Wayne Library part of web-based digital program

Wayne Public Library has joined with 30 other libraries across the state to provide library patrons with access to downloadable books from the OverDrive Digital Library. OverDrive is a web-based digital media platform that enables library patrons to download popular digital audio books library's web site.

Books are available in a wide variety of popular genres, including fiction, romance, suspense, YA fiction, business, self-help, and language learning. Downloadable audio books download to a PC/laptop, burn to CD, or transfer to any of over 500 portable devices, including most MP3 players.

These digital books may be checked out for a limited period of time, downloaded to the patron's device and are automatically returned to the collection when the check-out time expires.

In order to use OverDrive through the Wayne Public Library, patrons are encouraged to stop by the library for a brief instruction sheet. Older library cards will not be accepted by the OverDrive system, so any patron cards that do not begin with P5151 will need to be updated at the library.

"Once a patron has updated their library card with a more recent barcode number, the information sheet will walk them step by step through the process," said Library Director Lauran Lofgren.

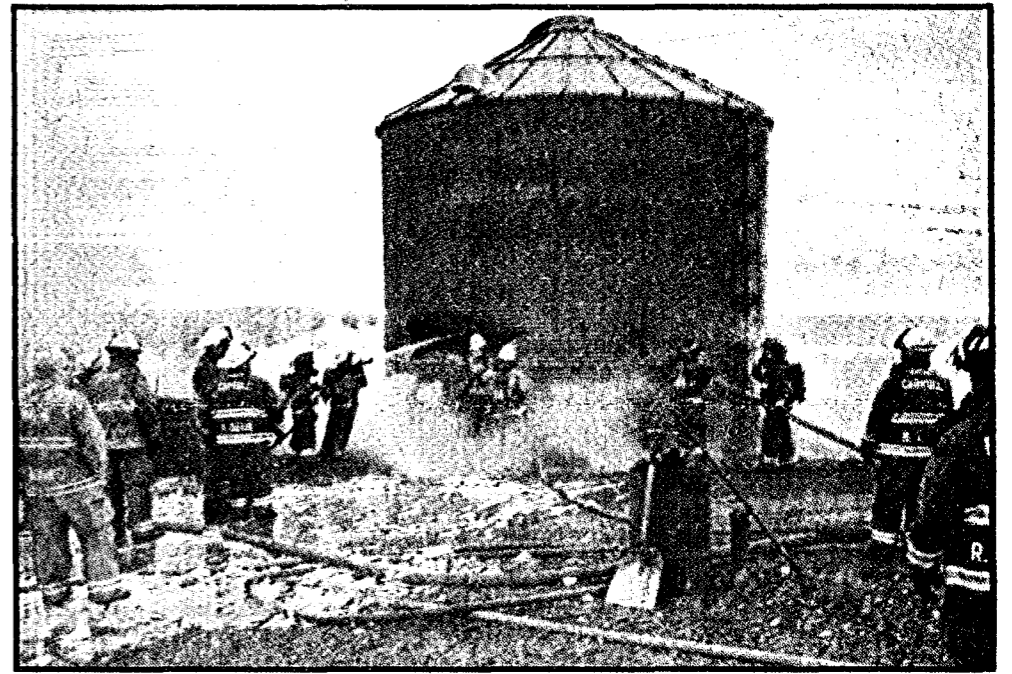

"In addition, the four public access computers in the center of the library all have the downloading software installed." Patrons are welcome to download the books in the lab and then transfer the titles to their personal player.

"This is a big step for the library," said Lofgren. To celebrate this new service, any patron requesting information about OverDrive during the month of November can enter a drawing for a 1G MP3 player to be given away Nov. 30.

Remembering

Local veterans were honored during this year's Veterans' Day Program at the Wayne Senior Center. Above, all those in attendance look skyward as balloons were released in remembrance of those who have served this country through the years. At left, Fr. Mark Beran of St. Mary's Catholic Church gave the Veterans' Day address and spoke of his service to his country as a military chaplain in Iraq. Following the ceremony, which was organized by the Consolidated Veterans Post, refreshments were served by the Senior Center staff.

Joint effort

Wayne Volunteer firemen, Carroll Volunteer firemen, the Northeast Nebraska Chapter of the Red Cross and local neighbors responded to a grain bin fire on the Roger Willers farm on Saturday. Fire personnel received the call at 7:15 a.m. and stayed on the scene until 12:45 p.m. The cause of the fire, which destroyed several thousand bushels of corn, was accidental/unknown.

Elderfest travel certificate winner shares memories of Alaskan cruise

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Elderfest reaches the hearts and minds of many senior citizens and is growing in popularity every year. Many seniors from around the region are coming to Wayne for the special one-day event held in April. Seniors who attend Elderfest experience fun, food, entertainment, dancing and more. Drawings are also held and some senior citizens are lucky and win prizes. Such is the case of Shirley Gowery of Wynot, who was the winner of the $1,000 travel certificate at Elderfest 2008. Gowery and her husband, Harley, used the travel certificate and went on an Alaskan cruise in July.

"We went on a cruise to the inside passage of Alaska," Shirley Gowery said. "We traveled on the Princess cruise line. We left on July 11 and got back to Seattle on July 18. We stayed until July 22 as we have relatives in Washington who we wanted to visit. We stopped at Skagway and took a side trip in the mountains on a train, stopped at Juneau, Ketchikan and Victoria, British Columbia, where we visited the Butchart Gardens."

Shirley added that last year a cousin of hers was here from Tacoma and she said to her that someday she wanted to go to Alaska. "My cousin said to me, when you get ready to go, let me know. She had been on different cruises and knew exactly what to do. I called her on a Saturday morning and by the end of the day, everything was taken care of. My cousin and her husband and our oldest daughter and her husband went with us."

Looking back, Gowery and her husband, Harley, first attended Elderfest in April, 2007. They had heard about the event from their daughter in Laurel who encouraged them to go. The couple enjoyed themselves so much that they went on their own to Elderfest 2008.

"We would definitely go back again,"

Shirley said. "There is nothing like this near Wynot. We have told a lot of people about Elderfest and most especially they Discussion was held on the FCA program. Brent Jamison, a WSC student, had requested the group be allowed to hold meetings with WHS students at the school. Dr. Joe Reinert, superintendent, said he wrote a letter to the group noting liability concerns and feels the meetings should not take place at this time. It was stated, there is a possibility they can meet at the school at a later date if changes are made in supervision and other issues.

Dr. Reinert spoke on 2008 school insurance and valuation. He noted he was advised to add three percent on each line item for liability insurance. More information and possible approval will be held at the December meeting.

The 2007-08 audit was approved. Board member Carolyn Linster made a motion to approve the audit and Jodi Puffer seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Plans continue to be discussed for Wayne's Quasquicentennial celebration next year

The Wayne Community Q-125 Committee met Tuesday night at the Coffee Shoppe. Chairman Kochenash opened the meeting by reviewing the agenda, handouts and e-mail messages received by members who could not attend but reported on their volunteer assignments.

One of the e-mails from Wayne High School art teacher Amy Jackson stated that the cakes and cupcakes are completed and ready to be placed in local businesses. The committee discussed accompanying signs and information that should be on the signs. Jackson also reported that her classes have begun drawings of the possible mural that will be located downtown. The committee commended Jackson and her students for their participation and contributions.

The committee reviewed a list of souvenirs and clothing that was sold by the Hartington Q-125 committee and discussed items that would be appropriate for the Wayne celebration. Several pieces of pottery were available for viewing and some of the committee members volunteered to check further on suppliers and vendors before a final decision will be made.

The committee gave the February 2 birthday party sub-committee permission to buy matchbooks with the Q-125 logo on so they can be used to light the candles on the birthday cake. The sub-committee on the birthday party gave a more detailed plan of the birthday party and the schedule of activities and advertising they have scheduled.

A great deal of discussion took place on the Q-125 weekend of August 7 through 9 and reports were heard from members who volunteered to do specific tasks related to the activities of the weekend. Insurance liability coverage costs were reported on as were old time photos of the city, their possible reproduction and DVDs.

A contact was made with the school superintendent for possible open houses of the schools during that weekend. A chautauqua update for that weekend was given and details are still being worked on. Doug Krie volunteered to do a pork loin feed for the committee and there was some discussion as to when and it was slotted in for Friday evening for now. Square dancers were contacted for Friday night dancing, someone volunteered to look into a teen dance for Saturday night after the parade and Artie Schmidt had been contacted for a Sunday evening old-timers dance. Several more organizations need to be contacted for a quilt show, Wayne Industry open houses, Historic Driving tours, fire department water fights and numerous other activities planned for the weekend. A Saturday evening Q-125 parade is set as is an Antique Show at Our Savior Lutheran Church. There will be a Saturday Antique Car Show and a noontime Sunday dinner at the city auditorium.

The next committee meeting will be on Tuesday, Nov. 25 at 7 p.m. at the Coffee Shoppe on Main Street. There are no membership fees and the meetings are opened to volunteers with creative low cost ideas for activities that would enhance the Wayne community year-long celebration of its 125th anniversary.

Allen Eagles take Elgin to the limit before falling 21-12

By Casey Schroeder

Throw out the record book, the hype and the chatter on the sidelines. That is exactly what the Allen Eagles did when they traveled to Elgin on Monday evening. Favored as an underdog by most, Allen entered Monday's contest with a modest 6-4 record while first-seed Elgin touted a 10-0 record. "Our kids played outstanding, hard nosed football against the number one team in the state," said Allen head football coach Dave Uldrich.

"No finger pointing for losing, as we won together and we shall lose together, as that's what we are about." While the pessimists said that Allen didn't stand a chance against Elgin, the Eagles once again proved everybody wrong. Early in the first half, Elgin used a couple of missed punt snaps to create a short field that would later result in Eagle touchdowns. The first score of the night came with just under four minutes left in the first quarter when Elgin's Tyler Reestman scored on an 11-yard run to put the Eagles up 8-0 following the successful two-point conversion. Both teams continued to exchange the ball in a field possession battle until a second missed punt snap sailed wide where Cody Stewart then took off running with the ball only to come up two short yards of saving the play. Elgin tacked on their second score of the night midway through the second quarter when Tad Henkinus found the end zone on a one-yard run to increase the Eagles lead to 14-0. Halftime brought a much needed momentum and weather swing as Eagles' running back Scott Wilmes raced 70 yards through the sleet and wind for Allen's first score of the night. Wilmes' run followed by a failed two-point conversion saw Allen cut Elgin's lead to 14-6 with 9:53 left in the third quarter. After a forced Elgin punt on the first play of the fourth quarter, Allen soon found themselves pinned down at their own 10 yard line. However, quarterback Heath Roerber saved a probable Allen turnover with a 70-yard touchdown reception to Nick Schneiders who outran a host of Elgin defenders to close the lead to 14-12 with 11:12 to play in the game. "We could have folded, we didn't," Uldrich said. We put them on their heels the entire second half." The remainder of the quarter saw Allen's defense hold until midway through the period, when the Eagles allowed Elgin to convert on third and 22nd from their own nine yard line. With a new set of downs, Elgin moved their way towards the end zone as they converted two fourth downs before they scored at the 2:12 mark on a Reestman 4-yard run to seal the 21-12 win. Offensively, Wilmes earned 89 yards on 19 carries with one touchdown. Roerber completed 2 of 9 passes for one touchdown and an interception while Schneiders had two receptions for 85 yards and a score. Defensively, a huge effort to slow the Elgin ground game was logged. Cody Stewart led the Eagles with 25 tackles followed by A.J. Williams who finished with 24 stops and a fumble recovery. With the loss, Allen ended their tremendous season with an overall

Allen Eagles stump Sterling Jets 26-22

By Casey Schroeder

The 12th-seed Allen Eagles looked to extend their stay in the Nebraska Class D-2 State Playoffs last Wednesday night as they hosted the fourth-seed Sterling Jets in Allen. The Jets brought an impressive 8-1 record into Allen, but that failed to impress the Eagles as they defeated Sterling 26-22. "What a game, we just believe in ourselves," said Allen head football coach Dave Uldrich. "We've asked the kids the last six games of the year to give all of themselves to the team and forget about themselves and the third and fourth quarter showed it when we were down 22-6." Allen took the first step in securing their 16-0 win over Sterling in the first quarter of Wednesday night's game as they scored at the 10:29 mark on a Brandyn Stewart blocked punt recovery. With Allen leading 6-0, Sterling later battled back midway through the 1st quarter when Jesse Salberg found Zach Lempke on a 12-yard touchdown reception. The Jets then went on to add the two-point conversion to take a 8-6 lead into the second quarter. Following an offensive stalemate by both squads in the second quarter, Sterling broke loose with just under 2 minutes left to play in the half as Jacob Saathoff found 'Lempke' on a 17-yard touchdown reception to increase the Jets lead to 14-6 at the half. Following the intermission break, Sterling recorded the first score of the second half as Saathoff found the end zone on a one-yard run to give the Jets a 22-6 lead with 2:32 remaining in the quarter. However, Allen rattled back at the 1:52 mark of the third quarter when Scott Wilmes bolted 29 yards for a touchdown that saw Sterling's lead squander to 22-12 after the failed PAT conversion attempt. With time working against the Eagles, Allen acted quickly in the fourth quarter as they scored on a 25-yard Wilmes run with 7:48 remaining in period to come within four of the Jets at 22-18. Following a Jets turnover on the ensuing drive, Allen bounced back with their second score of the fourth quarter as Wilmes hit pay dirt on a one-yard run to secure the Eagles 26-22 come from behind win. The Eagles were driven to the win by Wilmes who rushed for 120 yards on 32 carries with three touchdowns. "I know we've got some great blockers," Wilmes said. "The coach knows it too, when we need a couple of yards he knows he can give it to me and I can get those couple of yards." Allen quarterback Heath Roerber completed 1 of 9 passes for 16 yards and one interception. The Eagles' receiving corps was led by Schneiders who finished the night with one reception for 16 yards. Defensively, A.J. Williams led Allen on defense with 17 tackles while Corey Klug added 16 stops.

Women know what heartache feels like.

But not heart attack.

For women, as for men, the most common symptom of a heart attack is pain, pressure or discomfort in the chest. But women are more likely than are men to also have symptoms unrelated to chest pain, such as:

- Neck, jaw, shoulder or upper back discomfort
- Shortness of breath
- Nausea or vomiting
- Abdominal pain or "heartburn"
- Sweating
- Lightheadedness or dizziness
- Unusual or unexplained fatigue

If you have any of these warning signs, call 911 or seek emergency help immediately.

Free Customer Appreciation Show scheduled

Local sponsoring firms will present a free show at the Community Activity Center in Wayne on Saturday, Nov. 22.

This family-type entertainment show will feature Gary Weldon of Moorhead, Iowa.

Everyone is invited. All ages will enjoy this show. The show is presented "free" to the audience because of the generosity of local sponsoring firms as a way of saying "Thanks to your Community for your Patronage."

Gary Weldon is a ventriloquist and "Tribute Singer" artist. He has been a professional entertainer since age 17, starting out playing saxophone with The Ernie Stueve Band after graduating from Mondamin, Iowa High School. He later played with several other regional dance bands.

He learned ventriloquism and also added a puppet show with a drug-free message to his lists of talents. The ultimate experience for Gary was when he had the opportunity to appear as a "Warm Up" for several famous country music stars such as Tommy Cash, Faron Young, Wendy Bagwell, Billy Walker, Clay Hart, Jeannie C. Riley, Roy Drusky, Dell Reeves, etc.

Gary also had the privilege of singing in a chorus for a week with the Lawrence Welk Orchestra at an Ak-Sar-Ben show in Omaha.

A couple of years ago, Weldon decided to become a Tribute Artist and sing songs honoring Tony Bennett, Frank Sinatra and Glenn Campbell. Gary's little Wooden Friend (Dummy) wanted to share in the Tribute Singing, so Gary allowed Woodstock to add a Tribute to Willie Nelson to his act.

This is what make me proud to be an American

Dear Editor,
Red Shirt Friday.
If the red shirt thing is new to you, read below how it went for a man. Last week, while traveling to Chicago on business.
I noticed a Marine sergeant traveling with a folded flag, but did not put two and two together. After we boarded our flight, I turned to the sergeant, who'd been invited to sit in First Class (across from me) and inquired if he was heading home.
No, he responded.
Heading out, I asked?
No. I'm escorting a soldier home. Going to pick him up?
No. He is with me right now. He was killed in Iraq. I'm taking him home to his family.
The realization of what he had been asked to do hit me like a punch to the gut. It was an honor for him. He told me that, although he didn't know the soldier, he had delivered the news of his passing to the soldier's family and felt as if he knew them after many conversations in so few days.
I turned back to him, extended my hand, and said "Thank you. Thank you for doing what you do so my family and I can do what we do."
Upon landing in Chicago, the pilot stopped short of the gate and made the following announcement over the intercom.
"Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to note that we have had the honor of having Sergeant Steeley of the United States Marine Corps join us on this flight. He is escorting a fallen comrade back home to his family. I ask that you please remain in your seats when we open the forward door to allow Sergeant Steeley to deplane and receive his fellow soldier. We will then turn off the seat belt sign."
Without a sound, all went as requested. I noticed the sergeant saluting the casket as it was brought off the plane and his action made me realize that I am proud to be an American. So here's a public 'Thank You' to our military men and women for what you do so we can live the way we do.

Red Fridays.
Very soon, you will see a great many people wearing red every Friday. The reason? Americans who support our troops used to be called the 'silent majority.' We are no long silent and are voicing our love for God, country and home in record breaking numbers. We are not organized, boisterous or overbearing. Many Americans, like you, me and all our friends, simply want to recognize that the vast majority of America supports our troops. Our idea of showing solidarity and support for our troops with dignity and respect starts this Friday - and continues each and every Friday until the troops all come home, sending a deafening message that... every red-blooded American supports our men and women a far, will wear something red.
By word of mouth, press, TV - let's make the United States on every Friday a sea of red much like a homecoming football game in the bleachers. If everyone of us who loves this country will share this with acquaintances, coworkers, friends and family, it will not be long before the USA is covered in RED and it will let our troops know the once 'silent' majority is on their side more than ever, certainly more than the media lets on.
The first thing a soldier says when asked, "What can we do to make things better for you?" is "We need your support and your prayers."
Let's get the word out and lead with class and dignity, by example, and wear something red every Friday.
Those without a tear in your eye, please leave America.
Mary Jo Curtis,

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
These days the full results of a presidential election aren't likely to be known until days, and sometimes months, after the nation casts its ballots.
Whether Nebraska contributed to the historic election of Barack Obama remained in question as this column went to press. It was possible, but not certain, that a majority of votes in the Omaha-dominated 2nd Congressional District were cast for Obama, a Democrat and the first black man elected president.
A victory in the 2nd District would put one of the state's five electoral votes into the Obama column. Two of Nebraska's electoral votes automatically go to the statewide winner. The others are determined by results in each congressional district.
Only Maine and Nebraska use the district-by-district system. Many Republican lawmakers in the officially nonpartisan Unicameral, and GOP Gov. Dave Heineman, want to rewrite the law in 2009 and return to a winner-take-all system. Such a change would return Nebraska's electoral votes to the "sure thing" category for Republican presidential hopefuls.
Nebraskans made some history of their own in the latest election. Brenda Council, 55, and Tanya Cook, 43, became the first black women elected to the Legislature. Council is the former member of the Omaha City Council who will replace Ernie Chambers. Chambers, currently the only black state lawmaker, has served for a record 38 years. He is being forced from office by term limits. Cook lives just outside Omaha in Douglas County.

The late Sen. Jo Ann Maxey of Lincoln was the only other black woman to serve in the Unicameral. She was appointed by then-Gov. Jim Exon to fill an unexpired term. She served from 1977-79, but was defeated in the next election by David Landis.
Gov. Dave Heineman saw the writing on the wall, and the kids piling up, when he called the Legislature back to Lincoln for a special session scheduled to begin Nov. 14.
Lawmakers are expected to decide an age limit for infants who can be dropped off - no questions asked - at Nebraska hospitals. The safe haven law that took effect this year has led to 20-plus younguns, including a handful from other states, being handed over to Nebraska.
The law that took effect this year was primarily intended to cover infants. Ironically, not one newborn was among the children counted to date.
Look for lawmakers to enact an age limit between three days and one month.

What happened to the issue of illegal immigrants (undocumented workers (take your pick) in the last election?
Look for some type of legislation and more than a little debate in the 2008 Legislature. Particulars could involve everything from in-state college tuition to requiring employee identification to... who knows?
In September and October the Judiciary Committee held public hearings on immigration issues in Grand Island, Lexington, Scottsbluff, North Platte and Schuyler.

Increasing international student numbers please Northeast Board of Governors

Visitors walking through the halls or student cafeteria at Northeast Community College will notice an increasingly international flair.
International student numbers continue to rise at Northeast. When classes began in August, 40 international students representing 17 different countries were enrolled. They came from the Bahamas, Kosovo, Grenada, India, South Korea, Sweden, Sri Lanka, Brazil, Colombia, Kenya, Bulgaria, Malawi, Ireland, the Ivory Coast, Iraq, Zambia, and Australia. Many in this group are returning students.
Northeast has 15 students from Columbia this year. Eleven of them have been referred to Northeast through a company in Bogot called Open Hearts Global Education.
The Northeast Board of Governors continues to appreciate the increasingly-diverse student population at the college. "As a fairly-new member on the Board, I was pleasantly surprised to hear that Northeast attracts such a large number of international students," said Member-at-Large Marlin Meisinger.

"Those students help our entire student population become better-educated, better-rounded individuals," he said. "International students can offer experiences and insights that most Nebraskans, or Plains States individuals, will never experience."
According to Shelley Lammers, international student advisor, Northeast has more international students this year than ever before. She said foreign students find their way to Northeast via the Internet or through a family or friend. "They can find our low tuition rates on the Internet or referral companies like Open Hearts. And often past or present international students will refer a family or friend here," she said.
Vanessa Gordillo, Bogot, Colombia, found her way to Norfolk through Open Hearts Global Education. "I like it here and think the costs are inexpensive," Gordillo said. "I would recommend Northeast Community College to other students because you can save a lot of money on your first two years of college before transferring to a four-year university."

James Brian Lyght of Grenada is another example. Brian, as he is called, started at Northeast in the spring of 2007 and his cousin followed him here this year.
Basketball also brings students to Northeast. This year's men's roster includes players from Brazil, Australia, Kosovo, and the Bahamas, while the women's roster has players from Australia, Ireland, and Sweden. Some are on full-ride scholarships, others receive no scholarship assistance.
Even with Northeast's low tuition, international students often need extra income. Because of their F1 visa status, they can only work for wages on the Northeast campus. Some work on the grounds crew, others find employment in the Northeast weight room, Student Center game room, or College Bookstore. Many are also involved in activities like the Student Government Association, Student Ambassadors, and Resident Assistant/ Student Assistant team (residence hall leadership positions) that award tuition waivers.
Many international students are active in student clubs and organizations too. Most contribute foods, and a song, dance, poem/reading, or native costume to the annual Culture Show each spring sponsored by Northeast's Multicultural Club.

Meisinger knows that international students face challenges not faced by native students. Many get homesick because they rarely get home. Others find our winters a challenge. "I heard that one of our Kenyan students, new to Nebraska winters, told someone that her bones were cold when we had sub-zero weather last winter."
Another Board member, Dr. Don Oelsigle, himself a world traveler, made the suggestion to hire a minority recruiter last year. Ted Myers is fluent in Spanish and has been a great help to the Spanish-speaking population.

"We, as a Board, felt it extremely important to add a minority recruiter to our staff," he said. "With our international/ minority numbers on the rise, we knew it was key to have someone to relate to these students in their own language. We cannot, of course, find recruiters who speak every different language on campus, but a Spanish-speaking recruiter has been of great help."

Meisinger echoes that sentiment and hopes for ever-increasing international student numbers at Northeast. "To use the clich, it is a win-win situation for everyone," he said. "Both the international student and the American student have much to offer each other. Northeast Community College is a better place when we have a diverse student body of many different races, cultures and creeds."

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By Lowell Johnson,
City Administrator
City Council Meeting
The next regular City Council meeting will be Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 5 p.m. in the council room.
Why is My Sewer Bill So High?
Last year the mayor and council set a higher sewer rate to establish a cash reserve to rebuild or replace our 20 year old waste water plant. We operate the utilities at a break even rate to cover costs and maintain a reserve for emergencies.

The cost to rebuild the existing plant could be $2-4 million for a 10-year fix.
The cost for a replacement plant could be $6-9 million for a 30-year fix.
Building a cash reserve now will help with the payment levels later. What Is the Water Survey For?
Every water user in every building in every city in Nebraska is required by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services to complete a survey every five years telling if they have unprotected water softeners or hose bibs, etc. that could suck water back into the water lines if they were open at a time when a city water main broke. The risk is if the water main loses pressure, water could back-siphon through a hose or a water softener drain hose on the basement floor back out into a water main and contaminate the water.
We need a completed survey from every customer so we will call you if we don't get a survey returned. Call 402-375-1733 with questions about the survey.

Set a goal to 'Take Control of your Diabetes'

Managing diabetes can seem overwhelming at times. There are numerous tasks required to keep it under control which can vary depending on your overall health and personal circumstances.

One thing everyone with diabetes needs to focus on is controlling blood glucose. When you improve your diabetes control, you win both now and in the future. With tighter control of blood sugar levels, you are likely to feel better and more energetic. The long-term effects are even more striking. Major clinical trials have proven that good blood glucose control is the best way to prevent or delay diabetes complications. Even small reductions in blood glucose levels can improve your health.

Good control requires both diligence and willingness to try new strategies. Learn new strategies by attending "Control Diabetes for Life." The December 3 session will focus on "Cutting the Costs of Diabetes Self Management."

Set a goal to take control of your diabetes. Aim for lower blood glucose levels to feel better now and stay healthy for years to come. Wednesday, Dec. 3, topics that will be addressed during the two-hour program include: Cost Savings on Diabetes Care, Seeing is Believing - Eye Health, Weight Control is All about Portion Control, Medicare Part D Update, and Seven Habits of Highly Effective People with Diabetes.

Participants will review a new recipe for a diabetic appropriate food. Team-teaching the program will be Phyllis Heimann, R.N. & Certified Diabetes Educator; Stacie Petersen, R.N. & Certified Diabetes Educator; Mary Clare Stalp, R.D.; of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra Schroeder, UNL Extension Educator in Cuming County.

Control Diabetes for Life will be available from 1:30-4 p.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

"Control Diabetes for Life" is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered free-of-charge. "Control Diabetes for Life" will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease.

Participants are asked to pre-register for "Control Diabetes for Life" by calling UNL Extension in Wayne County at 402-375-3310. Please register by Monday, Dec. 1, so the proper number of handouts may be prepared. Nebraska School Food Service Association has approved this session for two hours of continuing education credits for food service staff for attending.

Control Diabetes for Life! Start by attending the Dec. 3 distance education program. Call today to register.

Red Ribbon Week activities conducted

Red Ribbon Week was celebrated at Wayne Community Schools Oct. 27 - 31. Activities were coordinated by the Wayne FRIENDS Drug Free Youth Group.

Red Ribbon Week is a nationwide awareness campaign that began in 1985, following the brutal murder of drug enforcement agent, Enrique Camarena, by drug dealers. His community honored him by wearing red ribbons and the idea caught on as a symbol of "No use of illegal drugs - no illegal use of legal drugs."

The Wayne FRIENDS decorated the middle school and coordinated theme days in the elementary and middle schools. Stickers were given out for each day. Theme days were: Drugs Give You the Blues Day; Join the Fight Against Drugs Day; Team Up Against Drugs Day; Lei Off Drugs Day; and Wear Red Day. Pencils with the slogan "Being Drug Free is My Responsibility" were given to every elementary school student. The FRIENDS group also provided stickers, ribbons and pencils to the students at St. Mary's School.

A middle school assembly featuring speaker Steve Shear of Project Extra Mile, gave students some important factual information about alcohol use and abuse.

To cap off the celebration with the message that "Being Drug Free is Sweet," the FRIENDS group provided ice cream sundaes for all students and staff in the middle school on Oct. 31. Ice cream was donated by Pac'N'Save. Other Red Ribbon Week supplies were purchased with funds from Wayne United Way.

FRIENDS stands for "Facts Raising Interest Ending Needless Drugs." The group was founded by students in 1989. One of the founding members, Kim Endicott, Assistant Manager of Pac'N'Save, came to school and helped with the ice cream sundaes. The group's sponsor is middle school counselor, Joan Sudmann.

Wayne Rotary Club gives dictionaries to area third graders

Third graders in area schools have received new dictionaries thanks to the Wayne Rotary Club. Local students who received dictionaries were Wayne, Wayne St. Mary's, Winside, Wisner-Pilger, Pender, Emerson-Hubbard, Wakefield, Allen, Laurel-Concord and Coleridge.

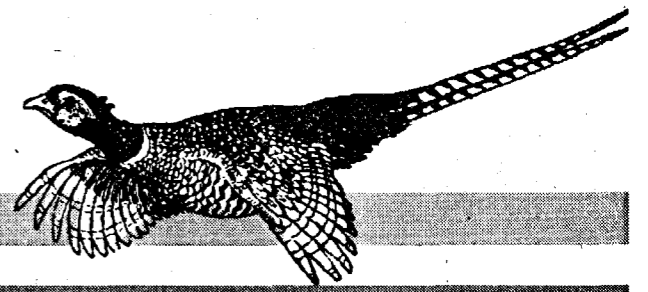

Wayne Rotary Club partnered with The Dictionary Project in this activity. The goal of the program is to assist students to complete the school year as good writers, active readers and creative thinkers by having their own dictionary.

The third grade has been targeting to give every third grade student in the U.S. their own dictionary. To date, there have been over seven million children who have received a dictionary thanks to the generosity of sponsors, such as individuals and organizations like Rotary, who have been participating in The Dictionary Project.

Entrepreneurship Everywhere

We have been hearing about entrepreneurship a great deal the past few years, but the need for it is even more urgent due to the current economic trends. Entrepreneurship can be many different

Jane Armstrong
Cedar County

dren to consider right now, either for gifts or for sale. Either way, it benefits the family budget.

I saw many similar situations last weekend attending a craft show. Many of the vendors had created lovely gift or household items out of very inexpensive or "leftover" materials. I helped our local economy by purchasing quite a few items to use for gifts. I also went away with lots of ideas that I could use myself to create gifts. Handmade gifts are always special and can often be found at craft sales or with local vendors at lower costs than at specialty gift shops, especially the regional or national chain stores.

With the holidays coming, it's a great time to catch the "entrepreneurial spirit". Besides saving money, you may also help kids to be creative and build a sense of accomplishment by creating their own gifts or items for sale. And throughout the year, it's a great way for you or children in your family to earn extra cash and it helps youth learn to earn and to save. In some cases, small items or services can turn into a great second job or even become the career you have always wanted. Many Nebraska youth have started businesses that have helped them pay their college expenses.

So, whether it is to help a child learn or to help your family budget, consider the opportunities of entrepreneurship. Your local extension office or website can provide great information to help you. As always, you can "know how...and know now" with UNL Extension.

Suggestions offered for bulb planting, digging and storing

By Kelly Feehan, Extension Educator

Bulbs are being planted, dug, and stored for winter. Hardy bulbs, such as daffodils, should already be planted outdoors. Now is the time to plant Amaryllis and other bulbs for forcing indoors; and to make sure summer bulbs are stored correctly for winter.

If you purchased hardy bulbs and didn't get time to plant them outdoors, consider potting them to force indoors. This works quite well with tulips, daffodils, hyacinth and crocus. Crowd them into a container, store them in a cool location for a couple of months, and you'll be rewarded with indoor blooms in February.

To force hardy bulbs, use six to eight inch containers for larger bulbs and four to six inch containers for smaller bulbs. Fill the containers two-thirds full of a well drained potting mix. Crowd the bulbs into the containers by planting them one inch apart and one inch from the container's edge. Add more soil and water to settle. If needed, add additional soil, but the bulb tips should be visible above the soil line.

After watering, place the containers of bulbs in a cool, dark location. A temperature of 40 degrees Fahrenheit is ideal. I use a friends' garage pit and cover the boxes of bulbs with a dark blanket. For one or two containers, a refrigerator could be used. In early January, take the bulbs out of storage, water and place them in a sunny location. They will bloom in about one month.

If you'd rather not deal with cold storage, pot up amaryllis bulbs in mid-November for blooming during the holidays. Amaryllis bulbs are available pre-planted or unpotted. Unpotted bulbs usually cost less and planting is simple. Start with large, top grade Amaryllis bulbs as these will produce two flower stalks, each with four flowers up to six inches across.

Plant Amaryllis bulbs in containers one to two inches wider than the bulb and which have drainage holes. Add a small amount of well drained potting mix to the bottom of the pot; center the bulb in the middle; then add additional potting soil, firming it around the bulb. When finished, the upper one-half to two-thirds of the Amaryllis bulb should be visible above the soil.

Water well and place the container in a cool, 60°F, location. Water sparingly until growth appears; then move the plant to a sunny window, water more frequently, and apply a water-soluble fertilizer every two to four weeks. Amaryllis bulbs will bloom in four to six weeks.

Cannas, tuberous begonias, gladioli, and gladioli are examples of summer bulbs, or bulb-like structures that are not hardy to Nebraska winters. After a frost, these plants need to be dug, dried out a little, and then stored for winter.

For success in storing summer bulbs, the correct storage temperature and humidity levels are needed. Gladioli and dahlias are best stored at 35- to 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Cannas and tuberous begonias require a storage temperature of 45 to 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

Gladioli and cannas need to be kept fairly dry while stored. Gladioli corms can be stored in old nylon hose or onion bags hung from the ceiling or wall. Cannas roots can be stored in packing material to reduce shriveling, but the packing material must be kept dry or roots may rot.

Dahlia and tuberous begonias need a fairly moist storage environment. Pack the just moist tubers in dry vermiculite, sawdust or sphagnum moss in boxes. Check the tubers once a month and add more packing material if roots begin to shrivel.

Buffer strip program sign-up deadline approaching

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) would like to remind landowners and producers of the Nov. 15 deadline to apply for the Nebraska Buffer Strip Program. Applications are currently being accepted for filter strips and riparian forest buffers.

"These conservation practices filter agricultural pollutants such as sediment, fertilizers and pesticides," said Craig Romary, the environmental programs specialist at NDA. "The buffer strips are planted along rivers, seasonal and intermittent streams, ponds and wetlands."

Romary also stated that the rental rates for both non-irrigated and irrigated land have increased.

Applications are currently being accepted for new and existing buffer strips. Those interested in applying should contact their local Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) or Natural Resources District (NRD) office for more information. Additional information is also available on the NDA web site at <http://www.agr.ne.gov/division/bpi/pes/buff.htm>.

Marketing specialist: beef industry needs to focus on consumer

The beef industry has taken some hits in recent years -- some of them self-inflicted -- but can rebound on both the domestic and export fronts by overcoming some bad habits and focusing aggressively on consumer demands, said a Kansas State University livestock marketing specialist.

Ted Schroeder spoke recently at the annual Ag at the Crossroads Conference, sponsored by the Nebraska AgRelations Council and University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agricultural Economics.

Schroeder noted that the United States was the second largest beef exporter in 2000, behind only Australia. "But we hit a wall in December 2003 when the first case of BSE was discovered."

"Our export markets shut down immediately, overnight," he added.

That resulted in a $4 billion loss to the industry in 2004. While exports have bounced back some, they're expected this year to be worth only about 75 percent what they were pre-BSE, Schroeder said.

In the meantime, Brazil passed both Australia and the U.S. in beef exports. On a recent trip to Brazil, Schroeder said, he was impressed. Industry leaders there are young, highly educated and multilingual.

"They had a confidence about them. They expect to have 4, 4 1/2, 5 percent growth a year," he added.

"That's the kind of competitors we have in the world."

Some in the U.S. beef industry did not respond constructively to the challenges of recent years, Schroeder said. "We pointed fingers ... We not only pointed fingers. We said, 'doggonit, we're going to legislate and fix them.'"

Packing plants were the first scapegoat. Then blame focused on speculators in the cattle-futures markets. "Then we blamed the Canadians," Schroeder added.

Some of these efforts only made matters worse, he said.

And in the meantime, consumers "were walking away from our product ... and we weren't doing anything."

Consumers cite a number of expectations for meat products: guaranteed safe, tender, flavorful, consistently high quality, healthy and nutritious, environmentally friendly production, animal friendly production, local production, convenient to prepare and competitively priced.

Consumers don't know, at the time they buy a product, whether it meets many of those attributes, Schroeder noted. The industry needs to commit to meeting these expectations and then market to them.

"Explicit labeling and brands are essential to convey and assure information," Schroeder said. "We don't tell our story enough. We don't let the consumer know what our product is about."

Schroeder cited five errors the industry makes: "Defensiveness about criticism. 'All that does is feed the fire.' 'Too much secretiveness.' 'We need to be open and honest about what we're doing.' 'Camouflaging through labeling gimmicks. For example, Schroeder said, 'The word 'natural' in the meat case means almost nothing.' 'Assuming 'consumers are stupid.' 'They're not stupid. They're very savvy, and they have lots of information.' 'Scare tactics.

Schroeder offered these tips for the beef industry to better connect with consumers: "Give 'em what they want." "Show and tell our story." "Invest in new technologies that are aimed at consumers.

"Coordinate and share information within the industry, rather than keeping it secret for what may be a short-term competitive advantage that hurts the industry in the long term. "Give 'em your 800 number." Encouraging consumer feedback sends the message, "I'm proud of this. Come talk to me about it."

The entire continuum of the beef industry needs to be part of the solution, Schroeder said -- "from the 75-year-old rancher out in western Nebraska ... to the 14-year-old in Chicago who's working in fast food. I am optimistic. I think there's lots and lots of opportunities."

The Nebraska AgRelations Council is a statewide, non-profit, non-partisan organization that focuses on telling the story of Nebraska agriculture and promoting a better understanding by both agriculturalists and non-agriculturalists of its achievements as well as its challenges.

The agricultural economics department is part of the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Remembering three teens

Many of you have asked if we knew the three teens killed near Murdock two weeks ago and we did not. However, the driver of the pickup was a former neighbor. And even though we did not know those kids, our hearts were broken by the sadness of it. They were working to raise money for a choir trip to Carnegie Hall in the spring, something they all have been very excited about.

The Elmwood-Murdock choir is directed by Betty Colbert, the wife of the artistic director at the Lofte Theater. She is a talented musician, and has greatly improved the vocal music program at the school. At the same time, Mr. Hansen, who is legally blind, has done wonderful things with the band. You know me, I was proud of the state basketball champs last year, and I'm rooting for the football team this fall, but the music is what those people will take with them for life.

One of the things I always admired about the Murdock community was the way they came together when someone needed help. They did it again last week. The crisis team met the students in the music room on Sunday evening after they had the news. Some mothers went to Lincoln to pick up their children at movie theaters, not trusting them to drive home safely after receiving the word about the tragedy by text messages.

School was in session on Monday, the superintendent stating they needed to keep up a normal schedule. On Thursday, the two missing players were honorary captains of the first playoff game. On Friday, one boy lay in state in the Methodist church, the other in the

Catholic, where there was also a funeral Mass.

On Saturday, in the high school gym, was a service for the two of them. The mortician estimated the attendance at 1,400. A lunch was prepared in the old gym and 550 were served, by two Lutheran churches, two Catholic and one Methodist. All came together as one to provide the care needed by the families. (A separate service was held for the girl, who was not originally from the community, at the fair grounds. She was buried in Iowa, in her home community.)

Because the mother of one of the boys has served a term in Iraq, the Westboro Church in Topeka announced they would be there to picket. How do those people find out such things? I refuse to call it a Baptist church; no one of that faith that I know would ever be associated with that sick group. They received no publicity, but there were 200 vets on motorcycles with flags surrounding them. I'm told it was not an official activity of the Patriot Guard, but there were Rough Riders, and Legionnaires among them. My hat goes off to them!

Out of curiosity, I looked up the Patriot Guard on the web. They are quite an organization. And I know all of the riders in Murdock were much appreciated last week.

Meanwhile, the football team has continued its winning ways, and we wish them luck. Sadly, our Winside girls did not get past Bancroft-Rosalie in the district finals. So, we will cheer for Lutheran High Northeast, coming to State for the very first time. They will play at East High, which is literally across the street from us. Go, Eagles! And may the E-M Knights find peace in their terrible loss. Please remember those families and friends; it is a terrible tragedy in a small town.

Celebration of Youth focuses on Expanding Visions

Textile and design art from 20 Nebraska 4-Hers is on display at the Robert Hillestad Textiles Gallery as part of the 15th annual Celebration of Youth: Expanding Visions.

Among those with a display is Maddie Jager of Wayne, daughter of Huck and Chris Jager. She has a Home Environment Gallery Exhibit entitled "Wherever You Roam" which is a painted window. The display was located at the gallery, located on the second floor of the Home Economics Building on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's East Campus.

The projects on display were selected by jurors from more than 2,400 Nebraska State Fair 4-H clothing and home environment project exhibits and the fashion review. Faculty and community artisans serve as jurors.

The exhibits selected represent excellence in creative expressive, design, use of materials and uniqueness, said Shirley Niemeyer, UNL Extension specialist. The show is presented in recognition of the efforts of youth across Nebraska and exemplifies the artistic and creative fiber arts and textiles designs of youth in 4-H, she said.

Youth spent Nov. 1 in workshops with the textiles, clothing and design faculty in UNL's College of Education and Human Sciences while parents took part in educational activities, including working with microscopes. The youth presented their creative work to 120 family members and guests at the Home Economics Building. A reception and final viewing followed.

The exhibit is open to the public. For more information about the display, call (402) 472-2911 or visit <http://textilegallery.unl.edu/>.

Celebration of Youth is sponsored by the nonprofit group Friends of the Robert Hillestad Textiles Gallery; the Textiles, Clothing and Design Department in the College of Education and Human Sciences; and 4-H, a part of UNL Extension in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Increasing Profits in Niche Pork Production seminar to be offered

A Dec. 10 seminar in Norfolk or a Dec. 11 seminar in Auburn will offer pork producers involved or interested in niche pork production information for increasing their profits.

Increasing Profits in Niche Pork Production, from 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m., will be offered at the Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk or the 4-H Building in Auburn.

Richard Ness, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension educator, will start the meeting discussing data from the production records project and what it shows is critical in making money with niche pork. He also will show the basics needed to maintain useful production records on any sized farm.

Don Levis, UNL Extension swine specialist, will discuss management strategies for maintaining a healthy sow herd and the critical aspects of getting sows bred in these niche systems.

"Two of the biggest issues facing niche pork producers are consistently getting sows/gilts bred and reducing pre-weaning death losses," Ness said. "These issues have consistently been seen as negatively affecting the profitability of niche pork operations." Keith Thornton, niche pork consultant and author of the book, "Outdoor Pig Production," will discuss designing and managing farrowing facilities that can come very close to competing with farrowing crates in terms of pre-weaning death losses.

Levis and Thornton are leading experts with critical insights in helping farmers develop strategies in dealing with these issues, he said.

In addition, Levis will discuss goals of the National Research Institute's newly funded UNL Integrated Extension/Education project for small and medium sized pork producers. Producers will be asked for their input into this project before it is launched in 2009.

Registration is requested by Dec. 5 for meal planning purposes. Cost is $5. For more information or to register, contact the Norfolk office at (402) 370-4000 or the Auburn office at (402) 274-4755.

The workshop is sponsored by UNL Extension in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Nebraska Pork Producers Association and the Niman Ranch Pork Company.

Be Here for the Holidays Special Enforcement

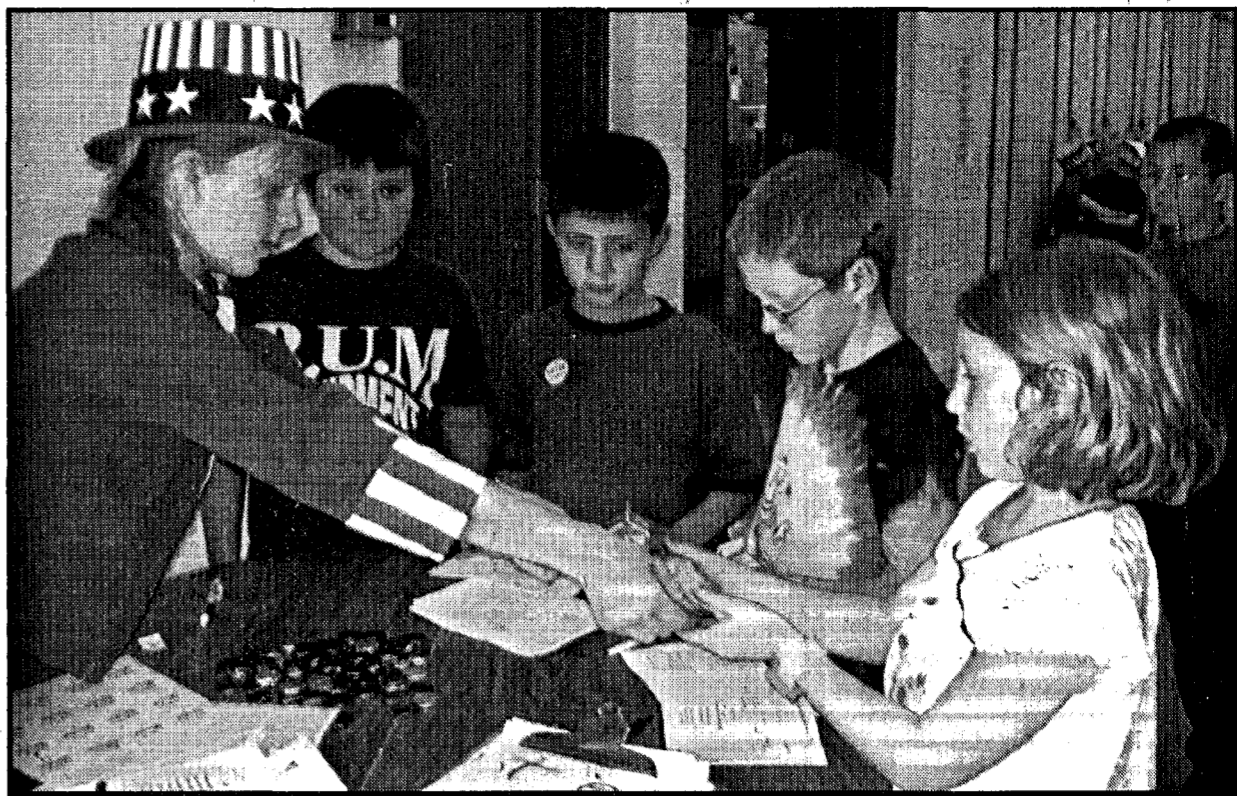

In a continuing effort to reduce the number of fatal crashes on Nebraska roads as we head into the winter holiday season, the Nebraska State Patrol is continuing its traffic safety initiative now entitled "Be Here for the Holidays."

Each day through Dec. 31, the Nebraska State Patrol Field Services Division will work to hold at least one traffic safety enforcement operation somewhere in the state.

Modeled after the "100 Days of Summer" initiative, "Be Here for the Holidays," will allow motorists to keep abreast of planned special enforcements by visiting the Nebraska State Patrol web site at www.nsp.state.ne.us and clicking on "Be Here for the Holidays" in the Quick Links box on the upper right hand side of the page. The link will display monthly calendars with each day listing the type of special enforcement planned and the location of the special enforcement.

"Response to the "100 Days of Summer" initiative was very favorable," said Field Services Major Russ Stanczyk. "As we approach the end of 2008, Nebraska's traffic fatality rate remains at a 60-year low. Our goal with the "Be Here for the Holidays" initiative is to continue to reduce the number of fatal crashes by asking motorists to partner with us in reducing crash causing behaviors."

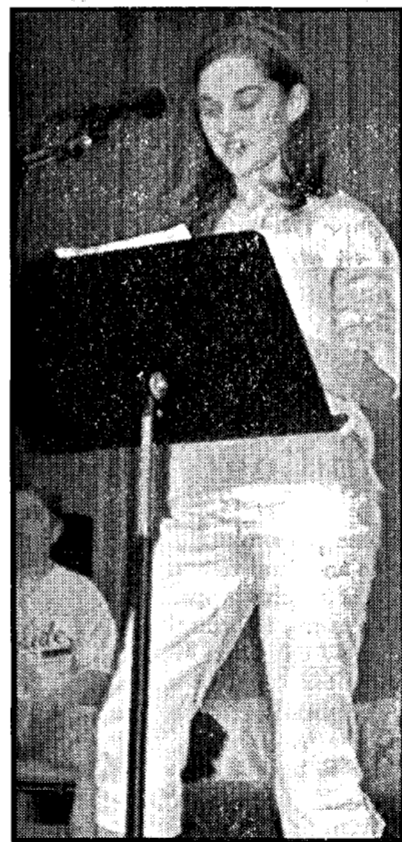

The Nebraska State Patrol hopes by publishing the agency's special enforcement efforts, the motoring public will be reminded to comply with all traffic safety laws during the busy travel period. Stanczyk said, "We want everyone to be here for the holidays."

Living Resourcefully

Home heating — cutting the costs

By Carol Larvick
UNL Extension — Dakota County

The weather has turned colder and if you haven't thought about how much money it takes to heat your home, you will soon be. There are some simple things to do to help winterize your home.

Start with weather stripping and caulking. Both are inexpensive and can pay back in immediate savings on your heating bills, said Shirley Niemeyer, extension specialist for housing and the environment at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Take a good look at every crack or joint on the outside of your home. If the gap is larger than a half-inch first fill it with tubing made to fill cracks. Then apply a silicone-based caulk to seal over the filler or crack. With the colder weather, pick the warmest time of the day to apply the caulk. Make sure there are no gaps.

If your home has single-pane glass windows they can let in out a lot of heat. Consider putting plastic film over the windows, leaving dead air space between the film and the glass. Areas that have a large amount of glass, such as sliding glass doors are another area to consider a plastic film covering. Follow the manufacturers instructions on how to properly install. It is easy to find the windows that are letting in cold air and allowing your heated air to escape on a cold windy day, by feeling the temperature of the air next to the window.

Doors can have gaps if they do not fit correctly or do not have any weather stripping. There are several inexpensive products that can help a door hold in the heat. Be sure to check the bottom of the door and where the door latches for air leaks.

Controlling heat loss in the heat ducts and cold air returns are another inexpensive way to spend a little and save a lot. One way is to cover all exposed ducts and returns with aluminum-finished "bubble wrap" and attach it with aluminum tape, which will stick better than traditional duct tape.

Duct work can also have heat escape through joints. Furnace supply or heating contractors can help you find a tape or putty material that will seal joints.

Proper insulation is more expensive to install, but has long-range payback for consumers, energy savings. Insulation is measured in R values, a measure of resistance to air movement. Choose the type of insulation based on where you are insulating. Blown-in cellulose insulation works well filling in cracks and small nooks. When filling a cavity a tube-fill process helps to direct the insulation to all parts of the cavity.

Lowering your thermostat at night and when you are not at home, will also help in lowering your energy cost. Check the clothes dryer vent to make sure that it works properly and shuts when not in use.

Two web sites that will offer more information about saving energy are the Nebraska Energy Office <http://www.neo.ne.gov/> and the United States Department of Energy <http://www.energy.gov/yourhome.htm>.

NIMS training held

Thirty-seven people attended the recent NIMS class held at the fire hall in Wayne. There were a wide variety of attendees from college faculty, college students, fire personnel, Red Cross, elected officials, law enforcement and county road department personnel. Pat Gerdes, Emergency Management Director with Region 15 presented the NIMS 100 and 700 courses. All participants were required to take a test before leaving.

Blood drive to be held Nov. 28 at Wayne

There will be a Siouxland Community Blood Bank Drive on Friday, Nov. 28 from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Wayne Fire Department in Wayne.

The Siouxland Community Blood Bank is the sole provider of blood and blood products to 37 Siouxland area hospitals including Mercy Medical Center and St. Luke's Regional Medical Center.

years of age; however, there is no upper age limit as long as the donor is in good health. Donors under the age of 17 require parental consent. In addition, donors need to weigh at least 110 pounds and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days. A photo I.D. is required at the time of registration.

American Cancer Society can help smokers quit, save money

Many people are cutting corners and searching for new ways to save a dollar due to today's economic disorder. If you use tobacco products, you can save money and your health by kicking the habit on Nov. 20, 2008, the day of the American Cancer Society Great American Smokeout.

Each year, smoking accounts for an estimated 438,000 premature deaths - including 38,000 deaths among nonsmokers as a result of secondhand smoke - and costs the nation $167 billion in health care expenditures and productivity losses.

Not only does smoking reduce life expectancy by approximately 14 years, but it can also be costly for consumers. The economic costs of smoking are estimated to be about $3,391 per smoker per year. Smokers are paying for possible health problems in the future.

Furthermore, tobacco use increases the risk of 15 types of cancer, and 30 percent of all cancer deaths, including 87 percent of lung cancer deaths, can be attributed to using tobacco.

Evidence consistently indicates that tobacco use prevention and cessation initiatives work. Thanks to these programs, progress is being made in the fight against tobacco. For example:

- Cigarette smoking among adults ages 18 and older declined 50 percent from 1965 to 2005.

- Cigarette smoking among American high school students declined from 36 percent in 1997 to 23 percent in 2005.

- Annual cigarette consumption among adults in the United States continues to decline.

- More than 40 percent of the reduction in male cancer deaths between 1991 and 2003 can be attributed to declines in smoking during the last half century.

Despite these positive trends, progress in reducing smoking among adults and high school students has slowed in the last few years. Aggressive practices from major tobacco companies may be contributing to the stall. The tobacco industry spent $100 million nationally to defeat smoke-free legislation and increases in excise taxes in the 2006 mid-term elections, and industry expenditures to promote tobacco continue to outpace tobacco control spending by a ratio of nearly 24 to one. In addition, the tobacco industry is aggressively marketing new and existing smokeless tobacco products as "bridge" products (i.e. supplemental sources of nicotine in smoke-free settings), even though compared to quitting completely, the use of any smokeless tobacco product as a substitute for smoking is harmful.

In support of the American Cancer Society's leadership role in cancer prevention and early detection, the Society is engaged in year-round efforts to fight tobacco. The Society and its nonprofit, nonpartisan advocacy partner, the American Cancer Society Cancer Action NetworkSM (ACS CAN), have been successful in making tobacco seem like it has no place in healthy society and protecting the public from secondhand smoke by encouraging communities to pass smoke-free legislation:

- Today, more than 65 percent of the United States population is covered by smoke-free laws, despite aggressive efforts by tobacco companies to defeat such laws.

- Twenty-nine states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico now protect nonsmokers by prohibiting smoking in workplaces, and/or restaurants, and/or bars.

- Forty-four states and the District of Columbia have increased their cigarette taxes since 2002.

Additionally, ACS CAN continues to keep constituents and the general public updated on state and federal tobacco control legislation and offers opportunities to support their passage.

In addition to legislative efforts, the wide range of counseling services, self-help materials, and medicines available through the Society today offer smokers more tools than ever to help them quit successfully.

Recent studies, including those done by the American Cancer Society Behavioral Research Center, confirm anecdotal evidence that social support is an essential element in the decision to quit smoking. Studies are finding that people tend to quit smoking in, and as a result of the influence of, large groups of their social peers. This strategy works hand-in-hand with the current American Cancer Society approach to smoking cessation, which employs this knowledge through a two-step process:

1. The Society encourages large numbers of smokers to consider quitting (and protecting the health of nonsmokers) through advocacy for broad policy change, e.g. increasing the cost of cigarettes through higher taxes, providing widespread smoke-free environments, and regulating tobacco products.

2. The Society provides its Quitline® service (1-800-ACS-2345) to help individual smokers who have made the decision to quit, and encourages smokers to see their physician for advice on smoking cessation techniques, prescription medications, and NRTs (nicotine replacement therapies).

The American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout offers a timely opportunity to encourage smokers to quit.

The Smokeout is designed to motivate and empower smokers with personalized tools, tips, and support to help them quit for good. The Society inaugurated its first Great American Smokeout in 1976 as a way to inspire and encourage smokers to quit for one day. Today, however, with 44.2 percent of the 45.3 million Americans who smoke having attempted to quit for at least one day in the past year.

Smokeout does more than urge smokers to quit for a single day; it encourages people to commit to making a long-term plan to quit for good. Additionally, Smokeout is a time to encourage all Americans to advocate for comprehensive smoke-free laws that help protect workers and community members from exposure to secondhand smoke.

As more communities are making progress in the fight against tobacco, the American Cancer Society is here to help you make the lifestyle changes necessary for a healthier you and a healthier nation.

Plan for and set the Great American Smokeout - November 20, 2008 - as the day to quit. Quitting is hard, but you can increase your chances of success with help. Call the American Cancer Society anytime, day or night, to help double your chances of quitting for good. Advocate for smoke-free laws in your community. For more information, visit www.cancer.org/GreatAmericans to find out how or call your local American Cancer Society office. Further information can be found by calling toll free 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Presentation on Vietnam to be held at Neihardt site

The Neihardt State Historic Site will be having a Sunday afternoon at the Museum with Ralph Swain entitled, "Delegation to Vietnam: Culture, Crisis and Contrast." The program will be held on Sunday, Nov. 16 at 2 p.m.

Swain is currently chair of the Humanities Division at Western Iowa Tech Community College and former Academic Dean at Nebraska Indian Community College. He enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1967 with training as a combat medic.

Originally scheduled for assignment in Ethiopia, his orders were changed and he was sent to Vietnam (1969-1970) on a completely different type of mission, assigned as the only soldier of enlisted rank on special duty with the U.S. Army and the Republic of Vietnam (USARV) investigating black market and other illegal activities. He served on a quick reaction force unit that provided security for high-ranking officials (like Vice President Spiro Agnew) and guarded potential attack destinations (like the Armed Forces TV station in downtown Saigon).

While there, 17 facilities within his jurisdiction were blown up. As experienced by many serving during those years, Swain saw not only the rigors and tensions of a posting in a hostile environment but the impact the long drawn out war had on the population and these are the images that stayed with him the strongest, particularly the children.

So in August, 38 years since he had last been there, Swain traveled back to Vietnam with a delegation of 15 Americans with the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund from Washington D.C. including former U.S. ambassador Michael Marine; Jan Scruggs, founder and president of VVVF; five Vietnam veterans, three widows of three sons of Vietnam veterans and a professor with the U.S. Naval War College.

The group traveled from Hanoi in the North to Ho Chi Minh City in the south, visiting a Montagnard village near the Laotian border, observing a mine and bomb detection team in action and visiting with blinded and injured civilian adults and children due to unexploded ordnance. His own heritage, half Japanese and part Native American, gives Swain a deep compassion for the non-combatant victims of war and he returned home with a mission to education the public.

Swain stated, "This wasn't just old soldiers visiting old sites. We worked. We tried to see what more we can do."

His presentation will highlight three areas of observation - today's culture in Vietnam, the obstacles still facing this peaceful nation and the many contrasts evident in this beautiful country. The presentation begins at 2 p.m. and is free and open to the public. A reception will follow. The John G. Neihardt State Historic site is located at 306 W. Elm Street in Bancroft.

For more information call 1-888-777-4667 or 402-648-3388 or e-mail at neihardt@gpccom.net.

Alcohol compliance checks planned

The Nebraska State Patrol in conjunction with the North Central Community Care Partnership (NCCCP) Underage Drinking Coalition will conduct compliance checks in counties to include Antelope, Brown, Holt, Keya Paha, and Rock Counties.

Compliance checks are planned for northeast Nebraska throughout the months of November and December. The increased enforcement effort will be conducted thanks in part to a nearly $6,000 grant from the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety (NOHS).

Compliance checks are conducted to help communities determine the extent of the problem of alcohol sales as a source of youth access to alcohol. Local law enforcement conducts compliance checks to ensure that businesses are in compliance with the state's youth alcohol laws.

Friends & family are the greatest gifts from God. I don't know how I can ever thank everyone enough for all of the love & support since Bill's death. Thank you for all of the help before & during the sale, also for the food that was brought in. This last weekend was unbelievable, having so many friends getting my crops in. I will never be able to thank you enough. A special thanks to Vel & Sue for all the lunches. I also would like to thank my uncle for his love & support. Bill had the best friends anyone could ask for!
