Hotel project gets approval from City Council

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald
Those present at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council voiced overwhelming support for a hotel project that is being planned for Wayne.
Acting as the Community Development Agency (CDA), Council members first approved a CDA resolution recommending approval of a redevelopment plan for Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC on a 5-1 vote, with Council member Verdel Lutt voting against and Council members Kaki Ley and Jon Haase abstaining due to conflict of interest.
During discussion and a presentation by Mike Bacon, an attorney from Gothenberg who specializes in Tax Increment Financing (TIF) related matters, Ley and Haase, as well as City Administrator and Mayor Lois Shelton excused themselves from the discussion due to the fact that they are investors in Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC.

Bacon told the council that the group is seeking TIF assistance with the plan to bring a 62 unit hotel to the community. The anticipated $3.2 million project would also include a convention center and indoor swimming pool. The $1.5 million in materials needed to construct the facility would result in considerable tax dollars coming into the community.
Bacon presented a cost benefit analysis that has been completed, and also outlined the economic impact of bringing a hotel into the community. He said that "there would be no negative economic impact," as the community would be able to handle additional families into the community that would come from the 12.2 jobs that would be created by the hotel.

During a public hearing on the issue, a number of residents spoke in support of the plan. They included Wes Blecke, interim Director of Wayne Area Economic Development, Kent Franzen, former president of Wayne Industries, Irene Fletcher, Office Manager of WAED, who told the council that the office receives numerous phone calls in regard to lodging in the community; Louis Benschoter and Kevin Hoffart.

After the public hearing, the council approved Resolution 2009-71, which also approves the Redevelopment Plan and related matters for the project.
Following a public hearing, the council passed Ordinance 2009-19 and waived the three readings. The ordinance will amend the zoning map to rezone property owned by Louis and Javannah Benschoter and Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC from R-4 Residential to B-1 Highway Business. The area in question is a portion of the former Scotty Thompson property located south of the Wayne Fire Hall.

Chainsaw artist's work takes him across U.S.

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald
R.D. Coonrod's Loghoggers chainsaw artist is a popular feature of the Wayne County Fair each year. This year's artist at the local fair was Matt Hambrook from Washington. He kept fair goers entertained with his talent and finished wooden pieces which included a chicken, horse's head and more.
The items that Hambrook completed through the four-day fair were auctioned off on Sunday night in front of the grandstand to a full crowd. The fair board hires the chainsaw artists each year, and the proceeds of the auction help fund many projects at the fairs.
R.D. Coonrod is agent for several loghogger chainsaw artists working at a number of events across the upper midwest.
Hambrook said he got the idea to become a chainsaw artist around 15 years ago. He had read about R.D. Coonrod's Loghogger chainsaw artists and decided he would like to do that for a hobby. He was building log homes at the time in Washington and, before that, had worked in a steel factory. He gave carving a try, and found it was harder than he thought it would be, but kept trying. He added that he studied art books, worked on shapes and proportions and started making human forms, which took a long time.
Later, he found animals sold better and could be completed in less time, so began carving those. He found a bear, for instance, could be completed in four hours, but took a lot of fine detail and was hard to make look real.

Chainsaw artist Matt Hambrook puts his talents to work on one of several projects he created during last week's Wayne County Fair. His work was auctioned off prior to Sunday's demolition derby.
Around five years ago Hambrook was laid off from his job, so he made his hobby his full-time job. Hambrook travels from Indiana to California around nine months each year, going to festivals, fairs, resort towns and more places to work.
"I had punched a time card at factory jobs for 20 years," Hambrook said. "I wanted to do something else. I like doing this but I'm not going to get rich at it."
In the winter, Hambrook goes home to see his two children, who live with

Ethanol industry/job opportunities alive and well in Nebraska

Northeast Community College's Randall Sigle wants to dispel a rumor. Contrary to many news reports about the near-demise of the ethanol industry last winter, it is alive and well, as are the job opportunities in the industry, Sigle said. He is the Statewide Renewable Fuels Trainer based in Norfolk at Northeast Community College.

The college currently offers a two-year associate of applied science degree, a two-year associate of science degree, a one-year diploma, or 19-credit-hour certificate in renewable fuels technology. Students earning an associate of science degree may transfer their credits to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture to apply toward a bachelor of science degree in agriculture. Many courses are offered online. Customized, short-term training is also available for ethanol plants interested in upgrading the skills of new or incumbent employees.

The Northeast programs follow a 2006 grant of $1,999,999 through the President's Community-Based Job Training Grants (CBJT) program administered by the U.S. Department of Labor. The funds were used to develop and implement ethanol training programs throughout the Nebraska community college system.

Sigle said Northeast graduated its first renewable fuels technology associate of applied science class last May. "And every one of those graduates looking for a job in the ethanol industry found one," he said. Sigle noted there are currently 20 operating ethanol production plants and one under construction in Nebraska.

The operating plants produce over 1.3 billion gallons of ethanol each year and require nearly 500 million bushels of grain in the process, according to ethanol-training.org. The plants represent more than $1.4 billion in capital investment in the state and provide direct employment for some 1,000 Nebraskans.

The Nebraska Ethanol Board reports that Nebraska ranks second nationally in ethanol production and is the largest ethanol producer west of the Missouri River.

Sigle said Northeast Community College graduates are well prepared for successful employment in the ethanol industry. Northeast's training includes work with new equipment like a simulator and process control trainers. The two-year associate of applied science degree includes a four-to-eight hour cooperative internship where students get more hands-on training at an ethanol plant.

Students studying for an associate's degree at Northeast will study electricity, environmental compliance, microbial ecology, process dynamics, and distillation and evaporation. After graduation, those with an associate's degree can move in to positions as plant operators, safety managers, process engineers, lab technicians and instrumentation control technicians, boiler operators, grain merchandisers, human resources directors, maintenance managers, and team lead operators.

"Jobs in the ethanol industry in Nebraska pay well," said Todd Sneller, administrator of the Nebraska Ethanol Board and co-chair of the Northeast Renewable Fuels program advisory council. "Many would be surprised at the starting wage."

According to the Nebraska Ethanol Board, salaries range from $25,000-$100,000. "In fact, in counties where an ethanol plant is located, average county salaries are significantly increased by the presence of the ethanol plant," Sneller said.

Both Former President George W. Bush and President Barack Obama are known for their strong support of the ethanol industry and production. The standards set by President Bush are currently in place and direct the production of another three billion gallons of ethanol in 2009. "Both Presidents know the value of cleaner, renewable fuels," Sigle said.

"The Obama administration is not willing to sit back and wait for the next oil shock. It is advancing our nation's production of renewable energy, creating green-collar jobs and reducing our dependence on foreign oil..." writes Tom Buis, chief executive officer of Growth Energy, in the most recent edition of Ethanol Producer Magazine. Another publication, the Journal of Industrial Ecology, noted that corn ethanol was found to decrease greenhouse gas emissions by approximately 50 percent over gasoline.

In March 2009, Growth Energy, an organization dedicated to promoting clean energy and expanding the use of ethanol in gasoline, noted that the Department of Energy estimates that ethanol use reduces the price of gas by as much as 20-35 cents a gallon, saving the average American household $150-$300 a year.

"With data like that, why wouldn't the industry succeed and jobs opportunities abound?" Sigle asked.

Readers Theatre to be included in Q-125 activities this weekend

The Death of DeGrasse W. Britton by William Tibbs Readers Theatre will be held at Antiques on Main on Saturday, Aug. 8 at 3 and 5 p.m. The Readers Theatre will be presented by the Wayne Community Theatre. Following is a statement by Dwaine Spieker, English instructor at Wayne High School:

On Oct. 31, 1890, near the train depot in Wayne, in what a news report called "broad daylight," DeGrasse W. Britton, 50, a prominent Wayne landowner, was struck over the left eye with a railroad pick. Britton died two days later.

The killer was a black man named William Tibbs, who had lived in Wayne about two years and had worked for the railroad.

The two men had reportedly fought on numerous occasions before the incident. Britton was a rich, powerful man. He was also a notorious braggart and bigot, who was well-known for carrying a pistol. He had reportedly pointed the gun at Tibbs in the past. The pistol, which was in Britton's hand when he died, disappeared from the scene of the crime and was never found.

Tibbs did not try to escape after the incident and was arrested immediately. After word of the killing passed through town, Tibbs was nearly lynched. The Wayne sheriff had to keep Tibbs in hiding. Tibbs trial was held in Pierce County because of the inability to obtain an impartial jury in Wayne County.

Tibbs was found guilty of manslaughter on July 1, 1891, and sent to the state penitentiary.

While attending the Q-125 celebration weekend, Aug. 7-9, be sure to include the Readers Theatre into the schedule of events. See how the Wayne Community Theatre cast brings this piece of Wayne history to life!

No public comment on Logan Valley industrial park add

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

The Wayne Planning Commission met in regular session Monday night at the council chambers in Wayne.

A public hearing was held on the preliminary and final plats for Logan Valley Industrial Park 2nd Addition. The applicant is GLP Development Corporation, a Nebraska corporation.

The hearing closed without public comment. Lowell Johnson, city administrator, noted the Logan Valley Industrial Park 2nd Addition is not in the city limits and will not be annexed by the city. He said the area is zoned industrial, and parcels have been sold through the years. Now, the owners want to plat out the remaining land. He added there will be a dedication of the right of way to the county.

Commissioner Lee Brogie made a motion of recommendation to the city council to approve the preliminary plat with correction (taking the city off the title) as written in final plat. Commissioner Pat Melena seconded the motion, which passed unanimously. Brogie also made a motion to approve the final plat, which Melena seconded, and it passed unanimously.

A public hearing was held on a request to rezone property from R-4 Residential to B-1 Highway Business.

The applicants are Louis and Jayanah Benscoter and Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC. Kent Franzen, Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC president, told the commissioners their group has been trying to bring businesses to town.

He noted a recent survey showed an extra 60-100 motel rooms are needed in Wayne. The 60-room motel planned for the Benscoter addition will be welcome in town. Louis Benscoter added there are other big companies interested in also coming to that area.

Commissioner Sharon Braun, chair, noted a companion business to the motel, hopefully a restaurant, would be good.

Johnson discussed the rezoning, and said a buffer zone is needed between Benscoter addition and residential area.

Commissioner Jill Sweetland made a motion to recommend approval of the zoning request, Melena seconded the motion, which passed unanimously.

Discussion was held on the Northeast Nebraska Investors, LLC redevelopment plan. Johnson read out loud a resolution that was prepared by legal counsel. He noted that because of the Community Development Act, and through state statute, property can be deemed blighted/substandard and can be improved by the city.

Johnson added that even if a portion of property is substantial, cleanup can take place to benefit the whole area.

Recently, areas in Wayne were targeted, and the east end of Wayne was one of those areas. Johnson stated the CDA (Community Development Agency) is able to buy and sell property.

An incentive to buy that can be offered is deferment capture of the incremental increase in real estate taxes from the new building for the first 14 years to help purchase the site and install streets, parking and utilities. The commissioners looked over a contract and resolution which discussed improvements planned for the Benscoter Addition.

Brogie made a motion to recommend approval of the resolution to the City Council, Sweetland seconded the motion, which passed unanimously.

The next Wayne Planning Commission meeting will be Monday, Sept. 7 at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers.

Air Force Senior Airman Christopher J. Thies is a tactical aircraft armament maintenance technician with the 525th Aircraft Maintenance Unit, Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska. Thies recently participated in a massive American military exercise called "Northern Edge," where more than 9,000 American military men and women sharpened their skills for responding to crises throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

Winside native part of Northern Edge exercise based in Alaska

By Michael Tolzmann

When the son of a Winside man steps outside, inhaling crisp air on a base surrounded by mountains and pristine wilderness in America's "last frontier," he is far more likely to run into a bear or moose than an enemy of the United States.

But Air Force Senior Airman Christopher J. Thies, son of John Thies of Winside and the rest of his colleagues, are strategically as close to North Korea as they are to Washington D.C.

Thies recently participated in a massive American military exercise called "Northern Edge," where more than 9,000 U.S. service members sharpened their skills for responding to crises throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

Thies is a tactical aircraft maintenance technician with the 525th Aircraft Maintenance Unit, Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska.

"I'm responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of F-22A Raptors. The F-22 is responsible for the protection of the North American Aerospace Defense Command region against any threats," said Thies, a 2006 graduate of Winside High School.

Military maneuvers over the Gulf of Alaska and areas of the Alaskan wilderness, in an area the size of New Mexico, allowed for aircraft to conduct maneuvers in ways that cannot be done anywhere else.

Air Force, Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel participated with aircraft flying in simulated air combat, many times flying in excess of the speed of sound, a restriction found nearly everywhere else in the United States. Naval warships and land-based forces also synchronized with aircraft in creating a large combined force.

For Thies, this important exercise provides an opportunity for his unit to better itself in combat situations and in working with other American military services.

"It's very important to train for when we go to war. An individual can never be too prepared. This exercise has given us more knowledge and confidence that we can do what we need to do if and when the need arises," said Thies.

With Alaska situated between Russia and Canada, and within a good part of the Arctic Circle, the region provides a unique setting for both professional and personal experiences.

"What I have enjoyed most is the scenery and the wildlife. At times, it can be very difficult to train and work in Alaska because the extreme cold and climate is very challenging. We can only work so long when it's 30 below zero, and then we have to take a break to warm up," said Thies.

Thies' personal military background illustrates why his experience is ideal for military operations in Alaska, such as this one.

"I enlisted on June 6, 2006, so I have been in the Air Force more than three years. I have not served in a war zone yet, but I have been deployed to Guam for a theater support package for deterrence in the South Pacific against terrorism," said Thies.

With the sounds of jet aircraft screaming overhead, wildlife such as moose and bears are undeterred from randomly appearing at this frontier base.

But with vigilance found by service members serving in this geographically important location, their efforts will help keep the region's greater threats at bay.

The Oaks offers heat relief for area seniors

The community is air conditioned and will provide snacks, beverages and activities. The Oaks is located at 1500 Vintage Hill Drive, and will provide this service free of charge.

For more information on this service, contact Kasey Baker at (402) 375-1500.

Hydration for senior citizens is especially important during hot weather.

As individuals mature into their later years, the thirst perception becomes altered. Total body water is reduced as a portion of body weight, and reduced hydration may be a result of multiple disease processes and/or medications.

The results of a poorly hydrated state are acute confusion, dehydration, urinary and respiratory infections and constipation, all of which could lead to hospitalization and place an individual at an increased risk for repeated hospitalizations.

The most at risk for poor hydration are individuals older than 85 years of age, females, people with four or more chronic conditions, those taking more than four medications, someone who is semi-dependent in activities of daily living, a person with a previous diagnosis of dehydration, someone with a history of repeated infections or someone with a fever.

Suggestions to help with proper hydration include:

- Plan a 'tea time' in the afternoon where individuals can gather together for additional fluids and socialization;
- Have at least six ounces of fluid with medications;
- Drink smaller amounts of preferred beverages throughout the day;
- Increase fluids when ill with a fever, vomiting or diarrhea.

Neighbors are encouraged to check on their senior or disabled friends and relatives during the hot weather. Since many people experiencing heat related symptoms may be unaware that they are having a problem, it is critical to check on elderly and disabled persons living alone or who are socially isolated.

The White Horse Mounted Patrol unit of the Abu Bekr Shrine Temple will be a part of the Wayne Q-125 parade in Wayne on Saturday, Aug. 8.

The White Horse Mounted Patrol is in its 87th year as a member supported show and parade unit that serves as a goodwill ambassador for Sioux City and the Siouxland area.

The Patrol maintains approximately 25 horses and is the only white haired, pink skinned horse unit in the Western Hemisphere. The unit has performed from coast to coast and into Canada throughout its history, beginning with its first major trip to Washington D.C. in 1923.

The Patrol has since made journeys to cities such as Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Denver,

Wright continues South American bike tour

(NOTE: Trevor Wright, a 2001 graduate of Wayne High School and son of Gary and Peggy Wright, recently embarked on an ambitious, two-year bike tour of South America.)

This is the third in a series of articles about why Trevor is traveling and what he hopes to gain from his travels.)

Won't you be lonely?

Sometimes, loneliness is an inevitable part of travel. I accept it as part of the greater learning experience. Many people find this attitude strange — why be alone when you can be with others? From past travel experiences I've learned independence, confidence, innovation, and, dare I say, 'wisdom' come from getting to know your true self. Without distractions, I hope to have very real conversations with myself.

I'm approaching loneliness as just another challenge, and realize it will make me an all-around stronger person. With that said, traveling is an extremely social activity. With a smile and basic hygiene regimen, you will meet people. Hospitality sites such as Couchsurfing (www.couchsurfing.com) provide instant social circles all over the globe. As a foreigner, people are curious to talk with you (especially if you roll up with a big yellow bike trailer). Sometimes chance encounters seem straight out of movie scripts. Overall, the lonely times will be overshadowed by memorable experiences with people along the way.

How will you communicate with friends and family in the United States?

At no other point in human history has it been easier to stay connected. Thank you, globalization. Skype (www.skype.com) is free for computer-to-computer video calls. Skype's computer-to-landline calls are some of the cheapest per minute charges around. The sound quality varies, depending on the internet connection. Pennytalk's (www.pennytalk.com) sound quality and ease of use is excellent, but my experience with it is limited to one phone call. Jaxtr (www.jaxtr.com) allows users to make international phone-to-phone calls for free. Gmail chat, MSN messenger, and Facebook will also be used.

What will you do for entertainment?

Biking will keep me entertained. If you say anything enough times it becomes true, right? Off the bike, photography, reading, writing, and people-watching are my main hobbies, which are conveniently free and can be done anywhere. In cities I plan to take yoga and photography classes, check out local film scenes, get rowdy with bike clubs, and volunteer. In the countryside I'm perfectly content with a book, campstove-cooked meal, and a blanket of stars overhead.

Do you have travel insurance?

I bought the Multinational Underwriters (www.mnui.com) WorldwideHealth Extended policy for US $384. This one-year policy covers medical emergencies when traveling anywhere outside the United States. This policy covers non-competitive biking. Unfortunately, I was unable to secure renter's insurance to cover personal property while traveling internationally since I didn't have a permanent residence at the time of application. If you're planning a similar bike tour I highly recommend both medical and property insurance. Feel free to contact me anytime if you have questions about travel insurance. I'd be happy to tell you what I've learned from my research.

Will you carry a weapon?

A surprising number of people have recommended I carry a firearm, some jokingly, others not so much. (Note: none of them have actually been to South America.) This is not an option for several practical reasons, such as differing gun concealment laws from country to country and my complete lack of interest in shooting anyone. A more effective way to deal with dangerous situations is to avoid them altogether. Common sense, first-hand information from locals, and truly listening to your instincts will keep you safe. My safety philosophy comes from trail-and-error and more recently from "The Gift of Fear: And Other Survival Signals that Protect Us from Violence" by Gavin de Becker. I recommend this book to anyone who wants to stay safe without confrontation. Worse case scenario, my bodyguard gets my back.

County board gives industrial park plans its blessing

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday. Lowell Johnson, Wayne city administrator, was present to have the commissioners approve the plat of Logan Valley Industrial Park 2nd Addition. He noted there was a title change (city was listed and shouldn't have been) on the preliminary plat, which has been corrected.

Commissioner Kelvin Wurdeman made a motion to approve the preliminary plat of Logan Valley Industrial Park 2nd Addition, Commissioner Dean Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously. Wurdeman made a motion to approve the final plat, Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Burbach questioned if the county was responsible for maintenance of Logan Valley Drive. Johnson noted that the city is not annexing the property because it does not abut city property. He added there has been a lot of changes in that area in the last 25 years. He added there have been a lot of serious inquiries from private investors who would like to come in.

The commissioners discussed a proposed legislative bill for reimbursement of probation expenses. Sen. Bob Giese was at a recent commissioners meeting to hear concerns from the commissioners on probation expenses and to check into a solution. The commissioners noted from results of those findings it looks like owning the probation building compared to renting a facility could be a problem for reimbursement. Mike Pieper, Wayne County attorney, said he would look into the matter.

LeRoy Janssen, Wayne County sheriff, asked about an interview panel for the emergency manager position. He noted three people would probably be a good number to do the interviewing. He added there have been around 10 applicants for the position.

Burbach made a motion to approve two lodging tax applications (Jaycees Mud Volleyball tournament and October Fall Craft & Gift Festival) for $100 each. It was also decided to appoint Marie Janke to the lodging tax committee replacing Tim Braithwait.

Pieper gave the commissioners a resolution and told them about the development of the Wayne County Diversion Program. He noted the program was from efforts by the Wayne Police Department (PD Chief Lance Webster), Wayne County (Sheriff Janssen and Attorney Pieper), Providence Medical Center (Jill Belt), Project Extra Mile (Steve Shear) and the State Probation Office. He said that through the program, first time offenders under 21 years old for misdemeanors in Wayne County, can pay fees and successfully complete a check list of requirements which will dismiss the charges. He added the group has been meeting all summer working on the details of this program.

Wurdeman made a motion to pass the resolution approving the Diversion Program, Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Burbach made a motion to accept the fiscal year 2008 audit, Wurdeman seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Board of Equalization was held. Burbach made a motion to accept a correction to the tax list, which included a mobile home that was moved from the county.

Wurdeman made a motion to approve solicitation of sealed bids for soft match project C009001720, two miles west and 0.3 mile south of Winside, 566th Avenue, mile 851. Burbach seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Burbach made a motion to approve placement of a utility line in county road right of way, Wurdeman seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

A budget work session was held in the afternoon. The board recessed the budget work session, and will reconvene on Monday, Aug. 17 at 9 a.m.

The next regular meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 18 at 9 a.m. in the courthouse in Wayne.

Former Wayne resident, motorcycle buddies drop in on their way to Sturgis

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

Wayne has abounded in festivities lately with more planned this weekend.

The recent Chicken Show, Wayne County Fair and soon to be Q-125 celebration, Aug. 7-9, is good for businesses and for catching up with friends.

Brian and Bonnie Loberg of Wayne were among residents having guests this summer. Brian's Wayne High School classmate Perry Benschhof, and his wife, Pam, of Sumerduck, Va., along with several of their friends from Virginia, rode their motorcycles to Wayne to see the Lobergs.

The Benschhofs' and their friends made their stop in Wayne on their way to Sturgis, S.D. The group of 17 people on eight motorcycles came to Wayne last Saturday and left early Monday morning. While here, they took in the Wayne County Fair.

"We have been planning this trip for around a year," Perry said. "Our group includes some of our friends and some of my co-workers. The majority of them have never been to Nebraska, and they can't get over all the corn! They are used to small farms with a little corn in Virginia, but nothing like they've seen in Nebraska."

While in Wayne, one of Perry's relatives, Karlene Benschhof Woslager, had a picnic at the Wayne County Fairgrounds for the group. Perry's dad and mom, Wilbur and Lynelle Vahlkamp Benschhof, were originally from this area. Perry was born in Colorado.

Perry had lived in Wayne from 1980-85, moving to Virginia in 1986, where he is a State Police trooper pilot. In Virginia, Perry and Pam ride their motorcycle a lot with their friends, and have gone distances together before, but never this far. The journey to Sturgis will be 4,200 miles and will take two weeks round-trip.

Other Northeast Nebraska area favorites Perry introduced his Virginia friends to included Wimmers hot dogs and Twin Bing candy bars.

"This trip is a chance of a lifetime," Perry said. "We are best friends. We are five days into the journey and we're loving it! We plan to see Mt. Rushmore, the Black Hills and other sights there. None of us have been to Sturgis before. We also plan to stop in Denver, Colo. to see my brother."

Greg Poe, who was born in Virginia and is one of Perry's friends taking part in the ride, said the trip that Perry planned is awesome.

"Perry had always said Nebraska had a lot of corn fields, but words don't describe that until you see it! It's fascinating to see! And, everyone we've met here is so friendly! We are looking forward to the rest of the trip. The next trip we're planning as a group is to Key West, Fla. but not in the summer because it will be too hot!"

Brian Loberg noted the last time they saw Perry's were a couple of years ago for their 20th class reunion. Through the years, the men have stayed in touch by attending each others weddings and important occasions.

While in the Wayne vicinity, the group stayed in the homes of several people including Darrel and Betty Heier, Dave and Karlene Woslager, Brian's mom, Lorna Loberg and with Brian and Bonnie.

Council

In other action, the council accepted the preliminary and final plats for Logan Valley Industrial Park 2nd Addition and the corresponding subdivision agreement.

Wes Blecke gave a report on an upcoming public meeting in regard to creating a downtown Wayne Historic District.

Blecke said the process started in 2006 after Wayne hosted the annual Nebraska Main Street gathering. A public meeting will be held Monday, Aug. 17 at 7 p.m.

at the Wayne City Auditorium and will allow all interested business owners and citizens the opportunity to ask questions and learn what it means to have the community named to the National Register of Historic Places.

Work will be done on rest rooms at Bressler Park and Victor Park to make them ADA compliant.

Council members passed a resolution approving plans, specifications and cost estimates for the work. It was noted that a group of volunteers has expressed interest in doing the work, but a final decision has not yet been made. It is anticipated that the work would be completed by next spring.

The council also passed two resolutions directing the city clerk to certify mowing costs on the Wayne County Clerk and Wayne County Treasurer on property located at 418 West First Street and 120 West Eighth Street.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Aug. 18 at 5:30 p.m. A budget work session will be held Tuesday, Aug. 11.

mother in Washington. While he is home, he works on harder pieces, such as benches, that require more detail and finish than the work he does on the road. He often completes 100-200 carvings in the winter to sell in the spring.

Hambrook said the pieces he creates at events varies and are usually what is popular in the area he is at. He noted ag-based items such as farm animals, tractors, etc.

is what he focuses on making when he comes to Wayne.

He was at the Wayne County Fair last year and found out chickens are popular because of the Chicken Show so added that to his work this year. Some pieces such as bears and eagles are popular everywhere. Hambrook added that a lot of his work is custom orders and the strangest request was a Formula 1 race car. Many times he is asked to carve designs in stumps on a customer's property.

As for working on carvings at fairs, he sticks to the ones he knows and does a lot because they can be completed in around an hour, which is usually the allotted time he is given. Hambrook noted that 90 percent of the fairs he is at make $1,000-$2,000 more than he is paid, which is good because the money is used for upkeep and getting entertainment, etc. for future fairs.

This is that time of year

It's the most wonderful time of the year.

Usually, you don't hear or read that phrase until Christmas. After all, those who claim to know all there is to know will tell you that the anticipation for opening Christmas gifts, the festive-like atmosphere and the promise of a white Christmas make the end of the calendar year the one we anticipate the most.

And to that, I say...pffft. When it comes to anticipation, nothing beats the month of August. During this time of year, we're not the least bit concerned with opening presents as we are the home opener.

At this time of year, a festive-like atmosphere includes bonfires, barbecues and the carbonated beverage of your choice, not egg nog, heavy sweaters and chestnuts roasting on an open fire.

The most wonderful time of the year, especially here in Nebraska, is more about Blackshirts than a white Christmas.

That's right, Ralphie...this ain't no Red Ryder BB gun we're talking about. We're talking about THE most wonderful time of the year... football season. And it will be here before you know it.

Wayne State College pulls the pads on for the first time today (Thursday), and the Huskers are getting things rolling in preparation for their season opener in September. You've also got the NFL teams beginning their preseason preparations, and it won't be long before Wayne High and the other area schools hit the field for their 2009 season openers.

I used to be a big baseball fan when I was a kid. I couldn't wait to see the first spring training box-scores in the paper, and I'd save up my paper route money and go crazy buying up all the packs of Topps baseball cards I could get my hands on once they hit the shelves at the grocery store. I'd fake an illness just so I could watch the Cubs' or Braves' opening-day games on TV.

Over the years, though, baseball has lost its magic on me. Horrible commissioners, high ticket and concession prices, player strikes over millions of dollars and steroids has driven me away from major league baseball.

It's much different with football, though. It doesn't matter if it's the NFL, college, high school or even youth football...I enjoy watching it at every level, and it's not unusual for me to spend an entire weekend parked on the couch, flipping back and forth between college and pro games.

And it doesn't matter if it's in the parking lot of a local high school, college or NFL stadium...you can't beat the pregame tailgate parties. Burgers, brats, beverages and the fun of hanging out with fellow fans makes football more of a total fun experience than any other sporting event.

We're just a few weeks away from the opening kickoff, and I'm already making my list (and checking it twice...a day) of games to watch, players to draft and pregame parties to attend. I can't wait to attend my first area high school football game and cover the local team. The suspense of the season opener for the Wildcats against Nebraska-Kearney is keeping me awake at night. The countdown to the first Tunnel Walk for the Huskers at Memorial Stadium isn't moving near fast enough for me. And don't even ask me about how much I'm looking forward to the Seattle Seahawks' home opener and the start of the NFL season (Yeah...I'm a Seahawks fan, and a long-suffering one at that).

Never mind the Christmas holiday, boys and girls...football season is, without a doubt, the most wonderful time of the year. And I can't wait to open up another season's worth of action on the gridiron.

Pitching woes lead to early state exit for Wayne

By Michael Carnes
Of The Herald

After three straight years of finishing in the top four, Wayne Seniors coach Jeff Zeiss was hoping some home cooking would result in a state title for his team.

Unfortunately, the combination of high-caliber competition and shaky pitching left the local boys as one of the first two teams out of the American Legion Class B state tournament, as Wayne fell to Gretna 17-2 and dropped a 5-4, nine-inning heartbreaker to Sidney to end a 22-11 campaign for the summer of 2009.

"This is a new experience," coach Jeff Zeiss said after his team's final loss of the season. "We were hoping, being at home, we'd have a chance to run the table. The last three years, we lost our first game and came back and went deep into the tournament, but with all the walks we gave up it was tough."

In Friday's opener, Gretna jumped on Michael Dunklau for five runs in the first inning, taking advantage of some early struggles by the Wayne hurler.

Dunklau walked the first two batters he faced, both on four pitches, and Gretna followed with an RBI double by Stefan Katsampes and a two-run single by Kevin Anderson to ignite the five-run rally.

"They're a great ball club, and we knew that going in," Zeiss said. "I thought Mike was our best chance to keep things close, and that first inning was just a killer. The kids battled hard, but if we had given up two runs (in the first) the momentum might have shifted."

Wayne had an early response to the Gretna charge, using an RBI single by Jacob Zeiss to bring home Taylor Racely and a throwing error, which scored Zeiss from second, to cut the Gretna lead to 5-2.

Gretna pitcher Steve Weideman shut Wayne down after that. He allowed back-to-back two-out singles to Racely and Ryan Pieper in the second, but set down 13 in a row until Dunklau reached on an error to start the seventh. Gretna expanded their lead, thanks to a 4-for-5 night by Jarred Gottberg, who homered and drove in six runs, to pull away with the first round win.

"Steve has been really good all year for us," Gretna coach Mike Haase said. "Once he settled down after that first inning, he really sharpened up and got his breaking ball over, and it's a lot easier to pitch when you're ahead than pitching from behind."

On Saturday, Wayne faced a Sidney team that was shut out by Valparaiso in Friday's opening round and looked every bit the team that came into area tournament play as a fifth seed.

Wayne had its opportunities to eliminate Sidney and continue in the tournament, but Sidney kept getting opportunities to hang around thanks to a resilient defense and shaky Wayne pitching.

Wayne drew first blood in the opening stanza, as Jake Zeiss singled to left and came home on a double by Jacob Triggs, who pounded a 1-2 pitch into the gap in left center.

Sidney came right back and tied the game in the bottom of the second. A single by Charles Ferguson was followed by three walks issued by Ryan Pieper, which allowed Ferguson to come home with the tying run.

Pieper, who pitched 4 1/3 innings and didn't figure in the decision, walked eight and struck out five, but allowed just one hit. Zeiss came on in relief, but had his own troubles shutting the door on Sidney's offense, issuing six free passes of his own.

However, for as much of a challenge as Wayne's pitching was, the defense stepped up and bailed them out time and again. Sidney left 16 runners on base and had the bases loaded in the second, fifth and eighth innings.

"It got a little frustrating, but we somehow got through districts that way," Sidney coach Ramsey Mills said. "We had our opportunities in the first game as well and didn't get the hit we needed, but today was another day."

It looked to be the end of the road for Sidney in the sixth, as two errors allowed Wayne to score a pair of runs. Triggs led off with a double and Zac Braun followed with a walk. Sidney pitcher Brett Bayne threw away a pickoff throw at first, allowing Triggs to score, and Braun eventually came home on another Sidney error to give Wayne a 3-1 advantage.

"You're never completely comfortable until you get that 21st out," the Wayne coach said. "I liked

Wakefield's Class C state title hopes fall one run short

By Michael Carnes
Of The Herald

WEST POINT — One run separated Wakefield's American Legion baseball program from a familiar position at the end of the summer.

A one-out triple in the fifth inning by Yutan center fielder Kyle Schimenti was all reliever Tyler Peitzmeier needed to close out any comeback attempt by the Wakefield Seniors, as he held them hitless in 2 1/3 innings of relief to give Yutan a 2-1 win and the 2009 Class C American Legion Seniors championship Tuesday at Anderson Field.

Wakefield reached the finals for the 17th time in the senior division after coming from behind to beat Adams 6-5 in eight innings, forcing a winner-take-all matchup against a team they had lost to 1-0 just 48 hours earlier.

Coach Paul Eaton said he was concerned his team might not have anything left for Yutan after battling Adams into extra innings, but his team responded and played well in a losing effort.

"A lot of times, when you play two games the second game isn't a good one, and this was a good game," he said. "We had our chances, but (Peitzmeier) is a quality pitcher and he really showed that tonight. I was proud of our kids' effort. That was about the best we could do."

Wakefield, 29-16, got on the board first in the championship game when Colby Henderson walked and later scored on Jake Blessing's single to center in the fourth inning.

would respond again when Mason Nixon's basehit got past the Yutan center fielder, allowing Nixon to reach third base. Peitzmeier came on in relief at that point and sat down Chad Clay on strikes, and that was the closest Wakefield would get to tying the game.

Yutan picked up the go-ahead run when Andrew Harriger was hit by a pitch. One out later, Schimenti delivered a shot in the gap in left center, allowing Harriger to come around with what proved to be the winning run. Wakefield reached the finals with an exciting win over Adams, a team it had 10-runners earlier in the tournament.

It looked like Wakefield was going to administer a similar beating early on, scoring five runs in the first two innings and carrying that lead into the third. Zach Blessing's two-out, two-RBI single got Wakefield on the board in the first, and Wakefield used three sin-

Wayne High football team gets an early start to season

While most of the area high school teams won't begin fall sports practice until Aug. 17, the Wayne High football team will begin its preparations for the 2009 season next week.

The Blue Devils are able to practice a week earlier due to the fact there are two teams on their schedule who play games in Week 0 on the Nebraska School Activities Association calendar. Wayne High opens the 2009 season on the road against one of those teams, traveling to North Bend on Sept. 5.

New coach Rich Rethwisch said the team will conduct weightlifting drills beginning Monday at 9 a.m., with a two-hour session in the Wayne High weight room. The team will conduct practice without pads beginning at 4 p.m. The team will stay to this schedule throughout the first week of practice.

Rethwisch said players must have physicals turned in to athletic director Rocky Ruhl's office before being cleared for practice. Those with questions can call Rethwisch at 833-5453.

 our chances at that point, but we had difficulty throwing strikes and give credit to Sidney for battling back."

Zeiss walked the first two batters in the bottom of the seventh, and they both advanced 90 feet on Ferguson's sacrifice bunt. A popup to the pitcher left Sidney one out away from elimination, but Hunter Roseberry reached out and stroked a single to center, allowing Sidney to tie the game.

"At this level, if you can throw strikes and play defense behind your pitcher, you'll be in every game," coach Zeiss said. "You put a guy on with a walk, and a lot of times that guy's going to come around and score. The kids have done a good job all year with pitching, but we just struggled at the wrong time."

Wayne appeared to regain the momentum in the eighth, as Tory Booth came on as a pinch-hitter and delivered a two-out single to right, scoring Dunklau.

Tory came up big for us in the eighth," Zeiss said. "That was a key hit after Sidney had scored to tie it up, and we were able to battle back and go ahead again."

Sidney responded, however, as two singles, a hit batter and a bases-loaded walk tied the game again at 4-4. Sidney got a leadoff double and the run came home on a dribbler on the third base side, eliminating Wayne from the tournament.

Zeiss said the team loses six quality players in Dunklau, Pieper, Triggs, Tyler Schaefer, Mike Kay and Drew Workman, all of whom played in their final campaign.

"We lose a great group of young men that have been a part of four state tournament appearances and three district championships," he said. "We'll miss their experience and we'll have a lot of spots to fill, but we'll have a good nucleus coming back and some good kids moving up from the Juniors team."

Wakefield Seniors finish as state runners-up

gles and an Adams error to plate three more runs for the 5-0 advantage.

Adams came back in a big way, though, scoring six in the third to overtake Wakefield. The big blow was a monstrous three-run homer by Ryan Busboom, a shot that easily cleared the 295-foot marker in left field, sailed over a road and into a nearby pond.

It stayed that way until the seventh, when Henderson delivered his own blast, a solo shot to left that tied the game at 6-6. Michael Eaton, who was pinch-running for Jake Blessing, scored the winning run on a wild pitch with two out in the top of the eighth, and A.J. Bormann saved the win for Henderson, who pitched 6 1/3 innings of relief to get the win.

It took two days for Wakefield to get past the host team in the opening round of the tournament, as a strong thunderstorm put Friday's final game of the day on hold until Saturday morning.

That was bad news for Wakefield, which had staked itself to an early 7-0 lead when the rains came in the second inning. That loss of momentum seemed to help the host team, which battled back and made a game of it before Wakefield held on for the 12-11 win.

Wakefield got out to a big lead early, getting five hits in their first at bat. An RBI double by Henderson got things going, and singles by Clay, Bormann and Brock Soderberg kept the rally going. Leadoff hitter Nixon got two plate appearances in the opening inning and made the most of his second trip to the batter's box with a bases-clearing double that capped the rally.

Once play resumed Saturday, West Point looked like a different team. Down 12-5 in the fourth, they rallied for four in the fifth and two in the sixth before running out of gas.

"The thing that hurt us was that Friday game getting rained out," Eaton said. "our pitchers' innings (against West Point) counted for Saturday, so we lost a day there. And West Point battled us so hard, so we had to use more of our pitching than we had hoped. They just battled us and played us so tough. We were lucky to win the game."

Bormann was 4-for-4 in the win with a homer and three RBIs, while Nixon went 2-for-3.

Wakefield trailed only briefly in their second tournament game, as Nixon gave up a one-out double that scored a run to give Adams a 1-0 lead.

Adams' pitcher Jordan Pells looked to be in control early, but the wheels came off in the second inning when he suddenly ran into control problems. Three straight walks loaded the bases for Nixon, who was hit by a pitch to bring the tying run home.

The next batter was Clay, who laid down what proved to be a key squeeze bunt that turned Wakefield's second inning into a nightmare for Adams. Clay brought Ian Miner home with the two-out drag up the first base side, and by the time it was over, Pells was long gone and Wakefield put up 11 runs in the inning en route to a 15-4 win.

Every Wakefield player in the lineup scored during that 11-run explosion, as sent 13 consecutive batters to the plate after Adams had recorded the first two outs. Nixon had three RBIs in the inning, two coming on a single in his second plate appearance of the inning. Bormann had a bases-clearing double during the rally.

Adams got enough runs in the fourth inning to get the deficit back under 10 runs, but Wakefield responded with one in the third and three in the fourth, including a two-run homer by Henderson, to end the game on the 10-run rule.

That set up what proved to be the best pitching matchup of the tournament between Henderson and Peitzmeier. Peitzmeier shut Wakefield down on eight hits, but Henderson was simply unstoppable in giving up just two hits, both to his Yutan counterpart.

Unfortunately for Henderson, it was that second hit that proved to be the difference maker, as Peitzmeier took a two-out fastball over the wall in left center to give Yutan a 1-0 win on Sunday.

Wakefield had plenty of chances to win the game, loading the bases in the third and seventh innings. Both times, though, the local boys came away empty handed.

Nixon was nailed at home on a comebacker to the mound, which Eaton said was his fault.

"I hesitated on giving a sign I should've given," he said. "We have three sets of signs, and we were going to go back to the old set and we second-guessed ourselves and tried a different set of signs, and that threw the kids off. That was my fault."

Nixon started another rally in the seventh that eventually loaded the bases, but he was again thrown out at home on a force play.

"Colby pitched his heart out," Eaton said. "It was one of the best games a Wakefield pitcher has pitched in a state tournament, and he really deserved to win that one."

If Wakefield was suffering any ill effects from the heartbreaking loss, they got over it quickly Monday.

Nixon walked, hustled to third on a Clay sacrifice and scored on a single to right by Zach Blessing to give Wakefield an early lead. They added two more in the second on Clay's double to center, then blew the game open with four in the third, highlighted by Nixon's two-out, two-RBI double.

Crofton never got anything going against the tandem of Bormann and Nixon. They had runners in scoring position in four of the five innings, but never threatened and Wakefield closed out their second win by the 10-run rule.

"We know Crofton plays great baseball and has a great tradition, but it seemed every break went against them," Eaton said. "When we got up 3-0 on (Clay's double), that seemed to relax us and create more of a sense of urgency for them."

Summary of Class B state tournament games

Gretna dominated Nebraska City 10-4 Tuesday night to claim the 2009 Class B American Legion state title at Hank Overin Field.

Jared Gottberg pitched seven strong innings for Gretna, limiting Roncalli to four hits while striking out three and walking five.

Monday's Results

Omaha Roncalli 8, Lexington 4

Travis Peterson hit a two-run homer in the third, Matt Russell pitched five strong innings and Matt Ehlers threw two innings of one-hit relief to keep Nebraska City alive.

Tuesday's Results

Nebraska City 3, Omaha Roncalli 2

Omaha Roncalli scored twice in the sixth on a one-out double from Drew Matthews, to take a 2-1 lead, but Nebraska City forced extra innings when Pat Grundman singled and scored on John Kakes' base hit to tie the game at 2-2.

Roncalli went down in order in the eighth and ninth as Matt Russell threw two innings of no-hit relief for Logan Ehlers, who struck out seven and allowed just one hit over seven innings.

Gretna 10, Nebraska City 4

Gretna wasted no time in wrapping up the Class B state title, touching Nebraska City for four runs in the first and scoring in every inning to take the championship.

easy being green...
 Being "green" has certainly made it's way to the headlines of the media. Being environmentally responsible is a positive thing and actions taken within our home as well as large industries are making positive strides to reduce waste and recycle.

The flooring industry is no exception. We are proud to represent the leader in this field ... Mohawk Industries.

For example...
 Mohawk Carpets and Floorcoverings recycles 3 billion plastic bottles each year to create carpet fibers. That makes them the largest single user of recycled bottles in the nation. So you may be walking on a bottle you recycled last year!

Through it's carpet reclamation efforts Mohawk recycles old carpeting and creates carpet pad and plastic tubes used to ship carpet rolls instead of paper tubes.

These efforts will divert over 3 billion pounds of waste that previously went into landfills.. and at the same time reduces their use of paper by over 30 million pounds. That's equal about 8000 trees.

These are all feel good statements... but when it comes time to select carpet for your home you are also looking for selection, durability and ease of cleaning.

In addition to their industry leading efforts to reduce the impact on the environment... Mohawk is creating the most durable and easy cleaning carpets in the nation... in styles and colors to fit your home and lifestyle.

Visit our design showroom and discover the great selection of Mohawk products available for your home. And whether you choose a light beige or a deep blue... you'll actually be "green".

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Whenever a new columnist appears in a newspaper, readers often ask themselves, "Hey...who's the new guy, and what kind of column is he going to write?"

If you read last week's paper, you've already got a pretty good idea of WHO the new guy is. However, you probably aren't sure WHAT the new guy thinks...or WHY he thinks it.

This column will be a grab bag of topics, ideas and opinions. One week, the focus will be on some of the funny things in life. The next week, it could be a serious opinion about a major issue facing us on a local, state, national or world level.

You never know what you're going to get when you read this column. And, whether this column makes you laugh, cry or write an angry letter to the editor questioning the sanity of the individual writing this column (and, don't worry...you wouldn't be the first), it is my hope the potential for surprise will be more than enough for you to keep reading it each week.

And now, on with the show...
Since all my materials are packed in a box hidden in the back of a U-Haul that has yet to be unloaded, here are some thoughts and observations from the "Bits and Pieces" file:

— Bank and big business bailouts. A trillion-dollar health care plan. A budget that, without the health care plan, reaches well into the trillions of dollars. And now comes word from treasury secretary Tim Geithner that a raise in taxes to pay for all of it is all but inevitable.

Ladies and gentlemen...this is the charred remains of the U.S. government you voted for last November. Anybody feel like they've been sold a bill of goods yet?

— A female Sudanese journalist is facing punishment of 40 lashes for the unspeakable crime of wearing pants in public.

— Couldn't we issue a similar punishment here in America to some of the Hollywood harlots who do the exact opposite?

— Michael Jackson has been dead a little more than a month. His musical career died in the mid-1990s. Does this mean the major news networks (and CNN) will continue running irrelevant stories about the late pop singer until 2025?

— If nothing else, it would provide one more reason not to waste my time watching television.

— A recent study noted a 150 percent increase in the number of injuries to American schoolchildren during gym class.

This really shouldn't be much of a surprise — parents spend so much money providing their kids with their own televisions, video games, iPhones and other items that discourage physical activity that it's a wonder some of our kids can even roll themselves out of bed in the morning to go to school in the first place.

Here's a suggestion...make them run around the block while dangling their favorite electronic gadget just out of their reach. That will cut down on the number of aches and pains kids get after playing dodge ball in gym class.

— Three people attacked a man on a train in China after he refused to stop humming along to a song playing on his CD player. The man retaliated, stabbing his three attackers, killing two of them.

Let this be a lesson, boys and girls...don't mess with a Yanni fan.

— Tennessee Titans running back LenDale White reported to the team's preseason camp 30 pounds lighter. The secret? He stopped drinking tequila.

That's really no surprise to me...I stopped being married 15 years ago and lost 40 pounds. Unfortunately, all of that weight came out of my wallet.

— From the "This week's sign that young people today think everything they want should be handed to them, rather than working hard for it" department...A recent graduate from a four-year college in New York is suing the school because...brace yourselves...she can't find a job.

The information-technology grad alleges that Monroe College hasn't "tried hard enough" to help her find a job after she got her bachelor's degree in April. She is suing the school for her $70,000.

This is shocking news to me. When I graduated from college, I actually bought a newspaper and searched the classifieds for a job. I also printed out resumes and mailed or hand-delivered them to prospective employers. I even developed a network of contacts who might know of openings that came available.

I didn't get a job handed to me...I actually went out and found one on my own. Crazy idea, isn't it?

— Larry The Cable Guy announced that he is donating $1 million to a Lincoln charity that is building a shelter for children who are victims of physical and sexual abuse.

Much of the money raised came from his July 4 concert in Memorial Stadium, which take his catch phrase "Git R Done" to a whole new level for kids who are definitely in need of support.

The next regular City Council meeting will be Tuesday, Aug. 18 at 5:30 p.m. in the council room.

The Future of Wayne is Here

If you remember Hank Ley at State National Bank, Mel and Ruth Elofson at Coast to Coast, and Ken Olds, Attorney at Law, and George Goblirsh, Dentist, you might have noticed there is a new crop of leadership and business owners coming in Wayne. Two key signs of future community wealth and employment are 1) successful transfer of a business when people retire and 2) new investment in business startups.

Here's where I'll get in trouble because I can't guess age and this is not meant to be a complete list: Here are a few of the "new kids" showing up in business in Wayne that will direct Wayne's future when we geezers move on:

- 1) B.J., Chris, and Matt Woehler - R&W Construction;
- 2) Tom Hansen - CPA;
- 3) Gerkin - G's Quick Stop;
- 4) Jess Thompson - International Stone Works;
- 5) Josh Hopkins - Optometrist;
- 6) Stacey Craft - Coffee Shoppe

on Main;

- 7) Louis and Javanah Benscoter - Benscoter Construction;
- 8) Casey Schroeder - Casey Electric;
- 9) Amy Wiebelhaus and Kyle Dahl - Attorneys at Law;
- 10) Jeff Piper and Jeremy Nelson - Networking Plus;
- 11) Natalie Endicott - Moments Portrait Boutique;
- 12) Brent Pick - developer/builders;
- 13) Adam Endicott - Pac 'N' Save;
- 14) Chris and Huck Jager - Builders Resource;
- 15) Amy Swcheers - Property Exchange Partners;
- 16) Scott Carhart - Carhart Lumber;
- 17) Chad Frideres - Exhaust Pros;
- 18) Daryl Lindsay - Wayne Auto Parts.

Thank them when you see them and patronize their business.

Balancing taxes against services

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Every so often you hear a simple description or explanation of an issue and, if you're not afraid of being trite, you're inclined to say "That says it all."

Mayor Margaret Hornady of Grand Island came up with such an offering recently when she talked about the city council's acknowledgment that the city needs a 14 percent boost in property tax revenues to meet its budget demands.

Hornady prefaced her explanation with an acknowledgment that such news is not what taxpayers want to hear.

"I couldn't be sorrier," she told the Grand Island Independent. "Times are tough. I know they're tough."

And then she 'said it all' in just two sentences.

"The need for services doesn't go down. They are there whether we have good times or bad."

There you have it.

It's a reality that eventually hits every elected official who has a hand in decisions involving the amount of property tax dollars to be extracted from property owners.

It's also a reality that doesn't much assuage taxpayers, especially those who think any number of services - from parks and pools to police and street maintenance and libraries - should be reduced or eliminated.

It is also representative of something of the eternal colloquy between any elected official and a constituent.

Official: "Whaddya' want from me?"

Citizen: "Lower taxes. And good services!"

The 2010 Legislature might have a look at the Bank Shot video game, which has been placed in at least 400 bars statewide.

Players can bet anywhere from 25 cents to $4 on each game. The issue centers on whether Bank Shot is a skill game (which would be legal) or whether it's a game of chance (which would be illegal).

Attorney General Jon Bruning will likely issue a statement or official opinion on the matter, later if not sooner, on his perceived legal status of the game.

Regardless of his view, it's a game and it involves money and that means odds are good that lawmakers will examine it from several angles - one of them being whether Bank Shot revenues offer a target for greater tax revenue.

Federal stimulus dollars keep arriving, and local officials continue to express gratitude. A bundle of federal bucks that arrived last week will help a few communities, most especially Omaha, hire new police officers or keep current law enforcement officers on the payroll.

The thing to remember:

Those stimulus dollars are guaranteed for only a few years. Then, it will be up to local government to come up with the money to keep those officers on the job.

Such being the case, see it one in this column, regarding services and the need to pay for them.

It's a never ending story.

Thanks to fair people

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Wayne Community Q-125 Committee, I would like to extend our thanks to the Wayne County Fair Board and all the fine people who worked the fair from the ticket takers to the parking attendants and all the people who made the fair such an enjoyable experience for our group and for us as individuals.

I personally have not spent a lot of time at previous fairs, but I did this year and all of you should be complemented for your dedication and hard work. You made a special weekend for the community and all the visitors to the community. It amazes me that you can offer so much and the entertainment you offer at the price you offer it for, it is great.

Special thanks go out to Ken Liska who is on our committee and worked to have you include two activities in the fair that came from our committee - the Antique Tractor and Farm Machinery Display and the Old Time Farm Hand Competition.

Special thanks also go out to two neat people, Alan Finn who coordinated the Tractor and Machinery Display and to Kim Dunklau for spearheading the Old Time Farm Hand competition. To these people, and the many people who assisted them that I do not have the names of, thanks a bunch for doing a great job and adding enjoyment and fun to those who viewed both events. They were great.

Best wishes to you for continued success at future fairs.

I remain, Tony Kochenash, Q-125 Committee Chair.

Safe Routes Nebraska Announces Available Funding & Application Workshops

The Nebraska Department of Roads "Safe Routes Nebraska" Program is announcing the availability of funds for projects that encourage and better enable children in Nebraska to walk and bike safely to school. "Safe Routes Nebraska" is conducting workshops in August to assist communities with project ideas.

Schools, state, local, and non-profit organizations may apply through by completing an intent-to-apply form located at www.SafeRoutesNE.com. The deadline for intent to apply is Thursday, Sept. 3.

Safe Routes Nebraska representatives will conduct workshops Aug. 11 in Kearney at the Fort Kearney Visitor's Center (1007 2nd Avenue) and Aug. 12 in Norfolk at Health and Human Services (209 N. 5th Street). The format will consist of a presentation with information about the program followed by a working session for communities to discuss project ideas.

Participants are encouraged to bring materials such as maps and photos to help explain their project ideas.

Safe Routes funding is 100 percent funded by the federal government and requires no matching funds by local entities. The funds, benefiting elementary and middle school students, are divided into two categories: infrastructure (school route improvements, traffic diversion and bicycle facilities) and non-infrastructure (promotional materials, student bicycle and pedestrian safety education sessions).

The Safe Routes to School program is focused on promoting physical activity and improving health, making routes to school safe, and reducing traffic congestion around schools by encouraging children to walk and bike to school. Childhood obesity rates have more than tripled in the past 30 years while the number of children walking and biking to school has declined. According to the 2001 National Household Travel Survey, less than 16 percent of students between the ages of 5 and 15 walked or biked to or from school, compared to 42 percent in 1969.

Through the 2005 passage of the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users (SAFETEA-LU), Congress designated a total of $612 million toward developing the National Safe Routes to School Program. These funds will be distributed to the Nebraska Department of Roads and will fund education, planning and implementation of Safe Routes to School plans and programs.

For more information regarding the "Safe Routes Nebraska" Program, visit www.SafeRoutesNE.com

Pamida's Back to School pinup program raises money for school supplies Pamida Foundation has announced their Back-to-School Pinup Program in Pamida stores across the Midwest.

The Program raises money for schools in Pamida communities. Funds are raised through customer donations and distributed to schools for the purchase of school supplies for underprivileged children.

Customers may purchase pin-ups for $1 each in any Pamida store until Friday, Aug. 21. Each donation will go to a local school designated by the store. The Pamida Foundation will match up to $250 per community during the program. "We are very excited about this year's Back-to-School Pinup Program in our Pamida communities said Jessica Strohman, executive director of the Foundation. "The program is designed to support local schools and provide support to children to start the school year off right. The Foundation strives to support education in our communities and this is just another way we are able to help students have a very successful year."

The Pamida Foundation supports more than 800 charitable organizations that focus on education, health and social services. In 2008, the Pamida Foundation donated more than $700,000 to these organizations to help improve the lives of citizens in their communities. The Foundation's 2009 goal is to donate $1 million to Pamida communities.

Take in financial need when income is reduced

It's a matter of fact. People who lose their job will go through a grief process. The best way to handle that grief is to accept it and move on. Realize that this is the current economy we are in and there may be nothing you can do about it.

Once you accept the fact that you have lost or are going to lose your job, you need to inventory what resources you have available to get you through the coming crisis.

Figure out a bare bones budget you can live on. Start by listing your financial resources. Determine how much you have in a savings account or in certificates of deposit in case you need to cash them in.

Then turn to the expense side of the budget. Ask yourself how you can shave your expenses to the bare minimum.

If you know ahead that your job is going to be cut, prepare for the inevitable ahead of time. Start living on a bare bones budget right away and set aside as much extra money as you can.

Also, look at your debt. Try to negotiate different credit terms on your debt. See if you can extend the time frames of your loans to cut monthly payments. Your priority should be doing all you can to keep your house and your car.

Beyond the budgeting, you will

Sandy Preston
Dixon County

want to start looking for a new job as soon as possible.

Most jobs are not found through an ad in the newspaper but through other people.

Look at your people resources and work those networks. As soon as you can, let those people know that you will be available for a new job.

Web resources are available to help you prepare and deal with a job loss - www.paydowndebt.unl.edu will help you come up with a plan to lower your debt, while www.toughtimes.unl.edu provides several resources on how to deal with difficult economic times. Many hours of labor have gone into the renovation of the former City Library building at Fifth and Main in Wayne, now named the "Front Porch."

Our Savior Lutheran Church's new after-school program for children in kindergarten through sixth grade will begin on the first day of school, Thursday, Aug. 13.

Although the building will still serve as the youth center, during the weekdays it will be the center of activity and assisted homework for the younger set.

The Director, Michelle Combs, has been preparing art activities, outdoor and indoor games and activities, snacks, and "Fun Fridays." On Wednesdays the children who wish to sing and play children's chimes may participate in these choirs.

More volunteers are welcome to share their talents, their time, and their abilities to help with homework. There are still openings for children, too. Enrollments may be for one day or several days, or all five days of the week. Contact Our Savior Lutheran, 375-2899, or the after-school program director for more information.

An Open House will be held for the public and especially all interested parents and volunteers, on Monday, Aug. 10, from 5 to 7 p.m. Dairy Queen is providing Dilly Bars to the first 72 visitors.

Healthy Farm Index will help farmers see the big picture

While profits and yields often are the bottom line for farmers, a new University of Nebraska-Lincoln tool called the Healthy Farm Index will help farmers take into account the benefits of nature. An integral part of UNL's organic farming project, the tool will help farmers and landowners measure their farm's ecological health and maintain or improve crop productivity. "It will help farmers find a balance between maintaining profits and yields while enhancing the farm ecosystem," said John Quinn, a third-year doctoral student at

UNL leading the project's research. "We really want this to be a tool for farmers interested in looking at a broader spectrum of their farm based on the best science available."

The Healthy Farm Index will measure and optimize multiple ecosystem services, communicate their value and ensure that ecosystem services remain in the decision-making process of farmers, agency personnel and other stakeholders.

Ecosystem services include all the benefits people receive from nature. This includes everything produced on the farm like clean water, air and soil.

"These are things that we want farmers to think about and talk about," Quinn said. "While farmers may be talking now about high yields, we want them to be talking about protecting their watershed and bird species on their farms. If we can get those things as part of their conversations, we can get them as part of the decision making process."

UNL researchers have designed the tool so any individual can use it. By the end of this year they will have a Web-based user interface so that anyone can go online and plug in his or her information.

While researchers have started with 27 organic farms across Nebraska and Kansas for this project, Quinn hopes all farmers some day will use the tool. The team started with organic farmers because they have more diverse systems and have more crops on a smaller scale.

The project has received four more years of USDA funding. Quinn, a native of Minneapolis, Minn., will continue this research post-doctoral. Other members of the UNL research team working on the Healthy Farm Index are James Brandle, professor in UNL's School of Natural Resources, and Ron Johnson, formerly of UNL, now with the Department of Forestry and Natural Resources at Clemson University. The principle investigator for the UNL organic farming project is Charles Shapiro, UNL soils scientist.

The project started when Quinn set out to study birds and food production on farm systems.

"The more people we talked to, the more we realized that we needed to look at something broader," Quinn said.

The Healthy Farm Index covers ecological, social and economic factors of farm systems.

Current indicators for the Healthy Farm Index include: production; yield, diversification and acres; biodiversity; habitat, birds, crops and livestock; ecosystem services/conservation practices; soil, water and landscape; personal satisfaction with profit and farm management. The structure of the index is designed so that other indicators can be added as more research is conducted and more people participate.

So far, researchers have sampled breeding bird populations and associated insect and vegetation communities on the 27 organic farms. They are finishing up their third year of data of early morning bird surveys. Surveys start at sunrise and finish four hours later.

In addition, farmer surveys are being conducted with participating farms for their crop production and management practices, including their satisfaction with their farm operation.

When it comes to birds, some have responded differently to different vegetation practices, such as windbreaks versus larger wooded areas.

Researchers also are looking at balancing bird diversity with production using a frontier curve. This will allow farmers to make small adjustments to their management strategy, such as reducing yield by two percent, but dramatically increasing bird diversity.

"Basically, all these components come together to give us an index value," Quinn said. "The whole purpose is to have a decision making tool for farmers."

For more information about the Healthy Farms Index, visit the Web at <http://hfi.unl.edu>.

The UNL organic project began in October 2005. All four University of Nebraska-Lincoln organic farms now are certified by the Organic Crop Improvement Association International. The four research farms are located at the Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead, the Haskell Agricultural Laboratory near Concord, the South Central Agricultural Laboratory near Clay Center and the High Plains Agricultural Laboratory near Sidney.

The principle investigator for the UNL organic farming project is Charles Shapiro, UNL soils scientist. For information about organic research at UNL visit the Organic Working Group Web site at <http://organic.unl.edu> or contact Liz Sarno at esarno2@unl.edu or (402) 309-0944.

Magazine article full of interesting facts

Well, after temperatures over 90 degrees for the first time in weeks, we had .40 of an inch of rain last night! Welcome rain, believe me. Here's hoping that northeast Nebraska had even more than that.

Kay gave me one of those deals that grow tomatoes upside down, so it's hanging from a hook on the deck. There are all kinds of tomatoes, but they are staying green. They say it hasn't been hot enough to ripen them, and I believe it.

We have finally stopped subscribing to so many magazines, and the coffee table looks neater as a result. Mike's cousin in Arizona sends Guideposts, but that is a quick read and I pass it on to my Mom. She, in turn, gives me the Reader's Digest, which takes a while longer.

Then there is Nebraska Life, which is published in Norfolk. We both read it almost cover to cover, and enjoy the great photography. Since I give gift subscriptions to the kids and to our siblings, and Mom returns it after she's read it, I've been sending it home with cousin Paul who lives in Topeka.

That basically leaves Nebraska Cattleman, which we don't pay for and are not members, and the Nebraska Farmer. That's another one we both read, and marvel at what it takes to farm these days. The latest issue features some young families trying to get started, and some of the problems they have faced, along with some tax credit that should help.

Last night, one article explained a campaign to promote ag's positives, and it features delivery trucks painted the way I was complaining about last week. But these have a picture of a farmer looking over his corn crop and proclaim that corn farmers use 36 percent less fertilizer than 30 years ago. That looks good to me!

There was also a guest editorial by Paula Mohr that listed some very interesting facts. For instance, agriculture employs 20 percent of the US workforce, or about 21 million people; more than seven times as many workers as the auto industry. We spend less than 10 percent of our income on food, less than consumers in any other country. Ninety-five percent of our farms are run by families, partnerships or co-ops. Less than 5 percent are corporate farms.

Only 10 percent of funding in the farm bill goes to farm programs;

AG Bruning says countrywide agreement will provide compensation to Nebraskans

Attorney General Jon Bruning recently announced that 156 Nebraskans are eligible to receive a payment of at least $907.72. The payment is part of a settlement reached with Countrywide Financial Corporation back in October. The settlement resolved allegations that the company used unfair and deceptive tactics in its loan-origination and servicing activities, and that borrowers were often put in unfair and unaffordable loans.

"Countrywide's unfair practices affected 156 Nebraskans, and now those Nebraskans will receive compensation," said Bruning.

more than 70 percent goes to food and nutrition programs such as food stamps, not to farmers. (And, ironically, most farmers don't qualify for food stamps, or, if they do, refuse to apply.)

Finally, 40 percent of the country is farmland. That's an area nine times the size of California; greater than twice the size of Alaska. These are facts we need to share! There are a lot of misperceptions out there. I confess I learned some things, too; the article is on page 24.

Crop meetings upcoming

It's been a busy week with a lot of activities going on at the Dixon and Wayne county fairs. I would like to thank all the volunteers, judges, superintendents, and parents who make the 4-H aspects a rewarding and learning experience for the kids. That being said, I'm ready for a few days off.

We have another meeting scheduled soon for growers in the northeast Nebraska area. On Tuesday, Aug. 18 we will be having a soybean cyst nematode meeting at the Jerry Johnson farm. The field is near the 575 Ave 877 Rd junction, north and east of Laurel. Soybean cyst nematodes are present in a lot of Nebraska fields and are causing significant yield losses. To learn more about this damaging pest come to the field day at 10 a.m. on the 18th.

The nearest Soybean Management Field Day is going to be held on Friday, Aug. 14 at the Mel and Matt Bailey farm near Schuyler. From Highway 15 and Highway 30 intersection north of Schuyler, go east on Highway 30 for 2.6 miles. Turn north into driveway just after Highway 30 changes from four lanes to two lanes. The field site is located on the north side of the road. Other sites are near McCook, Upland and Greeley earlier in the week.

For more information about the SMFD and maps to sites, visit the Soybean Management Field Days Web site at <http://ardc.unl.edu/soydays>. Or contact the Nebraska Soybean Board at (800)852-BEAN or University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension at 1-800-529-8030. Well, as of this writing I've still got two days of the Dixon County Fair left, so I'm going to sign off. Have a great weekend.

The first site will focus on cool season grass rotation, fence and water placement, grass utilization, management challenges during drought and forage inventory. The second site will demonstrate brush management (cedar trees) showing results of different chemical use plots, monitoring and forage inventory. The third site will have brush management as well with cedar, plum, locust and other brush plots.

Featured speakers will include Justin Frick, Nebraska Grazing Lands Coalition, Dupont and Dow chemical representatives, Cory Schmit, LENRD/Northeast Nebraska Forester, UNL Cooperative Extension personnel and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) personnel.

The tour will be held rain or shine, but if severe weather, the tour will be postponed to Monday, Aug. 24. This meeting is free to the public. Any questions or to request maps for the sites may contact the NRCS office in Pierce at 402-329-4996 Ext. 3.

This tour is sponsored by the Natural Resources Conservation Service, Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District, and UNL Cooperative Extension.

Winside Legion Auxiliary gathers

Roy Reed Unit No. 252, American Legion Auxiliary of Winside met on July 13, with six members present. Vice President Laura Neel called the meeting to order with Chaplain Adeline Anderson providing prayer. The members recited the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble to the Auxiliary Constitution. Adeline Anderson served as hostess for the evening. It was reported that the final total for Poppy Day collections was $398.95. Proceeds from the fund will be used for Veterans-connected projects at the Norfolk Veterans Home which is the District 3 President's project as well as the Department

President's project. Additionally, the fifth grade students who participated in the 2009 Poppy Poster Contest will receive cash prizes for their participation. Marva Kasl, Department President for 2008-2009, proposed that each Unit with permanent members (our Unit has 8) consider making a $5 donation to the general fund for each permanent member to help overcome the loss of funding when the Department waived taking its share of funding from the Permanent Member fund to be placed into the general fund for operation of the Department. Inasmuch as few members were in attendance this evening this item will be carried over to the August meeting for consideration and action.

The auxiliary is into the 2010 Membership Campaign and the Unit has a Goal of 76 members and have 26 paid memberships to date. The National organization will be sending dues notices out between Aug. 1-15, 2009; therefore, all members should be receiving their notice in the mail shortly. Junior members are not sent notices, but a Unit notice to the girls has been made. Dues remain at $15 for Senior members and $3 for Junior members, aged infancy through 17 years of age.

A report was given by Beverly Neel, who attended the Department Convention at Columbus NE, June 25-28. The Finance Committee presented a resolution to raise the Department dues by $2 for Senior memberships and that passed and will take effect with the payment of 2011 dues. It should be noted that the National Convention will be held at Louisville Ky. in late August and it is very possible the National organization will be asking for an increase of dues as well. It is not anticipated that any increase in Junior dues will take place.

District 3 is very proud to announce that Mrs. Dean (Carol) Ulrich, member of Anton Bokemper Unit 81 in Wakefield was elected to the position of Department President 2009-2010 at the Department Convention. Her theme is Awareness, Action, Auxiliary Awards and her symbols are the flag and a candle. We congratulate Carol for her aspiring to this position and wish for her a grand year.

The Unit was advised that the annual Legion picnic is to be held on Sunday, Sept. 13 at 5 p.m. for socializing and a 6 p.m. meal. Traditionally, the Girl Staters and Boy Stater give their report of their experience at these programs held at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus. The 2009 students participating from Winside Public School were Hope Voss and Caroline Burris as Girl State candidates and Peter Hansen for Boy State.

Junior members will be finding a time to gather so we can discuss plans for centerpieces at the Norfolk Veterans Home for Veterans Day 2009.

The next meeting for the Auxiliary will be Monday, Aug. 10 with Beverly and Laura Neel serving as hostesses. This will also be Installation of Officers for 2009-2010. Members are asked to attend and bring in membership dues and get paid before the deadline of Dec. 31, 2009, as on New Year's Day 2010 every member should have her 2010 membership card in hand.

Alpha Omicron Pi Social Sorority receives awards

University of Nebraska at Kearney social sorority Alpha Omicron Pi received three international chapter awards at the 2009 Alpha Omicron Pi International Convention held in Tampa, Fla.

The UNK chapter was one of only 27 chapters who received a Ruby Award for Distinguished Chapters. There are 105 active Alpha Omicron Pi chapters.

The Ruby Award for Distinguished Chapters is awarded to chapters who have accomplished at least 90 percent of the Standards of Excellence (SOE). SOE are points of measurement for progress in a variety of areas such as philanthropy, recruitment and academics. Officers of the Leader's Council (LC) are responsible for documenting SOE within their office on an annual basis.

"The Ruby Award is such a big achievement," said Katie Grant, Phi Sigma chapter president. "The LC members set a goal for this award, and I'm proud of them and all the ladies within the house. It took everyone's hard work to reach this goal."

The chapter also took home an Academic Development Cup, which is awarded to chapters with outstanding leadership, scholarship and scholarship programming for the biennium. To be eligible, the chapter must achieve a grade point average (GPA) of 3.14 or higher on a 4.0 scale for at least one semester of the biennium.

In addition, the chapter received participation recognition for the annual philanthropy event, "Strike Out Arthritis." The event is an annual dodgeball tournament held by the UNK chapter that raises funds for arthritis research. This spring, the UNK chapter raised more than $1,700 for the Arthritis Foundation, which awards research grants and scholarships to families and LouAnn Burcham of Waterbury, NE and James and Merna Klug of Yankton, SD. Vanessa is 14 years old and will be a freshman at Allen Consolidated School.
