Local businessmen offer comments on economy

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Over the years, the economy has had its ups and downs. Lately, the economy has taken a downhill turn. Several Wayne businessmen recently offered their insight on the national and local economy.

Wayne Area Economic Development, Inc.: Dave Simonsen, executive director: These are tough times but we are still better off than in many places. Agriculture, especially, has been good the last several years and that helps the local economy. Businesses and manufacturing firms in the area do not just rely on each other but also nationally, regionally and internationally. Layoffs and cut hours have a negative effect as local economy eventually becomes affected. I see some local layoffs but not plant closures.

State National Bank: Dave Ley, CEO: On the national economy, the standard of living was improved but our own horizons expanded too quickly in every segment of society. Laws were changed to help that upgrade. Ways were found to pay for houses and goods but people couldn't afford them. We aren't in as bad a position as we think we are. One good thing is that the standard of living was raised. House builders, contractors, banks and others benefited from the housing industry expansion. This recession may last longer than those in the past. In spite of it all, we live better in the U.S. than in other countries. It isn't as bad here as on the coasts where there are many excesses.

Galen Wiser, State National Bank president: Our local economy is good. Ag production, overall is good. Loan demand is very good; there are more loans out than a

First National Bank: Bill Dickey, president: On the national banking industry, only large banks have received any TARP money and those that do have to pay it back to the government. Credit, especially on the coast, is tight. As for us, it is normal banking as usual. We are still lending money. We haven't seen as much impact here as in other areas. We are seeing a trickle down effect. People are becoming more sensitive to spending habits and are making cuts where they can. We have not seen economic times as this since the Great Depression. One big factor in recovery for the slow economy is the housing industry. It would help if we could stimulate the housing market. There are really some great buys to take advantage of. The interest rate is as low as it has been in years.

BankFirst: Kevin Hoffart, vice president: The economy goes in cycles, good and bad and we are in a downturn now. Things had been pretty good but this could be the worst economy since the Great Depression. Agriculture has been good the last couple of years so Wayne is not affected as much as other parts of the nation. In my opinion, the outlook for 2009, based on what I see in the second half we'll start to see some changes and hopefully things turn around people close to retirement as there is not home loan rate was 10 percent. much time for a turn around. For those Farmers & Merchants State Bank: Tim younger, it is a time to buy cheap shares.

The four banks in Wayne are involved in standard commercial banking practices and weren't involved in sub prime lending (speculative) practices. Nationally, loans may be affected some in northeast Nebraska. Interest rates will be low for awhile and then will rebound. Home loan rates are coming down (they As for the stock market, it is tough for are around 6.00 percent). In 1990, a good and hear, I expect the year to be slow but as credit tightens but that is not the case starting to see. I've been in banking for 30 years and have seen farm crisis and how it affects rural America. If there are hard times in ag, we are in the midst of it just like tough times in the car industry in Michigan; they are feeling that direct effect. Times are pretty good here compared to the rest of the country.

As for our bank, we are still making that our country is facing difficult times we are isolated as there is a trickle down but it is extremely important to remain

'Stirring in heart' leads Wayne minister to new congregation

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

After more than 16 years of service to his Wayne congregation, the Rev. Cal Kroeker and his family "have the opportunity to reach out in a new location." Pastor Kroeker's final service in Wayne will be Sunday, Feb. 8. On March 1 he will begin his duties as pastor of Central Plains Evangelical Free Church in Omacoma, S.D., which is located near Chamberlain, S.D. Pastor Kroeker will be the first fulltime pastor for the church, which was formed two years ago.

The Kroeker family came to Wayne in August of 1992 and Cal began serving as the pastor of the Wayne Evangelical Free Church, located just north of Wayne on Centennial Road. They had previously served a church in Chicago, Ill. for three

Cal received his undergraduate education at Ottawa University in Kansas and his Masters of Divinity at North American Baptist Seminary in Sioux Falls, S.D. He also served a Hispanic Home church in Colorado for five years.

"In October of 1995 our congregation moved into the former Redeemer Lutheran Church Building and changed the name to Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church. We also added a full-time associate pastor," Cal said.

"I believe that our congregation (in Wayne) has a good sense of unity and direction. Our average worship attendance has grown from 65 people per Sunday when I came to 76 people per Sunday at the present time. Also, there has been a lot of ministry happening in our church, including AWANA, assistance with the Norfolk Rescue Mission and small group Bible studies," Cal said.

"I really appreciate how God has used the people in our congregation to influence and encourage the community. We have been able to provide a number of concerts, programs and other activities for the good of the community," he added.

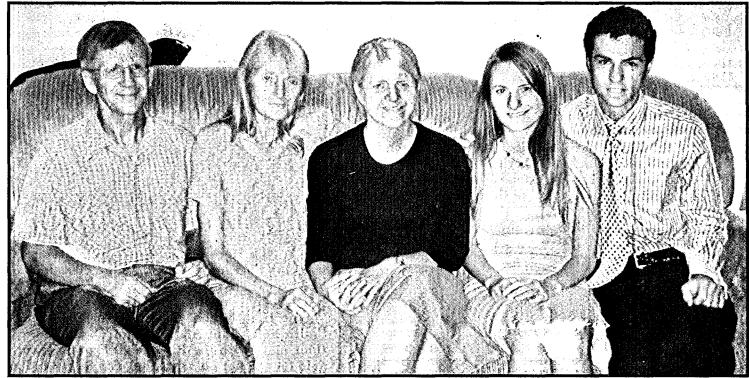

Pastor Kroeker said both he and his wife, Deanna, will miss the people of Wayne when they leave.

"Wayne has been so welcoming and open to our whole family. This has been a very good community to raise our family.

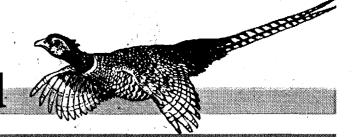

Following Pastor Kroeker's final service on Feb. 8 at 10:30 a.m., a congregation farewell potluck will be held. A community open house is scheduled from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. as an opportunity for the family to "greet friends and express our gratitude for their friendship."

"Throughout our time in Wayne, I feel we have used our gifts to help our church get where it is at. However, there is now a stirring in our hearts that God has something new planned for us. We hope to use 25 years of experience in ministry in service to the Lord," Cal said.

When Pastor Kroeker leaves Wayne, Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church will be served by an interim pastor while the congregation searches for a new pas-

Habitat for Humanity group continues plans for 2009 build

The Wayne Area Habitat for Humanity met in January and discussed replacement of board members and officers as well as completing the landscaping for the latest build.

Plans were also made to obtain new lots for the upcoming builds and to select a family for a 2009 home.

The group explored a number of different possibilities for raising funds and ways to include more people in the area habitat efforts. It was noted that it would be especially beneficial to include more volunteers who would be able to help with construction on weekdays.

Anyone who would like more information about Wayne Area Habitat for Humanity is asked to contact Ann Witkowski at (402) 375-4509.

Projected economic benefits of UNMC College of Nursing northern division staggering

As worries continue about the economic downturn at the local, state, and federal level, the proposed University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing (UNMC) Northern Division in Norfolk hits a positive note for potential economic benefits.

To be built on the Northeast Community College campus in Norfolk, a $12.9 million capital campaign for the college of nursing stands at just over $10 million in pledges after just one year of active fundraising. In addition to the bachelor's, master's and doctoral nursing programs from UNMC, the 44,000-squarefoot College of Nursing Northern Division will house all Northeast's nursing programs, including the basic nurse aide, licensed practical nursing and associate degree nursing. Completion date for the facility is tentatively set for 2010 with classes tentatively set to begin in the fall of 2010.

Assessment conducted by Dr. Donis N. Petersan, former economist with the Nebraska Public Power District, it is expected the UNMC College of Nursing Northern Division will graduate up to 68 bachelor- and graduate-level students each year when completed and at capacity. When practicing in Northeast's 20county service area, and the surrounding communities of Yankton, Sioux City, Columbus, Albion, and Valentine among others, these graduates will earn an estimated benefits.

Those 68 graduates will also require the services and goods of area businesses when they graduate and enter the workforce. Total value of those goods and services is expected to be $5,116,753 annually, according to Dr. Petersan.

UNMC faculty and staff will number 15 when the facility is completed and fully operational.

Dr. Petersan's study indicates the 15 UNMC faculty and staff will add $1,738,975 in wages and benefits annually to the area economy. It is expected they will also generate goods and services expenditures of $1,849,723 each year.

"With the recent plant closures and layoffs, this project will create quality jobs, which are needed in these current economic times," said Thomas Higginbotham, Jr., executive director of the Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District. "This project is the per-According to an Economic Impact fect example of partnerships. The way the University, community college, area hospitals, elected officials (state and local), and the private sector have come together to solve the problem of the upcoming shortage of nurses in northeast Nebraska is amazing."

> "This just goes to show that 'regionalism' and good solid partnership can make this great project a reality as it helps the regional economy."

Patty Plugge, director of the Burt County Economic Development College,

$4,133,376 in annual wages and Corporation, concurs. "The development of a nursing college at Northeast Community College is another example of Nebraska helping itself," she said. "While there is currently a shortage of nurses in Nebraska, the demand is projected to increase 25 percent by 2020. A nursing college serving northeast Nebraska can help fill those positions, which will be an economic boost for Burt County. Having good medical care is a quality that we need in order to attract and retain residents and businesses."

It is expected the College of Nursing Northern Division will help current outmigration trends and keep small towns in northeast and north central Nebraska viable by providing access to quality, close-to-home health care.

"There are very few fields that directly impact the quality of our daily lives as much as healthcare," said Vic Lee, president and CEO of Boone County Health Center. "Nurses are the frontline of quality healthcare. One of the keys to a vital northeast and north-central Nebraska is quality healthcare services close to home. The College of Nursing Northern Division will help alleviate an impending nursing shortage in our area of the state, and thus directly impact our quality of life and local economies for years to come."

"With the economic downturn of late," said Dr. Bill R. Path, president of Northeast Community "this University Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing will play a vital role in assuring that its graduates can find good jobs close to home. Economic downturn or not, our population will continue to age and require more health care than ever before. And even if some registered nurses do delay their retirement, we will still need many, many new registered nurses each and every year. Now, more than ever, we need this facility."

There are over 5,000 wells in this LENRD district. Anyone concerned about water quantity should attend upcoming meetings or talk to LENRD board of directors: Wayne: Joel Hansen (369-3765), Stan Baier (375-2193), Concord-Dixon: Gary Anderson (584-2506); LENRD Water Resources Specialist Brian Bruckner (833-5488); or LENRD Water Resources Manager Rick Wozniak at the LENRD office at 402-371-7313 or visit the LENRD website at www.lenrd.org.

pair of meets on Saturday as a majority of the team spent Friday and Saturday in Ames, Iowa at the Iowa State Open while throwers and other athletes traveled to the Graphic Edge Invite at the University of South Dakota in Vermillion.

"Overall, we made some nice improvements on the track which showed good progress," said coach Marlon Brink.

"We are very young in most of the field events and that showed in our lack of progress there. Each meet we will hopefully gain confidence and improve to where they will be ready to compete at the NSIC Championships.'

The best performance for the Wildcat women's team came from Newcastle sophomore Paige Pollard who placed second in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:19.63.

Junior Christina King set a new school record in the 600-yard run by placing fourth in a time of 1:25.94, breaking the previous school record of 1:26.20 that was set by Cindy Heesacker in 1986.

"Christina is really learning to run aggressively to be able to compete at a very high level. As she gains confidence, she is really learning that she can compete with almost anyone she goes up against," Brink said.

Also competing in the women's division was the distance medley relay team of Tatiana DeLosSantos, Molly Gibson, Melissa McIntosh and Sarah Thomsen who finished 10th overall with a time of 12:58.30.

For the WSC men, senior Nate Preston had the top finish taking fourth in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 15:10.44.

Also scoring for Laurel-Concord Laurel-Concord's opportunity for win hampered by 22 turnovers

By Casey Schroeder

The Laurel-Concord girl's basketball team dropped to a respectable 6-4 last Thursday night in Laurel as they were defeated by the visiting Battle Creek Bravettes 52-40.

"It was just a frustrating loss, we were really close to being very good tonight," said Bears head coach Nate Sims.

"We just had a lot of little things that were off timing wise. Some passes, a lot of missed shots inside that we'd normally hit and just a couple of those things that are frustrating. But at the same time it's positive because we were doing things well, they just didn't go our

The Bears never led and had a tough time finding their niche Thursday night as Battle Creek led by as many as seven points at 17-10 with 50.3 seconds remaining in the first quarter before closing out the period in control of a 17-13 advan-

After falling behind by four points, Laurel-Concord tied Battle Creek at 17-17 with 7:27 remaining in the half following two Jade Cunningham free throws and a Emily Gubbels' jump shot.

The Bravettes then countered the Bears with a 3-1 scoring run over the next 1:22 to up their lead to 20-18 with just under 6:05 to play in

With time, now becoming a factor, Laurel-Concord tied Battle Creek for one last time at 20-20 following a Taryn Dahlquist layup at the 4:42 mark, but got no closer as the Bravettes went on to add another nine points before closing out the half the Bears got as close as one point on several occurrences throughout the third quarter, but in the end it wasn't enough as Battle Creek outscored Laurel-Concord 23-14 in the second half to earn the 52-40 win.

Following the intermission break,

The Bears hit just 14 of 58 shots from the field for 24.1 percent while going 3 of 12 from beyond the arc and 9 of 20 at the free throw line.

In comparison, Battle Creek made only 26.7 percent of their shots from the field, connecting on just 16 of 60 attempts while going 6 of 20 from three point range and 14 of 27 at the charity stripe. The Bears held a 44-29 rebounding advantage over the Bravettes, thanks to 11 boards by both Bethany DeLong and Cunningham. However, Laurel-Concord had 22 turnovers compared to just five for Battle Creek.

"We just weren't focused at times...we just didn't do a great job of executing," Sims said.

Kids, education and faith

Dear Editor,

Jan. 25-31 is Catholic Schools Week. Being the pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church and president of our school, this is a good time to think about our kids, education, and faith.

I am not a pessimist, but there are obstacles our young people face that can stop them from embracing Christian values. One obstacle is the constant bombardment of television, radio, personal music devices, and video games. In themselves, none of these things are inherently bad. There are good shows and games out there.

The religious education program for kids not in our school is 90 minutes of class weekly. Can 90 minutes of religious education compare to hours of television? In the end, will they embrace the values that they see on television or the values they get from God? With parents reinforcing the importance of faith at home, it is more than possible, even if it is not easy.

Take Sunday religious services as an example. We wonder why many people do not see going to church on Sundays as being important. If your life is more centered around activities and entertainment, then we should not be surprised that church services lose out to sports, television, or just sleeping in. When faith shapes your life, you gladly go to church. When all of these other influences shape your life, church and God are naturally afterthoughts.

To combat this reality is one reason St. Mary's has had a school since 1953. We strive to give kids in kindergarten to fourth grade (along with our pre-school) a truly Christian environment to learn and grow. They get an excéllent education in academic subjects, but central to the mission of our school is for our kids to know who they are in God's eyes. What good is all the knowledge in the world if we are self-centered rather than God-centered? All that knowledge would mean nothing.

What gives me confidence for the future is the fact that there are amazing families and kids in our community. There are young people of faith. In our world today,

Some proposed laws are 'interesting'

By Ed Howard

Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association Proposed laws poured in during the first ten days of the legislative session. Some of them deal with the usual matters, but some are interesting just by dint of their top-

Sen. Mark Christensen of Imperial offered a measure that would put state regulations on what he called "sexually oriented" businesses.

Think lap dance, and fellows who attach money to a dancer's costume while she is in very close proximity

Christensen would apply a handful of rules, license and fee requirements, and penalties for violating them. His bill would also create the equivalent of a "no man's land" to separate patrons and performers.

The dancer and customers would have to remain at least six feet from one another at all times. And thus, no touching. None. This would mean, obviously, that aficionados of such entertainment could no longer attach those dollars to the costumes. The days of waving some money in your hand and subsequently getting a kiss - a practice in some places - would be over. These things, in turn, would mean a major decline in the income of the women doing the entertaining.

When a legislative committee conducts a public hearing on the bill, who is going to show up?

This where it gets interesting. Potentially.

It is especially easy to envision parents of grade-school and middle-school children, whose homes and/or schools are near strip clubs, giving full-throttle support to Christensen. Maybe some church representatives, too.

Question: Who is going to testify for the bill? Club owners would be likely tandidates. Perhaps attorneys and / or lobbyists. But, will there be any patrons of the clubs on hand? Will anyone testify that, by gosh, watching a dancer disrobe, and maybe engaging her for a lap dance, is a legitimate and relaxing (?) form of entertainment.

Any chance that any of the exotic dance artists will testify?

Might there be understanding on the level of sympathy for a woman who testifies, truthfully, that she is the single mother of children and needs such work to remain financially viable? How about the "I'm doing this to pay my way through school," thing?

Then we get to the lawmakers.

What person or persons among a lawmaker's constituency might lean on him/her in a big way to send that measure to the full legislature for debate? Or, alternatively, to see that it doesn't leave the committee?

Think about his/her challenger, if any, in the next election: "And my opponent is in favor of the sort of bawdy entertainment that the good people of this community oppose for the sake of morality and decency and children and ... other things, too!"

And as for escort services, which Christensen would regulate through a separate bill? They might have less trouble because there are such businesses which are entirely legitimate. It is difficult to imagine them opposing reasonable regulations - especially if they are smarter than a bag of wouldn't be a debate along the lines of chiropractors and medical doctors disagreeing about the value of the former's trade.

UNL family economist: in tough economy, take charge of finances

With bad national economic news at every turn, it is important that people take steps to protect their own finances, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension family economics specialist said.

"A lot of people are in a financial panic right now," said Kathleen Prochaska-Cue. "The first thing for people to do is stop and look at where their money is going."

Prochaska-Cue encourages cash flow planning, in which individuals and families track their income and expenses carefully for at least three to six months. That will tell them what they are spending money on and how much income they are get-

Cash flow planning is different from budgeting in that it shows the timing of money flowing in and out in addition to the amounts. It may be useful to do cash flow planning twice a month to reflect biweekly paychecks or additional expenses, flow planning can be found in Prochaska-Cue's NebGuide G1789, "Planning and Tracking Income and Expenses Through Time: Cash Flow Planning," available at http://www. ianrpubs.unl.edu/sendIt/g1789.pdf.

Cash flow planning can be done on a computer spreadsheet or on a piece of paper, which should be written in pencil so changes can be made, she said. The plan will end up with a total number spent on expenses and a total number for

"You get to the bottom line and hope to have a positive number or at least a zero," Prochaska-Cue said. "For most of us it will have a negative number. That's when you go back and look at expenses."

When expenses are higher than income, expenses will need to be cut in areas that are more discretionary, such as entertainment and food, she said. For example, reducing the number of trips to res-

A step-by-step guide to cash taurants will help, as will smaller reductions like fewer visits to coffee shops and vending machines.

Another important step for individuals or families is to look at the use of credit, particularly credit cards. People often need to go on a "spending diet" and put more money toward paying off debt.

Debt reduction can be done one of two ways. The common sense approach is paying off a debt with the highest interest rate. However, people may find a better feeling of accomplishment if they pay off the easiest debt first and get that off their radar screen, she said.

"Once you get that one paid off then put as much money as you can to the next one," she said.

Prochaska-Cue also advises people getting a tax refund to use it to pay down debt. UNL's Pay Down Debt Web site has some practical guidance to help eliminate debt, she said. It can be found at http:// paydowndebt.unl.edu.

more nutritious food right at your fingertips. Improved health and nutrition will occur. Some of you may have planned to save money on your budget. Gardening can certainly help you save money on your grocery bill. For those of you who planned to get more exercise, gardening is a great way to meet that goal, in addition to enjoying the fresh air outside. Others may be looking for ways to earn a little extra money. If you can expand your garden, you can participate in farmers' markets or make other plans for sharing your produce with others and making a profit, too.

So there are many reasons for starting now to plan a garden for this spring. Whether you have a few potted garden plants on your apartment balcony or patio, or you dedicate a portion of your yard, acreage or farm to the garden, you will actually be accomplishing all these goals: better nutrition, more exercise, lowering grocery bills, and possibly earning money.

Of course, UNL Extension is there to help. Whether you need information on planting, soils, watering, controlling pests or marketing your garden produce, Extension has the answers. For example, if you are interested in learning more about raising produce to sell, there is a

Minerva Club discuss history

The Minerva Club met Jan. 26 at the Wayne Senior Center with Hallie Sherry as hostessing 196) Twelve members answered roll weall by telling of a world event that impacted their life. President Phyllis Rahn opened the meeting by sharing bits and pieces of her recent trip to Hawaii. Minutes were read and approved. There was not treasurer's report in the absence of Donna Hansen.

Historian Hollis Frese read minutes from Jan. 21, 1929. The program at that meeting was about women leaders in world affairs of politics and sports. Interesting that today's program, 80 years later, was the same topic. The topic for the Feb. 4, 1929 meeting was "New Plays" and the play, "Strange Interlude", was reviewed.

Hallie Sherry gave a program about world leaders of the 20th century. She limited her topic to women world leaders and noted that the list was brief not because women were shy and incapable, but because they were discriminated against by the men of that day and age. Hallie informed the group of such women as Eleanor Roosevelt, Margaret Sanger, Jane Addams, Dorothy Day, Rosa Luxemburg and Emma Goldman. The causes they championed played an important part of history and changed the

I just lost a column! I yped it all up nicely, checked it for spelling errors, and "saved" it. Bu I didn't give it a title and I can locate it again. How frustrating The Big Farmer is watching Oklahoma/Oklahoma State and m sitting in the kitchen, rewriting this.

Anyway, the last two columns talked about things retirees really like, such as naps and bumming around. Tought, I had addressed something that this retiree, at least, does not like; cooking! I am I just lost a column! I yped it least, does not like; cooking! I am so tired of cooking. I get so jealous of friends in retirement communities that boast communal dining. When I visit one, I check out the menus posted at the door of the. dining room. To my notion, that is the one big attraction.

My recipes all serve four or six; plus, we don't eat as much as we used to. It's a good thing, too, because it certainly does not take as much food when you aren't as active. I used to plan one T-bone steak per person; now, we do well for both of us to get away with one. Of course, we don't have steak as often, either, because we don't have it in the freezer. But we have plenty of hamburger, thanks to MK feedlot, and we enjoy it.

The Nebraska Farmer reported last year on some studies that not have my brain shrink at all. beef and Swiss steak!

showed that eating beef does not raise cholesterol, contrary to popular belief. In the latest issue, in Country life, a column by Diane Becker reports on a study published in a journal called Neurology that claims that people on a meatfree diet are six times more likely to have brain shrinkage than those who do eat meat! I don't know about you, but I would just as soon

I guess, after 60, it's going to, but this study compared people past 60 who ate meat with those who did not and the meat eaters scored better on memory tests, had less brain shrinkage and were generally healthier than their counterparts.

Not only that, Diane reports that Mariel Hemingway was a vegan for 16 years! Since she has resumed eating meat, she reports more energy. And the one that takes the cake for me is the author of the Moosewood cookbook, THE Bible for vegetarians, is eating meat again.

And we are talking red meat; beef, it's what's for dinner! We get iron, zinc, protein, phosphorus, potassium, magnesium, and selenium from meat. Those are all important for cardiovascular health, I know that.

I've said for years we don't need great big servings; I guess a piece the size of a deck of cards will suffice. But we do need it, regularly, and I am very tired of the general bad press it gets. So, I'll keep agitating about it, and the Nebraska Cattlemen will keep promoting it, and hopefully, you all will keep buying it. Now, if I could just find a carryout place that serves roast

UNL research: corn ethanol emits 51 percent less greenhouse gas than gasoline

average of 51 percent less greenhouse gas than gasoline, as much as three times the reduction reported in earlier research, thanks to recent improvements in efficiency throughout the production process, University of Nebraska-Lincoln research shows. A Journal of Industrial Ecology article (available online at http://dx.doi.org/10.1111/J.1530-9290,2008.00105.x) outlines the research, conducted by an interdisciplinary team of UNL researchers, which evaluated dry-mill ethanol plants that use natural gas. Such plants account for nearly 90 percent of current production capac-

This research is the first to quantify the impact of recent improvements throughout the corn-ethanol production process, including crop production, biorefinery operations and co-product use, said Ken Cassman, UNL agronomist who was part of the research team. Previous studies, which found ethanol to have a much smaller edge over gasoline in GHG emissions, relied on estimates based on corn production, ethanol plant performance and co-product use as they were seven years ago.

"Critics claim that corn ethanol has only a small net energy yield and little potential for direct reductions in GHG emissions compared to use of gasoline," Cassman said. "This is the first peer-reviewed study to document that these claims are not correct."

More recently built - and more efficient - plants now represent about 60 percent of total ethanol production and will account for 75 percent by the end of 2009, Cassman added. These newer bio-

Corn ethanol directly emits an refineries have increased energy efficiency and reduced GHG emissions through the use of improved technologies. Also, many are located near cattle feeding or dairy operations, which allows efficient use of the co-product distillers grains as cattle feed. For example, the distillers grains don't have to be dried to facilitate long-distance travel; drying uses up to 30 percent of total energy use in the ethanol plant.

Also contributing to corn ethanol's GHG performance are improvements in how the crop is grown, including improved crop and soil management, and letter hybrids that help farmers achieve a steady increase in corn yields without having to increase fertilizer or energy inputs.

The result of these improvements: The ethanol industry currently is producing a fuelthat is 48 to 59 percent lower in direct-effect lifecycle greenhouse gal emissions than gasoline. That's two to three times the reduction reported in earlier studies that id not take into account recent advances in corn-ethanol production.

The net energy raio, which averaged 1.2 to 1 in earlier studies, is 1.5-1.8 to 1 in the recent research, Cassman said. That means that for every unit of energy it takes to make ethanol, 1.5 to 1.8 units of energy are produced as ethanol.

Even more striking is the corn ethanol's potential to replace oil. This new study estimates that 10-19 gallons of ethanol are produced for every gallon of petroleum used in the entre corn-ethanol production life ycle. The range in the ethanol-ql replacement value, as well as the ranges measured for net energy efficiency and GHG emissions reduction, are due to differences in crop management practices and ethanol plant performance.

The findings are key to corn ethanol's long-term viability, Cassman said, because the industry has been justified, in part, by the assumption that GHG emissions would be reduced as ethanol replaces petroleum-derived gasoline.

The research is a component of a regional, multi-university research initiative known as NC506, to assess the economic and environmental sustainability of the rapidly expanding Midwestern corn ethanol industry. This project is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the North Central Bioeconomy Consortium. Other sources of funding include the Western Governors Association, Environmental Defense, and the Agricultural Research Division at UNL, and the Nebraska Center for Energy Sciences Research.

Researchers used the UNLdeveloped Biofuel Energy Systems Simulator, or BESS, to make their calculations. This software is available for download at http://www. bess.unl.edu. BESS analyzes energy yield and efficiency, greenhouse gas emissions and resource requirements for individual biofuel production systems. This "seed-tofuel" tool quantifies lifecycle carbon savings and environmental impact of individual biofuel systems. It factors in energy use and greenhouse gases from crop production, ethanol conversion, co-product use, and transportation.

The study did not take into account indirect land use change, because there is not yet a scientific consensus about how to estimate the magnitude of these effects as a component of the greenhouse gas intensity of biofuels.

DRIVING TIPS

Clear snow and ice from windows, lights, windshield wipers, the hood, and the roof of your vehicle, before driving. The windshield-washer reserve should be filled with a freeze-resistant cleaning solution.

When you see plows, stay at least 200 feet behind them. Leave room for stopping. Brake early and carefully.

Don't use cruise control. The short touch of your brakes to deactivate the cruise control can cause you to lose control of Pay attention. Look ahead to see what other vehicles are doing. That way you will know about any impending road or weather conditions.

Watch your speed. Even if your car handles well in snow and ice, other drivers' cars may not. Drive according to the conditions: Don't exceed the speed limit and drive slowly in harsh conditions. Don't try to out-drive bad weather.

Inexpensive family celebrations are good for memories and more

Mary Loftis, Extension Assistant UNL Extension in Burt County

Many of us are looking for ways to make memories with our family members. Family celebrations are a reat place to start. Whether you're planning a birthday party, Valentiže's Day or just your own "Family Night" here are a few budget friendly ideas to help you celebrate.

Decorations: Make your family celebration special with low cost decorations. Use toilet paper as streamers if the dining room and you can reuse the paper by putting it in an old tissue box in the bathroom. Of purse you can make paper chains if you've got willing hands and some tape or glue. Make signs with recycled computer paper and chyons to hang up around the house. Write a message on the bathroom nirror in soap or old lipstick to catchtheir attention. Write a welcome nessage on the sidewalk with chalk. For a message that lasts a LONG time, recycle those colorful old snoke bombs from the 4th of July and use them as chalk.

Activities: Joke Time: Go on-line or to the library and search for short clean jokes. Cut them apart and let family members take turns drawing a joke from the lat and reading it to the family.

Cards: Play a simple game of cards, like the memory game \r "Go Fish".

Games: "Pictionary" is a fun game even if you don't have the real game cards. Set a timer and take turns drawing an item while everyone else guesses what it 's before time is up.

"I Spy" is an oldie, but goodie Take turns hiding an item with everyone else on the search team. "Hide and Seek" is even more fun when you call it "Sardines." One person hides while the others close their eyes and count out loud to 25. Ready or not, everyone goes searching for the hidden person, but when they find them, they must join them in the hiding place until everyone ends up smashed together like sardines. (A darkened house adds to the fun.)

For a calmer game, play an M &

M relay around the table. Everyone needs a drinking straw and a small bowl in front of them. Put a few M & M candies in one person's bowl. At the word "Go" the M & M's are passed clockwise around the table by sucking them up one-by-one with the straw and putting them in the bowl of the person on their left. Use a timer to see how fast you can accomplish this task and then do it again to see if you can beat your time. Tissue Paper Variation: Use the same straw idea only use a 2 x2" piece of tissue paper and see how fast you can pass the tissue paper from straw to straw around the table. Beware of flying tissue paper as everyone gets the giggles.

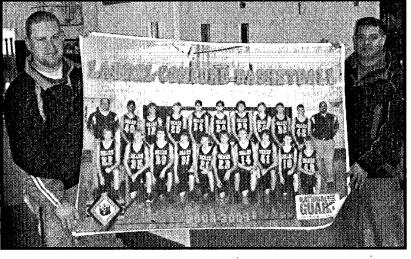

Food: What would a family celebration be without food? Go for a creative idea like a One Color Meal. If you are planning a Valentine celebration, have all the food red. Add red food coloring to the mashed potatoes and serve with butter. Sprinkle a little paprika on some broiled fish, serve beets sweetened and thickened with a little cornstarch and sugar for more family appeal. Slice apples for your fruit and either add red food coloring to milk or serve Koolaid.

A Finger Food Meal can also be fun. Have everything eaten with fingers...or carry it even further and make everything look like fingers! Cut hot dogs in half. Slice string cheese thinly into rounds for the fingernails. Cut off part of the hot dog toward the rounded off end to make a flat place for the cheese to sit. Use a little creamed cheese to make the "nail" stick if desired. Wedge out lines to crete the knuckles and arrange on pates. Pour ketchup over the ends of the cut fingers. Cut the rest of string cheese finger size and use baby carrots for your vegetable. A binana cut in half and then quarered looks like fingers too. And don't forget bread sticks! Make finger lello (flavored gelatin plus unflavored gelatin) and cut into the shape of fingers for a chewy treat that jiggles.

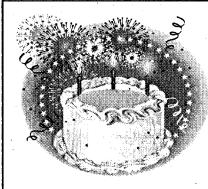

Let your creativity take off as you plan your family celebrations. Search the internet or library for more inexpersive ideas and get the whole family involved from start to finish. Anticipating the celebration is half the fun and special memories will be your reward.

Team spirit
