty of opportunities for podium finishes, both in the crit itself and the omnium results.

Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster took several individual medals and two overall wins at the 2007 Monumental Memorial Cycling Weekend held in Beatrice and Odell, May 26-28.

The third and final day of the second annual event brought intermittent rain showers and gusty winds. The inclement weather caused numerous spills on a course that would have ordinarily been relatively mundane. Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster, already having several top time trial and road race finishes, came into the event with seven riders in two fields.

Walton, winner of both the time trial and road race events earlier in the weekend, started the 30 minute Industrial Row Critrium riding with the leaders. "I want to find the fastest guys and stick with them," Walton said prior to the start of his race. The plan worked to perfection as Walton took second in the combined Category 5 field and first in his division, Men's Cat 5 Masters (45+).

The rain played a part in his win as Walton was caught up in an early race crash sending riders sliding across the blacktop. Walton took advantage of the free lap rule to gather himself up and rejoined the race in the lead pack never looking back. In addition to individual race wins, Walton also won the weekend's omnium award for highest combined finishes in all three days' races.

In Category 4 Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster took home first place awards in both the criterium and the omnium on the shoulders of Bethune. Bethune had already taken second in the road race and first in the time trial and was hungry for a win in the final stage. The weather behaved for the 45 minute race but Bethune also utilized the free lap rule to overcome a mishap and power on to win the event. Bethune lead most of the race using a modified time trial tuck to cheat the wind and conserve energy.

This race splintered into three distinct groups with EVCpM's Savoie and Blair leading the secondary pack. Savoie once again proved to be a savvy and solid racer as he and Blair set the pace for the pack throughout the race. In the final sprint, Blair set Savoie up for a win in what turned out to be a blisteringly fast field sprint for top 10 positions. Also competing in the criterium were brothers John and Dan Spray of Norfolk, as well as Blair.

Assisted Living Complex is coming to Pender

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development and Pender State Bank have announced the funding for the construction of a $2.8 million 16 unit residential assisted living complex in Pender. The facility will serve the nearly 8,300 rural residents of Burt, Cuming, Wayne, and Thurston counties.

"It's extremely exciting when a vision for the future becomes a reality. By building a new assisted living facility in Pender, we will be adding an essential piece to the overall continuum of care for our District," stated Michael Hansen, FACHE, chief executive officer, Pender Care Centre District, Inc.

The complex will feature a common space for a kitchen and pantry, housekeeping, laundry and tub room, general storage, mechanical space, and a family visitation/dining area. There will also be an 828 square foot drop-off canopy and an eight stall garage.

"The assisted living complex is needed in the community to help meet the demand for continuum of care needs for the area elderly," stated Jolene Kasper, community programs specialist, USDA Rural Development. "It is our pleasure to assist with the new addition to Pender, and we are very pleased with the strong community support for the project."

USDA Rural Development awarded a direct loan of $1,320,000 at 4.125 percent interest over 40 years. Pender State Bank funded a $1,275,000 loan that will be guaranteed by USDA rural development. Community donations of $270,000 completed the funding needed.

"The vitality of Pender is extremely important to us and we are pleased to be able to assist in this very exciting venture. The USDA Rural Development Community Facilities Guaranteed Loan program was a perfect fit for this project and we appreciate USDA's support of our community and this project," stated Michael Minert, president, Pender State Bank.

Sharon Weber shared a light-hearted moment with José Jimenez at the Northeast Community College Education Center in South Sioux City recently. Weber volunteered her own time and tutored him in preparation of the U.S. Citizenship test, which he successfully passed.

Childhood dream comes true by tutoring for naturalization test

Sharon Weber's childhood dream is coming true in a most unusual way. The South Sioux City woman dreamed as a child of someday becoming a teacher or missionary. And now she finds herself tutoring immigrants for perhaps the most important test of their lives, the U.S. Citizenship Test.

A paid employee of Northeast Community College since 2002, Weber usually teaches two, 10-week sessions of an English as a Second Language (ESL) class each semester. She currently teaches an average of 17 students every Wednesday evening and an average of 14 students every Thursday morning.

She tutors for the U.S. Citizenship Test, however, on her own time, without pay. It started in 2003, when an ESL student asked her if she could help him study for the test required for naturalization.

The students must be prepared to answer 96 different questions in the Citizenship Test. Weber tutored the man throughout that summer, even though ESL classes were not meeting. He did earn his citizenship.

"Last, fall, another student, Araceli Arias, visited the Cardinal Opportunity Center," Weber said. "With her tiny baby son and a big smile, she said she had filed her N400 Application for Citizenship and needed help preparing for the test. Remembering the time I tutored the gentleman for his Citizenship Test in 2003 and how much I enjoyed it, I agreed to help her."

Weber tutored her for one hour each week after her Thursday morning ESL class. A few weeks later, Hawo Mohamed, another ESL student who had filed her N400 application, joined the two during the tutoring sessions in the Cardinal Opportunity Center.

Another student of hers, José Jimenez, passed the Citizenship test recently. "She was a big help to me," Jimenez said about Weber's efforts.

Thus far, all of Weber's students have passed their Citizenship test. She is currently tutoring seven other students; five are awaiting test dates and two will take the Citizenship test in June.

"Sharon's success as an ESL instructor goes far beyond her paid position," said Sheila Tomjack, ESL program coordinator for the Adult Basic Education department at Northeast Community College. "She is a woman of great heart. Because of that, she is drawn to helping others. I am not at all surprised that the students she tutors successfully pass the Citizenship Test."

Weber continues to take great delight in the successes of her students. "Each student has special goals and needs," she said. "With the desire for citizenship, these students are highly motivated to learn. I am honored to help them." For more information about Northeast offerings, call Sheila Tomjack at (402) 844-7253.

Bobier's supports cancer center

Bobier Portrait Studio is teaming up with the June E. Nylen Cancer Center to present "Colors of Cancer" a June 7-8 opportunity for Siouxland residents to support the Cancer Center.

"Our family has battled cancer many times," says Andrea Zenor, photographer. "I've lost a couple of grandparents to cancer, and one of my grandmothers is a survivor. Cancer is such a terrible disease that affects many people, and I decided to team up with the community to fight back."

Zenor is inviting the community's participation by offering a portrait sitting for a special price of only $15, all of which she will donate back to the Cancer Center. Those who take advantage of this special offer will receive a free 5x7 print from the session, as well as an opportunity to purchase a package with an additional donation to the Cancer Center. Patrons who cannot come for a sitting on June 7 or 8 can still receive a sitting at a later date for a $30 donation to the Cancer Center.

"We're excited for the support of Bobier Portrait Studio. With community support like this, we're able to help people live longer, healthier lives with our advanced radiation therapy technology, physician expertise, chemotherapy treatment and caring support services," says Karen Van De Steeg, cancer center executive director.

Unhappy with ACLU

Dear Editor,
I was appalled this morning (Memorial Day) to hear and see the national news — that the ACLU is at it again — attempting to cover some of our Veterans Memorials in parts of the country!

This organization may (?) have had admirable qualities when it originated; But now it is one of the most ANTI-AMERICAN, ANTI-CHRIST, ANTI-FAMILY organizations in our great freedom-loving country — America, the land I love!

These same people should pack up and move to another country where they would be welcome — rather than attempt to undermine all the qualities that we cherish in America — built upon by our Founding Fathers and have withstood the test of time for 200+ years!

I would be ashamed — outraged — if any of our family supported in any way the ACLU. In fact, I would be embarrassed if anyone in our great community were to have any respect for the ACLU! As law-abiding citizens, we all need to stand guard — come of the deplorable acts of ACLU could surface here!

Proud of members

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank all the Varsity Band and Cadet Band members who volunteered their vacation time and performed in the Memorial Day Program on Monday morning, May 28.

Your time, effort and dedication is greatly appreciated. I am truly proud of all of you who participated in this special event.

Also a special thank you to Ann Ruwe, president; Deneil Parker, Middle School Band Director and all the Wayne Carroll Music Booster mothers who helped check in all the band uniforms after the Memorial Day Program. Thank you so much for all your time, effort and support. The Wayne High Band program could not function without all of your help!

Thank you,
Brad Weber, Director of Bands Wayne High School

Dear Editor,

A big THANK YOU to the person who found my letter and put it in the mail on Saturday, May 19.

I put letters in the Wayne Post Office outside box. My letter took off in the wind and I could not find it.

Thanks again.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By Lowell Johnson, City Administrator

Next City Council Meeting

The City Council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, June 12 at 5:30 p.m. in the city council room at 306 Pearl Street.

Things I learned from Judge Robinson, Merlin Frevert and Mark Ahmann

Judge Robinson: Some time ago I was in court as a witness and watched the judge dispatch a number of cases of multi-repeat DWI, driving without a license and insurance, possession of controlled substance, and assault. The demeanor of many of those charged was general disrespect of the court and of state law. The judge was firm, fair and respectful of each person charged. He assisted a couple persons in a different language as requested. After justice was meted out and court ended, all parties went publicly out to our cars in full sight of each other and went home or back to work.

Lesson Learned: Democracy is a very fragile agreement to make our own laws and obey them and it takes wise people with courage to enforce them.

Merlin Frevert: In the closing prayer at the Memorial Day service Mr. Frevert observed that we can freely print this column and other opinions in the press, we can make our own laws, we can publicly protest laws we dislike, we can sleep in our homes protected by the law, our children can attend public school and go there safely.

Lesson Learned: We can only do this because service men and women have fought to preserve this right every time it has been threatened.

Mark Ahmann: Democracy and our way of life have been threatened ever since the United States was born. We will never have a time in the future when there won't be threats and attacks and we will forever have to defend our selves.

Lesson Learned: Freedom is not free.

First amendment rights sometimes limited

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Not all ideas or philosophies are created equal.

Discussing and debating and just plain arguing over matters of social and political significance, and the notions behind them, help to make our pluralistic society dynamic.

That dynamism is tarnished on occasion when some of those representing one side of an issue inappropriately succeed — directly or indirectly — in shouting down the other side.

Our First Amendment right to free expression in the public domain is appropriately limited, although generally to situations where the need is most obvious.

The 'You can't yell fire in a crowded theater' rule is the classic example of restraint on one's right to be heard in public. Instances of disturbing the peace and inciting others to violence are verboten — although the particulars of those sorts of limitations are necessarily subject to judicial review.

Private institutions are most especially, and rightly, free to provide or deny a forum to whomever they wish.

With all of the above being understood and endorsed, there remains room for legitimate discussion of whether public and private institutions enhance their value and service when they open doors and minds to ideas contrary to their own orthodoxy.

In Omaha, the College of St. Mary acquiesced to pressure in withdrawing an invitation to Roberta Wilhelm to speak at graduation ceremonies. She heads the Omaha chapter of Girls Inc., which at the national level endorses reproductive rights, abortion rights, or a pro-choice position — take your pick.

The fact that she is part of an organization whose national leadership endorses reproductive rights was sufficient to raise a threat of protests, which was in turn sufficient to get her invitation cancelled.

The view from here: The bothersome thing is that there is no indication that Wilhelm planned to say anything whatever about reproductive rights. None! But college officials nonetheless feared demonstrations that might disrupt the ceremony — and that is what is especially bothersome.

Those in charge at the College of St. Mary properly have absolute authority to invite or un-invite anyone they wish. There is nothing to discuss in that regard.

It is hard to understand how Wilhelm's presence should be threatening to anyone, especially when the subject of a philosophical difference is not the subject proposed for airing at a graduation ceremony.

That a pro-choice position of the national organization runs contrary to the teachings of Catholicism is indisputable. Further, there are millions of people, Catholics as well as others, who in true faith see abortion as akin to the Holocaust.

There are even more people who see the issue in a different light. Such is reflective of a pluralistic society. Is it a good idea, especially in an academic atmosphere, to hold that some are absolutely not fit to be heard because of their associations?

Wilhelm expressed gracious understanding for college officials and their decision.

What the situation brought to mind in this corner was a news story, many years ago, about a Holocaust denier who spoke at a college where a significant number of students were Jewish. They showed up for the speech, and sat in the audience, each wearing a yellow Star of David in protest of the speaker and his views.

They abhorred what he stood for, but made clear that neither his beliefs nor his expression of them could force them to close their minds.

Governor vetos budget items

As expected, Governor Heineman used his authority to line-item veto the budget bills. The Governor vetoed $23.6 million in General Fund appropriations over the next two years.

The Appropriations Committee, of which I am a member, voted to sustain all of the vetoes, except they did not make a formal recommendation on three items. Therefore the motions to override were all made by individual senators, rather than the Appropriations Committee.

I believe that it is very important that the Appropriations Committee remains unified, therefore I did not vote for any of the motions to override. None of the motions to override were successful. Because all the vetoes were upheld, the Legislature is now able to pass virtually all legislation pending and still stay within the required minimum reserve.

In several instances, such as provider rates (for behavioral health, developmental disabilities and child welfare) and certain court and probation employee salaries, the Appropriations Committee had increased the funding for such entities over what the Governor had initially recommended.

Through his veto the governor reduced the funding to the halfway mark between what he and the committee had recommended.

Legislative Update
By: State Senator Pat Engel, District #17

I have always been a strong advocate for bringing provider rates up to a level where we can attract dedicated workers to provide services for the most vulnerable of our citizens. I have made it known that I will do everything I can next year to assure proper increases in these provider rates.

During this past week, the Legislature passed my priority bill, LB 342. It equalizes the formula that distributes state aid to community colleges. Since the accompanying "A" bill was also passed by the Legislature, it will result in property tax relief for northeast Nebraska residents, if the legislation is signed by the Governor, as expected.

I also helped attain funding for the South Sioux City College Center, which is a joint effort by Wayne State College and Northeast Community College. A facility will be constructed on land donated by the South Sioux City Community Development Agency. The center will house general and distance learning classrooms, labs for science, computer training and nursing education, and a multi-purpose conference area that could be used for business and industry training as well as community activities. The state funding through Wayne State College that has been appropriated amounts to $1 million in fiscal year 2007-08 and $2.5 million in 2008-09. This will be matched with funding from Northeast Community College. Additionally, federal funding and private donations are being sought.

The South Sioux City College Center is a very exciting project. Studies have shown that the South Sioux City area is growing faster than other areas in northeast Nebraska, generating a need for higher education in that location. I applaud the work that has been done by WSC and NECC and believe that this cooperative approach between a community college and a state college is a novel idea that will prove to be both successful and cost-efficient.

Also this past week, the Legislature approved LB 641, which revises the bill passed last year splitting up Omaha Public Schools into three school districts. I believe that the final version passed is a good faith effort toward providing a better education for all students, regardless of where they attend school. I believe that it was necessary for the Legislature to take action or the courts would have intervened, making decisions that should be made locally.

We have been working long days and nights, as the Legislature moves into the final week of this session. We have passed the budget; sustained the vetoes; and passed a tax relief package. We still have more work to do, but I am happy with the progress to date.

Again, I encourage you to contact me with your thoughts and opinions on the issues before the Legislature. I can be reached at District #17, P.O. Box 94604, State Capitol, Lincoln, Neb. 68509, my telephone number is (402) 471-2716, my e-mail address is lengel@leg.ne.gov and my fax number is (402) 479-0917.

Protect Your Retirement Savings in the Event of a Job Change

If you've made the decision to leave your job, you probably thought carefully about how your decision would affect your financial situation. You may have explored the salaries and benefits at other companies, ensured that you have enough money saved up to carry you through unexpected time away from work, and investigated your health care coverage transition options.

However, don't forget one important task that is often overlooked when people transition from one job to another: protecting the retirement savings amassed in your company 401(k).

Your retirement plan assets may be one of the most important things you take with you as you leave an employer and you have some important decisions to make regarding how you handle the transition. It is essential that you evaluate all of your options - quick, impulsive decisions can be costly. Take the time to map out a plan to protect your retirement savings. Careful management and wise investments will help ensure your funds will be available when you need them.

The responsibility of safeguarding your money falls on your shoulders and you will generally have four different options for your plan balance: leave your savings in your former employer's plan, transfer the balance to your new employer's plan, roll over the balance into an IRA, or take a cash distribution. There are advantages and disadvantages with each option. It is important to consider each and determine the best choice for your individual situation.

Leave the funds where they are Keeping your retirement savings in your former employer's 401(k) is a convenient option that may be a good idea if you are happy with the investment alternatives and fund performance or if you need additional time to explore other options. Although you won't be able to make any additional contributions, you can still benefit from tax-deferred compounding of any investment earnings.

This option may not be available to you if your vested account balance is less than $5,000. Be sure you understand all of your company's 401(k) policies as well as federal rules on distribution requirements.

Transfer savings to the new employer's plan

Moving savings accumulated through previous 401(k) plans to your new employer's 401(k) plan allows you to make contributions to the new account and keep all of your funds in one place, minimizing time spent monitoring and tracking your funds. However, before transferring money you should compare the benefits of the two plans. Some of the factors to consider include: fund performance, costs/fees, scope of fund choices, rate of return, and ease of manageability. You'll want to be sure your new plan is an upgrade.

Roll over into an IRA

It may also be a wise decision to move your money into a qualified retirement account, such as an individual retirement account (IRA). Putting your savings into an IRA allows your investments to continue compounding tax-deferred, while offering maximum control over and asset allocation. An IRA usually gives you more flexibility and decision-making power than a 401(k) plan, which may offer limited choices. An IRA will likely have more investment options from which to choose based on your individual needs and expectations. Rolling your retirement savings from a 401(k) into an IRA also allows you to avoid current taxes and penalties that may apply to an early withdrawal.

There are a few potential drawbacks to be aware of when considering whether an IRA is the best choice for your situation. Generally, account holders cannot borrow against their IRA; however, you may be able to borrow against the value of your 401(k) account. Additionally, a 401(k) account offers the highest level of protection from creditors; assets in your IRA may be taken to satisfy debts in certain scenarios.

One caveat when rolling your funds over to a new 401(k) plan or an IRA - be sure to have your old employer transfer the funds directly to your new employer or to an IRA you have already established (direct rollover). If you follow federal rollover rules, the transition will be seamless and no federal income tax will be withheld.

Cash out your savings

Although it may seem tempting to take the money and run, a cash distribution can lead to hefty taxes and penalties and put your hard earned savings in jeopardy. When retirement assets are paid directly to you, your employer is required to withhold a minimum of 20% for federal taxes. In addition, if you don't meet minimum age requirements when the distribution occurs, you may be subject to an additional 10% early distribution penalty.

Cashing out your retirement savings is almost never advisable unless you are faced with no other choice.

No matter which option you choose, it would be wise to discuss your particular situation with a qualified financial planner. The laws governing retirement assets and taxation are complex. A tax or financial professional can help you determine the most effective strategy for preserving your retirement savings to help ensure that your financial cushion will continue to grow into your retirement years.

Summer vacation can be a new experience for college students and their parents

College students living away from home have a few options for summer vacation, such as going back home to their parents, staying on-campus for classes or staying near campus to work. For those that go home, both parents and adult children can be surprised at how different living at home can be. Staying home for a few months can be very different than visiting for a weekend or a couple weeks during the holiday season.

Boundaries may have to be set and schedules for meal times may have to be coordinated, such as who will be home for which meals and what will be done for those meal times.

Don't allow young adult children to take advantage of being at home for the summer. Adult children should be able to pay for their own personal items or specific grocery items they want for themselves. To give adult children a bit of a financial break, parents can allow them to stay for the summer rent-free. In addition, as long as adult children don't cause too much of a financial strain, parents can pay for meals and utilities without asking them for money. However, if a problem does arise, it should be discussed immediately and financial arrangements may have to be made.

Since adult children have been on their own for a while, certain house rules, such as curfew, may not have to be enforced as heavily. However, it would be courteous for adult children to inform parents if they will be out very late or if they intend to stay over at someone else's house. Parents may want to consider giving adult children a key so it will be easier for them to come and go.

Adult children and parents a job to move on to a new phase in their life.

ELCA Lutherans to gather in Fremont

Hundreds upon hundreds of Nebraska ELCA Lutherans will gather June 1, 2 and 3 in Fremont for worship, workshops and forums, concerts, a Bible Village experience, conversations and church business at their annual gathering, Assembly & Festival 2007.

The theme for the Nebraska Synod Assembly & Festival 2007 is: "I have set before you an open door...stand up, step through, shout for joy!" based on Revelation 3:8a.

Pastor Kim Stover, Pastor Bill Koeber, Sue Stover, Deb Hammer, Kathy Johnson, Doug Mohl, Mary Mohl and Kris Robinson are representing Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne as voting members in discussing and voting on issues before the Church.

Elected from their home congregations, more than 800 Lutherans and a couple of hundred visitors will celebrate 100 years of Lutheran Campus Ministry and learn from insightful Bible study with Dr. Harry Wendt, writer of the Crossways Bible Series.

Dynamic speakers and uplifting praise and worship are only the beginning, as this Assembly & Festival shapes up as a family-friendly event, offering something for everyone.

Those gathered will laugh at humorous reflections from Christian comedian Dr. Dennis Swanberg, minister of encouragement, and learn from down-to-earth speaker Dr. Tex Sample, a lifestyle & church consultant who will address the Biblical mandate of justice and how the Church can be a significant factor in bringing mercy and justice to society.

Friday and Saturday afternoons will find participants choosing among 14 workshops to grow their skills as leaders. Planned discussions and educational forums before the Lutheran voters will include immigration issues, poverty and prayer, how Lutherans apply Scripture to daily life, and the Church's roles in public life.

A Saturday evening banquet will honor landmark ministry anniversaries for ministry leaders and outdoor picnics are planned for those who seek more casual mealtimes. For the first time, Nebraska ELCA Lutherans will continue their annual gathering into a large Sunday morning festival worship, and have invited the general public and nearby congregations to attend as well.

Two ministries are being uplifted for the special offerings taken during the Assembly & Festival: Campus Lutheran Ministry and Augusta Victoria Hospital in Jerusalem. In the Nebraska Synod, Lutheran Campus Ministry is celebrating all year long to observe 100 years of service to students at public colleges and universities across the country.

Lutheran World Federation's August Victoria Hospital seems a perfect match because of the creation of Bible Village in Hopkins Arena, Midland Events Center on the Midland Lutheran College Campus. Those attending the Assembly & Festival will be able to experience the marketplaces like those Jesus visited during his lifetime. There will be opportunity to experience the atmosphere of a first century Israeli village created with costumes, games, music, crafts and foods. Participants can learn to dance a traditional dance, write a prayer and place it in the Prayer Wall, taste Middle Eastern soups, make a basket or turn a white t-shirt into a costume! By sharing of their abundance through their offerings with the hospital, it makes "real" the Bible Village they experienced together.

Confirmation

Preserving memories

A monument was dedicated at the site of the former Zion Congregational Church east of Carroll on Sunday. According to Tim Rees, one of those responsible for getting the monument completed, "After the church was closed in 1997 and then torn down, I always felt a void driving by the site and not seeing anything. I looked every time I drove by." The Rev. Gail Axen dedicated the monument, as he served the church for over 41 years.

Our Savior Lutheran Church held its annual Vacation Bible School from May 20 to May 24. On May 20 the celebration began during Sunday School time with drama, a message from the Wise Man and music as the 12 tribes gathered to share the news and later decorate t-shirts to set the theme for the week, "Catch Jesus in Action in Galilee by the Sea."

After the church service, the children, parents and church families held a picnic on the lawn, grilling hamburgers and hot dogs. The picnic was hosted by a service group and was followed by games for the children.

The Wise Man (Pastor Stover) sits by The Sea and gives advice to his listeners during Vacation Bible School at Our Savior Lutheran Church last week.

Monday evening through Thursday the children were treated to an evening of drama, messages from the Wise Man (Pastor Stover), music and games from Jesus' time.

Each evening each tribe moved from place to place in the village to feel and do the things that Jesus may have experienced and doing evening with a devotion. Roaming the area each evening were the Tax Collector and Parisees who were in awe as to how many tribes were catching the spirit of Jesus.

The drama each evening, which involve parents and children, was directed by Sandra Wriedt.

The overall Vacation Bible School Director Deb Hammer did the organizational part of the VBS and Susan Urbanec did a lot of the preparation, along with the Charity Circle, getting the village area ready for the week of VBS and promotion several Sundays before the celebration.

There were 60 children and 40 older youth and parents who participated in the week of "Catching Jesus in Action in Galilee by the Sea."

The backdrop for last week's Vacation Bible School activities was completed by Rachel Von Fange.

Thinking about John McCain's story about the pledge of allegiance

(Note: You may have seen this before, but I received it again on Memorial day, and I thought it bore repeating. Especially, because, in many schools, the pledge is no longer recited. America's music teachers are engaged in a project to teach the Star Spangled Banner to all students; I believe we all need to know, and often recite, the pledge, also).

John McCain's remarks about the pledge of allegiance.

As you may know, I spent five and one half years as a prisoner of war during the Vietnam War. In the early years of our imprisonment, the NVA kept us in solitary confinement or two or three to a cell. In 1971 the North Vietnamese Army moved us from these conditions of isolation into large rooms with as many as 30 to 40 men to a room.

This was, as you can imagine, a wonderful change and was a direct result of the efforts of millions of Americans on behalf of a few hundred POWs 10,000 miles from home. One of the men who moved into my room was a young man named Mike Christian.

Mike came from a small town near Selma, Ala. He didn't wear a pair of shoes until he was 13 years old. At 17, he enlisted in the US Navy. He later earned a commission by going to Officer Training School. Then he became a Naval Flight Officer and was shot down and captured in 1967. Mike had a keen and deep appreciation of the opportunities this country and our military provide for people who want to work and want to succeed.

As part of the change in treatment, the Vietnamese allowed some prisoners to receive packages from home. In some of these packages were handkerchiefs, scarves and other items of clothing. Mike got himself a bamboo needle. Over a period of a couple of months, he created an American flag and sewed it on the inside of his shirt. Every afternoon, before we had a bowl of soup, we would hang Mike's shirt on the wall of the cell and say the Pledge of Allegiance.

I know the Pledge of Allegiance may not seem the most important part of our day now, but I can assure you that in that stark cell it was indeed the most important and meaningful event. One day, the Vietnamese searched our cell, as they did periodically, and discovered Mike's shirt with the flag sewn inside, and removed it.

That evening they returned, opened the door of the cell, and for the benefit of all of us, beat Mike Christian severely for the next couple of hours. Then, they opened the door of the cell and threw him in. We cleaned him up as well as we could.

The cell in which we lived had a concrete slab in the middle on which we slept. Four naked light bulbs hung in each corner of the room.

As I said, we tried to clean up Mike as well as we could. After the excitement died down, I looked in the corner of the room, and sitting there beneath that dim light bulb with a piece of red cloth, another shirt, and his bamboo needle, was my friend, Mike Christian. He was sitting there with his eyes almost shut from the beating he had just received, making another American flag.

He was not making the flag because it made Mike Christian feel better. He was making that flag because he knew how important it was to us to be able to pledge our allegiance to our flag and country. Remember Mike Christian the next time you repeat the pledge of allegiance.

Wet spring is good for tick survival

A wet spring brings perfect conditions for ticks and the diseases they carry, University of Nebraska-Lincoln entomologists say.

Three tick species — the Rocky Mountain wood tick, the American dog tick and the brown dog tick — are the most common ticks found in Nebraska, said Jack Campbell, entomologist at UNL's West Central Research and Extension Center at North Platte.

The Rocky Mountain wood tick and the American dog tick can transmit Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Symptoms of Rocky Mountain spotted fever include severe headaches, chills, fever and general aches and pains, Campbell said.

"A reddish-purple-black rash also may occur on the bottoms of the feet, ankles, palms, wrists and forearms a few days after infection," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said. "The rash can spread to the trunk, neck and face if left untreated. In addition, those infected can become highly agitated, develop insomnia, become delirious or go into a coma."

Diagnosis for Rocky Mountain spotted fever can be confirmed with a blood test by a local physician, Campbell said. Antibiotics can control the disease.

Another well-known disease, Lyme disease, also is transmitted by ticks. However, the deer or black-legged tick, which is the Lyme disease carrier, is not found in Nebraska, Campbell said.

However, the brown dog tick, which is found in Nebraska, is capable of transmitting several canine diseases, said David Boxler, UNL entomology research technician.

To combat ticks, the entomologists recommend controlling tick-infested vegetation around the home and using a contact residual insecticide such as Sevin on fringe areas of yards.

"This can reduce tick infestation of children, adults and pets," Campbell said.

Insect repellents for humans, such as Off, and shampoos or collars containing an insecticide for pets can help control tick infestations.

People spending time in tick-infested areas should thoroughly examine their bodies after leaving the area, Boxler said.

Tight-fitting clothing around the wrists, neck, waist and ankles also reduces the chance of ticks attaching. Light-colored clothing makes ticks easier to see.

To remove ticks, use tweezers to grasp the tick at the point where mouth parts enter the skin and gently pull until the tick is removed.

"Ticks generally require several hours of attachment before they can transmit a disease," he said. "Adult ticks climb on vegetation in the spring along animal trails or forested areas and attach to passing animals, most commonly horses or cows. This behavior is called questing. When the tick attaches to the animal it cuts a hole in the skin and inserts its feeding tube."

These feeding tubes have rows of recurved barbs that anchor the tick to its host. The tick then inserts an anticoagulant, which prevents blood from clotting and allows the tick to feed for a long time, he said.

The life cycle of ticks consists of four stages: eggs, six-legged larva (seed ticks), eight-legged nymph and adult.

These three tick species are all three-host ticks. Three-host ticks feed on blood, as seed ticks drop off the animal, reattach later as a nymph to a larger animal, drop off and reattach to an even larger animal, usually cattle or horses (or humans). The brown dog usually attaches to dogs for all three phases.

The survival rate for seed ticks, nymphs and adults usually is low because of the environment and the difficulty of finding a host. However, the low survival rate is offset by the great number of eggs deposited by a female and the ability of all life stages to survive long periods without feeding.

For more detailed information on ticks, consult Nebraska Extension NebGuide G1220, Controlling Ticks, available from local extension offices or online at <http://www.iar.pubs.unl.edu/send/t/g1220.pdf>. More information also is available at UNL's entomology web site at <http://entomology.unl.edu>.

Northeast Community College, the Siouxland Community Foundation, and Goldenrod Hills Community Action's Head Start program will soon partner to provide additional English as a Second Language (ESL) classes for adult learners in Dakota County.

The additional Northeast Community College ESL classes are made possible by a $2,000 grant from the Siouxland Community Foundation, with Northeast Community College Adult Basic Education grant funding providing a match of over $2,000. Classes will be held at the same time as Head Start classes in the South Sioux City Community Library.

According to Donna Anderson, Family Service Worker at Head

Start, this scheduling should help eliminate many barriers for Head Start parents. "Childcare, transportation, and long waiting lists make it very difficult for many parents to attend ESL classes," Anderson said. Approximately 80 families receive Head Start services in Dakota County. Over 50 percent of those families are Hispanic.

The additional ESL classes will be a part of Head Start's Family Literacy Program which supports early childhood literacy, parental involvement, educational outcomes for the whole family, and promotes higher education opportunities for Hispanic Families in Dakota County.

The classes, tentatively scheduled to start this summer and continue into the winter of 2008, will be free for all participants.

According to Amy Munderloh, Marketing Director with Goldenrod Hills Community Action, the Northeast Community College ESL program may help break the cycle of poverty and illiteracy for low-income families. "Many Hispanic parents of Head Start preschool children are first-generation American citizens," she said. "Many are underemployed and live below federal poverty standards."

"It is nearly impossible to achieve economic self sufficiency or be an active member in the community without having literacy skills," she said.

Northeast plans CPR instructor class in June

The Allied Health Department at Northeast Community College in Norfolk has scheduled a one-credit-hour class to teach the teachers.

The CPR Instructor class, with course number HLTH 1720-01/07A, meets Wednesdays, June 6-June 13 from 7-10 p.m. and Saturday, June 16, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., in the Ag/Allied Health Building, Room 237, on the Northeast campus in Norfolk.

This is an updated class that will cover the American Heart Association's new directions in the techniques of teaching and administering CPR.

Carol Franzluebbbers is the instructor of this class with a cost of $69.50.

To register for the class, visit northeastcollege.com or call Northeast Community College at (402)844-7000.

Lebsock shares information on the Missouri River Expo

David Lebsock, formerly of Wayne and now mayor of Ponca, was a speaker at a recent Wayne Rotary Club meeting. Lebsock gave a presentation on The Missouri River Outdoor Expo, which is set for Sept. 22 and 23 at Ponca State Park. This event, which is hands-on and family-oriented, was started in 2005 and covers everything from camping to hunting, biking, canoeing and more. Over 9,000 visitors came to Ponca for this event in 2005 and 23,000 came last year.

The Missouri River Outdoor Expo is an event in which the outdoor recreation community comes together to preserve the future and heritage of natural resources and outdoor recreation, provide families with hands-on opportunities to learn about outdoor skills, ethics, safety, respect and stewardship, annually celebrate outdoor traditions and provide opportunities to showcase outdoor products, tourism and organizations.

Lebsock noted that tourism at Ponca State Park is a big boost to Ponca businesses. Last year, between 500,000 to 600,000 cars went through the 2,400 acre park. He told Rotarians that his wife, Caroline, works at the park.

One of the events last year at the expo was Critter Corner, where children can dig for fossils. Some of the exhibits included a trapper tent with Sam Wilson of Wayne giving demonstrations, boat tours by Scott Wessel of Wayne, outdoor cooking, dog training, making a long boat and much more.

Be sure to mark your calendars for this event where there is something for everyone. Lebsock said if there are service organizations that would like to hear his presentation on the Missouri River Expo, he can be reached at 402-755-2511. He also notes volunteers are needed to help with the upcoming expo this fall. If you can help out, give him a call at the above telephone number.
