Wayne's 125th birthday celebration a big hit

(Photos by Clara Osten and Michael Carnes)

Whether it was Cathy Varley winning the Jaycees' Kiss The Pig contest, getting your hand (and everything else) dirty in mud volleyball or showing off your best beard and mustache, Wayne's Q-125 celebration had plenty of good times to offer. More information and photos are in this week's issue.

Pipeline construction progressing through county

By Michael Carnes Of The Herald

People driving along the roads in western Wayne County are getting an eyeful of a 2,148-mile pipeline project that will ultimately stretch from Canada to Oklahoma and Illinois.

The Keystone Pipeline project is making its way through the state of Nebraska right now, as more than 550 workers construct a pipeline that will transport crude oil from Hardisty, Alberta (located southeast of Edmonton) to destinations in Cushing, Okla., and Patoka, Illinois. The Calgary, Alberta-based company hopes to be pumping about 590,000 barrels of crude oil per day through the pipeline by the end of 2010.

Coy Edwards, a land man for Price Gregory, a Houston, Texas-based company working with TransCanada on the project, said most of the Nebraska part of the project, which runs from the northern border south to the village of Steele City before splitting into routes that will go to Oklahoma and Illinois, should be completed by the end of November.

"This part of the project started in Freeman, S.D., and goes about 140 miles to the Platte River," he said. "We have a lot of obstacles, though, with some of the creeks and rivers and wetlands."

Roads also present challenges for the construction crews. Looking over a portion of the site along Highway 98 west of Wayne, you can see pipe laid along a 110-foot width of land that has been turned into the construction zone, with four-foot deep trenches dug for the piges. Holes are bored underneath each county road and state highway, and piping is welded together and place into the hole.

"Depending on what's under a road, we can usually bore a hole through one in a day or so," Edwards said. "On the highways, sometimes it takes a couple of days, depending on how hard it was to bore a hole through."

Because of the variance in terrain, a series of 20-foot long wooden mats were constructed to allow work crews to drive vehicles down into the work area. Edwards said the company worked with the state's Department of Roads to allow for the creation of the mats.

"Otherwise, we'd have to drive vehicles up a mile and work our way back," he said.

TransCanada worked out deals with area landowners to purchase a permanent easement along the pipeline, which allows the company to come in and do whatever work might be required to fix any leaks that develop along the pipeline. Area farmers with center pivots are unable

Teachers' agreement is approved

By Lynn Sievers Of the Herald

The Wayne Community School's Board of Education met in regular session Monday night. The 2009-2010 negotiated agreement between the school board and the WEA (Wayne Education Association) was discussed. School board member Rod Garwood made a motion to approve the negotiated agreement pending approval of the teaching staff, board member Dr. Jeryl Nelson seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Among routine business reports and actions was the resignation of Kay Domsch as full time kitchen staff and the hiring of Pam Ekberg for the position. School board member Mark Evetovich made a motion to approve the hiring of Ekberg, Wendi Consoli seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Evetovich made a motion to approve the financial claims, Consoli seconded the motion which passed unanimously.

Milo Meyer Construction's gift of dirt work in the parking expansion project behind the high school was recognized. The city's concrete work for the parking area was also noted.

Administration reports were discussed. Wayne High principal Mark Hanson gave the board information on a problem some schools across the nation are having on sexting, which is students sending classmates inappropriate photos via cellphones. He wanted the board to be aware of the term and activity and that it has been addressed in the student handbook.

Middle School principal Tim Krupicka added that if students bring cell phones to school, they are put in the office. He also noted cyber bullying, which is also a national problem.

Elementary principal Daryl Schrunk noted a change in their building in respect to how the school deals with custody disputes and orders. He said the school is not responsible and will not get involved unless an emergency situation arises.

Athletic Director Rocky Ruhl stated that football practice had started. The board congratulated Ruhl on being promoted from a board member to an executive position in the Nebraska Coaches Association.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan reported on the following: a reimbursement of $4,036.96 from Columbia insurance company; an update on the roof, which he feels the board needs to move forward on; an update on the boiler situation, which Ameritas will work with them on cost. He added that bids will be opening; an update on the elevator, which is ahead of schedule.

Benefit for Jeffrey is set for Aug. 23 at St. Mary's

A benefit is planned for Landan Jeffrey, five-year-old son of Troy and Megan Jeffrey of Omaha; and grandson of Terri Jeffrey and Lynn "Chic" Jeffrey of Wayne. The benefit to help defray medical expenses from heart surgeries will be held Sunday, Aug. 23 at Holy Family Hall at St. Mary's Church, 11a.m. - 3p.m. If unable to attend, donations can be sent to P.O. Box 52, Wayne, NE or left at State National Bank & Trust Company.

Looking back, Landan started having migraine headaches two years ago and would get so sick that his parents would rush him to the hospital only to be told there was nothing wrong. A new doctor was found who told his mother that Landan had a heart murmur, which they didn't know.

During this time, Landan was also taken to a neurologist for the headaches where a MRI and blood testing was ordered because Megan had a history of strokes. The blood results showed Landan had a clotting gene from his mother and his father so he is at great risk of having blood clots. The MRI didn't show anything so the neurologist was stumped. While waiting for the doctors to figure it out, Megan did her own research and found that holes in the heart can cause a heart murmur as well as migraine headaches. Landan was on a very powerful dose of migraine medicines, which slowed down the problem but didn't solve it.

Fire takes Winside shop

Firefighters from six area fire departments battled a blaze at Rabe's Body Shop in Winside Tuesday afternoon. The Winside Fire Department received mutual aid from Wayne, Hoskins, Carroll, Winside and Stanton fire departments, as well as water assistance from Central Valley Ag and Gerhold Concrete, in battling the blaze. Don Skokan, Winside fire chief, said the cause of the fire was undetermined and was still under investigation. Area farmers, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and a number of area farmers also assisted in fighting the fire.

Mary Jo Curtis

Mary Jo Curtis, 89, of Laurel, died on Wednesday, Aug. 5, 2009 at the

Hillcrest Care Center in Laurel

Memorial services were held on Thursday, Aug. 13 at the United Presbyterian Church of Laurel with the Rev. Stephen W. Deines officiating. A memorial service will also be held on Friday, Aug. 14, at 11 a.m. at the United Church of Christ in Ainsworth.

Mary Jo Catterson Curtis, only living daughter of Emmett and Ollie (Kirkwood) Catterson, was born in Lincoln on March 5, 1920. She attended a country grade school south of Bassett, where her parents ranched. She moved to Broken Bow in 1933 where her father was Assistant County Agent. The family moved to Ainsworth in 1934 where her father was County Agent for the KBR area and her mother helped to organize the first Home Extension Clubs. After graduating from Ainsworth High School in 1937, she attended the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, University of South Dakota, and the University of Nebraska, Kearney. She graduated from UN-Kearney with a BS degree in Education and English. During this time she taught at Wheeler County High, Ainsworth High, the McAndrew Grade School, Long Pine High School and Keyapaha County High School. After retiring from teaching, she substituted in area schools. Mary Jo also worked with her daughter in her flower shop and was Activity Coordinator at the nursing home in Ainsworth. During World War II she was employed by Consolidated Aircraft in San Diego, Calif. as Personnel Director. She was married to Raleigh Hebert in 1942 and a daughter, Jeannia Jo, was born in Shenandoah, Iowa. This marriage ended in divorce. On May 29, 1949, Mary Jo was united in marriage to Wallace Curtis of Tecumseh in the Ainsworth United Church of Christ. Wally adopted Jeannia in 1950. They made their home in Ainsworth. Wally died on March 15, 1999.

Mary Jo was an avid horsewoman who organized the Middle of Nowhere Trail Ride in 1988. She was a Past Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, held many offices in the UCC Church, was a member of the Ainsworth Does, and Chairman of the Sellors Barton Museum for many years. She was instrumental in the building of the new addition to the museum. Mary Jo was a member of the Ainsworth Travel and Tourism and the Ainsworth Lodging Tax Committees. In 1990 she was chosen Senior Citizen of the year by the Ainsworth Chamber of Commerce and in 1993 was chosen Citizen of the Year by the BPOE # 1790. Mary Jo volunteered many hours with 4-H clubs, her church, and the Chamber of Commerce. In August of 2000, Mary Jo decided to move to Laurel, so she could be near her family. She was a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Laurel. She purchased a new home and again devoted her creative talents to decorating her home and raising a garden and flower bed. The day after she moved in she applied for a job with R-Way, a psychiatric rehabilitation service provider in Wayne! Mary Jo, at 80 years old, started a new career. Over the next nine years, she helped in many different departments but the last several years she worked to develop the cognitive skills of the consumers. She loved them and they loved her in return. Her nine year anniversary with R-Way was August 4.

Survivors include her daughter, Jeannia and Rod Bressler of Laurel, her granddaughter, Michelle Carlson of Winside; grandson, Gary (Bridget) Bottger of Laurel; four great-grandchildren; her beloved dogs, Bailey and Blondie, R Way staff and consumers.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, Wally, her brother, Jim Catterson, and son-in-law, Mark Nyberg.

Memorials in her memory, at her request, may be sent to R Way, 219 Main, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

Bressler-Munderloh Funeral Home in Wakefield was in charge of arrangements.

Why does this matter? Because for 70 percent of the winter, the heat pump is able to heat the home by itself. When it gets really cold, the thermostat senses the heat pump needs help, and it cycles the electric or gas furnace with it savings during the winter.

There is, how costs, with a heat pump an average home can save $300-$400 a year in heating costs because the heat pump is so efficient. For a majority of the winter you are heating your home with a system that is 200-300 percent efficient rather than the normal 80-95 percent efficiency of a furnace which burns fossil fuel.

· Are incentives available? Check with your local electric provider, there are NEW incentives available for customers who put in a high efficient heat pump. Choose between either a direct cash incentive ($200-$400) or 2.5 percent low interest loan through the Nebraska Energy Office.

There are very few cases where it makes sense from the homeowners' standpoint to install an air conditioner outside rather than a heat pump. They both perform exactly the same function in the summer - but the heat pump provides big

Recruiting new workers subject of recent UN-L study

Researchers from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will be mailing a survey to employers in six Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota communities in early August. Wayne is one of those communities.

The survey is part of a project is titled "Marketing Rural Communities to Attract and Retain Workers." The project is a collaborative effort between the University of Nebraska, North Dakota State University, and South Dakota State University. Its purpose is to apply innovative marketing concepts and methods commonly used in business to the problem of attracting new residents to rural communities and regions.

The end goal is to devise high impact workforce recruitment strategies in rural areas characterized by emerging workforce shortages. The project is funded by U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The survey is an important early step in developing an effective workforce recruitment strategy that will define the nature of area workforce requirements. This will allow communications to be targeted to the specific market characteristics of persons possessing the training and skills required within the local economy. Job vacancy surveys will be used to in estimating the extent and nature of labor shortages in the participating communities.

The communities selected for the study have all recently seen job growth outpace growth in the potential labor force. Businesses that will receive surveys were selected at random from within a group of industries that reflect each community's economy.

The survey will ask four sets of core questions related to job openings, job requirements, applicant characteristics and issues related to attracting and retaining qualified workers. All responses will be confidential, and will only be used for statistical purposes.

Upon completion of the study, researchers will provide a summary of the results to each participating community. The survey results can be used by a variety of groups to develop strategies to attract and retain needed workers and to more effectively assist employers and job seekers. Employers will be able to use the information to determine hiring competition and prioritize human resource needs.

Job seekers will be able to use the information to better understand the types of jobs offered in the area in order to make informed career decisions.

School Survival Training
Summer Reading closed and School Survival Training began at the Wayne Public Library on Aug. 11. The skills that will help each student through the year was drawn from, "The Worst-Case Scenario Survival Handbook: Junior Edition" by David Borgenicht and Robin Epstein. The party-goers prepared themselves for school by learning how to survive in situations such as: making friends, being the new kid in school, a trip to the principal's office, going splat in the lunch room, dealing with bullies and even how to survive breaking wind in public. They also had a great time learning some new playground games and making nutritious and fun snacks for after school.

Leadership Wayne class is being formed ties and workplaces for today and tomorrow, is being planned for the upcoming months.

The reason for Leadership Wayne is that successful communities cultivate and grow new leaders.

The program is especially valuable for emerging leaders who want to learn to work together for common purposes; older youth interested in staying or returning to the community someday to work and live; committee chairs who want to maximize the impact of their volunteers, and established leaders who want to build a new set of skills and relationships.

Sessions begin Thursday, Sept.

3 and will be held once a month through May. Each will run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at a site in Wayne yet to be determined.

Content includes Understanding Personality and Leadership Styles, Organizational Dynamics, Handling Change, Community Vision, Communication, Your State Government (this program will be a trip to Lincoln to observe the legislature in session), Economic Development, Regional Development and Making a Difference.

Sessions include working lunches with panels of community leaders and resource providers. Some sessions will incorporate tours of the community and local businesses.

Cost of the Leadership Wayne Program is $139 per participant. Applications may be picked up at the Wayne Area Economic Development Office, 108 West Third Street in Wayne; by calling (402) 375-2240 or info@wayneworks.org

Instructors will be University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Educators and Wayne State College

Leadership Wayne is funded in part by the Building Entrepreneurial Communities Act, administered by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

On June 25, 2008, Landan went through a three-hour surgery to close those holes. Once inside, the doctor couldn't get the devices to cover the holes the way they wanted. Landan's surgery was on big screens at the Nebraska Med Center. His doctor was video conferencing with several cardiologists. Afterwards, Landan was on blood-thinner shots. Finally, the migraines were gone.

In July, Landan was retested, and they found that the blood flow wasn't right, but the doctor felt that the skin hadn't fully formed around the devices, so they would recheck in six months. Landan had an appointment with a cardiologist, but since he was doing well and because there are so many medical bills, Megan and Troy were thinking of canceling the appointment. Landan was set to start school in the fall, so Megan decided to go with the appointment. A routine ECHO and EKG were done.

"The tech doing the ECHO didn't say much to me, but they want it quiet and dark so I was actually getting very sleepy," Megan said. "She got done and took us back to meet with the doctor. By the look on the doctor's face when he walked into the room, I knew something wasn't right. He said 'Here's the deal. The tech brought it to my attention that this abnormal blood flow is still there.' He said she's a very good tech to have spotted this because it's in such an odd spot."

The doctor went on to say that, worst case scenario, it's another hole and if that's the case, they would not be able to close it with another device because it's at the back of the heart and they couldn't get to it and there would be no skin to attach a device to.

"My heart stopped for a minute," Megan said. "No way could this be possible, he was doing so good."

The doctor continued with best case scenario, it's a normal thing in Landan's heart, that the blood may have made a new route. He took down Megan's number and said they would run more tests. Those tests came back inconclusive, and a TEE was preformed. The doctor found the family, and told them they had found another hole and it was in a bad location. It wasn't found in the first surgery, which explained why the heart was still enlarged. He added that the blood flow they saw was going from the heart to the lungs. He added that Landan was at great risk for a stroke, that he had talked to an open-heart specialist and both agreed that Landan needed surgery soon. The open heart surgery was set for June 30, one year from the first surgery.

In the surgery on June 30, they removed the devices they had put in, took tissue from Landan's body and repaired all the holes at once. The doctor said when they were inside they found a cluster of holes. Megan noted it was hard to see her baby in the PICU, as he was hooked up to a lot of stuff, complaining of pain but highly medicated. The you all enough."

next day, Landan was sick to his stomach and had thrown up. The family asked people to continue to pray for their son. Around July 4, their prayers were answered. There was a turnaround for Landan and he started feeling better. He was released from Children's Hospital, just in time to watch fireworks. Landan was sent home on a medication that didn't allow him to be in the sun, and for a little guy, not being able to be in the sun during the summer months is a challenge.

He was also told to stay away from physical activities that may cause a blow to the chest area in any way for 8-12 weeks. Afte: about a week this was beginning to get a little difficult. He was feeling better and he wanted to keep up with everyone else. Landan ther developed an infection, but afte returning to the hospital for antibi otics, that cleared up.

As the weeks go on, Landan cor tinues to get stronger. He returne to the cardiologist on Aug. 11, an at that visit his family was tol the best news they have heard i the past two years. Landan wi return in six months to have anoth er ECHO. If, at that time, thing are looking good, he will not hav to be seen for five years. Landan a very brave young man who ha been through so much.

"Without the support from or family and friends, we wouldn have made it through this difficu time," Megan said. "We can't than

Looking at 9-3 season for Huskers

The season opener for the Nebraska football team is three weeks away, and there is a lot of excitement building for this year's team after Bo Pelini dragged the program from the abyss of mediocrity left behind by its predeces-

The aftermath of the 62-28 beatdown the Huskers experienced in Oklahoma last year was the game that showed Husker fans the direction this team was heading under its new coach. Under its previous regime, the team would have (and, quite often, did) fold like a cheap tent. Last year, though, we found that this was going to be a program that wasn't going to be pushed around like that anymore.

The Huskers finished off the year in outstanding fashion, winning its last three games, securing a share of the Big 12 North Division title and then showing its moxie with a Gator Bowl win over a solid Clemson team. After that effort, Husker fans are feeling they are going to see their team back on top very soon.

Not so fast, folks.

This is a team that is improving by leaps and bounds. However, as it was with last year's team, one side of the ball is going to carry the team until the other side develops, and there are still going to be some nicks and bruises to experience this season

Last year, the offense had solid leadership and helped keep the team in some high-scoring battles while a defense that was absolutely gutted under the previous regime took time to get its groove back. This year, the reverse is true, as there are many question marks on offense that must be answered, leaving it to the Blackshirts to keep opposing offenses at bay.

Zac Lee must step in at quarterback and lead a major college program, something he has no prior experience with. He has some good talent to work with, including Iback Marlon Lucky and receivers Todd Peterson and Nate Swift. There is also a pretty solid offensive line, led by Matt Slauson and Lydon Murtha on the right side.

Still, Lee has not seen enough time under center in Lincoln, and it might take a few games for him to have it all down.

Defensively, Ndamukong Suh leads a very talented outfit, and the Huskers will definitely be tough on this side of the ball. Three of the four returning starters are back on the line (including Ty Steinkuhler and Zach Potter), and Larry Asante will lead what should be a muchimproved defensive secondary.

With all that, Husker fans need to rein those expectations in a little bit. There are some who think this is a national championship-caliber team (these are the same people who couldn't accept beating Iowa State by ONLY 56 points during the Osborne era), when in fact this is a team that will do very well to win the Big 12's North Division title outright.

Nebraska's home schedule looks good, with the Oklahoma game on Nov. 7 the only one I can't see this team winning (OU is ranked in the top three in the preseason). Nebraska should beat Texas Tech in Lincoln, and I see the Huskers winning six of seven at Memorial

The road might be tough, though - Virginia Tech is in the conversation as one of the top teams in the nation, and that will be a tough road test next month. Colorado is on the road, and that might be a tough game if the Buffaloes ever figure things out. There is a trifecta of conference road games that will test this team, and we should throw past history out the window when thinking of one of these games.

Missouri and Kansas, of course, have been tough on the Huskers in their respective home stadiums

Former Wakefield coach is adjusting at new Lincoln job

Former Wakefield football coach Justin Smith seems to be enjoying the transition from small-town football to the Class A style of play.

In a story on the Lincoln Journal-Star's Web site Tuesday, Smith's team at Lincoln Northeast was featured as part of the newspaper's coverage of the first week of fall football practice.

Smith led Wakefield to backto-back Class C2 state titles after going undefeated in 2006 and 2007. Smith was at Wakefield for 11 seasons, going 56-17 in his final seven campaigns at the school.

Players at Lincoln Northeast complimented their new coach.

"Coach Smith is very up-tempo and works very hard," junior tackle Will Sailors said. "You do it his way, but with two state titles, you know there's a reason."

Smith is instilling a solid work ethic into a Northeast program that was needing a shot in the arm, and he's stressing discipline with his players as he establishes his presence at the Class A school.

"The thing about Northeast is that there is talent and they have to think about being 15 minutes early and behaving in the classroom and do those things for their teammates. If they want to win, work ethic," he said. "What I want that's the most important thing."

"We have a coach from our conference, as well as some junior colleges, NAIA schools and even a couple of (NCAA) Div. I schools," Disch said. "Most of these kids who come here are going to have an opportunity to play college baseball somewhere."

With more than 90 kids invited to the two-day tryouts, Disch split the kids into four groups, each getting a four-hour session where their speed, defensive skills and hitting were evaluated. The kids whether or not the athlete has the also took part in a live-game situation, with pitchers throwing 10-15 pitches per inning.

The camp has proven to be a benefit to Wayne State's program, and has also helped programs like Mount Marty College.

"Usually, we'll pull two or three kids out of a camp like this," Mount Marty coach Andy Bernatow said. "It helps accelerate the process for the kids and it shows the coaches that these kids want to play college ball and they can get some exposure here." Bernatow said he'll see which kids have the physical skills he is looking for, then see who matches up best with his team's needs and academic background his school is looking for.

Disch said the Wildcat program has benefited tremendously from hosting the camp.

"Last year, we signed more than 50 percent of our guys from this camp, so we were really able to take advantage and sign some people," he said. "We've already seen some of these kids through Legion baseball, and some we're seeing for the first time.

"Obviously, schools can't see everybody, so it's a great opportunity for the kids to get that exposure and for us, as coaches, to evaluate this talent and get the recruiting process started.

Happy 125th Birthday Wayne!

Aug. 7-9 was the big celebration weekend in Wayne and there were many activities planned to commemorate the special year. Above, left clockwise, are photos from some of those activities: a antique car show was held at 1st & Pearl Streets, the Q-125 Celebration Dinner was held in the auditorium on Sunday, the "Wayne Through The Ages" parade was held Saturday night down Main Street with many businesses participating (Bill Dickey of First National Bank of Wayne is shown playing piano), a Jolly Sewing Quilters presentation was held at Wayne Senior Center during their open house, many people enjoyed dancing at the Q-125 Celebration Dance, a community band under the direction of WHS band instructor Brad Weber and past instructor Ron Dalton and WSC band instructor Dr. David Bohnert, Steve Rasmussen of the Nebraska Forest Service took participants on a tree tour, Sandra Wriedt of Just Sew in Wayne gave a modern quilting presentation at the Wayne Senior Center on Friday, Tom Cook portrayed General Anthony Wayne during the parade and Leon Meyer of the Historical Society was among the members taking people through the Wayne Museum during an open house there on Sunday.

Other activities held during Wayne's Q-125 Celebration Weekend, Aug. 7-9, included, above, left clockwise: a Readers Theatre was presented by the Wayne Community Theatre, Wayne Mayor Lois Shelton, center, poses with members of the Wild West Creations after the staged bank robbery and shootout sponsored by Farmers & Merchants State Bank, "Da Kuntry Pedlur" Hillbilly Truck sponsored by Arnie's Ford Mercury was among attractions during the Q-125 weekend, the Shriners cars are always a hit in the parades, a Square & Round Dance Exhibition sponsored by The Coffee Shoppe was held in the auditorium, the WHS class of '84 was among entries in the parade, a large crowd gathered along Main Street for the parade, the antique car show was a big hit, many people attended the Q-125 Luncheon & Vintage Style Show and The Drunkard melodrama presented by the Wayne Community Theatre was held Friday night.

2009 Wayne County Fair

This year's Wayne County Fair was enjoyed by thousands of people. Among the highlights, clockwise from top right, carnival rides were kept busy throughout the fair; the Demolition Derby track was watered down many times before the event; horse events were held each day of the fair; Ken Liska promoted the city's Q-125 celebration; many tried to become the Demoliton Derby champion; the petting zoo was very popular; Rylee Bonneau was among happy fair-goers; the bunnies received a lot of attention during the fair; bobbing for apples was a Q-125 event; these pickups may need some work before the next derby and autographs were signed by members of the Sawyer Brown band.

Wayne couple travels to Israel for pilgrimage

By Chris Tee Weiselman

(Note: with all the tensions in the Middle East during recent months. Israel seems an unlikely spot to visit. But two Waynites travelled to Haifa, Israel's third largest city, in June for a nine-day pilgrimage to the holy sites of the Bahá'í Faith. Joseph and Chris Tee Weixelman made the two-week journey to see sites associated with their faith there, as well as in Akka and nearby Bahji. There will be a series of articles on the pilgrimage in the Herald for the next few weeks.)

Before going to Haifa, we stopped in Rome, Italy, for three days. There we saw the Roman Coliseum and the Forum, plus the Vatican Museum, Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's Basilica.

Joseph is a professor of American History at WSC and supervises prospective social studies teachers during their student teaching experience. Chris Tee is an early childhood educator with her National Board Certification. She will be teaching preschool at Macy on the Omaha Reservation this year,

We were absolutely thrilled when we received our invitation to go on Bahá'í pilgrimage to Haifa this year! As in other religions, Bahá'ís are encouraged to visit holy sites, as well as historical places important to their faith. Haifa and nearby Akka are the most important and most holy sites in the entire world for the Bahá'í Faith. To have the opportunity to go there in person was a privilege not to be missed.

We flew to Haifa from Rome, Italy. We have jokingly said that the hardest part about traveling in Israel is getting into Israel. Some say that Israel has the most sophisticated homeland security program in the world to protect its citizens. That certainly seemed true as we spent about two and a half hours working our way through the security process. It even involved being bused to a sep-

Traveling to Haifa: After arriving in Tel Aviv and exchanging dollars for sheqels (at an exchange rate of about one US dollar to four New Israeli Sheqels), we found the nearest sherut for the hour's drive north to Haifa. Sheruts are a most wonderful form of transportation, which we do not have in the US. They are 10-passenger vans that operate as shared taxis. They often follow a semi-fixed route similar to a bus, but have the added convenience of stopping anywhere to pick up or drop off passengers and do not have fixed time schedules. We came to love these sheruts and used them often during our time in

As we followed the Mediterranean coastline north, we began to see the rising outline of Mount Carmel to the east and soon arrived in Haifa, a modern city of almost 300,000 people. The population consists mostly of Jews and Arabs, with many of the former recently arrived from Russia after the dissolution of the Soviet Union when they were finally free to emigrate. Many local signs in Haifa are in Hebrew, Arabic, English and Russian.

Haifa is built on the slopes of Mount Carmel, with a history dating back to Biblical times. The earliest known settlement was Tell Abu Hawam, a small port city established in the 14th century BCE. In the 3rd century CE, Haifa was known as a dye-making center. Over the centuries, the city has been conquered by the Byzantines, Arabs, Crusaders, Ottomans, Egyptians, and British. It also has a religious history important to Jewish, Christian, and Islamic arate hangar at the airport where thought, for Elijah is associated with the mountain, and sometimes resided in a grotto on its slopes.

Today, the city is a bustling seaport on Israel's Mediterranean coastline and is the major regional center of northern Israel. Two respected academic institutions, the University of Haifa and the Technion, are located in Haifa. For us, however, the most important thing about Haifa is that it is the home of the Bahá'í World Center, which is the name of the spiritual and administrative center of the Faith. The Bahá'í World Center, including the beautiful gardens gracing the entire façade of Mount Carmel in Haifa, was named a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2008.

Letters to the Editor

Reporter offers Wayne tournament kudos

I'm a reporter from the Lexington Clipper-Herald newspaper. This past weekend, I traveled over 400 miles to Wayne to cover the Lexington Seniors as they competed in the Class B State Baseball Tournament.

I'm writing to comment on the way I was treated by the people I encountered on my two trips to Wayne.

What a beautiful town and nice community of people.

The tournament director, Jackie Zeiss, was a delight to speak to and extremely helpful. She directed me to the tournament Web site that was impressively updated in real time as each game developed. This helped me keep an eye on what was happening in Wayne as I sat in Lexington trying to determine if, and when, I would need to return to the tourney. I got a sense that Jackie was really interested in helping me do a good job.

I went to the public library, where I was able to sign up for a password and user name that allowed me access to the wireless internet connection I used to e-mail my story and photos back to my publisher right after a game. The library director, Lauran Lofgren, helped me at the front desk. She made me feel right at home and her quick service made it possible for me to get my work done fast so I was able to go on to West Point to cover another of our local teams at the Class C State Tournament.

I went back to the library several days later, looking for directions to the nearest Taco John's. A driver for the Wayne Public Transit Handy Van, Dave Headley, gave me excellent directions to Taco's And More, as well as a friendly pat on the back. He was genuinely nice and so helpful that in mere minutes I was enjoying some of the best tacos I've had in a while, and I eat a lot of tacos.

I felt so welcome in Wayne that on my two trips home, both more than four-hour drives, I found myself trying to remember when I'd been treated with such hospitality. I can easily recall all of the times I've met rude locals in towns across our great state, as well as extremely pleasant ones, but never have I visited a town where everyone was so friendly and approachable.

I've always been proud of how nice and hospitable Nebraskans can be, especially after traveling to Boston, Chicago and some other places where I did not feel well received.

If I had to choose a Nebraskan town, or an American town for that matter, as the model for all others to aspire to, I would choose

Thank you, and I hope I get to travel there again some day.

Spectacular event

As a former Wayne Legion and college baseball player, I must say the community of Wayne really stepped up by putting on a great Class B State Baseball Tournament. It really made me realize how lucky the community and the kids are. I had the luxury to play on many diamonds around the area, and I must say this is as good as anywhere I have ever played.

The coaches from the teams were in awe of the fan support, the playing facility, and how organized Jacki Zeiss and her team were. A few of these teams reside in my hometown of Omaha or the surrounding area, and to hear that Wayne's facility rivals any they have played on is mind-boggling.

The tournament was perfect in every aspect. The volunteer help from the parents shows just how much their involvement attributed to the tournament's success.

Yes, I may be a little biased as Jeff Zeiss' brother. Yet, when you get right down to it, whether I am his brother or not, this one is hard to debate.

Congratulations to the entire community of Wayne. What a spectacular event!

> Jess Zeiss Omaha

Editor's note: I certainly agree with Zeiss' assessment of the quality of baseball field Wayne has. Having been to numerous facilities across the state, Wayne's field certainly is on a level with some of the best in the state, regardless of community size. The efforts of those involved in running the tournament, also, was a fine example of the community spirit Wayne

Awesome celebrations Darrel and I recently attended the Wayne County Fair and, this past weekend, the Q-125 celebra-

WOW! Both were awesome.

We were out of town and have missed the Wayne County Fair the last few years, and were pleasantly surprised to see all the improvements, from sprucing up buildings, putting in more sidewalks, renovating bathrooms and the addition of the banners recognizing all the local businesses and patrons that donate to the fair. Without their donations, we couldn't have a fair like we do in Wayne.

I was also impressed with the number of volunteers who came to get the grounds ready for the fair. We attended every night, and many daytime events, and they were all excellent. All the ways that you incorporated Q-125 into the fair was great also. The Fair Board needs to be recognized and thanked for all their efforts to make it all happen. As a child and growing up with a family the Fair was always the highlight of the summer. Darrel and I also took in many of the Q-125 events that were available this past weekend, and were in awe as to all the people who were involved and contributed to probably the greatest celebration yet in this area, and to think it will continue still this fall and winter.

Congratulations to those guys who sported beards all these months and won recognitions. The melodrama, vintage style show, bank robbery, dances, crafts for Children, meals and parade were great.

However, the eye-opener for us was the tour of the industries in our community. We were fascinated by the magnitude of these industries and how they have been innovators that spread their wares all over the country. We need to thank our forefathers' for having the foresight to create incentives to draw these kind of industries to Wayne.

My father, Marvin Dunklau, was one of the first ones involved with Wayne Industries, Inc., and I know he would have said "a job well done, Wayne." Again we thank the many businesses and community volunteers who made this all happen. We especially thank Tony Kochenash, Q-125 committee chairman, for organizing this celebration.

We're proud to be born and raised in Wayne, America. Darrel and Phyllis Rahn

Q-125 a fun time

We would like to take a moment to thank all those volunteers who worked so hard to make the Q-125 Celebration Weekend a fun time for all.

There were a variety of activities for all ages. We were not able to take in nearly all of the activities, but very much enjoyed those that we were able to attend.

If you run into any member of the Q-125 Celebraiton Committee, take a moment to thank them for their efforts. And remember, there are still more Q-125 activities scheduled for the remainder of the year.

Keep up the great work!

SEN. BEN NELSON LIKES TO SPEAK PERSONALLY WITH NEBRASKANS

By Ed Howard Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association Mike Snider shouldn't have been surprised when he received a phone call from Sen. Ben Nelson. Snider is the Ralston restaurant owner who appears in a television ad which criticizes Nelson for not supporting President Obama's push for a "public option" healthcare insurance program.

Nelson personally called Snider after seeing the ad, and Snider later indicated he was surprised. Anyone who knows Nelson, and how he did business as far back as when he was governor, knows the ad was likely to prompt a call.

It's a matter of record: Nelson has regularly, personally, called individual constituents when prompted by their letters, e-mails, comments in the news media, or comments passed on to him by third parties. Lots of Nelson acquaintances, including this one, have had the experience of relating a comment to him from a constituent, and promptly hearing the senator say: "Thanks for telling me. Have you got his name? Have you got his phone number?"

He took the go-to-the-source approach with him to Washington. After their chat last week, Snider made clear that Nelson's position on healthcare didn't make sense to him, and that he didn't like it. Snider said Nelson told him he supported the idea of a public option, but not one that would compete with private insurance compa-

Snider's ad might have particularly stung Nelson, in part, because Snider is a small businessman who has supported him, volunteering to put up signs in the Democratic senator's last campaign.

"I don't know what the purpose of him calling me was," Snider said in an interview with MSBC, "other than that the ad got his attention."

Snider explained he felt that way because, it seemed to him, Nelson was simply saying he was against the extremely profitable insurance industry having to face competition represented by people having the choice to join a government healthcare plan.

"He was telling me how bad the public option would be, while trying to tell me at the same time that he supported it" so long as it didn't compete with the private sector, Snider said.

Nelson certainly knew his conversation with Snider, a fellow already and very publicly critical of him, would make national news regardless of how it went.

So, why did Nelson make the already catching?

Consider this. On a football Saturday in Lincoln, during his second term as governor, Nelson was munching on a hot dog when I asked him why he made such personal calls to so many folks. He smiled and said he was doing what a good reporter would do going to the source.

"You don't always get the story you want when you ask people questions, do you?"

I assured him that I did not. "Neither do I, but there you go,"

he said, adding that he felt that it was just a good idea for elected officials to go to the source instead of just responding through the news

"I like to ask them questions and phone call, given the grief he was let them ask me some questions,"

Do people who are critical of you often take a much softer approach when you take the time to call them?

www.paulfellcartoons.com

That notion brought a laugh, and an uncommon example of Nelson repeating himself.

"Nope. No. No. Not at all. No."

Getting your kids ready for new school year

The start of another school year is upon us, which means its time for parents to spend thousands of dollars getting their kids prepared to, at the very least, give the appearance of being prepared for the next stage of their education.

Every year, we waste untold amounts of time and money making sure our kids are prepared for the first day of classes. Does Johnny need Crayolas or Sharpies? How many 3-ring binders will Sally need? Can Tommy get by with blue-ink pens, or does the teacher require black-ink pens?

It's enough to drive the average parent insane...which is why I'm here to help.

The other day, I stumbled into something at a local department store that has inspired me to assist you, the parent of a school-age child, with the task of getting your child ready for the new school

The store has made countless lists available, free of charge, from area schools that include everything your child needs for whatever school he or she is attending. You can save hours of searching and thousands of dollars buying crap your kids don't need...things like slide-rules, protractors and Hannah Montana hi-lite markers that glow in the dark.

If you're the parent of a kindergartner at Wayne Public Schools, for example, the list is pretty simple. Among other things, Wayne kindergartners need a box of crayons (12 or 16 count only...don't waste time with the 64-count big box), child-size scissors and Elmer's WASHABLE School Glue (while the small tube of Super Glue would keep the tongue depressors stuck to the empty can of concentrated orange juice your child used to create your pencil box until the year 2325, it's really not necessary).

Don't get me started

> By: Michael Carnes Managing Editor

Once you get to sixth grade, it gets a little more specific. For example, you need one package of colored pencils (for map skills, according to the list), a box of 200 Kleenex (presumably, to help spread the influenza virus right before Christmas), and one science notebook that, and I'm quoting the sheet directly here, "has three sections to separate experiments, vocabulary and bell questions" ("bell questions???" Are those the questions that require you to ring a bell before you answer, like a Family Feud contestant, or the ones where you get your bell rung if you are incorrect, which was how most of fifth grade went for me? I really feel like I need an answer to this before the lunch bell rings...).

The requirements also vary from district to district. At Winside. for example, second graders need items including glue sticks, an old sock (supposedly, to use on marker boards as an eraser, although they could also be an effective weapon, with a couple handfuls of gravel from the playground, to use on the class bully), and a clean ice cream bucket (for personal trash, according to the list, although it could also be used to collect the teeth from the mouth of the abovementioned bully while he's visiting the school nurse and your kid is spending the rest of the day in the principal's office writing the phrase "I will not bludgeon the bully with the chalkboard).

The items even vary from city to city, and you can always tell which school district has the biggest problems with security and hallway violence.

For example, at all Omaha elementary schools, students are required to bring a backpack with no fewer than three pockets (to cut down on search time by the security guards), a box of crayons (handy for suicide notes and hostage situations), two box-cutter knives (to open the juice boxes during lunch, I guess), a sawed-off shotgun (the real ones, obviously, can't fit in the backpack), two cans of pepper spray (to fend off would-be attackers. such as fellow students, sexually-misguided teachers or drugdealing older siblings) and a box of black-ink pens (for their homework, or to write a 300-word essay that might be used to encourage a district court judge to show their deadbeat dad some lienency).

The start of the new school year is upon us, so if you haven't already done so, run to your nearest department store and look for the list of your child's school so you can have your kids ready for the first day of school.

And be thankful you live in small-town América, where your kids can go to school without needing an NRA membership or handto-hand combat training.

Discovery Canyon

Wonders of the Word were explored at Discovery Canyon Vacation Bible School held at Our Savior Lutheran Church from Aug. 3 - 6. The children enjoyed music openings and 'closing with Lucas Wickstrom leading the Red Rock Rhythm! The children explored God's word in Sagebrush Storytelling led by Susan Urbanec. Shadow Science included exploring the wonders of God's World led by Sandy and Matt Wachter and Sue Stover. Canyon Crafts were created with guide leaders Melissa Nelsen, Melissa Hammer and Michelle Nelson. Snack time was led by Shelley Jorgensen and Shannon Johnson. Pastor Kim enjoyed the opportunity to visit all the centers with the children as they explored the Canyon together.

Pastor Stover attends training in Michigan

Hope in the Midst of Crisis: Trespass, Vulnerability, and Resistance was the topic of the Great Lakes Theological Academy, held in Traverse City, Mich. Pastor Kim Stover of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne, attended the weeklong theological discussion and training.

Presenters Dr. Jacqueline A. Bussie, Capital University, Columbus, Ohio and Dr. Michael Trice, executive associate for Ecumenical and Inter-Religious Relations of the ELCA and the Lutheran World Federation were keynote speakers and teachers.

Lectures and discussion centered around two primary questions. First, "What is the nature of the world, that it is filled with violence, brokenness, and evil?" Second, "How does the Gospel speak to this situation?" And third, "What is the church called to do in this climate of brokenness?"

The topic was very timely considering reported violence around the world and a seemingly everincreasing tone of violence in settings "close to home." Increased use of violence in movies, TV shows, and cartoons to entertain; contemporary police and military strategies of "overwhelming force" meant to intimidate and discourage resistance; and around the clock reporting of violence by news agencies to shore up shrinking market share, all conspire to increase anxiety while sanctioning and justifying violence itself. Violence just becomes our way of life.

Many Christians take their behavioral cues from society, rather than from the Christ of the Bible from whom they take their name. The Gospel of Jesus is one of human dignity and positive regard in which Christian are called to act kindly, with love, and to "speak the truth in love." (Ephesians 4:15 But speaking the truth in love, we must grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ...) It was Jesus who said, prior to his own violent crucifixion, "Those who take the sword perish by the Ironically, the Traverse City Film Festival overlapped the continuing education program and featured a new film, "Troubled Waters" that presented the difficulty of violence n a narrative form. Pastor Stover is currently working to bring the film to Our Savior as a cornerstone for discussion about violence and Biblical teaching.

Nebraska mortgage and foreclosure help resources available

The Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance (NDBF) urges homeowners struggling to make their payments to check out its Web site with mortgage and foreclosure help resources.

The Web site address is: http://www.ndbf. ne gov/consumers/foreclosurehelp.shtml

The nonprofit counseling services in Nebraska listed on the Web site offer consumers assistance free of charge. The Web site also contains information about the Nebraska Foreclosure Protection Act and tips for avoiding foreclosure rescue scams.

NDBF reminds consumers to take the time to research lenders and brokers before doing business with a company. Homeowners in distress are frequent targets for fraud and should be particularly cautious.

Lenders and brokers that do business in Nebraska are generally required to license with NDBF. Consumers can check the status of a company by searching the NDBF Web site at http://www.ndbf. ne.gov/searches/fisearch.shtml or calling the Department at (877) 471-3445.

Anew report released Wednesday, The Access Project. "This threat-June 24 by The Access Project found that farm and ranch operators, like livelihoods. Washington must act many self-employed Americans, cannot afford the cost of health insurance offered to small business owners. While family farmers and ranchers are insured at a rate higher than the general population, still one in ten (10 percent) was uninsured, or had an uninsured family member, sometime during the previous year.

The report, Who is Uninsured? is based on data gathered through the 2007 survey of farm and ranch operators in seven Great Plains states. The report found that uninsured farm and ranch operators were more likely to say that their or ranching than their insured incomes and were more likely to live alone.

"Those most reliant on income derived from the family farm or ranch are least likely to be able to afford private health insurance," said Carol Pryor, lead author of the report and Policy Director at

The survey found that more than one-third of the uninsured farm and ranch operators spent more than 10 percent of their income on health care costs. They were also four times more likely to have incomes under $20,000 than those with insurance.

The Access Project's report is the fifth in a series of issue briefs based on a 2007 survey of farm and ranch operators in seven Great Plains principal occupation was farming states: Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, counterparts. They also had lower and South Dakota. The Access Project and its partners at Brandeis University and the University of North Dakota School of Medicine's Center for Rural Health contracted with the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service to survey more than 2,000 non-corporate farm and ranch operators (those operating as sole proprietors or partnerships).

> The report finds that uninsured farmers and ranchers face much greater barriers to getting care and suffer higher levels of financial hardship than those with insurance. They delayed needed care more than twice as frequently as those with insurance - more than a third of the uninsured delayed care (34 percent) versus 15 percent of the insured. Compared to the insured, the uninsured were also more likely to:

Weekend spent having fun in Norfolk

Whoops! It's 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday morning and this thing hasn't been written. I've been enjoying a "free morning" with a second cup of coffee and the paper. Then, threw in a load of laundry and got out the vacuum cleaner, when it hit me. Not the vacuum cleaner, but the fact that it was time to get to the computer.

We had a busy, and fun, weekend in Norfolk. We picked up Randa and Danica at about 2 on Friday and then went downtown to the Cornhusker and waited for Sue, who works some days at the State Office Building. She left early and drove to Norfolk, where we left the girls at Ann's and headed to Hoskins.

Rich and Gloria Doffin of Hoskins Manufacturing were celebrating fifty years of marriage with about 400 of their closest friends! The It helped that he had three sons big building had been cleaned up and scores of tables and chairs put in place, while youngest son Rod roasted the meat. There were buns and barbecue sauce, beans and potato salad, bars for dessert, and lots of cold drinks. It's always interesting to walk in that place and wonder what they do with all that machinery.

Richard started at Arkfeld in Norfolk and took a chance in 1966 and started his own business. Hoskins has been the beneficiary.

to work with him, and a wife who kept the books. But I am always impressed by the growth of the business and the diversity they display. The Big Farmer found them very creative when it came to fixing stuff, and we used their waterers on the farm.

Anyway, that family knows how to put on a party. Of course, it was very HOT, but it was August, after all. And the bride remembered that the groom was sweating during the ceremony in Stanton fifty years the time.

On Saturday, Thomas and Alex joined us and the cousins got together for the first time since Christmas. This involved swimming, go carts, bumper cars, and miniature golf. For some reason, they all slept very late the next day! Max grilled lots of burgers and hot dogs, and there was sweet corn and mexiburgers, and birthday cake. It's becoming more and more of a challenge to fill up the three guys who are over six feet. So, on Sunday, we simply went to Valentino's buffet, and got our money's worth!

We were home by 7, and in bed early because I had to work Monday. I have been filling in for vacationers all summer, and this latest one is camping in the Rocky Mountains. Which sounds very cool compared to what we have had lately. We missed all the birthday festivities in Wayne; there just wasn't enough time. But Mike and I did drive to Willow Creek to check out the lake that was formed by a dam twenty five years ago when he was on the NRD board. It is amazing! The camper sites were full, and it looked as if families were having a good time. It turned out to be a good addition for recreation in the area, though it was controversial at

Soybean Cyst Nematode Field Day scheduled

The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension is holding a Soybean Cyst Nematode Field Day on Tuesday Aug. 18, at 10 a.m. in on the Jerry Johnson farm north and east of Laurel.

From Highway 116 and Highway 20 junction east of Laurel, go 2 miles west on Highway 20, then 4.75 miles north on 575th Ave. (west side). Refreshments and snacks will follow the meeting. Speaking at the meeting will by John Wilson, Burt Co. Extension Educator, who has been a leader in raising awareness of the nematode, and Loren Giesler, Extension Plant Pathologist. Identification of the problem and solutions will be discussed

In our meetings with growers and consultants over the last few years, we have often heard the comment that some area soybean fields are not yielding as well as they have in the past, or that they have not reached yield expectations relative to the type of soil and varieties planted. While many different causes can reduce soybean yields, recent discoveries suggest that you should consider looking into the soybean cyst nematode as a potential yield-robbing problem.

The soybean cyst nematode (SCN) is the most serious pest of soybeans in the United States, causing farmers millions of dollars in losses each year. It is a "stealth" pest in that often SCN will reveal no specific symptoms and its effects are often not dramatic. Many farmers do not know their fields are infested with SCN until a severe problem develops. Up to 30% yield losses can occur without obvious symptoms.

Not long ago, SCN had been known to occur in eastern Nebraska along the Missouri River; however,

NortheastArboretum plans Open House

Northeast Arboretum will conduct an open house on Friday, Aug. 28 beginning at 4:30 pm at the Haskell Agricultural Lab located east of Concord.

Walking tours of the areas close to the administrative building will highlight the perennial beds on the parking lot area, the vine plantings on the concrete cribs, the tree islands, the orchard and the living snow fence.

After the tours, a program will be held in the main building with Steve Rasmussen and Del Hemsath highlighting some of the most recent information on Emerald Ash Borer disease and the recent changes in the arboretum on a state basis and local basis.

A light meal will be furnished. For more information, call Del Hemsath at 256-9040.

new information indicates a larger range across the state, particularly in northeast Nebraska. Recently, UNL plant pathologists reviewed the occurrence based on UNL and private lab records. Positive SCN samples were found across more counties than previously reported. Virtually all counties east of Highway 281 now have a record of at least one field with an SCN infestation. Based on this information it would be good to check your fields for soybean cyst nematodes. particularly if you have a field that has been dragging in yield recent-

There are two ways to check for soybean cyst nematode. 1) Examining the roots or 2) submitting a soil sample to a laboratory. On the roots, cysts will appear as cream to brown-colored bodies, which are pinhead in size. They should be present on the roots anytime after the Fourth of July. If you decide to take a soil sample for soybean cyst nematode, this can be done at any time of the year, but populations will be highest at harvest. Often people take soil samples after harvest when things slow down.

Once in a field, soybean cyst nematode will never go away. The key to keeping soybean fields at high production levels is to keep the population of SCN low. Populations are given as the number of SCN eggs per 100 cubic centimeters (cc) of soil (roughly half a coffee cup). Very high populations of soybean cyst nematode will develop in fields that are not managed properly. If the nematodes are not detected soon enough and numbers become high, fields will need to be rotated to a non-host crop for several

Currently, there are no good chemical alternatives for SCN control, although products are being tested. If there is a history of SCN in a field, choose a resistant variety. Most seed companies have SCN resistant soybeans available in Nebraska. Rotate between types of resistance if possible. At 12 SCNinfested field day sites in 2006-2008, soybean cyst nematode-resistant varieties out-yielded susceptible varieties by an average of five bushels. These infested sites had low to moderate levels of infestation. There was no significant difference in yield between the same susceptible and resistant varieties at sites which were not infested

THANK YOU

We would like to thank Kelly Meyer/Farm to Market Ag and Merlin and Delores Felt for their continuing support of the Wayne County 4-H program. We appreciate Kenedi Bach, Eric Boston, Jr.

We would like to thank everyone for all their cards, phone calls, food, visits, words of encouragement and prayers during these past few weeks and at the passing of my mother, Georgena Stephan. She was fortunate to have spent the last four years of her life here, close to us and some of her granddaughters before God called her home. We appreciate all who were a part of her life here. Mary and Lee Brudigam

I want to thank the Wayne County Farm Bureau for the clock plaque presented to me at the Wayne County Fair for being the oldest active farmer in Wayne County.

William (Bill) Loberg

I would like to thank State National Bank for buying me at the Bonus Auction at the fair. I would also like to thank Northeast Nebraska Cattlemen 🎥 for sponsoring my Champion Market Lamb trophy. Your 🕷 support of 4-H appreciated. Anna Osten

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES

DISTRICT ORDER OF DESIGNATION WHEREAS, the Lower Elkhorn Natural

Resources District (District) has adopted a management area throughout the entire District and, under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 46-739, is authorized to adopt controls for the conservation, protection, development, and sound management of natural resources within the management area;

WHEREAS, the District held a Public Hearing on July 21, 2009, in accordance with Neb. Rev. Stat. § 46-743 to consider proposed amendments to the District's rules and regulations for the management area for in part, compliance with Neb. Rev. Stat. § 46-

WHEREAS, the District considered the testimony received at the Public Hearing; WHEREAS, the District finds it necessary for the general health and welfare of the District and for the conservation, protection, development, and sound management of natural resources within the management area, to adopt the proposed amendments to the District's rules and regulations for the management area. A copy of the Rules and Regulations as amended is attached to this Order as Exhibit A and incorporated herein by

WHEREAS, the new controls adopted under the amended rules include (1) preventing, without a variance from the District, the expansion of irrigated acres and the issuance of additional permits for the development of new irrigation wells within the area of the District hydrologically connected to the Lower Platte River; (2) requiring the installation of devices for measuring groundwater withdrawals from water wells requiring a variance; and (3) placing average and annual limits on the maximum new groundwater irrigated acres to be developed under the variance process.

WHEREAS, it reasonably appears that this action will mitigate or eliminate the condition which led to the designation of the management area or will improve administration of the management area within the District;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, that the Board of Directors of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District adopts the amendments to the Rules and Regulations for the Enforcement of the Nebraska Ground Water Management and Protection Act in the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District as set forth in the attached

AND, IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the effective date of this order is July 23, 2009, but the effective date of the amended Rules and Regulations shall be August 23, 2009, and the full text of the new controls shall be available to the public at the District office for thirty days in accord with Neb.
