What do your children know that you don't? Sexting, 'choking game' topics of discussion Tuesday at Wayne High

Family recalls tragic loss of happy 11-year-old son

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Drew Fiala loved school. He loved sports. He was his dad's best friend. And on his 12th birthday, his parents buried him in a cemetery near David City. Unbeknownst to Candy and Luke Fiala, their son was doing something that has commonly been referred to as "the choking game." Although it goes by numerous other names - Airplaning, Elevator, Knock Out and Natural High, to name a few - it can result in brain damage or death for anybody who is involved with it. That was the message the Fialas hoped to get across to the reporter-estimated 50 people who sat in on an 80-minute discussion of this deadly game and the growing problem of "sexting" Tuesday at the Wayne High lecture hall. Mrs. Fiala said she and her husband had no idea their child was involved in such an activity until they found him in his bedroom the day he died. "We come from a town of 2,500, and we didn't think this would happen to us," she said. Her husband added that his son's death had them asking the same question, over and over again: Why? "Three days before this happened, we went to parent-teacher conferences and his teacher told us what a wonderful kid he was," he said. "We knew this wasn't intentional, but all we could ask is 'Why?'" Authorities ruled Fiala's death as accidental from playing the choking game, and a follow-up investigation found that 90 percent of the kids in his class at Aquinas Catholic School had either participated in, or knew of, the choking game. The discussion, co-sponsored by Wayne Public Schools and the Student Council for Exceptional Children at Wayne State College, offered some insight into how brain development takes place in human beings and how that development is connected with some of the impulsive behaviors children have. Dr. Gloria Lawrence, a professor at Wayne State College, said that the human

The couple, who buried their son on St. Patrick's Day, his 12th birthday, spoke to local residents Tuesday about what is becoming a popular, and deadly, pastime among our nation's youth.

'Sexting' is public, permanent

Children risk exploiting themselves in a manner that they won't want to be exploited if they get involved with sexting, a local attorney told those in attendance at a gathering called "What Your Children Know That You Don't." Kyle Dahl, a local attorney who also serves as the school district's attorney, told the crowd of about 50 in the Wayne High lecture hall that sexting - the act of sending sexually explicit images or words via electronic means - can be a permanent and public embarrassment to those who are involved with it. Studies have shown that about 1 in 5 teens in the United States has participated in some form of sexting, Dahl said. "Years ago, you had to get film developed, and if your were lucky you got double

Council deadlocks on underpass grant, mayor breaks tie

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

After nearly an hour of debate, discussion and public input, the Wayne City Council members cast a tie vote on the issue of accepting or rejecting grant funding for a pedestrian underpass on west Highway 35. The underpass is part of the Phase II Trail in the city of Wayne, which was approved for funding in December of 2003. Since that time, the trail has been redesigned to meet environmental and Department of Roads guidelines. The city will go through with the grant funding, though, as Mayor Lois Shelton broke the 4-4 tie with a vote in favor of accepting the funding. A number of people in attendance at Tuesday's meeting spoke in regard to the proposed underpass. Council member Kaki Ley questioned whether or not there would be safety issues with the underpass and noted that Omaha had closed underpasses for safety issues. She also indicated that those constituents she had received input from were in favor of the underpass. Council member Doug Sturm said that he had witnessed the number of people who use the trail that is currently in place near the Summer Sports Complex and felt the need for an underpass to protect those who will be using the new trail. He also noted that the city has invested money into other projects in the city, such as the Community Activity Center, swimming pool, golf course and city parks on an on-going basis. Mark Evetovich and Joe Blankenau both spoke in favor of the underpass and asked the council to think of the future of the city and the trail system. Dean Carroll told the council he was opposed to the underpass because of the cost, including the cost over-run if the project costs more than the engineer's estimate. He said only a small percentage of children and adults would be using the trail and asked if the city could find other grant funding that would pay for 100 percent of the cost. City administration said the Safe Routes to School provides 100 percent of funding on projects they approve but have a limit of $250,000 per project. Lonnie Matthes told the council he was in favor of finishing the trail but opposed to an underpass. Instead, he would prefer a safe, at-grade crossing which would be "a lot less expensive way to get across the

Drug disposal information available at library

We continue to hear of unwanted, unused or expired medications being flushed down the toilet or poured down the drain. But these methods of drug disposal are no longer acceptable and have created a need for consumer education.

"Based on public health concerns and negative impacts to water quality, a coalition of local, state and non-profit organizations have joined together to spread the message that we should now throw medications away in the trash instead of flushing them down the toilet," explains Marcia Muetting, PharmD, RP, with the Nebraska Pharmacists Association.

During the month of April, the Wayne Public Library will feature a poster board display and provide bookmarks detailing the current recommended method of drug disposal.

A nationwide study released in 2002 by the United States Geological Survey detailed trace levels of prescription drug chemicals found in 80 percent of the waterways across the country. The breakthrough study checked for the presence of materials such as pharmaceuticals, antibiotics, sterols, hormones, and other chemical compounds. Groundwater and seven streams in Nebraska were included in the study. Pharmaceutical chemicals can enter the environment contaminating surface and groundwater by several means.

As regulations on wastewater and municipal wastewater treatment facilities continue to evolve, many Nebraska communities are taking extra measures to protect public health and the environment. "Nebraska landfills are engineered to prevent the release of any toxic material into the ground or surface water. These landfills are more than suitable to accept unwanted pharmaceuticals from households," states Jim Harford from the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality.

The Nebraska Medication Education on Disposal Strategies (MEDS) partnership consists of the Nebraska Pharmacists Association, the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department, the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality, The Nebraska Regional Poison Center and the Groundwater Foundation. The mission of the Nebraska MEDS project is to educate Nebraskans about drug disposal to better safeguard the environment and protect public health.

tions to protect our families, community and the environment:

1. Take unwanted medicines out of their original containers and place in a sealable bag.
2. Crush medicines, or add enough water to dissolve them, then mix with soil, coffeegrinds or cat litter.
3. Place sealed bag in trash, preferably the day of pick-up.

For additional information on how you can safely dispose of medications, please visit the Nebraska MEDS website at, www.nebraskameds.org, or contact the Nebraska Regional Poison Center at 1-800-222-1222.

Liska recognized for work with bluebirds

Donna Liska of Wayne won Bluebirds Across Nebraska Bluebird of the Year Award at the State convention held recently in Ponca.

Liska was chosen from the 1,700 members of the organization.

Bluebirding has been a family affair for Liska, as her daughter, Anne Hoeman, introduced her to the project about 12 years ago. At that time, Hoeman had approximately 60 boxes in the Lexington area.

When Bluebirds Across Nebraska (BAN) came up with the idea for the TAK-Along project, it was never imagined that one person would be able to reach out and touch so many young lives as did Donna Liska, county coordinator for Wayne County. Donna's son, Bob, is a leader of the Webelo Den of Cub Scout Pack #174. When Donna found out that Pack #174 wanted to participate in the TAK-Along project, she moved into action.

The Pack joined BAN and on March 9, Donna presented a general bluebird program. Twenty-three scouts and their parents committed to monitoring one nest box once a week. They were all given the Trail Monitoring Guide, Getting Started With Bluebirds, a monitoring sheet, and a record card. A set of books from the TAK-Along kit was given to each of the four den leaders for use at their meetings and for each boy to read.

The request was made by the Pack leader that the nest boxes be close to town so the scouts could easily fulfill their responsibility of monitoring weekly. Donna contacted the city of Wayne, Great Dane Manufacturing, the NE Nebraska Public Power Company and Wayne Veterinary Clinic and received permission from each to install bluebird nest boxes on their properties.

Donna didn't stop there. She then contacted the State National Bank, Farmers and Merchants State Bank, and Reggie Yates of Edward Jones, asking each to become a sponsor of this project. Between these three businesses, Pack #174 and Donna, $300 was raised for the Wayne Bluebird Trail Project. (Donna also helped Reggie Yates install 10 nest boxes around the Wayne golf course and at the Wayne State College Arboretum which he is now monitoring.)

Donna purchased 30 boxes from Belden delivered them. On March 28, the Pack and their parents met at which time Donna gave a detailed talk about monitoring and Bob Liska demonstrated how to install a nest box. The four individual dens then worked as a group to install the nest boxes.

Still eager to do more, Donna appeared on KTCH radio's program, "The View From Wayne, America," sharing information with the listening audience about bluebirds and the trail project. She also contacted the local newspaper, The Wayne Herald, who printed a news article about bluebirds and the Cub Scout Pack's project.

Donna had stressed to the boys that not all of them would have a bluebird in their nest box. She told them they would possibly be providing places for other cavity nesters while keeping the sparrow population down. That's just what happened. Occupants of the nest boxes included bluebirds, tree swallows, chickadees and house wrens. The work the Scouts did on this project helped them earn the World Conservation Award.

Wanting to have her own grandchildren involved with the TAK-Along project, Donna purchased a packet and "in her spare time" took her four granddaughters along when she monitored her own trail. Her grandson, R.J., is a cub scout and participated with his Webelo den. He enjoyed the project so much that he did a presentation for the Wayne County 4-H Contest. He received a purple ribbon and also overall Reserve Grand Champion for the presentation.

Donna introduced 27 children and many adults to bluebirds through the TAK-Along project and for these efforts was chosen to receive the award.

County board to put winter work together

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners will need to piece together the routes they opened up and the equipment used during last winter's blizzards if they are to receive any federal disaster relief funds.

At Tuesday's meeting, the board went over a letter from the state's Emergency Management Agency, which listed the forms the county would need to submit before payment could be made on the projects.

To that end, the board began looking at the hours logged, supplies used and money spent dealing with emergency situations that required roads to be opened during the course of last winter's series of blizzards.

Nic Kemnitz, emergency manager for the county, told the board that they would need to document all the situations where an emergency situation was in place.

Each board member will itemize the activity that took place in their district, and that information will be included along with forms required in the state's letter to the county.

Board members did not have an exact number available during Tuesday's meeting, but all three agreed the county answered several hundred emergency calls to open roads for such things as fires, car accidents and emergency delivery of supplies such as propane.

County Clerk Deb Finn also encouraged the board to look into the possibility of having somebody come in and take care of some maintenance items that have needed attention around the courthouse.

Finn said she didn't expect county workers, who will be out working on road repair and other related items around the county this spring and summer, to take care of things, but suggested they look into the matter.

"We have some things that need to be done here at the courthouse, and I know you're doing everything you can, but there are some things here that need to be looked at," she said.

In other action, the board:

- approved lodging tax grant applications for the Carroll Spring Fling, Carroll Fun Days and printing of the county fair books.
- approved the bid of $2,250 from Computer Cable Connection of Bellevue to upgrade the fiber optic cable installation between the courthouse and court services building.
- approved a bid of $9,425 from Hanson Construction of Concord to build wings to the judge's bench in the court room to help with upgraded technology needs in the court room.

highway." He said he felt visibility was not an issue in that area.

Verdel Luttt said he appreciated the council's time and effort on this issue and said it "brought people to city government." He did indicate he would like to see a town reject federal government money.

Wes Blecke said that while the underpass may not make sense today, we need to look at the future. We would be investing $150,000 (the city's share of the project) in the community."

Council member Dale Alexander said he did not see the underpass as a need in the community and the majority of the people he had spoken to in his ward were against the idea.

Following discussion, the council voted 4-4 on the issue with Council member Ken Chamberlain, Kaki Ley, Doug Sturm and Jim Van Delden voting for the underpass and Council members Kathy Berry, Brian Frevvert, Jon Haase and Dale Alexander voting against. In case of a tie, the mayor is able to cast the deciding vote. Shelton voted for acceptance of the grant funding to move forward with the project.

In other action, the council waived the readings on four ordinances, each of which creates a Sidewalk Improvement District in the downtown area.

The council received a dividend check in the amount of $23,610.41 from EMC Insurance Company.

Cap Peterson with Northeast Nebraska Insurance Agency explained the requirements for receiving a dividend check and noted that the city had received a check in 12 of the last 16 years.

The dividend is a part of the Municipality Safety Dividend Program and represents activity from March 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010.

The council also voted to rescind the offer of the agricultural practices reporting agreement to the property owner of city well #10 north of Wayne and approved a Memorandum of Understanding with Richard Milligan, the owner of the land.

Mayor Shelton read proclamations for April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month, Safe Drinking Water Week, May 2-8 and Arbor Day on April 30.

Council members listened to two requests from different groups that are part of the Mayor's Youth Council.

The first, presented by Reed Trenhaile, involved a lift for the swimming pool. Trenhaile told the council that his group had researched several options but new information from those who would be using the lift led them to ask for more time to do further research.

Colin Webster and Austin Frideres asked the council for permission to close off a street in downtown Wayne for a street dance on Friday, May 21.

Council members questioned whether all the necessary insurance requirements had been met.

The council will next meet on Tuesday, May 4 at 5:30 p.m.

prints," he said. "It was more of a time-intensive situation, whereas today you can take a picture here and upload it to the Internet within seconds, and once it's online, it's public and permanent."

Dahl related a story of a girl in Cincinnati, Ohio, who committed suicide after she found out a boyfriend that she had broken up with had forwarded, to 300 people, a sexually-explicit photo she had taken and sent to him.

"She got all kinds of messages on her Facebook page that drove her to kill herself," Dahl said.

Sending sexual images has legal ramifications, Dahl added. If the subject of the photo is a minor, those who send and receive the photos can be in violation of state and federal child pornography laws.

"Even if you're not participating in it, if you receive it and forward it on to somebody, you are distributing child pornography," he said. "It's so easy to forward something to a friend, and if you do it during school hours there are implications for in-school discipline as well."

Wayne Public Schools has a policy in place to handle the distribution of such material, and the district does not allow students to use cell phones during the school day.

Dahl encouraged parents to stay up to date on the latest technology and talk with their children about the responsibility of transmitting items, whether by cell phone or via the Internet.

"Anything you put on Facebook or anywhere on the Internet, once it's out there it is permanent and it brain matures rapidly between the ages of 20-25, and teenagers – the most likely to engage in this sort of behavior – tend to have an ego-centric behavior that tells them they will be able to do something that might kill somebody else.

"When a teenager dies in a car accident, everybody is upset, but then they think 'It won't happen to me,'" Lawrence said. "It's very difficult to get around."

Lawrence said those who are involved in the choking game are acting in a manner similar to that of somebody who is addicted to drugs, and she encouraged parents to talk with their children about this activity the same way they would talk to them about drugs, alcohol or sex.

"It's hard to stop once they've started, but children really do listen if you talk to them," she said. "You need to talk with your child the same way, and for the same reasons, you would talk to them about drugs or sex."

It was a point echoed by the Fialas, who encouraged parents in the audience to talk to their kids.

"You have got to know, as parents, and you have got to talk to your children," Mrs. Fiala told the crowd. "It is our responsibility to talk to our kids and educate yourself. We've got to be teaching ourselves on what our kids are doing."

"One night, right before he died, he had been grounded and he came up and sat on the couch with me and said, 'You know, mom, next week I'll turn 12 and I'll be more mature,'" she added.

"We buried our son on his 12th birthday."

DeLong wins all-class gold at SC Relays

SIoux CITY, Iowa — Bethany DeLong and Ezra Schantz both had big days for Laurel-Concord at the Sioux City Relays Saturday afternoon.

The senior Bears standouts came away with individual wins, with Schantz sweeping the throws and DeLong winning the Class C and all-class 100-meter races. DeLong also joined Katie Jacobsen, Leanna Gubbels and Erika Hochstein on the winning 400-meter relay team.

"Bethany had a very good time in the Class C race, then won the all-class and ran almost the exact same time," coach Nate Sims said of the Colorado State recruit. "Both times were very good, and she did a good job for us on the relays as well."

DeLong won the Class C 100-meter race in a time of 12.64 seconds, and later claimed the all-class crown with a time of 12.65.

 inning when Sandstrom knocked a single into left field.

Goetzing struck out 10 in seven innings as she pitched her 10th complete game of the season. Goetzing only allowed five hits on the afternoon and did not walk a single Peacock batter. Sandstrom led the way offensively for Wayne State, going 3-for-4 with two RBI's. Sam Earleywine was 2-for-2 with an RBI.

The Wildcat's bats were fire in the first inning of the finale, as the Wildcats scored five runs to take command. The inning was highlighted by a pair of doubles by Hannah Engelkamp and Kuhl. Both doubles drove in runs to get Wayne State off to a hot start, and Kassie Nurton knocked in two runs on an RBI single to give the Wildcats the 5-0 lead after one inning.

Baird pitched six strong innings, allowing five hits and striking out two. Sam Earleywine continued to feast on Upper Iowa pitching, going 3-for-4 with two RBI's and two runs scored. Kuhl went 2-for-3 with two RBI's, and Nurton added two hits and two RBI's.

On Tuesday, the Wildcats' six-game winning streak came to a screeching halt, as the red hot Nebraska-Omaha softball team extended their win streak to 16 games Tuesday afternoon with a doubleheader sweep in Omaha, defeating the Wildcats 2-1 and 5-1.

The Mavericks used a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh to win the first game, then scored three runs in the first inning of the second game to take control early on their way to the sweep.

Wayne State led early in the opener, putting together three hits to score their run. Sandstrom singled, went to second on an error, advanced to third on Kuhl's single to left field and scored on Engelkamp's single to shortstop.

Wayne State was limited to one hit after that, but Goetzing was just as impressive for the Wildcats, holding the Mavericks to three hits entering the seventh inning. However, Kristin Wellwood led off the seventh with a single down the left field line and then Lindsey Slocum homered to right field to give the Mavericks a dramatic win in the first game.

The second game saw the Mavericks score three runs in the first inning to take control early and then scored four insurance runs in the sixth inning to finish off the sweep.

Wayne State, 27-9, was scheduled to host Minnesota State in a home NSIC doubleheader on Wednesday. They host Minnesota-Duluth and Bemidji State this weekend in doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday.

 Pierce was third with a 179.

"We showed some signs of improvement for some players, but others struggled," he said. "When you have to score a 47 at the varsity level, it is going to keep you from the top."

Trent Beza and Brodersen led the Blue Devil varsity with rounds of 41, while Jeffries shot a 42. Trevor Beza and Preston both shot 47.

"Trevor and Collin Preston were both playing fine until they took a disastrous score on one hole," Hix said. "We're trying to get some players to the next plateau, and others to be more consistent with their game. We'll get things sorted out after this week."

In JV action, Wayne's A team won with a 176, led by Sean Gansebom's 43. The B team finished fourth out of five JV teams, led by Eric Schoh's 45.

Allen boys win Homer Invite title

HOMER - The Allen boys aren't quite 100 percent healthy yet, which should be of concern to area Class D track teams after they won the Homer Invitational on Thursday.

The Eagles outlasted Dakota Valley and scored 135 points to win the nine-team meet, and coach Dave Uldrich said he's hoping his team will be at 100 percent very soon.

"We aren't 100 percent healthy yet, but we are nearing it," he said. "We had a tremendous effort by our junior varsity runners, jumpers and throwers and had six personal bests. We also had some varsity times and marks that were very impressive and will be very competitive for state meet slots."

The Eagles finished the day with four gold medals, led by senior Cody Stewart's solid effort of 42 feet, 8 inches in the triple jump. His effort Thursday put him among the state's top three Class D triple jumpers.

Also winning gold for the Eagles were Keith Jorgensen in the 800, Jacob Woodward in the 1,600 and Kyle Finnegan in the 3,200. The Eagles picked up eight medals in the three distance events, including a 1-2-3 sweep in the 1,600 with Dylan Mahler and D.J. Kennelly finishing behind Woodward. Allen also finished first, second (Kennelly) and fifth (Charlie Reynolds) in the 3,200.

The Allen girls placed a solid sixth, led by Olivia Schneiders, who won the 3,200-meter run, placed second in the 300 hurdles and took fourth in the 100 hurdles.

Laurel-Concord left some of their key competitors at home to prepare for the Sioux City Relays, but still finished well in the girls' team race, as the Lady Bears placed fourth.

"We had a young squad there, and we had some very good performances," coach Nate Sims said. "We were just four points out of second place, which I think caught everybody by surprise. It gave us a chance to run some girls in different events, so it was a good meet for us."

Amy Pritchard was the lone gold medalist on the day for the Lady Bears, taking top honors in the triple jump. Teammate Kiley Thompson was second and Audrey Kastrop was fourth, giving Laurel-Concord 22 points in one event.

Pritchard also took second in the long jump and was sixth in the 200 to lead the Lady Bears. Sammie Camenzind had two individual medals, taking fourth in the long jump and sixth in the 400.

Laurel-Concord's boys finished a distant fifth, but got some good individual performances, led by Justin Saunders' second-place finish in the 400-meter dash.

"We were able to move some people around, and our 1,600 relay had their best time of the year," coach Terry Bear said of the foursome of Saunders, Austin Roach, Beau Northam and Kyle Kardell. "Justin got a personal best in the 400 and Justin Stanton got fifth in the discus, which was nice to see."

American Cancer Society offers 'Look Good...Feel Better' program in Norfolk

The American Cancer Society will be holding a free program called "Look Good...Feel Better" offered to cancer patients in the Norfolk area. Look Good...Feel Better is a program that teaches beauty techniques to women cancer patients in active treatment to help them combat the appearance-related side effects of cancer treatment.

The next classes will be held on Monday, May 17 from 2-4 p.m. and Tuesday, July 20 from 9-11 a.m. at the Carson Cancer Center. Cancer patients wishing to participate in an upcoming class should call 402-644-7348 to register. One week's notice is preferred and registration is required for this free class.

"Look Good...Feel Better" group programs are offered nationwide in comprehensive cancer centers, hospitals, American Cancer Society offices and other community settings. In these sessions, Look "Good...Feel Better" trained, volunteer cosmetologists teach women how to cope with skin changes and hair loss using cosmetics and skin care products donated by the cosmetic industry. The free cosmetic kits provided at these group sessions are valued at over $200 each and are available in light, medium, dark and extra dark shades to enhance all complexion types. Women also learn ways to disguise hair loss with wigs, scarves and other accessories.

While most women find "Look Good...Feel Better" group programs the most beneficial because of the supportive group environment, the program is also offered in some areas as a one-on-one program by LGFB volunteer cosmetologists in their salons. In addition, self-help materials including a video and instructional booklet are available to those who cannot attend a "Look Good...Feel Better" group program or one-on-one consultation.

For information on other "Look Good...Feel Better" programs or to find out how to volunteer in your community contact Leah Margolis from the American Cancer Society at 402-393-5801 or by e-mail at Leah.Margolis@cancer.org. More information on American Cancer Society programs and services can also be found at www.cancer.org or www.lookgoodfeelbetter.org.

Elderfest 2010

From Ray Peterson's accordion music in the morning until the last note of the Artie and Gwen Scmidt dance in the evening, the sixth annual Elderfest, held April 15 was a resounding success. Organizers registered over 400 people during the morning events; more than 500 people for the afternoon's entertainment and approximately 400 people returned for the candlelight dance. Among the highlights was a presentation by Craig Florian as Elvis! "Elvis" wooed the women of the audience during his performance, posed for pictures and signed the Elderfest quilt during his visit to Wayne. Entertainment was also provided by the Burdette Heithold Dance Band, Wilbur Foss and the South Dakota Fiddler and "Keep the Faith" Gospel Quartet. Numerous door prizes were awarded throughout the day. More than 30 exhibits were on display during the morning. In addition, free coffee and pastries were served during the morning; 80 pies were donated for the pie and ice cream social in the afternoon and Tacos & More served a buffet to those attending the evening dance.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes

They don't get it

You just don't get it, do you? It's a question we should be asking our governor, every member of Congress, the Obama administration and even a former President of the United States.

A recent study by the Pew Research center showed that almost 4 in 5 Americans have little or no faith in their government. Only 22 percent of those surveyed said they can trust Washington always or most of the time.

And who can blame them? Our nation is flush with debt right now, thanks to a Congress and the last two regimes who seem content on bringing up a debt so high that it will take generations to pay back.

The level of corruption in the halls of our "representative" government is so bad that leaders of corrupt dictatorships are calling our members of Congress for tips on how to better screw over the people they represent.

Pelosi? Evidently, this Tea Party is a lot more than Pelosi and the media want it to be, because the leeches in the Republican Party are sucking on to the movement, and now we're seeing members of the Obama regime try to latch their sucking jaws on it as well.

The Tea Party's legitimacy has been tarnished, in my opinion, in large part due to the latching on of such GOP notables as Sarah Palin, who are trying to use the Tea Party's growing influence as the hammer to knock out some of the free-sending liberal Democrats in this November's mid-term elections.

A recent rally in Lincoln featured another our own governor, Dave Heineman, who felt compelled to lie to those in attendance that he has a lot in common with those who distrust our government.

You don't get it, do you, Governor? You and your party are not part of the solution to our out-of-control government. You are part of the problem, even though you told those at the rally that you will continue cutting taxes. How, governor, do you plan on cutting taxes when the state has a budget shortfall of more than $600 million to deal with in the next budget cycle? You could be standing in the middle of a feedlot and not be anywhere near as full of crap as you are in trying to promise that line of nonsense.

There is a reason why 80 percent of Americans are unhappy with our government. It's because we are sick and tired of the corruption, the incompetence and the unwillingness to do what is in the best interests of what was once - and still is - the greatest nation on Earth.

But they don't get it, do they?

Our government is becoming such a joke that the late-night talk shows don't even bother writing their own jokes anymore...they just download them from the headlines of the major news networks' TV broadcasts and Web sites.

There is a palpable, growing frustration with what used to be our democracy and how it has been whittled away by a bunch of greedy, well-heeled thugs, many of whom we are naive enough to believe in and elect or re-elect to "represent" us in the halls of Congress every election cycle.

Last year, the Tea Party movement began to gain ground, and was promptly mocked by House leader Nancy Pelosi, who referred to it as an "astroturf" movement, mocking its grass-roots beginnings.

You don't get it, do you, Ms.

Capitol View

Session done, but next year calls

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - Wait till next year! The preceding is the oft-cited battle cry that issues from the hearts and voices of many a Chicago Cubs fan each year - on no less than the opening day of the baseball season. Historically, the Cubs have proven the sentiment to be a legitimate one.

The Legislature concluded the 2010 session with pride in its fiscal conservatism. And if reducing the cost and scope of government spending is your cup of tea, so to speak, you can expect the same in 2011 - but in far, far greater measure. So, wait till next year.

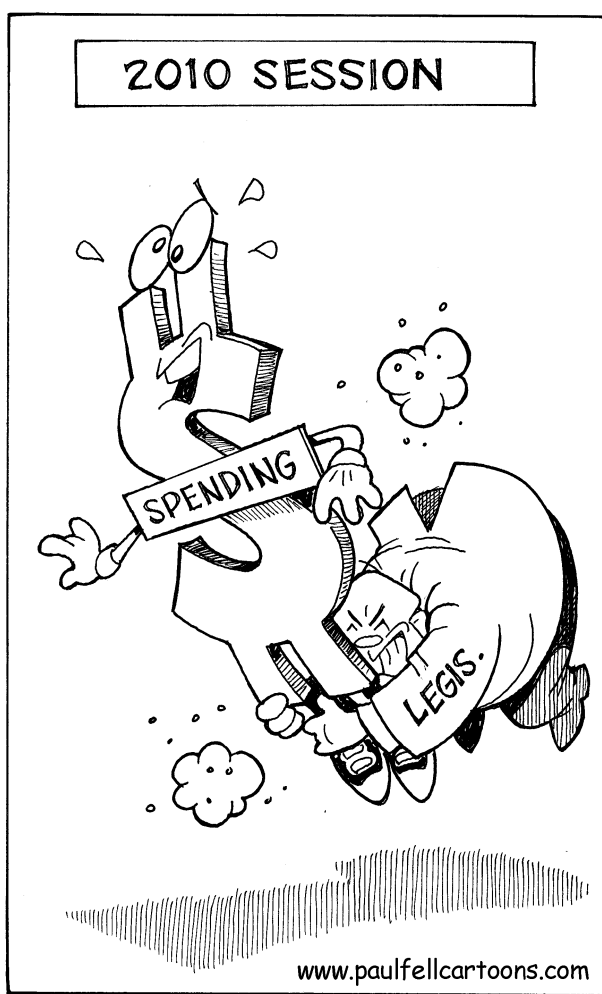

The 49 lawmakers in the nation's only one-house, officially nonpartisan Legislature will be confronted with a projected $679 million revenue shortfall. That figure applies to the upcoming two-year period for which they will be writing a budget.

That's $649 million in bedrock expenses that the state figures it won't have the money to cover. And this time around policymakers won't have a billion dollars in federal stimulus money to ease the economic pain. That income stream has dried up.

Even the most senior Capitol watchers, who have seen some pretty hardnosed budget cuts over the decades, might be pushed to a cliché when it comes to the coming budget: "You ain't seen nuttin' yet!" or, perhaps "Something's gotta go!"

Legislative committees and state agencies will be working between now and the start of the next session in January to come up with plans for major spending reductions.

What programs and services might go out the fiscal window? Can increases in state tax rates be avoided? This year's budget writing effort was difficult.

In the Capitol and elsewhere, those questions are generating the kind of anxiety well-known to the denizens of Wrigley Field. The Capitol, however, will not be referred to by many as "friendly confines."

Abortion measures could make history

The Legislature's latest effort to reduce the number of abortions in Nebraska would take on historic proportions if it is reviewed and upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

Lawmakers passed a measure that would ban abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy, a standard based on the belief that a fetus can feel pain at that stage. The current standard for abortion centers on the ability of a fetus to survive outside the womb - the so-called viability standard.

A legal test of the law is virtually assured. If it makes its way through the federal judiciary to the chambers of the nation's highest court, the case will have the rapt attention of everyone with an interest in the pro-life / pro-choice policy that is the law of the land.

New laws

-- If your kids are chronically truant you can face legal penalties for not seeing that they get to school. Lawmakers adopted the measure in the face of major truancy problems in some areas, particularly Omaha.

-- You might have seen stories over the years involving financial settlements of cases brought against all manner of public entities. Such stories have often included a line noting "details of the settlement were not revealed," or that the government had agreed to pay "an undisclosed sum" to the aggrieved party. Those days are gone. The details of such payouts (or payoffs, if you prefer) must now be disclosed.

-- The potential development of wind energy got a boost from lawmakers. Private companies will be allowed to generate wind energy and sell it in other states. The private wind farms will not be competing with the state's public power districts.

O'Leary is leaving WSC on a high note

In the next few weeks Jay O'Leary will step down after an impressive 44-year teaching career at Wayne State College.

O'Leary has excelled in teaching students how to play the Woodwind instruments. Last Friday night in Ramsey Theatre, he entertained a sizeable gathering with his faculty recital which included the Oboe, Flute, Clarinet, Bassoon and Saxophone.

He played a number of pieces and had several guest performers also take part to make his final performance a memorable one. Many former students came back to be a part of his celebration of 44 years of teaching music and the teacher himself, was taken back as he had no idea some of these former students were returning.

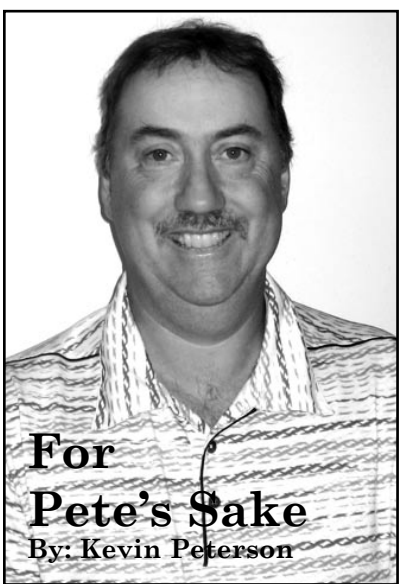

"It was definitely a surprise," O'Leary said. "I had no idea what was happening but I'm sure my wife had something to do with it." Jane O'Leary played the piano for several pieces while her husband played the myriad of instruments previously mentioned.

Jay came to Wayne State in 1966. He had never been to Nebraska after having grown up in Colorado. He went to Boston University and then was selected to play in the United States Army Field Band in Washington D.C. where he was a member for about three years.

"That was something I'll never forget," he recalled. "We were picked to play for the funeral of President John F. Kennedy after his assassination. Later we were asked to play for the inauguration of President Lyndon B. Johnson."

Following his field band experience he decided to go to graduate school to work on his Doctorate Degree as well as look for a college position where he could teach. He found about Wayne State and traveled west.

"I do remember coming to Wayne for the first time," O'Leary said. "We had pretty much driven through the entire town before I even realized it was a town. You have to remember I had been to Boston University and Washington D.C. so this was a very small place comparably."

Dr. O'Leary said he felt at home right away in Wayne. "I really liked the kids because they were so hard-working and had a keen interest in music," he said. "I can still recall some of the students in my first class."

Truth is, some in that first class remember him as well as Larry Marick returned last Friday to be a part of the music celebration. Marick was a freshman in 1966. He went on after graduation and got involved in the banking industry where he eventually became an officer on the State Banking Commission. He currently resides in Columbus where he has served in the past as the city's mayor.

O'Leary has taught well over a thousand students during his tenure and he appreciates knowing how music affected the lives of these individuals.

He was very happy to see his son Jed come back to play. He currently resides in Fremont where he teaches music in the Fremont school system. His daughter Jill also came back to play and she is currently a registered nurse at Jay O'Leary will be stepping down this spring after 44 years at Wayne State College.

Children's Hospital in Omaha.

Despite all the reminiscing it was Wayne High band instructor Brad Weber who struck a chord in his heart. "Brad was one of my favorite students, then he became a colleague and now he's my best friend," O'Leary said. "He's a very special person."

Weber spoke of what O'Leary meant to his life and career during last Friday's program.

So what's next for Dr. O'Leary?

Teaching, of course. "I plan on doing some teaching privately," he said. "I want to do some traveling as well and spend more time with my four grandchildren. I also want to get back into golf. I love the game but I've gotten away from it for many years. I plan on getting back into the swing of it."

No matter how far Dr. O'Leary gets away from the classroom, music will remain in his life....and the beat goes on.

Your Legislative Update

Greetings from the Unicameral! The 101st Nebraska Legislature has come to an end, with the second "short" session adjourning sine die last week. With the end of session, all bills which were not passed by the Legislature this year die, and must be reintroduced in order to be considered by the 102nd Legislature.

During the 2010 session, I introduced 11 new pieces of legislation, in addition to the five carryover bills that I had previously introduced in 2009. Two of my new bills (LB746 and LB873) were passed early in the session, and one of my carryover bills (LB411) was signed into law by Governor Heineman just last week.

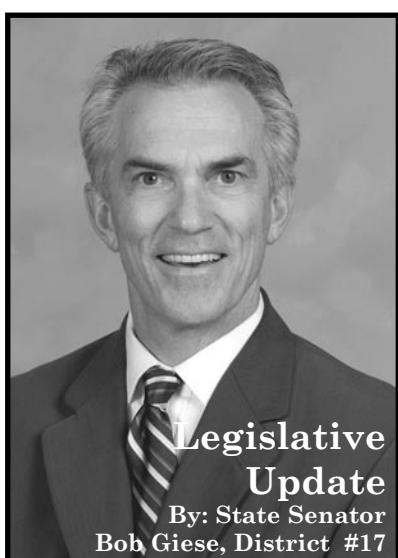

One of the last actions taken this session was the passage of LR542, which directs the Legislature's standing committees to review programs within agencies under their jurisdiction in anticipation of potential budget cuts next biennium.

In addition to their usual interim study work, the Education Committee and the Government, Military & Veterans Affairs Committee will be holding public hearings with relevant state agencies over the summer, with the goal of identifying programs and services which could be reduced or eliminated. Our state faces an estimated shortfall during the next biennium of more than $650 million, an amount that is truly unprecedented, according to legislative fiscal staff.

Whether the goal is continuing a discussion that started during session or looking at a new idea that was brought to my office after the deadline for new bill introduction, interim studies are a useful tool to examine potential changes in Nebraska law.

This year I introduced five interim studies, including three that were introduced at the request of individual constituents or on behalf of local government officials in District 17.

This week I learned that LR409, an interim study that I introduced to further examine the benefits and cost-savings of adopting online voter registration in Nebraska, was selected by the Government, Military & Veterans Affairs Committee as their top priority for the upcoming interim. I look forward to the possibility of having public hearings on these studies, and to continuing work in preparation for next year's legislative session.

It continues to be an honor to represent District 17 in the Nebraska Legislature. As always, I would encourage you to contact me if you have any questions or simply have an opinion on legislation before the Unicameral. Feel free to call my office at (402) 471-2716, send me an e-mail at bgiese@leg.ne.gov, or stop by in person any time you're in Lincoln.

Using your vital head in 4-H

I would like to share information about one of the four H's of 4-H. Some of you may know what the four H's of 4-H stand for "Head, Heart, Hands and Health." But have you ever stopped to think about why the first H stands for Head?

O.H. Benson is credited with designing the 4-H emblem sometime between 1907 and 1908. Benson suggested the first H stand for "Head" because the head is trained to think, plan and reason. The head also could have been the first H because it is at the top of our body or because without the head we would be unable to do anything. Our heads aka our brain controls everything our bodies do from breathing to running, from thoughts to feelings and much more.

In Iowa State "Targeting Life Skills Model" each of the four H's is subdivided into two general categories and the life skills that each of those areas encompasses are listed. The H that stands for Head is subdivided into Managing and Thinking. This is very similar to what Mr. Benson originally thought Head should stand for. The life skills that fall into the Managing category are resiliency, keeping records, wise use of resources, planning/organizing and goal setting. Thinking life skills include: service learning, critical thinking, problem solving, decision making and learning to learn.

Youth use their head to make decisions about what projects to take and how to complete them. They develop problem solving skills when their projects don't go quite the way they want them to.

If the first H of the 4-H pledge wasn't Head where would we be? To learn more check out 4h.unl.edu or http://4-h.org.

President Phyllis Rahn opened the meeting with a reading on the many uses of cucumbers. For roll call members responded with an experience of a spring storm. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The business meeting was interrupted so that Twyla Lindsay could introduce her guests: four lovely second and third graders accompanied by the elementary principal, a student teacher, a mom, and a paraprofessional.

As the opening of Mrs. Lindsay's program on Cinco de Mayo, the girls performed The Mexican Hat Dance, sang a song of the history of Cinco de Mayo, "Do You Know the Story?" and taught each member a Spanish word. Wearing authentic Mexican dress, the girls explained their costumes as well as what the boys and men would wear.

The festival known as Cinco de Mayo commemorates the Mexican militia's victory over France in the 1862 Battle of Puebla. Mexico had defeated Spain to gain their independence in 1821, lost territories in the United States as a result of the Mexican-American War in 1846-1848, and fought the Mexican Civil War in 1858. Consequently, the country was bankrupt and owed money to England, France and Spain. France was attempting to expand its empire and used the debt issue to try to gain Mexico. This victory provided a sense of pride for the Mexican patriots.

Considered a national holiday in Mexico, in the United States Cinco de Mayo is celebrated to keep the native customs and traditions alive.

Benito Juarez, a Mexican hero, was president during this time. Mrs. Lindsay noted similarities between Juarez and Abraham Lincoln in terms of age, family economics, education, loss of parents, occupations, wars to deal with and the death of sons. At the conclusion of the program historian Hollis Frese read from the minutes of Nov. 4 and 18 of 1946, and Dec. 2, 1947. Of special note were a couple of items: the rent for the club rooms at the auditorium was $5; one of the program topics was Highlights of Wayne State College; Minerva Club consisted of 17 active members.

In old business, members voted to accept the slate of officers for the coming year. The new officers will be MaryAnn DeNaeyer, president; Connie Glassmeyer, president-elect; Donna Hansen, treasurer; Fauneil Bennett, secretary. Hollis Frese will remain as historian.

The revised constitution was handed out to each member. Program topics for next year were discussed and plans were made to eat out for the year end meeting on Monday, May 10.

Lois Youngerman will host the next meeting in her home on Monday, April 26.

What to cut, what not to cut

By Kelly Feehan,
Extension Educator

While it is recommended to avoid pruning shade trees during active spring growth, it is important to cut the dead tops off of herbaceous perennials and ornamental grasses even if these plants already have new growth.

Herbaceous perennials and ornamental grasses are plants whose tops die each fall with only the crown and roots surviving to produce new growth. Last year's dead stems, leaves and old flowers need to be removed before new growth begins each spring.

Removing the old dead tops makes room for new growth and improves a plants appearance. It helps reduce overwintering insects and diseases. It can also reduce a potential fire hazard near a home due to excessive buildup of old, dry growth, especially dry ornamental grasses.

Some perennials are cut back after a killing frost in the fall to improve the gardens appearance and reduce winter homes for insects and diseases. The tops of some perennials and many ornamental grasses can be left over winter, especially if they have ornamental value, such as the plumes (seed heads) of grasses.

If cutting back dead tops is delayed and perennials and grasses begin spring grow, it is still important to remove the old tops as soon as possible. While doing so can damage some of the new growth, the plant will continue to generate growth and will not be harmed.

There are a few woody shrubs and vines which gardeners cut close to the ground each spring. This is typically done only with plants that bloom on new growth and by cutting the plants back each spring or every few years, blooming is increased. In some cases, a woody shrub is not fully hardy to Nebraska and the tops are killed each winter so it acts more like a perennial.

Examples of woody plants which are cut close to the ground in early spring include blue mist spirea (Caryopteris), butterfly bush (Buddleia), sweet autumn clematis and Hydrangeas. While these plants can be cut near the ground, it is fine to remove only winter killed wood each spring.

Roses are another example of woody plants whose tops are typically killed back by cold winter temperatures. The dead wood, which is usually discolored, needs to be removed sometime in mid to late April, just as the rose is beginning to bud out.

Pruning shade trees during spring growth is discouraged because this is a time when a trees natural defense system is lowered. When a tree is wounded, it chemically closes off (compartmentalizes) the wound. This prevents decay organisms that invade wounds from spreading throughout a tree.

Compartmentalization of decay in trees (CODIT) works well in healthy trees, especially if the tree is not wounded during a time when its natural defense system is lowered. It requires much energy for CODIT to occur. When a tree is actively growing during spring, energy is expended for new growth and less is available for a tree to CODIT wounds.

Avoid pruning shade trees during active spring growth. Once a tree begins to grow, wait until summer to prune. Other times a trees defense system is lowered is during late summer and early fall, in drought periods, and when disease or insects have stressed a tree.

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District encourages stewardship

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) encourages you to think about your personal responsibility to be a good steward of natural resources during its annual Stewardship Week celebration. The National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) has proclaimed April 25 - May 2, 2010 as Stewardship Week, marking the 55th year of the national event. The 2010 Stewardship Week is themed "Conservation Habits = Healthy Habitats," encouraging citizens, schools and communities to develop and maintain habitat areas using good conservation practices.

During Stewardship Week, the LENRD will again be providing free publications to churches and schools throughout the 15-county district in northeast Nebraska.

"Being good stewards of our natural resources at home and in our communities is an important task for each citizen," says LENRD Information & Education Specialist, Julie Wragge. "Each of us can make a difference by developing habitat areas in our own backyards, our schools, and in our communities."

The LENRD is a member of the National Association of Conservation Districts (www.nacdnet.org) which oversees the Stewardship Week program. Stewardship Week is one of the largest national annual programs to promote conservation. NACD represents the nation's 3,000 conservation districts, which were established to encourage resource conservation across the country.

For information about Stewardship Week and conservation, contact Julie Wragge at the LENRD at 402-371-7313 or visit their website at www.lenrd.org

Filling Medicare regulations is complicated

I'm headed to Crete this morning. I'm finding that a bit hard to believe. It seems that Tabitha now owns what was Crete Manor and there are eight residents there who need supervisory visits. Medicare regs say that when patients are receiving care from our aides, those aides need supervisory visits every two weeks. Those visits cannot be done by an LPN, in this case, the primary nurse for these folks. It has to be done by an RN.

We are short of RNs in this area, so someone from the Lincoln office goes there every two weeks. The nurse who usually goes is on vacation; I'm her sub.

Medicare regulations can really contribute to the cost of health care. Those same stipulations apply to our social workers. They have to be master's prepared social workers; or if they are not, we have to have a master's level person responsible for them.

We all know that those extra letters after someone's name do not necessarily make them better at their jobs.

Plus, in the case of these supervisory visits, I don't have to actually see the aides performing their duties. I only have to ask the patients, their significant others, or the staff at the facility if they are satisfied with the care the aides are providing. Then, I must look at the care plan and at the visit slip the aide fills out to see if they are doing what the care plan stipulates. If the patient is unable to communicate, and their loved ones are not present when the aide visit is made, and the facility personnel are all busy with their jobs, who is to say that the task was performed? It's easy to check a list. It seems to me that an LPN who is involved with these patients would be better able to assess the aide's care.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

See what I mean? I know, and you know, that we all do things every day to satisfy the regulations, but that they don't necessarily prove anything. Plus, when those aide visit slips are turned in to the office, someone there goes over them with a fine tooth comb. If there is something missing, or a discrepancy, the aide is notified and given a few days to "fix" it. It creates mountains of paper, and lots of people hired just to "check on things."

When you are as old as I am, and you remember the days when aides ran things, you find it all a bit much. Give me an experienced, caring nurse's aide any time for direct care. I learned so much from these ladies "in the old days."

I'm constantly reminded of how long I've been around. Yesterday, at the end of the day, one of the nurses who is at least twenty years younger said, "Thanks for helping us out. I don't know if I will be able to do what you are doing when I am your age!" I'm feeling like the grandmother of the bunch!

Furthermore, I can hardly wait to see what other regulations the new health care bill will come up with. I think I can see my permanent retirement on the horizon! My only concern is who will take care of me?????

Time to spray weeds in CRP

Now is the time to be spraying CRP fields and pastures for control of noxious weeds like musk and plumeless thistle. These are the most common noxious weeds we have, but we also have leafy spurge and Canada thistle in some areas.

Remember that failure to control noxious weeds could result in the guide. The full address for the Guide is <http://www.ianpubs.unl.edu/public/live/ec130/build/ec130.pdf>.

For thistles, now is a good time to spray before they begin to bolt and put on seed. The old reliable 2,4-D will work alone or in combination with dicamba. Newer herbicides like Milestone, Cimarron XTRA or PLUS, Amber, Escort, Chapparral and Curtail are becoming more popular. They are more expensive but may have better activity on some invasive plants.

Leafy spurge can be sprayed in the bud stage in the spring with 2,4 D, Grazon, or Tordon. Overdrive + Tordon can be used when the spurge is flowering.

Canada thistle is a tough perennial and is slowly spreading from north to south. In the spring and summer keep Canada thistle from going to seed by mowing once in June and again in July or treating with an inexpensive herbicide (2,4 D ester at 2 qts per acre). Then in the fall after the first frost an investment in a herbicide like Milestone, Stinger, or Tordon will provide excellent control.

Read the herbicide labels for more information on weeds controlled, harvest and grazing restrictions and rates to use. Remember the applicator is responsible for the use of all pesticides.

Nebraska Soybean Board funds trade mission to China

The Nebraska Soybean Board recently funded a soybean trade mission to China, March 19-31. The purpose of this trip was to provide farmer leaders a better understanding of the Chinese economic growth and how that influences the demand for soybeans and soy products.

China is going to be the growth market for soybeans for the next decade. They will likely be the major soybean importer and a smaller importer of soybean meal because of their crushing capacity and their demand for edible oils. However, even a small demand for soybean meal could be significant for Nebraska soybean producers.

While in China, the producers had the opportunity to visit and introduce Nebraska soybeans to importers, crushers, and end users in three of the most important importing regions in China. During these meetings, the Nebraska soybean producers gave presentations that described the current state of Nebraska agriculture, how it has progressed, and the future. Additionally, the presentation described what makes Nebraska unique by describing such things as location, infrastructure, irrigation, yields, and quality.

The participants included Lisa Lunz, NSB Chairman, of Wakefield; Duane Lee, NSB Director, of Albion; Ken Boswell, NSA Director of Shickley and Dennis Fujan, NSA

Management of noxious weeds is an ongoing battle, requiring years of scouting, proper herbicide use and timing of application. THANK YOU

God's Garden
God looked around his garden
And found an empty place.
He then looked down upon the earth,
And saw your tired face.
He put his arms around you
And lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful,
He always takes the best.
He knew that you were suffering,
He knew that you were in pain.
He knew that you would never
Get well on earth again.
He saw the road was getting rough,
And the hills were hard to climb.
So He closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace be Thine".
It broke our hearts to lose you, but
You didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you,
The day God called you home.

The family of Delbert Jensen wishes to thank our many family and friends who extended their expressions of love and support through all the cards, flowers, food and phone calls we received during the time of the loss of our loved one. There aren't enough words to express our thanks for the wonderful care we received from the doctors, especially Dr. Lindau, and the nurses and aides the times he was hospitalized and while he was a resident at Careage of Wayne this past year. Many thanks to everyone who visited him and a special thanks to the Sr. Center pool players who helped him celebrate his 84th birthday. He enjoyed that immensely. Thanks also to Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid for serving the lunch following the funeral service. Also thanks to Pastor Lilienkamp, Pastor Pasche and Hasemann Funeral Home for their assistance. We feel blessed to have all of you in our lives.

ELECTION PREVIEW

EDITOR'S NOTE

Nebraskans will be voting on one issue when they go to the Primary Election polls on May 11. So that voters can better understand this important proposed change to the state Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper has prepared this report. This report briefly defines the issues, explaining its purpose.

Amendment 1

Tax dollars won't be used to pay for it, and local governments won't use eminent domain to take any property from anyone to make it work. Supporters of Amendment 1 on the May 11 primary ballot hope voter understanding of those two things will result in approval of the constitutional amendment which would allow non-profit, charitable organizations the chance to finance community projects with the use of bonds issued by local governments. The bonds would be paid off with revenues from the project involved; the amendment specifically prohibits using or raising tax dollars for that purpose. And local governments could not condemn any private property for the projects. The plan went before voters in 2002 and 2006, gaining more votes each time. The new financing tool would simply allow charitable, nonprofits to benefit from lower interest rates. It is more expensive to use regular bank loans; and the amendment could eliminate the need for private, multi-year fundraising efforts for some programs. The bond funding would be limited to nonsectarian, nonreligious projects and, for example, allow recreational facilities to be created without cost to taxpayers.

Don't Toss This Form

When It Comes in the Mail

Pictured above is the one page 2010 Census form that was mailed to every residence in the U.S. in mid March. The US Census Act calls for all residents to complete and return the form in the postage free envelope provided. Did You Know?

The US Census form counts all people at each residence whether they are US citizens or not, and it doesn't ask if they are citizens. The Census count records US college students where they live most of the year and where they are living on April 1, 2010, and not where their parents live

The Census count for students living on campus is completed by WSC staff

Every US residence that doesn't mail back the Census form will receive a visit from a Census taker to complete the survey for that residence

16.5 years old was the average age of the total US population in the first census ordered by George Washington in 1790

28 was the average age of the US Founding Fathers in 1776 (excluding Ben Franklin who was 70 and Washington who was 44)

James Madison who later became the 4th President was 25

James Monroe was only 18, helped to write much of the US constitution and went on to become the 5th President

Alexander Hamilton was only 21 and went on to become the first US Treasurer

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both died on July 4th, 1826 exactly 50 years after the Declaration of Independence was declared

Thanks for being counted in 2010
