Wayne mom volunteers on Israeli Army Base

By Joan Sudmann Shapiro

"You did what?" This was what my announced that I had signed up to volunteer on an Israeli Defense Force (IDF) army base in Israel for three weeks. But for a mother whose son enlisted in the IDF in August, 2008, it made perfect sense. After our son, Nate Shapiro, made the decision to serve in the IDF, I ordered several books about the Israeli army, in order to better understand his experience. The IDF has many volunteers from the U.S., Russia, Canada, South America and other parts of the world. One of the books I found was Army Fatigues: Joining Israel's Army of International Volunteers by Mark Werner. Once I dug into this book, I realized that Mr. Werner was not an IDF soldier. He is a lawyer from Raleigh, NC who has volunteered for several three-week stints on IDF bases with a program called Volunteers for Israel or Sar El, which is the Hebrew acronym for Sheirut Le'Yisrael, meaning "Service to Israel."

He wrote about the many ways that ordinary civilian volunteers are put to work on military bases in Israel, helping the tiny (Israel is the size of New Jersey) democracy to defend itself against terrorism by performing non-combat tasks that support the fighting forces. I put down the book and said to myself, "I could do that!" After checking out the website (http://www.sarel.org/), completing the application process and buying my ticket to Tel Aviv, I was on

I arrived at Ben Gurion International Airport on the morning of June 1. My plane was over an hour and half late. After having been up all night, I was greeted at the airport by a shouting Sar El representative, who was a bit impatient due to the two hour delay. Without introducing herself or asking my name, she told me to change some dollars into shekels and hurried me into a waiting car with two Israeli soldiers. I was taken to an un-named military base. (I eventually found out the name and location of the base, but I am not supposed to reveal this information.) After passing through various guarded gates into a compound, surrounded by an imposing fence topped with rolled barb wire, the soldiers, who did not speak any English, dropped me off at a deserted building and sped away. I stood there next to my suitcase and wondered, "What is a nice girl like me doing in a place like this?"

Twenty minutes later, a female soldier of about 18 or 19 years showed up and introduced herself to me as Gavriella, the madricha (group leader) of the team of 14 volunteers which I would be joining. In short order, I was fitted with army fatigues, shown to my barracks (where I quickly changed,) and before I knew it, I was rewiring headsets for tank helmets.

Thus began my three week stay on an IDF base, whose purpose was to repair and maintain communication equipment. I shared a room with a retired nurse from upstate New York, and we quickly became good friends. The volunteers came from Norway, France, Canada, Netherlands and all over the U.S. There was a couple who run a B&B in Laramie, Wyo. and a retired John Deere plant worker from Waterloo, Iowa. Half of us were Jewish; the other half Christian. The youngest among us was 40. The common denominator was a love for Israel and a desire to support the Jewish state in its ongoing struggle against enemies, such as Hamas and Hezbollah, who want to destroy it.

Each day we rose early and reported for breakfast in the mess hall at 7 a.m. The food was good - plenty of fresh tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, eggs and always olives, lots of olives (even at breakfast.) After breakfast, we joined the soldiers for a brief flag raising ceremony at 8 a.m., and then our work day began. In addition to the rewiring, we worked on metal casements that hold communication equipment in tanks. We cleaned them and masked the sensitive parts so they could be spray painted. After they were painted, we reassembled them and tested the electronics to make sure they worked properly before they were sent back out to the field.

Israel's army, which has a reputation for being tough and high tech, is also known for its frugality. Much of the equipment consists of old Viet Nam era materials that have been purchased from the US, and are endlessly repaired, repainted, and re-used. Volunteers provide a significant amount of

Economic Development group to purchase theatre

Corporation will be the initial owner of the Majestic Movie Theatre in Wavne.

The planned closing on the sale of the former Hollywood Video/Twin Theatre is scheduled to take place on Friday, July Initial members of a group that has been working to purchase the theatre, which has been closed for more than a year, include Jeff Morlok, Stephanie Liska, Todd Young, Jill Brodersen and Reggie Yates. Other community members have offered advice and support as the group worked to make the plan a reality.

The Revitalization Committee of the Economic Development will be responsible for renovation, remodeling and coordinating of scheduling for the new, multi-use facility.

The building will be completely gutted and plans call for new seating, concessions, rest rooms and a sound system installed in what will become a one-screen theatre. "When completed, people won't have to

The Wayne Area Economic Development go to Norfolk or Sioux City to enjoy first run movies," Yates said.

It is anticipated that in addition to having the building for movies, it will be able to be used for Community Theatre productions, recitals and wedding anniversary receptions.

Members of the Economic Development group working on the purchase of the building have also been seeking input from members of the Wayne Community Theatre group and hope to be able to present theatre productions in the newly renovated facility.

The group is currently speaking to service organizations and other groups about the plan and gathering volunteers to assist with the project.

It is anticipated that the renovation will be complete and the building 'up and running' by the fall of 2010.

For more information or to have the group make a presentation to a group or organization, contact Reggie Yates at (402) 375-4172.

Harder retires after more than 25 years of service

Ron Harder has retired from the Concord Post Office after serving for more than 25 years as Postmaster.

Harder grew up seven miles north of Wayne and graduated from Wayne High School and Wayne State College. After a teaching career, Ron joined the United States Postal Service as a clerk at Ewing. He was appointed Postmaster at Concord on Sept. 17, 1983, replacing Norman Anderson. His final day was June 30. Donna Schroeder will be the temporary Officer in Charge until a replacement is named.

During his years, Harder saw the changeover from manual sorting, weighing, and charts to figure out prices, to automation now doing much of the work.

"We now have computers and electronic scales that do this for us. The letters that go through the Norfolk processing plant are cancelled, addresses (even handwritten) are read by machines, a bar code printed on, and sorted by machines at a high rate of speed," he said.

Harder says what he will miss most about the job is the daily interaction with his customers. "They travel more often and visit their son have become like members of my and two daughters.

DMV rolling out new driver licenses

The Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) announced that on Monday, July 20, a number of new driver license security initiatives will be introduced. These initiatives are authorized by state law and are designed to improve the security and integrity of the driver license.

Liska noted that for the big Q-125 weekend Aug. 7-9, an Antique Auto Show is planned downtown at the Sand Creek Post & Beam parking lot and around the old fire hall from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Aug. 8. He said there could be between 40-60 cars displayed and car clubs from Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk and other areas have shown interest in attending. Doug Brodersen will be helping with this event and will decide on entry fees and prizes.

. He added that getting the military band and a fly over were not going to happen as there is too much red tape involved.

Discussion was held on advertising and it was decided to run ads in the Morning Shopper and with the radio station, as well as committee members speaking on radio and t.v. programs.

Committee members looked through the Q-125 celebration weekend brochure to see where help is needed with activities. Fauneil Bennett noted there are still tickets available for the Luncheon and Vintage Style Show Saturday at event at 11:30 a.m. Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at the banks and at Swan's Apparel in Wayne. It was noted that the deadline for the tree contest nominations is Monday, July 20. Anyone wanting to nominate a tree in town should call Steve Rasmussen at 375-0101 or email him at srasmussen2@unl.

Steve Gross noted there has been a display of old photos at the Wayne Senior Center and another will be going up soon. He presented a bill for the books he put together of old photos that will go to the local museum, library and court house.

A suggestion was given that having a booth at the Wayne County fair for handing out Q-125 information and selling souvenirs would be good. Liska will check into this and report back to the group. It was noted putting the information on the bank electronic marquee and on the t.v. free channel, as well as on the website: waynene.org should also be done.

Beard and mustache contest to be part of Q-125 weekend, Aug. 7-9

Contest is a fun contest for participants who have enrolled in the official Q-125 Brothers of the Brush sometime during the enrollment period from Jan. 7 through Aug. 8. The purpose of the contest is to designate the resulting beards and mustaches as the best efforts in growing facial hair in the three categories identified in the contest: A. full beards B. mustaches C. trimmed beards.

The category: C. trimmed beards, is intended to include all special cut beards but not be limited to: outlined beards, scissor trimmed cuts, goatees, VanDyke cuts, Fu Manchu cuts, Abe Lincoln cuts,

If photographic or portrait evidence of ancestors who had facial hair exists, contestants are encouraged to bring the same. Period costume is also encouraged for contestants. Length of growth may also be considered. These factors may, if necessary, be used by the judges as tie-breaking considerations for contests that are close. AWARDS

The top three place winners in A. B. and C. above will be awarded a First, Second and Third Place Medallion for their class or category. The top three from each class or category, a total of nine contestants, will then compete for the title of Best of Show.

The Best of Show award will be a cash award of $50. First place winners from each category and/or denced by photos of ancestors with

> The contest will be held at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 8 at the Wayne City Auditorium. Entries should check in at 3:15 p.m. in the outer lobby of the auditorium. The initial competition will begin at 4 p.m. in the auditorium. Members of the Wayne Masonic Lodge No. 120 will be in charge of the registration process. Lodge members will facilitate the running of the contest.

> Evidence of having previously purchased a Brothers of the Brush license and pin will be requested. If an entrant has not previously purchased a permit, he can do so before the contest begins. No permits will be issued after the contest has begun.

SELECTION CRITERIA

In each of the three classes, entries should be reviewed on the following basic considerations: a. fullness of the growth of hair

b. balance and proportion of the

c. the grooming of the hair for overall effect

d. the natural color of the hair In making comparison for selection and grading of entries, the following additional criteria may be used:

a. thematic dress for the 1880 historical time period

b. ties to family heritage as evi-

c. the length of the growth JUDGING

The primary basis for judging will be the natural hair growth of each contestant. The grooming and trimming necessary to manage the hair is assumed to be part of the resulting beard and mustache. Balance and proportion will be considered. Natural color will be rewarded. Density and fullness of the growth will be evaluated.

While period dress is not a requirement for the entry to be considered, the judges have been given the latitude to use both period dress and historical connection to ancestors of a contestant with facial hair as additional criteria to make tie-breaking judgements in the contest and for Best of Show. The judges are instructed to be impartial and no judge will judge a category in which a known relative may participate. JUDGES

Six judges have been invited to participate in the contest. It will not be an easy task to make the qualitative decisions necessary to select all the winners. The Wayne leadership of the Wayne Masonic Lodge has asked the following individuals who come from a variety of communities in northeast Nebraska to serve as judges: Kent Broyhill, South Sioux City; Richard Collings, Wayne; Terry Henschke, Wakefield; Rodrick Hughes, Norfolk; Julie Osnes, Wayne and Lois Shelton,

Groundbreaking launches construction of College Center of South Sioux City

Although the weather didn't cooperate, earth was turned with gilded shovels and history was made Thursday as construction of the College Center of South Sioux City was officially launched with a mock groundbreaking ceremony.

The College Center of South Sioux City will partner Northeast Community College and Wayne State College in the same building on a 57-acre parcel of land along Highway 77 next to the Wal-Mart Supercenter. The land was donated to Northeast Community College by the South Sioux City Community Development Agency.

Northeast and Wayne State will offer additional opportunities for area students to earn associate, baccalaureate, and master's degrees without having to relocate, a combination of customized training for businesses and industry, continuing education, licensing programs, and career and technical training.

Construction on the approximately 39,600-square-foot facility should substantially be completed in December 2010. A capital campaign is in progress to secure contributions for the facility. To date, more than $11.5 million of the total $12.8 million project cost has been funded through the contributions of the two colleges, private donations, foundations, and federal funds.

Former State Senator Pat Engel is honorary chairperson for the capital campaign. Bart Gotch, president of Siouxland National Bank, co-chairs the campaign with Eric Bertness, CEO of Phillips Kiln Services, Inc.

Plans for the College Center have developed over several years. In February 2005, Northeast President Dr. Bill R. Path, Wayne State College President Dr. Richard J. Collings, and then Executive Director (now Chancellor) of the Nebraska State College System Stan Carpenter announced the history-making partnership at a special press conference.

The governing boards of Northeast Community College and Wayne State College and the City of South Sioux City, through its Community Development Association (CDA) Board of Directors, unanimously approved an Interlocal Agreement for the construction of the proposed college center in South Sioux City in the fall of 2006.

InDecember of 2006, the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education (CCPE) recommended approval of a capital construction funding request for the College Center in South Sioux City. The capital construction request was approved by the Nebraska Legislature during the 2007 session.

"Years of planning have been completed," said Dr. Path. "Now it is time to get this project rolling to fruition. We at Northeast Community College are delighted with this partnership with Wayne State College that will lead to a better educated populace in the Greater Siouxland area."

"We are well aware," Dr. Path said, "that this project took enthusiastic support of the City of South Sioux City, the South Sioux City Community Development Agency, and Dakota County Commissioners. All these entities working long and hard together have brought us to this day. We look forward to opening our doors to this great facility in late 2010 so these visionaries can come see what they have helped us create. Our heartfelt thanks to each and every one of them who have worked so very hard for us and this College Center of South Sioux City."

"The Wayne State College community is pleased that years of hard work and cooperation have led us to this day," said Dr. Richard J. Collings, president of Wayne State College. "Public and private supporters in South Sioux City, Dakota Sioux City and to improve delivery County and the Siouxland region have given their assistance to this effort by Northeast Community College and Wayne State College to make South Sioux City a 'college town."

"Chancellor Stan Carpenter and the staff at the Nebraska State College System have worked with the Nebraska Legislature, the Governor's Office, and other Nebraska government officials to help get the approvals and part of the funding for this project," Dr. Collings said. "I also want to thank Nebraska Senators Pat Engel, Bob Giese, and Mike Flood for their invaluable assistance. Special thanks also to Bart Gotch and Eric Bertness for their leadership in raising supplemental funding from local residents and businesses."

"This new facility will allow Wayne State College to bring undergraduate courses to South of our master's degree programs. Place-bound students will be able to attend college part-time, which will help provide an educated workforce for the region," said Dr. Collings.

Nebraska Governor Dave Heineman attended and extended his congratulations. "This out-ofthe-box thinking that has led to this partnership is to be commended," he said. "Students for generations will benefit from the visionary partnership of these two great institutions of higher learning."

Officials from Northeast Community College, Wayne State College, the Nebraska State College System, the City Council of South Sioux City, Dakota County Commissioners, and the CDA also joined State Senator Bob Giese and capital campaign leaders Engel. Gotch and Bertness for a few congratulatory comments at the groundbreaking.

which was the main meal of the day. There was always a choice of a couple of entrees (beef stew, chicken cutlets, fish, pasta casserole, etc.) and lots of vegetables, bread, and salad. In the afternoon we worked from one to four, and then cleaned up the shop area for the night. At 4:30, we had some free time to shower and relax before dinner at 6. Every evening, our madricha provided an educational program for us from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Some nights, she taught us classes in basic Hebrew or Israeli history; other nights, we had guest speak-

One of our guest speakers was the founder of Sar El, 83-year-old Brigadier General (ret.) Dr. Aharon Davidi, former commander of the IDF Paratrooper and Infantry Corps. Sar El began in the summer of 1982. At that time, due to the mobilization during the Lebanon war, ripening crops in the Golan were in danger because all ablebodied farmers were called up for reserve duty in the IDF. General Davidi came to the United States and spoke at synagogues all over the country. Within a few weeks, he had recruited some 650 volunteers to help with the harvest and on military bases. Everyone worked hard and the harvest was saved. Since then, well over 100,000 volunteers from more than 36 countries have served. Each year, approximately 5,000 volunteers participate in Sar El. General Davidi spoke to us about the serious threat that militant Islam poses to the values of freedom and human rights. It was a great honor to meet him.

On weekends, which in Israel are Friday and Saturday, volunteers were free to do as we wished. I traveled by bus to Tel Aviv, where I met up with Nate. Together we took a bus to the Galilee, where his kibbutz (a small, cooperative village) Kfar Hanassi, is located. Nate is considered a "lone soldier" because he does not have family in Israel, and so he has a dorm room at the kibbutz, where he stays when he is on leave from the army. At the kibbutz, I met his very gracious host family, who include him in their Friday night Sabbath meal when he is there, do his laundry for him, and support him in countless other ways. In Israel, all boys and girls are drafted into the military right after high school: boys serve for 3 years, and girls for 2. Most of these young soldiers live with their parents and come home each night from their nearby base. Combat soldiers stay on their bases, but they often get weekend passes to go home. Nate serves in a combat unit, and it is a comfort to know that he has a caring Israeli family to go home to when he has a week-tive as an IDF soldier. I also looked forward to meeting new people and broadening my horizons, as well as contributing in some small way to Israel's survival.

The experience was everything I hoped it would be. I learned a great deal, and my respect and love for Israel has deepened.

I will close with this observation: the battle against the militant Islamists, and the struggle for peace, including peaceful coexistence between Israel and the Palestinian people, cannot ultimately be won with weapons of war. Children must have schools that do not teach hatred, women must have rights, and people need access to accurate information. Cultural and religious diversity must be respected. Young men have to have a way to earn a living so they are not forced to chase after terrorist money in order to feed their families. Freedom loving people the world over must work together to achieve these goals.

He added there is a 30 year warranty on the foam. Garwood said he feels it is hard to get a smooth application and water can eventually get through the coating. Gubbels said a robot can be used to apply the substance and the spray is very cost effective. He added the high school corridor and shop need attention the most. Superintendent Lenihan discussed the high school elevator project, which is three weeks ahead of schedule. He said he is thinking of adding one or two handicap parking spots at the high school.

As for Elementary Principal Daryl Schrunk's request for ordering a different reading series, Supt. Lenihan said they will wait a year on ordering and will build the expense into the budget.

Board member Ken Jorgensen, who is on the facilities committee, discussed the boiler situation. He said the group feels bids should be opened up and that an engineer should be hired to oversee them and what should be done. Garwood stated it may be easier if half of the project was budgeted now and half next year. Jorgensen said there is a 25 percent savings by doing it now rather than to wait. Nelson agreed with Jorgensen.

Garwood made a motion to approve the second reading of the following policies: 1102: orienting new board members, 1203: annual Garwood made a motion to approve the raise in rent, Nelson seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Food Service Manager Judy Poehlman recommended a raise across the board of five cents on everything except milk. She said the raise is necessary with both food and transportation costs up. Garwood made a motion to approve the five cent raise, Jorgensen seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

The board also offered congratulations to Poehlman who was elected vice-president of the Nebraska School Nutrition Association.

Future agenda items include: negotiations, elevator progress, policies-first reading, facility issues including boiler and roof.

A recent survey conducted by ing national small business advothe Small Business Majority found that 63 percent of Nebraska small businesses say health care reform is important to getting the economy on track. And 82 percent of those Nebraska small businesses not offering health insurance say they cannot afford to, while 72 percent of those who do offer it say they are struggling to do so.

A full copy of the survey results and accompanying report can be viewed and downloaded at files. cfra.org/pdf/Nebraska_research_ report_62609.pdf

Key findings: Nebraska small business owners view access to health insurance as a significant barrier to entrepreneurship, see reform as necessary and important to getting the economy back on track, and see themselves as part of the solution, working together with the federal government, insurers and providers. Other key findings include:

The number one concern for Nebraska small business owners in health care reform is controlling costs, followed by having coverage that is guaranteed and covers everybody. Eighty-two percent of those businesses not offering health insurance say they can't afford to, while 72 percent of those who do offer it say they are struggling to do so; 80 percent of small businesses want to eliminate preexisting condition rules and 63 percent see these rules as a barrier to starting a business.

Sixty-three percent say health care reform is important to getting the economy back on track; 70 percent support the choice of a private or public health insurance plan, 51 percent say their company has a responsibility to provide health coverage for its employees.

Weekly Legislative Update Capitol View

Greetings from the Unicameral! Last week, the Education Committee held hearings on several interim studies that are among the committee's top priorities leading up to the 2010 Legislative Session. The first of these hearings was on LR 116, which seeks to examine issues related to early childhood education and kindergarten eligi-

Currently, a combination of state and federal funding is available to allow a school district or Educational Service Unit (ESU) to operate a state-run preschool program. Because of the rules attached to these federal funding sources, some students with summer birthdays are ineligible to participate in these programs if they would be eligible to start kindergarten during the upcoming school

As a result, parents who choose to wait a year before enrolling their children in kindergarten are unable to take advantage of the school's preschool program the year before their son or daughter starts kindergarten. The availability of these public preschool programs is particularly important in rural Nebraska, where there are fewer private preschools available for parents, and for disadvantaged children who would otherwise be unable to attend preschool.

During the hearing on LR 116, a number of parents, kindergarten teachers, and school superintendants throughout the state expressed concern both about the public preschool rules and the current Oct. 15 deadline for kindergarten eligibility. Over the next few months, the committee will continue to explore possible solutions to these very difficult issues that affect many young families.

For those District 17 residents who were unable to attend my first town hall meeting this week in Wayne, I am pleased to announce the details for the meeting to be held next month:

Saturday, Aug. 15: 9:30 a.m.: Cecelia's Inc. Coffee House, 103 E. 3rd Street, Ponca. Refreshments will be provided.

As always, I would encourage you to contact me if you have any questions or simply have an opinion on legislation before the Unicameral. Feel free to call my office at (402) 471-2716, send me an e-mail at bgiese@leg.ne.gov, or stop by in person any time you're in Lincoln.

Gov. Mark Sanford of South Carolina is, in fact, a lucky fellow in at least one way.

He's decidedly lucky he's not the governor of Nebraska!

Think of public reaction hereabouts if a governor, regardless of party affiliation or anything else, was found to have indulged his libido by secretly ducking out on his job, and his wife, to fly to Argentina for get-togethers with a girlfriend.

In South Carolina, the question is whether the governor will be able to stay in office.

In Nebraska, the question more likely would be whether a governor would bother coming back for his impeachment and trial, or just email his resignation to the Capitol.

State Sen. Tom White of Omaha will probably be the Democratic candidate for Congress from the 2nd District in 2010. He has formed an exploratory committee and begun seeking contributions for his campaign.

In seeking to deny Republican Rep. Lee Terry a seventh term in the House, White will forego a bid for a second term in the Unicameral.

Bruning says watch out for Mystery Shopper check scam

Attorney General Jon Bruning become a mystery shopper, don't wants to warn Nebraskans about a fraudulent check scam showing up in the state that's tied to alleged secret shopper opportunities.

Here's how the scam works:

·A consumer is asked to parshopper opportunity. The offer can come via mail or e-mail.

•The person is sent a check for training. The check appears to come from a Nebraska bank.

•The consumer is asked to cash the check and wire money back to the business.

•A new twist - The checks have a phone number on them so the bank can call and get authorization. If a bank calls the number, the person who answers the phone confirms the check, date and amount.

• The check is phony and the consumer and bank are out anywhere from $2,500 to $5,000.

The State Patrol was alerted to the scam by a Nebraska bank. Three hundred people from around the U.S. have cashed or tried to cash counterfeit checks that appear to be issued from a few area banks, according to the State Patrol. The checks did not come from Nebraska banks and are fraudulent.

"This promise of easy money is leaving some consumers with an empty bank account," said Bruning. "Remember," if an opportunity sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

Rural Nebraskans are adapting to support the household. to the economic downturn by cutting back spending on luxuries, but some also are delaying medical to the Nebraska Rural Poll.

The 14th annual University changes they've made in their lives. Surveys were mailed to about 6,400 randomly selected households in counties. Results are based on 2,852

"There's a lot of concern," said rural sociologist Randy Cantrell of the Nebraska Rural Initiative. "People are making or planning on making adaptations" in their lives to deal with the economy.

In the last year, the poll found, 11 percent of rural Nebraska's households with employed persons had losses," said Brad Lubben, public someone lose a job because of cutbacks or layoffs. Also, 51 percent of rural business owners said they'd seen income Nebraska's 84 non-metropolitan losses, and 75 percent of rural Nebraskans suffered investment

> The breadth of investment losses mark one of the most significant differences between this downtown and the Great Depression to which it has been compared, UNL researchers said.

> "It's pretty significant that virtually everybody shows investment policy specialist. "Unlike the Great rural Nebraska. We can't say we're immune to it."

Rural Nebraskans have taken action to deal with the downturn, according to the poll. Sixty-nine percent said they've cut back on entertainment and dining out. Fifty-four percent reported delaying a major purchase, and just under 50 percent said they'd cancelled or delayed vacation plans.

Some have even taken up bartering -- trading work, services or materials with other persons rather than exchanging money. Thirty-four percent of respondents said they'd used bartering in the last year.

However, the Rural Poll found some lower-income Nebraskans have taken more desperate steps to make ends meet.

Forty-five percent of respondents with household incomes under $40,000 reported delaying medical services to save money. Twentyseven percent of respondents with income under $20,000 said they'd used credit cards to pay routine

"That is a real red flag," said Bruce Johnson, an agricultural economist. "You can only do that so long and you dig yourself into a deeper hole."

Rural Nebraskans continue to worry about the impact of the recession. Thirty-six percent worry about being unable to pay their bills; 44 percent worry they'll have to postpone retirement; 46 percent worry about meeting their or their children's educational expenses; 47 percent worry about their home's value decreasing; and 76 percent worry about further declines in the value of their stocks and retirement investments.

Rural Nebraskans see both advantages and disadvantages to living in smaller communities and rural areas when economic times are tough. On the one hand, 71 percent said neighbors help each other; on the other hand, 71 percent also agree that there are fewer jobs

The Rural Poll is the largest annual poll of rural Nebraskans' perceptions on quality of life and policy issues. This year's response rate was about 40 percent. The margin of error is plus or minus 3 percent.

The entire report is available at http://cari.unl.edu/ruralpoll/ report09.shtml. The university's Center for Applied Rural Innovation conducts the poll in cooperation with the Rural Initiative with funding from UNL Extension and the Agricultural Research Division in the Institute of Agriculture and

Weeks of rehearsal finally over

I took two naps today! The first one was very short, but the second, at 2, was for an hour. I could not stay awake.

The sleepiness had to do with getting up at 5 a.m. I haven't seen the sunrise for a very long time; probably not since the days of getting up early to prepare breakfast at the B and B. But, jeepers, I used to get by on six hours of sleep routinely; I think retirement has made me lazy.

The Lincoln Lutheran Choir finally presented at the Nebraska Music Educator's conference at Doane this morning. I say "finally" because we have been working on six numbers for eight weeks, and there were a lot of extra practices. I think Josh, our director, was nervous because we were performing for his peers, and he wanted us to be perfect, which, of course, we weren't.

After last summer and the Latin music, I don't know for sure how I got myself into this. I just thought it sounded fun, so I auditioned, thinking that if I didn't make it, it would give me more spare time. Spare time, what is that?

Well, he picked about thirty of us, including some "ringers" from his Wesleyan choir, and put us to

At the commissioner's request, District 7 Chief Probation Officer Kathryn Liebers and District 17 Senator Bob Giese were present to discuss cost recovery for satellite probation offices. Liebers gave background information on the changes that have taken place in the district the last few years. She noted that probation programs are busier than ever as the trend is for community based services rather than incarceration. The increase in services required additional office space. which is why Madison County made the decision to enter into a lease/purchase for a new building. Wurdeman expressed concerns that Wayne County not only pays toward the main office, but also provides a satellite office. Liebers and Giese were asked if legislation could be proposed that would enable counties with satellite offices to recover their costs for providing space. Senator Giese agreed to look in to the guestion.

Finn reported that Deann Haeffner, assistant deputy at the state auditor's office, had recommended closing all non-essential funds and including the budgets as separate functions within General Fund. THEREFORE, the Reappraisal Fund, Unemployment Fund, County Relief Fund, Institutions and money raised through the use of SBA guarantees to make equity and mezzanine capital investments in small businesses. There are approximately 338 SBICs with $17.4 billion in capital under management.

The changes made as part of the Recovery Act are:

• The Recovery Act makes SBICs eligible for greater SBA guaranteed funding and requires SBICs to invest 25 percent of their investment dollars into "smaller" businesses. Also, the amount of funding an SBIC may invest in a single small business is set at 10 percent of an SBIC's total capital rather than the previous limit of 20 percent of an SBIC's private capital only. This translates to an effective 50 percent increase in funding available to a single business by an

• Maximum SBA funding levels to SBICs will increase up to three times the private capital raised by the SBIC, up to a maximum of $150 million for single SBICs, or up to $225 million for multiple SBICs that are under common control. The cap for all licensees was set at $137.1 million before the Recovery

·These limits are even higher for SBICs that are licensed after Oct. 1, 2009, that certify that at least 50 percent of their investments will be made in small businesses located in low-income areas, up to $175 million for single licensees and up to $250 million for jointly controlled multiple licensees.

· Changes made to the SBIC program under the Recovery Act are permanent. Industry associations have commended SBA for these changes and SBA continues to licensing and actively participate in the program.

The SBIC program was created to stimulate the growth of America's small businesses by supplementing the long-term debt and privateequity capital available to them.

"I enjoy my vision so much with what I get to see every day out here in western Nebraska - hawks, Mac Brush was diagnosed with eagles, geese, stars and sunsets - the fact that my son can't is very hard on me."

> It is the dream of Eyal Margalit. M.D., Ph.D., associate professor and director of the retina service at UNMC for Brush be able to share the sights of greater Nebraska with his son again. Though diseases like retinitis pigmentosa damage the eyes' photo receptors - the cells responsible for vision - other cells in the retina stay intact, Dr. Margalit

Dr. Margalit's device would stimulate the intact cells with 3,200 electrodes, far more than any device currently being developed. His device also will be wireless, which means surgery to attach it would be less invasive. "With this device, there's no cable penetrating the eye, which means less chance of infection and damage to the very delicate retina," Dr.

Margalit said. With funds from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and the Nebraska Research Initiative, Dr. Margalit also plans to incorporate an "encoder" in his device that would make it an "intelligent" implant. With the help of a feedback mechanism and the behavioral response of the patient, such an implant would automatically change the amount of stimulation of the retinal cells. It will be three to five years before Dr. Margalit's device is tested in clinical trials. Still, for the Brush family, which has no other existing options available, there's reason to be optimistic. There are the obvious potential physical implications, but such an invention would have an emotional impact as well.

"It would help restore vision and offer hope," Bill Brush said.
