Concord celebration 'A Day to Remember'

By Susie Johnson, Concord Correspondent

A 'Day to Remember' began the morning of Aug. 30 in Concord and continued as a 'beautiful day, weatherwise.'

The Concord residents could not have asked for a better day for the celebrating of 125 years of existence.

The city park was busy all day with games, contests, a 'bouncy house' and cool treats. The Senior Center was busy serving coffee and rolls in the morning and pie and ice cream in the afternoon.

Gretchen Dietrich headed the many 'wonderful helpers' who cleaned, baked and helped serve the noon dinner and light supper.

The Concord firemen were instrumental in cleaning the streets and grandstand where everyone gathered for the history of Concord presented in theatre form.

Thanks were given to Marie George of Dixon for many of the fashions worn, plus others furnished and worn by the community gals, young and older.

The party kicked off with a parade that spanned over 13 blocks. Many children filled their bags to overflowing with candy as the caravan weaved its way through town.

Mayor Bob Clarkson and his wife, Deb, led the parade followed by an old fire truck carrying the town's oldest firemen, football game.

Dick Hanson and Iner Peterson.

Hanson has been a fireman for 58 years. "I remember fighting one of the first fires with this truck," he said. "That was back in 1951. This was a truck that we got from Wakefield." Peterson said he had been a fireman "since before Noah."

Former residents had a chance to reminisce as they waited for the parade to go by. Many old memories were brought back as comments like "That was the old Boarding House," and "we used to play pool in that building" were heard.

Clark's Mercantile Store was set up and Ron Harder proceeded to change items of interest as the years passed.

Music of the era was enjoyed. The audience participated in the "Twist," "Disco" and the "Macarena" dances.

Many neighbors and friends took part in the parade of 50+ entries. Thanks were extended to all who made the effort to "Show & Shine" their many vehicles.

Especially inspiring was the Flag Raising ceremony. Uniforms were worn by Lee Clarkson, wearing Wallace Magnuson's 1945 uniform; Joanie Hanson wearing Ruth Wacker's WAC uniform and Jim Koester of Omaha wearing his National Guard uniform.

The evening closed with a street dance, tired feet and the Huskers winning their Nebraska Lieutenant Governor Rick Approximately 225 public and private high schools across Nebraska have signed up to support the "Come Home Safe" program.

Lt. Governor Sheehy said highway safety statistics reveal the importance of young people buckling up before riding in a car or truck.

Above, Mayor Bob Clarkson and his wife, Deb, led the parade for the celebration of the village of Concord's Q125 celebration on Aug. 30. The photo on the right shows one of the entries in the parade that spanned over 13 blocks. Besides the parade, there was a full agenda of activities for Concord's quasquicentennial celebration.

A street dance that evening brought a close to the special day.

The special program is being funded by the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety.

It would be catching those fish with three generations of your close family," Dustin Allemann said about the trip. to those affected by Hurricane Gustav and continues to stand prepare for future hurricanes and tropical storms as well. First, the Red Cross urges residents who could potentially be affected to take the storms seriously and prepared in advance, especially if that includes evacuating.

Lawren and Darlene Miller of Norfolk will be responding through the Northeast Nebraska Chapter of the American Red Cross and working in a shelter in Baton Rouge, La. They will be leaving on Sept. 4

In response to Hurricane Gustav, the Red Cross moved hundreds of mobile feeding trucks into Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama. They also moved thousands of cots and blankets, tens of thousands of comfort kits and ready-to-eat meals into the coastal states. Red Cross workers were also on scene and began setting up operation headquarters in Dallas, Texas, Baton Rouge, La., Hattiesburg, Miss., and Montgomery, Ala.

The Red Cross was in New Orleans providing services in the days before the storm hit. They were at the staging areas for buses, ensuring that people had food, water and emotional support before they left the area. The relief workers stayed in New Orleans as long as it was safe, but followed the instructions of local officials who asked everyone to leave. Police and National Guard were the only ones allowed to stay.

By Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, Red Cross chapters throughout Louisiana, Texas, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Indiana and Missouri had all been impacted somehow by Hurricane Gustav. Total rainfall accumulations of 6 to 12 inches over various areas, with isolated maximum amounts of up to 20 inches possible through Thursday. Nearly 2 million residents, the highest evacuation population ever recorded in Louisiana's history, responded to the mandatory evacuation given. Chapters throughout 10 states opened 334 shelters with an initial overnight population of over 58,458 residents. People were asked to remain at the shelter sites until it was determined safe for them to return to their residences.

On both the first and second nights of the See TRIP, Page 4A Gustay evacuation, the Red Cross sheltered

The American Red Cross was prepared to more people than during that same period feed, shelter and provide emotional support during Katrina. That is most likely due to people heeding the warnings and taking the evacuations seriously. Currently, the Red Cross has enough shelter supplies for 500,000 shelter residents for a six-day period on site through the Gulf States. This is the largest relief effort since Hurricane Katrina in 2005. After Katrina, the organization made an $80 million investment to pre-position supplies, purchase communication equipment and train disaster workers nationwide. Today, that investment is paying off.

> Over the next several days, the priority is to provide people with food, shelter and emotional support until they are able to go back to their homes. The Red Cross is trying to make them as comfortable as possible within the shelters. They are also working closely with several partner groups to help expand the reach to potentially underserved communities. They are in close coordination with the NAACP of the Gulf Coast and groups like the Southern Baptist Convention, Catholic Charities and Boat People SOS. When people are allowed back in the city, the Red Cross will be there too.

The Red Cross knows from experience that in this kind of disaster, large numbers of people may become disconnected from their loved ones. A "Safe and Well" site has been developed to help with that possibility. As people evacuate, they are encouraged to call someone and tell them they were safe and where they were going. Then, they were asked to register on "Safe and Well" which is listed on the Red Cross website: www.redcross.org. If someone does not have internet access, they can call 1-800-REDCROSS to register. Family members who know the person's phone number (home, work, or cell) or a complete home address can search this website for messages posted by those who self-registered.

The Red Cross is solely focused on feeding, sheltering and emotional support at this time. They will meet emergency needs with food, shelter, distribution of supplies and mental health and health services workers. All disaster response organizations - from nonprofits to the federal government - have improved their ability to

UNK students presenting summer research projects

Twenty University of Nebraska at Kearney Summer Student Research Program (SSRP) students will present the results of their work at the seventh annual Fall Symposium Friday, Sept. 12, at the Nebraskan Student Union.

era

"The event is free and open to the public, and will be interesting to community members who want to see the type of scholarly work that UNK students do during their course of study," said Dr. John Falconer, director of Sponsored Programs. "It is particularly valuable to departments across the campus that are working to strengthen student engagement through out-of-class learning opportunities."

Among those involved are Sarah Jensen of Wayne who will present "Family Members Preference of Visual Material Used by Patients with Severe Chronic Aphasia." Her mentor is Dr. Miechelle McKelvey, Communication Disorders. Rachel Jensen of Wayne will present "Prose Poetry and Melody: The Influence of Music on the Creative Writing Process." Her mentor is Charles Fort, English.

Presentations run from 1-5 p.m. in NSU Ponderosa Rooms C and D. The oral presentations and poster displays will showcase research efforts and creative activities in the fields of biology, business management/entrepreneurship, chemistry, communication disorders, geography, English, exercise science, finance/accounting, management, philosophy, physics, political science and sociology.

Time to check for head lice

Now that school's begun, parents should check their young children for head lice on at least a weekly basis, according to Dr. Annette Bredthauer, the state's public health veterinarian with the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services.

"Head lice are common among elementary school students because they have a lot of physical contact with their classmates," Dr.

having seen the work of their peers at this and other conferences and symposiums," Dr. Falconer said, adding that a survey of leading institutions in Nebraska and other states indicated that UNK students report more involvement in out-of-class research.

The Summer Student Research Program begins in May, when the students go on an overnight field trip either east into the Lincoln and Omaha communities or west to North Platte, whichever experiences fit best with their planned research

According to Dianne Holcomb, UNK assistant director for Sponsored Programs, by late May, the students have begun working in earnest, meeting with their mentors on a regular basis and participating in weekly meetings with other student scholars.

"These discussions are meant to foster awareness of research issues outside their major, and may include topics such as research ethics, the use of statistics or the creative process in the arts," Holcomb said. Research ends by Aug. 1, and students must complete a research paper before the beginning of the new academic year.

"SSRP gives students an opportunity to work closely with an expert, which gives the students a chance to expand their knowledge of a chosen academic discipline," she said, "and because the research is independent of the structured classroom setting, students experience the excitement and challenges of applying their knowledge and skills to solve new problems."

insects; lice eggs, or nits, are grayish-white, always oval shaped and are attached at an angle to the side of the hair shaft.

The most-used insecticidal louse shampoos or creme rinse products contain pyrethrins or permethrin and are available as over-thecounter products.

A prescription product that contains malathion can also address head lice, Dr. Bredthauer said. This product is useful for families who have tried other products but had difficulty in controlling lice. No matter what product is used. label instructions should be carefully followed to maximize effectiveness. Dr. Bredthauer offered these tips in combating head lice: · Check children and watch for signs of head lice, such as frequent head scratching; • Use a medicated shampoo or creme rinse, but remember that all lice-killing products are pesticides and label directions should be followed; · After shampooing or conditioning with a treatment product, remove all nits with a comb or fingernails to assure complete removal: · Check with your physician before using lice treatment pesticides if the child has allergies, asthma or epilepsy; and

Discussion, approval given for county budget

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday. The 2008-09 Wayne County budget hearing was held at 1:45 p.m. Discussion was held on the proposed budget and on restricted funds.

Information on the 2008-09 budget includes: the Road/Bridge Fund, Special Police Protection Fund and Noxious Weed Control Fund are balanced by transfers from General Fund as tax dollars are not levied directly by these funds. The cash reserve in General Fund was increased by $50,000 for cash flow purposes, the County Road Fund was increased by $50,000 per district to help offset costs of gas and gravel, several major road/bridge projects are under construction or are scheduled, including federalaid projects and soft-match projects.

balance the budget, a То $200,000 transfer will be made from Inheritance Tax Fund to County Road Fund. The total tax dollar request reflects a decrease of $71,981.93 from 2007-08. Unused Medical physical.

Commissioner Kelvin Wurdeman noted he felt there are problems in the Emergency Management budget. Wayne County will be consolidating with Cuming County for emergency management services so there is to be a 50/50 split of expenses. He questioned if Wayne County has final say in payment of EM claims.

There was a question on several claims. The commissioners denied: mileage for training for Nick Kemnitz (recently appointed deputy emergency manager by the emergency manager); lodging at the Country Inn & Suites; two phones totaling $700 (Sheriff and Emergency Management offices-there is a $200 rebate on the telephones purchased from Alltel); NACO open meeting laws poster for fire departments and a Mercy

The final tax request hearing was held at 2:15 p.m. Discussion was held on setting the final tax request at a different amount than last year. There was a $71,981.93 reduction in the tax dollar request from last year.

There was consideration of one percent increase in Restricted Funds. Rabe made a motion to approve the one percent increase and Commissioner Wurdeman, seconded the motion. Upon roll call vote Wurdeman voted against the one percent increase. A 75 percent approval vote was necessary for the one percent increase so the increase was not approved.

and the '08-'09 tax dollar request and Nissen seconded the motion. Wurdeman voted no. Approval on the resolutions passed two to one. Agenda items in the morning included the county treasurer's 2008-09 budget. Executive session was held. The Treasurer requested $1,575 be added to the personnel section of her budget. The contract is for $29,850 and up to $3,350 additional for permits needed. There is 80 percent reimbursement available. Wurdeman made a motion to approve the engineering services, Rabe seconded the motion and the motion passed.

Bid specifications for a used motor grader for Road District #1 were reviewed. It was decided to add a wing to bid specifications.

The commissioners signed a letter to Senators Hagel and Nelson, and Representative Fortenberry that stated Wayne County is concerned about the newest policy of NDOR (Nebraska Department of Roads) regarding bridge inspections. NDOR has hired engineers (paid from bridge fund money) to inspect county bridges (fracture critical and timber), This and other factors are reducing the number of federal aid bridges being built on county roads. Wayne County has two licensed bridge inspectors capable of performing bridge inspections.

Wayne County Board of Equalization was held at 11:30 a.m. Preliminary levy allocation requests were reviewed. Levies for political entities: Wayne Ag Society, Carroll Fire District #1, Wayne Fire District #2, Winside Fire District #4 and Wakefield Fire are all going down this year.

Parking issues again debated

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

The idea of what a parking surface should look like was again on the agenda when the Wayne City Council met on Tuesday.

Prior to discussion City Administrator Lowell Johnson presented a history of the current ordinance regarding parking regulations and driveway surfaces. He said the city had received a number of complaints in regard to parking surfaces in front yards and had discussed different types of parking surfaces for a number of years.

Council members discussed different options and talked about whether or not there should be different regulations for different size lots

Bob Liska told the council that there needs to be guidelines and a "starting point and stopping point" for aggregate on driveways.

Following debate, in which a driveway width was discussed as a determining factor in dealing with driveway surfaces, the council expressed a desire to work on an ordinance dealing with the public's concerns.

Following public hearings, the council approved the annual appropriation bill and the final tax request for 2008-09.

City Treasurer Nancy Braden told the council that the budget results in a 45ϕ levy, including the Airport Authority and the debt request for the upcoming fiscal year. Council member Doug Sturm abstained on both votes.

The council also held a public hearing to consider the Planning Commission's Recommendation in regard to identifying that part of vacated Dearborn Street and Right-of-Way and placing it in the B-1 Highway Commercial Zoning District.

Randy Pick, whose family owns the property in question, had several questions in regard to the maintenance of the property.

Also discussed was the difference between having the area zoned B-1(Highway Commercial) and B-3 (Neighborhood Commercial). It was noted the area around it is zoned B-1 and the city does not use spot zoning.

The ordinance regarding amending the zoning map received unanimous first reading approval and will be brought before the council at its next meeting.

Acting as the Community Development Agency (CDA), the group voted to provide $3,100 in support for brochures being printed to promote the Western Ridge Project. It was noted that the council should also support the marketing of the city as "an investment."

Council members voiced their opinions, both in favor and against, in providing the financial support.

Council member Kaki Ley said of the marketing campaign, "if we don't do something, the city will go backward." Council member Verdell Lutt said "we don't want to go crazy in the first year. If after a year, we don't have as much happening as we want, we can kick in money to promote it." Council members approved a request to close off the east end of 10th Street from Providence Road to the First Bank Card Center for the Vehicle Rally to be held later this month. Also approved was Resolution 2008-83 which approves an agreement with the Nebraska Department of Roads Roadway Improvements for Windom Street Event: Tuesday, Sept. 23 at 7 p.m. for from East Third to East Seventh Street. The project is currently in the city's one- and six-year street improvement plan and the action puts state money into the city's account for the project.

as learning excellence, student success and regional service. The college's students, faculty and staff measure themselves against these ideals each day in the classroom, at conferences and in laboratories, in the community, at work, and in many levels of athletics.

The 2009 college rankings by U.S. News & World Report aim to quantify certain aspects of colleges' success as well. An examination of the data presented in the annual survey reveals several key categories in which Wayne State continues to live up to the ideals of its mission.

Some highlights of this year's rankings:

1. Wayne State has the fourthhighest retention rate (75 percent) among Tier Three Master's colleges and universities

2. Second highest alumni giving rate among Tier Three Master's colleges and universities and the 26th highest alumni giving rate among all 146 Midwestern Master's colleges and universities

3. Top half of all Tier Three Master's colleges and universities for the number of freshmen who graduated in the top 25 percent of their high school graduating class 4. Among the top three most affordableschoolsforallMidwestern Master's colleges and universities

5. They are listed under the sub-

Wayne State defines its mission category of average retention rates the opportunity to conduct biomedfor all Midwestern Master's colleges and universities as having an average of 70 percent for proportion of freshmen entering between 2002 and 2005 who returned the following fall semester

6. They are also listed in the subcategory of economic diversity among Midwestern Master's colleges and universities. They are in the top 10 percent of that group (criteria: number of students with Pell grants)

These points hold exceptional significance when balanced against the fact that Wayne State College is an open-enrollment institution, accepting 100 percent of the students who apply, yet challenging them to do the hard work necessary to complete their degrees. The college community is proud to receive recognition for its efforts to not only attract students but to retain them and ensure their success.

"Of course, students should not choose a college based solely upon any ranking system," said Wayne State President Richard Collings. "Rankings can never replace a visit to a college to determine if it is the right fit for you. Prospective students visiting Wayne State can easily see that students get a hands-on education at the college. Thanks to research grants and innovative programs, Wayne State students have ical and environmental research, travel to conferences across the country, and, in some instances, around the world."

Wayne State invites students and parents to take a look at the rankings, then make an appointment to visit the campus or attend an off-campus informational event to learn how the college helps students succeed while playing a leading role in the landscape of higher education in Nebraska. The college will participate in the official 2008 Nebraska State College System Tour at various locations in Event: Wednesday, Sept. 10 at September.

Students and parents are welcome to take part in a 90-minute program about the college search process. Additional sessions will be hosted to assist guidance counselors, transfer advisors and TRIO staff when aiding students and their parents with the college search process.' The tour program will include scholarship information, important deadlines, literature, prizes and more. Separate sessions are designed for students, parents and counselors.

Please visit the college's Web site at www.wsc.edu to learn more about the tour and Wayne State's Fridays@WSC and Just Juniors programs, both of which provide an inside look at the college's exceptional programs.

Fluellen and Rhone eclipse 100 yard mark in season opener Punishing ground attack and stifling defense sees Wildcats down Lopers 28-12

By Casey Schroeder

After 10 seasons of repeatedly getting anteloped, the Wayne State College football team returned the favor as they opened the 2008 season with a 28-12 win over Nebraska-Kearney on Aug. 30 at Ron and Carol Cope Stadium in Kearney.

The win by WSC was the first over a UNK football team since 1996 when the Wildcats downed the Lopers in Wayne 43-14. The win also marked the first season opening win for WSC since 1996 when the Wildcats won at Emporia State 50-38.

The win over UNK also marked the first win in Kearney for a WSC football team since 1993 when the Wildcats defeated the Lopers 28-9.

"This was a huge win for us," said WSC junior wide receiver *Logan Masters. "All we've heard is that WSC hadn't beat Kearney in forever and we were glad that we put that to an end on Saturday."

While WSC eventually walked off of Foster Field with the win, it was only after a dominate second half in which the Wildcats used a added the extra point to give WSC punishing ground attack to over- a 7-6 lead over the Lopers with 6:32 come a slow start where they saw two first half turnovers.

In the first half WSC botched their first play from scrimmage with a fumble that was later recovered by UNK on the 24-yard line.

UNK then capitalized on the excellent field position with a 24yard field goal by Geoff Carnahan to take an early 3-0 lead with 11:47 left in the first quarter.

The Lopers then went on to add another field goal on their second possession later in the quarter as Carnahan connected on a 53-yard field goal to give UNK a 6-0 lead with 9:16 left in the first quarter.

The score remained in favor of UNK at 6-0 until midway through the second quarter when the Wildcats found the endzone in an unusual turn of events

With WSC on their own 46-yard line, Wildcat running back Eric Meyer rushed for two yards and then fumbled.

However, WSC junior quarterback Silas Fluellen picked up the loose ball and scampered 50 yards down field for the touchdown. Junior place kicker Nick Hope then remaining in the half.

After a rough start in the first half, WSC opened up the second half with a pair of scores on each of their first two possessions.

After the Wildcats forced UNK to punt on their first possession of the second half, WSC moved the ball 59 yards on just four plays in 1:52 to take a 14-6 lead as Fluellen shelled out 47 yards and a touchdown

"We turned things around by taking our heads out of our butts,' Fluellen said. "We decided that if we played good we had this game."

After Fluellen's 47 yard touchdown the Wildcats forced a UNK turnover as Cole Fischer recovered a fumble at the WSC 36-yard line. "In the second half we just came out and we knew we had to shut down their offense,"said WSC defensive lineman Tyler Krueger, "We knew that we had to execute better then what we had been doing."

WSC then marched 64 yards on 10 plays and capped off the drive with a 13-yard run by Travis Rhone to put the Wildcats ahead 21-6 with 2:34 left in the third quarter.

While WSC maintained a comfortable lead over the Lopers, UNK failed to go away as they used a three-yard run by redshirt freshman quarterback Bobby Adamson to cut the Wildcats lead to 21-12 with 13:24 left in the game.

However, WSC responded to the challenge on the ensuing drive as they drove 80 yards on 11 plays over 4:59 to extend the lead as Rhone found the endzone on a 15yard run with 8:25 left to make it a 28-12 game.

WSC finished the game with 467 yards of total offense while limiting UNK to just 212 yards.

The Wildcats rushed for 302 yards while adding another 165 through the air while UNK gained 80 yards rushing and another 132 passing.

Statistically, Fluellen accounted for 295 yards of total offense in the win, completing 15 of 23 passes for

Masters was the top target for the Wildcats with seven receptions for 99 yards which marked the 24th straight game that Masters had a least two receptions.

"Kearney didn't want to get beat deep so they played pretty soft," Masters said. "We just took what they would give us and it was short stuff. In the second half we didn't need to pass, because we could just run over them."

Defensively, the Wildcats were led by junior middle linebacker Ryan Reeves with 11 tackles and an interception. Senior linebacker Luke Hoffman also added 11 stops and a pass breakup while Darius Davis and Cole Fischer were each credited with a fumble recovery.

In game one of Saturday's tournament action, Wayne fell to Norris 9-6. Leading Wayne's efforts in the loss was Finkey with 3 hits while Carly Fehringer added a home run, which

A whole lot about nothing...

At last football season is here and not to take away from any of the other fall sports going on, but if there is any one sport I truly love, it is football.

While Wayne State and Nebraska both notched up wins, which were needed, I'm more excited to see what is store for our area schools and their respective athletes.

Knowing that, I wanted to set the mood for this week's opening high school football games.

So I dug deep into my archive of writings, some of which date back to my days at Grant High School in Grant.

Writings that reflected upon my experience while playing football in Grant.

So here it is, "Another Night Under the Lights." Enjoy.

Another Friday night under the lights, sidelines filled.

Energy beyond belief. Lights bright and smoke filling the cool Nebraska air.

The cheers, chants and pep band playing, all becoming distant with time.

An elevator to the south, the sunset to the open western horizon.

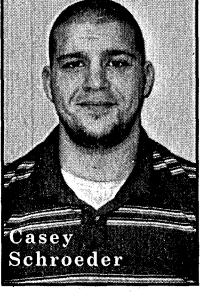

People still coming in to the east and to the north. The fans and a white water tower that states "anytown," Neb., finely stenciled in paint.

Coaching legends and first year busts, all of which are unique in their own attempts to build a program of their own namesake.

Friday night sports heroes, future collegiate players and hometown legends. Who for once are all on an even playing field, town politics set aside.

Players who will soon die off to anyone else, except to those from within.

Your grandpa played way back when in the 40's, your old man and uncles in the 70's and now you. You're now playing and trying to live up to the hype, the tradition, but more importantly the expectations. Too much.

There is nothing greater in life while in the moment when you are representing yourself, family and school.

The jersevs are the same, the helmets still plain and the field the same way it was nearly twenty years ago.

Nothing has changed.

Bone rattling hits, elusive running backs, the "I" formation.

The scores are high for the hometown heroes, and often low for the foes.

It's still bitter rivals between conference foes and perennial powerhouses.

Always good games, always good coaches and always good old farm kids who can play ball.

However, its all different, because now you're in the cheap seats ten rows up.

Watching, cheering and complaining like those before you.

Feeling like its been forever, when its only been a few years since the names of last years past echoed across the speakers.

Only a few years since "any number" and "any name" were sideline to sideline on the gridiron.

Now their jersey's sit in a room, probably never to be used again.

Collecting nothing more then dust, just like the awards and recognitions attained.

To never be echoed again over the speakers.

To never to be seen again grazing the field or sideline.

The players now sit in the bleachers reflecting on years past; wins and losses, broken bones memories made and things forgotten.

The players walk with slight limps, tarnished egos and bodies that were bruised for the sake of the "anytown", Neb.

Wayne State's Tiffani Kellerman advances the ball down field in the Wildcats 3-2 loss to Adams State last Thursday in Wayne.

Tough times for WSC women's soccer

By Casey Schroeder

The Wayne State College women's soccer team recently fell to 0-2-1 following their 0-1 loss to Southwestern Oklahoma State in Wichita, Kan. on Aug. 31.

"They (WSC players) have more heart then any team I know," said WSC women's head soccer coach Brooke Bredenberg. "Even though the girls were hurt some of them still played. It may have not been Jets. 100 percent, but it shows a lot about this team.'

The only goal of the game was scored by SWOSU's Lorina Salinas, who managed to breeze by WSC goalkeeper Rachel Fuchs at the 77:29 mark.

SWOSU held a slight 16-14 advantage in shots over WSC while the Wildcats had seven corner kicks to just two for Southwestern Oklahoma State. Fuchs finished the match with two saves while allowing just one goal in the loss.

the season, WSC secured their first tie of the year when they squared off with Newman University of Kansas on Aug. 30 in Wichita, Kan. After a scoreless first half, Newman drew first blood with a Diana Santillan goal at the 46:01 mark that saw the Lady Jets take a 1-0 lead over WSC.

Fuchs played the entire contest for WSC and was credited with seven saves while giving up just one goal.

Newman had 27 shots compared to the Wildcats 13, but WSC did, however, finish with a 6-3 advantage in corner kicks over the Lady

"We did dominate the game, but just ran out of gas and missed some opportunities," Bredenberg said.

While WSC failed to secure a win on the road, home field proved to provide little to no refuge for the Cats as they opened their season with a 3-2 loss to Adams State College of Colorado on Aug. 28.

"Against Adams State we had a lot of chances, but it just did not go our way that day," Bredenberg said.

In the Wildcats' season opener Prior to the 'Cats second loss of WSC took an early 1-0 lead over Adams State on a free kick by Megan Kenealy.

However, Adam State's Cori Rich answered back in the 21st minute with a shot from the right wing to tie the game at 1-1.

With the game tied at 1-1, Adams State reclaimed the lead with a penalty kick by Amber Drumm in The score went unchanged until the 24th minute to make it a 2-1

Following the halftime break, the contest remained deadlocked at 2-1 until Drumm scored her second goal of the day at the 64th minute to give the Grizzles a 3-1 lead.

"Our defense played a solid game, but we just had a couple moments that we fell apart and they capitalized," Kenealy said.

Unbeknownst to Adam State, WSC showed their resilency in the ensuring minutes of play as Valerie Robinson scored off of a penalty kick in the 67th minute to pull the Wildcats within one at 3-2.

However, the Grizzles were able to hang on for the win.

Kirsten Dorcey made six saves for Adams State to earn the goalkeeper win while Emily Walker made one save and took the loss at goal for WSC.

Both teams finished with 13 shots and six corner kicks in the game. Adams State had 21 fouls in the game to only seven for WSC.

The Wildcats will return to the road on Friday, Sept. 5 when they travel to Maryville, Mo. for a contest against Northwest Missouri State.

Scores of the matches were 25-21, 25-23 and 25-23. WSC improved to 5-0 on the season while Chadron fell to 2-3.

Chadron State had a higher percentage in the loss, out hitting the 'Cats .203-.185. However, WSC took advantage of 11 serving errors by the Eagles.

Grand Island Central Catholic freshman Tali Fredrickson led WSC with 13 kills and 11 digs.

followed Lea Hartigan Fredrickson's lead with eight kills while sophomore Diedra Artz finished with 24 assists and seven digs.

"Our ball control and defense are without a doubt our strength," said WSC head volleyball coach Scott Kniefl. "Our primary passers did an outstanding job of keeping us in system to allow Diedra to run the offense.'

In the case of coed schools, the fine arts activity performance points are divided equally among a school's boys and girls U.S. Cellular Cup totals.

In the all-school division, schools receive participation points for Nebraska High each of its NSAA registered programs, and earn additional points for placing in NSAA championship events.

NSAA dedicates 25,000 square foot facility in Lincoln on Friday

The Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) dedicated its new facility in Lincoln's historic Haymarket district on Aug. 29.

Designed by DLR Group with Sampson Construction as the general contractor, the 25,000 square foot facility, located at 500 Charleston Street, has served as the headquarters for the NSAA since its completion in late March.

The NSAA building is also home of the Nebraska Coaches Association (NCA) and the future home of the Nebraska High School Sports Hall of Fame.

The NSAA held a ground breaking ceremony on Sept. 28, 2006, but included guided tours for guests construction on the site adjacent to Salt Creek did not begin until Feb. 2007.

Despite the delay, the final cost came in at $4.2 million, $300,000 less the projected.

While Wayne dropped their second game of the day, it was in their third contest that they finally secured a much needed win.

In game three of Saturday's tourn ament action Wayne downed Lincoln High 11-1 in four innings of play.

Offensively, Wayne saw Calhoon pace the Bluedevil attack as she had three hits, a trio of runs scored and two RBI's.

Finkey also contributed in the win as she belted out her third home run of the season, in addition to her two runs scored and pair of RBI's.

Defensively, Miller got the start as pitcher for the Bluedevils and earned the win as she gave up just two hits, one unearned run while striking out five in four innings of play.

"We ended the day on a positive note, getting a good debut from fresh-Cassy Miller," man pitcher Sweetland said.

Wayne will return to action on Saturday, Sept. 6 when they travel to Boone Central for a tournament that is slated to begin at 10 a.m.

New CP 38 SAFE program offered to landowners

Do you enjoy having wildlife on your land? There is a new USDA Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) for you. Applications are being accepted for the new CP 38 Acres for Wildlife State Enhancement (SAFE) program. This is a 10 to 15 year contract. Annual rental rates will depend on soil types. Land enrolled in this program must meet Farm Service Agency cropping criteria. The state of Nebraska has been allocated 22,900 acres that can be enrolled by landowners right now for fall or spring establishment.

This program was established to improve wildlife habitat for two target species in Northeast Nebraska: Bobwhite Quail and the Greater Prairie Chicken. The Bobwhite Quail option of CP 38 allows 5 to 80 acres to be enrolled while the Greater Prairie Chicken option has to have at least 40 acres and up to 160 acres.

 $+_{L}$. The land will be seeded with a mix that will establish good nesting and brood-rearing cover. Planting design is based on SAFE requirements and the landowner's goals. Most grassland species of wildlife, including pheasants, will benefit from the habitat established and managed with this new CRP practice.

If you have any questions please contact your local USDA Service Center or Sara Fulton, Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist, at 402-439-2213 or email: sara.fulton@ne.usda.gov

Bv Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The philosophy and specifics of affirmative action have long represented a political hot potato, and Gov. Dave Heineman doesn't intend to get burned.

Heineman succumbed to presfrom pesky statehouse sure reporters when he recently acknowledged that he won't take sides on a controversial, proposed amendment to the state constitution. It would bar affirmative action efforts by the state and by local governments and the University of Nebraska.

At this writing, the language of the measure scheduled to go before voters on the November ballot was still the subject of a court fight. Opponents argued that the ballot language, drafted by Attorney General Jon Bruning's office, is misleading.

The amendment reached the ballot through a successful initiative petition drive.

Last week, Heineman told the statehouse press gang: "I don't feel as governor I have to take sides on every single issue."

Heineman said voters are smart enough to figure out things, like the affirmative action debate, for themselves.

That the constitutional amendment and Heineman's non-position aren't bigger news statewide is understandable.

Affirmative action, a central element of the civil rights movements of the 1960s and 1970s, still generates plenty of discussion. For the most part, though, it isn't in the forefront of public debate. There won't be a bunch of protesters and counter protesters at the governor's mansion, squabbling over Heineman's public fence sitting.

Nebraska is one of two states, the other being Colorado, where voters will consider revising their state charters to ban affirmative action policies. 1.1 It is easy to understand the fight over ballot language.

Those opposing affirmative action generally see it as a form of reverse discrimination. Thus, the ballot language approved by Bruning for their amendment might seem downright civil rightish, so to speak.

It asks whether the constitution should be amended to provide that the state, and any public institution of higher education, political subdivision or government institution shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to. individuals or groups based upon al origin in operating public employment, public education, or public contracting?

Critics argue that such language makes it sound as though the amendment was, itself, a sort of affirmative action initiative.

The pending lawsuit asks the court to agree that the ballot language should, instead, ask voters if they want the constitution to ban state and local programs designed to improve opportunities for and eliminate discrimination against women and minorities in public education, employment and contracting.

Heineman told those pesky race, sex, color, ethnicity, or nation- reporters: "I don't think any of us want to see any job discrimination in our state, and we want to provide opportunities for every citizen of our state."

> Of course, that's a view to which both sides might reply: "Hoo-ray! The governor is obviously on our side!

> Noting the usual buckets of hyperbole were being tossed about, Heineman also said: "I hope we have a thoughtful discussion on this issue. And we don't engage in discussion from the two extremes." That is a hope that most

Nebraskans can join in. Along with the hope for a national basketball championship.

Why would NPPD do this? The inefficiency of older refrigeration units is awful and has become very costly with high and climbing utility rates. Many of these old units run all the time, have dirty coils, set in the garage during the summer and use a lot of power to cool just a few items. Getting rid of these old horses will help lower the summer peak usage and save NPPD the high cost of power on those hot summer afternoons and delay construction of future power plants.

Mayor Bob Clarkson and his wife, Deb, led the parade followed by an old fire truck carrying the town's oldest firemen, Dick Hanson and Iner Peterson. Former residents had a chance to reminisce as they waited for the parade to go by. Many old memories were brought back during the day. season, whether at the local level, state level or national level.

And just as we recognize the start of the new sports season, we also are seeing the changes in other areas of our lives as well. School has started for another year; students have the opportunity to start fresh and do their best, maybe even improving on last year, just as the Huskers hope to do.

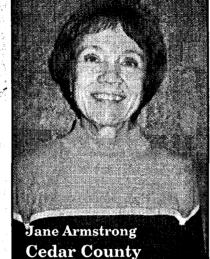

Our weather season is beginning to change; we notice the shorter days already and temperatures are predicted to be cooler. That brings changes in lawn and garden care, tree care, perhaps pet care as well. Some of us are thinking about changes in our budgeting, in our budgets, our health habits, our hobbies or even in our jobs.

Whatever changes you might be experiencing or thinking about, UNL Extension has the information you will need. One easy way to access that information is through your local UNL Extension Office. If you have access to a computer, you can receive information 24 hours a day through the UNL Extension website.

An easy way to find the list of the 869 publications which are ready to print at home, is to use your search engine. Just enter "UNL Extension Publications" and you will find 869 publications listed by topic and with a short description of each one, along with the format you prefer for printing.

So, if you are thinking about starting a business, you will find a number of essential publications. If you are farming, there is information about all forms of livestock, poultry, crops, irrigation, farm buildings, range management, waste management, soil management. The list goes on and on.

For students, there is ample information for research you may need to do for a science project or report, health project, family relationships, child development or any aspect of Family and Consumer Sciences. Business students will find ample information as well.

Why is the UNL information so important? The answer is simple: University information provides a source which ensures non-biased, reliable, research-based information. It is the most reliable type of information found on the web. In addition, you can always follow up with a conversation with the UNL staff, whether it be the UNL Extension Educators based in your county, or with the specialists from the University or from research stations around the state.

So, as the season is changing and you face new opportunities or problems, let UNL Extension help. UNL Extension allows you to know how and know now.

Agriculture official involved with implementing Country Of Origin Labeling (COOL) will be available at Husker Harvest Days in Grand Island to answer questions about the program.

Nebraska Agriculture Director Greg Ibach said that USDA Agricultural Marketing Service Administrator Lloyd Day will provide remarks about COOL and be available to visit with farmers and ranchers during a public forum on Tuesday, Sept. 9 at the University of Nebraska's Market Journal Tent on the Husker Harvest Days grounds. The event will begin at 2:45 p.m.

The Nebraska Department, of Agriculture (NDA), University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (IANR) and Nebraska Cattlemen are jointly sponsoring Day's visit to the state. COOL takes effect in September for meat products, and the rules governing that program were just recently released," Ibach said. "Many farmers, ranchers, and

A United States Department of agribusiness owners still have questions about how this program will affect their operations. This event will provide a forum for getting answers to those questions."

In addition to the event at the Market Journal Tent, Nebraska Cattlemen have arranged for Day to make appearances and provide brief comments at the Livestock Handling Demonstration Tent at 10:45 a.m. and at 2 p.m. He also will be touring the Husker Harvest Day grounds throughout the day.

Individuals who do not get the opportunity to see Day at Husker Harvest Days can still benefit from the information he will share. Darrell Mark, Extension Livestock Market Specialist for LANR, said UNL Extension will be providing several educational materials, including video interviews with Day, on Extension's COOL web site. Livestock producers and others interested in obtaining fact sheets and viewing streaming video presentations on how to meet the COOL regulations can visit http://agecon.unl.edu/mark/country_of_origin.html after Day's visit to Nebraska.

Ibach said Day's visit is important, given the impact of livestock and meat production on Nebraska's economy.

"COOL will affect all segments of our state's meat production industry, from farmers and ranchers to livestock auction markets and processors," Ibach said. "I encourage all those who will be impacted to educate themselves about the program and find a way to make it beneficial to their operation."

Wedding locations change through the years

There were a lot of years when weddings took place in "the home of the bride's parents" or in the local parsonage. I think that was especially true during the war years. My parents were married in 1936, and I think the Great Depression was beginning to wane. as they had a lovely church wedding, complete with attendants, long dresses, and professional photos.

During the years when our peers were being married, it seems the ceremony was always in a church, and usually, there were two or three attendants, a couple of songs by a soloist, and a reception in the "church parlors", which were typically in the basement. Then, the bride changed into a "going away" outfit, and the couple were out of town before 10 p.m.

When our kids began getting married, we were still in churches, but the reception was in a hall, and there was a band or a DJ, and the party didn't break up until around midnight. The next day, the bride and groom opened gifts, dressed in jeans and T shirt, and then left for a honeymoon.

Lately, I've been seeing lots of pictures in the paper of "destination weddings", in Vegas, or on some lovely tropical island. The bride is usually in traditional white, and the groom might wear anything from a cotton shirt and shorts to a tux.

Well, now we've been to a destination wedding. Since it was on the Lake of the Ozarks, it was a six Desiring" and "Canon in D."

plane trip. And since the groom was our son, we did have a front row seat, on white folding chairs. Jon has a condo on the lake, and we have been there a few times; we know it's a fun, lovely area. When we took boat rides, we would gaze at some of the lakefront homes and wonder what it would be like to have one.

Well, one of his friends just happens to have a gorgeous lakefront home, with very tall trees in the front yard and a gazebo right on the lake. The weather cooperated beautifully, it was a balmy 80 degrees, with a breeze, and the humidity wasn't bad, either.

Sunset was just about 7 p.m. and a DJ played "Jesu, Joy of Man's hour drive, and did not involve a Bridesmaids were in cream-colored throws at them.

dresses, the men were in brown suits, no ties. The flower girl wore a brown and white dress, and our Jaxson did the honors as ring bearer, dressed in a cream shirt and brown shorts.

The bride's dress was formal, but simple, and the officiant was a business partner who just happens to be an ordained Baptist minister. Now, that's handy!

After the vows, we traipsed up to the tennis courts for a smorgasbord under a big tent. The DJ moved his equipment, and when we left, rather early, they were still dancing.

Our accommodations were right on the lake, so we could sit on the deck and watch the boats go by and hear the waves lapping. In fact, there were so many boats all weekend, we wondered who was concerned about the gas shortage!

The TV in our room kept showing people evacuating New Orleans and hurricane Gustav roaring along. Then, there was the astonishing announcement of the vice presidential candidate for the Republicans.

But it's difficult to realize that all that is happening when you are "far away from the madding hoardes", and it was nice to just sit by the pool, order pizza, and watch a movie on TV.

We were home by 6:00 on Labor Day, and it's back to normal today. But it was a fun way to end the summer. And we pray the that the newlyweds remain a committed, loving couple, no matter what life

Poll: rural Nebraskans back 'immediate' government steps to curb climate change

A majority of rural Nebraskans Initiative. are concerned enough about global warming that they support "immediate action" by the government, though many older residents and people in agricultural occupations are skeptical about climate change's causes and impact, according to the Nebraska Rural Poll.

Surveys for the 13th annual University of Nebraska-Lincoln poll were mailed to about 6,200 randomly selected households in some demographical and geograph-Nebraska's 84 rural counties last ical differences among respondents spring. Results are based on 2,496 al climate change" (40 percent, compared to 30 percent overall) and that current climate change is due to normal climate patterns (48 percent, compared to 37 percent overall).

Older Nebraskans' attitudes about the seriousness of global climate change may be affected by their experiences with previous climate extremes, such as the Dust Bowl of the '30s, that have come and gone over the years, Cantrell and Johnson said.

People who make a living in agriculture also are more skeptical about global climate change. For example, 44 percent of them agreed that too much fuss is being made about global climate change, compared to 30 percent overall. Also, 52 percent of people in ag believe that climate change is due to normal climate patterns, compared to 37 percent overall, and only 31 percent support "immediate action" by the government, compared to 53 percent overall. Still, even among such globalwarming skeptics as older Nebraskans and people employed in agriculture, the poll shows concern about climate change and a belief that people will have to change their behavior. "People are paying attention way more than they're given credit for. They're attentive to sound science," Cantrell said. The Rural Poll is the largest annual poll of rural Nebraskans' perceptions on quality of life and policy issues. This year's response rate was about 40 percent. The margin of error is plus or minus 3 percent. Complete results are available online at Nebraska Rural Poll. The university's Center for Applied Rural Innovation conducts the poll in cooperation with the Rural Initiative with funding from the Partnership for Rural Nebraska and UNL Extension and the Agricultural Research Division in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

This year's poll included questions about rural Nebraskans' attitudes toward energy use and conservation, reported earlier (http://cari.unl.edu/ruralpoll/report 08.shtml) and perceptions of global climate change.

Responses to questions on both issues, researchers say, reflect a concern about the future among many rural Nebraskans that's led them to be unusually supportive of aggressive government action.

Fifty-three percent of poll respondents agreed or strongly agreed with the statement that "global climate change requires immediate action by the government." Twenty-one percent disagreed or strongly disagreed.

"It is unlike rural Nebraskans to believe anything requires action by government, especially when it involves promulgation of rules about how you live your life," said Randy Cantrell, rural sociologist with UNL and the Nebraska Rural and 60 percent are concerned about it impacting Nebraska, compared to 58 percent and 52 percent, respectively, statewide.

Becky Vogt, Rural Poll project manager, speculated that stems from several years of drought in western Nebraska.

"Maybe that's made them more sensitive to the issue," she said. Also, younger people are more concerned about the impact of global climate change, according to the poll. Fifty-six percent of respondents under 30 years old expressed concern that climate change will impact Nebraska, compared to 48 percent of those over 65. Older respondents were more nitrates during Husker Harvest Days in Grand Island on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 9, 10, and 11.

To find out the nitrate level in the water they drink, well owners can bring a cup-size sample of water in a clean bottle to the Natural Resources Tent at the northeast end of the Husker Harvest grounds on Tuesday and Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and on Thursday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. There is no charge for the test, and they can get the results while they wait.

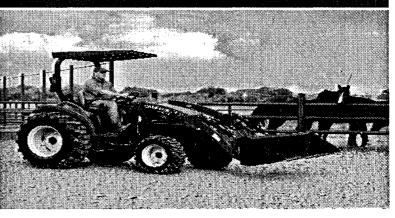

Nitrates are a concern for infants under six months of age and pregnant women, as well as anyone who has a weakened immune system. High levels of nitrates interfere with the blood's ability to carry oxygen and can cause "blue baby" syndrome.

Livestock, especially cattle, are also susceptible to nitrate poisoning, resulting in lower milk production and loss of calves.

The testing is sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, Division of Public Health. For more information, contact the Water Well Standards Program at (402) 471-0546.
