Lots of water

Portions of Wayne County received more than eight inches of rain last week, resulting in three county roads in the southeast part of the county being closed. Wayne County Emergency Management Director Deanna Beckman said the closings were done for the safety of county residents, especially with school busses now traveling over the roads.

Local actors to bring history to life

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Since 1883, Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne has played a vital role in the history of the community.

The history will come to life on Sunday, Sept. 9 when a number of local actors will portray prominent people in the city's history and share parts of their lives with the community.

A number of local citizens interested in the cemetery and its future are organizing a Spirit Walk that they hope will draw enough interest to become an annual event and even move to other cemeteries in the area.

"The cemetery is filled with living history, and although that history is open to interpretation, we would like to share it with the community," said Steve Gross, one of the organizers.

Guided tours will begin at 3 p.m. on Sept. 9 and leave the starting point every 15-20 minutes.

Certain characters who are buried in the cemetery have agreed to 'visit' with guests on the tour. These include Mable and Walter Savidge, "Sailor Bill," Fr. Kearnes, Mrs. Emma Baker, Henry Ley, John T. Bressler, Dr. Pile and Mrs. Amelia Hughes. Each of these seven stops will last approximately five minutes and include information on their lives and the events occurring in the community during their lives.

"We started with this idea early this year. We would like the community to know who these people were and how they affected the community," said Lou Wiltse, who is also among those organizing the event. "We hope to make this event fun and educational and hope to include information on cemetery art during the tours."

Those attending the Spirit Walk are asked to enter the cemetery through the west gate and park in the northwest corner of the cemetery. Tickets for the tour may be purchased at that point and the tour will begin from there. Golf carts will be available for those who are unable to walk the complete route.

Greenwood Cemetery started in 1883 with four sections. Since that time there have been two additions, bringing the current cemetery to 40 acres. According to cemetery records, approximately 50 burials take place in the cemetery each year.

Cost for the fundraising walk is $5 for adults and $3 for children. Refreshments will be served.

Proceeds from the event will go to the Greenwood Cemetery Association general fund. For more information, contact Steve Gross at 375-4245 or Lou Wiltse at 375-1555.

WAEDI continues to provide benefits to the community

In October of 2005 three entities, Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, Wayne Industries and Main Street Wayne, merged into one organization - Wayne Area Economic Development Incorporated (WAEDI).

WAEDI currently has 176 paid memberships including 148 businesses and 28 individuals.

"We would like to see this number grow to over 200. I feel that there are benefits to every business and business owner who belong to WAEDI," said David Simonsen, Executive Director.

A number of economic development projects are currently being undertaken by WAEDI.

These include the construction of a Speculation (Opportunity) Building in the community.

The city has already received pre-approval for $250,000 in funding from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development (NDED) and has submitted the application form. WAEDI officials expect to hear from NDED by Sept. 15 whether or not final approval is given to move forward on the construction of the building.

The money would come in the form of a $100,000 loan to be paid back after three years and a $150,000 grant. That money would then go into the city's Revolving Loan Fund to fund further economic development.

WAEDI officials are currently working on an application to become a Certified Economic Development Community in the state of Nebraska.

"We have been working on this process for nearly two years in some form and have been earnestly striving to attain this goal for more than a month," Simonsen said.

The process includes providing three trainings for local officials and a number of other trainings that have already taken place.

Certified Economic Development Communities are better positioned for economic development opportunities, are properly identified and documented as ready for economic development, marketed to business and industry and publicly recognized as economic development leaders.

"The city would not have been able to do this two years ago. The implementation of WAEDI and the work toward making an Opportunity building available and the implementation of other aspects of economic development have made this certification possible," Simonsen said.

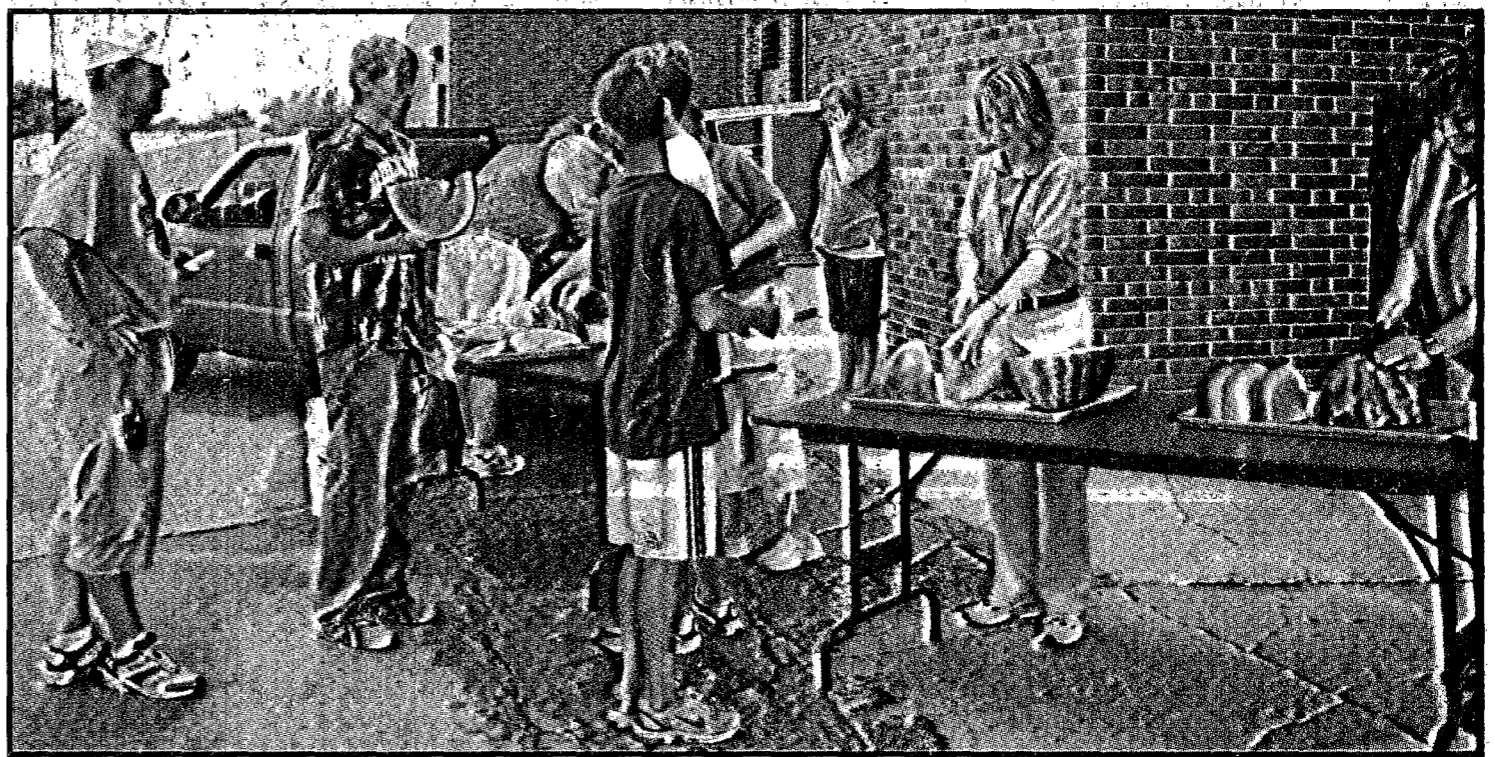

WAEDI officials are currently trying to bring in additional members to the organization and list a number of benefits to those who chose to join. These include access to the WAEDI mailing list, bulk mailing permit, job referrals, the use of WAEDI space for job interviews if necessary and joint marketing.

"Our main goal is to grow and better the community and joining this organization is an investment in the community," Simonsen said. "We also make an extra effort to utilize the services of our membership."

Membership in WAEDI runs from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 of each year. However, any new business or individual can join at any time and the membership fees will be prorated through the end of the current year.

Membership fees for individuals begin at $150. For businesses, the fee begins at $375 and for non-profit organizations, the fee is $100.

For more information on the benefits of WAEDI or the services provided, contact the office at (402) 375-2240.

After school snack

Members of the Wayne High School Cross Country team were the first athletes to enjoy watermelon on Tuesday, following after-school practices. The Providence Medical Center Physical Therapy Department provided the watermelon for the members of all the sports teams at Wayne High School. Similar events, also sponsored by the Physical Therapy Department, were held at Wakefield and Laurel in recent days.

WSC selected as site for telecasts

Wayne State College will be one of five remote sites in Nebraska for live telecasts of the E.P. Thompson 2007-08 lecture series on environmental issues, "Changing Nature."

The first of six telecasts will begin at 7 p.m. on Sept. 13 in Connell Hall Room 131 on campus. There is no admission charge.

With a grant from the Cooper Foundation, the Nebraska Humanities Council will collaborate with colleges and universities statewide to simulcast the 2007-08 E.N. Thompson Forum lectures on World Issues.

Other remote sites include Western Nebraska Community College in Scottsbluff, Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte, the University of Nebraska at Kearney and the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

National Geographic photographer Joel Sartore will give the first lecture on Sept. 13 at the original site for all the lectures, the Lied Center for Performing Arts at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The year's theme is "Changing Nature," with speakers exploring a cross-section of subjects related to the science and politics of environmentalism.

Other lecturers in the forum's 20th season are Sumita Narain, director of the Center for Science and Environment in Delhi, India; Amory Lovins, co-founder, chairman and chief scientist of the Rocky Mountain Institute; Richard Cizik, aka the "Green Evangelist," vice-president for governmental affairs of the National Association of Evangelicals; and William K. Reilly, president and CEO of Aqua International Partners.

An addition to the Thompson Forum schedule this year is the Charles and Linda Wilson Dialogue on Domestic Issues Oct. 15. Through a moderated debate between two recognized experts on ethanol, Douglas Durante and Jerry Taylor will explore varying viewpoints of an issue with significant impact on Nebraska and the world.

For 19 years, the Thompson Forum has brought a diversity of viewpoints on international and public policy issues to the citizens of Nebraska at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The series was named in honor of E.N. "Jack" Thompson, who served as president of the Cooper Foundation from 1964 to 1990 and as its chairman from 1990 until his death in 2002.

Thompson established the series in the hopes that it would promote better understanding of world events and issues for all Nebraskans. With the simulcast option in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Kearney, Wayne, and Omaha, even more Nebraskans will have the opportunity to benefit from outstanding speakers who are world-class experts on the subject of "Changing Nature."

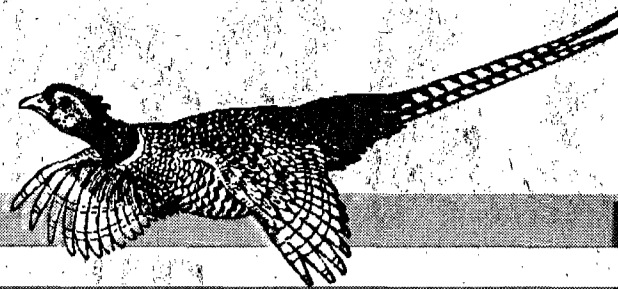

The lecture schedule is as follows:

Sept. 13: Joel Sartore, "Grounded: A Reflection on the Use of Life and Land." A native Nebraskan, Sartore began his career with the National Geographic Society in 1991. Since then, he has completed 17 stories for National Geographic magazine, all focusing on natural history and wildlife. Sartore has been recognized for his work by the National Press Photographers Association, the Inland Daily Press Association, and the Pictures of the Year International contest. Sartore's photo-

Blood Bank's campaign is in full swing

With the Heroes Unite, It's About Life campaign in full swing at the Siouxland Community Blood Bank, many towns are hosting community or employee blood drives and recruiting donors to ensure patients in their area will have blood products when needed.

Upcoming blood drives in the area are: Wayne: Monday, Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Wayne State College and in Allen on Sept. 10, from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Allen Fire Hall.

You can donate in Dixon on Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Fire Hall and in Wayne, on Tuesday, Sept. 11, the blood drive will be held from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church. You can also donate in Wayne on Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Wayne State College.

The Heroes Unite, It's About Life campaign began May 1 and continues through Sept. 30. With about three months of the Heroes Unite, It's About Life campaign yet to go, many communities still have the opportunity to hold additional blood drives, and potentially affect their ranking a great deal. Community support and participation is integral to the success of Cyclists ride through Omaha on the annual Legacy Run for the American Legion.

Locals part of American Legion Legacy Run

Several people from this area were among those taking part in the annual American Legion Legacy Run this year.

The event started Aug. 19 in Indianapolis, Ind. and was scheduled to end Aug. 23 in Reno, Nev. Along the way, organizers hope to collect more than the $180,000 that was collected during last year's ride.

The event, which included more than 150 motorcyclists from across the United States and Germany, is a fundraiser for the American Legion Legacy Scholarship Fund. Funds collected will be used for children of those soldiers who have been killed since 9-11.

Among those attending from this area were Bud Neel, Area A Vice Commander of the American Legion, and Dave Bloomfield, a member of the Winside American Legion. Bloomfield drove an Affiliated Foods truck to Grand Island, where the riders stopped for the dedication of a memorial at the Grand Island Veterans Hospital. The memorial was dedicated to Jeff Hansen, a soldier, police officer and volunteer fireman from Grand Island who was killed in Iraq.

As the motorcyclists crossed the state of Nebraska, members of the American Legion and the public manned the bridges as the riders crossed them.

Neel said that as of Aug. 20, the Legacy Run had raised over $170,000. The Winside American Legion and Sons of the American Legion and Wayne Eagles Club made monetary donations, as did a number of other local individuals.

this program, as blood donors are working hand in hand with fire, rescue and police units in town to save lives.

"We have witnessed area patients and their families that are experiencing tough times as they deal with illness or injury, and these struggles happen on a daily basis. We, as citizens, can guarantee blood is available when patients need it by supporting a blood drive and participating in Heroes Unite," said Terry Stecker, Director of Operations for Siouxland Paramedics.

To date, the top 10 communities include Boyden, Cherokee, Ida Grove, Le Mars, Manning, Onawa, Orange City, Iowa; Yankton, SD and Pender and Wayne.

The top three communities with the highest percentage of blood donors registering to donate in comparison to the combined size of their fire, police and rescue squads will win a sponsored donation towards community fire and rescue equipment. Cash awards for Heroes Unite, It's About Life are provided through corporate sponsorship from Cargill Inc., Prestige Collision Repair and McClintock Insurance.

To be eligible to donate blood individuals must be at least 17 years of age; however there is no upper age limit as long as the donor is in good health. In addition, donors need to weigh at least 110 pounds and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days. A photo I.D. is required at the time of registration.

For more information about "Heroes Unite, It's About Life", the Siouxland Community Blood Bank or blood drives in your area, call 712-252-4208 or 800-798-4208 or visit their website at www.siouxlandbloodbank.org

Tells her story

As a tear slides down her cheek, Lorraine Erdmann of Crofton tells Northeast Community College students in Norfolk about the death of her daughter, Ariana, on April 27, 2002. Ranked number one scholastically in her class, Ariana died in an alcohol-related accident northwest of Crofton at 8:20 the morning after her junior prom. She was a passenger in a vehicle driven by an intoxicated teenager. "We hurt and we grieve each day because her time with us was too brief," she said. Erdmann appeared with Investigator Bruce Mitchell of the Nebraska State Patrol who advised students to be smart and be safe. "Always have a designated driver," he said. Their appearance at Northeast was sponsored by the Nebraska Collegiate Consortium.

Gross gives presentation on LaPorte cemetery at museum in Wakefield

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

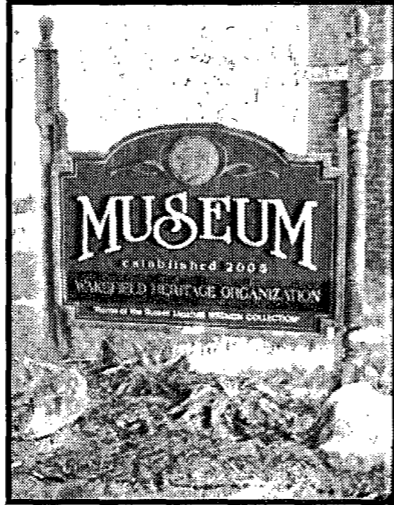

Steve Gross of Wayne was a recent speaker at the Graves Library Museum in Wakefield. His presentation was on the LaPorte Cemetery and the connection with Wakefield. Gross began by giving a history of his love of cemeteries, which was started by his older brother, a military historian, who took him to the cemetery in Pender years ago and pointed out military stories as well as artwork. From that time on, Gross was hooked.

In 1992, when Gross was recovering from a heart attack, he was with his brother again riding around the countryside and discovered the LaPorte Cemetery southeast of Wayne (the town of LaPorte was two miles east of the cemetery). The abandoned cemetery was overgrown and in need of care. His brother noticed there were graves of many young people, as well as an 1812 veteran (Nathaniel Allen) which is a rare find.

While looking around at the cemetery, Merlin Beiermann, who lives across the road, came over and asked what they were doing. Commenting on the care of the cemetery, Beiermann noted that abandoned pioneer cemeteries are the responsibility of the counties where they are located.

Since counties prioritize their work, cemeteries usually come up last. So, the men put their heads together and came up with a clean-up plan. They worked taking out over 40 trees, burned off the area, put 40 more trees in around the perimeter that were donated by Graves Library Museum is at 206 W. 3rd Street in Wakefield.

Charlie Maier and Country Nursery, cleaned and fixed the iron gate and finally were amazed how everything greened up and looked better.

In the course of the project, they noticed the names of the people buried there and found interesting stones about them by looking through old records and newspaper articles. The Wilson Durin family donated the land for the cemetery and had the first burial there in 1871 of their son, Charles, who died when a tree accidentally fell on him.

Betsy and Anna Durin, who burned in a prairie fire are also buried there. Residents of LaPorte (300 in 1870) watched as a prairie fire raged and traveled from Altona to their direction. There were futile attempts to save buildings and Betsy tried to save her daughter by covering her with her body.

Gross noted relation (third generation) of the Durin family from Montana recently came looking for their family gravestones and were amazed they found them.

Another relative of someone buried in the cemetery is Richard Hunter of Wisner, a retired school teacher, also stopped by and was amazed at the cleanup of the cemetery. There are a number of individuals from the Hunter family buried in the LaPorte cemetery.

Gross noted relatives of the pioneer families buried there continue to show up. Recently, he found a Durin family relative in Laurel.

A few years ago, Wayne State College Biology professor and naturalist Mark Hammer was driving around and noticed the native prairie grass and plants at the cemetery. He got his class involved, a book was put together about the native grass and plants found there and classes are occasionally held there.

Every year, Gross, Beiermann and volunteers mow and get ready for Memorial Day. The stones have been cleaned and there's a flag pole there that was donated by Beiermann.

Gross learned from a newspaper article that some of the stone hauled in a freight wagon by Nels Nelson. Nelson died in 1956 and was 96 years old. The location of each stone in the cemetery is recorded as that was an Eagle Scout project one year. There are 21 headstones there.

"No one can be sure how many bodies were moved. There was a map at one time as it's mentioned in newspaper articles but it was taken from the courthouse in Wayne many years ago and never returned," Gross said.

Gross has used a metal detector and has found old markers from the Odd Fellows and the military. Footstones have been found too.

"Most of the stones are pretty sturdy," Gross said, "but you can only read the epitaphs on two of them good. I looked on the Internet trying to find a way to trace them and found that pressing Play Dough over epitaphs is a neat way to find out what they say."

In his research, Gross found connections between Wakefield and Wayne from the closing of LaPorte. Some of the buildings in Wakefield and also in Wayne were moved from the LaPorte site and C.E. Hunter, who was judge at LaPorte wouldn't let courthouse records out of his sight. In the end, he was disgusted with the vote on moving everything to Brookdale (Wayne) so he moved to Wakefield.

He said in gathering information in his research of LaPorte and the cemetery, he looked through old newspapers and through Dorothy Huse Nyberg's book on the history of Wayne County (1938). The Huse family owned the newspaper in Wayne for many years. Gross had an article on LaPorte published in the American Cemetery magazine in June, 2004. Gross ended his presentation with saying that if anyone has information or old records on LaPorte, please contact him as he's always interested in finding out more.

Candice, with her bracelets and part of the items that were going in her first care package.

Girl starts company to help soldiers

Candice Rastede, a fifth grader from Allen, has a really big heart for such a young lady. She has created her own little company "Bracelets for the Brave," because she has a strong desire to help those in need or that are far from home.

In the past, she has had fundraisers to earn money to send to victims of Hurricane Katrina and American Cancer Society. She tries to pick a different area of need each year. This year she has been making bracelets so that she can raise money to send care packages over to the four soldiers from Allen that belong to the 600th Transportation Unit, they are currently serving in Iraq.

Candice said that this fundraiser has meant more to her because she personally knows the soldiers that she is sending packages to. So far, Candice has raised over $500, and would like to send over packages at least four times during the soldier's deployment.

Candice will sit in front of the tv and string bracelets and necklaces for hours! She says that it's fun to do, but it is more fun to go shopping with her mom, Mary and her sister, Amber to pick out the items to include in the packages.

Candice has also received some help from a friend, Lindsay Sullivan, in making bracelets, and from Cindy Sperry, one of the soldier's mom, who took them to work and helped sell them. Amy Stewart, from Allen, donated a bunch of beads to her. Her aunt, Leslie, had a friend who came up with the company name for her.

She is planning on selling her bracelets at Wakefield Balloon Days in October and at some upcoming games in Allen. At $3 each, the bracelets are a wonderful gift idea, you can pick your school colors, they would be a fun stocking stuffer, or just because you would like to help.

Thank you, Candice, for supporting your local soldiers, we know that they will really appreciate you when they receive their packages of candy, gum, games, Advil, Vaseline, bandaids, tic tacs -- or whatever else you decide to surprise them with.

Teens tested bones at Wayne Public Library to determine how old they were.

Library holds special program, plans upcoming storytime

The Wayne Public Library played host to 21 tweens and adults who came to feast on Pharaoh food, oranges, melons, dried breads (crackers), and mummie wraps (pigs in a blanket) on Aug. 23.

All enjoyed tales about dead bodies and secret places from the resident expert egyptologist, Dr. Sue Ellis, of Wayne State College, who spoke of her digs and travels. Dr. Ellis enriched her stories with a "power point presentation" and brought artifacts, skulls and bones to show the students.

The highlight of the evening was finding out how to field test a bone to find out if it is over 500 years old

- if it sticks to your tongue! Almost all the 17 tweens gave it a try.

Upcoming Youth events at the library include:

Fall Story Time will begin Saturday mornings, 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 8 and run through Nov. 17. Stories and activities for preschool - elementary age children.

Mother Goose story time will be Wednesday mornings at 10:30-11 a.m. for toddlers through four-year olds and their care givers. Please register at the front desk as class size is limited.

For more information on programs at the library, call 375-3135.

White Dragon Tattooing and Body Piercing open for business in Wayne

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

White Dragon Tattooing and Body Piercing at 215 Main Street in Wayne opened for business on July 26. Owners are Ken Allsman and Matt Allsman of Columbus, who are the tattoo artists. Aaron Beaudette of Norfolk does body piercing. Allsman also owns White Dragon Tattoo in Columbus. Hours at the business in Wayne are: Noon - 8 p.m. or longer with an appointment. The telephone number is 402-833-5354.

For Ken and Matt, the art of tattooing has been passed down through the family. "I started giving tattoos around nine years ago," Matt said. "My uncle, Mike Allsman in Hastings, owns White Dragon Tattoo there and has been giving tattoos for a long time. My Dad learned from him and I learned from my Dad."

Both tattoo and body piercing training is done through apprenticing. Aaron apprenticed under Dustin Milligan (formerly of Wayne) and has been doing body piercing for around 10 years. Besides job shadowing and hands-on experience in tattooing and in body piercing, there is yearly blood pathogen and first aid training (every two years) that is required by law to complete.

"Tattooing is becoming more popular every year," Matt said. "It is a beautiful art; it's amazing. There isn't the stigma there used to be."

Aaron notes facial piercing is big and is much more acceptable than it used to be.

Both Matt and Aaron agree people from all walks of life are getting both tattoos and body piercing. The most common place for tattoos for a woman is her lower back and for a man, it's his upper arms. For piercing, it's the belly button for a woman and it's the ears for men.

As for the most popular flash designs chosen for tattoos, it has been tribal designs.

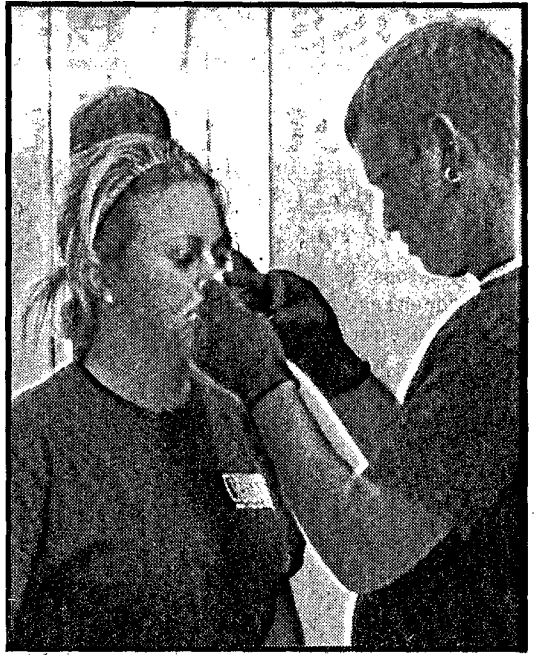

Tattooing and body piercing is all about different sizes of needles and talent. The men agree they will do whatever the customer has in mind for design and placement but will follow their own artistic minds if customers want them to.

Matt notes they have thousands of flash designs on display and colors are shown that they can match or they can blend colors to get different shades. Customers aren't limited to the designs on the wall and in the books.

Aaron added there are at least 1,000 different types of material and designs of jewelry available for body piercing. He too can follow the customer's plan or can offer his suggestions.

The men know a sterile environment is important for both tattooing and body piercing and that's why the back room of their business location in Wayne, where the work is done, was remodeled so it's very clean. Also, the men use rubber gloves, topical antiseptic, sterilized equipment, and new needles for each person.

Consent forms stating the customer's identification and age, which has to be 18 or older in order to get a tattoo or under 18 with documented parental consent, that they are not diabetic and are disease-free have to be signed before any work is done.

Matt and Aaron said the customer leaves in a sterile condition and it's up to them to keep it that way.

"We won't pressure anyone into anything," Matt said. "We want them to be comfortable."

"If anyone wants something different or new, there's no limit to what is possible with body piercing" Aaron said.

Ken, Matt and Aaron emphasize they want customers to be happy with their tattoos and piercings. For their tattoo customers, there's free touch-up work available (tattoos can fade over time from exposure to the sun). The men invite anyone interested or curious to stop in, meet them and take a look around.

Blue Devils kick off new season

The Wayne High Blue Devils are now 3-1 on the brand new season.

The WHS softball team opened its fall campaign with a 2-1 record at the Lincoln High School Tournament played at the Doris Bair Complex in Lincoln on Aug. 25.

The Blue Devils opened with 4-3 victory against Grand Island. Mirisa Carroll picked up the pitching win, while the offensive effort was paced by Alesha Finkey and Caitlin Gustafson with one double each.

The Islanders took a 1-0 lead against Wayne after the first inning, but the Blue Devils were able to tie the game in the second.

Grand Island pulled ahead with a pair of runs in the fifth frame, while Wayne was able to respond with a run in the bottom of the inning to only trail 3-2.

Wayne claimed the victory with a pair of runs in the seventh to earn its first win of the season.

The second game saw Shannon Jarvi throw a shutout as Wayne downed Lincoln North Star 2-0.

The Blue Devils outhit the Navigators 9-2 and took advantage of three errors to plate one run in both the first and fifth innings to hold on for the win.

WHS lost its third game of the tourney in a 9-0 defeat by Beatrice, who advanced to the championship rounds after winning the pool play portion of the tournament.

Beatrice mustered a strong offensive showing against Wayne with 10 hits, while limiting WHS to only three.

Four Blue Devil errors also allowed Beatrice to take control as the team broke open a 3-0 advantage with six runs in the seventh frame.

The Blue Devils rebounded on Aug. 27 in big way with an 11-4 road win over last season state qualifier Twin River.

Wayne's bats were on fire as the Blue Devils cranked out 15 hits.

The offense was paced by a triple from Andrea Pieper and doubles from Finkey and Jarvi.

Wayne broke open a 2-1 advantage with five runs in the fourth inning to pull ahead for a comfortable 7-2 lead after four frames.

Offensively, Finkey went 3-for-3 with three RBIs and two runs scored, Gustafson finished 3-for-3 with one run and a pair of RBIs and Riley Hoffart was 2-for-4 at the plate with two runs scored.

Wayne State volleyball opens season with tourney sweep

The 21st-ranked Wayne State College volleyball team opened the 2007 season last weekend with five wins at the Shepherd University Tournament in West Virginia.

The first game of the road trip saw WSC post an easy 3-0 victory over Shepherd University on Aug. 23.

The Wildcats won by scores of 30-9, 30-17 and 30-16 over the Rams.

Senior All-American middle hitter and Belden native Emily Schroeder led the Wildcats in hitting with 13 kills.

Sioux City Heelan freshman Jenna

Jansen notched 40 set assists in her first collegiate start at setter for WSC, while senior libero Laura Dolezal accounted for 21 digs to pace the 'Cats on defense in the win.

The team added to more tourney wins on Aug. 24 as the Wildcats disposed of St. Edwards from Texas in the first match 3-0 (30-19, 30-15, 30-25) and later swept Slippery Rock (Pa.) in three games by scores of 31-29, 30-13 and 30-18.

In the win over St. Edwards, Schroeder had 17 kills, while hitting .412 in the match.

Freshman Jennifer Hefner and junior Brittany Van Beek each added seven kills for the Wildcats, who outhit St. Edwards in the match 372-103.

Jansen handed out 42 set assists and Dolezal had 11 digs to round out WSC statistical leaders.

No statistics were available on Wayne State in the win over Slippery Rock.

"I felt like we did a nice job offensively and our newcomers performed well and stayed composed when things got tight early against Slippery Rock," WSC head coach Scott Kneifl said. "Our defense bailed us out several times when we were behind and they played well. I thought our two outsides (Brittany Van Beek and Meredy Dybbs) played very well today and Jenna Jansen (freshman setter) did a great job of distributing the ball, keeping the opponents guessing."

The squad cruised to a 30-12, 30-12 and 30-23 win over Elizabeth City State of North Carolina and defeated No. 24 Lock Haven (Pa.) in three games 30-23, 30-22, 33-22 on Aug. 24 as tournament play continued.

No statistics were available on the matches.

"Our defense stepped up to the challenge against their top hitters and that was the difference in the match against Lock Haven," Kneifl said. "I thought we did some really good things offensively, but our defense was better than theirs and that was the difference in the match."

The Wildcats (5-0) resume play this weekend at the Rockhurst Tournament in Kansas City on Friday and Saturday.

Elkhorn Valley Cycling had three entries in NORBA Nebraska State Champion MTB race

Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster had three entries at the 2007 NORBA Nebraska State Championship MTB race held Aug. 25 at Swanson Park in Bellevue. Those three riders scored two race medals and two more state championship medals.

Course conditions were sketchy early in the day. The Psychowpath <http://www.nebraskacyclingnews.com/content/blogcategory/169/191/> committee, THOR; <http://www.trailshaveourrespect.org/> trail crew, and promoting group Lincoln Plating-Lemond <http://www.midwestwheelmasters.com/> decided to delay the day's start times three hours to allow the trail to dry out from the early week rains. This left the singletrack tacky in most areas but very slippery in many of the tight corners.

To further compound the situation, the course was run backward, taking away most of the home field advantage for the locals while making every root and log crossing interesting. One climb in particular, a fast downhill under normal conditions, became a run-up for the race putting even the Expert racers off the bike each lap.

Norfolk's Jamie Bachmann, in her second MTB race ever and last as a Beginner, took the Women's Beginner by nearly two minutes over the second place finisher. Jamie pulled away from the competition from the beginning, opening up a huge lead on the field, nearly making up the 30 second start gap on the next start wave ahead of her.

With the course being run in reverse, several obstacles were much more difficult, including the bridge crossings. Jamie found this out the hard way, running off a bridge and plunging several feet into a ravine injuring her right hand. She still powered on, finishing in fine form.

In Men's Beginner Clydesdale, Jon Downey of Norfolk lead 2007 Psychowpath series leader Dave <http://www.nencycling.org/resources/pictures/082507155900.jpg> Marson for the entire race. Downey had a poor start but quickly picked off several riders in his start wave. Marson would chase and hold Downey's wheel only to fall off the pace in the climbs and fall off literally in some of the sharp corners. Downey also carried some of the singletrack across the finish line with him after a spectacular endo in a root-infested corner. Downey finished third overall and also took the NORBA Nebraska State Championship gold medal by virtue of being a annual license holder. Downey will move to Sport in 2008.

Men's Sport Master 45+ competitor and 2006 Psychowpath Champion Tim Powell of Wayne also overcame a poor start and finished sixth. Powell, currently in training for the Dakota 50 <http://www.dakota50.com/>, mixed it up hard with season-long rivals even though he said afterward he was not feeling 100 percent on form. Tim was awarded a third place State Championship medal.

Final standings for the 2007 Nebraska Lottery Psychowpath series have not been posted however Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster will have top five finishers for the year in these three riders. Powell went into this race in second place and will hopefully maintain that position.

Full results will be linked here when available. Photos of the event by Tom Winfield <http://www.tomwinfield.com/bike/mtn-bike/mtn-races.html> will also be available soon.

It's magic

Local magician Joe Brogie entertained young and old alike recently. His performance was part of a Back to School promotion sponsored by and held at Pizza Hut in Wayne. Brogie performed a number of card tricks and other magic feats using his audience for assistance. Following the magic show, attendees were treated to root beer floats and other snacks.

Crit series finale exciting

The Norfolk Criterium Series finished for 2007 with large fields and sprint finishes. The Crit Series, hosted by Elkhorn Valley Cycling powered by Monster and held at Northeast Community College, saw attendance increase considerably in its first year. A large group of spectators also turned out taking advantage of the shade and picnic tables on the NECC campus.

Twelve racers in four categories lined up for 30 minutes of racing. Speeds on the technical course averaged well over 20 mph even with several right and left hand corners to negotiate each lap. Sarah Herzinger of Beemer started and finished her very first bicycle race to take a solo win in the Women's Beginner class. Jamie Bachmann had a similar win in the Women's Advanced division.

The Beginner Men's class had its largest turnout with four racers. Todd Jochum (Stanton) went off the front early and cruised to a victory. Dennis Smith and Jon Downey finished second and third, respectively, with Smith narrowly holding off a finish sprint by Downey. Mark Herzinger finished fourth.

A trio of riders pushed the Advanced Men's pace quite high as Dan Spray, Duane Blair, and John Spray raced head to head for the entire 30 minutes. Dan Spray pushed Blair the entire race in one of his strongest efforts of the 2007 season. In the end, Blair held on for first, and John Spray out-sprinted brother Dan for second. Scott Blair (Pierce) took fourth. Cody Cleveland marked his return to Norfolk with a fifth place finish and Richard Hake of Madison took sixth.

Results:
Advanced Men:
1. Duane Blair, Norfolk

2. John Spray, Norfolk
  3. Dan Spray, Norfolk
  4. Scott Blair, Pierce
  5. Cody Cleveland, Norfolk

SUPPORT THE TROOPS!

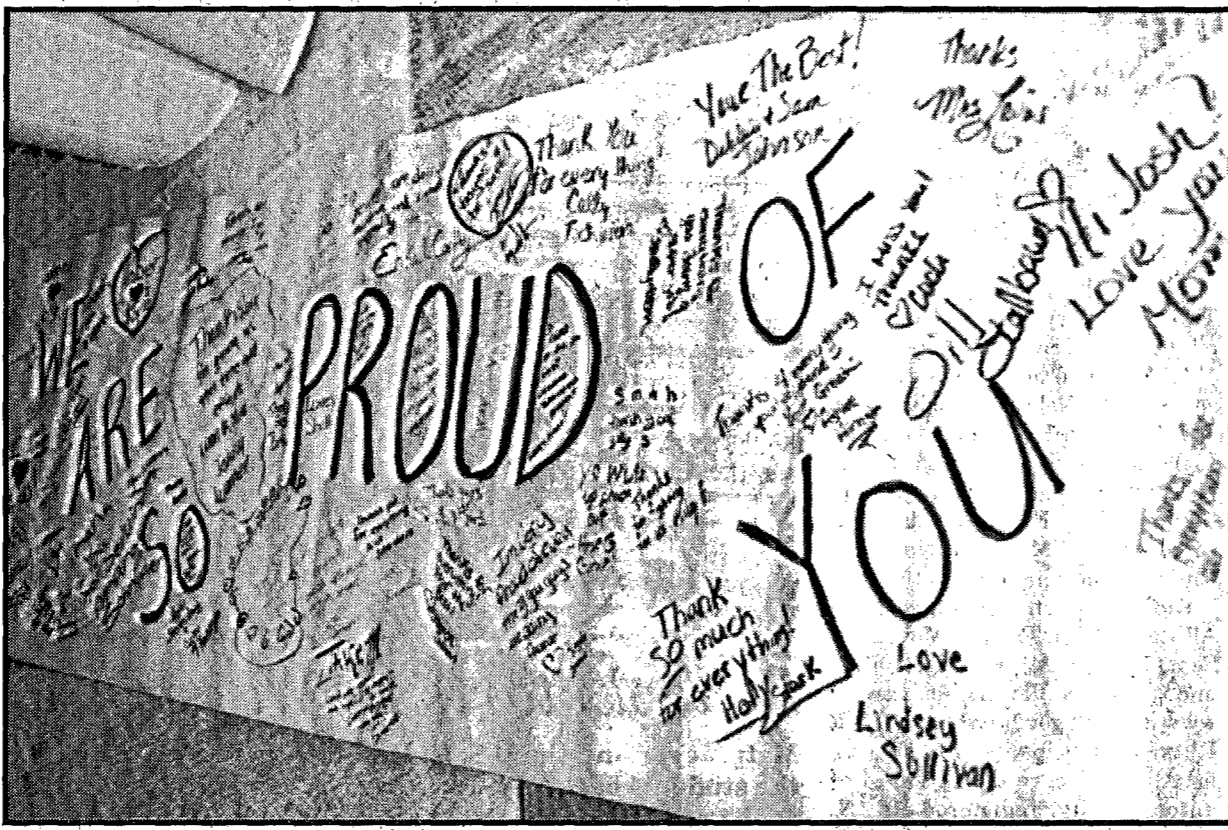

On Aug. 24, the Allen Volleyball girls held a "Support the Troops!" volleyball scrimmage. Admittance to the game was an item to send to the four soldiers from Allen who are currently serving in Iraq with the 600th Transportation unit. There was a banner that was signed with thanks and greetings that will be sent to the soldiers along with several boxes of donated items. Candice Rastede, Bracelets for the Brave, was selling bracelets and necklaces; she uses the money that she raises to send over care packages.

The scrimmage began with a recording of the crowd yelling a "shout out" to the movie camera that will be sent as a video along with the supplies. The crowd rallied behind the girl's effort to support their friends who are supporting our country. If you like to donate something to send along, or send something yourself, please contact Michelle Saxon or LeAnn Hoffman.

The Allen Lady Eagle volleyball team would like to thank everyone who donated to the Scrimmage for the Soldiers event. The girls are still collecting donations to help defray the cost of shipping the packages. If you'd like to donate, please contact Missy Sullivan.

Program partnership helps Nebraska kids get moving all year long

Summer is winding down and school doors are beginning to open again. It's time to think about ways to keep kids physically active throughout the upcoming year.

Three Nebraska programs, All Recreate on Fridays, N-Lighten Kids and Summer Play Every Day, have joined forces to provide free resources to schools, youth organizations, and families.

The joint effort, called Kids in Motion, is designed to provide more support, bigger incentives, and lots of exciting and educational ideas for coordinators working with preschool through middle school-age youth across Nebraska.

The main goals of Kids in Motion are:

- Get kids moving and have fun doing it.
- Educate youth to be active through a variety of movements - at any time and in any place.

- Create a physical and social environment that encourages and supports physical activity and healthy eating behaviors.

- Provide a variety of creative ideas that will support existing programs and activities to increase activity time.

- Ultimately, prevent and reduce childhood obesity in Nebraska.

"Kids in Motion encourages youth, families, schools, and communities to work together, using any type of activity that works best in their individual setting," said Dr. Joann Schaefer, Chief Medical Officer for DHHS. "The goal is to accumulate 60 minutes of activity daily. This level of daily activity, as recommended by the National Association of Sport and Physical Education (NASPE), helps combat the increasing obesity in the youth population." One in three Nebraska youth are either at risk of becoming overweight or are already overweight, according to a survey done by the Nebraska School Nurses in 2003.

This trend often continues and worsens throughout adulthood. Two in every three Nebraska adults are overweight or obese.

All Recreate on Fridays is sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, N-Lighten Kids is sponsored by the Nebraska Sports Council and Summer Play Every Day is sponsored by the YMCA and Nebraska Children and Families Foundation.

Kids in Motion kicks off with the All Recreate on Fridays Movement Sept. 7 - Dec. 21. For registration and program details, log on to www.dhhs.ne.gov/hew/hpe/nafh/ARF.htm. Participants who sign up for ARF will have the option to be automatically registered in N-Lighten Kids (Feb. 1 - May 1, 2008) and Summer Play Every Day (June 1 - Aug. 31, 2008).

For more information, contact art@dhhs.ne.gov or call (402) 471-2101.

VA clinic held at National Guard Armory

Several staff members of the Veterans Service Administration from Lincoln were in Wayne at the National Guard Armory on Aug. 14 to hold a medical clinic for returning veterans from Iraq, as well as for all veterans.

Their goal is to enroll returning veterans and get them established with services in the VA system. Currently returning Veterans who separate from Active duty are eligible for two years of free care for service related issues and those who enroll with the VA during this period will maintain enrollment status after their two years have ended.

In addition, the clinic provides information on how to get connected to Veteran Benefits so veteran's can apply to receive compensation for their service-related injuries.

"It is better if they get into the system with their service-connected injuries sooner than later," Wardlow said.

Plus, early screening, especially for Post Traumatic Stress Disorder or brain injury helps veterans Cay Tiernan, UN, CEN of Lincoln takes a blood pressure reading from Walter Scholz, a veteran from Norfolk at the recent VA medical clinic held at the armory in Wayne.

Wardlow said that once veterans are registered into the VA system, they can be seen at any VA location

Exhibition of USD graduate student's art to be held

The University of South Dakota's Main Gallery in the Warren M. Lee Center for the Fine Arts will host "PAINTED CONSTRUCTIONS: Looking Out; Looking In" from

Judith Berry

Aug. 20-Sept. 7.

The exhibition stands as the thesis work for M.F.A. student Judith Berry, and will be open to the public weekdays from 8 a.m.- 5 p.m. and weekends from 1-5 p.m. A closing reception for the exhibition is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 7, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Berry said her goal is to connect to everyday experiences on a personal level to offer an insight into our human commonalities.

"Through my development of space I want to offer the viewers familiar experiences; yet, evoke an odd sense as individuals experience my imaginary space," said Berry.

Berry's work features paintings with constructed spaces that extend beyond the canvas. She is combining traditional painted canvases with found objects and constructed walls to create an architectural installation. Groups of paintings are presented as living areas in and out of a typical house in which the viewers become participants in the space.

The subjects of the paintings are figures. In most cases, the figures make direct eye contact with the viewers; other painted figures do not.

For more information about the "PAINTED CONSTRUCTIONS: Looking Out; Looking In" exhibit, please contact The University of South Dakota Director of Art Galleries John A. Day at (605) 677-5713 or jday@usd.edu

High cost of food should not be blamed on ethanol

In recent weeks, U.S. consumers have been fed a steady diet of misinformation regarding food price increases. A favorite tactic has been to blame ethanol and higher corn prices for increases in the cost of food.

The fact is, increased demand for corn has had a nominal effect on food prices. Americans continue to enjoy the safest, most affordable and most abundant food supply in the world.

Food companies have jumped into blaming ethanol for their price hikes, but here's the real truth:

Corn flakes: Only a nickel's

Bob Dickey, District 4, Nebraska Corn Board

worth of corn goes into a box of this cereal. The cereal costs anywhere from $3.00 to $4.00 a box in grocery stores. The majority of your money goes towards labor and marketing costs. Don't forget the energy costs required to process, package and transport the cereal; fuel is expensive. Starbucks coffee: Starbucks, which charges an exorbitant amount for a regular cup of coffee, claims it must charge more for drinks because dairy prices have gone up due to ethanol. This is not so: dairy prices are up because of increased demand for whey protein in China, and because of an increased demand for milk in the U.S. after dairy farmers sold off heifers following a time when there was an oversupply of milk.

Meat products: Some of the richest companies in the world process and sell you chicken, pork and beef. These companies watch their profits soar, yet complain that feed prices have increased. The Tyson Company has even benefited from biofuels by selling chicken grease for fuel.

Numerous studies have shown that rising energy costs have a significantly greater impact on food prices than a rise in corn prices. A 33 percent rise in crude oil prices which translates into a $1.00 per gallon increase in the price of regular unleaded gasoline, results in a 0.6 to 0.9 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index for food. An increase of $1.00 for a bushel of corn would cause the CPI for food to increase by only 0.3 percent.

Nebraska is very well situated to take advantage of the synergy that exists today between corn, ethanol, distillers grains and livestock. With so many positive opportunities, it is truly counterproductive to have so much negative and misleading information being bantered about regarding corn and ethanol. We hope consumers will sort out the rhetoric and review the facts to fully understand corn's role in America's food and fuel supplies. It is times like these when it is even more important to seek facts and apply common sense to the discussion.

Banks do foreclose on loans

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association - The interest-paying proletariat often sees the word "bank" as synonymous with all manner of institutions whose business it is to make money by means of making loans.

Regardless of what they are called, it is understood that these institutions foreclose on loans that aren't working out well - for the institutions.

It has been ever thus. The faithful believe the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Borrowers know the bank lendeth, and that it will take more than prayer to save you if the bank decides to foreclose.

Jokes about banking are generic. As in: A banker is someone who will loan you an umbrella, but demand its return the minute it rains. Or: A banker will continue lending money to anyone who can prove they don't need it.

Take this business of a few million Americans, and a comparatively few Nebraskans, losing homes to foreclosures.

We're talking about loans that were unaffordable after the "variable" kicked in on those "variable" interest rates. We're talking about loans that were approved even though some borrowers had to borrow even the down payment.

Some observers have noted that for every high-risk loan that was approved, there was a borrower who sought and accepted it. Those observers are, in the final analysis, correct.

The fact that a deal sounds good and makes you happy doesn't mean that it is good, or that it won't make you miserable.

A few times each decade, Americans pay the price of not understanding, or ignoring, the first rule of business: Caveat emptor. That means, "let the buyer beware."

Millions of us err in presuming that, when it comes to so basic a deal as home-loan policy, millions of bankers wouldn't all make the same policy mistakes.

Wrong, boys and girls. Wrong, wrong, wrong.

History indicates bankers and banks, taking one with another, are cattle. They are possessed of a herd mentality worthy of lemmings.

In fact, it isn't difficult to envision a mob of bankers convincing themselves that there could be a profit in long-term loans to lemmings.

Remember the decade of the 70s, when banks kept lending more and more money to farm operations, figuring (apparently) that the value of ag land wouldn't go down because ... why was that? Maybe they thought President Reagan was kidding about stopping inflation.

How could anyone with a grasp of basic arithmetic not know that a crop of "sub-prime" home loans would fall to increasing interest rates, like a wheat field goes down under hail the size of hand grenades?

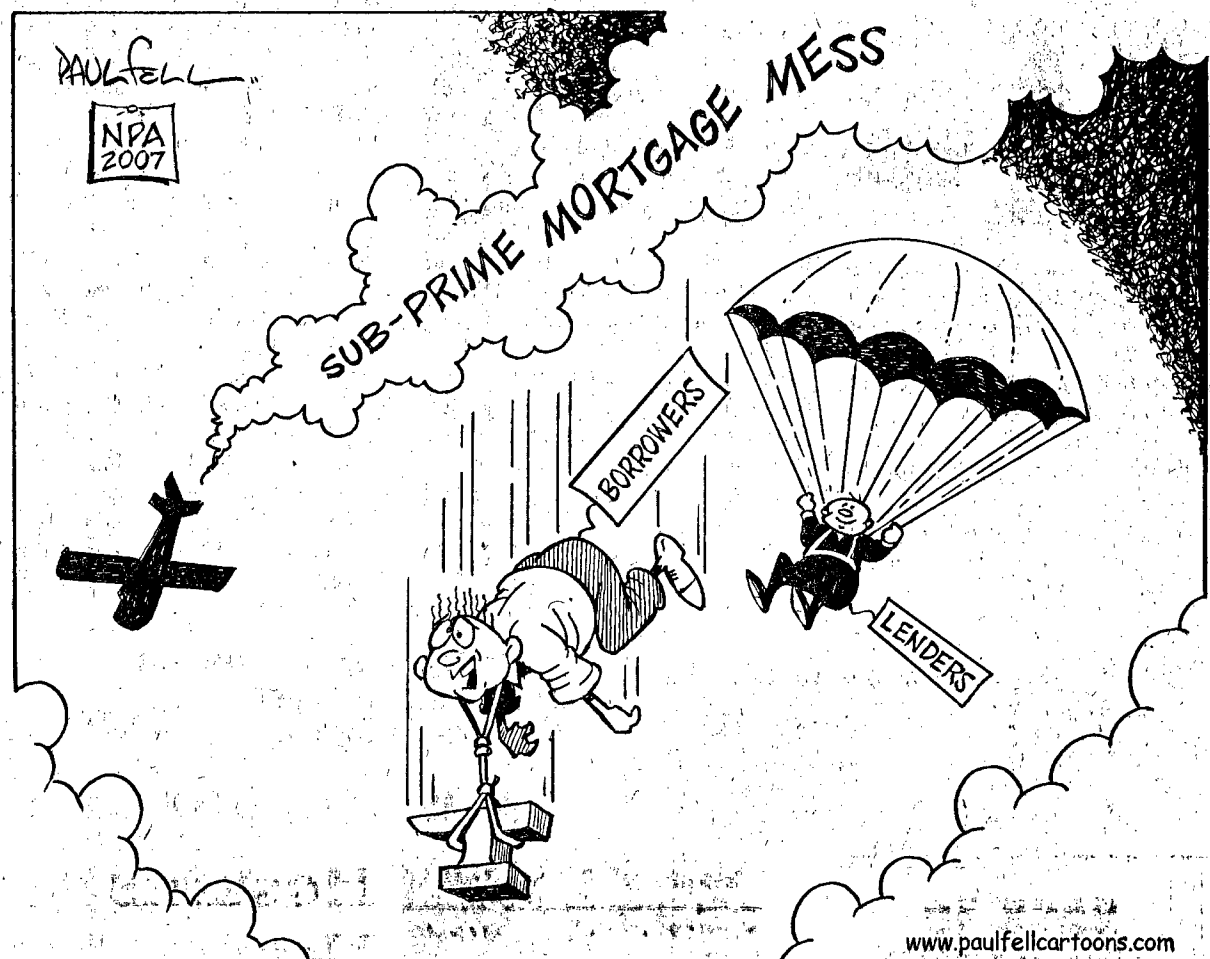

Politicians and pundits from Wall Street to Washington are speculating on the answer to that question - the way they always do after a big financial ship hits the sand. Their palaver might be interesting, even sage, but it does no good for the little people who took out those loans, and were left aground on the ship.

There will be discussions of why more government regulation is needed, and why less government regulation is needed, and why existing government regulation should be better enforced - none of which will do anything for those folk sorely wounded by folly.

As often said in this space over the years: Life is neither fair nor unfair. It is inexorable.

The single most important rule: Come out fighting and protect yourself at all times.

Business After Hours

The recent Business After Hours, sponsored by the Special Events Committee of the Wayne Area Chamber was held at the Wayne Country Club. The event included a meal, door prizes and socializing. Business After Hours events are held several times each year. The next will be a Chili and Salsa Cook-Off in November.

Motorists reminded to plan ahead for weekend

Beginning Friday, Aug. 31 through Monday, Sept. 3, Troopers will be putting in overtime hours as part of the Nebraska State Patrol's special enforcement efforts associated with the Labor Day holiday, the Nebraska State Fair and the first Husker home football game.

Heavy volume and the possibility of traffic slow downs exist on Saturday, September, 1, 2007, as motorists travel to and from Lincoln for the Nebraska State Fair and the 2:30 p.m. kick-off of the Nebraska-Nevada game.

Motorists are reminded to wear their seat belt, obey posted speed limits, use caution in construction zones, allow plenty of time to reach their destination and never drink and drive.

The special enforcement effort coincides with the "You Drink & Drive. You Lose." campaign, designed to concentrate on drinking and driving in an effort to take alcohol-impaired drivers off our roads. The Nebraska State Patrol is asking the public to partner in this effort. If you witness an impaired or reckless driver you should call the Nebraska State Patrol Highway Helpline at 1-800-525-5555 or *55 (star) on your cellular phone.

Overtime hours utilized by the Nebraska State Patrol during the "You Drink & Drive. You Lose" campaign and the Labor Day Holiday enforcement are paid for thanks in part to a nearly $18,000.00 grant from the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety (NOHS).

Make healthy choices when eating out

Going out to restaurants can be a fun alternative to cooking and eating at home. When going out, eat healthy by choosing nutritious entrees and sides or making special preparation requests. Today's restaurants are serving increasingly larger portion sizes for many entrees. If it is difficult to leave food on the plate, split a portion with a fellow diner, ask the waiter if a smaller portion can be served or ask to have the remaining food packed to take home.

While reading the menu or making inquiries about how the food is prepared, pay attention to phrases that indicate lower fat preparation, such as steamed, garden fresh, broiled, roasted or poached. Phrases or words to treat with caution include buttery, in butter sauce, crispy, braise, creamed, hollandaise, fried, baked, prime and pot pie.

Try to choose from a variety of grains, especially whole grains. Request whole grain breads, rolls, crackers, tortillas and brown rice whenever possible. Avoid spreads for bread and rolls. If using butter or margarine, spread them lightly. Green vegetable salads or fruit cups are available on most menus and are nice additions to meals. Many restaurants, including fast food, also offer green salads with various combinations of meats, cheeses, nuts and other vegetables and fruits as entrees. Request vegetables without added fat.

The salad bar can be a place for fat- and sugar-rich foods. At a salad bar, sparingly use salads that are made with a sauce or dressing, such as pasta or potato salads. Reduce use of salad dressings, bacon bits and seed or nut toppings. Consider using lemon juice and vinegar to enhance salad flavor or request low fat dressing.

Choose beverages and foods to moderate sugar intake. Limit intake of soft drinks and fruitades which are sources of sugar. Remember that water always is a good drink selection. Lemon or lime slices make water extra refreshing and satisfying. Drink alcoholic beverages in moderation. Alcoholic beverages are a source of calories but not a good source of nutrients.

Control salt by controlling use of the salt shaker. Foods with extra sauces, such as cocktails, cheese or tomato sauce may have a higher sodium count. Pickled items, smoked or cured foods and soups are other foods that tend to be high in sodium. Ask for condiments, sauces and dressings to be served on the side to limit sodium intake. Monitor consumption of desserts and pastries. Order fruits, sherbet or gelatin for dessert, or share a richer dessert with a friend.

With Oriental foods, go easy on soy sauce and certain soups. Inquire about the use of monosodium glutamate, or MSG. Ask questions about preparation to learn if foods are deep-fried. Steamed rice is lower in fat than fried rice.

The bean and rice dishes of Mexican food contain starch and fiber. However, refried beans often are made with lard, a saturated fat. Ask how food is prepared.

In pizza restaurants, consider pizzas with many different vegetables as toppings. They have more bulk and are more filling. Double toppings of cheese provide extra fat and sodium that may not be wanted.

Even in a fast food restaurant, healthy choices can be made. Fruits and salads usually are available. Some fast food restaurants even offer low-fat milk, juice, baked potatoes with a variety of topping choices, lean meat and chicken sandwiches and whole grain bread products. Use deep-fried foods sparingly.

Order sandwiches to be as simple as possible. Super-size or double decker sandwiches give much more calories, fat and sodium than necessary. Trim visible fat from meat and remove the skin from poultry before eating. Request that mayonnaise or other dressings be left off the sandwich.

Be sure food is cooked to a proper degree of doneness. If not, send it back. Don't take risks with food. When taking home leftover food, be sure it will be properly refrigerated within one to two hours to avoid possible food contamination. If not, it's best to leave it at the restaurant.

Alpha Course is coming to Wayne

A 15-week introductory session to the Christian faith is scheduled to begin on Sunday, Sept. 9 at First Presbyterian Church in Wayne. The Alpha Course is a basic introduction to Christianity that encourages participants to explore their faith and to ask their deepest questions in a non-judgmental environment. Alpha is for those who need a refresher course on their faith or for those who have no experience with Christianity. According to the Rev. Ray McCalla, the Alpha Course is "a unique, casual, relaxed and low-key opportunity to honestly explore the deepest questions of life." Alpha participants will gather every Sunday evening for 15 weeks. They will enjoy a dessert, watch the stimulating video presentation and then discuss the material together. McCalla advises those attending to "bring a friend and questions." The Alpha Course will be offered at First Presbyterian Church, 216 West Third Street in Wayne; Sunday, Sept. 9, through Sunday, Dec. 16, 6:30-9:00 p.m. Childcare is available. Contact the church (375-2669, www.fpcwayne.org, www.alpha.org) for more information, and please register by Friday, Sept. 7.

Dealing with moms is challenging

My little sister is 60 years old today. That's a significant milestone, all the more so because she is nine years younger than me and seven years behind my brother. In other words, a little surprise for our family.

We were talking about the blessings of air conditioning the other day and I repeated the story my mother told about her 10 days in the hospital after Mary's birth - 10 days! That was standard. As Mom says, "if you weren't weak when you went in, you were when you left because of all the bedrest." But that August was hot, too, so the staff would place a pan of ice on the table beside the bed and run a fan behind it.

My mother is now an octogenarian, plus. And some of my friends at work and I are discussing the formation of a support group for women dealing with moms. You know the saying, "be good to your children, they choose your nursing home." Well, these mothers do not intend to go to any nursing homes or assisted living facilities, thank you very much!

Mine saves the Lincoln Journal for me and whenever there is an ad or an article for an assisted living she writes across it "I'm not going there." She has stopped driving many places in town but is proud of the fact that she has a valid license for four more years.

One gal is from Columbus. Her mom called her at work the other day, all upset because someone with Lifeline and someone else with a walker had shown up at her door on the same day!

The third went out to eat with her family and they ordered blackened chicken. They asked if she wanted the left-overs and she agreed to take them. Then she called her daughter the next day to tell her that the chicken was burned!

Frankly, I think an assisted living place would be great and you know why? They cook there! We visited an old friend at one today. He isn't even using the assisted living, he and his wife live in an independent apartment. But their fee covers one meal a day in the dining room. And they treated us to lunch there. It was lovely. Waitresses in black and white, menus at each place with several choices, and plenty of refills on coffee.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

Actually, you folks in Wayne probably remember Cal Ward; he was the director of the northeast station at Concord and was there for the 50th anniversary this month. We had a good visit, discussing cattle and crops, and this!

Then, we went to another apartment in the same complex and called on a professor friend from Ag college who is 100 years old. His driver's license is good for two more years, and he looks and acts about

Free water testing offered at Husker Harvest Days

Nebraskans with private water wells can have their drinking water tested for nitrates during Husker Harvest Days in Grand Island on Sept. 11, 12 and 13.

To find out the nitrate level in the water they drink, well owners can bring a cup-size sample of water in a clean bottle to the Natural Resources Tent at the northeast end of the Husker Harvest grounds on Tuesday and Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and on Thursday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. There is no charge for the test, and they can get the results while they wait.

Nitrates are a concern for infants under six months of age and pregnant women. High levels of nitrates interfere with the blood's ability to carry oxygen and can cause "blue baby" syndrome.

Livestock, especially cattle, are also susceptible to nitrate poisoning, resulting in lower milk production and loss of calves.

The testing is sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services' Division of Public Health. For more information contact the Office of Drinking Water and Environmental Health, (402) 471-2541.

Feed hay now to let pasture grow

By Terry Gompert, UNL Extension Educator

Hay is for winter and pasture is for summer - right? Well, maybe we should rethink this schedule to increase overall production.

Many of us received welcome rain here in August and pastures are growing well. That means we can continue grazing and can hold our hay until later. Or does it?

Let's think about this for a moment. Does pasture grow during winter? Of course not, so if we want more pasture growth we need to encourage it during the growing season. What will happen, though, if we graze pastures short now during summer and fall? Of course - growth slows down and produces less than if we let it grow without grazing.

To let it grow and accumulate without grazing, we probably need to feed hay. But if we feed hay now, won't we have less of it available for winter? Maybe - but we shouldn't need as much hay for winter because all that extra pasture growth that accumulated while we fed hay can be grazed this fall and winter when we normally feed hay.

In fact, if we allow pastures to grow as much as possible from now until it freezes, we may feed less total hay before next spring than if we follow our standard practice of grazing now and saving hay for winter.

So, if you expect to feed hay eventually before next spring, it might be smarter to feed some of it now rather than later so your pastures can produce extra forage while they still can.

Sometimes doing things backwards from our normal practices can maximize production. Feeding hay now and grazing this winter might be one of them.

Family reunion

A number relatives of C.D. Haskell were on hand for the 50th anniversary celebration of the University of Nebraska's Haskell Ag Lab near Concord earlier this month. Haskell and his family donated 320 acres of land to the University system in 1957 to be used for research. The Haskell relatives, many who traveled from across the country to be part of event, were among more than 500 people who visited the facility during the open house.
