Denmark, a safe haven to wait for a Russian visa

Golden colors welcome me to the countryside of Denmark. The trees offer a visible show of change that appears to reflect what travel has done for my own internal spirit.

Friends dating back to the time when Peter was a high school exchange student in Fremont welcome me to the happiest nation on earth, at least according to the World Database of Happiness.

"Russia, why would you want to go there?" Asks Peter in his wittv humorous way. You're going to go there and find out that it's really cold and come running back to Denmark, he says with a chuckle.

Fair enough, but I have to go see for myself what's there. Early one morning we drive onto a ferry that takes us across the open waters toward Copenhagen. Three hours later we pull up at the doorstep of the Russian embassy, I jump out with a plan to call Peter once I'm done with the visa process. I had been debating in my head about paying the extra fee to expedite the visa process, and finally concluded I would pay the extra money to help me keep moving.

Walking up to the gate of the compound, I get in line with the others who are waiting to get into the building. For two hours I stand in the cold, as the line inches me closer to the door that holds the promise of heat. Finally I am called forward, the guard checks my bag pleted form to her. Then ask if it visa, so we reciprocate the policy," she says in an apologetic tone. Plus this also means your letter of invite will start before you get the visa or you will need a new letter. This means your time in Russia will be reduced to 21 days.

Yes, she says, and then adds: you will still have to wait two weeks for your visa. The expression on my face must have been a priceless book of pain and confusion.

That's fine, it's not your fault, I say while trying to adjust to the news that wasn't expected.

It's not really bad news in that I am staying with people I really care about, and provides me a golden opportunity to spend time with good friends. Plus it gives me a chance to have a moment of routine in my life, like taking Peter's dog Tess for daily walks.

This is one of the biggest challenges of a long journey: having a sense of routine, when each day is a whole new experience.

A call to Peter brings him curb-

Do you want the good news or bad news first?

The bad news, says Peter. You're stuck with me for two more weeks as I wait for my visa. And the good news, he says.

I get to walk Tess for two more weeks. Peter smiles, as we head for home. If you're going to stuck somewhere it might as well be in the happiest place on earth.

NTAP available to qualified Nebraskans

Nebraskans who currently participate in any of six assistance programs are eligible to apply for the Nebraska Telephone Assistance Program (NTAP) through the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

The program subsidizes a portion of the cost to connect phones and pays a portion of monthly fees for eligible participants. Federally, it is known as the Lifeline/Linkup program.

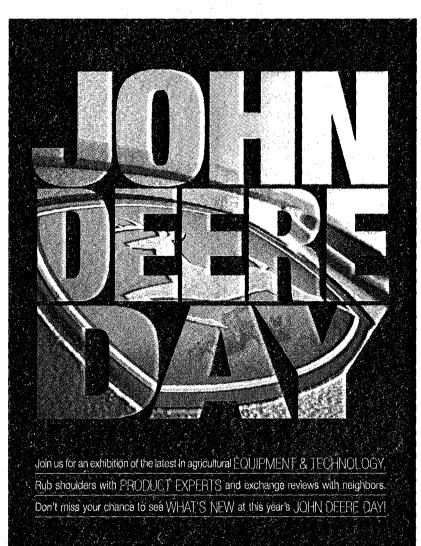

The six assistance programs are Medicaid, Children's Medicaid, Food Stamps, Federal Public Housing (HUD, Section 8 and the USDA Rural Development), Low Income Energy Program and Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

Only telephone companies that have been designated as eligible telecommunications carriers (ETC) may participate in NTAP. In addition to landline carriers, there are three wireless companies that also are eligible for participants. They are Alltel, U.S. Cellular and Viaero.

The Public Service Commission continues to work with the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services to contact Nebraska citizens who participate in its qualifying programs.

For information on the NTAP program, call the Nebraska Public Service Commission within the state at 1-800-526-0017 or within Lincoln at 471-3101.

Tienda Mexicana has been moved to 218 Main Street in Wakefield

Antonio and Maria Vazquez recently moved their business, Tienda Mexicana that was located at 330 Main Street in Wakefield to 218 Main Street, Wakefield. Business hours at Tienda Mexicana are Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, 10 am. to 8 p.m.

A variety of products can be found at Tienda Mexicana including vegetables, herbs, cookies, candies, meat products, clothing, pinatas and Vazquez noted that the grocery store is a result of customers stating they wanted to buy their groceries in town and have a store that is open every day. Customers also voiced they do not want to travel out of town to purchase their items as traveling in the winter can be difficult. With those concerns in mind, Vazquez opened their Tienda Mexicana.

At the previous location, Tienda Mexicana was in the Hatchery building, which the city has for new businesses to start and grow, moving on when they are more established. After the first of the year, the "Nearly New Store" will be moving into 330 Main Street. Vazquez noted that moving to the new location was quite a task as they had to move large compressors, which was as expensive to move as they were difficult to move.

The Vazquez family includes Antonio, Maria, Anthony, Josselyn, Ashlyn and Neyra.

Anyone with questions on Tienda Mexican Gerrero can stop by 218 Main Street in Wakefield or call them at 402-287-9132.

Nebraska ranks second in DSL high speed internet deployment

Nebraska's availability of digital incumbent telephone companies subscriber line (DSL) high speed Internet service through local ranks second in the nation according to a recently released Federal Communications

(FCC) report. "It is good news," Second District Commissioner Anne Boyle of Omaha said. "The Legislature and Congress have been interested in providing the latest technology to all consumers. The report shows Nebraska is far ahead of the rest of the nation with the exception of

In its findings on high speed services for Internet access, the FCC found that Nebraska had a DSL saturation of 89 percent availability where incumbent local telephone companies operate. Only Georgia, with 90 percent, had a higher rating. DSL and cable modem are the primary methods of offering wireline access to high speed, or broadband, Internet services. Fixed wireless and satellite providers also offer customers broadband access to the internet.

"We have been exploring every method to provide broadband access statewide," Boyle said. "As sparse as some of our areas are, our various providers have done a good

Fifth District Commissioner Jerry Vap of McCook said, "[The FCC] report confirms and reinforces the data we have gathered for our report." The Commission's 2007 Broadband Survey report said 94 percent of Nebraska's 577 population centers have broadband access to the Internet. "The information in the survey is necessary for economic development and to answer broadband inquiries that we receive," Vap said.

"DSL is one piece of the broadband puzzle, but I believe when you throw in cable modem and wireless, we're very high," he added. "The fact that Nebraska is in the top two of the nation is a pretty good indicator of what is available to the people of the state."

"This report shows the commitment of Nebraska providers to bring broadband to communities throughout the state." District Commissioner Frank Landis of Lincoln said. "Statewide deployment of broadband is essential to continued economic growth for many communities in Nebraska" he added.

The Commission remains involved in overseeing broadband deployment through such programs as the Nebraska Internet Enhancement Fund (NIEF) grant program which funds infrastructure development for broadband accessibility in rural areas; the Nebraska Tele-Health Network which utilizes broadband telecommunications services for hospitals and medical centers around the state; the Nebraska Universal Service Fund which assists telephone companies finance upgrades to their networks; and the Commission's own broadband survey program.

"Further," said Commission Chairman Rod Johnson of Sutton, "widespread broadband availability has opened up opportunities for rural schools through Nebraska's distance learning programs." Distance learning gives students access via the internet to live instruction on a variety of subjects such as advanced math, sciences and foreign languages. "Creating educational opportunity is a direct investment in Nebraska's future,' Commissioner Johnson said.

"Nebraska's broadband deployment is impressive from a national standpoint," said Third District Commissioner Tim Schram of Gretna. "Better means of communication benefits all Nebraskans, both urban and rural," he added. Commissioner Schram also cautioned, "Technologies that rely on broadband access to consumers are evolving rapidly therefore we must remain diligent in our broadband initiatives to keep Nebraska near the top of the list.

SBA and insurance company launch Small business disaster preparedness guide

The U.S. Small Business Administration and Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company have teamed up to launch a disaster planning guide for small business owners. SBA Deputy Administrator Jovita Carranza and Nationwide's Associate Vice President for Safety Bill Windsor made the announcement today during an event at the National Press Club.

The 10-page guide provides information business owners need to develop an effective plan to protect customers and employees in the event of a disaster. The guide provides key disaster preparedness strategies to help small businesses identify potential hazards, create plans to remain in operation if the office is unusable, and understand the limitations of their insurance coverage.

"The most successful recovery efforts are always preceded by good planning," said Carranza. "The more preparation that businesses complete before a disaster, the better able they are to rebuild and. reopen quickly after a disaster."

"Disasters can have a devastating impact on small businesses," said Windsor. "How quickly those businesses can get up and running after a disaster can have a significant impact on a community's ability to recovery. Understanding this, the SBA and Nationwide have created this guide to help business owners get their arms around the disaster planning process, and convince them to mitigate their risk." Hard copies of the guide will be Nationwide will make additional copies available to its agents for distribution. An electronic version of the guide will be available online

What if the Fair Board Spears Britney?

Associated Press Writer

The long-brewing fuss over the State Fair will spill into the 2008 Legislature and no one knows where it will go - the debate or the Does Nebraska need a State Fair? Moreover, does the citizenry care if there is one?

The University of Nebraska wants the current fairgrounds for a high-tech research and development campus.

The Fair Board doesn't want to move, as it continues what some see as a Quixote-like quest for a "new and improved" event. The ongoing challenge is to make it more than also-ran entertainment: something that will overcome the significant costs for individuals and families to attend. Genuine success would obviously be measured in greatly increased atten-

Finding the key to that kind of success might not be the impossible dream, but it has been elusive.

Throw into the mix the fact that Kearney and some other communities say they would be delighted to become the fair's new home.

The view from here: The willingness of any central Nebraska community to adopt the thing is downright courageous.

Something, anything, that gives off even a whiff of "economic development potential" is of interest to most communities around the nation, large or small. But making a thing as complex and costly as the Nebraska State Fair work, after moving it from the immediate neighborhood of the state's two metropolitan population centers, requires a whole lot more than community pride, good intentions and innovative management,

Some say the challenge is worthy of an impresario of the late Billy Rose, or Flo Zigfield or maybe Donald Trump?

They are wrong.

The State Fair could offer a package deal. Admission to the fair and a ticket for a Britney Spears concert. AND ... continuous drive-by and/or guided tours, of the local try and disaster field offices. http://www.sba.gov/services/disasteras- joints and streets where Spears is most likely to find trouble or, failing that, just create the usual spectacle associated with her person.

Think of the potential headline: Nebraska State Fair Promises

Think of the national media attention.

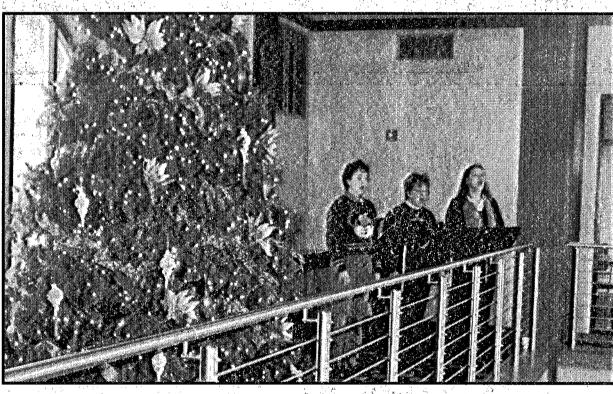

Lou Dobbs on CNN: "The nation has opened its borders in the interests of economic development - but Nebraska so wants to save its State Fair, the Cornhuskers have opened we are cynical, but we suspect this might be part of a two-pronged initiative, the other obviously being an effort to make a case for more Homeland Security dollars."

"There are rumors that the Nebraska State Fair could not possibly have guaranteed the kind of money that's needed for this kind of thing. So, they are trying to con-their gates to Britney Spears! Say vince a judge that this BS performance should also count as - are you ready? - community service! Not only that, but BS would be included in the so-called Nebraska Advantage law that gives tax Nancy Grace on Court TV: breaks for business. That means if she hung around Nebraska for awhile, she could stockpile community service credits and redeem them in the event of future crimes. What a deal!"

Snack healthy when on the go

Today's fast-paced lifestyle can make healthy eating habits difficult to maintain when meals get pushed back or skipped altogether. There are healthy foods that will satisfy hunger urges and prevent losing the battle of the bulge when snacking becomes a problem.

Raw vegetables like celery and baby carrots are low calorie foods that are great for a quick snack between meals.

Half sandwiches using whole grain bread, low fat meat and lettuce or tomato are a good alternative that won't add inches to your

Some other low calorie food combinations include: apples and milk, fruit and cottage cheese, yogurt and unsalted nuts, and grapes with Food manufacturers have started marketing 100 calorie food packs designed to curb cravings between meals. The portions are small because they are designed for people who snack often, but are interested in eating healthy.

Parents concerned with children who snack too often between meals can make small bags of trail mix to take when traveling.

Some healthy combinations that children enjoy include: multi-grain cereals with dried fruits, unsalted peanuts and a few chocolate chips or animal crackers thrown in to make them fun for the kids.

Measure these travel packs out in half cup portions and seal in plastic bags so they are fresh and ready to go when you and your children are.

Many fast food restaurants have begun offering fruit and other snacks for the health conscious traveler. Yogurt parfaits, which combine fruits or nuts, are available at many restaurants. So if fast food is the only option when hunger strikes, check the menu for one of these healthy snacks.

Conference for childcare professionals planned

Attendees of the thirteenth children," annual Centering on Centers conference will learn from real-life stories that will change the way they raise and teach children. Dr. Bob Sornson will return to the January conference in 2008 to present Bodies and Brains: Improving Motor Skills to Enhance Learning in School to Siouxland.

The two day conference will be held Friday, Jan. 25 and Saturday, Jan. 26, 2008, at the Sioux City Convention Center, 801 Fourth Street. Times for both days are 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. with lunch provided.

This active workshop will explore the importance of developing motor skills and matching appropriate activities to a child's skill level.

"This conference will be of true benefit to everyone who cares for University (ISU) Extension-Woodbury County Director Sherry McGill. "The conference will provide valuable information to help children develop the motor skills necessary for successful learning."

Speaker, Bob Sornson, Ph.D., is nationally recognized for developing programs which support early learning success and is the founder of The Early Learning Foundation. He is a favorite consultant to schools, parents, and education leadership groups across the country. Sornson has been a classroom teacher and school administrator for over 30 years. His writings on parenting, teaching and classroom culture integrate Love and Logic with powerful teaching and child development practices. He is committed to the idea that practically said Iowa State every child can build a solid foundation for learning and for life. Sornson is a master story-teller.

The targeted audiences for this Centering on Centers conference are early childhood educators, child care center and home providers, head start staff, preschool, kindergarten, and early childhood special education teachers and associates, administrators, social workers, guidance counselors, parents, and college students.

Workshop sponsors include Child Care Resource and Referral of Northwest Iowa, Crittenton/Stella Sanford Child Development Center, Iowa State University ISU Extension-Woodbury County, Mary Elizabeth Day Care Center, Native American Child Care Center, Building Futures Child Care Center, Community Action Agency

Farm Service agency begins making disaster payments

Nebraska Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director Milton Rogers announced that the FSA has been authorized to immediately begin making disaster pay-

"The payments are for approved Disaster. Compensation and Livestock Indemnity Program applications," said Rogers.

The Livestock Compensation Program (LCP) 2005-2007 provides benefits to livestock producers in designated disaster counties who suffered feed losses or incurred additional feed costs directly resulting from natural disasters occurring between Jan. 1, 2005 and Feb. 28, 2007, including losses because of blizzards that started in 2006 and continued into Jan. 2007.

Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) 2005-2007 provides benefits to livestock producers in designated disaster counties for livestock deaths caused by natural disasters that occurred between Jan. 1, 2005 and Feb. 28, 2007, including losses because of blizzards that started in 2006 and continued into January 2007.

The Crop Disaster Program (CDP) provides benefits to farmers who suffered losses to the 2005-2007 crops from natural disasters and related conditions so long as the actual crop lost was planted or prevented from being planted before Feb. 28, 2007. Producers who incurred qualifying losses in 2005, 2006 or 2007 must choose only one year for which to receive benefits. They may receive benefits for multiple crop losses if all were in the same crop year.

Sign up for LIP and LCP began Sept. 10, 2007. Sign up for CDP began Oct. 15, 2007.

WINDSURFING AT WILLOW CREEK

Windbreaks equal savings!

ULTIMATE COMMUNICATIONS

110 E. Broadway Street • Randolph, NE 402-337-0156 • 800-378-0156

With the prospect of higher heating costs this winter comes the anticipation of the season's first heating bill. Most people are hoping that they don't have a panic attack after opening it. You may not be able to avoid higher energy costs this year, but you can ease your financial burden in the future with the help of a windbreak. Well designed and strategically placed windbreaks can alter the surrounding microclimate of your home by reducing wind speeds. This, in turn, will save you money by lowering your heating fuel consumption.

As the prevailing winds blow across the landscape and hits a windbreak, most of the air is forced up and over the tree tops. A certain amount of wind goes through the windbreak (depending upon density) and around the ends, but most of the winds travels up and over. A windbreak will lower wind speeds for a distance of as much as 30 times the windbreak's height.

Why slow wind speed? Wind speed lowers the outside temperature, which contributes to the wind chill factor. Increasing the temperature surrounding your home will decrease your heating fuel needs. A well placed windbreak can reduce wind speeds by 50 to 80%. For example, if the outside temperature is 10°F and the wind speed is 20 miles per hour, the wind chill is -24°F. If the wind speed were to be reduced by 50%, the wind chill would only be 3°F. By reducing the wind chill factor, you could save 20 to 40% on your winter heating fuel consumption.

Besides saving heating costs, windbreaks provide many other additional benefits. Windbreaks can help control or store snow, improve the work environment of your farmstead, protect livestock, and provide needed wildlife habitat. Windbreaks also provide a more esthetic environment around your home, which could greatly increase the value of your farmstead.

For more information on windbreak design, placement, species selection, and cost share programs contact the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District or your local NRCS office.

Wishing all a blessed Christmas

The ice on our street is finally melting. The big bowl of Christmas cards on the coffee table is full. The lights in our cul de sac and on the streets around us are lovely. The choir practiced tonight for the Christmas Eve service. And I had a message from the Herald that I had to have this there by Friday in order for them to print it. So, I'm sitting here on Thursday eve, trying to find my Christmas spirit.

I had it earlier in the month, but I've been in hospice all this week, and we have lost some patients. It used to make me very sad to go to a funeral in December; I thought a casket in front of a decorated tree seemed doubly sorrowful.

But the one I attended for an old friend early in the month reminded me that the reason we celebrate is the reason this baby came into the world. The pastor said the casket and the tree and the nativity set were fitting, and he convinced me. We even sang Joy to the World!

I heard last evening that a bank in North Dakota had given each employee one thousand dollars worthwhile projects. We had a letter from an old friend in Norfolk, saying that each of their families had chosen a needy family to buy gifts for in lieu of buying for them-

And Ask Amy, from the Chicago Tribune, has a letter saying that with instructions to give it to holidays should be a chance for families or friends to come together and enjoy each other, not to load up on more stuff. Somewhere in the world, adults and children are working in horrible conditions to make the plastic stuff we're buying.

She suggested we share a meal, donate to a charity, or buy gifts that are something grown or locally made.

I got on line and found Samaritan's Purse, the shoebox folks. They are distributing 8 million of those this year; that is mind boggling. They also have small projects that are very affordable. The grandchildren are giving chickens, goats, soccer balls, and school supplies to children who have almost nothing. I don't think they really appreciate that much, but it makes Grandma feel good!

Hopefully, you all will have loved ones with you, and the roads will be clear. A gal at work today told me that any calories you eat between Thanksgiving and New Year's do not count! Have a blessed

GENERATOR SAFETY

Some people use standby generators to power their homes, farms or businesses during utility power outages. Whether you own a generator or plan to get one, have a qualified electrician install a transfer safety switch to isolate the load from the power lines that connect to your home or building. This switch protects your generator from potential damage when the power comes back on and protects utility workers repairing lines.

Northeast Equipment to host John Deere Day

Northeast Equipment Inc of tions." Wayne will hold its annual John Deere Day celebration Thursday, Jan. 3 at their store on East Highway 35.

Dave Olson, Manager of Northeast Equipment Inc. said this year's event focuses on new products, agricultural trends and state of the art technologies.

"The future in agriculture is constantly changing" Olson said, "not just with the new products, but with the technology that this new equipment is using. We want to ensure that our customers get good solid equipment, the latest technology, and sound advice to be able to face these new opportunities with vigor. To us, John Deere Day is an opportunity to not only show our customers what's available to help them improve production agriculture, but also, show our appreciation to the very people who have made Northeast Equipment Inc. and John Deere part of their opera- from

Each year John Deere Day at Northeast Equipment Inc. gives area producers, and their families the chance to see old friends, meet new neighbors, learn about the latest agricultural techniques and ideas, and get a good look at some new equipment and updates being offered by John Deere. "One of the highlights this year will be the John Deere 9630T tracked tractor, the largest tractor built by John Deere, along with several other new pieces of John Deere equipment. One of the areas we are focusing on this year is our future in the dealership. We are having two sessions for career opportunities in the dealership. Starting at 1:30 p.m. we will have a College on hand to talk about the Ag Tech program they have for our youth who want a career in Ag repair. The way we diagnose and repair today's tractor is a lot different than it has been in the past," says Olson "it is not always turning wrenches and getting dirty. We are inviting anyone interested in a career in Ag repair to please show up. Then, at 3 p.m. we are having a session on Ag Management Solutions (AMS) where anyone interested in learning more about our AMS products is invited to

Blood supply at risk after severe winter weather forces cancellations

Severe winter weather through- country. out the Midwest has forced the cancellation of area blood drives causing the Red Cross to lose more than 400 blood and platelet donations during a time when supplies are already low. Certain blood types in the region are at or under a twoday supply whereas the Red Cross strives for a 5- to 7-day blood supply at all times to support more than 80 hospitals in the area as well as hospitals throughout the

Northeast schedules essential conversational Spanish class

Northeast Community College in Norfolk will offer another Spanish class for the general public that begins in January. Essential Conversational Spanish, with course number SPAN 1000-01/08S or HawkNET Call #11388, meets Wednesdays, Jan. 16 - Feb. 13, from 6-9 p.m., in the Ag/Allied Health Building, Room 216, on the Northeast campus in Norfolk. Northeast Community College has developed a customized Essential Conversational Spanish class to meet the needs of the general public. The class will provide 15 hours of instruction in essential Spanish words and phrases used frequently. The class will also include the alphabet, pronunciation, and basic greetings and phrases.

Cost of this one-credit class is $73. Karen Indra is the instructor. Students may register on-line using HawkNET at www.northeastcollege.com

They may also call Northeast Community College at (402)844-7265 to register.

With the holidays approaching your Red Cross can also experience as much as a five percent drop in blood donations during the holiday timeframe, so it is extra important to book an appointment now.

Eligible donors are urged to call 1.800.GIVE.LIFE (1.800.448.3543) or go online to givebloodgivelife.org to make blood donation appointments within the next few days and help replenish lifesaving blood supplies.

When weather forces blood drive and appointment cancellations it takes a while to rebuild the blood inventory," said Mark Thornhill, CEO of the local Red Cross Blood Services region, "Red blood cells have a shelf life of 42 If being better organized is one of days and platelets just five days. This significant lapse in donations due to weather means we need eligible donors to turn out in droves and schedule appointments to fill the gap because patients' need for blood and blood products is con-
