Council minus one member after Lutt resigns Ward 1 seat

The Wayne

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

The Wayne City Council is one member short following the resignation of Verdel Lutt at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

Wayne Mayor Lois Shelton told the council that she received a written resignation letter from Lutt, and that "he is not making any statements" in regard to the reason(s) he has resigned. She did note that some of the reasons may be personal.

Lutt has served on the council for approximately 14 years, on two different occasions, and was most recently appointed by Mayor Shelton to fill the position vacated by Jim Shanks. He was again elected to the position three years ago.

The council voted 6-1 to accept Lutt's resignation. Council member Kaki Ley voted against accepting the resignation.

Mayor Shelton is currently taking names of those interested in filling the vacancy. Lutt's term was set to expire in November of 2010. Council members spent a considerable amount of time listening to and questioning local bankers in regard to the city investment policy.

David Lev of State National Bank, representing the local bankers, told council members that he feels the current policy, in which the city invests money with the local banks, "has been a positive thing for the community."

He cited a number of reasons why having the money invested with the local banks, even though the interest rate may be up to three-fourths of a percent lower than with a broker, is beneficial. Among these are the fact that "the community needs the money and the multiplier effect."

He said that there are different interest rates for different customers.

Bill Dickey, representing First National Bank, told the council that there are different types of depositors, and echoed Ley's comments.

Tim Keller, with Farmers and Merchants Bank, told the council that they "need to look at the issue from both sides" as the city was getting a better

Area residents surprise senator on expressway

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

PONCA - A town hall meeting quickly turned into something of an unexpected surprise for the area's representative in the Nebraska Legislature.

District 17 State Sen. Bob Giese spoke with more than 30 of his constituents in a Saturday morning gathering at the Ponca Senior Center, almost a in limbo for an expressway project that has been talked about for more than two decades, but has yet to see any work take place.

Others expressed their dissatisfaction with the Department of Roads' work on the current Highway 35, which runs through Wayne and Wakefield. One resident complained of the ruts along the side of the road that are hard on farm equipment, asking why shoulders could not be installed on the third of whom were from the Wayne County area who wanted to express their opposition to a proposed expressway that would affect their land.

The expressway, which has been talked about for more than 20 years, is not on the Department of Roads' one-year or five-year plans, Giese told those in attendance. Giese sponsored a resolution' in last year's Legislature to initialize a study that would look at the impact of an expressway system for cities that are not connected to Interstate 80. A hearing on that study is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 7, in Columbus.

Residents who spoke out against the expressway questioned why their property has been put

For the record, Giese said he was in favor of an expressway system that would link South Sioux City and Norfolk, but the standards for creating an expressway keep changing.

"They had a traffic count that the state moved up, so the standards (for an expressway) continue to change," he said. "Under today's standards, it makes it harder and, unless they change the average traffic count, we're going to have a hard time getting it done."

Giese said an expressway system would create,

County must jump through more hoops for federal funding

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners have expressed a certain degree of impatience in dealing with state officials on a bridge project west of Wayne.

Highway superintendent Elizabeth Carlson updated the board on the process for getting federal funding for replacing a bridge on a county road near the Ron Temme residence during the board's meeting Tuesday at the county courthouse.

Using a chart that outlines the process for federal aid projects, Carlson explained that the project is at an independent cost estimate phase, which Carlson said has not been done before.

"This is the first time we've done an independent cost estimate," she told the board, noting that the estimate projects potential costs for engineering, who will do the work, the number of hours the work should take and overhead costs.

Carlson told the board that the county will need to get a letter from the Nebraska Department of Roads with a notice to proceed, which would authorize advertisement of construction. Until then, the county can not file a request for proposal (RFP) unless it wants to give up the option of getting federal funds to pay for the project.

"We can not do an RFP unless you want to pay for 100 percent of the preliminary engineering costs," she said. "If you want federal participation in that engineering, then we need to wait until we get a notice to proceed."

The bridge that would be replaced was called "functionally obsolete" by Carlson, who said that the process to receive federal aid requires the county "to jump through a lot more hoops." She said she hoped the county could get the bridge replaced in 2-3 vears.

The board also got an update from Sheriff Leroy Janssen on the process for hiring an emergency manager.

Janssen told the board that he is working to establish a committee of volunteers to help in the interview process. A list of questions has been put together, and once he has volunteers in place he will send letters to the 12 applicants to set up interview dates and times.

In other action, the board:

- approved a bid of $125,913.09 to M.E. Collins of Wahoo for the construction of a box culvert on a county road south and west of Winside near the Evelyn Jaeger residence. The board authorized Carlson to negotiate temporary and permanent easements to the project.

- approved a bid of $68,127.16 from A&R Construction for the construction of a box culvert on a road north and west of Carroll.

- approved a request to move a home alor a county roads by Ward Craft Homes, whic., was moving a house from Minden to Allen.

- discussed options for future replacement of county vehicles.

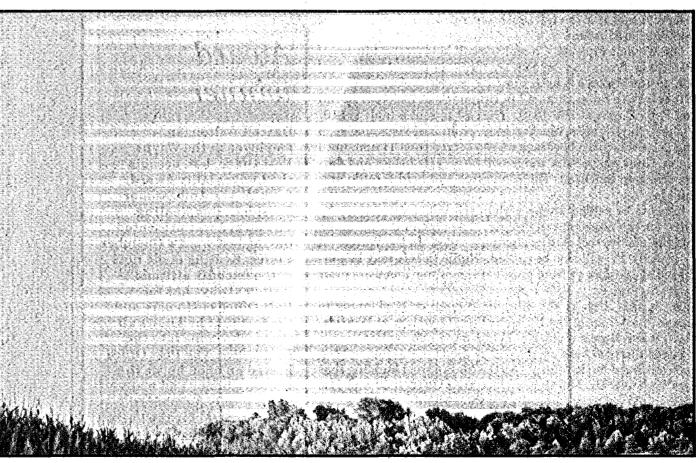

The board's next meeting is Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Expedition contest could put Wayne in middle of Antarctica

Trevor Wright, son of Gary and Peggy Wright, is currently bicycling South America, from Colombia to Argentina. During his travels he will regularly contribute Wayne Herald articles about South American food, culture, and travel. You can follow his blog at: www.mebobandsurly.wordpress. com Walruses with sharp ivory tusks. Blue Gatorade-colored glaciers. Penguin colonies a thousand thick. It all seems exotic beyond words. However, the great white continent of Antarctica is much closer than I could ever have imagined. In fact, it's right at my fingertips.

A week ago my brother sent me a link to a contest in which an expedition company is giving away a trip to Antarctica. The rules are simple. The contestant writes a short piece on why they deserve to be the official expedition blogger, then campaigns for as many online votes as possible. Wayne America, I'm asking--- pleading---for your vote.

Before sitting down to write this article I contemplated different campaign strategy. With the world inundated by chain mails and relentless advertisements, how do I get people interested Object Oriented Design technologies. We are seek-ing candidates with an MS in Computer Science, Com-puter Engineering, Electri-cal Engineering, or related in my cause? How do I convince them to physically go to the computer, get online, and vote for me?

In the end, I realized honesty is the best strategy. The honest truth is your vote will send me on a trip-of-a-lifetime as well as bring international media attention to Wayne America. Everybody wins.

I'm proud to have grown up in Wayne, to have learned Midwest values from an early age, to have sported the Blue Devil jersey, and been a part of the community's 86 year Scouting tradition.

When the inevitable smalltalk question "Where are you from?" sneaks into conversation, I proudly say Nebraska---not Texas where I've claimed residence for the past three years. Over and over again as an adolescent in Wayne, I witnessed good people helping good people, whether through Kiwanis pancake feeds, Boy Scout paper drives, Rotary soup suppers, Jaycees firework shows, or other numerous service organization events that improve the community.

Now I'm hoping the good people of Wayne will help make my lifelong dream a reality by voting to send me to Antarctica. I've crunched the numbers. If half of Wayne Herald readers vote, I have a chance. If more than half vote, then this contest is all but won - which means there will be follow-up articles with penguin photos and first-hand accounts from the bottom of the world.

Project Majestic, the revitalization of Wayne's downtown theater, started cleaning on Aug. 15.

A number of volunteers hauled out old lumber, trash and other items from various storage areas and basements.

Troop 174 finishes whirlwind camping trip to Black Hills

Wayne Boy Scout Troop 174 recently completed a whirlwind five day camping trip to the Black Hills.

A special highlight of the trip was the Troop serving as the Color Guard for the evening flag retirement ceremony at Mt. Rushmore. Senior Patrol Leader Colin Webster lead Eagle Scout Jared Klassen, Life Scout Ian Webster, Star Scout Jason Holt, Star Scout Aaron Svenson, and Leader Eric Holt retrieved the colors during the evening lighting ceremony.

A total of 11 Boy Scouts, including Jared Klassen, Ian and Colin Webster, Andrew Simpson, Logan and Jacob Abraham, Jason Holt, Aaron Svenson, Nathaniel Phelps, Parker Wren and Austin Frideres went to the Black Hills.

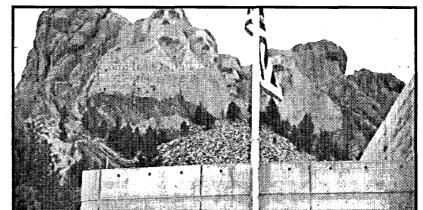

During this fast-paced trip the Scouts toured Jewel Cave, hiked to the top of Harney Peak where you could see South Dakota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Wyoming, and Montana, visited Deadwood, S.D., hiked to several abandoned gold swam in Center Lake. The water was really cold! The group camped near Stockade Lake in the Custer State Park.

"This trip wasn't about getting merit badges, rather this was a fun trip for the boys to see historic sites, spend time in the outdoors, and even to wait for a herd of buffalo to cross the highway in front of them," Leader Lance Webster said

For this camping trip, and for the boys to attend various scout camps, Troop 174, with a record of 132 Eagle Scouts, depends on paper recycling program in Wayne. Troop 174, conducts monthly paper drives and the revenue generated from newspapers, magazines, and office paper accounts for over 80 percent of the troop income. While recycling is very important for the environment it is a great way to support the local Boy Scout Troop too.

Sponsors include the Wayne United Way and Wayne Kiwanis Club. The troop is chartered by Journey Christian Church.

Raising the flagpole

Layne Beza, Paul Otte and Ernie Ping (hidden behind the flagpole) installed three flagpoles at the Veterans Memorial at the Wayne Courthouse on Wednesday. Work is on schedule to have the memorial completed by Veterans Day. A dedication and other Veterans' Day activities are being planned for Saturday, Nov. 14. Additional funding is being sought to help with the completion of the project.

Applications are being taken for the First Ward council seat formerly held by Verdell Lutt. Anyone interested in being considered for this seat should submit an application to the Mayor at PO Box 8, Wayne or by hand delivery no later than Wednesday, Aug. 26. This council seat will be up for election in November 2010. Wayne has eight council members elected from four Wards. The other council member in the First Ward is Doug Sturm.

In other agenda items, the council heard a presentation from Steve Sheer and Jill Belt on the county's recently implemented Juvenile Diversion Program.

Shear said that a protocol has been developed for a juvenile (age 21 and under) diversion program that will "give kids a second chance" by allowing certain misdemeanor offenses to stay off a juvenile's criminal record after completing the program.

He also said "this is not a slap on the wrist," and costs would be similar to that of a first-offense Minor in Possession charge.

Belt, who will serve as the diversion coordinator, said that the program will begin this fall, and that it will involve both "kids and their parents and will help those at-risk kids as well as those who have made a mistake."

Those eligible for the program will have to sign up through a defined process, and will be able to use it only one time. The individual will have 90 days to complete the program, unless there are ongoing needs.

Both Shear and Belt emphasized that there will be

Those considering this community service must live in Ward 1 and will be required to attend official twice monthly meetings, committee meetings as assigned, a yearly weekend retreat, yearly budget sessions and other special meetings as needed. They are also encouraged to attend state municipal league meetings to educate themselves on current legislation and future concerns as well as learning how other communities deal with common problems.

To apply for this council seat please summarize your civic/religious service history and write a short paragraph delineating your reasons for seeking this position. Nebraska Statutes require the mayor to appoint a candidate to fill the vacancy and a majority of the city council to approve the appointment for the position to be filled. Only those who submit written applications will be considered.

no tax dollars used to support the program, and that it will be implemented throughout the county.

In other action, the council gave first reading to Ordinance 2009-20, which will add a hotel occupation tax to the city code. It is estimated that the tax could generate $48,000 annually for city operations.

The council also passed a resolution accepting the bid and awarding the contract for the well house and municipal well 2009 project.

Roger Pratzman, with JEO Consulting, told the council that four bids were received, and Layne Christensen Co. of Valley was the low bidder on the project. He recommended the council approve the bid, contingent on it meeting state requirements and proof of compliance with Department of Economic Development requirements.

The council also approved a resolution approving an agreement with Terracon for geotechnical engineering services for the wastewater treatment facility project. The cost for the services will be $4,570 and will include a report on subsoil conditions at both sites being considered for the new facility as well as at the lift station locations.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Sept. 1 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

A meeting is tentatively scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 12, and Sen. Giese said he would provide more details as they become available.

Poor sports should just stay home, shut up

We are just-a few days away from the start of the 2009-10 high school sports season, which is the perfect time for us to talk about your values regarding sportsmanship.

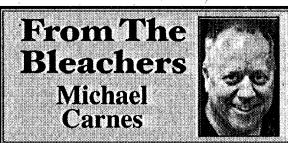

And there are some of you in the audience who are severely lacking in this area enough that, quite frankly, I think I speak for most sports fans when I say we would appreciate it if you stayed at home and avoided embarrassing yourself, your kid, your family and your community.

We all know who these individuals are and what they look like, and those of us who truly support our schools' sports teams cringe every time we see them walk through the admission gate or gymnasium door when our teams are preparing to compete.

They are the ones who sit in the stands and yell derisive comments at the officials. They are the ones who make fun of the coach's attire, question the coach's judgment and claim they know more about the sport than the coach could ever hope to understand.

Some of them are real winners - they'll even go so far as to say terrible things about somebody's kid (including your kid) when they fumble the football, serve the volleyball out of bounds or pop up to the pitcher with the bases loaded in a one-run game.

And, unfortunately, their actions and disrespect for their fellow man often lead to something of a feeding frenzy. Before long, this jerk's actions are being parroted by those around you. You might even get caught up in the hoopla and find yourself saying and doing the same thing this individual is doing, dragging you, your family and your community's reputation down to his level in the process.

I'm not ashamed to admit that I was once somebody like this idiot. I assumed that the admission I paid to get into the game gave me the right to yell at the officials, question the coach's judgment and make fun of the opposing players' name, running style and even the color of socks they wore. After serving in the role of the neutral observer for the better part of my 25 years as a sports writer, I have found this assumption to be grossly incorrect.

The truth is, the money you pay to get into a sporting event gives you the right to do one thing, and one thing only – cheer on your favorite team or athlete. You can show your support and encourage your favorite team and athlete to compete to the best of their abilities. If they are victorious, you congratulate them on a job well done. If they come up short, you console them and encourage them to keep working hard.

The Wayne

These are not paid professionals you are watching, ladies and gentlemen. These are kids who are growing into themselves - physically, emotionally and mentally. The lessons they learn through the hours of practice, the hard work and the competition with other communities' kids are lessons that can not be taught in the classroom. The experiences they go through are moments they will carry with them into their adult lives, and they will perpetuate that which they take from those opportunities.

The same holds true for the coaches and officials (although they are being paid to do their jobs). These men and women have put a lot more of their time and effort into coaching and officiating a sport than 99.9 percent of those sitting in the stands, and they are the ones who use that knowledge and experience in an effort to help our kids compete and perform at the highest level they can.

Many years ago, I wrote a column in another newspaper, challenging readers to take a 10-question quiz using questions taken directly from the test high school basketball officials must take to be certified in Nebraska. Certification requires a grade of 80 percent or better. Of more than 40 entries that were submitted by readers, none scored well enough to pass the test. Zip. Zero. Nada.

Officiating a sporting event is not a part of the deal when you pay your admission. If you believe you know the sport's rules as well as you think you do, the NSAA is looking for people willing to take the test, spend multiple nights per week on the road, and endure the wrath of you alleged know-it-alls in the stands while giving their best effort to serve as referees for all the sporting events our high school offers. I am sure you would be more than welcome to put your money, time, energy and knowledge where your mouth is.

People who feel it is their right to act in an unsportsmanlike manner do nothing more than provide an example that intelligent-thinking adults do not want their child to mimic when they become adults. And the fewer people acting like idiots that we have at local sporting events, the better off our kids will be.

Our kids are looking for some kind of direction that will shape their futures, and many of the examples they use will come from the athletic arena. Even those kids whose only connection to high school sports is playing in the pep band will follow the examples they see between the lines, as well as those shown in the stands. Those who choose to exhibit poor sportsman-

WILDCATS READY TO ROLL INTO 2009 New mindset leads to high expectations

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

There's a new mindset on the practice field just beyond the shadows of Cunningham Field. It's the mindset of a team that wants to be a national champion. Such is the state of mind of the players and coaches that make up the 2009 Wayne State football team, which launches its bid for greatness less than 10 days from now with a 6 p.m. season opener against Nebraska-Kearney.

The Wildcats program spent the better part of a decade struggling to compete in the heart of NCAA Div. II country, but the addition of coach Dan McLaughlin and his staff has brought a new way of thinking to the program. That has helped turn the team around from a perennial loser to one that won seven games in 2007 and a recordtying nine games last season.

"My philosophy has always been get a little better every day at something," he said during the team's Media Day Tuesday afternoon. "Four years ago, if someone had said our goal was to win nine games, I'd have said we could all just jump out of the boat and drown right now. "The biggest things is the mindset has gone from hoping we could win some games, to thinking we can win, to now expecting we can win," he said. "That's a huge difference, and if these kids can go out and expect to win every time they take the field, that's a huge hurdle to get over." The Wildcats certainly jumped over a big hurdle last year. After losing back-to-back games early in the year to St. Cloud State and Minnesota State, Wayne State caught fire and won their final seven games to finish 9-2 and earn its first-ever trip to the NCAA Div. II playoffs. And if you ask Silas Fluellen, the team's senior quarterback and preseason NSIC South Division Offensive Player of the Year, last year's team could have gone even farther than their first-round loss at Chadron State.

"We had one bad game with four turnovers and a blocked punt, and we still had an opportunity in the last minute to beat Chadron," he said. "We know how close we last year, and we're going to try and keep that going this year." Fluellen, who passed for 2,902 yards and 16 touchdowns last year, is on tap to etch his name in the school record books this year. He already holds school records for career touchdowns (50) and passing yards (7,325) and is within striking distance of the school record for career completions, needing just 36 to break Jamie Jones' record of 578.

first in the south division last year with Minnesota State, and are picked to finish behind the Mavericks and Augustana. Wayne State is third in the NSIC South, ahead of Winona State, Southwest Minnesota State, Concordia-St. Paul and Upper Iowa. Defending national champion Minnesota-Duluth is picked to win the NSIC North Division in 2009 and was named the overall favorite to win the NSIC title this season. Wayne State was picked to finish tied for fourth with St. Cloud State.

As it was in 2008, each team will play 10 conference games in 2009, including six divisional games and four outside their division. The six divisional games will determine the division champion, while all conference games will determine the overall champion.

Wildcats senior quarterback Silas Fluellen was selected as the NSIC South Division's Preseason Player of the Year for the second straight year.

In 2008, Fluellen led the conference in total offense at 285 yards per game and ranked second in passing at 241.8 yards per game. He completed 59.2 percent of his passes for 2,902 yards and 16 touchdowns to earn South Division All-Conference honors. He is the school's career leader in touchdown passes (50) and passing yards (7,325) and is 36 completions short of the school record of 578 career completions set by Jamie Jones. He is also in the top 10 all-time in the NSIC in total offense (6,695) and career passing yards (5,966).

Wayne State finished the 2008 season 9-3, tied for the NSIC South Division title and reached the NCAA Div. II playoffs for the first time in school history. The Wildcats finished the year ranked 19th in the American Football Coaches Association's Top 25 Div. II coaches poll. The nine wins tied a school record for wins in a season, matching the 1949 (9-0) and 1993 (9-1) teams' efforts.

Wayne State, which is ranked 21st in the USA Today Sports Weekly preseason poll and 22nd in Lindy's 2009 College Football Preview, opens the 2009 season at home against Nebraska-Kearney on Saturday, Aug. 29, at 6 p.m.

Fluellen leads an offense that returns seven starters from last year.

Wide receiver Logan Masters caught 80 passes for 1,179 yards and six touchdowns in 2008, and has already earned preseason All-American nominations from The Sporiting News, Lindy's College Football Preview and D2Football. com, and the Fluellen-to-Masters connection is one fans should expect to see happen frequently.

After guiding Wayne State to a school record-tying nine wins last year, coach Dan McLaughlin is looking for another solid season for the Wildcats in 2009. Wayne State opens the season at home against Nebrasaka-Kearney on Saturday, Aug. 29.

"They are the two best players in their league at their positions,' McLaughlin said. "Yes, they are both comfortable and familiar with each other, but the problem is not allowing the returning starters to get complacent because they are familiar with what we do."

Masters won't be Fluellen's only target, though. The Wildcats have some good depth at receiver, including juniors Robert Perry and Frederick Bruno, who combined for more than 70 catches and 900 yards last year.

The Wildcats have several newcomers and younger players who will see action at the position, and the tight end position is also solid with Aaron Nielsen and Andre McIntyre seeing time at the position in 2008.

In the backfield, Wayne State has some question marks after graduation and injuries took some key players. The graduation of Travis Rhone (784 yards, 10 TD) and Eric Meyer's season-ending knee injury in spring practice (525 yards, 5 TD) means the Wildcats will rely on Fluellen, who had 775 yards and five scores last year, as well as junior Mario Melvin. redshirt freshman Nick Pulscher and junior college transfers David Ferris and Vincent Patterson.

Three-year All-NSIC guard Brian Okonofua and left tackle Collin Prosser were lost to graduation, but the Wildcats have some good returning size up front with See FOOTBALL, Page 2B

The habit of making a first-round exit in the NCAA Div. II volleyball tournament is one the 2009 Wayne State volleyball team would like to break.

With four returning starters back from last year's 23-10 finish, hopes are high that this year's Wildcat squad can break that trend of firstround tournament dismissals and finish the year a little closer to the top.

And with two-time defending national champion Concordia-St. Paul leading four preseason-ranked teams out of the NSIC, Wayne State is going to face the kind of competition that can help them be a success at the end of the season.

"I think we've become a really good team, but to go from really good to great is another big step," fifth-year coach Scott Kneifl said. "Our expectations here are to win a national Kneifl said the returning players have all worked very hard this summer in preparation for the fall campaign.

"All the returning players have spent the entire summer in Wayne working out at six in the morning, so I'm really excited about this season," he said.

Back from last year is All-NSIC first-team middle blocker Jennifer Hefner, who led the team last year with 386 kills and 109 blocks. The 6foot-1 junior has been tabbed as one of the conference's players to watch, and Kneifl is looking for her to provide leadership on the floor.

"Her experience and leadership will be a huge asset to this team," he said. "Jen trained at multiple positions during the spring, and that will enable us to move her around in our offense and get her in a matchup that is to our advantage."

Outside hitters Mindy Moody and championship, and to do that I think Lea Hartigan return after solid 2008

we have some great athletes coming campaigns. Moody, a 6-foot sophomore, put down 215 kills and had 68 blocks last year, while Hartigan, a 5foot-10 junior, pounded 207 kills and led the team with 22 ace serves.

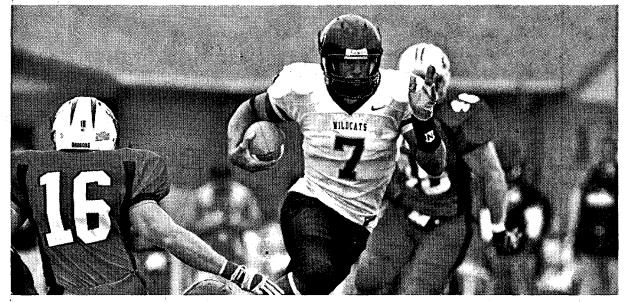

> "Mindy came on the last half of the year and has had a fabulous preseason," Kneifl said. "She's in the best shape of her life, and she's going to do a great job for us."

> Directing the offense will be 5-foot-7 junior setter Diedra Artz, who averaged more than 10 assists per game last year and had 182 digs.

> "Diedra is a great leader at setter," Kneifl said. "She spent a lot of time working on her game in the offseason and has a tremendous desire to win. She's done a nice job of learning our system and understanding what needs to be done to be successful."

> Four other letterwinners return to the lineup this year, including the team's lone senior, Tessa Wietfeld. The defensive specialist came through with 242 digs last year, and will be joined by sophomores Tali See VOLLEYBALL, Page 2B and Shane Winter. Nehemiah Blackburn switched sides and moved from the defensive line to the offensive side, drawing praise from coaches for his efforts during the spring.

The big question for Wayne State will be on defense, where only four starters are back from last year.

Gone is the entire defensive front, including All-American Troy Pribnow. Hastings transfer Cody Swanson should provide some immediate dividends on the line at defensive end, and senior Darnell Lee and redshirt freshman Alex Marquez will also see time at that position. Inside the line, Michael Bazata and Jeff Pokorny look solid, and Mark Janssen should also play well.

At linebacker, Ryan Reeves is back after an All-NSIC campaign in 2008, where he was the team's leading tackler with 125 stops. Wakefield native Kyle Gardner and sophomore Daniel Leacraft should contend for the top spots at the linebacker position.

In the defensive backfield, cornerbacks Robert Manuel and Cole Fischer return, along with senior strong safety Matt Greenway. Redshirts Ryan Molacek, Kyle Chandler and Javal Jones should give the Wildcats some much-needed depth in the secondary.

On special teams, Nick Hope was 14-of-17 on field goals and missed just two of 46 point-after attempts in 2008. He will be back, along with returning punter Jacob Bell, who averaged almost 34 yards per kick last year. Hope is on the Fred Mitchell Award Watch center Jake Runyon, and right-side linemen Joe Bundy List as one of the top kickers in NCAA Div. II and III. The Wildcats have some depth in the kicking game with the addition of Nick Bell, who kicked a 51-yard field goal in this summer's Shrine Bowl game, and Highland (Kan.) Community College transfer Randy Weich, who was an all-state punter at Pierce.

The Wildcats face a very tough schedule in 2009. The Aug. 29 opener against Nebraska-Kearney is always a challenge, and the Lopers are the preseason pick to win the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. After that, it's a challenging NSIC schedule that includes some tough road tests, according to McLaughlin.

"We have to go to Mankato, Winon and Bemidji, and we play Concordia in the Twin Cities, and that's never a picnic there," he said. "It's a tough road to hoe, and we'll have to be ready every week."

And while Wayne State is in the neighborhood of being ranked in the preseason, McLaughlin is quick to step aside any discussion of a national championship right now.

We're a team with 21 scholarships, where most D-2 schools get 36," he said. "To put that in perspective, D-1 gets 85 scholarships, so it would be like a school with 50 scholarships winning (a national championship). It's a dream, but I don't allow myself to get wrapped up in that.'

But, as it is often said, the road to success has to start with a first step.

"Right now," McLaughlin added, "I'm just thinking about Kearney."

Fredrickson, Shelby Schultz and Nicole Brungardt. Fredrickson, a 5-foot-7 outside hitter and defensive specialist, had 201 kills and 273 digs last year, Schultz, a 6-foot middle blocker, recorded 26 blocks and Brungardt, a 5-foot-8 outside hitter and defensive specialist, contributed 31 digs in 2008.

Four freshmen and a junior college transfer were added to the roster this year. The juco transfer is Leigh Connot, a 5-foot-8 sophomore libero from Missouri Western. She is joined by 6-foot freshmen hitters Madison Pernicek of Ravenna and Melanie Placke of St. Paul, 5-foot-11 middle blocker Alex Armes of Grand Island, and 5-foot-7 setter Sami Spenner of Columbus.

The Wildcats will be tested with a challenging schedule that includes two-time defending champion and NSIC favorite Concordia-St. Paul, who comes to town for a Tuesday, Sept. 29 battle and hosts Wayne State on Halloween night.

Also on the schedule are preseason-ranked teams including NSIC foes Southwest Minnesota State, Minnesota-Duluth and Augustana, along with in-state rival Nebraska-Kearney, who hosts the Wildcats on Tuesday, Nov. 3.

"What we like is that we're going to get tested day in and day out," Kneifl said. "We may have a couple more losses on our record, but if we can go out and compete hard in the conference, then good things are going to happen to us down the road.

Nebraska-Kearney are teams that are in the top 10, and we want to take their spot and compete for a national championship," he added. After four straight first-round exits, Kneifl said this year's team has the potential to go farther. "We have a team that can not State at 4 p.m.

Game permits on sale electronically

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission will start selling permits electronically later this year. The electronic sale of permits will begin on Nov. 1, the first day 2010 permits may be sold. Hunting and fishing permits and state-issued conservation stamps no longer will be sold from permit books, as they had been for decades. The exceptions will continue to be the annual park and duplicate annual park permits. Daily park permits will also be sold from the books. Adhesive-backed park permits will still be provided at the time of sale or mailed, if purchased online. Other limited exceptions to electronic permitting include special permits that require review, such as fur buyer, taxidermist and commercial fishing. Some permits have been sold electronically for a number of years, while others were handwritten permits issued from a permit book.

Electronic permitting means customers may go to www.outdoornebraska.org to buy and print out a permit at any time. By visiting any Game and Parks Commission permitting office or participating permit vendor, customers can accomplish the same thing. A paper permit still will be provided, and the transaction details will be recorded electronically.

The number of participating permit vendors likely will change, so people who have purchased permits from the same vendor for years are encouraged to contact their nearest vendor to ensure they still are participating and converted to the new system.

The Commission has been selling some deer and turkey permits electronically since 2001. Hunting and fishing permits, as well as habitat and aquatic habitat stamps, were sold electronically the following year. In 2008, 63 percent of all hunting and fishing permits were processed electronically. This includes sales over the Internet, Commission permitting offices and vendors that had converted to the electronic system.

Electronic permitting eliminates the need for permit books to be reviewed manually to confirm quantities sold, captures data for analysis of permit buyers to assist in improving opportunities. E-mail addresses of permit buyers are collected, as a customer option, and used for Commission surveys, notifications and deliveries.

On a lighter note, I'm sure those of you who read last week's column are asking if, maybe, I was in a coma when it comes to Husker football.

As I was writing last week's column, I turned to the Huskers.com football page to get, what I thought was, the updated depth chart to use names of key players for this year's team.

It was a great idea, with one small problem...it was LAST YEAR'S depth chart. Consequently, in my rush to opine on the Huskers' chances for 2009, I was noting some players who have extinguished their eligibility for participation in intercollegiate athletics.

My thanks to those readers who pointed out my printed impersonation of Rip Van Winkle. The prediction for the Huskers' record this year does still stand...although, if And if you can't exhibit even I can find a way to get Swift, Peterson and Lucky another year manship values, do your kid, your of eligibility, the Huskers could win the national title.

To say the least, last year was a difficult season for the Wayne State women's soccer team.

The Wildcats stumbled to a 1-18-1 finish last year and were outscored 83-11. With a new coach and a promise of change, things are bound to get better for Wayne State on the soccer pitch in 2009. at ni

Cross country teams to host regional meet

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Wayne State's cross country teams should have a good mix of experience and youth as coach Marlon Brink enters his 10th year as the program's coach.

Wayne State will play host to the NCAA Central Regional meet this November, and will do so with a solid women's team and a men's team that will need to fill a few holes to be competitive this fall.

"We lost a lot of experience and leadership, and we'll look to some younger guys to step up and develop their own leadership skills," Brink said of the men's squad.

On the women's side, six of the top seven runners from a team that finished sixth in the NSIC and 11th in the Central Regional are back, and Brink feels this team has the chance to finish very well.

"I am very optimistic that this can be a great season for this team," he said. "We have a good mix of senior leaders, along with some younger athletes, which should give us a nice balance. With the experience we have, if we stay healthy, we can be a very good team."

Leading the women's squad are seniors Megan Zavorka and Sarah Thomsen. Thomsen finished 17th regionals, while Zavorka, a two-and 40th in regionals.

Senior Molly Gibson is also back and will be looked to for senior leadership. Also back is junior Melissa McIntosh, senior Andrea Steele and sophomores Jenny McCoy and Tatiana DeLosSantos. Pawnee City freshman Ky'Lee Engelken rounds out the women's team.

On the men's side, junior York Thomas is back after finishing 16th as a sophomore and 10th as a freshman in the NSIC meet.

Also returning is junior John Kern, who took 42nd in regionals to finish a strong sophomore season. Junior Lee Anderson battled through injuries last year, but should compete for a top-five spot along with sophomores Matt Seiler, Joe Chebul, Ryan Callahan and Jason Schaaf. Trevor Urkoski is the lone freshman on the men's team. Wayne State will run against some tough competition this fall. NSIC teams Augustana and Minnesota-Duluth both finished in the top 10 in the NCAA Div. II women's meet last year, while Minnesota State was eighth on the men's side. The Central Regional meet, which will be held in Wayne on Saturday, Nov. 7, will include both defending national championship teams from Adams (Colo.) State, along with in the NSIC meet and 38th in men's runner-up Western (Colo.) State. Four of the top eight women's time NSIC runner-up, battled injuteams in last year's national meet the credit in our conference that ries and finished 29th in the NSIC came from the Central Regional.

AVCA ranks Lakers No. 1 in D-II preseason

Grand Valley State begins the 2009 season as the No. 1 team in the American Football Coaches Association's NCAA Div. II top 25 preseason poll.

The Lakers are ranked at the top in the preseason poll for the sixth time in the last 10 years, and are ranked ahead of 2008 runner-up Northwest Missouri State. Defending national champion and NSIC favorite Minnesota-Duluth is ranked third, followed by Delta State (Mississippi) and Abilene Christian (Texas).

Wayne State did not reach the top 25, placing 29th in voting of AFCA coaches. The only other NSIC team named in the top 25 was Minnesota State-Mankato, which is ranked 17th.

Valerie Robinson, who scored five of Wayne State's 11 goals last year, is back to lead eight top returning players from last year. The senior midfielder, along with junior Tiffani Kellerman (who scored two goals), should give the Wildcats a pretty good offensive duo to attack the box.

Area scouts band together for High Adventure

By Joni Jaeger, Scout Leader

Twelve Scouts and two adults from Coleridge, Randolph, Hartington, Osmond Troop 208 Griffen York, Aaron Colwell, Michael Colwell, David Burbach, Travis Burbach, Michael Wuebben, Alex Wuebben, Austin Gerdes, Derek Gall, Joe Aschoff, Ian Fallon, Collin Fallon, Robert Colwell, Kelly Burbach; four Scouts and two adults from the Winside Troop 179, Collin Hansen, three brothers -Peter, Paul and John Hansen, Joni Jaeger and Brock Muhs all banded together for a High Adventure that everybody will remember.

The group, 16 Scouts and four adults headed out on Aug. 4 at 5:30 a.m - destination Gooseberry Falls State Park on the Banks of Lake Superior. The group arrived early evening to set up camp, with the adults (Green Crew-adults) making supper of barbecue pork sandwiches.

Day 2 the group arose early with the adults making breakfast for the scouts. The group was divided into four crews - Green, Red, White, Blue for each of the days of cooking and planning. The group left the park around 9 a.m. and headed out for Ely, Minn. to arrive at Canoe Country Outfitters at 11 a.m. to check in and get the gear needed for three days in the Wilderness. We traveled 4-5 miles from Ely to our entry point where we shoved off the dock in the canoes around 2 p.m. on Low Lake. That would be our home base lake, setting up our camp on the far end of the lake on a campsite that was very tight to get us all in. The Red Crews

Supper was eggs in a bag with ham, cheese, potatoes. The scouts ended the night playing a campfire game called mafia.

Day 3 the group broke camp around 9 a.m. and headed out on an all day canoe and portaging trek. The group canoed to a portage at the end of Low Lake and carried the gear and canoes over a portage of an 1/8 mile and then had to maneuver over a beaver dam into Bass Lake. The group canoed to the end of Bass Lake to a portage that was short but very challenging taking us into Dry Lake. Dry Lake was a very pretty but small lake that did not take us very long to canoe through.

The crew leaders used maps to locate the portage on Dry Lake that would lead us to High Lake. This Portage was 1/2 mile long, up hill, muddy, with a lot of sharp rocks (extreme) that provided even the strongest in the group with a challenge. The group stopped for dinner after arriving at High Lake, the White Crew made pizza pita pockets using a dead fallen tree as their serving table. After an hour of exploring around High Lake the group started the trek back to camp at 3 p.m.

Upon reaching the portage between Dry and Bass Lakes, a waterfall drew the attention of the scouts as they spent a good amount of time playing in the water. The White Crews evening supper was Chicken, rice, and pudding. Again the night was ended with a campfire game of mafia.

Day 4 was the day of two differ-

Woodstock not part of memories

A couple of other old nurses and I attended a free music concert in a lovely little park in the southeast part of town last week, taking our own lawn chairs. The weather was cool and not humid, there was a bit of a breeze, there were no mosquitoes, and the kids and dogs kept us entertained.

I have been following all the forty year anniversaries as they have been covered in our papers; the landing on the moon being uppermost in my memory. I do recall dressing Sue and Jon' like astronauts, using old sheets to make suits, and entering them in the kiddie parade at Winside Old Settler's. I think they even got a prize.

But I barely remember something called Woodstock. I commented about that to my two friends, saying that I thought I was aware of a concert somewhere in the East that seemed to involve a lot of drugs and "peaceniks." But the 60s were a very busy time for me; I had three children under the age of six, a couple of hired men coming in for a noon meal most days, and a host of aunts and uncles and in-laws to take care of. Most of Mike's cousins had moved away, and their parents were all still around. This was a mixed blessing, because our kids had a bunch of grannies and grandpas, but I had a lot of responsibility when it came to things like heart attacks and gall bladder surgeries.

Anyway, the one friend I was with had a five children under five and the other one had a total of seven, and they claim to not even being aware of anything called Woodstock. I guess I can understand why. We all had to chuckle because there were obviously a couple of decades when we weren't reading the paper very much; or even catching the news on television. When we did have time to do either one of those things, we were too tired!

I keep reading that it was on a dairy farm belonging to someone named Max. And I keep wondering if his cows gave milk during that weekend??? I heard a recording of the song Janis Joplin sang and it sounded like just like a lot of hollering. If there were 400,000 people there, the cows must have all had nervous breakdowns. I know for a fact that their production goes down just when a stranger takes over the milking; what must that experience have been for them?

I also find it amazing that the word got around the way it did without the internet and without cell phones. One person I read about said they kept hearing about this concert and thought they needed to go. How did they hear about it? I'm guessing it was just on the radio. I don't think there were any formal invitations. And I'm also guessing it was not the great experience some of those who attended would like us to believe.

One article I read said there was a lot of acid used, the Grateful Dead almost got electrocuted on stage, and the mud was awful. It doesn't sound like my kind of thing. I guess we were born too soon: we were busy being moms that year and missed the whole show! Thank goodness!

Natural The Resources Conservation Service in Wayne is holding a public meeting to help inform producers about the new Conservation Stewardship prep work. These public meetings Program (CSP). The public informational meetings will be held on Monday, Aug. 24 in Norfolk at the Lifelong Learning Center and on Tuesday, Aug. 25 in Wisner at the City Auditorium. Meeting times are from 10 a.m. to noon or 7 to 9 p.m.

The 2008 Farm Bill authorized the Conservation Stewardship Program. Congress renamed and revamped the former Conservation Security Program to increase its availability and appeal to agricultural and forestry producers. The Conservation Stewardship Program is now available statewide through continuous sign-ups with announced cut-off application dates for ranking periods. The cutoff for the first ranking period is Sept. 30, 2009.

Conservationist Robin Sutherland, this public meeting will inform producers about the program and help them determine if CSP suits their operation.

"Applying for CSP takes some will help educate our customers about what CSP requires, helping to streamline the application process," Sutherland said.

NRCS administers CSP, a voluntary conservation program designed to encourage agricultural and forestry producers to adopt additional conservation practices and improve, maintain and manage existing ones.

Eligible lands include cropland, grassland, prairie, improved pastureland, rangeland, non-industrial private forestland - a new land use for the program - and agricultural land under the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe.

Producers interested in applying for CSP may learn more about the program and see a list of other According to NRCS District scheduled public meetings online at www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

Unfortunately we never know exactly when the big decline begins, but often we are clear by Labor Day. If you are seeing populations stabilize or slightly decrease, your field may be spared. Only frequent scouting of fields will keep you on top of things.

Soybean Management Field Days was a great experience, there were a lot of good questions and we were able to see where the efforts of the Nebraska Soybean Board and the Soybean Growers Association are heading. Consider becoming a member of the Nebraska Soybean

Immunization clinic set for Sept. 1

Action (GHCA) will hold the Wayne Immunization Clinic on Tuesday, Sept. 1 from 11 am. to 3 p.m. at United Methodist Church, 516 N Main Street, Wayne.

For an appointment please call (402) 529-3513.

GHCA's Health Services Program will provide lead screening to children 12 months to 5 years of age at the Immunization Clinics. Children may get lead poisoning from paint of homes built before 1978, tap water, food, pottery, dirt, dust and even from the air we breathe. Elevated blood levels can cause irreversible damage to the brain and nervous system;

it can harm the kidneys and digestive system; and because lead reduces the ability for the body to produce red blood cells;

• it can cause anemia. Children with elevated blood levels of 10 or higher may suffer dulled hearing, stunted growth, reduced eye-hand coordination, behavioral problems and delayed learning skills.

The Immunization Clinic is open to the public, and there are Goldenrod Hills Community no income guidelines. Each child IPV (polio) as a combination vaccine. legal guardian is unable to accompany the child to clinic. Proxy forms would be appreciated to help defray administrative costs. If a child only receives one immunization, then the suggested donation is $13.50.

No one will be denied immunizations for inability to make a donation. Immunizations are needed at ages: 2 months, 4 months, 6 months, 12-15 months, and 4-6 years. This project is supported in part by Federal Immunization Program Funds awarded to Goldenrod Hills Community Action by the Nebraska Services.

AND DESCRIPTION OF THE OWNER OWNE

Debate climate is troubling

We are writing as citizens concerned about the climate of the current debate in Congress and the nation over Health Care Reform.

President Obama has laid out the three broad principles of his plan for reform: reducing costs, ensuring choice of insurance plan/health care providers, and guaranteeing that everyone has fair and equal access to health care. Certainly these are principles that no reasonable person would disagree with, and naturally there are honest disagreements about specific ways to achieve these important goals. The President has clearly stated his desire for bipartisan support on any final legislation, deliberately leaving many particulars to the democratic process.

But, obviously, what has happened in recent weeks in many town hall meetings around the country, and on some radio and TV commentary, is demagoguery, not democracy. Deliberate lies about some of the legislative works in progress to scare people into thinking that the government will take over their individual freedom of choice (the specter of Communism) is one such tactic.

A few disgruntled Canadian citizens, out of the vast majority who favor their health system, appear in such inflammatory ads. It is true that some Canadians would like the choice of a private plan, but that is not an issue in our health care debate. Obama's public option is just that, a choice, added to all the private options already in place. Other scare tactics warn that Obama's plan will raise taxes on the middle class, gut Medicare, and, most outlandish of all, encourage the elderly to end their lives to cut costs.

Such outrageous lies make a mockery of intelligent citizen participation in the democratic process. Therefore, they must be exposed for what they are - attempts to derail any meaningful reform that threatens certain special interest groups who reap handsome profits from the present system.

Wendell Potter, a former health insurance executive, recently testified to that reality on Bill Moyer's Journal. Potter explained that he was insulated from the sad results of unaffordable health care until he witnessed, first hand, a Remote Area Medical event in Wise, Va. He also reminded viewers that Medicare is a government-run plan which most recipients are quite happy with (even though, we grant, that it is not exempt from the need #### for reform).

State's lawmakers pay for insurance Given the results of a recent door-to-door health care reform survey in Wayne, it seems that By Ed Howard such venomous falsehoods have not yet taken root in our community. A significant number of residents showed their willingness to publicly support the above three core principles of health care reform and to have their names included in a letter to "Blue Dog" Sen. Ben Nelson to that effect. Sen. Nelson has said he wants to hear from his rural constituents, not only from city folks.

Genuine health care reform is change America can believe in, as long as people don't allow their vision to be clouded and their emotions to be manipulated by the tactics of dirty politics. Quality health care should be a right, not just a privilege, for every citizen regardless of age, pre-existing condition, or social/economic status. It is too critical a need to be killed in its infancy by misinformation mongers.

Let's get the facts, consider ALL the options, and not forget to make our private and public discussion of the issues rational and civil. August provides plenty of heat on its own. So let's try to generate more light than heat in this ongoing debate - for everybody's health and peace of mind.

Thanks to committee

As long-time residents of the Wayne area, we would like to thank the Q-125 Committee and all the people involved in making our celebration truly special.

All the events were so wellplanned and carried out. It all certainly gave us a new appreciation for the hardships and determination it required for our ancestors to tame this wild prairie and create the community we so enjoy today.

Let's hope we can do as well to hand down the spirit of cooperation and compromise to the generations that follow.

insurance, paid for by taxpayers. The same is true for members of some state legislatures, while some others allow lawmakers to participate in state healthcare programs at rates lower than those paid by state employees.

Nebraska isn't among them.

The Associated Press recentreported that legislators ly Nebraska, Nevada, New in Hampshire, West Virginia, Alabama and Vermont must pay the full price themselves if they want to participate in the state healthcare plan.

Nebraska lawmakers continue to study programs that might reduce the number of prison inmates who re-offend and find themselves sentenced to prison ... again.

The state says about 25 percent of those sent to prison do an encore behind bars.

One existing program aimed at reducing recidivism, by allowing criminals on probation or parole to be trained as certified welders, is provided in McCook at the state's Work Ethic Camp. The program is offered in conjunction with Nebraska-based Valmont Industries.

Sen. Brad Ashford of Omaha, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, shepherded measures though the 2009 Legislature aimed at increasing sentences for some violent crimes, along with other measures aimed at reducing recidivism and prison populations.

If Nebraska doesn't find effective alternative sentencing options, and crime prèvention programs, it will eventually need to build another state prison. Another prison would mean yet higher costs related to incarceration.

Former Sen. Mike Friend of Omaha is the first director of the Nebraska Office of Violence Prevention. He resigned from the Legislature to accept the new appointment from Gov. Dave Heineman.

Friend was in his second term and thus could not have sought re-election in 2010 due to term limits on lawmakers provided in the state constitution. He will be paid $70,000 in his new post. Heineman Record, Berg said:

will appoint someone to serve the remainder of Friend's term.

The 2009 Legislature created the Office of Violence Prevention. The OVP will be responsible for developing, fostering, promoting, and assessing violence prevention programs. The governor appoints the director and a six-member advisory council.

Weekly Legislative Update

The Sentencing and Recidivism Task Force held its second meeting last week, hearing testimony from county attorneys, judges, parole officers and others involved in Nebraska's criminal justice system.

In addition, community groups shared their experiences in helping former inmates re-enter society, and discussed the many programs available to help reduce the number of former prisoners who reoffend.

Unfortunately, successful new programs – like separate drug courts and specialized probation programs for non-violent drug offenders - operate on shoestring budgets and are in dire need of increased state funding.

Making matters worse, many of these community-based programs are limited to Omaha and Lincoln, and have yet to be made available statewide. With estimated costs for a new prison reaching $125 million, however, the cost of doing nothing is clearly not an option.

For those District 17 residents who were unable to attend my previous town hall meetings, I am pleased to announce the details for the meeting to be held next month. It will be Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 7 p.m. in the South Sioux City City Hall, located at 1615 First Ave. in South Sioux City.

As always, would encourage you to contact me if you have any questions, or simply have an opinion on legislation before the Unicameral. Feel free to call my office at (402) 471-2716, e-mail bgiese@leg.ne.gov, or stop by in person any time you are in Lincoln.

of the knee-jerk variety where they may have either misread what was printed or, most often, tried to read between the lines and came away with an incorrect assumption (this happens with many of my personal columns, as some will take something I intended as a joke to be serious...especially when I'm talking about family members).

Other times, though, the printed word can cause the kind of reaction I witnessed Saturday morning in Ponca...even though the printed word was incorrect.

A recent ad in our free Morning Shopper noted that our Congressional representative, Jeff Fortenberry, was having a town hall meeting in Allen. Another ad, published in last week's Shopper, indicated that original ad was in error, and that it was State Sen. Bob Giese who was having a meeting in Ponca.

Unfortunately, both ads noted that each meeting was going to be about the proposed 35 Expressway that would replace Highway 35 and link South Sioux City with Norfolk. The Fortenberry meeting was never scheduled (although, judging from my phone call to confirm the meeting, news of the meeting made things at Fortenberry's Norfolk office a little more entertaining than usual), while Giese's meeting was actually his monthly town hall meeting that was to focus on a variety of issues.

By: Michael Carnes

Judging by the first few minutes of Saturday's meeting, the 35 Expressway was not on Sen. Giese's list of talking points...but area residents who made the 36mile journey made sure they let their feelings known about it in quick fashion.

Of course, it is never our intent to publish information that would mislead people about items of an important nature such as this. Nor is it our policy to intentionally publish information that would cause our readers to start a disturbance at a meeting with a government official.

But the unintended consequences of this faux pas was a great example of people taking an interest in the government their taxes pay for. Of the more than 30 people who were in attendance, about a third were from this area and wanted some answers regarding the status of the 35 Expressway.

Now I'm not going to say whether or not the proposed expressway will ultimately be good for this area. Based on my experience (and, having worked at as many newspapers as I have over the years, I've got plenty of it), I know that communities who don't pursue growth opportunities are, ultimately, dying communities. This area has a lot of good going for it, and it would behoove everybody involved to look closely at this opportunity.

Managing Editor

There are those who say an expressway that goes around a community like Wayne or Wakefield, ultimately, will kill those communities. I would agree with that assessment ONLY if those communities do not embrace the change that would result from this detour and work to use that opportunity as a unique marketing effort that would continue, and even enhance, the draw to the area that the current highway route offers.

A new expressway, I assume, would alleviate some of the traffic headaches people have at Wayne High School, which I think we'd all be in favor of. On the other hand, it would also take business away from the restaurants, hotels and businesses that rely on the proposed expressway.

(I should note that, having only been here a few weeks, I have not had time to dive into the details of the proposed expressway. My statements above are based on my own personal experiences and information I have gathered on similar subjects in previous stops over the course of my career.)

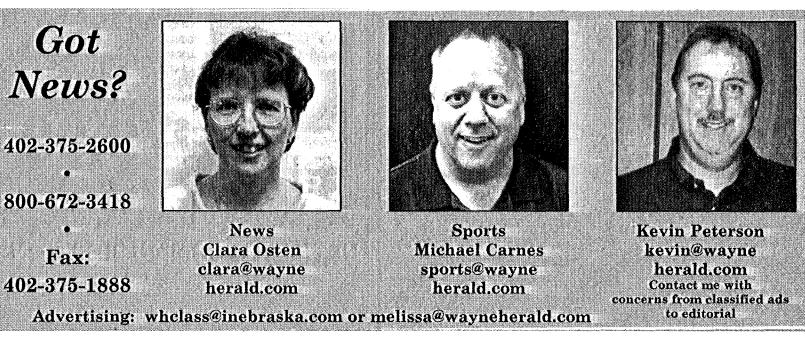

Regardless, the fact that people whose livelihoods are affected by this proposed expressway are letting their voices be heard. And while, I'm sure, it was a surprise to Sen. Giese, I hope that those involved in the process will continue to express themselves in a first-class manner that will lead to a resolution to the issue that would benefit landowners and their surrounding communities.

Finally, this just in from the "Desperate times call for desperate measures, except in Arkansas, where stupidity is standard operating procedure" department:

An unemployed woman (with five children) is trying to sell the naming rights to her yet-to-be-born sixth child on eBay.

The problem for her is the fact that eBay has shut down four previous ads she has posted, citing a variety of logcial reasons.

I'll pay her 10 bucks if she gives the kid a name that befits her lazy approach to making money. How about "Lazy"?

Sorting through the financial professionals alphabet soup

One of the biggest lessons coming out of the recent bear market is that you need to find financial professionals you can rely upon. A number of factors can go into the process, such as the professional background and history of the individuals you are considering, referrals from others who have used them and your own comfort level from having a one-on-one discussion.

But for many, a good starting point is to understand the credentials of the professionals you are considering. As you look at their business cards, letterhead or office nameplates, you are likely to see professional designations being used. Financial advisors

There are several different certifications you may commonly see attached to financial advisors. These typically provide an indication that the professional you are considering has invested time and energy to increase his or her knowledge to a specific area.

Here are some basic explanations of financial designations: CFP® (Certified Financial Planner ™ professional); ChFC® (Chartered Financial Consultant)

To qualify for these designations, professionals must have at least three years of experience in financial planning and pass rigorous exams that typically require one-to-two years of study and ongoing education. The coursework provides these individuals with more in-depth knowledge about key financial planning topics that should better prepare them to develop beneficial solutions. for their clients.

CLU® (Chartered Life Underwriter); CPCU® (Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter)

Both are professional designations for those who provide insurance products to individuals and companies. Again, they require a course of study and continuing education, often dealing with more complex topics related to the application of insurance coverage to meet individual financial planning needs.

RIA (Registered Investment Advisor) These individuals must be registered with their states or the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) in order to provide investment advice and manage investments for others. They typically are held to a high standard of fiduciary responsibility by regulators. Registered Representative

Homework tip: develop good study habits

Teachers, parents, and students buildings and teachers and even are beginning to feel the crunch some of the subjects have changed time of the first week of school. The since parents were in school themselves. But one thing is still the same: homework. Some school kids "thrive" on doing homework; they think it's fun. Others, however, have a tougher time.

When homework becomes a chore, here are some suggestions for parents to help their child develop good study habits: • Develop a positive attitude about helping the child. Let the child become your teacher at home. Doing homework together is an opportunity for the parent to continue expressing the care and affection they have for the child. Plus, kids still like showing off what they're learning to mom and dad. Develop a routine for when homework is done. Some kids may need to play for a while when they get home; others want to do their homework right away so they'll have free time later.

Either way is fine, but parents must encourage consistency regarding the time that children are expected to do their homework.

· Identify a location that works best for the child to do homework. Some children need a quiet place, perhaps in a bedroom or back room of the house. Others can do homework on the kitchen table or even in front of the television. Whatever works for that child is fine. That's something that parents can help decide.

While homework is part of the total school experience, it's a smaller part of life. When parents believe that their child is bringing home too much work from school, they need to take their concerns to the teacher. Other activities in the child's life are important, too. And a child's relationship with his or her family is important.

For more information about parenting and back-to-school, interested persons are encouraged to contact their local UNL Extension Office or visit the website at www. extension.unl.edu

Stover celebrates 15 years of ordination

Pastor Kim A. Stover of Our Savior Lutheran Church was ordained into the ministry of Word and Sacrament on Aug. 14, 1994. He celebrated his 15th anniversary with members of Our Savior Saturday evening and Sunday morning with reception.

Stover, a Nebraska native, graduated from Concordia College in Seward in 1978 with an Elementary Education Degree. He worked for Zion Lutheran Church, Stamford, Conn. as Director of Christian Development. In 1976, Stover began teaching in Ravenna, remedial reading and math for grades 1-8. He was a first grade classroom teacher for two years.

He worked for LaGrange Equipment Company selling farm shop equipment and supplies and Modern Methods selling photocopiers. In 1981, Ross Laboratories a manufacturer of nutriceuticals, employed Stover as Territory Manager in Central Nebraska. He was often recognized for outstanding work and market share development.

While working for Ross Laboratories, Stover responded to his sense of call to ministry. With his wife Sue, and three children, the Stovers relocated to Trinity Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, Ohio in 1990. Following three years of academic training in pastoral care and counseling, theology and homiletics, worship leadership, church administration, and evangelism as well as a supervised year of Internship at St. John Lutheran Church, Grove City, Ohio, Stover was ordained.

He served Springboro Lutheran Church, Springboro, Ohio, as a redevelopment pastor; and Trinity Lutheran Church in Hildreth. Trinity combined the ministries of three Lutheran Churches in northern Franklin County into one church with a single worship center.

He was called to Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne and began ministry on Sept. 1, 2006. His wife, Sue, serves the church as well, as Director of Lay Ministries.

**A backpack with individualized compartments will help you position the contents most effectively and ensure that your child's sandwich isn't flattened by a heavy textbook.

**When packing the backpack, make sure that pointy or bulky objects are packed away from the area that will rest on the child's back. An uneven surface rubbing against your child's back could cause painful blisters.

**Tell your child to use both shoulder straps, not just one. A backpack slung over one shoulder disproportionately shifts all of the weight to one side, and can cause not only neck and muscle spasms, but also low back pain.

**Padded shoulder straps are very important. Not only will they be more comfortable than non-padded straps, but they will also help prevent the straps from digging into you child's shoulders.

**The shoulder straps should be adjustable, so the backpack can be fitted to your child's body. Shoulder straps that are too loose can cause the backpack to dangle uncomfortably, and cause misalignment and pain.

**If the backpack is still too heavy, talk with your child's teacher. It might be possible to leave the heaviest books at school, and bring home only lighter handout materials or work books.

**Talk to your child about the proper use of backpacks and help him of her understand why this issue is important. A child who is educated early in life on these issues can apply the knowledge later in life (at home or in the office) and as a result, will be happier and healthier. ÷. the second of 2
