Racing down the track

Nearly 100 hook-ups took place during the 23rd annual "Thunder in the Dirt," Outlaw Pulling event in Carroll on July 18. Above Redline, owned by Richard Clark of Panora, Iowa, earned fifth place honors in the Modified Four-Wheel Drive Truck category of the pull.

Volunteers needed to assist with Q-125 activities met in a special meeting Tuesday evening at the Coffee Shoppe to discuss plans for the upcoming Celebration Weekend Aug. 7-9.

The meeting opened with a discussion of advertising for the event and the group discovered several changes in the advertising that had to be made to reflect greater

Posters were made and will be distributed in the next few days in addition to more brochures for the weekend. If any organization wishes brochures, they can pick them up at Swans or call Tony Kochenash at the phone number listed in the last paragraph of this article.

Stacy Craft then gave a report on the "Wayne Through the Ages" parade that will be held Saturday evening at 6;30 p.m. She reported that a permit was obtained and that she received the Wayne City Councils permission for the parade and route earlier in the evening at the city council meeting.

The parade will proceed south on Main Street from the college to Carharts parking

The Wayne Community Q-125 Committee lot. There is no entry fee and there will be no prizes. All local businesses and organizations are encouraged to enter and invitations were mailed earlier in the week. Entries are encouraged to tie their entry. into the historical perspective of the Q-125 celebration.

> Local restaurants are encouraged to remain open after the parade and to promote activities in their places of business so that the public can make informed choices of where to spend their time after the parade if not participating in other Q-125 Celebration activities after the parade.

> The next topic of discussion was the Celebration Dinner at noon on Sunday. The menu was discussed and approved and it was decided to hold the price of the buffet tickets to $10. Ticket buyers will have a choice of two seatings and also two meats, chicken or steak. Volunteers will be needed to assist customers with their trays if needed and to clean tables. Some contacts will be made with scout troops > and 4-H groups to help with this task. The final topic of discussion was the need for volunteers to man the Chamber Booth at the county fair and to man the Celebration Weekend booth during the Celebration Weekend. Interested people can contact Tony Kochenash at the Q-125 website or phone him at Swans or his home

The group will meet again next Tuesday.

NDA and A-FAN representatives discuss developing livestock industry in Wayne County

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

Steve Martin of the Department of Agriculture and Roger Berry of A-FAN (Alliance for the Future of Agriculture in Nebraska) were at the Wayne County Courthouse July 15 to discuss developing the livestock industry in Wayne County. The men discussed what Wayne County's goals are in terms of developing the livestock industry and what the NDA and A-FAN can do to help. Wayne County Commissioners and others were on hand to hear the presentations.

Martin and Berry stressed they were not there to tell the officials what they should do but to offer information and that what is done has to be a local effort. It was added their job is to promote Nebraska agriculture in Nebraska by encouraging expansion, growth, new participants and by helping to build bridges between buyers and sellers.

Martin said there are many grants available for promoting the agricultural economy and if ag succeeds, the state succeeds. Wayne County's role should be advocacy for the livestock industry and to stick up for ag and animal ag as well as to build a grassroots network of local supporters. He asked what Wayne County is doing to attract growth? While the economy may be in a down trend, animal ag like everything else has good and bad cycles and counties need to be ready.

Berry discussed transferring livestock production into economic vitality for rural Nebraska. He noted A-FAN has been around for about three years and that they are a private, non-profit organization formed by leading agricultural membership groups in Nebraska (Nebraska Cattlemen, Nebraska Corn Growers Association, Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, Nebraska Pork Producers Association, Nebraska Poultry Industries, and Nebraska Soybean Association).

Berry noted that A-FAN doesn't lobby but works with farmers by raising awareness so they can make informed decisions. He added if farmers are considering starting or expanding livestock operations, they should contact A-FAN for sound advice at no charge. Through helping bring and keep livestock production in the area, there is increased tax revenue, jobs are created, there is greater economic vitality and existing businesses are retained.

Nebraska is an agriculture state. Cash receipts from farm marketing contribute more than $10 billion to Nebraska's economy each year. One in three jobs in Nebraska are in production ag or are a spin off from ag. Ag is the number one economic engine for Nebraska with manufacturing second and tourism third.

Nebraska is also a livestock state with the livestock sector responsible for about $6.1 billion (60 percent) of the economic impact of agriculture. The majority of Nebraska corn is fed to livestock.

The seven top livestock producing counties in Nebraska are: Cuming (#1), 2. Phelps, 3. Kearney, 4. Wheeler, 5. Polk, 6. Colfax and 7. Dawson. According to a study by NPPD (Nebraska Public Power District), from 1996 to 2005, residents in those top seven counties had a 9.7 percent higher average annual per capita personal income than their counterparts in other rural counties. At the top of the list is Cuming County with an average annual per capita income that is 25.4 percent higher. Total employment (direct and secondary) associated with animal agriculture is estimated to be more than 76,000 jobs, mostly in rural communities and rural

According to the 2007 Census of Agriculture, the Wayne County profile is: number of farms: 573; land in farms: 276,578 acres; average size of farm: 483 acres; market value of production: $177,911,00 (crop sales: $88,237,00 (50 percent), livestock sales: $89,675,00 (50 percent), average per farm: $310,491. Government payments: $3,849,00 (average per farm: $8,572).

The following numbers for Wayne County were in the 2002 Census of Agriculture: number of farms: 623, land in farms: 281,408 acres, average size of farm: 452 acres, market value of production: $116,515,00, average per farm: $187,022. Government payments: $4,091,000 (average per farm: $9,277). Overall, it shows a percentage change in the number of farms

Wayne County Fair set to get underway

After months of planning and preparation by members of the Wayne County Agricultural Society, numerous volunteers and hundreds of youth involved in 4-H programs, the 87th annual Wayne County Fair will begin on Wednesday, July 29. The fair continues through Sunday, Aug. 2.

Wednesday is primarily Entry Day, with exhibits of all types being entered and Thursday's events kick-off with the 4-H Horse Show and continue with bucket calf, dairy, goat and sheep shows scheduled throughout the day.

The Loghoggers Chainsaw Artist will be on the grounds all four days with sculptures being auctioned off on Sunday, Aug. 2 at 5:30 p.m.

Thursday's grandstand event will be a Sanctioned Tractor Pull with the Nebraska Bush Pullers at 7:30 p.m.

After a day of judging swine and market beef, Friday's activities will include the annual barbecue. Grandstand entertainment will be provided by Steve Hall and Shot Highlighting Saturday's entertainment will be the Leafy Spurge Band at 7:30 p.m. and Sawyer Brown at 8:30.

The final day of this year's fair, Sunday, Aug. 2 will include the traditional Demolition Derby at 6 p.m.

A complete list of events and activities was included in a flyer in the July 20 edition of the Morning Shopper.

Couple chooses 'road less traveled'

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

Lou Ann and Dave Gay spent part of the day last Wednesday visiting in Wayne. They talked to people at the bank, Chamber of Commerce and library, looking for information about the community.

The couple are not average tourists as they are traveling from Cascade, Mont. to Kansas City on a tandem bicycle.

The couple left their home on June 26 and hope to arrive in Kansas City by July 24 to visit friends and relatives. They average 60 miles each day and generally travel from early morning until mid day.

Lou Ann, a K-6 principal and Dave, who works in the technology department at the school, said they are 'planning as the go' during this trip and trying to find routes that are less traveled.

"We ride until we get tired and then we rest before we continue. When we get to a community, we sometimes camp, sometimes stay at schools or churches and sometimes stay at motels," Dave said.

Their trip has taken them through South Dakota and when they left Wayne, they were planning to head south toward Lincoln and eventually to Kansas City. From there, they were unsure of how they would get back to their Montana home.

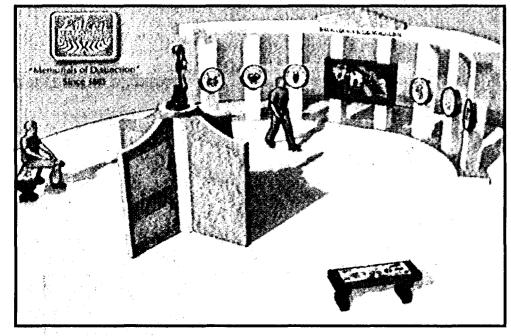

The couple has done bike tours prior to this adventure. They have at least seven trips to their credit, including trips to Canada and New Zealand. However, they have not done a bike tour in approximately

"Traveling this way allows us to get the flavor of the communities we go through,' Lou Ann said.

Dave and Lou Ann Gay, adorned with sunscreen to protect their faces, made a stop in Wayne last week.

Plans for new Wayne County Veterans Memorial are underway

County Veterans Memorial on the Wayne County Courthouse grounds. The base for the Memorial is done and the plan is to have the Memorial completed during 2009.

The Memorial is for ALL Wayne County veterans from every branch of the military, regardless of conflict. A gold star beside their name will commemorate those who made the ultimate sacrifice during their time of service to their country. All names of Veterans brought forward will be on the Memorial.

A committee from the various Wayne County Veteran's posts has been involved with this project in some fashion since 2003. It has been a formidable task to represent all of the Veterans in a dignified and proper manner but the committee feels this has been accomplished by untold

Plans are underway for a new Wayne hours of investigation and discussion.

All projects such as this come with a price and the committee is asking support from all Wayne County citizens and Veterans. The estimated cost is $185,000. They are taking any donation towards the project and have a three year (2009, 2010, 2011) pledge process to fund this project. Donations would be a deductible charitable contribution on the contributor's State and Federal income tax forms if the contributor itemizes deductions.

Donations can be sent in care of Wayne County Veterans Memorial, P.O. Box 130, Wayne, NE. 68787 and made payable to the Wayne County Veterans Memorial Project.

Anyone wishing more information on the project can contact: Layne Beza: 369-0655. Dan Jaeger: 286-4852, Ken Hall: 369-2405 or Tom Hansen: 833-5417.

Trevor Wright, a 2001 graduate Stay tuned for self-righteous chisof Wayne High School and son of eled thigh photos. Gary and Peggy Wright, recently How do you know where you're embarked on an ambitious, twoyear bike tour of South America.

This is the second in a series of articles about why Trevor is traveling and what he hopes to gain from his travels.

Why travel South America?

More so than any other world region Latin America best matches my desire for adventure and personal growth. Marked constrasts in landscapes, language, people, cultures, socio-economic structures, and belief systems will constantly challenge me physically and mentally. Everyday will have the potential to amaze. Through my photos and writings I hope to share that sense of amazement with you. On a personal rier? growth level, I'm most interested in learning from South Americans who have vastly different perspectives or backgrounds than myself.

Based on research and other bike Trinidad, Venezuela, Colombia, Chile, and Brazil are relatively expensive while Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia, Uruguay, and Argentina cost less. I will note every purchase bers decided to elect five trustees, in a small notebook, then post and official action was taken to my weekly total expenses on this build a new church measuring 30 by blog along with distance traveled, 46 feet with an addition on the back average miles per day, etcetera. It's not a race indeed. Did you train for this trip?

Yes and no. In Austin, Texas I rode my bike to and from work an average of 35 miles a week. However, there is quite a difference between 35 miles and 270 miles—the latter my most likely per week itinerary in South America. Am I worried about not being in shape? Not really. My body will adapt quickly; I'm mentally prepared. I've heard though the first three days of any bike tour are brutal on leg muscles.

The truth is I still don't know exactly where I'm going-except in a general southernly direction down the continent. Some would call this poor planning. Flexibility, my flexible friend, begs to differ. Besides a fairly structured safe passage through the Colombian countryside, I'll mostly rely on local word-of-mouth information for route planning. There is no better resource than the people who intimately know the area. Backroads with beautiful scenery and wide shoulders will take priority. Main highways with heavy traffic will be avoided for safety reasons.

What about the language bar-

After several years studying and living in Spanish-speaking countries I feel comfortable with the language. Some friends have called me the most non-Latino Latino they know, which I silently let ride, because it's an equally ridiculous title to defend or deny. When I arrive to Portuguese-speaking Brazil I plan to take language classes, find an apartment with Brazilian roommates, and fully immerse myself in the culture. Since Portuguese and Spanish are 89% the same I'm confident I'll learn quickly. Don't be put off by traveling just because you don't speak the host country's language. You'll learn to communicate your basic travel needs quickly. Besides, English is universal. It's highly likely someone else will understand you. If the mere mention of diptongos and subordinate I will backpack Trinidad and conjunctions excites you, the following article regarding Spanish-Portuguese similarities may be of interest: href="http://en.wikipedia.

It took two votes but the city of Wayne will consider two different locations for the new waste water treatment facility.

During Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council, Roger Pratzman with JEO Consulting Group spoke of the benefits of having the second option for the location of the facility. Pratzman noted that moving the facility to the south of the present location. closer to Logan Creek, would be more costly, but would free up some land for future development.

Cost of having a second set of plans is estimated at $242.000.

Several members of the audience spoke in favor of looking at the second option. Among them was Lou Benscoter, who said "there is the potential for lots of development in this area." Wes Blecke, with the Wayne Area Economic Development told the council "it is worth the investment to determine the potential of the area."

Mayor Lois Shelton told the council that if the area that is currently used for the city's lagoon is developed, it could be put back on the tax roles.

Following debate, Council member Verdel Lutt made a motion to go with Option A (building at the existing facility) only. However, the vote resulted in a 3-3 tie with Council members Kaki Ley, Ken Chamberlain and Jon Haase voting against the motion. Mayor Shelton broke the tie by also voting no.

then made a motion to look at both options. The vote on this motion was 4-2 with Council members Verdel Lutt and Doug Sturm voting against this motion. Mayor Shelton voted for the measuring, providing the majority (five votes) needed to move forward.

The council also listened to a presentation from Ron Asche, CEO of Nebraska Public Power District. Asche spoke at considerable length about current federal legislation entitled "Cap and Trade". involving the reduction of CO2 emissionsby 2020.

Asche said that at the present time, 60 percent of energy produced in the state of Nebraska comes from fossil fuel. He noted that if the legislation passes, NPPD would have to reduce the amount of energy produced by fossil fuels or pay a penalty for the amount of CO2 put into the air,

Other items of interest presented by Asche included wind generation, electric rates, nuclear power plants and conservation efforts.

The council gave its approval for the closing off of streets to parked cars in the area of Hank Overin Field during the American Legion State Baseball tournament and closing of portions of Walnut Street near Wayne State College for the Q-125 Parade on Saturday, Aug. 8.

Following a public hearing, the council approved the final plat for the Benscoter Addition. Louis Benscoter, who with his wife, Council member Chamberlain Javanah, are the applicants for the plat, told the council that this is one of final steps before development can begin.

No one from the public spoke during a public hearing in regard to the creation of Public Utility Water Service District No. 2009-01 and no written objections were filed. Resolution 2009-62, approving the plans and directing the advertisment for bids, received unanimous approval.

Three ordinances received approval at the meeting, including one dealing with design standards for parking lots, one dealing with concealed weapons and one regarding the vacating of an alley between Windom and Walnut Street lying between 12th and 14th Street.

Wayne State College requested the postponement of the reading of an ordinance that would have vacated East 12th Street in the same area.

A number of local citizens were appointed to the city's Green Team. They include Jay Collier, Buffany DeBoer, Nancy Jo Powers, Lou Benscoter, Jay Snell, Edith Zahniser, Joan Sudmann, Tracy Bruckner, Lowell Johnson, Bill Jammer, Marilyn Collings, Scott Brummond, Dave Shelton, Kathy Mohlfeld, Joel Hansen, Robert Zahniser, Bonnie Anderson, Brian Bruckner and Lois Shelton.

Draft Horse Wagon Tours to be part of Q-125 celebration weekend, Aug. 7-9

By Lynn Sievers

Draft Horse Wagon Tours of historic Wayne will be part of the big Q-125 weekend, Friday, Aug. 7 through Sunday, Aug. 9. The Draft Horse Wagon Tours are sponsored by RIOT Youth Ministry. Loading on Aug. 8 and 9 will be at 6th & Logan Streets.

Mark and Lauri Zink of the Wayne Veterinary Clinic are the owners of the draft horses. Lauri has a long history of draft horses in her life. Her grandpa, Gerald Lewis, who lived near Lincoln, had Clydesdale horses that he took across the country to perform at fairs and other gatherings. Lewis owned many Clydesdales, loved parades and Lauri was his right hand man.

Lauri's love of horses started early when her grandpa gave her a pony when she was one and a half years old. And he was literally in her grandpa's living room beside the tree!

"At one time, Gramps had 45 two semis to haul everything. In 1976, we showed in North Platte and Greeley, Colorado, next to the Budweiser Clydesdales."

She added that they went to many events including Nebraskaland Days and the National Bicentennial Rodeo in Greeley.

"We were at Ak-Sar-Ben in the '80s and people used to call grandpa's team Nebraska's 8 horse hitch," Lauri said. "My sister and I helped Gramps. I helped him from when I was 12 years old until I was 22 and started vet school and then some after that."

Mark and Lauri Zink came to Wayne in 2001 when they bought the Vet Clinic. Through the years, they have had their team of two draft horses and wagon in some of the Chicken Show parades in Wayne.

Besides Lauri's love of horses, she also loves working with young people and helps with the local non-denominational youth group, RIOT, which meets at First Baptist Church in Wayne, 400 Main Street, Clydesdales," Lauri said. "People on Monday nights at 7 p.m.. There hired him for parades and we will be a donation for the upcomwent to parades all over. It took ing draft horse wagon tours which

The museum has a long history in Wayne. Dr. W.C. Wightman and photographs of early Wayne admitted free. built the house in 1900 for about $13,000. It took two years to build and is of the Neo-Colonial style of architecture. The Wightman family lived there until they moved to California in 1912. The house was then sold to a local banker, Rollie W. Ley, for about $6,000. The Ley family continued to own the house until 1976 when Ley's heirs donated it to the Wayne County Historical Society for use as a museum.

Features of this gracious home include a reception hall of oak paneling, a built-in bookcase with curved glass doors, a courting corner, stained glass and beveled glass windows, a built-in breakfront, four coal-burning fireplaces, fretwork and intricate wood carvings above each door and window on the first floor. County Commissioners approve replats of two subdivisions

Of the Herald

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday. Lowell Johnson, Wayne city administrator, was present with replats of Tompkins Subdivision and Kardell Subdivision. He noted the replats were necessary because the city decided to move and align the road better with two city lots there and they also correct a surveyor error. Commissioner Kelvin Wurdeman made a motion to approve the replats, Commissioner Dean Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Steve Muir of First National Agency discussed renewal of the county's health insurance. It was noted the policy increased around $60,000 more per year. Muir noted there were few options and advised the board to stay with the present plan. He added that the increase was originally 14.5 percent but he was able to get it reduced to nine percent.

LeRoy Janssen, Wayne County Sheriff, asked the commissioners if they were planning to attend a emergency management exercise drill at the Lifelong Learning Center, Aug. 6 at 6:30 p.m. He also inquired about the interview review process. He noted Aug. 7 is the deadline for applications.

The commissioners reviewed a special liquor permit request from the Wayne County Jaycees. The organization will have mud volleyball in the horse arena area at the Wayne County Fair, Sunday, Aug. 9. Wurdeman made a motion to approve the Jaycees liquor license request, Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

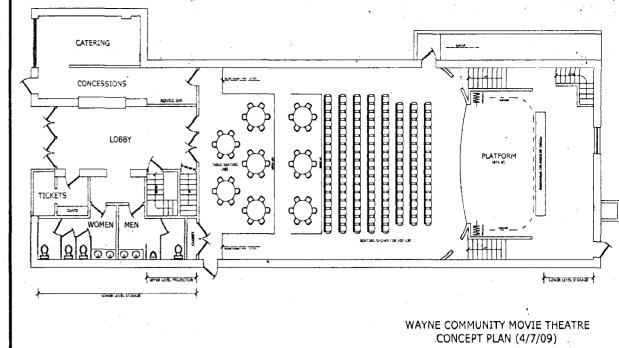

Wurdeman made a motion to cancel county general check 09070021 because it was a duplicate. Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Elizabeth Carlson, Wayne County highway superintendent, discussed solicitation of informal quotes for material to repair bridge #C00901135, four miles west and 2.3 miles north of Carroll, on the line between Sections 13 and 14, T. 27 N. R. 1 E. of the 6th P.M. on 563rd Avenue, Mile 861. She noted there were several stringers that were bad and that Burbach requested a new deck. Burbach made a motion to solicit for informal quotes for stringers and planks for the project, Wurdeman seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Carlson also discussed solicitation of sealed bids for culverts for C-90 (543), one mile west and 5.8 miles south of Wayne, on the line between Sections 11 and 12, T. 25 N., R. 3. E. of the 6th P.M. on 575th Avenue, Mile 850. Wurdeman made a motion to solicit for sealed bids for the project, Burbach seconded the motion which passed unani-

The Wayne County Board of Equalization was held. A motor vehicle exemption was granted to Grace Lutheran Church. Property tax protest hearings were held in the afternoon. Nine protests were filed with three property owners present and one protest given over the phone. The commissioners noted they would travel to view the property and would make their decision after that.

The next meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioner will be on Tuesday, Aug. 4.

In order to become the theater of choice for the Wayne community, plans are in the works to start raising funds to remodel the existing building and be able to offer one large screen, flexible seating, high quality digital and sound, kitchen facilities, and professional PA and projection equipment.

While grants, funds and donations will be used initially for capital to open the new theater, the goal of the group is that the operation will be self-sustaining by the second year of operation.

The theater is not intended to be supported by the city of Wayne or any taxpayers' dollars, but community support and volunteers will be vital to the success of the project.

The site will also be available for rental for private parties, social gatherings, dinner theaters and other events, with the rental fees helping to off-set some of the operational costs.

The group is led by a steering committee consisting of Jeff Morlok, Reggie Yates, Todd Young, and Stephanie Liska. Others in the community have already volunteered to be involved in the design and fundraising for Project Majestic and more volunteers will be needed.

In the future a part-time coordinator will be hired to manage the facility. These are all questions that are helpful to answer now, before you need to make what could be difficult decisions to protect you and your family's healt and wellbeing.

Fortunately the H1N1 has not proven as deadly as was first feared. We know that could change if the virus ever mutates (changes) as viruses often do. Once the regular flu season gets here in the fall with a "seasonal flu virus", the presence of two flu viruses increase the chances that they might change. What kind of a change that might be is impossible to predict at this point. It is possible it could become deadly like the 1918 Spanish flu or it could remain as mild as it is right now; there is no way to predict the future. What we do know is that human response is always most successful if you plan for a worsecase-scenario.

In softball, Rauner was a four-July 29th at Bowlin Field in Lincoln year starter and helped Wayne to a 24-6 record last fall and a berth in the Class C State Tournament while on the basketball court she also earned First Team All-State honors in Class C-1 after averaging 19.3 points per game and helping Wayne to a 14-9 record.

Rauner will be attending Doane College in Crete this fall and play basketball for the Tigers.

The game started on Monday but was halted in the bottom of the fifth inning due to rain with Aurora holding a 14-7 lead.

When the game resumed Tuesday evening, Wayne came out on fire and scored six more runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to pull within one run at 14-13. Big hits in the inning included run-scoring singles by Keegan Dorcey, Gage Rethwisch, Taylor Carroll and Alex Onnen.

However, Aurora responded with four runs in the top of the sixth inning to push the advantage back to five runs at 18-13. Both teams scored one run in the seventh inning to make the final score 19-14.

Wayne finished the game with 14 hits as nine different players had at least one hit. Taylor Carroll had three singles and scored two runs. Frank Bernal accounted for a triple and double and also scored two runs. Gage Rethwisch had a double and single followed by Miles Anderson with two singles. Alex Onnen, Keegan Dorcey, Tony Sinniger, Trevor Beza and Joev Lenihan each chipped in with one single. Carroll, Dorcey, Sinniger and Rethwisch were each credited two runs batted in.

Carroll was one of five Wayne pitchers used in the game and was tagged with the loss. Trent Beza, Dorcey, Sinniger and Lenihan also saw time on the mound for the Wayne Juniors.

After topping Pierce last Tuesday 18-10 in the opening round of the tournament, Wayne was sent to the elimination bracket last Friday (July 17) with a 12-1 setback to Aurora. Alex Onnen's RBI double scored Taylor Carroll with the team's only run in the fourth inning. Carroll, Miles Anderson and Keegan Dorcey each added singles for Wayne in the contest.

Gage Rethwisch suffered the pitching loss, allowing six hits and six earned runs in three and onethird innings pitched with one strikeout and two walks. Carroll worked the final two-thirds of an inning, allowing one earned run on one hit with one strikeout.

Wayne then won a pair of exciting games in the elimination bracket to stay alive until suffering their season ending loss to Aurora.

The first elimination bracket win was 12-10 over Valentine on Saturday. Wayne trailed early in the game 4-0, but responded with seven runs in the first two innings to take the lead for good at 7-4. Both teams scored two runs in the fourth and one in the fifth to make the score 10-7. Wayne then plated two runs in the sixth for a 12-7 advantage with Valentine making things interesting in the seventh with three runs before Wayne got the final out to hang on for the 12-10 win.

Wayne had just six hits in the game, but used eight walks and 11 stolen bases to advance runners into scoring position followed by key hits to plate 12 runs.

Alex Onnen and Frank Bernal each had a double and single to lead Wayne at the plate. Onnen had four RBI's and scored twice while Bernal had two RBI's and two runs scored. Miles Anderson had a single with two walks, four stolen bases and three runs scored along with two runs batted in while Joey Lenihan rounded out the offense with a double. Carroll also scored two runs in the win.

Dorcey earned the pitching win in relief of starter Alex Onnen. He worked three innings and allowed just one earned run on three hits with two strikeouts. Onnen pitched the first three innings, allowing four hits and two earned runs with four walks and one strikeout. Tony Sinniger pitched the final inning, yielding three earned runs on one hit with one strikeout and three ketball coach Paul Combs has announced the hiring of two new assistant coaches for the 2009-10 season. Tim Ryerson will join the Wildcat men's basketball program as the assistant coach while Paige Paulsen will serve as graduate assistant coach under Combs.

"Wayne State College men's basketball became much better today with the solid additions of Tim Ryerson and Paige Paulsen," commented Coach Combs.

Ryerson comes to Wayne State College after serving the last four seasons as an assistant at Methodist University in Fayetteville, North Carolina. He was credited with helping turnaround a program that went from 10-17 in his first season at the school in 2005-06 to a 16-10 mark in 2007-08 and the USA South Conference championship. Ryerson also served as the head men's and women's cross country coach at Methodist University. Before that, Ryerson coached for two seasons at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas where he was instrumental in another rebuilding process. He helped Hardin-Simmons go from 2-22 in 2001-02 to a 19-8 record in 2004-05, resulting in the ASC West Conference title. Ryerson was born and raised in the state of Wisconsin.

"We are extremely excited and feel very fortunate to have Tim Ryerson join the Wayne State men's basketball program," said Combs. "Coach Ryerson has had great success in his young coaching career and is a rising star in our profession. He is extremely thorough and is a top notch recruiter."

Paulsen is a native of Custer, S.D. that brings a wealth of basketball experience to the Wildcat program. He starred collegiately at Division I Wisconsin-Milwaukee from 2005-2008 where Paulsen was a twoyear captain and starter, leading the team in scoring and rebounding in his senior season to earn Second Team All-Horizon League honors. As a junior, he led Wisconsin-Milwaukee in rebounding and was named to the Horizon League All-Newcomer Team. Following his collegiate career, Paulsen played professionally one season in Spain in 2008. Paulsen was a standout high school player at Custer, South Dakota where he was named South Dakota's Mr. Basketball in 2003 to go with Gatorade and South Dakota Coaches Association Player of the Year honors after scoring 1,790 points during his high school career. He was a three-time All-State performer and a four-time All-Black Hills Conference selection at Custer High School.

"Paige Paulsen is an excellent addition to our coaching staff," remarked Combs. "Paige's knowledge and background with Wayne State and the NSIC will allow him to hit the ground running. He grew up around the game as his father Fred is a coaching legend and well-respected college coach."

Foote named All-American Scholar

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Cory Foote of Wayne has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor or other qualified sponsor are accepted.

Cory, who attends Wayne High, was nominated for this honor by Brad Weber. Cory will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, students recognized as for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George States Achievement Academy."

Laurel-Concord students attend FCCLA convention in Nashville

More than 5,300 nationwide members, advisers, alumni, and guests of FCCLA; Family, Career and Community Leaders of America, gathered in Nashville, Tenn. July 12-16 for the 2009 National Leadership Conference.

Brianne Hoesing, Sherman and Lexi White, along with their FCCLA Adviser Carol Erwin, from the Laurel-Concord FCCLA Chapter were among them.

This year's theme for the annual national meeting was "Beyond the Label," and throughout the fiveday convention, participants examined and discussed several critical issues, including family, school and community violence prevention, physical as well as financial fitness, future career exploration and countless community service projects. A number of relevant youth issues, such as the changing roles of men and women in the home and workplace, traffic safety, and cancer awareness were also explored at the meeting through presentations, workshops, and youth sessions.

Other meeting highlights included: STAR Events (Students Taking Action with Recognition) which are competitive events that build proficiency and achievement in leadership and job-related skills.

Brianne Hoesing and Lexi White, who are going to be sophomores this next school year, and are the daughters of Dan and Jill Hoesing and Dale and Kelly White, respectively, received Gold medals in the Applied Technology, Jr., one of 22 national STAR Events available to FCCLA students. Their project was a Power Point presentation called "Go Green!" about recycling and reducing the amount of waste produced. Their medals were presented at a recognition session honoring all participants at the Gaylord Opryland Convention Center on July 16. Nearly 3,000 students advanced from the local, regional, and state level of STAR Events to the national meeting.

Sand Creek Post & Beam welcomes new General Manager

Sand Creek Post & Beam of Wayne has announced the appointment of Bud Reynolds of Jefferson, S.D. as General Manager.

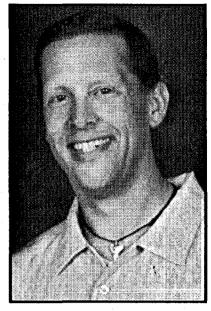

Bud has over 20 years of solid and hands-on strategic, business, marketing, sales and project management experience. His experience is extensive and diverse, from new business start up to the successful turn-around of established operations. Reynolds is a proficient all-around management practitioner with a highly applicable background, exceptional leadership, communication, presentation, and team-building skills.

"We are thrilled to welcome Bud on board as our new General Manager. With his wealth of experience and firm hand, we are confident Bud will do a terrific job guiding us on our quest for continued improvement and growth. His infectious enthusiasm has all of us excited and looking forward to a bright future for all of us, and most importantly. Sand Creek" says Len Dickinson and Jule Goeller, co-owners of Sand Creek Post & Beam.

Reynolds was employed at Gateway Inc., a Fortune 500 company for 16 years at a variety of managerial positions including Director of Small and Medium Business Sales Division, Marketing Manager, and Manager for the Sales Training Division. He also has a background in photography and video produc-

Reynolds has served on the Board of Directors for Big Brothers Big Sister of Sioux City, Gateway Foundation and The South Dakota Junior Chamber of Commerce. He currently serves on the board for the Wynstone Development. In his younger days, he was recognized as one of the "Ten Outstanding Young South Dakotans" presented by John Thune on behalf of the Jaycees, and placed as a finalist at the "US Jaycees Speak Up" competition in Washington DC. Bud and his family were also recognized as a "South Dakota Family of the Year" presented by Jim Abbott former USD President. Reynolds finely honed strategic sense will provide value-added and innovative solutions for Sand ability to strategize expansion into important emerging markets. With his solid marketing and sales background and the savvy to comprehend, implement, and troubleshoot marketing and sales operations while achieving business growth, Bud is a native of Sioux City. graduated from East High School, and has spent the majority of his life in the area. He is married and has seven children. Bud's wife, Christi, is employed at GovConnection as an Education and Government Executive Account Manager.

When asked how he felt about coming on board with such a young company, Bud had this to say: "After meeting with Len it was love at first site. I came in for the open house and met with several of the team members. I realized in a very short period of time that an environment had been created similar to my old Gateway days, one of fun, passion and productivity. People come to work because they wanted to not because they had to. I love the ability to speak honestly with the owners and others on the team and have the latitude to move inside the organization assisting where I can. I knew from day one this company had a bright future and was anxious to be a part of it. Len said "its tough to find someone with your experience in our area" and my response was "its tough to find someone looking for someone with my experience in this area", at that point I knew we were a perfect fit and couldn't wait to get started. The last five weeks have been fun Creek, combined with his proven and the people are great. I can't tell you how long it's been since I worked inside a company that had the level of energy and enthusiasm I have experienced so far - "awesome" really sums it up.

No problem with hens in city

Dear Editor,

I have memories of neighbors upset by a crowing rooster before the first Chicken Show was suggested. In response to that controversy, I cannot believe that the city council would refuse to permit laying hens in anyone's backyard, especially when the neighbors had no objections.

The city councilman who worries about ducks and swans taking over the town doesn't understand that those creatures need to have water available. I haven't seen any huge bodies of water within the city lim-

Rhode Island Red hens are very gentle and friendly, as can be seen in the picture of 9 year old Marcella Jurotich holding Matilda, the hen. Four to six hens in a backyard pen can provide a family with enough eggs to use, as well entertainment and responsibility for children.

Certainly there should not be any reason to charge the owners for a permit to keep that number of birds. For someone who had no previous experience raising chickens, it would be hard to know if this would be a successful venture or

I can understand that this family would feel that Wayne is not a very friendly community.

Weekly Legislative Update

Greetings from the Unicameral! Last week brought the initial meeting of the Sentencing and Recidivism Task Force, of which I am a member. Between now and January 2011, the task force will examine current sentencing guidelines in the Nebraska Criminal Code and study the effectiveness of our prison system in rehabilitating criminal offenders.

This task force is necessary in part as a result of the April 24th announcement by the Director of Correctional Services that the State of Nebraska's correctional institutions had reached 140 percent of their designed capacity. With the cost of potentially building a new state prison estimated to exceed $100 million, the task force will be looking at a variety of methods to reduce overcrowding in Nebraska's correctional facilities.

This past session, the Legislature passed LB 63, which enhanced penalties and provided mandatooffenses, and LB 97, which created new offenses for sex offenders who use social networking websites like MySpace and Facebook to prey on unsuspecting children. While both pieces of legislation were critical to keeping the most dangerous criminals off our streets. the longer sentences that these offenses now carry will undoubted-overcrowding, not improve it. With that growing concern in mind, the Sentencing and Recidivism Task Force will spend much of the next 18 months reviewing how sentencing guidelines contribute to overry minimum sentences for many crowding, and how alternative violent crimes and gang-related methods of sentencing, including probation, house arrest and other community corrections programs, are being utilized in Nebraska.

As always, I would encourage you to contact me if you have any questions or simply have an opinion on legislation before the Unicameral. Feel free to call my office at (402) 471-2716, send me an e-mail at bgiese@leg.ne.gov, or stop by in ly aggravate the problem of prison person any time you're in Lincoln.

Farmer Appreciation Day July 25 celebrates State's No. 1 industry

State Sen. Heath Mello took some good-natured ribbing from fellow senators questioning the amount of agriculture in his district when he proposed a resolution making July 25 Farmer Appreciation Day in Nebraska.

Mello, who represents Omaha's District 5, took it in stride. "My intent with LR256," Mello said, "was to raise awareness of the importance of agriculture, especially as an urban senator. Agriculture is the backbone of the Nebraska economy."

Mello said that whether food in Nebraska is grown for local farmers markets or for worldwide distribution, "we want to build a healthy, sustainable way of life that cuts across urban and rural communi-

Sustainability is key to Nebraska's agricultural strength. Bruce Johnson, agricultural economist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said strengths found in variations in Nebraska's water, land and soils make the state a rich and diverse source of crop and livestock enterprises. Differences in climate from the southeast to northwest corners of Nebraska are as great as from the East Coast to Nebraska's east border, Johnson said.

"Nebraska has a unique set of natural resources that position it to be a national and international leader," Johnson added.

Brad Lubben, IANR public policy specialist, agreed, saying the art and science of Nebraska agriculture has continually grown since 1862, when the Homestead Act, the Morrill Act creating land-grant astute with a commercial mindset," colleges, and the Pacific Railway Act that built the transcontinental railroad all passed, and fueled it.

Nebraska's standing as a powerhouse agricultural state not only provides consumers a safe and plentiful food supply, it also provides a number of Nebraskans employment. One in three Nebraska jobs relates in some way to agriculture, according to a 2006 Nebraska Policy Institute report on the importance of agriculture and agribusiness to Nebraska's economy. Those jobs occur in both rural and urban areas, and range from agriculture and agribusiness to transportation, processing, insurance, banking and much more. Citing USDA data, Lubben added that in 1950, U.S. farmers and ranchers received 41 cents of every retail dollar spent on food eaten in the U.S. Today, their share of the food dollar is 19 cents, with the other 81 cents going for packaging, transportation, labor, etc.Mello said that "Nebraska farmers make important contributions to the conservation of our natural resources, including water, soil and

"The farmer/producer is a major resource manager for society," Johnson said, which grows ever more important as the world's population and needs increase. He pointed out that Nebraska has five of the top 100 agricultural counties nationwide, largely because of livestock receipts.

Lubben and Johnson both said human resources are among Nebraska's -- and agriculture's -most significant assets. Nebraska producers often are community and state leaders, and are "economically

Capitol View

Dealing with criminals is costly

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

Considering the hundreds of billions of dollars that some Wall Street hustlers have made, and kept, it isn't entirely accurate these days to assert the old admonition that "crime doesn't pay."

Regardless of whether crime pays, or for whom, it most certainly

A legislative committee is studying the issue of crime and prison overcrowding in Nebraska. Wish those folks luck. If there is a meaningful solution to the rising costs of incarceration, news of it hasn't reached this corner.

Nebraska has for years exceeded the design capacity of its prisons. If things don't change it's likely that taxpayers will foot the bill for a new, $100 million prison somewhere down the road.

Two things to consider.

One: The 2009 Legislature enacted laws requiring longer sentences for those convicted of gang-related crimes and gun-crimes. Locking up bad actors is generally very popular among the citizenry. This would be the same citizenry that, when hit with higher taxes, goes off like a rodeo bull when first introduced to a gut strap.

Two: Sen. Brad Ashford of Omaha has faith that intervention programs and other provisions in the new law will ultimately reduce the rate of incarceration and recidivism. Ashford, chairman of the Judiciary Committee and chief architect of the new laws, is a veteran public servant who apparently has maintained the encompassing faith usually associated with newly ordained ministers, and the heartfelt sort of hope usually associated with children, mostly at Hagel's criticism wasn't just vocal, Christmas.

In the Capital on the Potomac: There is much talk that former Republican Sen. Chuck Hagel of Nebraska might be the next Secretary of Defense in the Obama administration.

Hagel drew a lot of attention when, although a virtually absolute legislative supporter of President George W. Bush, he parted company with Bush on the Iraq war.

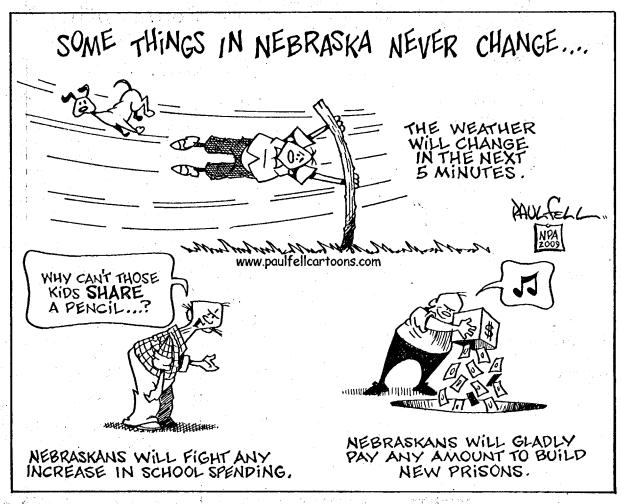

it was loud and frequent.

Hagel also made clear that, in his several trips to the war zone, he made it a point to talk with noncommissioned officers - including sergeants - to get a realistic picture of what was happening in the field. What he learned didn't always jibe with the optimism expressed by some ranking officers and the administration.

Find a story about President tatters.

Obama's proposal for a healthcare system that includes a "public option" plan, and you will likely find mention of Democratic Sen. Ben Nelson.

The Nebraska lawmaker has been the target of relentless criticism by those favoring a public option. Nelson said the government shouldn't compete with the private insurance industry, because the government would ultimately win and leave the private sector in

Willow Creek State Recreation Area celebrates 25 years with the completion of two projects stated Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) Manager Stan Staab at the July 16 dedication ceremony at the Willow Pierce. It's been 25 years since the area opened to the public in the summer of 1984 - the flood control project protects landowners as far in 1984 by Governor Bob Kerrey south as Norfolk. Approximately 90 people came out to enjoy the festivities at the lake to celebrate the Anniversary.

Staab continued, "We have so much to celebrate on this 25th Anniversary of the area. We have just completed our trail system that stretches 9.5 miles from the city of Pierce out to the lake and all the way around the lake." Assistant Manager Ken Berney said, "What people like most about the Willow Creek Trail is the loop they can make. You can start at one point and circle completely around the entire area and arrive back where you started. We are very proud of the trail and encourage everyone to come out and enjoy this top notch Recreation Area." The trail'system was designed by JEO Consulting Group Inc. and constructed by W.

Theisen Grading & Equipment Co. Another reason for the celebration was for the recent completion of the paving project throughout the area. Several agencies came together to work on the project including, the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission (who manage the area for the LENRD), the Nebraska Department of Roads, the Pierce County Commissioners, and the LENRD Board of Directors. Speece-Lewis Engineers designed the project and Western Engineering did the asphalt paving in the recreation area and the adjoining county roads.

Representatives from the agencies spoke at the dedication congratulating the LENRD and the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission (NG&PC) for completing two long-awaited projects. Senator Cap Dierks and Senator Mike Flood were also present at the dedication to welcome everyone and congratulate the agencies involved for working together to make a difference in Northeast Nebraska.

After the dedication, the group toured the area via a trolley that took them along the trail and to the outer reaches of the area. Recreation Area Superintendent Dan Sutherland with the NG&PC just celebrated his 25th Anniversary with Willow Creek. "I've been here since the beginning, and things just keep getting better. This is a beautiful area and we keep improving it and adding to it. It's been a pleasure to work with the partners, especially the LENRD, to make this area what it is today."

After the Natural Resources Districts (NRDs) were formed in 1972, the LENRD Board of Directors immediately began to work on flood control project concepts. Maskenthine Lake Recreation Area near Stanton was the first flood control dam constructed. It was opened as a public recreation area in 1979 and this year we celebrate its 30th Anniversary. The Willow Creek concept dates back to the 1960s when the U.S. Army Corps

"If you build it, they will come." of Engineers envisioned many flood control dams around the state. The site near Pierce was selected for two reasons - Flood control potential for as far downstream as Norfolk Creek State Recreation Area near and the recreation potential which we now enjoy everyday.

The Willow Creek State Recreation Area was dedicated including 1700 acres of land surrounding a 700 surface acre lake. The original project cost more than $5.5 million and was funded by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission and the LENRD. NG&PC helped fund the original recreation development.

Staab continued, "25 years is a long time for anything to last. The Willow Creek State Recreation Area has not only lasted 25 years but it has grown and matured into an outstanding, highly used waterbased public area. Today, I think we would all have to agree, this Recreation Area is really as nice as it gets - it's as beautiful as any recreation area in the state!"

He continued, "I guess the thing that really impresses me most about Willow Creek is the outstanding cooperation that has been the Hallmark of the project since the very beginning. The tremendous improvements you see today, the new paving project and trail system, were envisioned in the original master plan and we are very fortunate to now celebrate their completion."

 \mathbf{The} Willow Creek State Recreation Area is owned by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) and leased to the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission (NG&PC) and operated as a State Recreation Area.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Energy and cost saving opportunities

Along with a mortgage and taxes, another common ongoing expense tied to owning a home is the cost of energy heating, cooling and electrical power. That expense can become more significant over time if, as many expect, energy costs rise in the future. Thanks to this year's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, homeowners have the opportunity to reduce the net cost of investments in energy-efficient home improvements. The result for many homeowners is that the "payback period," the amount of time it takes to recoup the investment in home improvements related to long-term energy savings, can be shortened consid-Many of the incentives from the newly enacted legislation are in the form of tax credits based on the investment you make in energy-saving home improvements. This is generally considered the most valuable form of a tax break, as each dollar of tax credit reduces your tax bill for the year by the same amount. Credits for common home improvements

A number of home improvement incentives relate to more affordable and somewhat typical improvements that homeowners may make. This includes the installation of energy-efficient windows and doors, including exterior windows and skylights, storm windows, exterior doors and storm doors.

Other qualifying improvements include insulation and certain types of metal and asphalt roofs. New air conditioning and heating equipment that meet government specifications can also qualify for the tax credit as do energy-efficient water heaters.

Credits for these types of improvements apply to existing homes. If you have already made these improvements since Jan. 1, 2009, you will be able to claim the credit on your 2009 tax return (filed by April 15, 2010, for most taxpayers). The maximum $1,500 credit for all of these types of improvements is generally 30 percent of the cost and applies to any qualifying improvements put into service by Dec. 31, 2010.

Renewable energy tax credits

Some improvements require a much more significant investment for instance, revamping a home's heating and cooling system or energy source. Provisions of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act allow a full 30 percent tax credit, except for fuel cell property, for the installation of renewable energy systems that can dramatically reduce the use of traditional energy sources. Note that the tax credit for renewable energy improvements applies to both existing homes as well as new construction.

Credits are included for the installation of solar energy systems. Homeowners who choose to install solar electric systems or a solar water heater can qualify. Also included in the tax credit program are residential wind-power systems, geothermal heat pumps and residential fuel cell and property. Under this program, qualifying renewable systems must be placed in service before 2017.

Be clear on meeting specifications

All qualifying home improvements and installations must meet certain specifications, many tied to the government's ENERGY STAR criteria. If you are working with contractors, make certain they can verify that purchased products qualify for the tax credit by providing you with a Manufacturer's Certification Statement. You can find more specifics about qualifying products at the government's official Web site, energystar.gov (click on the link to Tax Credits.) Be sure to consult your tax advisor for more information about how your home improvements may affect your taxes. Consequences can teach responsibility

Of the many ways to discipline responsible. children, parents can choose the ones that suit them as individuals and that fit their beliefs and values. Allowing children to experience the consequences for their behaviors is one discipline method.

This hassle-free way to discipline children allows them to learn from experiences, just like adults. It's called "learning the hard way." Children learn that every act has a consequence, and they learn to be to take responsibility for their

Misbehavior is a normal part of growing up. No child is good all of the time. However, if a child has severe behavior problems, such as repeated acts of violence, discipline methods may not work, and professional help may be needed.

Here are facts on discipline involving consequences:

· Using consequences as a discipline method helps children learn

Jane Armstrong Cedar County behavior.

 Consequences must be logically related to the misbehavior.

· The child must see the relationship between misbehavior and the consequence, or it will not work.

The child must know that there is a choice when logical consequences are used.

Use consequences in a firm, kind and friendly manner. Time-outs work well when children quarrel and fight. · Call time-outs in a firm, calm

· Calling a time-out instead of punishing makes for a happier atmosphere in the home.

Take a child to Think Space, a place where they can talk about what is bothering him or her. It helps children think about solutions and take responsibility for their own behavioral choices.

· A reverse time-out means that the parents isolate themselves from the child instead of isolating

Finally, parents should tell the child, before it happens, what the consequences are for breaking a rule. If the child knows the consequences of not getting to the dinner table in time to eat with the family, then the child has a choice - whether to get there in time and eat, or to be late and not eat. Children must understand that they have choices and must accept the consequences of their choices. SOURCE: Gail Brand, extension educator.

Wickstrom received his undergraduate degree in music and religion from Augustana College in Sioux Falls, S.D. and has done some advanced degree work at the University of Washington in Seattle. He has a wealth of experience in a variety of churches including Lutheran, Episcopal, Catholic, Methodist and Presbyterian.

His instrumental skills include organ, piano, trumpet, tuba, flute, oboe, trombone, saxophone, clarinet and percussion. He has served as the chair of the Worship, Music and the Arts Committee of the South Carolina Synod of the ELCA. He has experience working with preschoolers up to mature adults as well as beginning to professional musicians.

Michelle, her husband Paul, and their sons, Caden and Carter come to Wayne from Platteville, Wisc.

Michelle earned her B.A. degree in elementary education and brings experience in teaching elementary children and working with parents. She will develop and lead afterschool enrichment activities for degrees, cattle producers need to said. Late spring 80-degree days ate to high levels of relative humidtake steps to ward off heat stress with abundant rain are always wel- ity can be disastrous for cattle that have not had a chance to get adapted to such conditions, said Terry Mader, beef specialist at UNL's Haskell Agricultural Laboratory near Concord.

"Cattle, as well as other animals and humans, usually need two to four weeks to adapt to the changes in environmental conditions we observed last week," Mader said. "Sunny days with temperatures above the mid-80s can be stressful, particularly if there is no wind and humidity is above 50 percent."

Cattle can begin to experience some level of heat stress when the heat index approaches 80 degrees, with most cattle being severely stressed when the heat index exceeds 100 degrees. Heat indices

Also, when early morning temperatures are above 70 and/or the heat indices are in the mid-70s or above, chances are cattle did not adequately cool down at night, and feedlot managers should be pre-cattle as possible during the day. Water is probably the best avenue to dissipate heat, Mader said.

pared to provide as much relief to

"The cattle don't have to be thirsty, but as cattle drink and pass water through their body, it removes a lot of heat in the process," he said.

Cattle normally take in about five to six gallons of water per day. However, when temperatures rise, that amount can double or even

"It's important to have plenty of available water," he said, "When there is competition for water, it creates problems because the domi-

space and not allow other animals

If cattle are crowding around the watering trough, add more waterer capacity or move a portion of the animals to pens that will allow the animal to have adequate access to water, Mader said.

In an emergency, cattle can be sprayed with water to cool them down. However, once producers do that, they need to repeat or continue spraying until the heat subsides. Spraying cattle with water will allow the animal to rapidly dissipate heat through evaporative cooling processes but this may limit the animal's ability to adapt to the heat. If the pen surface is dry, then wetting the pen will also provide relief to confined animals. It is always beneficial to start the wetting or cooling process in the morning before the cattle getting to hot.

Producers also should have an emergency plan in case water supplies are low or cut off, Mader added. In addition, producers should avoid handling cattle when it's hot and never after 10 a.m. Cattle body temperatures can rise an additional 0.5 to 3.5 degrees during handling.

Producers should feed cattle most of the day's feed several hours after the day's peak temperature in the late afternoon or evening. Avoid filling cattle up with feed late in the morning when added heat generated by digestion will peak around the hottest time of the day, he said.

Cattle yards also should be inspected so there aren't any structures that restrict airflow. Cutting down vegetation around pens and moving cattle away from windbreaks can all help. Building earth mounds in pens also can increase airflow by preventing cattle from bunching together. Other heat stress mitigation strategies include: provide shade, control biting flies and other parasites, keep very current on cattle marketings and be mindful of the effects of heat on personnel as well.

Funding available to fight invasive weeds Several organizations are joining forces to continue the battle to reduce invasive plants along many of the

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is offering $1.5 million in cost share assistance to landowners who have recently had riparian corridors sprayed for invasive weed control, of soon will have such work completed. Landowners in five targeted river basins will have until July 24, 2009, to apply to be considered in the first awarding of contracts. Funds are coming through the NRCS Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) or Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP).

Landowners in the North and South Platte River basin, the Platte River basin to the eastern Polk County line, all of the Republican River basin and the Niobrara River basin are eligible. These basins have been declared as fully or over appropriated basins for surface and/or groundwater.

"We are partnering with the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and seven Weed Management Areas to enhance weed control actions," said Steve Chick, NRCS state conservationist. Recently the State agency has been leading actions to control noxious weeds along many river corridors. "Most of the effort has been in aerial spraying the existing weeds, which has been very successful. These new funds can be used by landowners to undertake additional actions to try and keep the weeds from returning," explained Chick.

The funds are coming to the state as a new option in the 2008 Farm Bill, called the Cooperative Conservation Partnership Initiative (CCPI). This initiative allows Federal funds for individual landowners to be leveraged with partner agencies, organizations or Tribes to address natural resource concerns. The $1.5 million is for this year, but similar amounts are projected to be available each of the next two years of the three year project. In future years, there will be a continuous sign-up available to landowners and producers.

Greg Ibach, director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture said, "Since 2007 almost $4 million in State funding through Legislative Bill 701 has been used to treat invasive plants in several river basins." Some Local Weed Management Areas have received additional funding through the Nebraska Environmental Trust. "The funds through NRCS will be an additional tool for landowners and the Weed Management Areas for invasive vegetation removal," said Ibach. The removal of invasive vegetation in and near riparian areas in fully or over-appropriated river basins will be beneficial. It helps with stream flow, water management, water conservation and adds recreational options and improves value of the land for agriculture or forestry purposes

Some of the invasive plants being targeted include: phragmites, a grass that can grow 15-feet tall in river channels taking water and choking out native plants (phragmites are highly visible in river channels along I-80 west of Grand Island to the state border); saltcedar a perennial tree or shrub that spreads easily, and when mature and is estimated to absorb 200 gallons of water per day; and Russian olive, an invasive tree that displaces native species. Other noxious weeds targeted include purple loosestrife, leafy spurge and Canada

For more information about CCPI, contact any NRCS office, County Weed Commissioner. Information is also available on the Nebraska Department of Agriculture web site at www.agr.ne.gov Additional information on the 2008 Farm Bill programs including EQIP, WHIP, and CSP is available on the NRCS national web site at www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs or the Nebraska NRCS web site at www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

space and not allow other animals access."

If cattle are crowding around the watering trough, add more waterer capacity or move a portion of the animals to pens that will allow the animal to have adequate access to water, Mader said.

In an emergency, cattle can be sprayed with water to cool them down. However, once producers do that, they need to repeat or continue spraying until the heat subsides. Spraying cattle with water will allow the animal to rapidly dissipate heat through evaporative cooling processes but this may limit the animal's ability to adapt to the heat. If the pen surface is dry, then wetting the pen will also provide relief to confined animals. It is always beneficial to start the wetting or cooling process in the morning before the cattle getting to hot.

Producers also should have an emergency plan in case water supplies are low or cut off, Mader added. In addition, producers should avoid handling cattle when it's hot and never after 10 a.m. Cattle body temperatures can rise an additional 0.5 to 3.5 degrees during handling.

Producers should feed cattle most of the day's feed several hours after the day's peak temperature in the late afternoon or evening. Avoid filling cattle up with feed late in the morning when added heat generated by digestion will peak around the hottest time of the day, he said.

Cattle yards also should be inspected so there aren't any structures that restrict airflow. Cutting down vegetation around pens and moving cattle away from windbreaks can all help. Building earth mounds in pens also can increase airflow by preventing cattle from bunching together. Other heat stress mitigation strategies include: provide shade, control biting flies and other parasites, keep very current on cattle marketings and be mindful of the effects of heat on personnel as well.

Funding available to fight invasive weeds Several organizations are joining forces to continue the battle to reduce invasive plants along many of the river corridors in the western two-thirds of Nebraska. The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is offering $1.5 million in cost share assistance to landowners who have recently had riparian corridors sprayed for invasive weed control, of soon will have such work completed. Landowners in five targeted river basins will have until July 24, 2009, to apply to be considered in the first awarding of contracts. Funds are coming through the NRCS Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) or Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP). Landowners in the North and South Platte River basin, the Platte River basin to the eastern Polk County ine, all of the Republican River basin and the Niobrara River basin are eligible. These basins have been declared as fully or over appropriated basins for surface and/or groundwater.

"We are partnering with the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and seven Weed Management Areas to enhance weed control actions," said Steve Chick, NRCS state conservationist. Recently the State agency has been leading actions to control noxious weeds along many river corridors. "Most of the effort has been in aerial spraying the existing weeds, which has been very successful. These new funds can be used by landowners to undertake additional actions to try and keep the weeds from returning," explained Chick.

The funds are coming to the state as a new option in the 2008 Farm Bill, called the Cooperative Conservation Partnership Initiative (CCPI). This initiative allows Federal funds for individual landowners to be leveraged with partner agencies, organizations or Tribes to address natural resource concerns. The $1.5 million is for this year, but similar amounts are projected to be available each of the next two years of the three year project. In future years, there will be a continuous sign-up available to landowners and producers.

Greg Ibach, director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture said, "Since 2007 almost $4 million in State funding through Legislative Bill 701 has been used to treat invasive plants in several river basins." Some Local Weed Management Areas have received additional funding through the Nebraska Environmental Trust.

"The funds through NRCS will be an additional tool for landowners and the Weed Management Areas for invasive vegetation removal," said Ibach. The removal of invasive vegetation in and near riparian areas in fully or over-appropriated river basins will be beneficial. It helps with stream flow, water management, water conservation and adds recreational options and improves value of the land for agriculture or forestry purposes

Some of the invasive plants being targeted include: phragmites, a grass that can grow 15-feet tall in river channels taking water and choking out native plants (phragmites are highly visible in river channels along I-80 west of Grand Island to the state border); saltcedar a perennial tree or shrub that spreads easily, and when mature and is estimated to absorb 200 gallons of water per day; and Russian olive, an invasive tree that displaces native species. Other noxious weeds targeted include purple loosestrife, leafy spurge and Canada

For more information about CCPI, contact any NRCS office, County Weed Commissioner. Information is also available on the Nebraska Department of Agriculture web site at www.agr.ne.gov Additional information on the 2008 Farm Bill programs including EQIP, WHIP, and CSP is available on the NRCS national web site at www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs or the Nebraska NRCS web site at www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

Nursing class reunion brings back memories

"I've heard it said that people come into our lives for a reason, bringing something we must learn. And we are led to those who help us most to grow, if we let them, and we help them in return. Well, I don't know if I believe that's true, But I know I'm who I am today because I knew you."

Those are the opening lines to the song, For Good, from Wicked. My friend, Fritzie, and I read them to the classmates from nursing school who attended our reunion this past weekend.

We began the day at our old dorm, which is now the Independence Center. We were far from independent! I do remember thinking, after I met my roommate, who was also from a farm, that they did a great job of picking compatible people to live together. By the time those three years ended, I believe I could have lived with anyone of those in four groups, I did live with a number of them. Everything was alphabetical, of course, so the A's through C went first. There were three months in Denver at the Children's Hospital there, and then followed three months at the Hastings State Hospital, which was called Ingleside. S(my maiden name was Staehr) went in the last rotation. So that, when we got back to Lincoln General, we were only a couple of months from graduation. It was a Nightingale school, we Since we went on affiliation learned by doing. The hospital credited the school for the number of hours we worked in the clinical area, and we worked a lot of

been given to the alumni association for school memorabilia. It is so neat. There are old uniforms, annuals, diplomas, reflecting a lot of years of change.

Our out-of-towners stayed at the Holiday Inn downtown, next to the Old Market, so they had a good time there, including the Farmer's Market on Saturday. That evening, we gathered in a small room in the Inn for food and reminiscing. There were some very funny stories, and I really can't tell them all. But, for instance, a prominent member of Lincoln's business community had suffered a stroke before we came in as students. When we graduated, he was still there, in the same private room. Can you imagine? Three years in a private room in a hospital. Of course, this was before Medicare, and he was private pay, and the rate was very minimal. But we all took care of George sometime, and some of us really liked him!

We have lost four classmates, and the chances are good that in the next five years, we will lose more. The song says, "It well may be that we will never meet again in this lifetime, so let me say before we part. So much of me is made of what I learned from you, you'll be with me like a handprint on my

County Fairs provide opportunities for learning, fun and fellowship for youth

Well, it is that time of year when a lot of county fairs are occurring and here is a reminder that the Dakota-Thurston County Fair will be held from July 19 - July 26 with the majority of the activities occurring on Wednesday through Sunday. The Wayne County Fair will be the next week on July 30 -Aug. 2 and the Dixon County fair follows on Aug. 1-5.

County fairs are a great time to enjoy each other's company and get to see some good entertainment whether it be musical, mechanical, or animal. A lot of the county fair revolves around 4-H. Here are some thoughts on 4-H and the fair with help from Tracy Pracheil, a 4-H educator from Lincoln

Local county fairs provide 4-H youth across the state with an opportunity to showcase the project work that they have completed throughout the year and to receive recognition for their efforts. Model rockets that have been assembled from basic materials, cookies that will make your mouth water, sheep that are sheared for the big show, and many other exhibits can be seen. Through these projects, youth develop self-confidence by experiencing success at solving problems and meeting challenges. Local county fairs provide a safe environment for youth to make mistakes and to receive constructive feedback, not only through competition, but also through participation.

4-H youth look forward to the county fair because of the fun that this time of year brings. In a recent study, many youth reported that they are motivated each year to participate in the county fair because they have fun. Whether showing a market steer, modeling a garment in the fashion revue, or exhibiting a GIS map of a local park, youth across all project areas compete and participate in countv fair activities because they are

Youth also shared that "achieving goals," "spending time with friends," and "teamwork" contributed toward their participation in the annual county fair. Recognition, competition, fair premiums, and qualifying for the state fair ranked low in comparison to these other motivating factors.

Important educational youth development opportunities exist within the 4-H fair experience. By completing 4-H projects and activities at the local fair and throughout the year, youth are mastering skills to make positive career and life choices. It is important for youth to discover and learn in a non-threatening setting that certain vocations may or may not be right for them.

Kevin Gubbles - Quest Roofing-Presentation- Kevin Gubbels, owner of Quest Insulation & Coating gave a power point presentation to the board and administration. What is SPF Roofing? (Spray Polyurethane Foam) Polyurethane foam is produced by a chemical reaction of a polyol and an isocyanate in the presence of catalysts and other additives. The result is a rigid plastic that expands during the curing process and becomes a seamless layer of closed cell foam. The SPF Roof has a 20 year warranty expiration. By simply applying another coat of silicone, the roof is renewed and warranty extended. The west corridor project summary: This roof will be torn off to concrete decking. SPF will be applied to add proper slope for drainage. There are several flashings on this roof, 2700 square feet at $7.70 per square foot or $20,250.

SEWER CLEANING NOTICE

During the next couple of weeks, the City of Wayne Sewer Department will be having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the City. While a considerable amount of cleaning will be done in the NW part of the City, there are a number of other small areas that will also be cleaned.

In this process, high pressure water is forced through the sewer pipe to clean it. This pushes solid materials to the manholes so they can be removed by vacuuming. This entire process is necessary to keep obstructions out of the sewer system and to insure proper drainage of Residents should be aware that when this process is done, the high pressure water pushes the air in the sewer line which occasionally enters the private sewer lines into homes and businesses. If this happens, it usually results in the air exiting through toilet bowls, shooting the water out of the toilet bowl. This air should exit through the sewer vent of the building, but inadequate venting or location of toilets can cause the air to exit through the toilet. This is a rare occurrence, and keeping the lid closed on the toilet during this time will keep most of the water in the bowl rather than on the floor.

Members of the Wayne County Jaycees spent a considerable amount of time setting up the fireworks for the recent display. The group raises funds for the annual event throughout the year for the show which in recent years has become a part of the Henoween activities. According to Brian Gibson, who coordinates the event, it take approximately 20 manhours to get the show ready and another 10 hours to coordinate it with the music.

Patty Welch from York is the Auxiliary President and Dana Went from Columbus, the Aerie President.

Thanks was given to Doris and Darrell Gilliland, Bob and DeAnn Behlers, Carrie Sutak for assembling the Chicken Show float and Toni Hytrek for driving. Volunteers are needed to chair the Q-125 float in August. Contact DeAnn Behlers or contact the club. The birthday song was sung for Debbie Allen.

Serving lunch was Doris Gilliland. The next meeting, Aug. 3, Audra Farrington will serve. A joint meeting was held following the Auxiliary meeting. Discussed was the club remodeling. The next meeting will start earlier at 7:30 p.m. to hear Doug Bickford speak on the possibility of a poker run for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.
