

Highway 35 closes due to accidents near Wayne

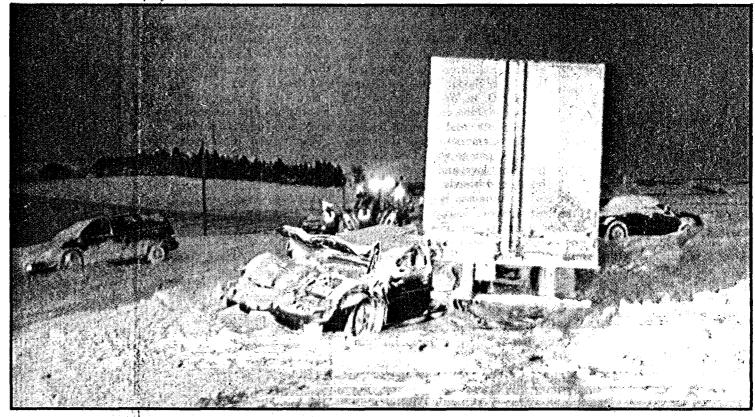

Wayne and the surrounding area experienced high winds, snow and blowing snow that created whiteout conditions on Monday. The Nebraska State Patrol reported there were accidents on highways throughout northeast Nebraska. There was a pile up of around 17 vehicles (two of which were semi-trailers) east of Wayne near Country Nursery around 2 p.m. Monday. After an initial accident, other vehicles coming over the hill added to the pile up. The highway was blocked until Tuesday morning. Although there were injuries, none of them were serious.

Brent Doring, Wayne Volunteer Fire Department chief, noted they responded. Part of the pile up included two semitrailers side by side on the north shoulder in the west bound lane with a pick up diagonal by the semi's and a car pinned. The firemen checked in cars to see who was hurt and needed ambulance service to Providence Medical Center (PMC). There were two ambulances on the scene from PMC and one from Wakefield on the other side of the pile up. While they were double checking vehicles, there was a smaller incidence (four car pile up) west of the larger one. People were also injured in the smaller pile up so they helped them too.

During the poor visibility, minor accidents also occurred north of Wayne, which the Wayne Police Department and others responded to. People were evacuated from vehicles so they weren't at risk from the bad weather conditions as well as a target for other motorists. The unusual combination of poor visibility and snow factors were involved in the numerous accidents. Members of the Wayne Sheriff's office, Wayne Volunteer Fire Department, Providence Medical Center, EMTs and Ambulance service, Nebraska State Patrol and others helped in rescuing the motorists.

According to the State Patrol, some of the other accidents included one on Highway 35, near the curve by Norfolk. There were two areas on Highway 81, north of Norfolk. One of the areas involved a group of 10-15 vehicles (including several semi-trailers). Again after an initial accident, others kept hitting vehicles and adding to the pile up. Further north of Norfolk, all the way to Yankton, there were pile up situations but not as severe as the one closer to Norfolk. Along the way, there were numerous vehicles and semi's in the ditch.

There were no serious injuries reported. Above, a wrecker works on moving several cars and a semi that were involved is the pile by Country Nursery. Middle School student honorary member of football team

Zach Jorgensen, a sixth grade student at received a team t-shirt and poster of the Wayne Middle School, has the distinction of being an honorary member of Nebraska Cornhusker JV football team.

Thanks to the efforts of his teacher, Jill Niemann, Zach has been enjoying a number of perks with the distinction.

Zach has Duchenne's Muscular Dystrophy, a debilitating disease that severely affects boys. Zach's sole means of getting around is his wheel chair. He needs the assistance of a Hoyer Lift to transfer himself from his chair to his stander twice a day during the school day.

Mrs. Niemann sent a letter to University of Nebraska personnel in October asking if it would be possible for the football team to sign something for Zach.

In reply, Zach was made an honorary member of the JV football team and for the Cure.'

2008 seniors. He will receive free admission to the 2009 Spring game and receives periodic e-mails from Husker football players.

In her letter Mrs. Niemann wrote, "Zach is truly an inspiration and has taught me so much about life. I feel that I am the lucky one to be his teacher this year because I am learning from Zach in ways I never thought possible. Watching how he manages his disability and how he takes each day with the love of life. I never see him sad, feeling left out and above all, never having self-pity."

Another school employee, to Providence Medical after the accident, Cross in Wayne on the afternoon/evening of Judy Poehlman, put together 50 sandwich where they were treated and then taken to Jan. 12.

The Activity Center staff worked to keep the center open the entire night to assist stranded motorists and students who are unable to make it home that night during this winter storm. The shelter was also available for residents of Northeast Nebraska that are without power and motorists who had been involved in car accidents who were treated and released from the hospital, but either had no vehicle to travel in or couldn't travel due to the storm conditions.

At 6 p.m., about 38 people were being assisted. Lori Carollo, Executive Director of the Northeast Nebraska Red Cross chapter in Wayne, indicated cots and blankets were in place and local businesses helped to provide evening snacks for the shelter guests and the Wayne Community Schools helped to provide the evening meal.

Red Cross volunteers coordinated with the logistics of acquiring food, as well as transporting their cots and blankets to the Activity Center.

"Jeff Zeiss and his staff were just awesome in making this site available and working with all the clients who were stranded in Wayne Monday night," stated Carollo. "This was another example of how well this community comes together to help out in times of need. The Red Cross extends a thank you to everyone who helped in anyway to provide comfort to those in need."

Zeiss noted everything happened rather quickly but when he found out a temporary emergency shelter was being set up at the Activity Center, he called several of his staff. Courtney Preston, Taylor Racely and Maddy Moser, who are Wayne State College students and Wayne High School graduates, were more than willing to assist. He added that there were 15 people who stayed all night and Taylor stayed with them. He added everything that was done was a joint effort and it says a lot of what people will do in an emergency.

Several Wayne school students were among those staying at the Activity Center. Food was provided by Wayne school, Pamida and others.

Sand Creek Post & Beam continues to grow

Nine students collected over $150. Hattie Phelps was the high collector for the year as she brought in $514. This is her third straight year of collecting the most for the school. Sweetland noted that she has brought in over $1,700 over about 40 percent of all students in that time and she is going to be missed next year as she moves on to the Wayne Middle School.

There were seven other collectors who made it over the $150 mark — Matteah Barelmann, Aidan Consoli, Tay Guill, Logan Riesberg, Hunter Jorgensen, Melinda Longe, other game played and another loss Central in town, Wayne looked to avenge Thursday night's, 60-49, loss to seventh-ranked (Omaha World-Herald) Norfolk Catholic.

> However, just as the case has been throughout most of the season, Wayne would fall short in the end as they gave away a 41-36 win to Boone Central.

> "It was a tale of two halves. We played one of our best defensive games the first half and then the dark side hit us," said Wayne head coach Rocky Ruhl.

> "Offensively we were kind of having our way getting out to a 21-11 halftime lead. Then Boone Central changed defenses on us and we just never got it going again."

> After Wayne established a 21-11 lead in the first half, Boone Central turned the tables on the Blue Devils following intermission, outscoring Wayne 12-4 to make it a two point game at 25-23 going into the fourth quarter.

> In the fourth quarter and after leading throughout much of the night, Wayne relinquished the lead to Boone Central, but later battled back to tie the Cardinals at 30-30.

With the game deadlocked at 30-30, Boone Central capitalized on a Blue Devil turnover while later hitting a three pointer to take control of a 33-30 lead.

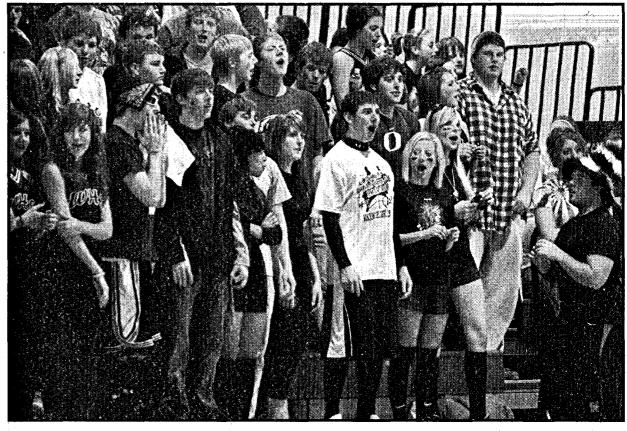

The Cardinals then used several Wayne fouls and a 8-6 scoring run down the final stretch of the game to put the Blue Devils to bed and claim the 41-36 win.

"We just never got over the hump fouling them down the stretch trying to get back into it," Ruhl said. "It was another learning experience for us and now we need to figure out a way to respond to it. We will keep working and trying. That is all we can do to try to improve."

Wayne was 12 of 33 from the field for 36.4 percent and went 7 of 23 from beyond the arc while also going 5 of 5 from the free throw line.

Derek Poutre led Wayne in scoring with seven points and was followed by Ryan Pieper, Jacob Zeiss and Jacob Triggs who finished with six points apiece.

five points while Zac Braun added three.

Boone Central hit 15 of 31 shots from the field for 48.4 percent, but were just 2 of 8 from the three point line and 9 of 13 at the charity stripe.

Boone Central held a 28-19 rebounding advantage over Wayne and finished with 14 turnovers to Wayne's 16.

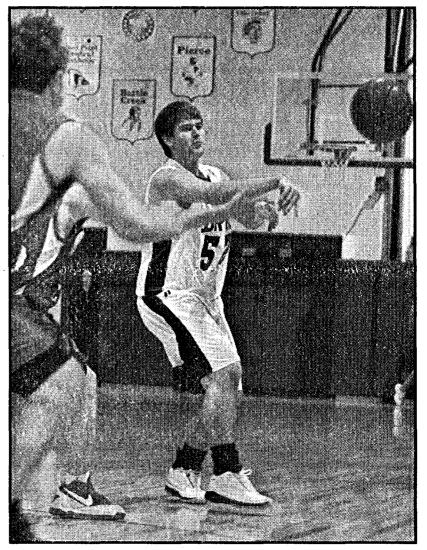

Wayne will return to action on Saturday, Jan. 17 when they face Boys Town at the Nebraska Prep Classic in Omaha with tip-off slated for 6:15 p.m. at the Omaha Civic Auditorium. Listed below is a box summary for

From Beantown to Mizzou, Olson excels at every venue

Local senior track and field athlete earns unheard of 21 National Champions during '08 season

By Casey Schroeder

If winning were a business venture for Randy Olson, then business would have been booming in 2008.

After all, Olson's numbers speak for themselves; 21 National Championships, 13-time National Runners-up, 29 State Championships, nine All-American awards and one International Championship.

"I didn't realize what type of season I had until I was done," Olson said. "I probably had one of those vears you can only dream about."

Olson, who currently resides near Carroll, is a senior indoor/outdoor track and field athlete who has excelled in every level of competition available.

Much of Olson's success in 2008 could be accredited to his extensive training and studying that began in December of 2007 as he was preparing for the USA National Heptathlon in Kenosha, Wis., on March 8-9.

It was during these months that the 30-year old track and field athlete and coach attended camps, watched videos and even sat in at coaching clinics; not as a coach instructing, but as a student learning.

However, Olson's hard work paid off as he was sweetly rewarded with USA National Heptathlon runnerup honors after he won four National Championships and finished with two silver medals for a combined total of 4,378 points.

But being the competitor that he is that wasn't enough as he continued his quest for gold when he returned to action just 20 days later in Boston for the USA National Masters Indoor Championship.

And while Olson didn't achieve the individual success that he had hoped for in Boston, he did, however, leave Beantown as a two-time National Champion after he contributed to a win in the 4 x 400-meter relay and collected first place honors in the Pentathlon with 3,211 points.

Unbeknownst to Olson, his seagressed.

In June, following a three month hiatus from national competition, Olson returned to action in Joplin. Mo., for the USA National Masters Decathlon and International Decathlon Challenge which featured teams from Great Britain, Canada, Italy and the United States.

As a national competitor, Olson picked up his 10th runners-up honor of the season after he scored 6,480 points in the decathlon.

It was also during that same weekend, when Olson recorded his first International Championship, this time as a member of the Unites International Decathlon State team.

By this time in the season, few would dispute the fact that Olson was a world-class athlete, but in the event that there where still disbelivers, he silenced them this time at the National State Games of Mid-America in Columbia, Mo.

It was during Olson's three-day stint in Missouri, where he picked up seven more National Championships while also claiming one National runners-up finish in three days of competition.

Olson, then went on to close out a very successful year as a national competitor with an additional six put, pole vault and triple jump. gold medals and six runners-up finishes at the Topeka National Senior Olympics on Sept. 24-Oct. 5.

And to further highlight his career as a national competitor, one that all of his accolades in 2008 were achieved as an amateur athlete and not a professional.

With that said, being an amateur ly approaching only two questions athlete is no easy task as "nothing remain unanswered for Olson. is paid for" according to Olson.

He also noted that "you can say you're running for the USA Track team, but you still have to earn your own support (airfare, gas, lodging and entry fees) and buy your own uniforms.'

And it is with little surprise that are always younger people coming son only got better as the year pro- due to these costs and other conflicting responsibilities that the number of competitors can vary from week to week.

> Olson said that there were occurrences throughout the season when an athlete may have nobody to compete against one week while the same competition just one week later may have a minimum of 20-30 competitors in a single event.

> But despite the costs and what appears to be an uneven playing field at times, amateurs like Olson make it work as gold medals and other accolades often overshadow the expenses and drama that can occur throughout a season.

> For those who haven't been as fortunate as Olson, in terms of competing as a national athlete, there are however, other alternatives such as state sanctioned meets which Olson also participated in during 2008.

> In state sanctioned meets, Olson claimed victories in three different states with the largest portion of his winnings being recorded in Kansas at the Salina State Games.

> It was during his time in Kansas that Olson won state titles in the 4 x100 relay, 50, 200, 400-meter dashes, long jump, high jump, standing long jump, discus and javelin while also finishing second in the shot

However, Olson's success extended much further than the borders of Kansas, as he earned nine gold medals in South Dakota before returning back to Nebraska where he must also take into consideration rounded out a very successful year with four new state records and another 10 State Championships. Now, with the 2009 season quick-

Does he believe that he can have the same success in 2009 that he had in 2008 and how much longer will he compete?

"It will be very hard to have the success I had last year, for two reasons, one, I'm a year older and there up and two, I don't have the training facilities I had in Norfolk and that is huge," Olson said.

"So I guess you just try to do the best with what you have and give God the Glory for whatever happens."

When asked about competing, Olson replied, "It may come about by injury or maybe the Lord has something else in mind for me. I guess until he closes the doors or tells me differently, I'll keep plugging away."

Rauner ignites Wayne's offense with 26 points Blue Devils come up short in 56-53 slobber-knocker with Cardinals

By Casey Schroeder

After scoring a school record 39 points against Wisner-Pilger, Wayne's Nicole Rauner returned to action on Saturday night in Wayne, hoping to guide her beloved Blue Devils past a then 7-1 Boone Central squad.

And while Rauner had relative success as an individual, finishing with 26 points which nearly tripled the number of points scored by each one of her teammates, it still wasn't enough as Boone Central slid past

Wayne, 56-53.

With Wayne's most recent loss they are now 5-3 on the season while Boone Central improved to 8-1 overall.

"I am really pleased with the effort but we have to close teams out. We were considerably undersized in the two squads following the inter- us into position to win this game, this game. We played as tough as we could, but it just didn't work out for us," said Wayne head coach Nate Wall.

The Cardinals road to a win began in the first quarter when they jumped out to a 15-12 lead over the Blue Devils

Wayne outscored the Cardinals 10-6 in the second quarter to close out the half in control of a 22-21 lead.

With only one point seperating mission break, Boone Central reclaimed the lead at 40-35 following a third quarter performance that saw the Cardinals outscore Wayne 19-13.

"We made some great plays to get but our free throw shooting prevented us from winning this one," Wall said. "Going 12 of 23 at the line will not cut it in post-season play."

The Blue Devils were led in scoring by Rauner with 26 points while Kayla Grone and Shannon Jarvi added nine each.

"Nicole was awesome in this game and Shannon Jarvi had a great allaround game," Wall said.

"We are doing great things, but we still need to get better. Things get tougher from here on out for us."

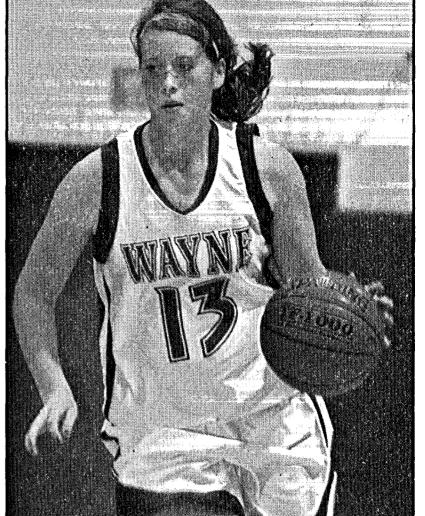

Other scorers for Wayne included Katie Hoskins with four points followed by Jessica Calhoon with three.

Boone Central held a 32-29 advantage in rebounds while finishing with 20 turnovers compared to Wayne's 22.

The Blue Devils will return to action on Friday, Jan. 16 when they travel to Norfolk Catholic for a 8 p.m. game.

Preceding Saturday night's victory over MSU Moorhead, WSC suffered their seventh loss of the season Friday as they were defeated by Minnesota, Crookston 63-58.

The Wildcats built a pair of eight points leads in the first half (22-14 and 24-16) before settling for a 32-30 lead at halftime.

"Against Crookston, we never found our self on either end of the floor. We got off to a slight lead in the first half, but never could extend and that allowed them to stay close at halftime," Burkett said.

"Down the stretch their kids stepped up and made plays and we didn't. We shot the ball extremely poor, 35 percent from the field and 62 percent from the line. We have to have more consistency from our perimeter shooters as teams will continue to clog the paint to take away our two post players."

"That's the danger of playing a play down to a different level and State at 8 p.m. expect your opponent is going to hand you a victory. I didn't feel like for the WSC-UMC game and a parwe had the same sense of urgency as we played with on Saturday night."

Wildcats upset No. 17 MSU Moorhead 89-75

By Casey Schroeder

The Wayne State College women's basketball team improved to 6-0 on the road this season following a narrow 68-66 win over No. 17 MSU Moorhead on Saturday night in Moorhead, Minn.

"Our focus and determination is great on the road, For some reason, it is hard to understand, but we have played really well on the road," said WSC head coach Chris Kielsmeier.

"We need to have the same focus as we do on the road. When we have play at home, it is a long day until we play at 6 p.m., and I think our players have too much free time during the day. I think this causes them to be a little to relaxed and not play well. Bottom line is we need to Winside finished in the runner-up position at Saturday's 39th annual Tournament behind team champion class for Laurel-Concord. Howells, trailing the Bobcats by 23 points and edging out the Ainsworth by a 170 to 169.5 team score.

"We really felt good about finishing second at our own invitational," said Winside head coach Paul Sok. "Finishing ahead of Randolph, Newman Grove and Ainsworth was a big plus."

The Wildcats were led by individual champions Kalin Koch (140), Garet Hurlbert (189) and Jared Brockmann (285).

Koch and Hurlbert pinned all three of their opponents while Brockmann won his championship bout in a thrilling heavy weight pinfall 5:53 Boschen (NMG). battle with a 4-2 overtime win over Nathaniel Allen of Ainsworth.

Brockmann win came after he recorded a takedown midway on through the sudden victory overtime period.

"We had three individual champs who wrestled very well throughout by pinfall 1:45 Swett (AIN); won by the tournament. Jared Brockmann avenged a loss from last season (Allen from Ainsworth) and cruised through his weight," Sok said.

"Garet Hurlbert dropped down to 189 from 215 and had easy going at that weight by pinning all of his (AIN). opponents. Likewise, Kalin Koch at 140 breezed through his weight class with all pins. He is finally, by decision 8-4 Jacobsen (NMG); returning after a shoulder injury suffered in the first meet in December."

The Allen girl's basketball team traveled to Ponca last Thursday in search of a much needed win over the Indians, but fell short as they were defeated 48-36.

lost by decision 10-5 Stone (NMG).

Ponca dominated the first half of play, scoring several points off of Allen miscues to take a 13-7 first quarter lead over the Eagles before settling at 27-13 going into halftime.

"The first half was pretty ugly for us. Ponca scored 12 of their firsthalf points off of our turnovers and six points off of second chance opportunities," said Allen head coach Logan McPhillips.

"It's hard to stick with a team when we give them easy baskets like that." If the first half of play was ugly for Allen, things didn't get much better for the Eagles following intermission as Ponca erupted for five points within the first minute of the third quarter.

It was then, however, that Allen turned on their defense.

For the next 14 minutes of play, the Indians were held to just six points while the Eagles clawed their way back into the game, scoring 23 points to cut Ponca's lead to just two points with just under two minutes remaining.

"Our comeback, though we fell short, was something special," McPhillips said. "You ask anybody that watched that game, it was exciting."

With time working against the Eagles and still down by two points, Allen was forced to foul Ponca, sending the Indians to the line where they used several key free throws down the final stretch to pull away with the 48-36 win.

"Our girls showed a lot of heart tonight. To be down 19 points in the third quarter and have the resiliency to come back and make it a game at the end really shows what our girls are made of," McPhillips said. "This team is becoming a team with a 'never give up, never give in' attitude. It's great to see."

Allen hit 13 of 37 shots from the field for 35 percent while also going 10 of 20 at the free throw line.

The Eagles were led in scoring by Jamin Cyr with 13 points followed by Erika McCarthy with seven.

Additional scorers for Allen included Ashlee Hingst who finished with six points and nine rebounds and Holly Stark who added five.

Allen will return to action on Thursday, Jan. 15 when they host Santee at 6:15 p.m.

Capitol View With Chambers gone, who will they call?

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association

Who will they call?

Former Sen. Ernie Chambers walked out of the Capitol after 26 members of the 2009 Legislature were sworn in. One of them succeeded Chambers, who served a record 38 years in the Unicameral.

During all but a few years, Chambers was the only black member of the Legislature. During all of his career he was a firebrand orator, brilliant in the tactical and strategic use of the rules of debate and procedure, and most of all he was the self-proclaimed and often verifiable "champion of the downtrodden."

Having written and reported from the Capitol for nearly 35 years, the question occurred to me. Who will they call, now that Ernie is gone?

"They" are the people, from every part of Nebraska, who called and to Chambers, asking for wrote help.

He never hesitated, and sometimes reveled, when he had cause to let colleagues know during debate that he was offering an amendment, or opposing or championing some measure, because their constituents called him, not them, to ask for help.

At no time was this more in evidence than during the farm crisis of the 1980s. Folks who were up against it, facing foreclosures and the loss of homes and property, came to see him by the dozens. Literally. Dozens.

Justifiably or not, Chambers told his colleagues that many of their constituents had learned that banks and the federal government and most lawmakers - represented establishment authority, first and foremost.

Day-in and day-out, over the decades, calls came from little people with big problems. A relative allegedly mistreated at the hands to voting against their own economic and social interests because, of government, someone being terrorized over a bad loan, countless he said, they were bound by political doctrines that were no more cases of alleged and sometimes provable malfeasance, discriminathan smoke and mirrors.

Still, it was sometimes amazing to see the variety of people, hundreds of them from society's high and low, who came to him for help and advice.

Who will they call? Really?

Some of the most entertaining things said by lawmakers are reflective of understatement. The first good example from the 2009 session came from Sen. Mike Friend of Omaha. He wants to offer a constitutional amendment that would shorten the number of working days for each two-year Unicameral session.

The constitution provides for a 90-day meeting in odd-numbered years, and a 60-day meeting in even-numbered years. Friend thinks cutting those numbers to 60 working days and 40 working days would be a good thing.

A constitutional amendment which clears the Legislature is automatically subject to a statewide vote. Friend said he thought his plan had a 50-50 chance of getting on the ballot. And then he offered this gem:

"If it got on the ballot, it would probably pass."

Now that is understatement.

Friend's proposal might not run up the landslide of, say, a proposal requiring NU to give away 30,000 free tickets for every home game - but it would win. Big.

voters would not have imposed term limits on state lawmakers. He was famous, infamous, loved and hated for his unparalleled ability to control the pace of floor debate through his mastery of rules - which had been adopted by

The view from here always has been that, without Ernie Chambers,

Just like people, buildings get older every year and need some work once in a while to keep going. Next Tuesday night we have scheduled a public hearing to submit a $250,000 grant application developed by down town businesses and property owners for $144,000 in grants to make sidewalk entrances ADA accessible into buildings on Main Street and west of Main Street and $90,000 in grant funds for building front maintenance and repairs down town.

If approved by the city council and if the $250,000 is received, the sidewalk accessibility project would be done in conjunction with a sidewalk improvement district

Millikan is a registration specialist in the admissions office at Northeast Community College. She has been employed at the college since 1999.

Dave Ptak, general counsel and vice president of human resources, told the Northeast faculty and staff that Millikan was nominated for the great pride she takes in her job and daily performance, her eye for detail and perfection, and the concern she displays towards students.

"She just seems to connect with the students and puts forth her best foot every day," her nominator wrote. "She is a great performer!!" Gerharter is the director of public relations at Northeast. She has been employed in Northeast's marketing and public relations department since 2000. "Her superior writing skills reflect a highly-polish and positive image of the institution and her dedication and desire to share the stories of Northeast's students, programs, and services have resulted in tremendous media coverage of the college throughout our 20 counties and in to the Omaha and Sioux City metro areas," Ptak read from her nomination.

"In addition to her commitment to her work, her concern and commitment to our students is her greatest asset," he continued. "She genuinely enjoys attending concerts, plays, rodeos, and basketball games because she believes it is important to show her support for what she does best. Her work is an asset to Northeast, and therefore, she is deserving of this award."

Loper has worked in Northeast's Adult Education program since 2002 teaching English as a Second Language (ESL) to students with little or no English-speaking abilities. Ptak said she sometimes has up to 20 students in the classroom at one time. "She is positive, encouraging, and very optimistic that her students will succeed, and many, many times, her students live up to her expectations," her nominator wrote.

She is also active in the Latino community and provides interpretation and guidance for those who need assistance, always putting on a good face for Northeast Community College and our mission within the community, Ptak said

One of her nominators wrote. "I believe the care and motivation she provides her students will have a lasting effect on their lives. She does a great job of providing her students with a positive learning experience and skills which will help them to advance to the next level in their quest to become U.S. citizens, citizens of our community, and future academic students at Northeast Community College."

Dr. Linda Boullion, music department chair and director of always puts her students first, giving them and her job absolutely everything she has to give. "In addition to taking time in advising and registration to ensure her students reach educational goals, she is always interested in knowing what students should do in home, where her husband launders them," one nomination continued "When she arrives back at the bus early the next day, she comes bearing pastries, juice and clean tuxedo shirts. She will always go above and beyond to make sure a student's needs are met."

Looking ahead to Valentine's Day

This year as you look forward thinking on ways to honor this to celebrating Valentine's Day, let important day of caring and love. your creative juices flow. Here are Why not shy away from expensome ideas that may spark fresh sive gifts? The spirit of Valentine's Day is often best expressed in heartfelt gestures of thoughtfulness and love-a romantic walk in the moonlight, a surprise phone call, a short note of appreciation, a homemade gift or card.

Plan ahead. Set aside a few extra hours before Valentine's Day to mail some cards or plan special activities for the week of Feb. 14.

Be flexible. If it isn't convenient to celebrate on Feb. 14, you can do so any number of days before or after.

Why not call a young couple you know and offer to babysit so they can enjoy a romantic evening together?

If you are fortunate enough to have parents who are still living, touch base with them and express your affection and appreciation.

If you have physical or financial limitations, remember that a gift of loving thoughts, or a prayer, or a brief "Happy Valentine's Day!" phone call can be a wonderful way to observe this special day.

Try this: Spend a little time in a quiet place. Breathe easily and focus on the here and now. Become quiet enough that you can feel, and maybe even hear, your heart beating. Then ask yourself, "What in my heart of hearts would I love to do?" Take good notes.

Remember those who are alone. Whatever their age, Valentine's Day can be painful for those who have no one to celebrate with. Consider organizing a gathering for elderly singles in your immediate community. Or invite a small group of singles over for dinner and conversation.

Start a new Valentine's Day tradition: For example, donate time or money to a local soup kitchen or food pantry. Or ask permission to visit folks at a nearby nursing home. Invite a friend to join you and pick up some little heart candies or small non-food gifts, maybe ones that you and your family have made together. Distribute your gifts with heartfelt smiles, warm handshakes, and a big hug when that seems appropriate.

Ruth Vonderohe Extension Educator

l'hese are just a few suggestions to spark your own creativity. In addition to adding your own thoughts, why not brainstorm unique and enjoyable ways to celebrate Valentine's Day with a loved one or a small group of friends? It could be fun and there is no telling what interesting possibilities you might dream up.

The symbol of Valentine's Day is the heart-a reminder of the heart's wisdom, and of the universal need to give and receive love. Toward the end of her long life, author Helen Nearing spoke of the overarching importance of love in our lives. Her words are a fitting tribute to the many and varied gestures of love through which we celebrate Valentine's Day:

"Love is the source, love is the goal, and love is the method of attainment. A network of love crisscrosses the globe. The delicate shining lines form a tenuous web from one end of the world to the other. There are so many threads of love in the world, so much love going on, for and from so many people. To partake of love and to give love is the greatest of life's rewards."

Many of us make plans to weatherize our homes each year to help save on energy costs. Unfortunately we usually make these plans in January after the December bills arrive..then tend to forget about them until the next January when the heating bill jogs our memory.

Even though we are in the midst of our heating season and few us us are looking forward to bundling up and going outside to try to seal up the back door ... we can achieve significant energy savings without leaving the comfort of the living room.

Because heat naturally moves from warm to cold, such as toward the glass in your windows, some experts calculate that up to 40% of all heat in the home is lost this way. Upgrading the window treatments in your home can help reduce this heat loss. Although almost all window treatments will offer some level of energy efficiency... some offer significantly more then others. For example our Hunter Douglas Duette shades are among the most energy efficient treatments. These honeycomb style shades actually trap cold air within the cells of the shade and decreases the intensity of the temperature as it enters the room.

The added bonus of being energy efficient comes with all the great features we love about these products all year long... over 315 combinations of fabrics and colors, 5 levels of privacy and multiple operating choices. All these features to make your room look great ... and the bonus of helping lower your energy bills. Wow!

Visit our professional design showroom or call for a free in-home consultation to see how you can discover unexpected warmth with Hunter Douglas shades.

Many of you have experienced firsthand the benefits of chiropractic care to your health. But what about your children? Have you ever considered bringing them in for a chiropractic checkup? Surprisingly, the first stress placed on a child's spinal column is during the birthing process. Equally surprising in the fact that 26% of children surveyed at school reported a history of back pain.

A child's spine is frequently subjected to repeated forces in the process of learnng to walk as well as a multitude of childhood mishaps, sports related injuries, and postural strains. Many adults that come to a chiropractor's office show evidence of childhood injuries to their spine that are a contributing factor for their pain today. This is why it is important to have your child's spine checked regularly for any signs of spinal imbalances or misalignments.

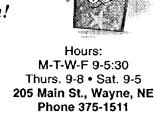

Fortunately, chiropractic has had many positive results in treating some very common childhood maladies. Problems like colic, headaches, ear infections, scoliosis, asthma, and even some cases of behavioral problems and bed-wetting have been successfully treated with chiropractic care. In fact, a recent study showed that children under chiropractic care suffered from fewer ear infections than those whose parents sought medical care alone.

Are chiropractic adjustments safe for children? Absolutely! Because a child's skeletal system is still developing, there is a great deal of elasticity within the joints.

Light pressure is usually all that is needed to adjust a child's spine. So the next time you come to our office, bring your children!

The few minutes you invest in your child's spinal checkup may save them needless suffering now and in the future.

Church in Winside met Jan. 8 in the church basement.

There were five members and PMA Glenn Kietzmann who answered roll call.

Vice President Greta Grubbs opened the meeting with a reading "Devotion to Prayer."

The Bible Study was taken from Acts 19 and led by PMA Kietzmann.

The Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and approved. It was noted that it is time to send in the group's pennies and birthday money to Benevolence. Treasurer Lois Krueger will take care of this.

A birthday card for Joy Maas, whose birthday is Jan. 21, was signed by all in attendance. Due to a scheduling conflict, PMA Kietzmann will not be able to attend meetings until May. Members will do the Bible Study on their own for those three months.

A thank-you was read from the Kietzmann family for the Christmas gift.

tenet of this universal language of life.

In cells, the genetic code essentially provides instructions for creating proteins, the basic structural molecules of life. The code includes a series of unique three-letter "code words," called codons. These genet-WELCA of Trinity Lutheran ic passwords dictate insertion of amino acids, the building blocks of proteins. While codons may change to code for different amino acids in different organisms, a long-held precept of the genetic code is that one codon provides the password only for one amino acid in an organism. Not always, UNL scientists discovered.

"We showed that one codon may code for two amino acids, even within the same gene. That's really unexpected," said Vadim Gladyshev, the biochemistry professor whose team made the discovery. Gladyshev; Anton Turanov, a graduate student at the time of this research; Alexey Lobanov, senior research associate; Dmitri Fomenko, assistant professor of biochemistry, and collaborators report their findings in the Jan. 10 issue of the international journal Science.

Their discovery of the multi-tasking codon, called UGA, in the microscopic marine protozoan, Euplotes crassus, raises the question of whether codons in other organisms Members were reminded of the can do the same thing. They're could have implications for the role now investigating UGA's function of selenium in mammals.

genetic code, and may help revise a password for selenocysteine, the amino acid that helps create selenoproteins. It's been known that the protozoan Euplotes uses UGA to code for cysteine.

"We were just curious" whether this microorganism produced selenocysteine and, if so, what codon was used for this amino acid, he said.

To find out, the team had to sequence the protozoan's entire genome, which required samples of the organism as well as extensive computer analysis and lab work. Lawrence Klobutcher, a professor at the University of Connecticut Health Center, provided the protozoan material and expertise in this organism. Lobanov, a bioinformatics expert, handled the computing while Turanov, an expert in experimental procedures, did the lab work. They discovered that in this protozoan, UGA can code for either cysteine or selenocysteine, even within the same gene. Which amino acid gets inserted depends on the location of UGA within the gene and proximity of an RNA element that signals UGA to insert selenocysteine. q 2A Previously, scientists thought that if the RNA element was present, UGA would insert selenocysteine. "Now we found that not every position in the gene supports selenocysteine," Gladyshev said, which

Two services now offered at Journey Christian Church

Starting Sunday, Jan. 18, Journey Christian Church will be offering two worship services on Sunday mornings.

The early service will be at 8 a.m. and the late service will be at 10:30 a.m. Both services will be the same, featuring authentic praise and relevant messages in a friendly, comeas-you-are atmosphere.

continue to be at 9:30 a.m.

"Offering a new service at 8 a.m. will allow people who have to work on Sunday mornings an opportunity to worship before going to work," said Troy Reynolds, preaching minister at Journey. "It also allows people the chance to come to church and still have most of the day to do the things they want to do on Sundays - watch the game, shop, get out of town, go golfing."

to be a place for all people, regardless of their past, to come and encounter the love of God in a 'real and relevant way.'

for people to worship on Sunday mornings allows us to continue to grow and impact more people with the love of Jesus Christ," Pastor Reynolds said.

Journey Christian Church is located at 1110 East Seventh Street in Wayne and invites northeast Nebraskans to worship with them at either of their services - 8 or 10:30 a.m. on Sunday morning.

"If the two-amino acid function of a codon evolved in one organism, it might exist in other organisms, too. It raises lots of questions and possibilities," Gladyshev said. "Nobody even considered that a particular codon could specify multiple amino acids. Our work suggests it's possible so it needs to be checked out in other organisms, including humans."

Gladyshev's team studies selenoproteins and selenium to understand their role in human health.

'It's well known that a specific codon does different things in different organisms. The novelty of our work is that we found this codon can do multiple things in a single organism," he added.

Other collaborators on the Science paper were Klobutcher, Dolph Hatfield of the National Cancer Institute at the National Institutes of Health, and Hilary Morrison and Mitchell Sogin, both of the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass. Grants from the NIH fund Gladyshev's research.

"On behalf of our nation's corn growers, I would like to extend our gratitude to Secretary Schafer and the employees at USDA for their thorough consideration of our members' views and concerns regarding ACRE. We are pleased with the outcome of the ACRE program and look forward to the implementation of the other farm bill programs."

According to the USDA, growers may immediately enroll in the Direct Counter-cyclical Payment (DCP) Program, elect to receive advance direct payments and then later modify their enrollment to include the ACRE program, or they may wait and elect to enroll in DCP and ACRE at the same time in Spring 2009.

NDA sponsors sixth annual poster contest

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) today announced the theme for the sixth annual Nebraska Department of Agriculture – Agriculture Week in Nebraska Poster Contest. The contest is open to all Nebraska students in the first through sixth grades. This year's theme is "Nebraska Agriculture: Growing the Good Life."

"Agriculture is our state's number one industry, and this poster contest allows teachers and students an opportunity to have an open discussion about agriculture in their classrooms," said NDA Director Greg Ibach. "We've learned that this contest has spurred teachers to invite farmers and ranchers into their classrooms, allowing students to ask questions and get more involved. Some teachers have even incorporated field trips to local farms as a way to help their students learn more about agriculture.

The entry deadline for the contest is March 2, 2009, with the winners announced during National Agriculture Week (March 15-21). The contest is broken down into three separate age groups: · First and second grade students Third and fourth grade students

· Fifth and sixth grade students The winning entries will be fea-

Believer in naps

The Wayne

Herald

Today, Monday, was almost like spring this morning; but wow, did it ever change this afternoon! There was some good old Nebraska wind, and a few snow flurries here; but it sounds as if people driving home from work east of us were having a very hard time.

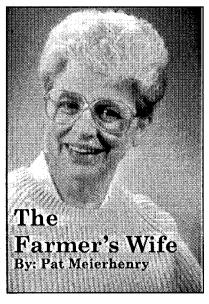

I was planning to work today, but the coordinator called to say I would not be needed. That was a "gift of time." First, I went to the local coffee shop; I was already dressed for work when she called, and had a scone and some fresh coffee while I waited for the drug store next to it to open. There is a post office in this drug store and I was out of stamps.

Then, it was back home to finish reading the paper. I changed clothes and put in my 30" at Curves, stopping at the grocery store on the way back. I heated left-overs for lunch

After lunch, I was sleepy! And this, even though I had plenty of sleep last night. In fact, I find myself getting sleepy every day after lunch when I'm at home. So, I took a nap!

Now, I've always been a believer in naps. When the kids were small, I made them take naps because "even if they didn't need one, I did." And I have to admit, sometimes I spend more time trying to get to sleep than I actually do sleeping. But here at the cozy townhouse, when the weather outside is frightful, I can lull myself to sleep rather easily. I lay down on the Big Farmer's bed because it has a vibrating feature. He doesn't like it, but it relaxes me. I take the Reader's Digest, or something like it, and I read a few pages until my eyes get heavy. I put a pillow over my head, a blanket over the rest of me, and drift off to dreamland.

I feel kind of guilty about these naps, especially when there is something waiting for me to do. Today, I still had Christmas stuff in the basement to put away. And it's a week since Epiphany. But a little blurb in the paper is on my bulletin board now. It says that a cognitive neuroscientist at the City University of New York has conducted research that says our power to perform better can be restored in as little as 12 minutes with a power nap. Even small shots of slow-wave sleep, which precedes the deeper REM sleep, can help the brain solve problems, create connections and cut the clutter.

And if there is anything my brain needs, it's something to cut the clutter! This doctor says "Not only do we need to remember to sleep, but most certainly we sleep to remember." My memory can use a little help, too.

I did get the holiday trappings put away, and the pile of old newspapers read. I even got the Taverns for the Habitat lunch made for tomorrow; and a carrot cake for their dessert. Maybe this guy in New York is onto something. And lest you think that I cheated Mike out of a place for his nap, I need to tell you that he simply reclines his chair and puts a throw over his lap. There are definitely some advantages to being retired!

UNL, Monsanto offer opportunity for students to see ag career opportunities

High school and college students can get a glimpse into some of the hottest careers of the future next week on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's East Campus.

Monsanto's Mobile Technology Unit, with 1,000 square feet of exhibit space in an 18 wheeler than can run on biofuels, will be on the west side of Mussehl Hall from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 13 and 14. Students and others can tour the unit and observe some of the newest technology in plant breeding and biotech processes.

It's a great opportunity, said Paul Black, head of UNL's Department of Biochemistry.

as plant breeding, genomics, agronomy and seed production will be featured," she said. "But you might be surprised about some additional careers ... such as engineering, law, marketing, animal nutrition and information technology."

Williams and Black said that ÜNL's partnerships with Monsanto and other private firms are key to bringing new technologies to the marketplace. One example is Monsanto's contract with UNL to commercialize crops tolerant to the broadleaf herbicide dicamba, using UNL-developed technology.

It's never too soon for students to sessions including presentations by begin making contacts with private an on-site ethanol production demonstration unit.

Monsanto representatives will be on site for one-on-one interaction with students to explore technology, post-secondary academic paths and career possibilities.

The event is open to the public, too, but since space is limited to about 25 people per 30 minutes, Williams suggested calling (402) 472-9581 or e-mailing SoutheastExtension@unl.edu to arrange a time to visit.

On Thursday, the Monsanto unit will host agricultural producers for university and company scientists.

"With the change of leadership in Washington and an emphasis on energy independence, the bioenergy initiatives are very much in the forefront," Black said.

UNL is on the cutting edge of these initiatives, said Black, a lipid biochemist who's part of a team focusing on developing hydrocarbon-based fuels from plant lipids. As faculty members conduct research in this area, they also will be educating students who will enter this burgeoning field.

"We feed to Monsanto and other" companies students with expertise that can go on into careers in this emerging market," Black said. "And it's not just an emerging market. It's a big market and a longterm market.'

"It really is an exciting time to be a student," he added.

Susan Williams, director of UNL's Southeast Research and Extension Center, noted that those potential careers span a wide gamut. "You might suspect careers such

Over 93 percent of state's population Phase II E-911 capable

More than 93 percent of Nebraska's population has the highest level possible of E-911 location technology available in their area, the Nebraska Public Service Commission has announced.

Nebraska The Telecommunications Infrastructure and Public Safety Department reported to the Public Service Commission that 93.5 percent of the state's population now is Phase II capable with at least one carrier in summoning emergency services by wireless telephones. The Nebraska E-911 Advisory Board had previously established a goal of having 90 percent of Nebraska Phase II capable by January of 2009.

Phase II permits 911 call centers to receive the caller's wireless telephone number as well as the specific location of the caller by latitude and longitude. Phase II is now available in 73 of Nebraska's 93 counties, which provides coverage for 93.5 percent of the state's population.

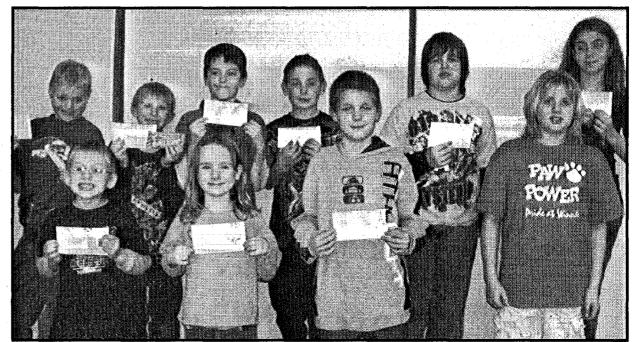

Four more counties - Frontier, Jefferson, Kearney, and Nemaha-- are expected to implement Phase II sometime in the first two months of 2009. In addition, four counties - Brown, Cherry, Keya Paha, and Rock - are finalizing plans to share equipment to allow them to move to Phase II capability.

Eight counties - Dundy, Franklin, Garden, Hayes, Hitchcock, Morrill, Richardson, and Webster - have basic 911 service, however, six of those counties are taking steps to achieve the level of enhanced 911 service.

Four additional counties - Box Butte, Gage, Sheridan, and Wayne - have achieved the level of Phase I capability, the report said. Phase I means counties can receive the wireless telephone numbers of callers, but can trace the location only to the cellular tower that transmitted the initial signal.

On June 30, 2007, just 12 Nebraska counties were Phase II capable. Eighteen months later, the list has grown by 61 counties, representing significant movement in one and one-half years, the report said.

The E-911 system was mandated by the Nebraska Legislature. It is administered by the Public Service Commission which provides funding for allowable costs through a
